

Class _____

Book _____

Copyright N^o _____

COPYRIGHT DEPOSIT

MEN AND WOMEN OF AMERICA

737
2514
Pat 18

A BIOGRAPHICAL DICTIONARY OF CONTEMPORARIES

L. R. HAMERSLY & COMPANY

ONE WEST THIRTY-FOURTH STREET

NEW YORK CITY

1910

2663
M 31

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

ASTOR LENOX TILDEN FOUNDATION

1909

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY
L. R. HAMERSLY & COMPANY
NEW YORK

©CL A 251437

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY

ASTOR LENOX TILDEN FOUNDATION

1909

PREFACE

When, two years ago, the publishers of this present volume brought out "Men of America" as a one-volume biographical dictionary of American contemporaries, it was in contemplation to issue a companion volume under the title of "Women of America," and some considerable work of a tentative character was done along that line. It soon developed, however, that the outlook for the success of such a volume was at least quite doubtful. Some had found fault with "Men of America" because it excluded women; still more expressed disapproval of the idea of putting the Women of America off in a biographical reservation by themselves.

As a result "Men and Women of America" has been made. It is a dictionary dealing with the life histories of the men and women who in many and divers avenues of activity and usefulness have attained prominence or leadership, and are representative of the progress and development of the age. It is not claimed that all who deserve to be included in such a volume are among those whose sketches are contained in this one. There are many who would have been included if data for a proper sketch could have been obtained in time, and there are probably some few sketches included which might better have been left out. Errors of judgment, where the selection involves thousands of names, are inevitable.

It is believed, however, that taken as a whole, "Men and Women of America" may claim with confidence to be the best one-volume biographical dictionary of living Americans. It is, in effect, a second edition of "Men of America," although about half of the biographies in the present volume are entirely new, and as to the other half there has been such revision and recasting as make them practically original sketches. The biographies of women, included in the present publication, add a feature of great interest to the book.

Another feature which enhances the value of the book is the inclusion of full-page portraits to accompany some of the most interesting biographical sketches. Nothing can surpass a portrait in the amount of interest which it, as a human document, inspires, and it is believed that those included in this volume will be appreciated by its readers.

A large proportion of those whose sketches are included in "Men and Women of America" are people about whom it would be difficult to find satisfactory notice elsewhere, and even of those who are included in other publications it may be confidently claimed that the data have been brought up to date, and that the sketches are later and fuller than those of any other biographical dictionary of living Americans covering the National field. It is a reference book full of interesting and valuable personal data about eminent American men and women whose careers are of interest as illustrating and explaining the remarkable national development of our country along every line of material and intellectual endeavor.

PREFACE

This is a book of the living, except in the case of a few individuals who have died while the book was being printed. But the publishers, believing that a book, along similar lines but dealing wholly with the illustrious dead, would meet with approval, have begun the preparation of such a volume. It will include biographical sketches of those not now living, who by their lives have, from the founding of the Nation to the present era, contributed to its progress and welfare.

Doubtless many of those who own or use the present volume have some relationship or connection with deceased persons whose biographies should be included in this projected volume. Suggestions of names and data for that purpose will be gladly welcomed.

MEN AND WOMEN OF AMERICA

A

ABBATT, William:

Editor and publisher; born in New York City, Nov. 16, 1851; son of William D. and Agnes Alice (Dean) Abbott. He was educated in the Harrington Academy at West Chester, N. Y. Mr. Abbott was formerly editor of the Inter-State, New York City, and assistant editor of the New York News Letter, and is now editor of the Magazine of History, with Notes and Queries. He is author of The Crisis of the Revolution and of The Battle of Pell's Point; and is editor of: Memoirs of General William Heath; Sargent's Life of Major André; Codman's Arnold's Expedition to Quebec; Winfield's Blockhouse by Bull's Ferry, and Johnson's Traditions of the Revolution. Residence: West Chester, N. Y. Office: 141 East 25th Street, New York City.

ABBE, Cleveland:

Meteorologist; born in New York City, Dec. 3, 1838; son of George Waldo and Charlotte (Colgate) Abbe. He was graduated from the College of the City of New York, A.B., 1857, and A.M., 1860, studied in the University of Michigan, 1858-1859, and Harvard University, 1860-1864, receiving from the latter the degree of B.S. "as of 1864." He also received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Michigan, 1886, and from the University of Glasgow on the occasion of the Kelvin Jubilee, 1896. He was assistant to Dr. B. A. Gould, of the U. S. Coast Survey, 1860-64, engaged in the computation of longitudes, star catalogues, etc.: was assistant at the Imperial Central Astronomical Observatory at Poulkova, near St. Petersburg, Russia, 1864-1866, assistant at the U. S. Naval Observatory 1867-1868, and director of the Cincinnati Observatory, 1868-1873. There he inaugurated a system of daily weather maps of the United States, with a forecast of the weather for Cincinnati. This was soon followed by the establishment of daily weather service by the Government, and since 1871 he has been professor of meteorology, first in the U. S. Signal Service, and since 1891 in the Weather Bureau of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In 1875 he inaugurated the system of Standard Time Meridians, subsequently perfected by W. F. Allen for the use of American railroads and the general public. He has served as representative of the U. S. Weather Bureau in various national and international conferences and on astronomical expeditions; is a member of the National Academy of Science, a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and of other scientific societies in the United States, and is also a member of the meteorological societies of London, Paris, Berlin, and Vienna, of the Astronomical Societies of England and Germany, the Phi Beta Kappa Society and the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. He has made many contributions to the literature of technical meteorology. Dr. Abbe married in Cincinnati, May 10, 1870, Frances Martha Neal, who died July 24, 1908; and has three children. Address: U. S. Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C.

ABBEY, Edwin Austin:

Artist; born in Philadelphia, April 1, 1852. He was educated at the Academy of Fine Arts of Philadelphia, is an honorary

M.A. of Yale and LL.D. of the University of Pennsylvania, honorary associate of the Royal Society of British Architects and fellow of the Society of Antiquaries of London. In 1871 he was engaged by Harper Brothers, and in 1878 went for them to England, where he now resides. He soon made an international reputation as an illustrator of Shakespeare and the old comedies, to be followed by equally international fame as an artist. His first picture, A May-Day Morning, was exhibited at the Royal Academy in 1890, and many other notable pictures have followed and have given Mr. Abbey a distinguished place among the chief artists of Britain and America. In 1901 he painted the official picture of the Coronation Scene. In 1895 he painted the frieze, The Quest of the Holy Grail, for the Boston Public Library; painted, in 1906, a reredos for the American Church of the Holy Trinity, in Paris, and in 1907 he painted eight paintings for the dome of the Pennsylvania Capitol at Harrisburgh. Mr. Abbey is a Royal Academician of England, a National Academician of the National Academy of Design, New York, member of the Royal Bavarian Academy, American Water Color Society, Society of Mural Painters of New York, associate of the Royal Water Colour Society, London, Société des Beaux Arts, Paris, chevalier of the Légion d'Honneur of France, president of the Bath and West of England Society of Artists, honorary member of the Madrid Society of Artists, and corresponding member of the Institut de France. He has, since its formation, been president of the Artists' Cricket Club of London, and he is a member of the leading clubs of London and New York. Mr. Abbey married, in 1890, Mary Gertrude Mead, of New York. Addresses: Morgan Hall, Fairford, Gloucestershire, England, and Chelsea Lodge, Tite Street, London, S. W., England.

ABBOT, Charles Greeley:

Director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory since March 1, 1907; born at Wilton, Hillsboro County, N. H., May 31, 1872; son of Harris Abbot and Caroline (Greeley) Abbot. He was prepared at Wilton High School and Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as B.S. in 1894 and M.S. in 1895. Immediately following his graduation he became an assistant in the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory until 1896, then was an aid, acting in charge, until 1906; acting director in 1906, and in 1907 until his promotion to director. Mr. Abbot is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, of the American Astronomical and Astrophysical Society, and of the Washington Philosophical Society, is especially distinguished for researches on the infra-red solar spectrum, the sensitive galvanometer, and osmotic pressure, and is a writer of numerous papers on solar physics. Address: 36 Q Street, Washington, D. C.

ABBOT, Edwin Hale:

Lawyer and railway official; born in Beverly, Mass., Jan. 26, 1834, son of Joseph Hale and Frances Ellingwood (Larcom) Abbot. He was graduated from Harvard in 1855 and from Harvard Law School in 1862, and afterward practised law in Boston and also for some years had an office in Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Abbot has been actively identified with corporation matters, especially with affairs relating to the finances of railroads. He was trustee of the Wisconsin Central Railroad and is especially known as the author of the Wisconsin Central plan of 1879, of corporate organization, by which the control of the corporation was vested in the bondholders through the reservation to them of the voting power on the stock. This was the first and original scheme out of which various forms of trust administration for the benefit of the holders of securities were evolved. Mr. Abbot has been a frequent contributor to law journals. He married Martha T. Abbot, of Portland, Me., Sept. 19, 1886. Residence: 1 Follen Street, Cambridge, Mass. Office: 14 Beacon Street, Boston.

ABBOT, Henry Larcom:

Retired engineer officer. U. S. Army; born in Beverly, Mass., Aug. 13, 1831; son of Joseph Hale and Frances Ellingwood (Larcom) Abbot; was educated at the Boston Latin School and graduated from West Point in 1854, subsequently receiving the degree of LL.D. from Harvard. Professor of hydraulic engineering, George Washington University, Faculty of Graduate Studies, since May, 1905. He served in the Corps of Engineers of the United States in all grades to colonel, inclusive, retiring in 1895, and was promoted to the rank of brigadier-general U. S. A., retired, April 23, 1904. He rendered distinguished service in the Civil War as colonel of the 1st Connecticut Artillery from Jan., 1863, and commanded the Siege Artillery Brigade, serving the siege train of both armies under General Grant until the end of the War, and accompanying General Terry as his chief of artillery at the taking of Fort Fisher. He received five regular and two volunteer brevets for gallant services, including brevet brigadier-general U. S. A. and major-general U. S. V. General Abbot designed the system of submarine defenses and vigorously advocated that of the mortar batteries now adopted by the United States, and has been a member of the board of judges on military exhibits at several expositions. He was president of the board of consulting engineers of the ship canal projected from Pittsburgh to Lake Erie in 1896, and was also a member of the technical committee and consulting engineer of the New Panama Canal Company from 1897 to 1904, and of the board of consulting engineers to plan the American Panama Canal. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, of the American Philosophical Society and of other scientific societies, of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion and of the Society of Cincinnati in the State of Connecticut (representing Nathan Hale). General Abbot has written many works on military and civil engineering, including articles for encyclopedias and magazine articles. He married in Cambridge, Mass., April 2, 1856, Mary Susan Everett, and they have had four children. Address: 23 Berkeley Street, Cambridge, Mass.

ABBOTT, Alexander Crever:

Physician and hygienist; born in Baltimore, Md., Feb. 26, 1860; son of Alexander and Elizabeth (Beatty) Abbott. He was educated in the Baltimore City College and in the Medical Department of the University of Maryland, where he received his medical degree in 1884, after which he pursued post-graduate studies in Johns Hopkins University and in the Universities of Munich and Berlin. He engaged in medical practice in Philadelphia and has attained much prominence as a hygienist, now being chief of the Bureau of Health and president of the Board of Health of Philadelphia, and also professor of hygiene and director of the Laboratory of Hygiene in University of Pennsylvania. Dr. Abbott is author of two text-books: The Principles of Bacteriology and The Hygiene of Transmissible Diseases, both of high authority in the profession, and is a member of the most important medical and several scientific societies. He married Aug. 30, 1892, Georgina Pieton Osler, daughter of Hon. Justice Osler, of the Court of Appeals of Ontario. Address: 4229 Baltimore Ave., Philadelphia.

ABBOTT, Augustus L.:

Lawyer; born in Weymouth, Mass., Aug. 6, 1858; son of Rev. L. A. Abbott, D.D. and Mary A. (Preston) Abbott. He was educated in Brown University, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1880, and received the degree of A.M. in 1883. He was instructor in mathematics at Shurtleff College, Upper Alton, Ill., 1881-1884, meanwhile studying law, and he was admitted to the Missouri bar in 1884, and was graduated from the Law Department of Washington University as LL.B. in 1885. He has been engaged in the practice of law in St. Louis since 1884, and since 1902 has been senior member of the law firm of Abbott, Edwards & Wilson. Mr. Abbott is a member of the American Bar Association, and of the Missouri and St. Louis Bar Associations. He married at Alton, Ill., in 1887. Amette Blair, and they have three children. Residence: 5449 Maple Avenue. Office: 909-915 Times Building, St. Louis.

ABBOTT, Charles Conrad:

Author, naturalist and archaeologist, writer of books on familiar animal life; born in Trenton, N. J., June 4, 1843; son of Timothy and Susan (Conrad) Abbott. He was graduated with the degree of M.D. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1865, and made a large archaeological collection which is now in the Peabody Museum at Cambridge, Mass., and later one of the Delaware Valley exclusively, now at Princeton University. He was assistant in the Peabody Museum from 1876 to 1889, and from 1889 to 1904 was professor of American prehistoric archaeology in the University of Pennsylvania. Besides numerous books relating to nature, Dr. Abbott has written several novels and three exhaustive treatises on the archaeology of the Valley of the Delaware, the last, Archæologia Nova Casarea, in three numbers, 1907, 1908 and 1909, summing up the various objections that have been raised to his view of the one-time existence of man in that valley when glacial conditions prevailed. He married at Princeton, N. J., Feb. 13, 1867, Julia Boggs Olden, and has three children. Address: "Three Beeches," Trenton, N. J.

ABBOTT, Edville Gerhardt:

Physician, born in Hancock, Maine, Nov. 6, 1871; son of Alonzo and Maria B. (Mercer) Abbott. He was graduated from Bowdoin College with the degrees of A.B. and A.M. pro merito, and from the Maine Medical School as M.D., 1898. He served one year as house physician at the Maine General Hospital, studied six months in Boston hospitals and six months in New York hospitals, then went to Europe for a year, attending the Friedrich Wilhelm Universität at Berlin, 1900-1901, and devoting the entire year to the study of orthopedic surgery under the most eminent men in this specialty. Since then he has given his entire attention to the practice of orthopedic surgery, at Portland, Maine, and he has contributed frequently to the leading medical journals on subjects connected with his specialty. He is surgeon-in-chief to the Children's Hospital, orthopedic surgeon to the Maine General Hospital, visiting surgeon to St. Barnabas Hospital, consulting surgeon to the Sisters' Hospital, consulting surgeon to the Webber Hospital, consultant to the Maine State Sanatorium and surgeon to the Maine Central Railroad; and he is instructor in orthopedic surgery in Bowdoin Medical College. He is a member of the American Medical Association, Maine Medical Association, Cumberland County Medical Society, Pathological Club, the Maine Natural History Society, and the Psi Upsilon and Phi Chi fraternities. Dr. Abbott is a director in the Fidelity Trust Co., is a member of the Portland Board of Trade and of the Cumberland County, Fraternity and Athletic Clubs of Portland; and he is chairman of the Republican City Committee. He married in Bucksport, Maine, in March, 1892, Sara Sargent, of Prospect Harbor, Maine. Residence: 14 Dearing Street. Office: Y. M. C. A. Building, Portland, Maine.

ABBOTT, Howard Strickland:

Lawyer; born, in Farmington, Minn., Sept. 15, 1864; son of Abiel Howard and Mary Ellen (Strickland) Abbott. He was graduated from the University of Minnesota, B.L., 1885, and was admitted to the bar upon oral examination by the Supreme Court of Minnesota in 1887. He was assistant general counsel of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway and "Soo" Railway, 1887-1889; attorney for the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railway Company, 1889-1897; special master in chancery in the Union Pacific Railroad receivership, 1897-1901; master in chancery of the United States Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota since 1897. Mr. Abbott has been lecturer on public and private corporations since 1898, and is also lecturer on civil law and mortgages in the Law College of the University of Minnesota. He was secretary of the Wisconsin, Minnesota and Pacific Railway Company, 1887-1889, and since 1904 has been a director of the Minneapolis Trust Company. He is author of: Abbott on Municipal Corporations (3 volumes), 1907; Abbott on Public Corporations, 1908; also Case books on both Private and Public Corporations, and Abbott's Notes, Authorities and Deductions on Corporations, 1901. Mr. Abbott is a member of the American Bar Association, the State Bar Association of Minnesota, Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, and honorary member of the Phi Delta Phi (law) fraternity. He is a vestryman of St. Mark's Episcopal Church, Minneapolis, and since 1905 has been a trustee of the Diocese of Minnesota. He married in Racine, Wis., June 29, 1898, Mary Louise Johnson, and they have two children. Residence: 900 Sixth Street, S. E. Office: 402 Federal Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

ABBOTT, Jo:

Lawyer; born near Decatur, Ala., Jan. 15, 1840, son of William and Mary Abbott. He served in the Army of the Confederate States during the entire Civil War, becoming a first lieutenant in the 12th Texas Cavalry Regiment, and after the war was admitted to the bar and entered upon successful law practice. He was a member of the Legislature of Texas, 1869-1871, judge of the 28th Judicial District of Texas, 1879-1884, and in 1886 was elected as a Democrat to the Fiftieth Congress, and was four times reelected, his service expiring in 1897. Address: Hillsboro, Texas.

ABBOTT, Lyman:

Clergyman, author, editor of The Outlook; born in Roxbury, Mass., Dec. 18, 1835; son of Jacob and Harriet (Vaughan) Abbott. He was graduated from New York University in 1853, and in after years received from that university the degrees of D.D. and LL.D., D.D. from Harvard, and LL.D. from Western Reserve University. He was ordained to the Congregational ministry in 1860, was pastor at Terre Haute, Ind., from 1869 to 1865, of the New England Church in New York City from 1865 to 1869, and succeeded Henry Ward Beecher as pastor of Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, from May, 1888, until he resigned in November, 1898. He was secretary of the American Union Commission (Freedman's) from 1865 to 1868. He edited the "Literary Record" of Harper's Magazine, was associate editor of the Christian Union, with Henry Ward Beecher. He is a member of the New York Bar Association, the New York State Historical Association, Indian Rights Association, American Forestry Association, Ramabai Association, New York Association for the Blind, Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, National Conference of Charities and Correction, Aldine Association, New York University Alumni, American Peace Society, Maine Society, The Religious Education Association, The Armstrong Association, New York Child Labor Committee, National Child Labor Committee, the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, American Institute of Sacred Literature, New York State Conference of Religion, Universal Peace Union, and The National Civil Service Reform League. Dr. Abbott believes the problem of political economy is to seek a more equitable distribution of wealth rather than to promote a larger accumulation of wealth; and that social reform calls for a recognition of partnership relations between labor and capital and the extension of the industrial function of government; and holds that the principles and the spirit of Jesus Christ applied to social problems would furnish their solution. Dr. Abbott is author of Jesus of Nazareth; Old Testament Shadows of New Testament Truth; A Layman's Story; How to Study the Bible; Illustrated Commentary on the New Testament, 1875; Dictionary of Religious Knowledge (with late T. J. Conant), 1876; A Study in Human Nature, 1885; In Aid of Faith, 1891; Life of Christ, 1894; Evolution of Christianity, 1896; The Theology of an Evolutionist, 1897; Christianity and Social Problems, 1897; Life and Letters of Paul, 1898; The Life that Really Is, 1899; Problems of Life, 1900; Life and Literature of the Ancient Hebrews, 1900; The Rights of Man, 1901; Henry Ward Beecher, 1903; The Other Room, 1904; The Christian Ministry, 1905;

The Great Companion, 1905; Personality of God, 1905; Industrial Problems, 1905; Christ's Secret of Happiness, 1907; Impressions of a Careless Traveller, 1907; The Home Builder, 1908, as well as articles in The Outlook and other magazines which cover many subjects, religious, theological, social and historical. He married in Boston, October 14, 1857, Abby F. Hamlin, daughter of Hannibal Hamlin (vice-president of the United States from 1861 to 1865), and they have five children. Address: The Outlook, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

ABBOTT, Nathan:

Professor of law; born in Norridgewock, Me., July 11, 1854; son of Abiel and Sarah S. Abbott. He was educated in Phillips Andover Academy, Yale College, A.B., 1877, and Boston University Law School, LL.B., 1892. Mr. Abbott was Tappan professor of law in the University of Michigan, 1891-1892; professor of law in Northwestern University, 1892-1895; in Leland Stanford University, 1895-1907, and since 1907 professor of law in Columbia University. He married in 1884, Frances Field. Address: Columbia College Law School, New York City.

ABERCROMBIE, John William:

President of the University of Alabama since 1902; born at Kelly's Creek, Ala., May 17, 1866; son of Henry M. and Sarah A. (Kendrick) Abercrombie. He was graduated from Oxford College, Ala., 1886, and has received degrees of LL.D. from the University of Alabama and the South Carolina College. Since 1886 he has been engaged in educational work, having been president of Ashland College, Ala., principal of Cleburne Institute, Ala., president Bowdon College, Ga., superintendent of city schools of Anniston, Ala., president of Southern Female Seminary (now Anniston College for Young Ladies), and for four years State superintendent of education of Alabama, before he became president of the University of Alabama. From 1896 to 1899 he was a member of the Alabama State Senate and has been a leader in promoting the educational legislation of the State. He is a member of the National Educational Association and a prominent member of the Knights of Pythias. For several years he has been chairman of the committee on legislation of the Alabama Educational Association, and was formerly president of the Southern Educational Association. Dr. Abercrombie is the author of several pamphlets on educational subjects. He married at Edwadsville, Ala., Jan. 8, 1891, Rose Merrill. Address: University, Ala.

ABERCROMBIE-MILLER, Frederick Augustus:

Commander, United States Navy, retired; born at Elkton, Cecil County, Maryland, June 12, 1842; son of Frederick Augustus Muhlenberg and Martha Mason (Abercrombie) Miller. He was educated in the Episcopal Academy in Philadelphia, Thompson's Military Academy and Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. He entered the Navy as a volunteer in 1861, declining an appointment to the U. S. Naval Academy, and was transferred to the Regular Navy, at the close of the Civil War, having been recommended for promotion three times by F. A. Parker, executive of the Washington Navy Yard, L. A. M. Craven, commanding the Tuscarora, and M. B. Woolsey, commanding the Princess Royal. He served on varied duties and stations, as a Naval officer up to and including the rank of lieutenant-commander, with which rank he retired, Nov. 30, 1885, for incapacity resulting from incidents of service. On July 22, 1905, a bad fall caused paralysis, and the complete withdrawal from all work, and June 29, 1906, he was advanced in rank to commander. Commander Miller has been twice around the world, cruising for twenty odd years, and traveled in Europe. He was a director of the American Security and Trust Company, Washington, D. C., and of the Sanitary Housing Company of Washington until his recent resignation because of physical disability. Commander Miller was also until recently treasurer of St. John's Hospital, president of the Children's Aid Association, and vice president of the Emergency Hospital. He is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, the Society of American Wars, the Cosmos, Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs of Washington, and the Corinthian Yacht Club of Philadelphia. He married in Brooklyn, N. Y., May 18, 1882, Alice Townsend, and they have three children. Address: 2201 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D. C.

ACHESON, Edward Goodrich:

Inventor, manufacturer; born at Washington, Pennsylvania, March 9, 1856; son of William Acheson and Sarah D. (Ruple) Acheson. He was educated in the public schools, and for one year attended the Bellefonte Academy, Pennsylvania, and he received the degree of Sc.D. from the University of Pittsburgh in February, 1909. He was assistant to Thomas A. Edison, from 1880 to 1883, and he is the inventor of carborundum, Egyptinized clay, Acheson graphite, siloxicon and deflocculated graphite. He is president of the International Acheson Graphite Company and of the Acheson Company; director of The Acheson Oildag Company, and the Carborundum Company. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, the Society of Arts of London, England, and president of the American Electro-Chemical Society. Mr. Acheson married in Brooklyn, N. Y., Margaret Maher, and they have five boys and four girls. Residence: Grafilla, Lundy's Lane, Niagara Falls, Ontario. Business address: Niagara Falls, N. Y.

ACHESON, Ernest Francis:

Congressman and editor; born in Washington, Pa., Sept. 19, 1885; son of Alexander Wilson and Jane (Wishart) Acheson. He was graduated from Washington and Jefferson College, as A.B. in 1875, and was admitted to the bar of Pennsylvania in 1877. In 1879 he became editor of the Observer, of Washington, Pa., with which he has ever since been connected. Mr. Acheson has always been an active Republican, and was for ten years a member of the State Republican Committee of Pennsylvania. He was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1884 and at St. Louis in 1896. He was elected to the Fifty-fourth Congress in 1894, and was six times reelected, serving until March 3, 1909. He was elected president of the Pennsylvania Editorial Association in January, 1893, and recording secretary of the National Editorial Association in June, 1893. Mr. Acheson is author of: The Congressional Party in Hawaii, 1907. He married at Washington, Pa., Nov. 22, 1882, Janine B. Stewart. Address: Washington, Pa.

ACKER, Charles Ernest:

Manufacturer and inventor; born at Bourbon, Ind., March 19, 1868; son of William James Acker, a manufacturer. Mr. Acker was educated at Wabash College and Cornell University, from which he was graduated as Ph.B. in 1888. He developed the first electrolytic process for the manufacture of caustic soda by electrolysis of molten salt, known as the Acker process; and the Elliott-Cresson gold medal of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia and several other medals were conferred upon him for his invention. He built the works of the Acker Process Company at Niagara Falls, which utilizes 4,000 electrical horse-power; originated processes for tetrachloride of tin, carbon tetrachloride, etc., which are also in use at Niagara Falls, and was the first to manufacture carbon tetrachloride in America. Mr. Acker is a director of the Niagara Falls Trust Company and The Tin Products Company of New York. He is a director of the American Electrochemical Society; a member of the Society of Arts (London), the Faraday Society (London), the Society of Chemical Industry (London), the American Electrochemical Society, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the American Chemical Society. Mr. Acker married, in 1892, Alice Reynolds, daughter of William R. Beal, of New York, and they have four children. Address: Niagara Falls, N. Y.

ADAIR, John A. M.:

Congressman, banker; born on a farm in Jay County, Indiana, Dec. 22, 1863; son of James G. and Sarah (Hudson) Adair, and since 1880 he has been a resident of Portland, Ind., county seat of his native county, in the high school of which city he received his education. He was elected city clerk of Portland, clerk of Jay County in 1890, and while in that office studied law. He was admitted to the bar in 1895 and practised law until he was elected president of the First National Bank of Portland, since which time he has devoted his attention to the banking business. In 1902 he was elected to the General Assembly of Indiana, and was made chairman of the Democratic Caucus in the session of 1903. In 1906 he was elected to the Sixtieth Congress, and in 1908 he was reelected to the Sixty-first Congress from the Eighth Indiana District. Mr. Adair married, in 1890, Grace R. Johnson, and has one son. Address: Portland, Ind.

ADAM, James Noble:

Mayor of Buffalo, N. Y.; born in Peebles, Scotland, March 1, 1842; son of Rev. Thomas and Isabella (Borthwick) Adam. He was educated in the Edinburgh parochial schools until 1854, when he was apprenticed to the dry goods business with Thomas Cooper and Company, of Edinburgh, and in that employ he rose from bundle-boy to clerk, remaining with that house ten years. He was then in business for himself in Edinburgh for seven years. In 1872, upon the advice of his brother, the late Robert Borthwick Adam, who had already established himself in the dry goods business in Buffalo, he came to the United States and started a store in New Haven, Conn., but in 1881 he closed out his business there and founded at Buffalo the firm of J. N. Adam and Company, which in a few years became the leading department store of that city, and which he conducted with great success until 1906, when he retired from business. Mr. Adam is a Democrat, and in 1895 he was elected to the City Council of Buffalo. In 1905 he was elected mayor of Buffalo for a four-year term. He reformed the police department and put all of the departments on a business basis. He is a member of the Fine Arts Academy, the Buffalo Historical Society, the Chamber of Commerce and the Buffalo and Saturn Clubs, and is also a member of the Advisory Board of the Children's Hospital. Mr. Adam married, in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1872, Margaret L. Paterson (now deceased). Address: 60 Oakland Place, Buffalo, N. Y.

ADAMS, Alva:

Merchant and ex-governor of Colorado; born in Iowa County, Wis., May 14, 1850; son of a Kentuckian, who was a farmer. He attended the common country schools; went to Colorado in 1871 and first engaged in hauling ties, but from that developed into a successful merchant, first at Colorado Springs, and afterward at Pueblo. He was a member of the first State Legislature of Colorado in 1876, was elected governor of Colorado as a Democrat in 1886 and 1896, serving two two-year terms; was again the Democratic candidate for governor in 1904 and was declared elected and inaugurated three months later; but, though elected by over ten thousand majority, he was ousted by a hostile Legislature, and the lieutenant-governor became governor. He has been president of the Pueblo Savings Bank since 1891. Address: Pueblo, Colo.

ADAMS, Arthur Lincoln:

Consulting hydraulic engineer; born near Greensburg, Ind., Sept. 15, 1864; son of Jacob Clendenie and Nancy (Hamilton) Adams. He was graduated from Kansas State University, B.S., 1886, with membership in the Sigma Xi honor society. From 1886 to 1890 he was engaged on railroad construction in Nebraska, Oregon and Washington, and from 1890 to 1896 in the design and construction of various water works for municipalities, irrigation and other hydraulic projects in the Western States; since 1896 he has been practising as a consulting hydraulic engineer, as chief engineer of large undertakings and municipal water-supplies, and as manager of water works properties in the Western States. Mr. Adams is a member and director of the American Society of Civil Engineers; member of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia, Technological Society of the Pacific Coast, American Academy of Political and Social Science and the National Geographic Society. He is a trustee of the First Presbyterian Church and of the Young Men's Christian Association of Oakland, California; president of the San Francisco Association of Members of the American Society of Civil Engineers. In 1897 he was awarded the Thomas Fitch Rowland prize of the American Society of Civil Engineers. He is author of numerous professional papers and discussions contributed to the Transactions of that society, and to the technical press. He married at Topeka, Kan., Dec. 19, 1889, Mary Young Geninell, and they have four children. Residence: 650 Oakland Avenue. Office: 1014 Broadway, Oakland, Calif.

ADAMS, Brooks:

Lawyer and author; born in Quincy, Mass., June 24, 1848; son of the late Charles Francis Adams. He was educated in various schools in this country and abroad and was graduated from Harvard College in 1870. He was secretary to his father when the latter was one of the arbitrators of the Alabama claims at Geneva, and took a personal part in other historic events. He was admitted to the bar and practised law until 1881, when he retired, giving his time to travel and study for several years, but later resuming practice. He is author of: The Emancipation of Massachusetts; The Law of Civilization and Decay; America's Economic Supremacy; The New Empire; Centralization and the Law. He married, in 1889, Evelyn, daughter of Rear Admiral C. H. Davis, U. S. N. Residence: Quincy, Mass. Office: 84 State Street, Boston, Mass.

ADAMS, Charles Francis:

Historical writer and publicist; born in Boston, Mass., May 27, 1835; son of Charles Francis Adams, diplomat. He was graduated from Harvard as A.B. in 1856, was admitted to the bar in 1858; served in the Union Army through Civil War from first lieutenant to lieutenant-colonel of Massachusetts Cavalry and was brevetted brigadier-general. He was appointed a member of the Board of Railway Commissioners of Massachusetts in 1869, and declined reappointment in 1870, became president of the Union Pacific Railway in 1884 and resigned, 1890. He served as president of the Massachusetts Historical Society in 1895. Mr. Adams is author of: Chapters on Erie and Other Essays; Railroads, their Origin and Problems; Notes on Railway Accidents; Massachusetts, Its Historians and Its History; Three Episodes of Massachusetts History; Life of Charles Francis Adams; Richard Henry Dana, a Biography; Lee at Appomattox, and Other Papers; Three Phi Beta Kappa Addresses; Lee's Centennial, 1907. Mr. Adams received from Harvard the degree of LL.D. in 1895. He married, Nov. 8, 1865, Mary Ogden. Address: 23 Court Street, Boston.

ADAMS, Charles Josiah:

Clergyman, author; born at New Lisbon, Ohio, Oct. 31, 1850; son of Rev. Josiah and Sarah A. (Ford) Adams. He was graduated from Mount Union College, Alliance, Ohio as A.B. in 1871; studied at Yale in 1873, and Boston University, in 1874. He was ordained priest in the Episcopal Church in 1875, was canon of St. John's Cathedral, Denver, Colo., 1882 to 1885; dean of Wichita, Kansas, 1885 to 1888; rector of St. Luke's Church, Chicago, 1888 to 1891; rector of the Church of the Holy Spirit, Rondout-on-Hudson, N. Y., 1891 to 1896, and since May 1, 1896, he has been rector of St. Luke's Church, Rossville, Staten Island, N. Y. He received the degree of D.D. from Mount Union College. Mr. Adams was the organizer and is the manager and lecturer for the Church Thinking Bureau and The Bureau of Biophilism, or Animal Psychology. He is author of: Where is My Dog? or, Is Man alone Immortal?; The Matterhorn Head and Other Poems; How Baldy Won the County Seat, etc. He was formerly chaplain of the New York Press Club. Dr. Adams married, March 22, 1876, Jennie E. Holloway, and has a son. Residence: Rossville, Staten Island, N. Y. Address: 29 Lafayette Place, New York City.

ADAMS, Cyrus Hall:

Retired merchant; born at Kerr's Creek, Rockbridge County, Va., Feb. 21, 1849; son of Hugh and Amanda (McCormick) Adams. His mother was a daughter of Robert McCormick of Virginia. The family having removed to Chicago, young Adams received his education in the public schools of that city and at the old University of Chicago. He entered the employ of Cyrus H. McCormick & Co., grain merchants, 1867; became partner, 1871, in the reorganized firm of McCormick, Adams & Co., and in 1883 became head of the firm of Cyrus H. Adams & Co., which position he held until 1889, when he retired on account of ill health. During the period from 1871 to 1889 he was a member of the Arbitration Committee, a member of the Appeals Committee and a director of the Chicago Board of Trade. He was also a director of the National Bank of America. Among the positions of trust he has held are those of trustee of the McCormick Theological Seminary, member of the Board of Governors of the Presbyterian Hospital, and governing member of the Art Institute of Chicago; member of Union League, Onwentsia, and Saddle and Cycle Clubs of Chicago. Mr. Adams is an Independent Democrat in politics and a member of the Presbyterian Church. He married in Chicago, Sept. 26, 1878, Emma J., daughter of Lyman Blair, and has one son, Cyrus H. Adams, Jr. Address: 155 Rush Street, Chicago, Ill.

ADAMS, Edward Dean:

Banker; born in Boston, April 9, 1846; son of Adoniram Judson and Harriet Lincoln (Norton) Adams. He was educated in Norwich University, Northfield, Vt., receiving from it the degree of B.S. in 1864, and later those of M.S., LL.D. and M.A. He was a bookkeeper, 1866 to 1870, and from 1870 to 1878 a member of the banking firm of Richardson, Hill & Co., of Boston; was of the banking firm of Winslow, Lanier & Co. from 1878 to 1893, and since then has been the American representative of the Deutsche Bank of Berlin. Mr. Adams has been actively connected with the organization and reorganization of railway and industrial corporations, and is president and director of the Bullock Electric and Manufacturing Co. and of the Cataract Construction Co., is a director and chairman of the executive committee of the Empire Engineering Corporation; director and member of the executive committee of the Cataract Power and Conduit Co., of Buffalo, Niagara Development Co., Niagara Junction Railway Co. and Niagara Falls Power Co.; director of the Allis-Chalmers Co., Allis-Chalmers-Bullock, Limited, of Montreal, American Cotton Oil Co., East Jersey Water Co. (president), Guatemala Railway Co. of New Jersey, General Security Co., Tonawanda Cataract Power Co.; president of the Rumson (N. J.) Improvement Company (water company). Mr. Adams is chairman of the medal committee of the American Numismatic Society, trustee of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, vice-president of the Germanistic Society of America, trustee and chairman of the finance committee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; trustee of Norwich University, Military College of Vermont; trustee and vice-president of the School of Musical Art of New York City, life member of the American Geographical Society, fellow of the American Society of Civil Engineers, fellow in perpetuity of the National Academy of Design and member of many scientific, artistic and patriotic societies, national and local, of the Oesterreichische Gesellschaft für Medaillenkunst, the Société des Ami de la Médaille Française, and of many leading clubs in New York City and elsewhere. He is vestryman and treasurer of St. George's Episcopal Church of Rumson Hills, N. J., and a member of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church of New York. Mr. Adams married in 1872, Frances Amelia Gutterson, and they have one daughter. Residence: 445 Madison Avenue. Address: 71 Broadway, New York City.

ADAMS, Edward LeGrand:

Consul-general; born at Clarence, Erie County, N. Y., Jan. 3, 1851; son of Benjamin T. and Janet (Gibson) Adams. He was educated at the Clarence Academy, the State Normal School at Brockport, N. Y. and the University of Rochester. He engaged in newspaper work on the editorial staff of the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle for seven years, and was an oil producer at Bradford, Pa., 1880-1883; and was editor of the Elmira Daily Advertiser, 1883-1898. Mr. Adams was an assistant in the literary bureau at the National Republican headquarters at New York in the campaigns of 1896 and 1900. He has filled various important official positions, having been deputy collector of United States Internal Revenue for the 28th New York District from 1890 to 1894, and a member of the New York State Tax Commission from 1895 to 1898. In June, 1902, he was appointed secretary of the American Legation and consul-general at Stockholm, Sweden, was chargé d'affaires for four months in 1902-1903, and is now consul-general of the United States at Stockholm. Mr. Adams married at Elmira, in 1879, Kate L. Atwater, daughter of Dwight Atwater. Address: American Consulate-General, Stockholm, Sweden.

ADAMS, Elmer Bragg:

United States circuit judge; born at Pomfret, Vermont, Oct. 27, 1842; son of Jarvis Adams and Eunice (Mitchell) Adams. He was graduated from Yale College as B.A. in 1865, and soon after went to Georgia as the representative of the American Union Commission, and there inaugurated at Atlanta and Milledgeville a system of free schools for white children. He returned to Vermont in 1866, began the study of law, and afterwards attended Harvard Law School and in 1868 he was admitted to the Vermont Bar. He removed to St. Louis, Mo., in the same year and established in general law practice until elected judge of the State circuit court for a term of six years. At the end of his term in 1885 he declined reelection and resumed practice in which he continued until appointed by President Cleveland in 1895 United States district judge for the Eastern District of Missouri in which office he served until May, 1905, when he was nominated by President Roosevelt and confirmed by the Senate as United States Circuit Judge for the Eighth Judicial Circuit. Judge Adams has had the degree of LL.D. conferred upon him by the University of Missouri and by Washington University, St. Louis. He is a member of the Sons of the Revolution and of the New England Society of St. Louis. Residence: 25 Westmoreland Place, St. Louis. Official address: Custom House Building, St. Louis, Mo.

ADAMS, George Bethune:

Judge of the U. S. District Court; born in Philadelphia, April 3, 1845; son of Andrew W. and Mary A. Adams. He was educated in public and private schools in Philadelphia. He served in the Civil War from May to August, 1861, and again during Lee's invasion of Pennsylvania in 1863, and in the Quartermaster's Department of the Regular Army, 1864-1871. He was admitted to the Pennsylvania Bar in 1878; removed to New York City in 1883, and practised law, chiefly in admiralty cases, until he was appointed by President McKinley to be district judge for the Southern District of New York, in August, 1901. He was reappointed by President Roosevelt and confirmed in December, 1901, and since then has continued in that office. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and of the Union League and Ardsley Clubs. He married, July 12, 1904, Helen J. Balfour. Address: 27 West Street, New York City.

ADAMS, George Everett:

Lawyer; born at Keene, N. H., June, 1840, son of Benjamin Franklin and Louise (Ruth) Adams. He removed with his family to Chicago in 1853, was prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Academy, and was graduated from Harvard University, B.A. in 1860, and LL.B. in 1865. Returning to Chicago, he was admitted to the bar and began to practise his profession, in which he still continues. Mr. Adams is a Republican in politics and as such was elected to the Illinois State Senate in 1880, continuing from 1881 until 1883 when he resigned to take the seat in Congress to which he had been elected. Here he served four terms, being member of the Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-first Congresses. He was formerly one of the overseers of Harvard College, is a trustee of the Newberry Library and of the Field Columbian Museum and a member of the Chicago Union League, University, Onwentsia and Harvard Clubs. Mr. Adams married in Chicago, in 1871, Adele Foster, and they have two daughters. Residence: 530 Belden Avenue. Address: 611 The Temple, Chicago, Ill.

ADAMS, Henry:

Author; born in Boston, Mass., Feb. 16, 1838; son of Charles Francis Adams, the diplomat. He was graduated from Harvard, 1858, and was private secretary to his father while the latter was American minister to London, 1861-1868. At the expiration of his father's service at the Court of St. James, Mr. Adams became assistant professor of history at Harvard University, serving from 1870 to 1877 in that position. During six years of this period he was editor of the North American Review. Mr. Adams' chief fame rests upon his History of the United States in nine volumes, but he is also author of a large number of historical essays; Essays on Anglo-Saxon Law, and his compilation of Documents Relating to New England Federalism is a standard on that topic. He has also written several volumes of biography and is among the leaders in American historical research and writing. Address: 1603 H Street, Washington, D. C.

ADAMS, Henry Carter:

Political economist, statistician and educator; born at Davenport, Iowa, 1851; son of Ephraim and Elizabeth S. A. (Douglass) Adams. He was educated at Denmark (Iowa) Academy and Iowa College, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1874. He afterwards took post-graduate work at Johns Hopkins University, from which he received the degree of Ph.D. in 1878, after which he continued his special studies in Heidelberg, Berlin and Paris. Iowa College conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. in 1898, and the University of Wisconsin conferred the same in 1903. He was a lecturer on economic subjects at Cornell University, the Johns Hopkins University and the University of Michigan from 1880 to 1887, and since 1887 has filled his present chair as professor of political economy and finance in the University of Michigan. Dr. Adams was statistician of the Interstate Commerce Commission from 1887 to 1906, and is now expert in charge of statistics and accounts, in the employ of the commission and engaged in formulating a system of standard accounts for railways of the United States. He was director of the Division of Transportation for the Eleventh Census. Since 1906 he has worked out a uniform system of railway accounting for the railways of the United States, as also for the express companies, electric railways, and sleeping-car companies for promulgation by the Interstate Commerce Commission. He has written extensively upon his special subjects, and is author of: Outline of Lectures on Political Economy, 1881 (second edition, 1886); The State in Relation to Industrial Action, 1887; Taxation in the United States from 1787 to 1816, 1884; Public Debts, 1887; The Science of Finance (both books translated into Japanese), 1888; Statistics of Railways from 1888 to 1906; Economics and Jurisprudence, 1897; Commercial Valuation of Railways (which appeared as Bulletin 21 of the Census in 1904), and he was joint editor of the Digest of Senate Committee Hearings on Regulation of Railway Rates, 1905. Dr. Adams married, in 1899, Bertha H. Wright, of Port Huron, Mich. Address: Ann Arbor, Mich.

ADAMS, Herbert:

Sculptor; born in Concord, Vt., 1858; son of Samuel M. and Nancy A. (Powers) Adams. He was educated in the public schools of Fitchburg, Mass., at the Institute of Technology, Worcester, Mass., at the Mass. Normal Art School, Boston, and at art schools in Paris, where he was a pupil of Mercié and others. He received awards from the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893; Paris Exposition, 1900; and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. He is president of the National Sculpture Society, vice-president of the National Academy of Design, and first vice-president of the American Federation of Arts; is a member of the Art Commission of the City of New York, the Architectural League of New York, and the Century and Players Clubs. Among his works are: The Fitchburg fountain, Fitchburg; statue of Wm. Ellery Channing, Boston; statue of Jerome Wheelock, Grafton; Jonathan Edwards Memorial, Northampton; Welch Memorial, Auburn; bronze doors and marble tympanum, St. Bartholomew's church, New York; Hoyt Memorial, Judson Memorial church, New York; Pratt Memorial, Emanuel Baptist church, Brooklyn; statue of Joseph Smith and Matthias Baldwin, Philadelphia; statue of Joseph Henry and numerous other sculptures, Library of Congress, Washington; statue of Gen. Humphreys, Fredericksburg; the Tevis Memorial, San Francisco; besides numerous busts and reliefs. Address: 131 West 11th St., New York City.

ADAMS, Maude:

Actress; born in Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 11, 1872; daughter of James and Annie (Adams) Kiskadden. Her father was a business man and her mother an actress, playing under her maiden name of Annie Adams, and engaged as leading woman in the stock company of the Salt Lake Theatre. During her early childhood in San Francisco she appeared several times on the stage in children's parts, but from the ages of six to sixteen applied herself to her studies, and then, in 1888, entered upon her career as an actress in the part of a schoolmistress in Hoyt's A Midnight Bell at the Madison Square Theatre in New York. About a year later in the part of a crippled girl in The Lost Paradise her talents aroused the interest of the critics and the public. Several other successes followed, and from 1892 to 1897 she was leading woman with John Drew, and since 1898 has been starring as "Babbie" in The Little Minister, as "Juliet" in Romeo and Juliet, in L'Aiglon, Quality Street, The Pretty Sister of José, Hop o' My Thumb, Peter Pan, and, more recently, in What Every Woman Knows. Address: 61 West 36th St., New York City.

ADAMS, Milton Butler:

Officer Corps of Engineers, United States Army; born at Beaver Falls, Pa., April 11, 1845; son of Samuel P. Adams and Ellen (Barker) Adams. He was educated at the Calvin Moor Seminary, Salem, Ohio, and the United States Military Academy, in which he was an honor man in the class of 1865. He has been an officer of the Corps of Engineers, U. S. Army, continuously since June, 1865; being commissioned first lieutenant of engineers, June 23, 1865; captain, Jan. 6, 1870; major, July 3, 1883; lieutenant colonel, July 5, 1898, and colonel in the Corps of Engineers, April 23, 1904. Colonel Adams is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion and of the Sons of the American Revolution. Residence: 154 Washington Street. Office: U. S. Engineer Office, Grand Rapids, Mich.

ADAMS, Oscar Fay:

Author and lecturer; born Worcester, Mass., graduate of the New Jersey State Normal School. Mr. Adams is the American editor of the Henry Irving Shakespeare and he has produced a considerable number of original works together with many literary compilations, including a Dictionary of American authors (now in its sixth edition) and selections from the poets. He is a well-known and a popular lecturer upon literature and architecture. Mr. Adams is secretary of the Boston Authors' Club. Address: The Hermitage, Willow St., Boston.

ADAMS, Samuel Hopkins:

Journalist and author; born at Dunkirk, New York, Jan. 26, 1871; son of Myron and Hester Rose (Hopkins) Adams. He received his education at the Rochester Free Academy, from which he was graduated in 1887, and at Hamilton College, graduating as A.B. in 1891. He was a reporter and special writer on the New York Sun from 1891 to 1900; managing editor of McClure's Syndicate, 1900 to 1902; advertising manager for McClure, Phillips & Co., publishers, 1902 to 1904; on the editorial staff of McClure's Magazine in 1904 and 1905; general magazine writer on public health and other topics from 1905. Mr. Adams was author of the Great American Fraud series (patent medicines), in Collier's Weekly, published in collected form by the American Medical Association; author of The Flying Death (fiction), 1908; joint author, with Stewart Edward White, of The Mystery (fiction), 1907, and is author of short stories in McClure's, Everybody's, Collier's, etc. Mr. Adams is a trustee of Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., and in political views is a moderate Socialist. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. He married at Charleston, West Virginia, October 19, 1898, Elizabeth Ruffner Noyes and they have two children. He has his summer home at Ensenore, N. Y. Address: 32 Chedell Place, Auburn, N. Y.

ADAMS, Washington Irving Lincoln:

One of the leading writers of the United States on subjects connected with photography; born in New York City, Feb. 22, 1865; son of Washington Irving, and Marion L. (Briggs) Adams. He has been prominently connected with the development of modern photography, having been president of the Scovill and Adams Co. for three years, and editor of the Photographic Times over ten years. He was for several years editor of the American Annual of Photography and was one of the leaders in the development of the scientific and artistic possibilities of photography. He is a life member of the American Institute and honorary member of a large number of photographic societies and camera clubs. Mr. Adams is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, Huguenot Society, the Society of Colonial Wars, and the Founders and Patriots of America. He has written several works on photography. He is the president of Styles and Cash, stationers and printers, the Photographic Times Publishing Association and the Montclair Trust Co., and officer and director in other corporations. He married at Montclair, N. J., Nov. 21, 1889, Grace Wilson, and they have five children. Residences: Montclair, N. J., and Littleton, N. H. Office: 135 West 14th Street, N. Y. City.

ADAMS, William Forbes:

Bishop of Easton, Maryland; born in Ireland, Jan. 2, 1833, and came to the United States in 1841. After completing an academic education he engaged in secular pursuits for a time, then studied law and was admitted to the bar in Mississippi in 1858; and entering upon the study of theology was ordered deacon, Dec. 27, 1859, and ordained priest July, 1860, in Jackson, Miss. He began his ministry in Mississippi, and was afterward for nearly ten years rector of parishes in New Orleans until his consecration in 1875 as bishop of New Mexico and Arizona. Ill health led to his resignation of his sees in the following year, and he reëntered parochial work as rector for eleven years of Holy Trinity Church, Vicksburg, Miss., until 1887, when he returned to episcopal labors on his election to the see of Easton, Md., of which diocese he has since been bishop. The degrees of D.D. and D.C.L. and LL.D. have been conferred upon Bishop Adams by the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn., St. Johns, Annapolis and Washington College, Md. Address: Easton, Md.

ADAMSON, William Charles:

Congressman; born at Bowdon, Georgia, Aug. 13, 1854. He spent his youth alternately in working on the farm and in hauling goods and cotton between Atlanta and Bowdon; took the collegiate course at Bowdon College, graduating with the degree of A.B. in 1874, the degree of A.M. being conferred a few years later by the same institution. He read law in the office of Hon. Sampson W. Harris; was admitted to the bar October, 1876, and has lived at Carrollton, Georgia, ever since, practising law in the circuit and supreme courts of the State, and the Federal courts. He was judge of the city court of Carrollton from 1885 to 1889, was attorney for the city of Carrollton for several years; was a presidential elector in 1892; was elected to the Fifty-fifth Congress in 1896, has since been biennially reelected, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress from the Fourth Georgia District. He was representative from the Georgia Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, to the General Conference at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, in 1880, at Atlantic City in 1900, and at Washington, D. C., in 1904. He was elected by the General Conference at Atlantic City in 1900 as one of the representatives of that Church to the Ecumenical Council at London, but did not attend. He was one of the commissioners of Methodist Protestant Church to confer with commissions from other churches with a view to organic union. Address: Carrollton, Ga.

ADDAMS, Jane:

Social economist, author; born at Cedarville, Ill., Sept. 6, 1860; daughter of Hon. John H. Addams. She was graduated from Rockford College in 1881, and after post-graduate study in Europe and the United States she became active in social reform work. She inaugurated in 1889, at Chicago, the establishment known as Hull House, which is a development of the social settlement idea to the conditions as Miss Addams found them in the section of Chicago in which Hull House is situated, and has been, with increasing effectiveness, the leading factor in social betterment in that city. Miss Addams in order to help the neighborhood, acted as street-cleaning inspector in the Hull House district, with most gratifying results, and through lectures all over the United States and elsewhere, and by her writings, has influenced modern thought along the lines of social betterment. She is author of: Democracy and Social Ethics (Macmillan), and Newer Ideals of Peace (Macmillan); monographs on the Objective and Subjective Value of Social Settlements, the Subjective Necessity for Social Settlements, and papers on the improvement of the condition of the poor in great cities. Her executive ability has brought her membership in the managing boards of national and local societies of philanthropic purpose, and of organizations for municipal reform, and she is also one of the leading members of the Woman's Club of Chicago. Address: 335 South Halsted Street, Chicago.

ADE, George:

Humorist and playwright; born at Kentland, Indiana, February 9, 1866. He was graduated from Purdue University in 1887 and began in newspaper work in Lafayette, Indiana; from 1887 to 1890, thence going to Chicago, where he was on the staff of the Chicago Record from 1890 to 1900. Since 1900 his attention has been chiefly devoted to work as author and playwright. He first attracted attention by his "Fables in Slang," and similar writings in the vernacular, among which were those describing the "Artie" type of modern young man, and his early success in writing the libretto of a comic opera led to the production of a number of plays, several of which have been very successful. His best known books are the Artie and Fables in Slang series and his most successful operas and plays are: The Sultan of Sulu, Peggy from Paris, The County Chairman, The Sho-Gun, The College Widow, Father and the Boys, Just Out of College, and The Fair Co-Ed. Address: Hazelden Farm, Brook, Ind.

ADEE, Alvey Augustus:

Second assistant secretary of State; born at Astoria, N. Y., Nov. 27, 1842; son of Augustus A. Ade, fleet surgeon in the United States Navy. He was privately educated. He entered the diplomatic service as secretary of legation at Madrid, September 9, 1870, and was at different times chargé d'affaires there. He was transferred from Madrid to the Department of State in July, 1877; and he became chief of the Diplomatic Bureau July 11, 1878; third assistant secretary of State July 18, 1882, and second assistant secretary of State since August 3, 1896. He was secretary of State ad interim in September, 1898, and acting secretary of State for a time during the Chinese troubles of 1900. Secretary Ade is the leading expert in diplomatic precedents and usages in the United States as well as a very high authority on all matters of Governmental etiquette. Mr. Ades is practically a permanent under-secretary of State and formulates a large proportion of the diplomatic and state papers of the United States. Residence: 1019 Fifteenth Street, N. W. Office: Department of State, Washington, D. C.

ADLER, Cyrus:

President of Dropsie College for Hebrew and Cognate Learning, Philadelphia; born at Van Buren, Ark., Sept. 13, 1863; son of Samuel Adler and Sarah (Sulzberger) Adler. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, A.B., 1883, A.M., 1886. He was scholar, fellow, instructor and associate in Semitic languages in Johns Hopkins University, 1884-1893, receiving the degree of Ph.D. in 1887. He was librarian and later assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution to October, 1908, and curator of the Collection of Historic Archaeology and Historic Religions in the United States National Museum. He is president of the American Jewish Historical Society; trustee of the Jewish Theological Seminary at New York and of the Gratz College at Philadelphia and chairman of the Board of Editors of a new translation of the Bible. Dr. Adler is a member of the American Philosophical Society; the Archaeological Institute of America; Washington Academy of Sciences; American Oriental Society, and others. He is author of numerous papers on Oriental, philological and archeological subjects, and American Jewish history. Dr. Adler married Racie Friedenwald. Address: 2041 N. Broad St., Philadelphia.

ADLER, Felix:

Educator, lecturer; born at Alzey, Germany, August 13, 1851; son of Samuel and Henrietta (Frankfurter) Adler. He received his preparatory education at the Columbia Grammar School of New York City, was graduated from Columbia College as A.B. with Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1870, and at the University of Heidelberg as Ph.D. in 1873. He was professor of Semitic languages and literature at Cornell University from 1873 to 1876; has been professor of social and political ethics at Columbia University since 1902, and he founded in 1876, and has since been leader of the Society for Ethical Culture. He has been director and a trustee of the Ethical Culture School, since 1880. He founded the Ethical Society in Berlin, Germany, in 1891; founded the United Relief Works, and first introduced trained nurses for the poor in 1877; and he was at the head of the Coöperative Colonization Society from 1878 to 1885. He served as Roosevelt professor at the University of Berlin in 1908-1909. He has been chairman of the National Child Labor Committee since 1906; member of the Tenement House Commission, 1885; organized the Tenement House Building Company, 1886; introduced free Kindergartens in 1876; organized the first Society for Teaching of Crippled, 1887; and he was politically active as a member of the Committee of 15 in 1902. Dr. Adler is author of: Creed and Deed; The Moral Instruction of Children; Life and Destiny; Marriage and Divorce; The Religion of Duty; Essentials of Spirituality. He married in Brooklyn, N. Y., May, 24, 1880, Helen Goldmark. Address: 33 Central Park West, New York City.

AGASSIZ, Alexander:

Naturalist; born in Neuchâtel, Switzerland, Dec. 17, 1835; son of Professor Louis Agassiz. He came to the United States in 1846, was graduated from Harvard, A.B., 1855, and from the Lawrence Scientific School of the same institution, B.S., 1857. He was an assistant on the U. S. Coast Survey in 1859, and superintendent of the Calumet and Hecla Copper Mines on Lake Superior, 1866-1869. He surveyed Lake Titicaca, Peru, in 1875, and was afterward curator and director, and is now director emeritus of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy at Harvard University. He was assistant on the United States Fish Commission in 1891; assisted Sir Wyville Thompson in the examination and classification of the collections of The Challenger expedition; took part in three dredging expeditions of the steamer Blake, of the U. S.

Coast Survey, 1877-1880; the explorations of the coral reef of the Hawaiian Islands, 1899; the Great Barrier Reef of Australia, 1898; expedition in the steamers Croydon and Yarralla in the Fiji Islands, 1897; deep sea explorations of the Panamic Region on the Albatross to the tropical Pacific in 1900; the Eastern Pacific, 1904-1905; explorations of the Florida Reef, 1876, 1882 and 1896; of the Bahamas in 1893; the Bermudas in 1894; Cuba, Jamaica and other West Indian Islands, 1876 and 1896. He received the degrees of LL.D. from Harvard in 1885, and from Saint Andrew's University, Edinburgh, in 1901, and the honorary degree of S.D. from the University of Cambridge in 1887, and from the University of Bologna in 1888. He is president of the National Academy of Sciences at Washington; foreign member of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh; foreign associate of the Institut de France, Paris; officier de la Légion d'Honneur; knight of the Prussian Order of Merit; foreign and corresponding member of the Academies at Berlin, Vienna, Stockholm, Copenhagen, Munich and Rome and all the leading zoölogical societies. Prof. Agassiz is recognized as the pioneer of modern biological work in this country. The biological stations at Woods Hole, Mass., and other points owe their existence to his enthusiasm in biological research and his name has for years been the foremost in America in this form of scientific investigation. Address: Cambridge, Mass.

AGNEW, George B.:

State senator; born in New York City, 1868; son of A. G. Agnew. He was graduated from Princeton University, A.B., 1891, and since then has been engaged in business in New York City. He has always been active in politics as a Republican, was elected for four terms as representative from the Twenty-seventh Assembly District of New York County, and in 1906 was elected to the State Senate from the new Seventeenth Senate District of New York County, and in 1908 was reelected from the same district. He was in 1905 appointed a member of the Special Committee of the Legislature, to investigate the gas and electric situation in the City of New York. Senator Agnew is a member of the Republican County Committee of New York County. He has been a member of the National Guard of the State of New York for the past fifteen years, most of the time being a member of Squadron A; served as aide-de-camp on Governor Morton's staff. Address: 29 William Street, New York City.

AGNUS, Felix:

Editor and publisher of the Baltimore American; born in Lyons, France, July 4, 1839. He received a collegiate education in France, and spent four years in travel around the world; served in the war of Napoleon III with Austria; came to the United States in 1860, and became a member of the Fifth New York Zouaves in 1861; was promoted second lieutenant for bravery in saving the life of General Judson Kilpatrick at Big Bethel. He distinguished himself in the Peninsular campaign, and afterward in Louisiana; was wounded at Gaines' Mills and at the siege of Port Hudson; he afterward was promoted to major and colonel, serving under Sheridan; was brevetted brigadier-general of Volunteers and honorably mustered out Aug. 22, 1865. He became connected soon after the war with the Baltimore American as business manager, and for years has been its editor and publisher. He married Dec. 13, 1864, Miss Fulton, of Baltimore. Address: The Baltimore American, Baltimore.

AIKEN, Wyatt:

Congressman and farmer; born in Abbeville County, S. C., Dec. 14, 1863; son of Hon. D. Wyatt Aiken (member of Congress) and Virginia Caroline Aiken. He was reared on a farm in Abbeville County (in that section now embraced in Greenwood County); received a common school education at Cokesbury, S. C., and Washington, D. C., while there with his father, Hon. D. Wyatt Aiken, who was representative from the Third South Carolina District for ten years. While at Washington he acquired the art of writing shorthand, and in Jan., 1884, was appointed an official court stenographer in South Carolina, and held the position for nineteen years. He takes a keen interest in everything pertaining to agriculture. During the war with Spain he was a soldier in Company A (Abbeville Volunteers), First South Carolina Regiment of Infantry. He never held a political office before his election to Congress, but has been a delegate to several Democratic State Conventions. He was elected from the Third South Carolina District to the Fifty-eighth Congress, in 1902, and reelected in 1904, 1906 and 1908 to the Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses. Address: Abbeville, S. C.

AILES, Milton Everett:

Financier; born in Shelby County, Ohio, Aug. 19, 1867. He was graduated from the National University Law School at Washington, D. C., and was admitted to the bar of the District of Columbia in 1890. Receiving an appointment to a minor position in the Treasury Department in 1887, he served through the grades of the classified service, and in 1897 he was appointed private secretary to the secretary of the Treasury. In 1901 he was appointed assistant secretary of the Treasury, performing a large portion of the work relative to the finances of the country which comes under the immediate charge of the secretary of the Treasury. In April, 1903, he resigned this position in order to become vice-president of the Riggs National Bank, the leading financial institution of the National Capital. Mr. Ailes is a fine example of the opportunities open to young men who enter the Government service and seek to improve themselves by means of the educational facilities afforded for the benefit of Government clerks in their spare time by the educational institutions of Washington. By his industry, thrift, and far-sightedness he has become one of the leading financiers of Washington and is an admitted authority on banking law and practice, on which he has written several magazine articles. He married, in Washington, Nov. 25, 1891, Mary E. Gowans. Address: Riggs National Bank, Washington, D. C.

AILSHIE, James Franklin:

Jurist; born in Green County Tenn., June 19, 1868, son of George W. and Martha (Knight) Ailshie. Judge Ailshie was reared on a farm and was educated in the public schools of the vicinity of his birth until he was nineteenth years of age, when he went to Oregon, teaching in the public schools and taking a collegiate and law course at Willamette University, at Salem, Ore. He was admitted to the Oregon bar in 1891, and removed to Idaho, where he was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of that State in 1892. He afterward practised law in Idaho until Jan. 1903, when he became associate justice of the Supreme Court of that State. Judge Ailshie is regarded as one of the leading of the younger jurists of the West, and has been strongly urged for appointment to a Federal judgeship on several occasions. He is a prominent member of the Republican party and has been a delegate to the Republican National Convention. He is president of several financial institutions and public service corporations in his own city. He married at Spokane, Wash., June 19, 1894, Lucie Bundren. Residence: Grangeville, Idaho. Office: Boise City, Idaho.

AINSWORTH, Fred Crayton:

Major-general U. S. Army; born at Woodstock, Vt., Sept. 11, 1852. He was educated in the schools of Vermont, and afterward entered the Medical Department of the University of New York, from which he was graduated as M.D. in 1874. He was appointed from Vermont as first lieutenant and assistant surgeon, U. S. Army, Nov. 10, 1874, promoted to major and surgeon, Feb. 27, 1891; colonel and chief of the Record and Pension Office, May 27, 1892, to brigadier-general and chief of the Record and Pension Office, March 2, 1899, and major-general and the military secretary of the Army, April 23, 1904. He devised and introduced many improved records of business, including the index-record card system, by which upwards of 50,000,000 index record cards have been prepared and placed on file. His excellent work in this department effected a valuable saving, by making the full record of every soldier immediately available, and it is estimated that the Government makes a permanent saving of not less than half a million dollars by having adopted the system. Since the date above given, by a legislative reorganization, Mr. Ainsworth has been made adjutant-general of the Army and as such, in addition to his former duties, has charge of all the business previously transacted in the Adjutant-General's office, including the issuance of orders to the Army, and all other matters relating to the recording, authenticating and distributing of official papers. Address: War Department, Washington, D. C.

AITKEN, Robert Grant:

Astronomer; born in Jackson, Calif., Dec. 31, 1864; son of Robert and Wilhelmina (Depinau) Aitken. He was graduated from Williams College, A.B., 1887, A.M., 1892, and received the degree of Sc.D. from the University of the Pacific, 1903. He was instructor in mathematics at Livermore College, Calif., 1888-1891; professor of mathematics and astronomy, University of the Pacific, 1891-1895; assistant astronomer at Lick Observatory, 1895-1907, and became astronomer at Lick Observatory in 1907. He has published numerous articles in American and German astronomical journals, relating to comets, satellites, double stars, etc., and he has discovered 2000 new double stars. He represented Lick Observatory at the Congress of Arts and Sciences at Saint Louis in Sept. 1904. He was editor of the Publications of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific from 1897 to 1908. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America; Astronomical Society of the Pacific; American Geographical Society, and is honorary member of the Mexican Astronomical Society, and is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi honor societies. He received the Lalande Medal of the French Academy of Sciences in 1906 for double star discoveries. He married at Oakland, Calif., June 19, 1888, Jessie L. Thomas, and has four children. Address: Lick Observatory, Mount Hamilton, Calif.

AITKEN, Robert Ingersoll:

Sculptor; born in San Francisco, Calif., May 8, 1878; son of Charles H. and Katharine (Higgins) Aitken. He entered the Mark Hopkins Institute of Art in 1896, and at the end of the first year received a medal for modelling and was given honorable mention for drawing. Mr. Aitken was the sculptor of a number of the chief monuments on the Pacific Coast, including the McKinley monument at Golden Gate Park, San Francisco and the Bret Harte monument at San Francisco, and has made a large number of busts of prominent persons. He has been professor of sculpture at the Mark Hopkins Institute of Art connected with the University of California, and is a member of the National Sculpture Society and of other art associations. Address: 798 Van Ness Avenue, San Francisco, Calif.

AKED, Charles Frederic:

Clergyman; born at Nottingham, England, Aug. 27, 1864; son of Charles Aked of Nottingham. He was educated in Mr. Lee's Commercial School, the Midland Baptist College and in the University of Nottingham and later received the degree of D.D. He was articled to a firm of auctioneers at Nottingham and was afterward auctioneer to the sheriff of Derbyshire until he entered Midland College. He began his ministry as pastor of a Baptist Church at Syston in Leicestershire, England, in 1886. While minister of one of the leading Baptist churches of Liverpool, Eng., he was called to the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church of New York City, upon which pastorate he entered in April, 1907. He has made frequent trips to the United States, preaching and lecturing since 1893. In England he attained a position of much distinction in his denomination and in public affairs.

He has been an extensive contributor to the literature of sociology and religion, being author of: Changing Creeds and Social Struggles; The Courage of the Coward; Old Events and Modern Meanings, and also of many published sermons and pamphlets. Dr. Aked married in 1886, Annie, daughter of James Hithersay, of Ilkeston, Derbyshire, England. Residence: Central Park View, 2 West 86th St. Address: Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, 6 West 46th St., New York City.

AKINS, Thomas Jasper:

Assistant treasurer of the United States; born in Cedar County, Missouri, Aug. 14, 1852; son of John and Mary J. (Halbert) Akins. He was educated in public and private schools in his native State, then taught in country schools until 1872, when he began his business life. He has ever since been identified with merchandising and banking in Humansville, Mo., as head of the T. J. Akins & Son Mercantile Co., and as director of the Bank of Humansville, of which he was president from 1892-1899. Mr. Akins has always been an active Republican, was for several chairman of the Missouri Republican State Committee and member of the Republican National Committee. In Jan., 1904, he was appointed by President Roosevelt to his present office of assistant treasurer of the United States at St. Louis, and was reappointed in Dec., 1908. He married in Humansville, Mo., Nov. 23, 1871, Sarah Elizabeth Green, and they have three children. Residence: 4116 Westminster Place. Office: 216 Custom House, St. Louis.

ALBRO, Addis:

Clergyman, educator, lecturer; born in Middleburg, Schoharie County, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1855; son of William Bliss and Ann Elizabeth (Wool) Albro. He was educated at Fort Edward (New York) Collegiate Institute; Lawrence University (1880) B.S. and M.S. (1882); and Union University, L.L.B., 1886. He pursued several post-graduate courses of study and he received the degree of D.D. from Grant University. He taught in the public schools of New York State for several years and in institutions of higher grade in Indiana, Rhode Island and Missouri. He was a college president and professor from 1879 to 1886; pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Moline, Illinois, and First Methodist Episcopal Church, Utica, N. Y., from 1887 to 1893. He was an honorary and corresponding member of the World's Congress Auxiliary of the World's Columbia Exposition of 1893. He was field secretary of the New York State Sabbath Association from 1894 to 1898, and has been general secretary of the American Reform Association since 1898. Dr. Albro was chaplain of the Senate of New York in 1893, and chaplain of the Michigan Military Academy from 1901 to 1903. He is editor of the Reform Magazine, and author of: History of Our Country's Flag; Genealogy of the Albro Family; and on the Editorial Staff of United Editors' Encyclopedia. He was a delegate to the National Republican Conventions of 1880 and 1900. He is a Mason, Scottish Rite, 33d-degree, and a Knight Templar; a member of the Baronial Order of Runemede; the Society of Colonial Wars; Sons of the American Revolution; Founders and Patriots of America; Mayflower Descendants; Descendants of Colonial Governors; and a member of the Michigan Club of Detroit. He married at Schoharie, New York, Feb. 19, 1878, Mary Alice Scribner (born April 6, 1859, and died Aug. 12, 1905). Of that union there were five children: Addis Bliss Albro, of New York City, born March 22, 1879; Iva Dell Albro, born April 20, 1881, (died May 24, 1883); Ames Scribner Albro, born Oct. 7, 1882; Ruth Albro, born April 26, 1888, and Ward Sloan Albro, born Sept. 27, 1889. Married second at Redlands, Calif., Nov. 7, 1907, Miss Jane Evelyn Harrison, of Indiana. Issue: Ursula, born Jan. 31, 1909. Missionary to New Mexico, appointed by the Detroit Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Address: Columbus, N. Mex.

ALDEN, Henry Mills:

Editor, author; born at Mount Tabor, near Danby, Vt., Nov. 11, 1836; son of Ira and Elizabeth Packard (Moore) Alden. His early education was obtained in the schools of Hoosick Falls, N. Y., after which he entered Williams College, from which he was graduated A.B., 1857, and received the degrees of A.M., 1869, LL.D., 1890, and LL.D., 1907. He was graduated from the Andover Theological Seminary in 1860, but never took orders. Mr. Alden was a Lowell Institute lecturer, 1863-1864, on the subject of The Structure of Paganism. He was editor of Harper's Weekly, 1863-1869, and has been editor of Harper's Magazine since 1869. Mr. Alden is author of God and His World, 1890; A Study of Death, 1895; Magazine Writing and the New Literature, 1908; and Harper's Pictorial History of the Great Rebellion (with A. H. Guernsey). He has been twice married, first in 1861 to Susan Frye Foster, of North Andover, Mass., by which marriage he has three daughters, and second in 1900 to Ada Foster Murray, of Norfolk, Va. Address: Care Harper & Brothers, Franklin Square, New York.

ALDERMAN, Edwin Anderson:

President of the University of Virginia; born in Wilmington, N. C., May 15, 1861; son of James and Susan J. Alderman. He was graduated from the University of North Carolina as Ph.B. in 1882; was superintendent of the Goldsboro City schools from 1884 to 1887, assistant State superintendent of North Carolina from 1889 to 1892; professor of English in the State Normal College in 1892, and in the same year professor of education in the University of North Carolina, of which he became president in 1896. He was president of the Tulane University of Louisiana from April, 1900, until he was called in 1904 to the presidency of the University of Virginia. He received in 1898 the degrees of D.C.L. from the University of the South and of LL.D. from Tulane University of Louisiana, Johns Hopkins University, 1902, Yale and Columbia, 1905, the University of North Carolina, 1900 and Williams College, 1908. Dr. Alderman is a member of the Southern Education Board and the General Education Board; and is regarded as one of the leading authorities on pedagogical questions. He is vice-president of the National Civil Service Reform League, and a member of the Virginia State Geological Commission, the National Council for Industrial Education and the Council of International Conciliation. He is author of a School History of North Carolina; and of a volume of biography of William Hooper, signer of the Declaration of Independence; and he is well known as a speaker and lecturer on professional and historical subjects. Address: Charlottesville, Va.

ALDRICH, Edgar:

Jurist; born at Pittsburg, N. H., in 1848. He was educated at Colebrook Academy, was graduated from the University of Michigan as LL.B. in 1868 and was admitted to the New Hampshire Bar in Aug., 1868. He practised law at Colebrook, N. H., until 1881, and then at Littleton, N. H., until 1891, was solicitor of Coos County, N. H., 1872-1874, and 1876-1879, and was a member and speaker of the New Hampshire Legislature in 1885. In 1891 he was appointed to his present position as U. S. judge for the District of New Hampshire. Judge Aldrich was a member of the New Hampshire Constitutional Convention in 1902. He received the degrees of A.M. in 1891 and of LL.D. from Dartmouth College, 1901, and the University of Michigan 1907. He married in 1872, Louise M. Renick. Address: Littleton, N. H.

ALDRICH, Nelson Wilmarth:

United States senator; born at Foster, R. I., Nov. 6, 1841. He received an academic education, and is engaged in mercantile pursuits, being the head of a large firm of wholesale grocers. He has been an active Republican from his first vote; was president of the Providence Common Council, 1871-1873; was a member of the Rhode Island Legislature, 1875-1876, and its speaker in 1876. He was elected a member of Congress in 1878, and reelected in 1880, but resigned from the Forty-seventh Congress, having been elected Oct. 5, 1881, United States Senator from Rhode Island. He was reelected in 1888, in 1892, in 1898 and 1905, and his present term will expire March 3, 1911. He is chairman of Committee on Finance, and the Republican leader in the Senate. Address: Providence, R. I.

ALDRICH, Orlando Wesley:

Lawyer; born in Clarence, N. Y., March 30, 1840; son of Rev. Sydney and Lydia Ann (York) Aldrich. He was educated in the Clarence Academy, graduated from Illinois Wesleyan University, B.A., and afterward received from it the degrees of M.A., Ph.D., and D.C.L., and from Toronto University the degree of LL.D. He served in the Civil War in Company D, 14th New York Infantry. Mr. Aldrich has been admitted to the bars of Illinois, Ohio, West Virginia, District of Columbia, and the Supreme Court of the United States, and served as chairman of committee of examination for the bar of the Supreme Court of Illinois, and the Supreme Court of Ohio. He was professor of law in Illinois Wesleyan University, 1876-1881, and in Ohio State University 1891-1896, and was editor of the Weekly Jurist, Bloomington, Ill., 1878-1881. He has been president of the Columbus and Clintonville Electric Railway Company, Worthington, Clintonville and Columbus Street Railway Company; secretary of the Columbus, Delaware and Marion Electric Railway Company, and an officer in other corporations. Mr. Aldrich is a member of the Royal Society of Arts, London, fellow, North British Academy, American Institute of Civics, National Geographic Society and the American Political Science Association, is a 32-degree Mason, Knight Templar and member of the Mystic Shrine; post commander and department judge-advocate, Grand Army of the Republic; member of the Union Veteran Legion; past president of the Ohio Society Sons of the Revolution, and president of the Ohio Society of the War of 1812. He edited the First American edition of Anson on Contracts; compiled the Supplemental Volume of the Ohio Statutes, and wrote the article on Elections in the first edition of the American and English Encyclopedia of Law. He married first at Hudson, Ill., Nov. 25, 1863, Roselia G. Jewell, and second, at Mt. Vernon, Ohio, July 25, 1878, Sarah A. Taylor, née Coulter, and has two living sons. Residence: Maplehurst, Station B, R. F. D., Columbus. Office: Wesley Block, Columbus, Ohio.

ALDRICH, Richard:

Journalist; born in Providence, R. I., July 31, 1863; son of Elisha Smith and Anna Elizabeth (Gladding) Aldrich. He was educated in the Providence High School and Harvard College, being graduated A.B., 1885. He became connected with the Providence Journal in Aug., 1885, and was successively reporter, musical and dramatic editor and editorial writer until 1889; private secretary to U. S. Senator Dixon, 1889-1891. He joined the staff of the New York Tribune as reporter, 1891, and was successively telegraph editor, assistant day editor and assistant literary editor of that paper until entering in Oct., 1902, upon his present position as musical editor of the New York Times. Mr. Aldrich translated into English the book of Mme. Lilli Lehmann, How to Sing; and he is author of: A Guide to Parsifal, 1904; A Guide to the Nibelungs Ring, 1905; also articles in various magazines on musical subjects. Address: care The New York Times, New York City.

ALDRICH, William Sleeper:

Educator and engineer; born in Philadelphia, March 3, 1863; son of George Wells and Sallie Edith (Sleeper) Aldrich. He was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1883, and from the Stevens Institute of Technology as M.E. in 1884, and afterward engaged in teaching and engineering practice. He taught drawing and mechanical engineering in Johns Hopkins University, 1889-1892, was professor of mechanical engineering in the University of West Virginia, 1892-1899; professor of electrical engineering in the University of Illinois from 1899-1901, and in the latter year became director of the Thomas S. Clarkson Memorial School of Technology at Potsdam, N. Y., where he has built up an institution of technical education which is of high repute and efficiency. During the Spanish-American War he served as passed assistant engineer (with the relative rank of lieutenant) in the U. S. Navy, being attached to the U. S. S. Vulcan, with Admiral Sampson's fleet in Cuban waters. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers and Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education. Mr. Aldrich married in Philadelphia, July 1, 1886, Mary Lavinia Purdy, and has four children. Address: Potsdam, N. Y.

ALERDING, Herman Joseph:

Roman Catholic bishop of Fort Wayne; born in Newport, Ky., April 13, 1845. He was educated at Vincennes, Ind., St. Thomas, Ky., and in St. Meinrad's Abbey, Spencer County, Ind. He was ordained as priest, Sept. 22, 1868, and was consecrated as bishop of Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 30, 1900, in the cathedral at Fort Wayne. Besides his distinguished services to the church, Bishop Alerding is the author of several historical works including the comparison entitled, "Plymouth Rock and Maryland," a history of the Catholic church in the diocese of Vincennes, published in 1883, and a history of the diocese of Fort Wayne, Ind., published in 1907. Address: Fort Wayne, Ind.

ALESHIRE, James Buchanan:

Quartermaster general, U. S. Army; born in Gallipolis, Ohio, Oct. 31, 1856; son of Reuben and Margaret (Shepard) Aleshire. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy, in 1880, and was assigned to duty with the Cavalry arm. In 1895 he was transferred to the quartermaster's department, and in the Spanish-American War was chief quartermaster of volunteers as major and lieutenant-colonel. He was discharged from the volunteer service May 1, 1901, and reached his majority in the quartermaster department of the regular service Feb. 2, 1901. In 1907, upon the retirement of Quartermaster-General Humphrey he was appointed quartermaster-general of the army with the rank of brigadier-general. General Aleshire has had a brilliant career in active service, having served against the Apache Indians, 1881-1882; in the Crow or "Swordbearer" Campaign, 1887; in the operations in Cuba and on the China Relief Expedition. He also served two years and six months in the Philippines.

He married in Dubuque, Iowa, Nov. 3, 1886, Harriet A. Dana. Residence: 1719 18th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

ALEXANDER, Charles Beatty:

Lawyer; born in New York City, Dec. 6, 1849; son of Henry Martyn and Susan Mary (Brown) Alexander. After preparation in the collegiate school of M. W. Lyon and by private instruction, he entered Princeton University, whence he was graduated A.B., 1870, then attended the law school of Columbia University and was graduated LL.B., 1872. He received the degrees of A.M., 1873 and LL.D., 1895 from Princeton University, and LL.D. from Washington and Jefferson College, 1902. He was admitted to the bar in New York City, June 17, 1872, to the California Bar, Dec. 19, 1888, and to the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States Nov. 5, 1884, and since his admission to the bar has been continuously in practice as a member of the firm of Alexander and Green. He is also a director of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, the Equitable Trust Company, the Hocking Valley Railroad and the Mount Morris Bank. Mr. Alexander is author of a legal treatise on the New York Law of Life Insurance. He is a hereditary member of the Society of the Cincinnati in Pennsylvania, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and the Union University, Riding, Tuxedo, Metropolitan, Army and Navy, New York Yacht and Princeton Clubs of New York. Mr. Alexander married in San Francisco, Calif., April 26, 1887, Harriet, daughter of Charles Crocker of California, and they have three daughters, Harriet, Janette and Mary Crocker. Residences: Tuxedo Park, N. Y. and 4 West 58th Street. Office: 120 Broadway, New York City.

ALEXANDER, De Alva Stanwood:

Congressman, lawyer; born at Richmond, Maine, July 17, 1846; son of Stanwood Alexander and Priscilla (Brown) Alexander. He entered the Union Army at the age of fifteen, serving as a private soldier, 1862-1865. He was prepared for college at Edward Little Institute, Auburn, Maine; was graduated from Bowdoin College as A. B., in 1870, and A.M. in 1873, and received from the same college the honorary degree of LL.D. He located at Indianapolis, Ind., where he engaged in law practice. He was a delegate to the National Republican Convention in 1872; secretary of the Indiana Republican State Committee, 1874-1878; and was appointed, in 1881, fifth auditor of the Treasury. He removed to Buffalo and became law partner of his college classmate, Hon. James A. Roberts, formerly comptroller of the State of New York. He was United States attorney for the Northern District of New York, 1889-1903; was elected as a member of the Fifty-fifth Congress from the Thirty-third New York District, 1896, reelected from that district in 1898 and 1900, and in 1902-1904-1906 and 1908 from the Thirty-sixth New York District. He is an overseer of Bowdoin College and is author of Political History of the State of New York (two volumes). Mr. Alexander has been twice married; first Sept. 21, 1871, to Alice Colby, and second, Dec. 28, 1892, to Annie L. Bliss. Address: 31 North Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

ALEXANDER, George:

Clergyman; born in West Charlton, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1843; son of Alexander F. and Margaret (Bunyan) Alexander. He was graduated from Union College, A.B., 1866, and received from that college the degree of D.D. in 1884. He was pastor of the East End Avenue Presbyterian Church, Schenectady, N. Y., 1870-1883, and has been pastor of the Presbyterian Church on University Place, New York City, since 1884. Dr. Alexander is vice-president of the Council of New York University; president of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church; president of the Board of Directors of the New York College of Dentistry; a trustee of Union College and a director of Princeton Theological Seminary. Address: 47 University Place, New York City.

ALEXANDER, James Waddel:

Former president of the Equitable Assurance Society of the United States; born in Princeton, N. J., July 19, 1839; son of Rev. Dr. James W. Alexander, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, of New York City. He was graduated from Princeton, A.B. in 1860, and later A.M.; was admitted to the New York Bar, in 1862, and practised law until 1866. After that he was in the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, becoming president on the death of Henry B. Hyde, and so continuing until his resignation in 1905. He is a trustee of Princeton University; and was formerly president of the Society of the Virginians. He is author of: Princeton, Old and New, 1898. Mr. Alexander is a member of the Century Association, and a member and was president eight years of the University Club of New York City, and a member and was president for six years of the Princeton Club of New York City. He married at Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 24, 1862, Elizabeth Beasley Williamson. Address: 4 East 64th Street, New York City.

ALEXANDER, John White:

Artist; born in Allegheny City, Pa., Oct. 7, 1856; son of John and Fanny (Smith) Alexander. He received his art education at the Royal Academy of Fine Arts, Munich; and received the degree of A.M. from Princeton University, 1892. He is Chevalier of the Légion d'Honneur, Sociétaire of the Société Nationale des Beaux Arts, is an Academician of the National Academy of Design, elected 1902; member of the Society of American Artists, Fine Arts Federation of New York, Fine Arts Society of New York, Architectural League, Society of Mural Painters, National Institute of Arts and Letters, Société Nouvelle of Paris, International Society of London; honorary member of the Society of Austrian Painters, honorary member of the Secession of Munich. He has received numerous medals and prizes from exhibitions in the United States and Europe. The names of his paintings in public museums follow: The Pot of Basil, Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; A Quiet Hour, Pennsylvania Academy; Portrait of Fritz Thaulow, Wilsch Collection; Portrait of Rodin, Cincinnati Museum; Woman in Grey, Luxembourg Gallery, Paris; The Mirror, St. Petersburg Gallery; The Black Cat, Odessa Gallery; series of decorations illustrating the Evolution of the Book, Library of Congress, Washington; Portrait of Governor Norton, City Hall, Albany. He is also represented by portraits in the Chamber of Commerce at New York, Princeton University, Harvard University, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, and in many private collections; portrait of Walt Whitman in the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City and portrait of President Loubet, at the Elysée Palace, Paris. Mr. Alexander married, Nov. 2, 1887, Elizabeth Alexander. Residence: 116 East 65th Street. Studio: 123 East 63d Street, New York City.

ALEXANDER, Joshua W.:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 22, 1852; son of Thomas W. and Jane (Robinson) Alexander. He was graduated from the Christian University of Canton, Mo., A.B. (valadictorian), 1872. He was admitted to the bar in 1874 at Gallatin, Mo.; was elected public administrator of Daviess County, Missouri, in 1876 and reelected in 1880. He was elected to the General Assembly in Missouri in 1882, and served until 1888, being speaker of the House in the 34th Assembly, 1886-1888. He was mayor of Gallatin, Mo., for two terms, and judge of the 7th judicial circuit of Missouri from 1900 to 1906, when he resigned, having been elected to the 60th Congress from the 3d Missouri District as a Democrat. He was reelected in 1908 to the 61st Congress. Judge Alexander was for more than 20 years a member of the Board of Education and he has always been active in church and charitable work. He is senior member of the law firm of Alexander & Alexander; is a member and has served several terms as vice-president of the Missouri Bar Association, twenty years a member of the Gallatin School Board; and has several times served as president, secretary and member of the Board of Trustees of Christian University. He is a member of the Missouri Society of Washington, D. C. He married in Gallatin, Mo., Feb. 3, 1876, Roe Ann Richardson, daughter of the late Judge Samuel A. Richardson, and has five sons and three daughters. Residences: Gallatin, Mo. and Washington. Office: Suite 411, House of Representatives Office Building, Washington, D. C.

ALEXANDER, Samuel:

Surgeon; born in New York City, April 2, 1858; son of Henry M. and Susan Mary (Brown) Alexander. He was graduated from Princeton University, A.B., 1879, A.M., 1882, and from Bellevue Hospital Medical College, M.D. 1882. He served as house physician to Bellevue Hospital, 1882-1883; studied at London, Leipzig and Vienna in 1883; was appointed attending surgeon at Bellevue Hospital in 1888; professor of surgery of the genito-urinary system at Bellevue Hospital Medical College in 1889, and has been professor of clinical surgery in the department of genito-urinary diseases at Cornell University Medical College from 1900. He is a fellow of the American Association, member of the New York Academy of Medicine, the American Association of Genito-Urinary Surgeons, the Society of Alumni of Bellevue Hospital, International Surgical Society, International Urological Association, French Surgical Society, and the University and Princeton Clubs. Address: 68 West 55th Street, New York City.

ALEXANDER, William DeWitt:

Ethnologist, historian; born in Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, April 2, 1833; son of William Patterson Alexander (of Kentucky) and Mary Ann (McKinney) Alexander. He was educated at the Punahou School until 1849, and in November of that year sailed for New Bedford, Mass., via Cape Horn. He made his home for several years with Rev. W. R. DeWitt, D.D., at Harrisburg, Pa. He was graduated from Yale College, B.A. and salutatorian, 1855, and received from Yale the degrees of M.A., 1858, and LL.D., 1903. He taught for a year in Beloit College, Wis., and after that in an academy in Vincennes, Ind., and he returned to the Hawaiian Islands in 1858, via Panama. He was professor of Greek in Oahu College, 1858-1864, and its president 1864-1871, and has been a trustee of that same institution since 1875. He was surveyor-general of the Hawaiian Islands, 1871-1900, and from 1901 to 1907 was assistant in the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. In 1878 he accompanied his brother on a trip through Europe, Palestine and Egypt. He went to Washington as a commissioner from the Kingdom of Hawaii to the International Meridian Conference in 1884, and again for the Republic of Hawaii, 1893-1894. He was a member of the Hawaiian Privy Council, 1884-1893, of the Board of Education of Honolulu, 1887-1905; and was decorated with the Order of Kala-kaua in 1884. He is distinguished for his researches and writings in the history, languages and ethnology of Polynesia, and particularly of the Hawaiian Islands, and has written several volumes on the history and language of Hawaii. Dr. Alexander is a member of the Social Science Association, the Polynesian Society, the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, the Royal Geographical Society of London, Washington Academy of Sciences. He married at Lahaina, Maui, Hawaiian Islands, July 16, 1860, Abigail Charlotte Baldwin, and has four children. Address: 1508 Punahou Street, Honolulu, T. H.

ALEY, Robert Judson:

Mathematician; born at Coal City, Ind., May 11, 1863; son of Jesse J. and Paulina (Moyer) Aley. He attended Valparaiso College, and was graduated in the teacher's course in 1880; was graduated from Indiana University, A.B., 1888, and A.M., 1890; took post-graduate work in Leland Stanford University, and the University of Pennsylvania, receiving the Ph.D., 1897 from the latter. Besides a successful career as a teacher of mathematics, Mr. Aley was for years mathematical editor of the Inland Educator and Educator-Journal, and since 1903, has been editor-in-chief and director of the Educator-Journal, and is now president of its publishing company. He has been professor of mathematics in Indiana University since 1891. He is a member of several mathematical societies in the United States and abroad, and is a 32d-degree Mason. He is the author of: Essentials of Algebra, The Geometry of the Triangle, and other mathematical works and revisions. Prof. Aley was Democratic candidate for superintendent of public instruction of Indiana in 1906 and 1908 and elected to that office in Nov., 1908. He married at Spencer, Ind., Aug. 28, 1884, Nellie A. Archer. Address: Bloomington, Ind.

ALGER, Philip R.:

Professor of mathematics, with rank of captain, U. S. Navy; born in Boston, Sept. 29, 1859. He prepared for college in the Boston Latin school but just before he was ready for entrance, he was given an appointment at large to the Naval Academy, from which he was graduated in June, 1880, Number One in a class of sixty-two members, and was promoted to ensign June 26, 1884. On Nov. 1, 1890, he was made professor of mathematics in the Navy and stationed in the Bureau of Ordnance as an ordnance expert. In Nov., 1899, he was assigned to the United States Naval Academy, and became head of the Department of Mechanics, which place he retained until 1907, when that department was consolidated with the Department of Mathematics. Since 1890 he has been almost constantly on special duty in connection with matters pertaining to ordnance. Prof. Alger is the author of works on exterior ballistics and the elastic strength of guns as well as many articles on professional subjects, and is one the leading ordnance experts of the world. His calculations and researches have been the basis of much of the progress in naval gunnery since the Spanish War. He has been for six years the secretary and treasurer of the United States Naval Institute, and has edited its Proceedings and made many translations of technical and professional matters. He is at present on special duty with regard to ordnance in the Navy Department, at Washington. He is married and has five children. Address: U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

ALLEE, James Frank:

Jeweler and former U. S. Senator; born in Dover, Del., 1857. He succeeded his father in the watch-making and jewelry business which he now conducts. In 1898 and again in 1902 he was elected to the State Senate of Delaware as a "Union" Republican. That faction of the Republican party constituted the force in Delaware politics, which together with the fact of a small Democratic minority, made it possible to carry on an indecisive contest, covering a series of years, for the election of United States senator. Mr. Allee was chairman of the Union Republican forces and in 1903 was elected to fill a vacancy in the representation of the State of Delaware in the U. S. Senate, which had been one of the subjects of the contest referred to. Mr. Allee served as U. S. Senator until the expiration of his term, March 4, 1907, but was not reelected. He married, at Camden, Del., Jan. 18, 1882, Lizzie Stevens. Address: Dover, Del.

ALLEN, Amos Lawrence:

Lawyer and member of Congress; born at Waterboro, York County, Maine, March 17, 1837. He prepared at Whitestown Seminary, Whitestown, N. Y., and from there entered the sophomore class of Bowdoin College, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1860. He studied law at Alfred, Maine, and afterward attended the Law School of Columbian (now George Washington) University. He was admitted to the bar of York County, Maine, in 1866; was a clerk in the U. S. Treasury Department, three years; clerk of the courts of York County, Maine, 1871-1883; clerk of the Judiciary Committee of the U. S. House of Representatives, 1883-1884; special examiner of the Pension Bureau, 1884-1885; member of the Maine Legislature, 1886 and 1887; delegate at large, and member of the committee on resolutions of the Republican National Convention at St. Louis, 1896; private secretary to Speaker Thomas B. Reed, in the 51st, 54th and 55th Congresses. In 1899 he was elected as a Republican to the Fifty-sixth Congress to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. Thomas B. Reed, has been elected biennially since and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. Address: Alfred, Maine.

ALLEN, Andrew Hussey:

Lawyer and author; born in New York City, Dec. 6, 1855; son of Julian and Mary A. (Hussey) Allen. He was educated at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and at Harvard College, graduating A.B., 1878, and at the Law School of Columbia College, New York. Mr. Allen was admitted to the bar in North Carolina, in 1888, and has filled various non-political positions in the public service. He was chief of the Bureau of Rolls and Library of the Department of State of the United States for thirteen years; member of the United States Board on Geographic Names for eleven years, and was chairman, secretary, and member of the Executive Committee of that board at different times. He inaugurated and edited the Bulletin of the Bureau of Rolls and Library; edited the Documentary History of the Constitution of the United States in five volumes; and is author of The Diplomatic Relations between the United States and Hawaii; Recognition of Foreign Governments by the Government of the United States; and, Historical Archives of the Department of the State of the United States. Mr. Allen has contributed verse, etc., to magazines; and was a member of the editorial staff of the Chicago Tribune for some months, and resigned from public service Dec. 2, 1905. He is a member of the American Historical Association, the Society of Authors, and other associations. He was treasurer and one of the organizers of the Harvard Club of Washington, D. C., and has been a member of the University Club of Washington, D. C., since its organization. Address: Care Second National Bank, New York City.

ALLEN, Charles:

Retired justice, Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts; born in Greenfield, Mass., April 17, 1827. He was graduated from Harvard University in the class of 1847 and received the degree of LL.D. in 1892. Judge Allen studied and practised law in Greenfield, remaining in that town until 1862, when he removed to Boston. He was the reporter of the decisions of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts for six years, 1864-1867, being the author of Allen's Massachusetts Reports, in fourteen volumes, covering the period from 1861 to 1869. He was attorney-general of Massachusetts, 1867-1872, and was chairman of the committee appointed to revise the statutes of Massachusetts in 1881. In 1882 he was appointed to the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts, serving until his retirement in 1898. Judge Allen is the author of: Report on the Telegraph Cases, 1873, and has also published a volume on the Bacon-Shakespeare question. Address: The Charlesgate, Boston.

ALLEN, Charles Herbert:

Banker; born in Lowell, Mass., April 15, 1848; son of Otis and Louise (Bixby) Allen. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1869, the degree of A.M. being later conferred upon him, and in 1900 he received the degree of LL.D. from his alma mater. Mr. Allen's early business life was spent as a lumber merchant at Lowell, and while so engaged he was elected member of the Massachusetts General Court, 1881 to 1882; member of the Massachusetts State Senate, 1883; was elected member of Congress, 1884, and served two terms, holding important place on the committees on Indian Affairs and Post Offices. He was the Republican candidate for Governor of Massachusetts in 1891, but defeated by a small majority by Governor Russell. He succeeded Theodore Roosevelt as assistant secretary of the Navy, 1898, and served during the war with Spain; was, in 1900, made first civil governor of Porto Rico under American authority and organized the new Government, and for these services was offered by President McKinley the choice of several diplomatic appointments, but preferred to return to private life. Since 1902 he has been president of the Appleton National Bank at Lowell, and since Feb., 1904, vice-president and director of the Morton Trust Company, in New York City. He is also director of the National Bank of Commerce, the American Surety Company, Union Exchange Bank, Industrial Trust Co. He is a trustee of Amherst College, Amherst, Mass., and of Smith College, Northampton, Mass. Governor Allen married, Nov. 10, 1870, Harriet Coleman Dean, and has two daughters. Residence: 48 W. 46th Street. Office: 38 Nassau Street, New York City.

ALLEN, Edmund Thompson:

Lawyer; born in Fairhaven, Mass., Aug. 10, 1836; son of Edmund and Sarah Russell (Freeman) Allen. He was educated in Friends' Academy, New Bedford, Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and Yale College (A.M.), Class of 1857. He was admitted to the Massachusetts Bar in 1859; practised law in New Bedford, Mass., until 1863; was shorthand writer in the military courts in St. Louis, 1863-1866, and after that practised law in St. Louis, now being senior of the law firm of E. T. and C. B. Allen. Mr. Allen has also taken a position of some prominence in the business world, and was a director and the secretary of the Crystal Plate Glass Company, and a director of the South St. Louis Iron Company and of the Union Dairy Company. He is a member of the St. Louis and Missouri Bar Associations, the St. Louis Law Library Association, New England Society, and the St. Louis, Union and Noonday Clubs of St. Louis. Mr. Allen married in Boston, Jan. 13, 1863, Sylvia T. Bowen (now deceased) and has two sons and a daughter. Residence: 2805 Russell Avenue. Office: Wainwright Building, St. Louis, Mo.

ALLEN, Edward P.:

Roman Catholic Bishop of Mobile; born in Lowell, Mass., March 17, 1853; son of John and Mary (Egan) Allen. He was graduated from Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmetsburg, Md., June 26, 1878. After a four-year course in theology, he was ordained a priest, Dec. 17, 1881. He did not enter at once on a pastorate but remained at Mt. St. Mary's College as one of the faculty until the spring of 1882. In that year he became an assistant at the cathedral at Boston and later was assigned to service at Framingham, Mass. In 1884 he was made acting president of Mt. St.

Mary's College, and in June, 1885, he was elected president, serving until May 16, 1897, when he was consecrated the fifth bishop of Mobile. Address: Mobile, Ala.

ALLEN, F. Sturges:

Lexicographer and law writer; born in Norwalk, Conn., Oct. 1, 1861; son of Alfred Burr and Caroline (Sturges) Allen. He was graduated with the degree of A.B. from Yale in 1884, and from the Yale Law School in 1892 with the degree of LL.D. From his graduation from Yale until 1890, he was employed as an editor on Webster's International Dictionary, and he has edited or abridged various smaller Webster's dictionaries. He was chief editor, under Dr. W. T. Harris, of the supplement to Webster's International Dictionary published 1900. He was admitted to the bars of Connecticut and New York in 1892, and practised law until 1902, when he began to devote his entire time to editorial work and writings. He was meanwhile contributor to and editor of the law articles in Johnson's University Encyclopedia, and was a contributor to the law department of Appleton's Universal Encyclopedia Supplement. He was also editor of the law department of the New International Encyclopedia, and contributed to the department of pronunciation in the same publication. Mr. Allen has also been a frequent contributor of articles to various publications in the lines above indicated, and is author of Principles of Spelling Reform, 1907. He is a member of the Modern Language Association, American Philological Association, American Bar Association, International Law Association, British Modern Language Association, Phi Beta Kappa Society, Association of the Bar of the City of New York and Yale Club of New York. He married at North Adams, Mass., April 9, 1895, Annie M. White. Address: Yale Club, New York City.

ALLEN, Frederick Innes:

Former United States commissioner of patents; born in Auburn, N. Y., Jan. 19, 1859; son of William Allen. He was educated at the Auburn High School and at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and from there entered the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, from which he was graduated with the degree of B.S. in 1879, receiving the class prize in mineralogy on graduation. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1882, and practised patent law at Auburn until March, 1901, when he was appointed as U. S. Commissioner of Patents, resigning in 1908 to resume the practice of patent law in Auburn. He represented the United States at the Congress of the International Association for the Protection of Industrial Property at Berlin, and at Berne, Switzerland, in 1904. He married at Auburn, N. Y., June 3, 1884, Cornelia Margaret, daughter of General William H. Seward. Address: Auburn, N. Y.

ALLEN, Henry Crosby:

Lawyer and ex-congressman; born in Paterson, N. J., May 13, 1872; son of Samuel Coit Morgan and Josephine Amelia (Crosby) Allen. He was graduated from Saint Paul's School, Garden City, Long Island, in 1889; from Yale, with the degree of B.A. in 1893, and from the New York Law School as LL.B. in 1895, since which year he has been engaged in the practice of law at Paterson, N. J. He is a Republican in politics, and in 1904 was elected from the Sixth New Jersey District (which is normally Democratic) to the Fifty-ninth Congress, in which he served from 1905 to 1907. He is a member of the Hamilton and North Jersey Country Clubs and various political organizations of Paterson. Residence: Little Falls, N. J. Offices: Silk City Trust Building, Paterson, N. J.

ALLEN, Henry Tureman:

Army officer; born at Sharpsburg, Ky., April 13, 1859. He was prepared at Peckskill Military Academy and Georgetown College, Kentucky, and was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1882; and he received from Georgetown College, Kentucky, the degree of A.M. in 1898. He was appointed second lieutenant of the Second United States Cavalry, June 13, 1882; first lieutenant, June 22, 1889; and captain 6th Cavalry, 1898; major 8th Cavalry, 1907. He was engaged in the exploration of Alaska in 1885 and 1886. In the Spanish-American War he became major and assistant adjutant-general of volunteers, June 3, 1898, participated throughout the Santiago Campaign, and was honorably discharged June 13, 1899; he was commissioned major of the Forty-third United States Infantry Volunteers, August 17, 1899; lieutenant-colonel, May 31, 1901, and honorably discharged June 30, 1901, serving in the Philippines. He was governor of the Island of Leyte, in the Philippines, from April to July, 1901, and July, 1901, was appointed chief of the Philippines Constabulary, and by Act of Congress, approved Jan. 30, 1903, he was appointed, Jan. 31, 1903, chief of the Philippines Constabulary, with the rank of brigadier-general. He resigned as chief of constabulary, June 30, 1907. He served as military attaché at St. Petersburg, Russia, 1890-1895; military attaché at Berlin, 1897-1899; military attaché at Seoul, Korea, 1904, while engaged in watching the Japanese operations against Russia. He is the author of a Report on the Reconnaissance of Copper, Tanana and Koyukuk Rivers, published in 1886; and a work on the Military System of Sweden, published in 1895. He is a member of the American Geographical Society, and medallist of the Imperial Russian Geographical Society. General Allen married in Chicago, July 12, 1887, Dora Johnston. Address: War Department, Washington, D. C.

ALLEN, Horace Newton:

Diplomat and missionary; born in Delaware, Ohio, April 23, 1858; son of Horace and Jane M. (Riley) Allen. He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University, B.S., and from Miami Medical College, M.D., and then went as a medical missionary one year to China and three years to Korea, under the Presbyterian Board. Having saved the life of a wounded Korean prince by his surgical skill, he was, in 1884, appointed court physician and adviser to the Korean Government. He was appointed in charge of the Korean Embassy to Washington, 1888, was secretary of the American Legation at Korea, 1890-1897; minister resident and consul-general, 1897-1901, and envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Korea, 1901-1905. He was twenty-one years a resident of Korea, and fifteen years in the United States diplomatic service. Dr. Allen was honorary commissioner of Korea to the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893. He received the highest decoration of the Korean Government, as well as four lesser ones, and he is an extensive traveler, having crossed the Pacific twelve times and the Atlantic twice. He is a director in several mining companies, a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, the National Geographic Society, the Toledo and Country Clubs of Toledo, the Seoul Club and the Chemulpo Club. He is the author of: Korean Tales, 1889; Chronological Index of Korean Foreign Relations from the Beginning of the Christian Era to the Twentieth Century, 1900, and Supplement to Same, 1903; Korea—Fact and Fancy, 1904; Things Korean, 1908. Dr. Allen married in Clarksville, Ohio, May 17, 1883, Frances Ann Messenger, and they have two sons. Address: Toledo Club, Toledo, Ohio.

ALLEN, James:

Brigadier-general and chief signal officer. U. S. A.; born at Laporte, Ind., Feb. 13, 1849; son of Mark and Matilda Allen. He was graduated from the U. S. Military Academy in 1872, and after that served as a cavalry officer until 1890. Since then he has been in the Signal Corps in all ranks from captain to his present position as brigadier-general and chief signal officer, to which he was appointed Feb. 10, 1906. He served as lieutenant-colonel and colonel chief signal officer of Volunteers in Cuba and Porto Rico in 1898 and 1899, and as brigadier-general of Volunteers in the Philippines in 1901. General Allen has a distinguished record in the corps in which he is now the chief officer. Address: War Department, Washington, D. C.

ALLEN, James Lane:

Author; born near Lexington, Ky., in 1849; youngest child of Richard and Henry (Foster) Allen. His education was acquired in Transylvania University, where he received the degrees of A.B. and A.M. The death of his father when he was twenty-one placed the support of his mother and sister in his hands, and he taught in public schools and was later a private tutor, and afterward taught Latin and higher English in Bethany College, West Virginia, for two years, and since then has been engaged in literature. His published volumes include: Flute and Violin and Other Kentucky Tales and Romances; The Blue Grass Regions of Kentucky, and Other Kentucky Articles; John Gray, a Kentucky Tale of the Olden Time; A Kentucky Cardinal; A Summer in Arcady; The Choir Invisible; The Increasing Purpose; Aftermath (Second Part of a Kentucky Cardinal); The Mettle of the Pasture; The Reign of Law; The Bride of the Mistletoe. The Choir Invisible was dramatized in 1899. Address: Care of Macmillan and Company, 66 Fifth Av., New York City.

ALLEN, Joel Asaph:

Naturalist; born in Springfield, Massachusetts, July 19, 1838; son of Joel and Harriet (Trumbull) Allen. He was educated at Wilbraham Academy and Lawrence Scientific School, Harvard, from 1862 to 1867, specializing in zoölogy under Agassiz, and was Humboldt scholar of the same in 1871; and later he received the degree of Ph.D. from Indiana University. He was assistant to Professor Agassiz on the scientific expedition to Brazil in 1865, made scientific researches in Florida in 1869 and was chief of the scientific staff of the Government Expedition, on the Northern Pacific Railroad Survey in 1873. He was special collaborator of the United States Geological Survey, under Hayden, 1878 to 1883. He was assistant in ornithology in the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy at Harvard, 1871 to 1885, and has been curator of mammalogy and ornithology in the American Museum of Natural History, New York City, since 1885. Dr. Allen was editor of the Bulletin of the Nuttall Ornithological Club, 1876-1883; The Auk, ornithological quarterly, 1888-1906, and the Bulletin and Memoirs (zoölogical series) of the American Museum of Natural History since 1887. He has written a large number of monographs, reviews and contributions relating to mammalogy and ornithology, more especially on geographical zoölogy. North American Rodentia and Pinnipedia, the mammals of Patagonia, the mammals and birds of Northeastern Siberia and of Colombia, and on the genus Didelphys. Dr. Allen is a fellow of the American Ornithologists' Union (president, 1883 to 1891); has been a member of the National Academy of Sciences since 1876; is an honorary member of the British Ornithologists' Union, the Deutsche Ornithologische Gesellschaft, the New York Zoölogical Society and the Zoölogical Society of London, and is member of the American Society of Naturalists, American Society of Geographers, American Academy of Arts and Sciences, American Philosophical Society, New York Academy of Sciences (vice-president in 1891), the Linnean Society of Natural History of New York (president, 1890 to 1897), and of the Washington Academy of Sciences. Dr. Allen was awarded the Walker Grand Prize of the Boston Society of Natural History in 1903. He married first at Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 6, 1874, Mary Manning Cleveland (who died April 17, 1879), by whom he has a son. He again married at Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y., April 27, 1886, Susie Augusta Taft. Address: American Museum of Natural History, New York City.

ALLEN, John Mills:

Lawyer and ex-congressman; born in Tishomingo County, Miss., July 8, 1846; son of David M. and Sallie Ann (Spencer) Allen. He enlisted in the Confederate army shortly after the opening of the war, and served as a private for four years. He received his legal education at Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., and at the University of Mississippi, L.L.B., 1870. He was admitted to the bar in that year and has since practised law at Tupelo. In 1876 he was elected prosecuting attorney in the First Mississippi district, and in 1885 was elected to Congress as a Democrat from the First Mississippi district, serving until 1901, when he voluntarily retired. During his service in Congress he became nationally famous as an orator and humorist, and was known as "Private John Allen" as a result of his humorous allusions to his service in the Civil War and to the number of military titles which had been developed from that contest. Mr. Allen retired from Congress to devote his time to law practice and to a considerable number of financial interests with which he is connected, among them being banking institutions of Tupelo, the Tupelo Cotton Mills, and the Tupelo Fertilizer Factory. Mr. Allen was a member of the National Commission of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. He married in Tupelo, Miss., Dec. 24, 1872, Georgie Taylor. Address: Tupelo, Miss.

ALLEN, Robert McDowell:

Lawyer; born in Edinburg, Mo., Oct. 29, 1878; son of Reverend Nelson McDowell and Caroline Josephine (Pelly) Allen. He was graduated from Kentucky State College, A.B. in 1900, and taking up the study of law was admitted to the bar of Kentucky the following year. At the time of his graduation he was appointed to a position in the pure food inspection work of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station and was later made the head of the Division of State Food Inspection of the Station; was special counsel for the State of Kentucky in the prosecution in 1907 which broke up still slop dairying throughout the State; special counsel for the State in determining the constitutionality of the Kentucky food law before the State and Federal courts in 1906 and 1907. Special counsel for the U. S. Government in litigation under Federal Food and Drugs Act, and in certain Internal Revenue cases, since Feb., 1908. Has been secretary and a member of the Executive Committee of the Association of State and National Food and Dairy Departments since 1901, and as such represented the Association in its fight for national pure food legislation. He was secretary of the International Pure Food Congress of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition; member of the committee appointed by the State Food Commissioners to draft a uniform State food and drug law. He has written numerous reports and addresses on food control work. Address: Lexington, Ky.

ALLEN, Thomas:

Artist; born at St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 19, 1849. He attended Washington University, St. Louis, was graduated from the Royal Academy at Dusseldorf, Germany, 1877, and also studied three years in France. He has attained distinction as a painter of landscapes and animal pictures, exhibiting at the National Academy of Design in New York in 1877. He has resided in Boston since 1880. Mr. Allen exhibited at the Paris Salons in 1882, 1887 and 1889, has been a member of the Society of American Artists since 1880, and associate of the National Academy since 1884; is president of the Paint and Clay Club and the Boston Society of Water Color Painters; vice-president of the Copley Society of Boston; chairman of the Council of the School of Drawing and Painting at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. He received medals from the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo and at Boston, was judge of awards at the World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, in 1893, and chairman of the International Jury of Awards at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis in 1904; also chairman of the Department Jury of Fine Arts at St. Louis in 1904. Mr. Allen has been twice married, first in 1880 to Eleanor G. Whitney, daughter of Professor J. D. Whitney, of Harvard, and second, in 1884, to Alice Ranney, daughter of the Hon. A. A. Ranney of Boston. Address: 12 Commonwealth Av., Boston, Mass.

ALLEN, Viola:

Actress; born in Huntsville, Ala., while her parents were en tour. She is the daughter of C. Leslie and Sarah (Lyon) Allen, her father being one of the best-known actors on the American stage for more than fifty years. Miss Allen was educated at Wyckham House, Toronto, Canada, and in private schools in New York City. The talent for the stage which she inherited from her father was indicated in early life, and before she was 15 years old her debut came about unexpectedly in a sudden call to assume an ingénue rôle in a piece in which her father was then playing, in which she made an immediate success. After a season on the road, Miss Allen became leading lady for John McCullough in what proved to be his last season, and with him appeared as "Virginia," "Desdemona," "Parthenia," and as "Julia" in Dr. Bird's version of The Gladiator. After that she played most of the Shakespearian rôles with Tommaso Salvini, the Italian tragedian. Later she joined Lawrence Barrett in a special production of The Blot on the Scutecheon, and then, after a season in the Boston Museum Stock Company, in which she created in America the part of "Mrs. Errol" in Little Lord Fauntleroy, Miss Allen supported Joseph Jefferson and William Florence in their joint starring tour in The Rivals and The Heir at Law, 1889; appeared in a special company in Bronson Howard's Aristocracy, 1892; leading lady at the Empire Theatre in New York City, 1893, where she created and was very successful in rôles in Liberty Hall, The Masqueraders, Sowing the Wind, The Conquerors, and Under the Red Robe. In 1898 she withdrew from the Empire Company in order to star in The Christian, by Hall Caine, in which she first appeared in Albany, N. Y., and after two years of success in that play she starred in The Palace of the King, 1900, and The Eternal City, 1902. After that Miss Allen began a series of Shakespearian revivals, producing, in 1903, Twelfth Night in which she played the part of "Viola," and in 1904 A Winter's Tale, in which she played the two parts of "Hermione" and "Perdita." In following seasons she produced Cymbeline, As You Like It, The School for Scandal, The Merchant of Venice, The Toast of the Town, and Irene Wyeherly. Her dramatic work has run the gamut of comedy, tragedy, modern classic and Shakespearian rôles. Address: 2 West 38th Street, New York City.

ALLEN, William Frederick:

Editor and civil engineer; born at Bordentown, N. J., Oct. 9, 1846; son of Colonel Joseph Warner and Sarah Burns (Norcross) Allen. He was educated at the Model School, at Bordentown, N. J., and the Protestant Episcopal Academy, Philadelphia, and in 1906 the degree of M.S. was conferred upon him by Princeton University. He served as first lieutenant of New Jersey Militia, 1861-1864. Mr. Allen engaged in practice as a civil engineer, was rodman and assistant engineer of the Camden and Amboy Railroad, 1862-1868; resident engineer of the West Jersey Railroad, 1868-1872; assistant editor, 1872-1873, and since 1873 editor of the Official Railway Guide and manager and director of the National Railway Publication Company. Since 1875 he has been secretary of the General Time Convention and its successor, the American Railway Association. In April, 1883, he proposed the detailed system of Standard Time now in use, and was appointed to secure its adoption by the General Time Convention, which result followed Nov. 18, 1883. Mr. Allen was a delegate of The American Railway Association to the International Railway Congresses, London, 1895, Paris, 1900, and Washington, 1905. He was secretary of the American Section and associate secretary-general of the International Railway Congress in 1905, and delegate of the U. S. Government to the International Meridian Conference at Washington, 1884, and to the International Railway Congress at Paris, in 1900. Besides his distinguished services in planning and securing the adoption of the present system of Standard Time in North America in 1883, he has rendered valuable service in securing uniformity in rules for the operation of American railways. He was a member of the Board of Assessment and afterward of the Board of Trustees of the Village of South Orange, N. J., and was a delegate from the Eighth New Jersey Congressional District to the National Republican Convention in Chicago, 1908. He founded and laid out the plan of the town of Wenonah, Gloucester County, N. J. He is a trustee of the South Orange Free Library; secretary-treasurer of the American Railway Association; secretary and treasurer of the Bureau for the Safe Transportation of Explosives; director and manager of the National Railway Publication Company; vice-president and chairman of the Board of the Railway Equipment and Publication Company; treasurer of the American Railway Supply Company; president of the Knickerbocker Guide Company, and Manhattan Fire Alarm Company; vice-president of the New York Transfer Company, and president of the Meadow Land Society of South Orange. He was decorated by the Belgian Government as a chevalier of the Order of Leopold, is an honorary member of the Royal and Imperial Geographical Society of Vienna, and a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Meteorological Society, American Geographical Society, National Geographic Society, American Economic Association, the Navy League, New Jersey Historical Society, American Statistical Association, American Forestry Association, American Academy of Political and Social Science, and Washington Academy of Science, is past master of the American Railway Guild; member of the Municipal Art Society; New England Society of Orange, N. J.; Pennsylvania Society of New York; Companion of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion; and a member of the Masonic Order. Mr. Allen is also a member of the Lawyers', Transportation, Engineers', and Railroad Clubs of New York, Union League Club of Chicago and the South Orange Field Club. Mr. Allen married, at Salem, N. J., April 20, 1871, Caroline Perry Yorke, and has four sons. Residence: 180 Scotland Road, South Orange, N. J. Address: 24 Park Place, New York City.

ALLEN, William Harvey:

Social worker, secretary of the New York Bureau of Municipal Research; born at Le Roy, Minn., Feb. 9, 1874; son of John D. and Joanna (Corbett) Allen. He was graduated from the University of Chicago, B.A., 1897; was a graduate student of the Universities of Leipzig, Berlin and Pennsylvania, and received the degree of Ph.D. He was an instructor in the University of Pennsylvania; secretary of the New Jersey State Charities Aid Association; editor of the New Jersey Review of Charities and Corrections; editor of Charities; general agent of the New York Association for improving the Condition of the Poor; secretary of the National Municipal League Committee on Instruction in Municipal Government; instructor in New York School of Philanthropy; instructor in the Correspondence Study Department of the University of Chicago; secretary of the Committee on Hospital Needs and Hospital Finances of New York City; secretary of the Committee on Physical Welfare of School Children of New York City, and contributor to magazines on social topics. He is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science; the American Sociological Association; National Municipal League; member of the Chi Psi fraternity, of the Faculty Council of the School of Philanthropy and of the Century Club of New York City. Mr. Allen is author of: Efficient Democracy; Rural Sanitary Administration in Pennsylvania; Civics and Health; and joint author of School Reports and School Efficiency. He married, Oct. 28, 1903, Isabel Dangaix and they have two sons. Address: 261 Broadway, New York City.

ALLEN, William Vincent:

Former United States senator; born in Midway, Madison County, Ohio, Jan. 28, 1847, and removed with his family to Iowa in 1857. He was educated at the Upper Iowa University, and was a private in the 32d Iowa Infantry in the Civil War. Mr. Allen was admitted to the bar, May 31, 1869, and practised law in Iowa until 1884, when he moved to Nebraska and practised law until he was elected judge of the 9th Judicial District of that State, in 1891. He became prominent in the Populist, or People's party in Nebraska, and was elected United States senator 1893, serving as the result of this election, and of a subsequent appointment, until March 27, 1901. While he was a member of the Senate, he was the chief exponent of the doctrines of the Populist party in that body, and attracted national attention by his advocacy of those tenets. Mr. Allen was president of the State Convention of Populists in Nebraska in 1892, 1894 and 1900, and was permanent chairman of the Populist National Convention of 1896. He has continued to maintain his affiliation with the political party named, and is now a member of the Executive Committee of the Populist National Committee. Address: Madison, Neb.

ALLPORT, Frank:

Physician and surgeon; born at Watertown, N. Y., Feb. 22, 1856. He received his education at the Chicago University and at Racine (Wis.) College, when, completing his academic studies, he took up that of medicine at the Chicago Medical College, where he received the degree of M. D. in 1876. This he followed by two years of post-graduate work at Heidelberg, Germany, after which he returned to the United States and in 1878 began to practise at Sycamore, Ill. In 1883, he removed to Minneapolis, Minn., where he began to practise in his specialty, diseases of the eye and ear, in which he is widely known. He was also professor of ophthalmology and otology at the Minneapolis State University, and surgeon of diseases of the eye and ear at numerous hospitals and institutions. He went in 1898, to Chicago, and was called to the chair of professor of ophthalmology and otology in Northwestern University Woman's Medical School, which he held until that school went out of existence. He was also professor of ophthalmology in the Chicago Polyclinic, from which he resigned some years ago. He was professor of otology and clinical professor of ophthalmology and otology in the Northwestern University Medical School but has recently resigned. He is also surgeon of diseases of the eye and ear at St. Luke's Hospital and various other institutions. He is, besides, consulting eye and ear surgeon for the Board of Education of Chicago. Dr. Allport is one of the best known and most successful specialists in the United States. He was married at Sycamore, Ill., to Kate A. Ellwood. Residence: 2108 Prairie Avenue. Address: Chicago Savings Bank Building, Chicago, Ill.

ALTSHELER, Joseph Alexander:

Editor; born in Three Springs, Ky., April 29, 1862; son of Joseph A. and Lucy (Snoddy) Altsheeler. He was educated at Liberty College, Glasgow, Ky., and at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn. Upon leaving the university he entered journalism, and was connected with the Louisville Evening Post and the Louisville Courier-Journal. He entered the service of the New York World in 1892, and for the past fourteen years has been manager and editor of the Thrice-a-week edition of that newspaper. He is the author of: The Sun of Saratoga; In Hostile Red; A Soldier of Manhattan; A Herald of the West; The Last Rebel; In Circling Camps; The Wilderness Road; My Captive; Before the Dawn; Guthrie of the Times; The Candidate; The Young Traders; The Forest Runners; and The Recovery. He married in Glasgow, Ky., May 30, 1888, Sarah Boles, and has one son. Residence: 320 Manhattan Avenue. Office: Pulitzer Building, New York City.

ALVORD, John Watson:

Hydraulic and sanitary engineer; born in Newton Center, Mass., Jan. 25, 1861; son of Rev. John Watson and Myrtilla Mead (Peck) Alvord. He was educated at a preparatory school in Washington, D. C., and fitted himself by study and practical experience for the profession of engineering, in which he has become an expert in hydraulic sewerage and sewage disposal practice. He was assistant engineer of construction of the Hyde Park and Lake View pumping stations of the Chicago Water Works, and was chief engineer of surveys at the World's Columbian Exposition. Since 1894 he has been consulting engineer for over one hundred municipalities, on water supply and besides has served power companies, been a member of many appraisal boards on water properties. Among other important undertakings he has been consulting engineer on the Illinois and Michigan Canal, and designed and constructed the Water Supply and Sewerage works of the city built by the United States Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, Society for Municipal Improvement, 1st vice-president of the American Water-Works Association; past president Illinois Society of Engineers; member New England Water-Works Association; the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Past vice-president Western Society of Engineers, and member of the Engineers club of Chicago. Mr. Alvord is a frequent contributor on engineering subjects to the technical press. He married in Chicago, Sept. 4, 1889, Helen C. Cornell. Residence: 5203 Hibbard Avenue. Address: 1212 Hartford Building, Chicago.

AMATEIS, Louis:

Sculptor; born in Turin, Italy, Dec. 13, 1855; son of Paul and Carolina Amateis. He was educated at the Institute of Technology at Turin, and studied art at Paris and Milan. He came to New York in 1883, and has executed a large number of busts from life, including President Arthur, Generals Hancock and Logan, Secretaries Blaine and Bayard, Andrew Carnegie, and others. He executed historical bronze doors for the Capitol and a considerable number of memorial monuments. From 1892 to 1899 he was head of the department of fine arts, of Columbian, now George Washington, University. One of the prominent exhibits made by him was the group El Caney at the Buffalo Exposition. He has also exhibited at all the principal exhibits and art exhibitions in the United States and abroad, and has been a leading competitor in Governmental competitions for memorials at Washington. Mr. Amateis is a member of the National Art Society. He married in New York City, Feb. 24, 1889, Dora Ballin. Residence: 1719 19th Street, Washington, D. C.

AMEND, Edward B.:

Jurist; born in New York City and educated in St. Francis Xavier College, from which he was graduated A.B., 1877, A.M., 1878; and was graduated from Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1879. He engaged in the practice of law until 1902, when he was elected on the Democratic ticket to the office of justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1916, in which he now serving. Address: 38 West 74th Street, New York City.

AMES, Adelbert:

Brigadier-general and ex-governor; born in Rockland, Knox County, Maine, Oct. 31, 1835. He was appointed to the United States Military Academy at West Point, from which he was graduated in the class of 1861. Upon his graduation he was assigned to the Fifth Regiment of United States Artillery, and was promoted through the intermediate grades to brigadier-general of volunteers and brevetted major-general of volunteers. He was mustered out of the volunteer service in April, 1866, and commissioned in July, 1866, lieutenant-colonel of the Twenty-fourth United States Infantry. He was appointed provisional governor of Mississippi, July 15, 1868, under the reconstruction acts; was elected United States senator in 1870 and elected Governor of Mississippi in 1873, resigned in 1876, when he removed to New York. Later he removed to Lowell, Mass., where he became identified with important interests. He was appointed brigadier-general of United States Volunteers, June 20, 1898, serving during the war with Spain. He married at Boston, July 21, 1870, Blanche, daughter of the late General Benjamin E. Butler. Address: Lowell, Mass.

AMES, Butler:

Congressman; born in Lowell, Mass., Aug. 22, 1871; son of Major General Adelbert and Blanche (Butler) Ames, and grandson of Major General Benjamin F. Butler. He was educated in the Lowell schools, at Phillips Exeter Academy in the class of 1890, and was graduated from the United States Military Academy at West Point in 1894. He resigned from the United States

Army after appointment to the Eleventh United States Infantry for the purpose of returning to Massachusetts to take a post-graduate course at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, graduating in 1896 as a mechanical and electrical engineer. He has since been agent of the Wamesit Power Company of Lowell. At the commencement of the Spanish War, he was made lieutenant and adjutant of the Sixth Massachusetts Volunteers at Camp Alger, near Washington. He was appointed as acting engineer of the Second Army Corps, under General Graham, in addition to his duties as adjutant, and went from Charlestown to Cuba and Porto Rico, under General Miles. He was at the landing at Guanica and the skirmish at Yuaco Road in July, was promoted to lieutenant-colonel of his regiment in August and was civil administrator of the Arecibo district of Porto Rico until Nov., 1898. He served as a member of the Massachusetts State Legislature for three years from 1897 to 1899, and in that body was chairman of the committee on street railways. He was elected as a Republican in 1902 from the Fifth Massachusetts District to the Fifty-eighth Congress, and reelected in 1904, 1906 and 1908 to the Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses, his present term expiring in 1911. Address: Lowell, Mass.

AMES, Herman Vanderburg:

Authority on Federal and State relations; born in Lancaster, Mass., Aug. 7, 1865; son of Rev. Marcus Ames. He was graduated from Amherst, 1888, receiving degrees of A.M., and of Ph.D. from Harvard in 1890 and 1891 respectively. He took post-graduate courses at Columbia, Harvard, Leipzig and Heidelberg, and returning to the United States after the latter courses, resumed the teaching of history, in which he had been engaged at the University of Michigan from 1891 to 1894. He became connected with the Ohio State University and later with the University of Pennsylvania, in which he is professor of American constitutional history, and since 1907 dean of the Graduate School. He has been especially distinguished for his writings and com-pilations on the relations between the United States and the States. He has been chairman of the Archives Commission of the American Historical Association since 1902, and, for several years was secretary of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Middle States and Maryland. His works include a large number of monographs and contributions to the literature of American history. He edited: State Documents on Federal relations; The State and the United States, and is author of: The Proposed Amendments to the Constitution of the United States; and of Outline of Lectures on American Political and Institutional History during the Colonial and Revolutionary Periods. Residence: 210 South 37th St., Philadelphia.

AMES, James Barr:

Dean of Harvard Law School; born in Boston, Mass., June 22, 1846. He was graduated from Harvard in 1868, receiving the degree of A.M. in 1871, and from Harvard Law School, as LL.B., in 1872. He has been successively, instructor in a private school in Boston, tutor in French and German at Harvard, instructor of history at Harvard, associate professor of law, and since 1877, professor of law in the Harvard Law School, and dean of that institution since 1895. The degree of LL.D. has been conferred upon him by the University of New York, University of Michigan, University of Pennsylvania, Northwestern University, Williams College, Harvard and University of Cincinnati. Dean Ames has compiled collections of cases which are leading American authorities on torts, pleadings, bills and notes, partnership, trusts, suretyship, admiralty and equity jurisdiction. He is also author of numerous articles in the Harvard Law Review and other law publications. His position, authority on matters of law, and personal intercourse with large numbers of men now in the legal profession of the United States, give Dean Ames a very great influence which has always been exerted for the best interest of the profession and of American jurisprudence. He married, June 29, 1880, Sarah Russell, of Boston. Address: Cambridge, Mass.

AMIDON, Charles Fremont:

Jurist; born at Clymer, Chataqua County, N. Y., Aug. 17, 1856. After his graduation from Hamilton College in 1882, he went to Fargo, Dakota, where he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1886. He practised law at Fargo until 1896, was one of the members of the Code Commission of North Dakota in 1893, and was appointed Aug. 31, 1896 to his present position as judge of the United States Court for the District of North Dakota. Address: Fargo, N. Dak.

AMORY, Robert:

Retired physician; born in Boston, May 3, 1842. He was graduated from Harvard University, A.M. in 1863, and continuing his studies at the Harvard Medical School, took the degree of M.D. after a course of three years. In his studies and researches Dr. Amory has given special attention to physiology and the physiological action of medicines and has written and taught much on these subjects. In 1869 he became lecturer at the Medical School of Harvard University on the physiological action of drugs, and some years later was called to the chair of physiology at Bowdoin College. He translated as a text-book, Küss Physiology and is author of several treatises on the action of certain drugs and a volume on Poisons in Wharton and Stille's series of Medical Jurisprudence. He is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the Massachusetts Medical Society, and various other local and national medical associations. Dr. Amory is a director of the Bar Harbor Water Company, the Ipswich Mills, the Mount Desert Transit Company of Bar Harbor, Maine (of which he is secretary and clerk). He is a vestryman of Trinity Church, Boston, president and trustee of the Vincent Memorial Hospital, director of the Young Men's Christian Association of Boston; president of the Kebo Valley Club, at Bar Harbor; director of the Property Owners' Association of Bar Harbor, director and secretary of Mount Desert Transit Company. He is also a member of the Somerset Club, Country Club of Brookline, Eastern Yacht Club, and the Boston Athletic Club. Dr. Amory married in Boston, May 8, 1864, Marianne Appleton Lawrence, by whom he has a daughter. He again married in Sept., 1884, Katherine Leighton Crehore, and they have four children. Summer Home: The Eyrie, Bar Harbor, Me. Address: 279 Beacon Street, Boston.

ANDERSON, Albert Barnes:

Judge of the United States District Court for the District of Indiana; born near Zionsville, Boone County, Ind., Feb. 10, 1857; son of Philander Anderson and Emma A. (Duzan) Anderson. He was graduated from Wabash College as A.B. in 1879 and afterward A.M.; studied law and was admitted to the bar at Crawfordville, Ind., where he was elected for two terms as prosecuting attorney of Montgomery County, Ind. He had the LL.D. degree conferred by Wabash College in 1907. He was appointed United States district judge Dec. 8, 1902. He married at Crawfordville, Ind., Nov. 14, 1882, Rose Campbell. Residence: 1325 North Penn Street. Office: Federal Building, Indianapolis, Ind.

ANDERSON, Alexander Pierce:

Botanist; born in Red Wing, Minn., Nov. 22, 1862; son of John and Britta M. (Gustafson) Anderson. He was graduated from the University of Minnesota as B.S. in 1894, received its degree of M.S. in 1895, and that of Ph.D. from the University of Munich, 1897, where he pursued post-graduate studies in biology and chemistry. He was connected with Clemson College, S. C., 1896-1899, and became assistant professor of botany in the University of Minnesota in the following year. In 1901 he was appointed curator of the herbarium of Columbia University, which position he resigned in 1902 and took up the study of the economic uses of cereal grains and starch materials. Several American and foreign patents for improvement in processes of treating these commodities have been granted him. He is a contributor to American and foreign biological journals and a member of American and foreign scientific associations. He married at Highlands, N. C., Aug. 11, 1898, Lydia Johnson. Address: 5463 Washington, Avenue, Chicago.

ANDERSON, Carl Carey:

Manufacturer and congressman; born at Bluffton, Allen County, Ohio, Dec. 2, 1877; removed in early boyhood to Fremont, Ohio, where he took a partial high school course. Went to work early in life, and engaged successfully as a business man. He established in 1904 a large underwear factory at Fostoria, Ohio, of which he is still owner, and he is a director in several manufacturing enterprises. He has had a successful political career as a Democrat, was twice elected mayor of Fostoria, Ohio, and in 1908 was elected to the Sixty-first Congress from the Thirteenth Ohio District. He is president of the Board of Trade of Fostoria, president of the City Hospital Board, and a member of various fraternal orders. He married in Sept., 1904, Nellie Ford of Fremont, and has a son. Address: Fostoria, Ohio.

ANDERSON, Charles Palmerston:

Bishop of Chicago; born in Kemptville, Ont., Can.; son of Henry and Maria (Sexton) Anderson. He was educated at Trinity College, Port Hope, Ont., and Trinity College, Toronto, and he received the degree of D.D. from Trinity College, Toronto, in 1900, and S.T.D. from the Western Theological Seminary at Chicago. He was ordered deacon in the Church of England in 1887, and the following year was ordained to the priesthood by the bishop of Ontario. He was rector of the church at Beachburg, Ont., 1887-1891, and rector of Grace Episcopal Church, Oak Park, Ill., 1891-1900. In the latter year he became bishop-coadjutor of Chicago, Ill. He became bishop of Chicago upon the death of Bishop McLaren in 1905. Bishop Anderson married at Belleville, Ont., in 1889, Janet Glass, and they have five children. He is author of: Confirmation, 1898, and The Christian Ministry, 1902. Address: 1612 Prairie Avenue, Chicago.

ANDERSON, Edwin Hatfield:

Librarian; born at Zionsville, Ind., Sept. 27, 1861; son of Philander and Emma A. (Duzan) Anderson. He was graduated from Wabash College as A.B. in 1883, later receiving the degree of A.M., and he spent a year at the N. Y. State Library School, Albany, N. Y., in 1890-1891. After work at the Newberry Library, Chicago, and as librarian of the Carnegie Free Library at Braddock, Pa., he organized and was the first librarian of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, Pa., from 1895 until he resigned in Dec., 1904. He was engaged in zinc and lead mining at Carthage, Mo., during 1905; director of the New York State Library and Library School, 1906-1908, resigning June 1, 1908, to take his present appointment as assistant director of the New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations. He was president of the Keystone State Library Association, 1901-1902; was member of the Public Records Commission of Pennsylvania and of the Historical Archives Commission of Pennsylvania, 1903-1904; and was first vice-president of the American Library Association, 1899-1900 and 1906-1907; and president of the New York Library Association, 1907-1908. Mr. Anderson married at Glencoe, Ill., Dec. 22, 1891, Frances R. Plummer. Residence: 240 West 104th Street. Office: 425 Lafayette Street, New York City.

ANDERSON, John:

Publisher of the Skandinaven, the leading Norwegian paper of the United States. Mr. Anderson was born in Voss, Norway, in 1836, but was brought to the United States by his parents when he was eight years old. His family settled in Chicago, and at the age of twelve, owing to the death of his father, Mr. Anderson became the chief breadwinner of the family. He learned the printer's trade and in 1866 established the Skandinaven. The great fire in Chicago destroyed his entire property, but he re-established the paper on borrowed money, and has achieved not only a great financial success, but a leading position in the estimation of his fellow countrymen of the same nativity as himself. His paper, which is issued in daily, Sunday and semi-weekly editions, circulates through the Scandinavian population of the Northwestern States. Residence: 646 Cleveland Avenue, Chicago.

ANDERSON, Thomas H.:

Associate justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia; born in Belmont County, Ohio, June 6, 1848; son of John and Amelia (Dallas) Anderson. He was educated at Mt. Union College, Ohio, and after leaving that institution, taught in public schools; became principal of the Cambridge, Ohio, High School, until he was admitted to the bar in 1871, and practised law there until 1889, when he was appointed minister resident and consul-general to Bolivia, his mission being later advanced to the rank of envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary. He completed his term of service in Bolivia in 1893, and returned to the United States, beginning the practice of law in Washington. During his residence in Bolivia, he published a volume of information on that country, and prepared a very large number of reports and papers of its characteristics and resources. In 1899, Judge Anderson was appointed United States district attorney for the District of Columbia, and served for two years, or until his appointment to his present position as associate justice of the Supreme Court of the District. He married at Addison, Pa., Oct., 1879, Laura B. Augustine. Address: 1531 New Hampshire Avenue, Washington, D. C.

ANDERSON, Thomas McArthur:

Army officer and land owner; born in Chillicothe, Ohio, Jan. 31, 1836; son of William Marshall and Eliza (McArthur) Anderson; and descendant in the sixth generation of Robert Anderson, of New Kent County, Virginia. He attended the Chillicothe Academy, was graduated from Mount St. Mary's College, Maryland (from which he afterward received the degree of LL.D.), was graduated from Cincinnati Law School, LL.B., 1858, and practised law until 1861. He was mustered in as private in the 6th Ohio Volunteer Infantry, April 20, 1861; was commissioned second lieutenant 5th U.

S. Cavalry, May 7, 1861; captain 12th U. S. Infantry, May 14, 1861, and subsequently served in all the grades of military service to brigadier-general U. S. A., and was a major general of Volunteers in the Spanish-American War, retiring from active service by limitation of law, Jan. 31, 1900. After serving in one campaign in the Cavalry, he raised his own company of the Twelfth Infantry. After the battle of Cedar Mountain, he served as acting field officer in the 5th Corps of the Army of the Potomac, and was in nearly all the battles of that corps. He was twice wounded and twice brevetted; assisted in organizing the Invalid Corps under the provost-marshal general; was commissary of musters of the Department of the Ohio, 1865; mustered out the Andersonville prisoners at Camp Chase, Ohio. He served as Reconstruction officer and commissioner of registration in Virginia, 1867-1868; commanded posts at Petersburg, Yorktown and Williamsburg, Va.; McIntosh, Ringgold Barracks, and Fort McKavett, Texas; Columbus Barracks, Ohio; McKenny, Bridger and D. A. Russell, Wyoming; commanded the first expedition to Cavite, Luzon, and commanded the post there; also commanded the District of Lynn Canal, Alaska, Department of Columbia and the Department of the East. In the Philippines he was in command of the 1st and 2d Divisions, 8th Army Corps, and of the Island of Luzon, South of the Pasig River. He was in administrative charge of the Virginia Asylum for the Insane at Williamsburg, 1868; was admitted to the Texas Bar, 1869; was attorney for the United States Government in Mexican claims under the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, Texas, 1872-1873; and was in administrative charge of the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Home, 1891-1894. He was vice-president and director of the Commercial Bank of Vancouver, Wash., 1889-1895. He is a member of the Cincinnati Literary Society, of societies in Sandusky, Ohio, and Portland, Ore., and of the National Geographic Society, a comrade of the Grand Army of the Republic, companion of the Oregon Commandery Military Order of the Loyal Legion, compatriot of the Sons of the American Revolution, a 33d-degree Scottish Rite Mason, honorary member of the Society of Foreign Wars and the Society of the War of 1812, member of the Arlington and Commercial Clubs of Portland, Ore., Columbus Club, Columbus, Ohio, and Union League Club, Philadelphia. He married in Richmond, Va., Feb. 8, 1869, Elizabeth Van Winkle, and they have had six children. Residence: Vancouver, Wash., R. F. D. 1. Office: 717 Board of Trade, Portland, Ore.

ANDERSON, William Franklin:

Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church; born in Morgantown, Va., April 22, 1860; son of William and Elizabeth (Coombs) Anderson. He was graduated from the Ohio Wesleyan University with degree of A.B., in 1884, and from Drew Theological Seminary, as B.D. in 1887. He took a post-graduate course in philosophy at the New York University from 1895 to 1899, and received the degree of D.D. from Wesleyan University (Connecticut), in 1902, and of LL.D. from Ohio Wesleyan University and from the Upper Iowa University in 1907. Dr. Anderson entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal church in 1887, and has been pastor of important churches in New York City and State. He was an officer of the Board of Education of the M. E. Church from 1898, having been recording secretary until 1904, and corresponding secretary from 1904 until elected by the General Conference at Baltimore, May, 1908, and consecrated a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church. Bishop Anderson has written extensively for the religious press, including the Outlook. He edited the publication, The Christian Student, until elected bishop, and is author of a book: The Compulsion of Love. Dr. Anderson married at Cincinnati, Ohio, June 9, 1887, Jennie Ketcham. Address: Fort Wood, Chattanooga, Tenn.

ANDREWS, Alexander Boyd:

Railway official; born in Franklin County, N. C., July 23, 1841. He entered the Confederate States Army in June, 1861, and was second lieutenant in the First North Carolina Cavalry; and he was wounded at Jack's Shop, Va., in Sept., 1863. He began his railway career with the Blue Ridge Railroad in 1859. After the close of the war, he leased, equipped and operated a railway ferry at Gaston, N. C., until July, 1867, when he became superintendent of the Raleigh and Gaston and Raleigh and Augusta Railroads until Nov., 1875, then superintendent until 1883 of the North Carolina Division of the Richmond and Danville Railroad. In 1881 he was elected president of the Western North Carolina Railroad, which he completed. He was also superintendent of the Atlantic and North Carolina Railroad from 1878 to 1880. From 1883 to 1886 he was assistant to the president of the Richmond and Danville Railroad; was third vice-president from 1886 to 1889, second vice-president from 1889 to 1894, and from July, 1892 to July, 1894, also general agent of the receivers of the same road. He became second vice-president June 30, 1894, and Oct. 1, 1895, became first vice-president of the Southern Railway in which position he continues; and he is also first vice-president of the Mobile and Ohio, and Alabama Great Southern Railroads. Address: Raleigh, N. C.

ANDREWS, Champe Seabury:

Lawyer; born at Yazoo City, Miss., May 13, 1875; son of Colonel Garnett and Rosalie Champe (Beirne) Andrews. His father was a distinguished member of the Mississippi Bar and author of Andrews' Mississippi Digest, and his grandfather, Judge Garnett Andrews, was a justice of the Supreme Court of Georgia. His maternal great-grandfather, Andrew O'Beirne of Virginia, represented the Greenbrier District for many years in the United States Congress. Mr. Andrews was graduated, with first honors and the B.S. degree, from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, in 1894, then studied law, and after admission to the bar practised with his father, at Chattanooga, Tenn., in the firm of Andrews and Andrews. In 1899 he settled in the practice of law in New York City. He is president and director of the A. B. Andrews Company, director of the Acme Box Company, and identified with other business interests. He has contributed frequently to the Forum, Cosmopolitan, Yale Law Journal, Journal of the American Medical Association, Medical News, New York Times, and other newspapers and magazines, largely on legal topics, and more particularly to the law in relation to physicians and surgeons, the unlawful practice of medicine, the dangers of quackery, and other topics related to public health; and has also written extensively on foreign travel, having made many visits to Europe and also having visited Japan and China. During his residence in the South, Mr. Andrews was actively in military service, having been certified to the War Department as first honor military graduate of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute in 1884; and he was captain of the Third Tennessee Infantry, U. S. Volunteers, 1898-1899, and was recommended for a commission in the regular army, but declined. He is now an officer in the 9th Coast Artillery, National Guard of New York. Mr. Andrews is a Democrat, and a member of the Law Committee of Tammany Hall. He was for eight years counsel to the Medical Society of the County of New York, and he first suggested the idea resulting in the formation of the Public Health Defense League and was the first chairman of its Board of Directors; also was the first secretary of the Committee of One Hundred on National Health, appointed by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, is a member of the Medical Jurisprudence Society, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and numerous local societies and lodges, member of council of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish War, past commander of the New York Department, Spanish War Veterans, vice-president of the Tennessee Society of New York, member of the Army and Navy Club of New York, and past president of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon Association. Residence: Hotel Royalton, 14 West 44th Street. Address: 34 West 15th Street, New York City.

ANDREWS, Charles Lee:

Stock broker; born in Baltimore, Md., Oct. 28, 1858; son of Richard Snowden and Mary C. (Lee) Andrews. He was graduated from the University of Virginia with the degree of M.A. in 1881. Mr. Andrews moved to New York City from Baltimore in 1884, and has been a member of the New York Stock Exchange since 1887, and he is now a member of the firm of De Coppet & Doremus. He enlisted in the First Battalion of New York Naval Militia in 1892, and rose to the rank of lieutenant, resigning in 1903. He was appointed ensign in the United States Navy in April, 1898, and served during the Spanish-American War on board the U. S. S. Yankee, receiving an honorable discharge in Sept., 1898, when the hostilities were over. Mr. Andrews is a member of the Southern Society of New York, the Maryland Society of New York, the Military Order of Foreign Wars, the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War, the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, and the Union, Army and Navy, and Manhasset Bay Yacht Clubs. Mr. Andrews married in Brooklyn, New York, in 1893, Edith Walden, and they have three children. Address: 42 Broadway, New York City.

ANDREWS, Clement Walker:

Librarian; born at Salem, Mass., Jan. 13, 1858; son of Joseph and Judith (Walker) Andrews. He was graduated from Harvard College, A.B., 1879, with honors in chemistry, and A.M., 1880. He was instructor in chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1883-1895; was librarian of that institution from 1889 to 1895, and since 1895 has been librarian of The John Crerar Library, at Chicago. Mr. Andrews was secretary of the Society of Arts of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and editor of the Technology Quarterly from 1893-1895. He is a member of the Society of Chemical Industry, American Chemical Society, Deutsche Chemische Gesellschaft, American Library Association, Illinois State Library Association and others, and was a trustee of the Ramabai Association about five years. He was councillor 1898-1908, and president for 1906-1907 of the American Library Association. Mr. Andrews is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, the Pi Eta Society and the Chicago Literary Club. He is a trustee of Unity Church, Chicago, a member of the University Club, Union Club, and Cliff Dwellers of Chicago and the Onwentsia Club at Lake Forest, Ill. Residence: Union Club. Office: The John Crerar Library, Chicago, Ill.

ANDREWS, Elisha Benjamin:

Educator, clergyman, author; born at Hinsdale, N. H., Jan. 10, 1844; son of Erastus Andrews. His preparatory education was interrupted by service in the Union Army, 1861-1864, attaining the rank of second lieutenant of U. S. Volunteers. He afterwards entered Brown University, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1870, and received the degree of A.M. and D.D., 1900, and the D.D. degree was also conferred upon him by Colby University in 1884, and that of LL.D. by the University of Nebraska in 1884, and by the University of Chicago in 1901. After service of two years as principal of the Connecticut Literary Institute at Suffield, Conn., he entered the Newton, (Mass.) Theological Institution, and on his graduation there in 1874 was ordained in the ministry of the Baptist Church, becoming pastor of the First Baptist Church of Beverly, Mass. In 1875 he was called to the presidency of Denison University, and served in that capacity until 1879, after which he was for three years professor of homiletics and pastoral theology at Newton Theological Institution. In 1882 and 1883 he pursued graduate studies in history and economics in the Universities of Berlin and Munich and from 1882-1888 was professor of history in Brown University; professor of economics and public finance in Cornell University, 1888-1889, and from 1889 to 1898 was president and professor of moral and intellectual philosophy in Brown University. He was superintendent of schools of Chicago, Ill., 1898-1900, and chancellor of the University of Nebraska from 1900 to the end of 1908, when he became chancellor emeritus. Dr. Andrews was a U. S. Commissioner to the International Monetary Conference at Brussels in 1892; is a member of the American Economic Association, the New England Historical-Genealogical Society, the Rhode Island Historical Society, and the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. He is author of numerous theological and historical works, among which is a five-volume history of the United States, as well as a work on bimetalism in which he expressed views on the subject of the use of silver as money which brought him into national attention owing to the controversy which they aroused. His fearless course while superintendent of schools of Chicago also brought him prominently into public notice. Chancellor Andrews has gained distinction as a progressive educator and able executive whose administration of university affairs has been eminently successful. Address: University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb.

ANDREWS, Eliza Frances:

Author, botanist, lecturer; born in Washington, Ga., Aug. 10, 1840; and is of Revolutionary ancestry through all four of her grandparents, her parents being Judge Garnett and Annulet (Ball) Andrews. Her brother, the late Col. Garnett Andrews, was a Confederate officer of distinction and formerly mayor of Chattanooga, Tenn. Miss Andrews was graduated from La Grange College, Georgia, and has had an interesting career as educator, author, lecturer and a warm advocate of socialism. She has always devoted her leisure to the study of botany, with the result that her book Botany All the Year Around has become a text book in schools in all parts of the country and has had an international circulation. Her earlier novels: A Family Secret; A Mere Adventurer; and Prince Hall, were published by the Lippincott Company of Philadelphia, and two: The Mistake of his life, and How He Was Tempted, have appeared as serials. She is also author of humorous sketches, short stories, and political and scientific papers; of A Memorial Day Ode, Haunted, and other poems; and her most important work is The Wartime Journal of a Georgia Girl, 1908 (Appleton). Address: 310 Mildred Street, Montgomery, Ala.

ANDREWS, George:

Colonel and adjutant-general, U. S. A.; born in Providence, R. I., Aug. 26, 1850; son of Brigadier-General George Lippitt Andrews, U. S. A., and Alice Beverly (Potter) Andrews. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy in the class of 1876; served as lieutenant and captain 25th U. S. Infantry, 1876-1898; promoted major and adjutant-general, Feb. 26, 1898; lieutenant-colonel, Feb. 2, 1901 colonel, Aug. 7, 1903. He was adjutant-general, Department of the Missouri, of the 4th Independent Division, and of the Department of the East, 1898-1899, of the Department of Santiago, Cuba, 1899-1900, Department of California, 1902-1904, of the Pacific Division to 1905, the Philippines Division, 1907, the Department of the Colorado, 1908-1909, and the Department of the Lakes, 1909. Colonel Andrews is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion (2d class), Sons of the American Revolution, Union Club of Cleveland, Ohio; Denver and Denver Country Clubs, Denver, and the Army and Navy Club of Manila. Address: Army Headquarters, Chicago, Ill.

ANDREWS, Lorrin:

Attorney-general of Hawaii; born, Staten Island, N. Y., July 29, 1870; son of William and Adele M. (Osceanyan) Andrews. Mr. Andrews is a graduate of New York University and of the law school of that institution. After practising law in New York, where he was also prominent in Republican politics, he removed to the Hawaiian Islands, being admitted to the Hawaiian Bar in 1899. He occupied a prominent position in politics and in the affairs of the island during his life there previous to 1903 when he was elected attorney-general of Hawaii, in which position he is still serving. Mr. Andrews, in addition to his membership in the New York and Hawaiian bars, is a member of the bar at Shanghai, China, and of the Supreme court of the United States. In 1901 he was the governmental delegate from Hawaii to the Universal Congress of Lawyers and jurists at St. Louis. He married Estelle Linwood in 1893. Address: Honolulu, T. H.

ANDREWS, William H.:

Delegate to Congress; born in Youngs-ville, Pa., Jan. 14, 1842. At an early age Mr. Andrews became a prominent figure in the Republican party in Pennsylvania. In 1889-1890 he was chairman of the Republican State Committee, and during his residence in Pennsylvania took an active part in all of the Republican campaigns. He served in the House of Representatives of the Legislature of Pennsylvania from 1889 to 1890 and from 1901 to 1902, and was a member of the State Senate from 1895 to 1898. In 1902 he removed to New Mexico and the following year was elected a member of the Territorial Council. In 1904 he was elected delegate to Congress, where he took a prominent part in the movement for the admission of New Mexico as a State, and was reelected delegate to the Sixtieth Congress in 1906. He has large farming and mercantile interests in New Mexico, and is president of the Santa Fe Central Railway Company, and connected with other large New Mexico enterprises. Address: Albuquerque, N. M.

ANDREWS, William Loring:

Merchant, author; born in New York City, Sept. 9, 1837; son of Loring and Caroline C. (Delmater) Andrews. He was educated in private schools and engaged in business in New York until 1877, when he retired from active business. Yale University conferred upon Mr. Andrews the honorary degree of M.A. in 1893. He is a trustee of the Bank for Savings, director of the Continental Insurance Company and was formerly for eleven years one of the managers of the House of Refuge, on Randall's Island. Mr. Andrews is a trustee, a member of the executive committee and honorary librarian of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; member of the council of New York University; honorary member of the Eleventh Army Corps Association; member of the National Academy of Design, New York Historical Society, American Geographical Society, New York Chamber of Commerce. He was founder and president of the Society of Iconophiles of New York. Mr. Andrews is author of several books, among them; New Amsterdam, New Orange, N. Y.; Old Booksellers of New York; Fragments of American History; Prospectus of Colleges in Cambridge; Sexto Decemos et Infra; A Trio of French Engravers; Portraiture of the American Revolutionary War; James Lyne's Survey; Gossip About Book Collecting; Paul Revere and his Engraving; Castle Garden; Bibliopegy in the United States; Treatise of Fysshine Wyth an Angle, from the Book of St. Albans; Historical Sketch of the Continental Fire Insurance Company of the City of New York; New York as Washington Knew It After the Revolution; An English XVIII Century Sportsman; Bibliopole and Binder of Angling Books. Mr. Andrews is a member of the Century Association, was one of the founders, the second president and still a member and one of the council of the Grolier Club; member of the Union League Club of New York and the Savile Club of London. Mr. Andrews married in New York City, Oct. 17, 1860, Jane Elizabeth, daughter of Theodore Crane. Address: 16 East 38th Street, New York City, and The Pepperidges, West Islip, L. I., N. Y.

ANDREWS, William Shankland:

Jurist; born in Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 25, 1858; son of Charles and Marcia (Shankland) Andrews. He was graduated from Harvard, A.B., 1880, and from the Law School of Columbia College, LL.B., 1882. He practised law in Syracuse, N. Y., until elected, in 1899, a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the term expiring Dec. 13, 1913. Address: 404 Oak Street, Syracuse, N. Y.

ANDRUS, John Emory:

Congressman, manufacturer; born at Pleasantville, Westchester County, N. Y., Feb. 16, 1841; son of Loyal B. Andrus and Ann (Palmer) Andrus. He was educated at Wesleyan University, at Middletown, Conn., from which he was graduated as A. B. in 1862. He taught school in New Jersey four years; engaged as a manufacturer of medicinal preparations, and is president of the Palisade Manufacturing Company, treasurer of the Arlington Chemical Company and president of the New York Pharmaceutical Association. He was elected mayor of Yonkers, in 1903, and to the Fifty-ninth Congress in 1904, as a Republican from the Nineteenth New York District and reelected in 1906 and 1908 to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses. He is a trustee of Wesleyan University. He married at Yonkers, N. Y., June 23, 1869, Julia M. Dyckman. Address: Yonkers, N. Y.

ANGELL, James Burrill:

President of the University of Michigan; born at Scituate, R. I., Jan. 7, 1829; son of Andrew Aldrich and Amy (Aldrich) Angell. He was graduated from Brown University as A.B., with Phi Beta Kappa honors, in 1849, following his graduation with travel and study in Europe. He was professor of modern languages in Brown University, 1853-1860, editor of the Providence Journal, Providence, R. I., 1860-1866, president of the University of Vermont, 1866-1871, president of the University of Michigan since 1871. He has received the honorary degree of LL.D. from Brown University, Columbia University, Rutgers College, Princeton University, Yale University, Johns Hopkins University, the University of Wisconsin, Harvard University, University of Vermont, and Michigan Agricultural College. President Angell, in addition to his services to education has also taken an important part in American diplomacy, having served as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to China, 1880-1881, and to the Ottoman Empire, 1897-1898. He was a member of the International Commission of the United States and Great Britain on Fisheries Questions in 1887-1888, and chairman of the International Commission of the United States and Canada on Deep Waterways in 1895-1896. He is a regent of the Smithsonian Institution, a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, the American Philosophical Society, American Antiquarian Association, American Historical Association, and American Society of International Law. He married in Providence, R. I., Nov. 26, 1855, Sarah Swope Caswell, daughter of Alexis Caswell, D.D., LL.D., for many years professor and president of Brown University. They have three adult children. Address: Ann Arbor, Mich.

ANGELL, James Rowland:

Professor of psychology; born in Burlington, Vt., May 8, 1869, son of James Burrill Angell, LL.D., president of the University of Michigan since 1871, and Sarah Swope (Caswell) Angell, daughter of Alexis Caswell, D.D., LL.D., for many years professor and at one time president of Brown University. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, A.B., 1890, A.M., 1891; took post-graduate work at Harvard, receiving the degree of A.M. in 1892, and at the Universities of Berlin and Halle in 1893. He was instructor in philosophy in the University of Minnesota, 1894, and since 1895 has been of the faculty of the University of Chicago, where he was assistant professor of experimental psychology, 1895-1901, associate professor, 1901-1904, and professor and head of the Department of Psychology since 1904. He became dean of the Senior Colleges in 1908. Professor Angell was lecturer on psychology in the University of California in 1903, and in Wellesley College in 1904. He is a member and ex-president of the American Psychological Association, and a member and former vice-president of the Western Philosophical Association, and a member of the Scientific Society of the Sigma Xi. He has made extensive researches in experimental psychology, and has contributed extensively to the literature of psychology and particularly in reference to the psychology of attention, the organic accompaniments of conscious processes, auditory localization, reaction-time, the effect of partial tones on the localization of sound, dermal space-perception and functional psychology. He is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Professor Angell married in Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 18, 1894, Marion Isabel Watrous, and they have two children. Address: University of Chicago, Chicago.

ANGLIN, Margaret Mary:

Actress; born in Ottawa, Canada, April 3, 1876; daughter of Hon. Timothy Warren

Anglin, speaker of the Dominion Parliament, and Ellen (McTavish) Allen. She was educated in Loretto Abbey, Toronto, and at the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Montreal. Having met with success as an amateur reader, she went to New York City, when she was seventeen years old, and became one of the first pupils in Nelson Wheatcroft's Empire School of Dramatic Art, and in the public performance on graduation in 1894 her acting made such a favorable impression on Mr. Charles Frohman that he engaged her for the part of "Madeline West" in Shenandoah, in which she made her professional debut at the Academy of Music in New York City in September, 1894. After a year on the road, Miss Anglin became leading lady with James O'Neill for the season of 1896-1897, playing "Ophelia" in Hamlet, "Virginia" in Virginian, "Julie de Mortemar" in Richelieu, and "Mercedes" in Monte Cristo. She was leading lady with E. H. Sothern, 1897-1898, with Richard Mansfield, 1898-1899, and in the Empire Theatre Stock Company, 1899 to 1905. The following year she starred in Zira, a dramatization of Wilkie Collins' novel, The New Magdalen, and afterward, jointly with Henry Miller, in The Great Divide. Address: Care of The Lyric Theatre, New York City.

ANKENY, Levy:

United States senator and banker; born near St. Joseph, Mo., Aug. 1, 1844. In the year 1850, with his parents, he crossed the plains to Oregon, where he attended the public schools of Portland. He afterward, with his father, Captain Ankeny, engaged in the transportation business to and from the mines. He was agent for the Wells-Fargo Company, and later engaged in the mercantile business at Lewiston, Idaho. He was the first mayor of Lewiston, the Government having deeded to him, as trustee, the public land on which that town was located. Later he moved to Walla Walla, Wash., and engaged in the banking business, being president of seven banks in Washington and Oregon. He became a candidate for the United States Senate in 1895, but was defeated, and was again defeated in 1899. He was selected as the member of the Republican National Committee from the State of Washington in 1904, and elected United States Senator from the State of Washington, Jan. 29, 1903, to succeed George Turner, Democrat, and took his seat, March 5, 1903, for the term expiring March 3, 1909. He married Oct. 2, 1867, Jennie Nesmith, daughter of the late Senator James W. Nesmith, of Oregon. Address: Walla Walla, Wash.

ANSBERRY, Timothy Thomas:

Member of Congress; born in Defiance, Ohio, Dec. 24, 1871; son of Edward and Elizabeth (Fitzpatrick) Ansberry. He was educated at the University of Notre Dame, of which he is LL.B. of 1893. He was admitted to the Ohio bar, and has since practised his profession at Defiance. In 1895 and again in 1899 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Defiance County, serving a two-year term in each case. In 1904 he was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Congress from the Fifth Ohio District, but was elected in 1906 to the Sixtieth Congress and reelected to the Sixty-first Congress in 1908. He married in Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 26, 1898, Nellie Kettering. Address: Defiance, Ohio.

ANSEL, Martin Frederick:

Governor of South Carolina; born in Charleston, S. C., Dec. 12, 1850; son of John J. and Frederika (Bowers) Ansel. After completing a common school education he studied law, and was admitted to the bar Nov., 1870, engaging in practice. He also became active in politics as a Democrat; was elected to the South Carolina Legislature, serving from 1882 to 1888, then became solicitor of the Eighth Judicial District of South Carolina for twelve years; was an unsuccessful candidate for governor of South Carolina in 1902, but in 1906 was elected to that office, and reelected in 1908 for the term expiring in January, 1911. Governor Ansel married first in February, 1878, Ophelia A. Speight, who died Dec. 25, 1895, and second, at Pickens, S. C., Aug. 24, 1898, Addie R. Harris (née Hollingsworth). Address: Columbia, S. C.

ANTHONY, Brayman William:

President of Adrian College; born in Leray, N. Y., Feb. 16, 1851; son of George W. and Mary L. (Locke) Anthony. He was graduated from Adrian College, Mich., Ph.B., 1880, and received the degree of D.D. from Kansas City University, Kansas, 1901. He was in the ministry of the Methodist Protestant Church from 1877 to 1904, was recording secretary of the Board of Ministerial Education of that church, 1896-1900, and member of the Methodist Protestant Board of Home Missions, 1900. Since 1904 he has been president of Adrian College. President Anthony was a member of the Tri-Church Council in Chicago, 1907. When he took charge of Adrian College, in 1904, the institution was greatly discouraged by a heavy debt, which had embarrassed it for many years. During his presidency the debt has been paid, the endowment increased, and the attendance more than doubled. He married at Red Creek, N. Y., Aug. 12, 1879, Frances DeLameter, and they have two children. Address: Adrian, Mich.

ANTHONY, Daniel Read:

Member of Congress; born in Leavenworth, Kan., Aug. 22, 1870; son of Col. Daniel Read Anthony, founder of the Leavenworth Times. He was educated at the Michigan Military Academy and the University of Michigan, of which he is an LL.B., 1891. He entered the newspaper business, and is now editor and manager of the Leavenworth Times. He has been postmaster of Leavenworth, and was mayor from 1903 to 1905. In 1907 he was elected as a Republican to the Sixtieth Congress and he was reelected in 1908. He married in Leavenworth, Kan., in 1897, Elizabeth Havens. Residence: Leavenworth, Kan.

APPLEBY, Thomas Henry Montague Villiers:

Superintendent of Indian Missions of the Protestant Episcopal Church; born in Regent's Park, London, England, Oct. 28, 1843; son of Thomas and Lady L. M. (Villiers) Appleby. He was educated at King's College, London; Exeter College, Oxon scholar to St. Augustine's College, Canterbury, England; A.M. 1866; studied in hospitals in London and received from the State Medical Board of the University of Minnesota, the degree of M.D., 1877; Seabury Divinity School, Minnesota, D.D. 1900; St. John's College, Maryland, LL.D. 1901. He was ordered deacon in 1865; priest, 1866; was rector at Clarksburg, Ontario, from 1866 to 1876; at Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, from 1876 to 1881; and at St. Vincent, Minn., 1881 to 1888. After coming to the United States he took up work among the Indians, and in 1877 was adopted into the Ojibway Tribe of Indians by the name of Shu-na-we-whah-doon (silver tongue). He was appointed first archdeacon of Minnesota in 1888, and was the first general archdeacon in the American church; archdeacon of North Dakota in 1898 and of Duluth in 1899. He was deputy to the General Convention from 1892 to 1898, and was appointed general superintendent of Indian missions in 1900. Dr. Appleby has taken an active interest in the civic affairs of the communities in which he has lived, and in 1884-1888 was probate and county judge. Residence: 1616 East Superior Street, Duluth, Minn.

APPLETON, Daniel:

Publisher; born in New York City, Feb. 21, 1852; son of John A. Appleton and grandson of Daniel Appleton, founder of D. Appleton & Company. He was educated in New York City and Karlsruhe, Germany, and entered Harvard, but did not continue the course, leaving in 1871 to enter business. He was a clerk in the publishing house of D. Appleton & Company until 1879, and since then has been member of the firm; and he is now vice-president of the company. He entered the Boston Cadet Corps in 1867, enlisted Oct. 31, 1871, as a private in Company F of the Seventh Regiment, National Guard of New York; was promoted captain in January, 1879, and elected colonel of the regiment July 18, 1889, since which date he has continued at the head of that famous military organization. Residence: Hotel Astor. Business address: 35 West 32d Street, New York City.

APPLETON, Francis Henry:

Born in Boston, Mass., June 17, 1847. General Appleton is one of the most public spirited and best known citizens of Massachusetts, and has for many years been prominent in the promotion of a large number of interests, principally those relating to agriculture. He was graduated from Harvard College with the degree of A.B. in 1869, and took up the study of scientific agriculture, being one of the earliest students and workers along the lines which have developed into the national and state agricultural departments and bureaus. He was curator of Bussy Institute from 1873 to 1875, and declined the secretaryship of the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture, although he has been for many years connected in official capacities with the leading agricultural and horticultural societies of Massachusetts. He has been president of the Essex County Agricultural Society; president of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and secretary of the Bay State Agricultural Society, and is now secretary of the old Massachusetts Society for the Promotion of Agriculture. He was also president of the New England Agricultural Society, and had a leading part in the promotion and management of some of the most successful agricultural expositions held in Massachusetts and New England. He has also been reporter on foreign agricultural matters, at Vienna, for the Massachusetts State Board, and was for many years a member of the Massachusetts Board of Agriculture, of the Board of Control of the Massachusetts Experiment Station, and a trustee of the Massachusetts Agricultural College. General Appleton is a prominent member of the Republican party of Massachusetts and has served two terms in each branch of the Legislature. He has, since 1887, taken an active interest in the Massachusetts volunteer militia, and in 1896 was appointed commissary general by Governor Wolcott, with the rank of brigadier-general; and he was retired with the rank of major-general. He is also prominent in affairs relating to patriotic societies, and was president-general of the Sons of the American Revolution in 1905-1906. Address: 251 Marlboro Street, Boston.

APPLETON, Francis Randall:

The leading figure in the watch-selling business of the United States, being a member of the firm which handled the product of the first successful American watch factory and made it possible for that success to be attained. He was born in New York City, Aug. 5, 1854; son of Daniel Fuller and Julia (Randall) Appleton. He was educated at Anthon Grammar School, at Phillips Andover Academy, at Harvard College, graduating as A.B. in 1875 and Columbia College, graduating with the degree of LL.B. in 1877. He practised law in New York until 1883, and in 1884 became a member of the firm of Robbins & Appleton, general agents of the Waltham Watch Company of Waltham, Mass. He is a director of The National Park Bank, the Mount Morris Bank and the Manhattan Trust Company, and is vice-president and director of the Waltham Watch Company, of Waltham, Mass. For thirteen years he was a staff officer of the First Brigade of the National Guard of the State of New York. He is a trustee of the General Memorial Hospital in New York, and a member of the Board of Overseers of Harvard College. Mr. Appleton married at Lenox, Mass., Oct. 7, 1884, Fanny Lanier, and they have five children. Residence: 26 East 37th Street, New York City, and Ipswich, Mass. Business address: 21 Maiden Lane, New York City.

APTHORP, William Foster:

Dramatic and musical critic; born in Boston, Oct. 24, 1848, and graduated from Harvard, 1869. He studied pianoforte, harmony, and counterpoint under J. K. Paine, and pianoforte under B. J. Lang. He taught in various musical colleges in Boston until 1884, and since 1872 has been writing dramatic and musical criticisms for the Atlantic Monthly and the Boston Sunday Courier, and since 1881 for the Boston Transcript. He was critical editor of Scribner's Encyclopedia of Music and Musicians, and besides a large number of papers on musical and dramatic matters, is author of: Hector Berlioz, Autobiography and Musical Grotesque; Musicians and Music Lovers; Jacques Damour and Other Stories. (translated from Zola); By the Way; and The Opera, Past and Present. Mr. Apthorp married in 1876, Octavie Loir Lasagi. Residence: 14 Otis Place. Office: 324 Washington Street, Boston.

ARBUCKLE, John:

Head of the coffee interests of the well-known Arbuckle Bros. Mr. Arbuckle was born in Allegheny, Pa., and in 1871 removed with his brother Charles, now deceased, to New York City, where they established the firm of Arbuckle Bros. They were pioneers in the practice of roasting coffee to be put up in packages for sale under an extensively advertised name to consumers, their business intended to take the place of the very large trade in ready-ground coffee, which had been highly adulterated during the high price of coffee during the Civil War, and also to take the place of the domestic practice of roasting and grinding coffee. The firm came to be the largest concern in the country in its line, and eventually came into competition with large sugar refineries, owing to the advantage offered by their system for the marketing of sugar products in connection with their own goods. A bitter warfare was carried on for a number of years and ended in an adjustment which was in the nature of a compromise. Mr. Arbuckle is the head of the great firm which was thus built up and is a director of the Importers' and Traders' Bank and Kings County Trust Co. He is president of the Royal Horse Association, which owns large ranches in Wyoming and other states. Mr. Arbuckle maintains a fresh-air home for children on Lake Mohonk, N. Y. He married at Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1868, Mary Alice Kerr, who died June 24, 1907. Residence: 315 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Office: 71 Water Street, New York City.

ARCHBALD, Robert Wodrow:

United States district judge; born at Carbondale, Pa., Sept. 10, 1848; son of James Archbald and of Augusta T. (Frothingham) Archbald, daughter of Major

Thomas Frothingham, of the Continental Army. He entered Yale College, where he was graduated in 1871, as A.B., and Dickinson College conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. in 1908. For two years he read law in the office of Hand & Post, of Scranton, Pa., and was admitted to the bar of Pennsylvania, Sept. 23, 1873. After practising law at Scranton for eleven years he was elected in 1884 additional law judge of the Forty-fifth District of Pennsylvania. He became president-judge Aug. 1, 1888, and was reelected in Nov., 1894, for a second term of ten years. On April 1, 1901, he was appointed by President McKinley United States district judge for the newly-formed Middle District of Pennsylvania. He is of Scotch descent through his father who was born on the little Cumberley Isle off the west coast of Scotland and derives his given name from Rev. Robert Wodrow, an ancestor, who was a prominent Presbyterian divine, the author of The Sufferings of the Church of Scotland. Among the societies to which he belongs are the St. Andrew's Society of Philadelphia, the Scroll and Key Society of Yale and the Psi Upsilon fraternity. Judge Archibald married at Oxford, N. Y., Jan. 21, 1875, Elizabeth Baldwin Cannon and has three children. Residence: 236 Monroe Avenue, Scranton. Address: Post Office Building, Scranton, Pa.

ARCHBOLD, John Dustin:

Vice-president of the Standard Oil Company; born at Leesburg, Highland County, Ohio, July 26, 1848. He was educated in the schools of Ohio and in 1864 he went to the Pennsylvania oil regions, remaining there until 1875, and becoming president of the Aene Oil Company. In 1875 he became a resident of Syracuse, N. Y., and he has been a director since 1875 and is now vice-president of the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Archibald is president of the board of trustees of Syracuse University and a director of the Post-Graduate Hospital and Training School. He is a member of the American Geological Society and the American Museum of Natural History. He has for years been the active force in the administrative details of the Standard Oil Company and has especially come into notice with reference to various legislative and legal proceedings in which the spokesman for the company has most often been Mr. Archibald. He has been identified with various philanthropies and gave the new building at 454 West 42d Street, New York City, to the New York Kindergarten Association as a memorial to his daughter, Mrs. Frances Dana Archibald Walcott. Mr. Archibald married Annie M. Mills. Residence: Tarrytown-on-Hudson, N. Y. Office: 26 Broadway, New York City.

ARCHIBALD, James F. J.:

War correspondent; born in Chautauqua, N. Y., Sept. 22, 1872; son of Dr. F. A. and Martha W. (Jewell) Archibald. He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University in 1888, and since that time has had personal experience in most of the armed contests throughout the world. He served in the Chinese-Japanese War, and was with General Miles through the Sioux campaign and in the last Apache campaign. Mr. Archibald accompanied the first scouting expedition that landed in Cuba about a month before the Santiago expedition, and was wounded at that time. He was a volunteer aide-de-camp in the Fifth Army Corps in the Santiago campaign, and was in the Soudan in 1899, and with the Boer Army during the South African war until the occupation of Pretoria, having been wounded in the battle of Pretoria. He also witnessed the last three campaigns in Venezuela and in the Philippines; in the Russian-Japanese War was with the Russian Army as correspondent of an illustrated weekly; and was with the French forces in Northern Africa, 1908. Mr. Archibald has received a number of orders from various nations, and is a member of several societies of the wars of the United States, an honorary member of the American Red Cross, and of the Red Cross of Japan and of Spain; and is a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England. He is the author of a large number of articles on military subjects, and of the books, Blue

Shirt and Khaki, and Tales from the Trenches. Address: Army and Navy Club, Washington, D. C.

ARDEN, Edwin Hunter Pendleton:

Actor; born in St. Louis, Feb. 13, 1864. He left his native place for the Western States in 1881, and after a series of experiences in different lines of activity, went on the stage in 1882. For nine years he was a star playing in Eagle's Nest and other dramas, dealing with the romantic aspects of Western life, the plays being, in whole or in part, of his own authorship. With the waning popularity of the Western drama, Mr. Arden entered into the general work of his profession, and has achieved a distinguished success as a skilful actor, especially on legitimate comedy lines. Owing to his long and varied experience, he is especially efficient in stock company work, with its trying demand upon the resources and versatility of the actors, and he is an especial and personal favorite in many of the large cities of the country. Address: 130 West 44th Street, New York City.

ARENS, Franz Xavier:

Composer; born at Neef, Rhenish Prussia, Oct. 28, 1856. He emigrated to the United States when he was ten years of age, but returned to Germany to study music, and graduated from the Royal Conservatory of Music in Dresden, in 1885. He returned to the United States to become conductor of the Cleveland, Ohio, Philharmonic Orchestra and Gesangverein and conducted the series of American Composers' Concerts in Berlin, Dresden, Hamburg, Leipzig and other cities in Europe, from 1890 to 1892, and the American Composers' Concerts at the Vienna International Musical and Theatrical Exhibition. Studied voice with Professor Julius Hey, Berlin, 1890-1892. He conducted a series of May festivals in Indianapolis, Ind., until 1897, when he removed to New York, and in 1898 was chosen conductor of the New York Manuscript Society concerts. In 1900 he founded the New York People's Symphony Concerts, and has since been the conductor of those popular series, and conducts the Arens Vocal Studio, New York City. He is a member of the Lambs' Club, the Manuscript Society and the American Music Society, and a director of the Young Men's Orchestra. He married at Canal Dover, Ohio, May 15, 1885, Emma Huegel. Address: 308 West 56th Street, New York City.

ARENTS, Albert:

Mining engineer and metallurgist; born in Clausthal, Germany, March 14, 1840. He was graduated from the School of Mines of his native place, and studied at the University of Berlin for two years. Mr. Arents came to the United States in 1865 under engagement to treat lead ores in Hampton County, Mass., but shortly afterwards removed to the West. He has since been prominently connected with the lead mining and smelting development of the Western States, and has introduced a large number of improvements in smelting practice, especially in Nevada, where he introduced the rectangular, large-sized lead furnaces which are the type now used by lead-smelters throughout the United States and also invented the modern "siphon tap" for lead blast furnaces. Mr. Arents is a member of the American Society of Mining Engineers. Address: 561 Railroad Avenue, Alameda, Calif.

ARMBRECHT, William Henry:

Lawyer; born in Port Chester, N. Y., Feb. 9, 1874. He was educated in the public schools of Knoxville, Tenn., and studied law under E. L. Russell, general counsel of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, at Mobile, Ala. After a few years' service as attorney for that railroad, he was appointed United States district attorney for Mobile in 1904, and from 1907 to 1908 he was in charge of the prosecution of the Honduras National Lottery, resulting in pleas of guilty of thirty-five defendants, and the assessment and collection, by the United States Government, of fines aggregating $280,000, the largest fine ever collected by the Federal Government. He was reappointed to his office as U. S. attorney in 1907. In 1902, Mr. Armbrecht was nominated by the Republican Party for attorney general of Alabama. He is a member of the firm of Inge and Armbrrecht, attorneys, Mobile, director, vice-president, and general counsel of the Meridian Light and Railway Company, Meridian, Miss., and director of the Southern Construction Company, Mobile, and the Miazza-Woods Building Co., Meridian, Miss. He is a member of the Tri-State Board of the Y. M. C. A., which comprises the States of Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. He is a 32d-degree Mason, an Elk, and a Knight of Pythias. Mr. Armbrrecht married at Mobile, Ala., Dec. 1, 1897, Anna B. Paterson, and they have four children. Residence: 1073 Government Street. Office: 106 to 107 City Bank Building, Mobile, Ala.

ARMOUR, Jonathan Ogden:

Merchant, capitalist; born in Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 11, 1863; son of the late Philip Danforth Armour and Melvina Belle (Ogden) Armour. He entered Yale, but left before completing the course because of the desire of his father that he should join him in business and relieve him of part of the executive burden. With that view he returned to Chicago and has ever since been engaged in the business of Armour and Company succeeding to the presidency of that company upon the death of his father in 1901. He is also director of the Armour Car Lines, Armour Grain Company, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, the Continental National Bank of Chicago, the Northwestern National Insurance Company of Milwaukee, Wis., the National Packing Company, Omaha Packing Company, Illinois Central Railroad Company, and of other corporations. Mr. Armour married, in New York City, Lolita Sheldon, and they have one daughter, Lolitia. Residence: 3724 Michigan Avenue. Office: Home Insurance Building, Chicago.

ARMOUR, M. Cochrane:

Merchant and manufacturer; born in Auburn N. Y., Jan. 11, 1851; son of John and Lillias (Cochrane) Armour. He was educated in the public schools and then became a clerk at Marshall, Mich., in the grain and milling business, and afterward, at the same place, was associated with his father in the grain and grocery business under the name of J. and M. C. Armour. He removed in 1876 to Chicago where he was for some years a department manager for the Adams and Westlake Company, and from there went to Cincinnati, where he was vice president and general manager of the Radford Pipe and Foundry Company, and became also a partner in the firm of Rogers, Brown and Company, leading pig iron merchants. Since 1895 he has again lived in Chicago, as resident partner of that firm in that important market. He is also director of the Chicago Short Line Railway; president and director of the Iroquois Iron Company; vice president and director of the Rogers Iron Mining Company, and a director of the Rogers-Brown Ore Company, and Chesebawney Ore Company. He is a member of the Union League Club of Chicago, the Country Club of Evanston, Illinois, and the Glen View Golf Club. He married at Hyde Park, Chicago, in June, 1888, Minnie T. Huggins, and they have four children. Residence: 1608 Ridge Avenue, Evanston, Ill. Office: Corn Exchange Bank Building, Chicago.

ARMSBY, Henry Prentiss:

Director of the Institute of Animal Nutrition of The Pennsylvania State College from 1907; born at Northbridge, Mass., Sept. 21, 1853; son of Lewis and Mary A. Armsby. He was educated at Worcester Polytechnic Institute, graduating with the degree of B.S. in 1871; Yale, graduating with the degree of Ph.D. in 1874, and did post-graduate work at Leipzig in 1876, and at Yale, receiving the degree of Ph.D. in 1879; also receiving from the University of Wisconsin the honorary degree of LL.D. in 1904. He was chemist and instructor in agricultural chemistry in several institutions and director of The Pennsylvania State College Agricultural Experiment Station 1887 to 1907, and dean of the School of Agriculture of the Pennsylvania State College, 1890 to 1902. He was chairman of the Committee on Coöperative Experiment Station Exhibits at the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893, and at the Paris Exposition, in 1900, also member of the Committee on Dairy Tests at the World's Columbian Exposition; and he has been expert in animal nutrition in the U. S. Department of Agriculture since 1898. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and member of the American Chemical Society, American Physiological Society, American Society of Biological Chemists, Society for the Promotion of Agricultural Science (president 1905 to 1907), and of the Association of American Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations (president 1898 to 1899). He is author of Manual of Cattle Feeding, 1880; Principles of Animal Nutrition, 1903; also of various scientific papers on the utilization of the potential energy of the food of domestic animals. Mr. Armsby married, Oct. 15, 1878, Lucy A. Harding. Address: State College, Centre County, Pa.

ARMSTRONG, Frank C.:

Member of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes. Mr. Armstrong was born at the Choctaw Agency, Indian Territory, in 1835; son of Frank W. and Annie M. (Millard) Armstrong. He was educated at Holy Cross College at Worcester, Mass., and in 1854, went to Texas. He was appointed lieutenant in the United States Dragoons for gallantry in a fight with Indians during a trip made across that State, and served until 1861, when he resigned and joined the Confederate Army. He had a distinguished service during the Civil War, attaining the rank of brigadier-general, C.S.A., and at its close, engaged in the overland mail service of Texas, until appointed United States Indian Inspector in 1885. He was assistant commissioner of Indian affairs from 1893 to 1895, and later appointed to his present position. Besides his work on the commission, he is interested in mining, etc., in Mexico. Address: 1912 Sunderland Place, Washington, D. C.

ARMSTRONG, Samuel Treat:

Physician; born at St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 2, 1859; son of David Hartley and Laura (Milligan) Armstrong. He was graduated from the St. Louis University, Ph.B., 1879, from the St. Louis Medical College (Medical Department of Washington University), M.D., 1879; and in 1886 the degree of Ph.D. was conferred upon him by St. Louis University. Dr. Armstrong served as assistant physician of the St. Louis City and Female Hospitals, 1879-1880, and then entered the U. S. Marine Hospital Service, serving at New Orleans, La., Key West, Fla., Memphis, Tenn., New York City, Cleveland, Ohio, then was in the United States Army General Hospital, Key West, Fla.; was chief sanitary inspector of the Fourth Corps, chief surgeon, Department of Puerto Principe, Cuba, of District of Negros, Department Visayas, and of the Third District, in Southern Luzon, Philippine Islands. He was commissioned as assistant surgeon U. S. Marine Hospital Service, Feb., 1881; promoted to passed assistant surgeon, U. S. Marine Hospital Service, March, 1884; resigned commission, July, 1890; then was major and brigade surgeon, U. S. Volunteers, 1898 and resigned June 30, 1901, coming to New York City and engaging in practice. He has attained distinction in his profession and especially as a hygienist and sanitarian. He is an honorary member of the Memphis (Tenn.) and New Rochelle (New York) Medical Societies, member of the New York Academy of Medicine, New York Historical Society, New York Geographical Society, New York Academy of Sciences, Metropolitan Museum of Art, American Museum of Natural History, New York Botanical Society, British Medical Association, Société Française d'Hygiène, etc. He is a companion of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War, and of the Order of Foreign Wars, and a member of the Army and Navy Club of New York. Dr. Armstrong married at New Orleans, Dec. 6, 1882, Alice, daughter of J. H. Cobin, and they have four children. Address: The Rockingham, 1744 Broadway, New York City.

ARNOLD, Bion Joseph:

Electrical engineer and inventor; born in Cazenovia, Mich., Aug. 14, 1861; son of

Joseph and Geraldine (Reynolds) Arnold. He was educated at the University of Nebraska, and Hillsdale (Mich.) College, graduating B.S., 1884, A.M., 1887, and M. Ph., 1889. He took post-graduate work at Cornell University in 1889 and in 1897 received the degree of E.E. from the University of Nebraska. In June, 1907, the Armour Institute of Chicago conferred upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science. He was consulting engineer with the General Electric Company at Chicago, 1889-1893, and since then has been in independent practice as consulting electrical engineer. He designed and built the power plant, and was consulting engineer for the Intramural Railway which operated at the World's Columbian Exposition, consulting engineer of the Chicago and Milwaukee Electric Railway, the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroad and Chicago Board of Trade; member of the commission which devised plans for the electrical operation of the New York Central trains in and out of New York City; consulting engineer of the City of Chicago on traction matters; consulting engineer to the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad on their electrification plans. He invented the direct connected power station system, using magnetic clutches, storage battery improvements, a magnetic clutch, and new devices and systems for electric traction, and was the first to put into operation the high tension transmitting rotary converter sub-station system for electric railways. He is a past president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and of the Western Society of Engineers; was vice-president and chairman of the Executive Committee of the International Electrical Congress of St. Louis in 1901, and represented the American Institute of Electrical Engineers at the Paris International Electrical Congress in 1900. He is president of the Arnold Company, and a director of the Elgin & Belvidere Electric Railway Company of Illinois. He is now chief engineer and chairman of the Board of Supervising Engineers in charge of reconstruction of the street railway systems of Chicago, upon which is to be spent $40,000,000, and consulting engineer to the Public Service Commission of the State of New York, First District; and he has acted in a similar capacity for the State Railway Commissioners of Wisconsin and for the City of Toronto. Mr. Arnold is a trustee of Hillsdale College, Mich. He married at Reading, Mich., Feb. 14, 1886, Carrie Estelle Berry, who died Feb. 1, 1907, leaving him three children. Addresses: 181 La Salle Street, Chicago; 314 Madison Avenue, New York City.

ARNOLD, Conway Hillyer:

Rear admiral, U. S. Navy; born in New York City, Nov. 14, 1848; son of Henry N. T. Arnold, commander U. S. N., and Cornelia Van Vleck (Sleight) Arnold. He entered the U. S. Naval Academy as midshipman Sept. 30, 1863, and was graduated in 1867. He went on a special cruise in the Minnesota, 1867-1868, and was promoted to ensign in 1868; master, 1870; lieutenant, 1871; lieutenant-commander, Jan. 10, 1892; commander, May 11, 1898; captain, Sept. 17, 1902; rear admiral, Jan. 30, 1908. He served in the Powhatan, Pacific Fleet, 1868-1870; flag-ship Severn, North Atlantic Station, as aide to Rear-Admiral Poor, 1870-1871; receiving ship Vermont, 1871; aide to Port-admiral Stringham, 1871-1872; Wasp, South Atlantic Station, 1872-1874; Naval Observatory, 1874-1875; Hartford, flagship of the North Atlantic Station 1875-1877; Powhatan, North Atlantic Station, flag lieutenant and secretary to Rear-Admiral Trenchard, 1877-1878; commanding the Wyandotte, Navy Yard, Washington, 1878-1881; Lancaster, European Station, secretary to Rear-Admiral Nicholson, 1881-1882; Miantonomah, special service, 1882-1883; Nipsic, South Atlantic Station, 1883-1886; Navy Yard, New York, 1886-1888; secretary to Rear-Admiral Gherardi, 1889-1893, in Galena, Kearsarge, Dolphin, Baltimore, Philadelphia; on Board of Inspection of Merchant Vessels, New York, 1893; aide to Rear-Admiral Gherardi, Navy Yard, New York, 1894; in charge of branch of the Hydrographic Office at New York, 1894-1896; executive officer of the battleship Massachusetts, 1896; commanding the Bancroft, European Station, 1897; lighthouse inspector, Sixth District, 1898, commanding the Fifth Coast Defense District; commanding the Glacier and Bennington, 1899-1901, Asiatic Station and Philippines; president of the Wireless Telegraphy Board, 1902-1903; member of the Examining and Retiring Board; commanding U. S. receiving ships, Puritan and Lancaster, Navy Yard, League Island, Pa.; general inspector of U. S. S. West Virginia; in command of the West Virginia, flagship of the Armored Cruiser Division, Atlantic Fleet, and flagship of the Pacific Fleet. President of the general court-martial at New York 1907; Naval War College; annual board of five admirals, 1908; president of the Naval Examining and Retiring Boards; appointed, Sept. 26, 1908, to command the Third Squadron of the Atlantic Fleet, flagship Dolphin, and later, the battleship Maine, and special service squadron. Rear-Admiral Arnold is holder of the naval Civil War and Philippine Campaign badges; is a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, the Society of the Cincinnati, Aztec Club of 1847, Military Order of the Carabas, the New York Yacht and the Army and Navy Clubs. He married in New York City, Nov. 17, 1870, Fanny, daughter of Engineer-in-chief William W. W. Wood, U. S. N., and they had two sons: Captain C. H. Arnold, Jr., U. S. Artillery, and William Wood Arnold (both now deceased). Address: Care Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

ARTHUR, Chester A.:

Capitalist; born New York City, July 25, 1864; son of Chester A. and Ellen Lewis (Herndon) Arthur. He was educated at Columbia and Princeton, class of 1885, B.A. He is a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity (Columbia), the Union, The Brook, and Raquet and Tennis Clubs of New York; Travelers' Club, Paris; El Paso and Country Clubs, Colorado Springs; Denver and Denver Country Clubs. He married at Vevey, Switzerland, May 8, 1900, Myra Townsend Fithian, and has a son, Chester A. Arthur, 3d. Address: Colorado Springs, Colo.

ARTHUR, Helen:

Lawyer; born in Lancaster, Wis., March 29, 1879; daughter of Lemuel John and Mary Emma (Ziegler) Arthur. Miss Arthur was prepared in the Evanston (Ill.) Township High School, graduating thence in 1897, studied in Northwestern University, class of 1901, and was graduated from New York University Law School as LL.B., 1901. She was admitted to the New York bar in 1902, and has since been practising law in New York City. Miss Arthur was director of the Research Department of the Woman's Municipal League, 1906-1907, is a member of the High School Sorority of Zeta Beta Psi, and of the University Sorority Alpha Omicron Pi, and is editor of "To Drama" official publication of the last named sorority. She is also dramatic editor of the National Magazine. Miss Arthur is co-author of the pamphlet issued during the city campaign of 1905, Why New York Women Stand Back of William Travers Jerome. She is a member of the woman's Trade Union League, Twelfth Night Club, Northwestern University Club, New York University Alumnae, New York State Child Labor Committee, and the Collegiate Equal Suffrage Association. Address: 220 Broadway, New York City.

ASAKAWA, Kwan-Ichi:

Educator and author; born in Nohomatsu, Japan, Dec. 20, 1873; son of Masazumi Asakawa and Uta Sugiura. He was graduated from Waseda University, Japan, 1895, Dartmouth College, B. L., 1899, Yale University, Ph.D., 1902, and attended the Imperial University at Tokyo, Japan, 1906-1907. Dr. Asakawa was lecturer on East Asiatic history at Dartmouth College, 1902-1906; professor in English, Waseda University, 1906-1907; and since then has been instructor in the history of Japanese civilization in Yale University, and curator of Japanese and Chinese collections in the Yale University Library. He is author of: The Early Institutional Life of Japan, 1903; The Russo-Japanese Conflict, 1904; Supplementary Chapters to Brinkley's "Japan," 1905; is editor of the volume on Japan in the History of Nations series, 1906; also writer of articles in various journals. Dr. Asakawa made book-collecting tours of Japan, 1906-1907, for the Library of Congress and the Yale University Library. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, the Asiatic Society of Japan, Tokyo, American Historical Association, American Oriental Society, and the Graduates Club of New Haven. He married in New York City, Oct. 12, 1905, Miriam Dingwall. Address: Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

ASHBROOK, William Albert:

Member of Congress; born in Johnstown, Ohio, July 1, 1867; son of William and Lucy (Pratt) Ashbrook. He entered the newspaper business at an early age and in 1885 became publishing editor of the Johnstown (Ohio) Independent. He is also prominent in the financial affairs of Johnstown and neighboring towns, being cashier of three banks in that section, and the directing officer of the local Building and Loan Association for many years. He was postmaster at Johnstown from 1893 to 1897, and a member of the 77th General Assembly of Ohio, and was elected in 1906 as a Democrat to the 60th Congress from the 17th Ohio district, and reelected in 1908 to the 61st Congress. Mr. Ashbrook has taken a prominent part in national organizations of newspaper workers, and he was secretary of the National Editorial Association of the United States, 1902-1906. He married in Johnstown, Ohio, Dec. 24, 1896, Jennie B. Willison. Address: Johnstown, Ohio.

ASHHURST, John:

Librarian; born in Philadelphia, Dec. 31, 1865, being the third in succession of his name. He was prepared for college at the Episcopal Academy of Philadelphia, and entered the class of 1887, of the University of Pennsylvania. He was connected with a number of college organizations, and was a member of the cast of the Acharnians of Aristophanes, and of the editorial staff of the University Magazine. Leaving the University during his senior year, he entered the service of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company; in 1891 joined the construction department of the Western Maryland Railroad, and afterward entered the works of the Maryland Steel Company. His work as a librarian began in 1895 in connection with the West Philadelphia branch of the Free Library of Philadelphia. In 1901 he was elected librarian of the Mercantile Library of Philadelphia, and quickly did much towards restoring this moribund institution to public favor. In 1904 he was elected assistant librarian of the Free Library of Philadelphia. He is a member of the American Library Association, Keystone State Library Association, Pennsylvania Library Club (president 1904-1905), Philobiblion Club (secretary since 1898), Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and University Club of Philadelphia. Address: 2000 De Lancey Place, Philadelphia.

ASHHURST, Richard Lewis:

Lawyer, postmaster; eldest son of John and Harriette (Eyre) Ashhurst and grandson of Manuel Eyre, all of Philadelphia. He was born at Naples, Italy, where his parents were sojourning, Feb. 5, 1838. He was graduated with the highest honors from the University of Pennsylvania, 1856, delivering the Greek salutatory oration; studied law with Hon. W. M. Meredith, and was admitted to the Philadelphia bar in June, 1859, and has been engaged in the practice of the law in that city since that time (except during his service in the United States Volunteers during the Civil War). He entered the Army of the Union as adjutant of the 150th Pennsylvania Volunteers, Aug. 11, 1862 and served in the Army of the Potomac until his honorable discharge for wounds received at Gettysburg, Sept. 5, 1863; he was brevetted captain for meritorious services at Chancellorsville and major of United States Volunteers for distinguished gallantry at Gettysburg. He is the author of a Biography of William Morris Meredith; Contemporary Evidences of Shakespeare's Identity, and other pamphlets and articles on Shakespearean and military subjects. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa, the American Philosophical Society, Pennsylvania Historical Society, Loyal Legion, Sons of the Revolution, Pennsylvania Bar Association; he is vice-dean of Shakespeare Society of Philadelphia and vice-president of the Philadelphia Law Association. He has always been a Republican in politics. Mr. Ashhurst was appointed, in Feb., 1906, by President Roosevelt, postmaster of Philadelphia, entering upon his duties as such March 1, 1906. He married, May 30, 1861, Sarah, daughter of Professor John Fries Frazer of the University of Pennsylvania. Residence, 321 South Eleventh Street. Office: 225 South Sixth Street, Philadelphia.

ASHLEY, Clarence Degrand:

Lawyer; born in Boston, July 4, 1851; son of Ossian D. Ashley and Harriett A. (Nash) Ashley. He was graduated from Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., in 1869, from Yale University, A.B., 1873; studied at the University of Berlin (Prussia), 1875-1876, was graduated from Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1880, and received from New York University the degrees of LL.M., 1895, and J.D., 1903, and the degree of LL.D. from Miami University, 1898. He was admitted to the New York Bar in 1880 and has been in active practice since. He is now senior member of the law firm of Keneson, Emley and Rubino. Mr. Ashley was professor of law at the Metropolis Law School, 1891-1895, and has been professor at the New York University, since 1895. He was vice-dean of the Law Faculty, 1895-1896, and has been dean of the Law Faculty, since 1896, in New York University, and non-resident lecturer of law in Bryn Mawr College, since 1899. Mr. Ashley married in Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 12, 1880, Isabella Heyward Ripley, and they have two daughters. Address: 32 Waverly Place, New York City.

ASHMEAD, William Harris:

Entomologist; born in Philadelphia, September 19, 1855, son of Captain Albert S. and Elizabeth (Graham) Ashmead. He started in life in the publishing house of the J. B. Lippincott Company in Philadelphia, but in 1876 went to Jacksonville, Fla., where he and his brother established a publishing house for an agricultural weekly, and also started a daily. While editing the Scientific Department of the weekly, he devoted himself to investigations of injurious insects, and became connected with the United States Department of Agriculture as a special field entomologist in 1887, and after a course of special studies in Berlin returned to the Department of Agriculture, with which he remained connected until July, 1897, when he was appointed assistant curator of the division of insects of the National Museum, a position which he now holds. He is specially known for his investigations into and writings on insects affecting the orange culture, and has also written a monograph on the North American Proctotryphidae. He has also contributed a large number of papers to entomological publications. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; corresponding member of the American Entomological Society of Philadelphia; vice-president of the Washington Biological Society; was president of the Cambridge Entomological Society; was vice-president of the Washington Academy of Sciences; is an honorary member of the Entomological Society of Ontario; and has been vice-president of the Association of Economic Entomologists. He married in 1878, Harriet Holmes of Jacksonville. Residence: 1807 Belmont Avenue. Official address: U. S. National Museum, Washington, D. C.

ASHMORE, Sidney Gillespie:

Professor of Latin; born in London, in 1852; son of Sidney and Maria Ellsworth (Phelps) Ashmore. He came to New York at the age of six years, and was a student from 1863-1868 in the schools of Charles d'Urban Morris (who was a fellow of Oriel College, Oxford, and afterward a professor at Johns Hopkins University). Mr. Ashmore was graduated from Columbia University, B.A., 1872, M.A., 1875, and received the honorary degree of LL.D. from Hobart College, 1887. He was instructor in Latin and Greek, Lehigh University, 1873-1876; instructor in Latin, Columbia University, 1876-1881, and is professor of Latin at Union University, since 1881. He spent nearly a year in Italy and Greece, 1895-

1896; studied at the University of Bonn, and has been much in England also. He is a member of the American Philological Association; the Archaeological Institute of America; the Classical Association of England; the New York Latin Club; the Classical Association of the Atlantic States, Phi Beta Kappa Society and Delta Phi fraternity. Mr. Ashmore is author of several college text books and other writings on classical subjects, including an edition of the comedies of Terence. Mr. Ashmore married Fanny Hart Vail, daughter of the late Samuel M. Vail of Troy, New York, and they have two children. Address: Schenectady, N. Y.

ASHMUN, George Coates:

Physician; born in Tallmadge, Ohio, Jan. 31, 1841; son of Russell Atwater and Marcia (Wright) Ashmun. He received his general education in the common schools and academy of Tallmadge, Ohio, and was graduated from the Medical Department of Western Reserve University, M.D., 1873. He was appointed United States examiner for pensions at Cleveland, Ohio, in Feb., 1873, and served in that capacity until June, 1886; and since March, 1873, he has been engaged in the practice of medicine at Cleveland. Dr. Ashmun has been professor of hygiene and preventive medicine in the Medical Department of Western Reserve University, since 1893; and was registrar of the Faculty, 1894-1908. He has also, since 1904, been lecturer on hygiene of the Case School of Applied Science. Dr. Ashmun was a member of the Board of Health of Cleveland, 1880, city health officer, 1881-1891; member of City Council, 1897-1898 and 1902-1903, and president of City Council 1902-1903; was elected secretary of the Ohio State Board of Health, 1888, but did not serve; and was a member of the Ohio State Commission for the investigation of State Hospitals for Tuberculosis. He has been for over twenty years a director of the Children's Fresh Air Camp of Cleveland, and is a member of the Academy of Medicine of Cleveland. He is a director of the East End Savings and Loan Company and of the Union Savings and Loan Company of Cleveland. Dr. Ashmun is a veteran of the Civil War, serving as musician in the Second Regiment, Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, Aug., 1861 to Sept., 1862, and as sergeant and lieutenant in "Union Light Guard" (Seventh Independent Company, Ohio Cavalry), an escort to President Lincoln, Nov. 1863 to Sept., 1865. He was also surgeon and major, Fifth Regiment, Ohio National Guard, 1889-1898; and is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. Dr. Ashmun married first, May 20, 1881, Laura J. Post, and second, Nov. 27, 1888, Alice Ford, of Cleveland, and by the last marriage has three sons and a daughter. Address: 1965 East 101st Street Cleveland, Ohio.

ASPINWALL, J. Lawrence:

Architect; born in New York City, June 3, 1854; son of James Scott and Margaret (Maxwell) Aspinwall, his mother being a native of Dumfries, Scotland. He was educated at Dwight's Day School, and afterward at the Lyons School, and at the school of Prof. Collain, in New York City. Mr. Aspinwall entered the office of James Renwick, architect, in 1875, and in 1880 became a member of the firm of Renwick, Aspinwall & Russell, which later changed to its present style of Renwick, Aspinwall & Tucker. He was architect of the second Stock Exchange, the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, and that of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; a large number of hospitals (Scarlet Fever and Department Hospitals, New York City, Stony Wold Sanitarium, Ariondaek Cottage Sanitarium, New York Infirmary for Women and Children), office buildings, apartment houses, etc. He was also associated with James Renwick in working out much of the detail of St. Patrick's Cathedral and the stone spire of Grace Church at Broadway and 10th Street. He was one of the original members of Troop A., now Squadron A. of the New York State Guard. Mr. Aspinwall is treasurer of the St. Luke's Association of Grace Church, New York City; a member of the General Society and New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the Architectural League of New York City, and a trustee of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children. He is also a member of the Union, Engineers' and Atlantic Yacht Clubs of New York. Mr. Aspinwall married, in 1891, May Morris Carnochan, of New York City, who died April 22, 1892. Address: 320 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

JOHN JACOB ASTOR
Capitalist

ASPINWALL, Joseph:

Jurist; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1854. He was graduated from the Law School of Columbia University, LL.B., 1875 and engaged in the practice of law. He was general attorney for the National City Bank of Brooklyn and for other large institutions. He was a member of the General Assembly of New York, 1888-1889 and 1891, State senator, 1892, and was elected on the Republican ticket in 1892 justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. He is president of the Garfield Club, a 32d-degree Mason and Shriner, and is a member of the Union League and other clubs of Brooklyn. Office: 44 Court Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

ASTOR, John Jacob:

Capitalist, soldier and inventor; born at Ferneliff, Rhinebeck, N. Y., July 13, 1864; son of William and Caroline (Schermerhorn) Astor; grandson of William B. and great-grandson of John Jacob Astor, the founder of the family in America. Colonel Astor was educated at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and Harvard University. Colonel Astor's time is chiefly occupied in the management of his vast inherited estate and its improvement, under which has been included the building of some of the finest hotel structures in the metropolis. He completed that part of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel known as the Astoria in 1897; completed the Hotel St. Regis, in 1905, and the Hotel Knickerbocker, in 1906. He was commissioned inspector-general with rank of lieutenant-colonel, United States Volunteers, May 15, 1898, and he gave a complete and fully equipped battery of artillery to the Government of the United States on the breaking out of the war with Spain.

He served in Southern camps and in Cuba, including the battle, siege and surrender of Santiago de Cuba, and was detailed by Major-General W. R. Shafter to deliver the official terms of capitulation to the Secretary of War and was mustered out of volunteer service, Nov. 1, 1898. Colonel Astor is the inventor of a pneumatic machine to remove worn-out material from the roads before the new stone is laid down, which received a first prize at the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893; and is also inventor of a practical turbine engine and other mechanical devices. He is a director of numerous large financial, railroad and other corporations, member of the Chamber of Commerce of New York, the New York Botanical Gardens, the New York Zoölogical Society, Society of Colonial Wars, the Military Order of Foreign Wars, and of the leading New York and London Clubs. Colonel Astor married, at Philadelphia, Feb. 17, 1891, Ava L. Willing, and by that union has two children, William Vincent Astor, born Nov. 15, 1891, and Ava Alice Muriel Astor (born July 7, 1902). Residences: Ferneliff, Rhinebeck, N. Y., and 840 Fifth Avenue, N. Y. City. Address: (secretary's office) 23 West 26th Street, New York City.

ATHERTON, Gertrude Franklin:

Author; born in San Francisco, Calif.; daughter of Thomas L. and Gertrude (Franklin) Horn, the latter being a collateral descendant of Benjamin Franklin. Mrs. Atherton was educated at home and in various day and boarding schools, and she married, at San Jose, Calif., George Henry Bowen Atherton, who is now deceased. She lives, much of the time, abroad, her travels extending over the most of Europe, the West Indies and North America, and is a life member of the American Historical Association and of the Author's Society of London, England, an honorary, but not active, member of several clubs in San Francisco, and is a member of the Ladies' Athenæum and of the Writers' Club of London, and of the Touring Club de France. Mrs. Atherton's novels are of international circulation, the list including: Before the Gringo Came; The Doomsdwoman; A Whirl Asunder; Patience Sparhawk and Her Times; His Fortunate Grace; American Wives and English Husbands; The Californians; A Daughter of the Vine; The Valiant Runaways; Senator North; The Aristocrats; The Conqueror; The Splendid Idle Forties (revised and enlarged edition of Before the Gringo Came); A Few of Hamilton's Letters; Rulers of Kings; The Bell in the Fog; Mrs. Pendleton's Four in Hand; The Travelling Thirde; Rézanov; Ancestors; The Gorgeous Isle. Address: The Macmillan Company, New York City.

ATHERTON, Percy Lee:

Composer; born in Roxbury, Mass., Sept. 25, 1871; son of William and Mary Edwards (Dwight) Atherton. He was educated at Harvard College, A.B., 1893, at the Royal High School, Munich, completing with honors the course in theory of music in Harvard; spent two years and also studied with leading teachers in Berlin, Paris and Rome. He is the composer of music for two operas, and of several suites, sonatas and song cycles, etc., besides about sixty songs for the solo voice. Address: 144 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston.

ATKINSON, Fred Washington:

President of the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute; born in Reading, Mass., May 23, 1865; son of George W. and Eliza Atkinson. He was educated at the Massachusetts State Normal School and at Harvard College, also studied at Berlin, Halle, Leipzig, and Jena Universities and the Sorbonne in Paris, and is a Ph.D. of Leipzig, 1893. He was a successful teacher and principal of high schools when he was selected in 1900 for the responsible position of general superintendent of education of the Philippine Islands. His duties in connection with this position required a high order of ability in selecting teachers and arranging methods of instruction which have developed into the highly successful system of American schools in the Philippine Islands, and which is rapidly bringing the natives of those Islands to a higher level of civilization. After three years of service in the Philippines, Professor Atkinson returned to the United States, and after a short period of service as superintendent of schools of Newton, Mass., he was chosen July 1, 1904, as president of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. Professor Atkinson is the author of a well known volume on The Philippine Islands and is a frequent contributor to magazines and educational journals. He married in Waltham, Mass., Aug. 27, 1890, Winnifred G. Whitford. Address: Polytechnic Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y.

ATKINSON, George Wesley:

Jurist and ex-governor; born in Charleston W. Va., June 29, 1845. He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University, A.B., 1870, and three years later he received the degree of A.M.; afterward taking post-graduate studies for which he received the degree of Ph.D. pro merito from Mount Union College, at Alliance, Ohio. He was graduated from Howard University as LL.B., and engaged in the practice of law. He became prominent at the bar and also in politics as a Republican, and was successively elected member of the Legislature of West Virginia, member of the Charleston Board of Education, assistant county superintendent of public schools, and was postmaster of Charleston, W. Va., for six years, United States internal revenue agent for four years, U. S. marshal of West Virginia for four years, member of the Fifty-first Congress, 1889-1891, governor of West Virginia, 1897-1901, U. S. attorney for the Southern District of West Virginia, 1901-1905, and in 1905 was appointed judge of the United States Court of Claims at Washington, D. C. in which office he is now serving. Judge Atkinson is prominent in the Masonic Order, in which he was Grand Master in 1876-1877, and was secretary of the Grand Lodge of West Virginia for twenty consecutive years, during which time he was the writer of the Reports on Foreign Correspondence. He has been twice married. He has received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Nashville, Ohio Wesleyan University, and the U. S. Grant University, and of D.C.L. from the University of West Virginia. He is author of:

History of Kanawha; The West Virginia Pulpit; The A. B. C. of the Tariff; Don't, or Negative Chips from Blocks of Living Truths; Revenue Digest; Prominent Men of West Virginia; After the Moonshiners; Psychology Simplified; volume of Public Addresses, and a volume of poems entitled "Chips and Whetstones." Residence: Charleston, W. Va. Office: 1600 Thirteenth St., N. W., Washington.

ATWATER, Edward W.:

Manufacturer; born in Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 5, 1842; son of Stephen and Mary L. (Weaver) Atwater. He was educated in the public schools of Providence, R. I., and was graduated from the high school there in 1859, immediately thereafter beginning his business career as clerk to the Commercial Steamboat Company, of Providence, in which he continued until 1862. He served as private in Company 1, Eleventh Regiment, Rhode Island Volunteers, in the Civil War, 1862-1863, and after that was for eight years cashier of the American Wood Paper Company, of Royer's Ford, Pa. Mr. Atwater engaged in fruit farming at Palmyra, N. Y., 1874-1878; was bookkeeper for H. A. De Land & Co., Fairport, N. Y., and De Land, Fla., 1878-1885, and since 1886 he has been connected with The Johnston Harvester Company, Batavia, N. Y., of which he is now president, treasurer and trustee. He has also, since 1888, been accountant for the Dean Richmond Estate. Mr. Atwater is treasurer of the First Baptist Church of Batavia, N. Y., a trustee of the Rochester Theological Seminary. He married in Seneca Falls, N. Y., Sept. 17, 1872, Fanny A. Langworthy, who died in 1885, leaving two sons and two daughters. Address: 401 East Main Street, Batavia, N. Y.

ATWELL, William Hawley:

United States district attorney; born in Sparta, Wis., June 9, 1869; son of Capt. Benjamin D. and D. E. Emma (Green) Atwell. He was educated at the Southwestern University of Georgetown, Tex., A.B., B.S., 1889, and in the law department of the State University of Texas, where he received the degree of LL.B. in 1891, in which year he was admitted to the bar, later receiving the LL.D. degree from the University of Texas. In 1898 he was appointed United States attorney for the Northern District of Texas, and he has successfully administered the duties of that office, having been reappointed in 1902 and in 1906. He is a well-known speaker and writer, and one of the leading Republicans of the southwest. He married in Georgetown, Tex., Dec. 7, 1892, Susie Snyder. Address: 510 Ross Avenue, Dallas, Tex.

ATWELL, William P.:

Consular official; appointed consular agent at Schiedam, May 14, 1883, and retired from that office in July, 1885. He was appointed commercial agent at Roubaix, June 27, 1890, and retired in June, 1893; reappointed commercial agent at Roubaix, May 28, 1897; promoted to consul May 31, 1899; appointed consul at Ghent, June 22, 1906. Address: Ghent, Belgium.

ATWILL, Edward Robert:

Bishop of Kansas City; born at Red Hook, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1840; son of Edward R. and Margaret Atwill. He was graduated from the academic course at Columbia College in 1862 and at the General Theological Seminary, New York City, in 1864, and he received from the University of Vermont the degree of D.D. in 1882. He was ordered deacon of the Episcopal Church in 1864 and a year later was ordained priest by Bishop Horatio Potter. He was consecutively assistant of St. Luke's Church, New York City, rector of St. Paul's Church, Williamsburgh, L. I., assistant at St. Paul's Church, Burlington, Vt., and its rector from 1867 to 1882, and rector of Trinity Church, Toledo, Ohio, from 1882 to 1890. He was consecrated Bishop of Kansas City, Mo., in 1890. He is author of A Tract on Confirmation and various addresses and sermons. Bishop Atwill married Mary Whiting. Address: 1709 East 32d Street, Kansas City, Mo.

ATWOOD, Isaac Morgan:

General superintendent of the Universalist Church in the United States and Canada; born in Pembroke, N. Y., March 24, 1838; son of Orsamus Isaac and Nancy (Shearer) Atwood. He was educated at St. Lawrence University, receiving the degree of M.A., and at the divinity school of Tufts College, and the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by Buchtel College. He was ordained in 1861 to the ministry of the Universalist Church and served with marked success in various pastorates. He has been editor of the Christian Leader and president of the Canton Theological Seminary, and is now associate editor of the Universalist Leader of Boston and general superintendent of the work of the Universalist Church in the United States and Canada, his official position being secretary of the Universalist General Convention. He is in executive charge of the measures decided upon by that organization for the furtherance of the work of the Universalist Church. He is a member of the American Social Science Association and the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and the author of Have We Outgrown Christianity?; Latest Word of Universalism; Walks About Zion; Episcopacy; Revelation; Balance Sheet of Biblical Criticism and A System of Christian Doctrines. He married in Clarendon, N. Y., Oct. 29, 1861, Almira Church. Address; 189 Harvard Street, Rochester, N. Y.

AUDENRIED, Charles Young:

Jurist; born in Philadelphia, Dec. 9, 1863; son of John T. Audenried, a successful merchant and coal mine operator. He was educated in Rugby Academy and the University of Pennsylvania, from which he was graduated as A.B., 1883, and LL.B., 1886. Following the last graduation he was admitted to the bar and engaged in practice in Philadelphia, and from 1887 to 1896 he was secretary and treasurer of the Maconie Iron Company. He was a member of the Common and Select Councils of Philadelphia from 1891 to 1896, resigning from the Select Council upon his appointment as judge of the Court of Common Pleas No. 4, of Philadelphia, to which position he was elected in 1897 for a full term of ten years, and in 1907 was re-elected for another term of ten years from Jan. 1, 1908. Address: 6331 Lancaster Avenue, Philadelphia.

AUDSLEY, George Ashdown:

Architect; born in Elgin, Scotland, Sept. 6, 1838. He came to the United States in 1892, when he began the practice of his profession in New York in conjunction with his brother, William James Audsley. The firm has built a number of conspicuous structures, among them being the Layton Art Gallery of Milwaukee, the Bowling Green office building in New York, the Church of St. Edward, Philadelphia, and others. Mr. Audsley is widely known as an author and an authority on polychromatic decoration and is a student of the historic art of illumination, and of the other mediæval arts. He has also written extensively on other art topics. His specialties are best illustrated by his published works, among which are: Keramic Art of Japan, Ornamental Arts of Japan, The Art of Chromolithography, The Practical Decorator and The Art of Organ Building. He has also written, in conjunction with his brother, Illuminated Sermon on the Mount, Illuminated Prisoner of Chillon, Guide to Illuminating and Missal Painting, Handbook on Christian Symbolism, Cottage, Lodge and Villa Architecture, Polychromatic Decoration Applied to Buildings in the Gothic Styles, Outlines of Ornament in all Styles, Taste versus Fashionable Colors and Popular Dictionary of Architecture and the Allied Arts (unfinished). Residence: Lowerre, N. Y. Office: 18 West 27th Street, New York City.

AULLS, Samuel D.:

Lawyer; born in Wheeler, Steuben County, N. Y., April 9, 1875; son of Thomas and Ellen (Williams) Aulls. He was graduated from the Preparatory School at Dundee, N. Y., in 1893, and took post-graduate courses there and at Lowville (N. Y.) Academy, and two years in Albany Law School. He taught school in Steuben and Yates Counties, New York, 1893-1895, studied law in the office of Hon. Amasa J. Parker at Albany and Col. Gabriel L. Smith of Elmira, and was admitted to the bar in 1898. He became clerk and later partner with Judge Smith, and he was admitted to the bar of the United States Supreme Court in 1902. Mr. Aulls is counsel for a large number of corporations, including the Listed Securities Company of New York. He is author of Aulls' Quizzer on the Code. He is a member of Masonic and other lodges, the Chemung County Bar Association, the Young Men's Club of Elmira and the Empire State Society of Sons of the American Revolution. Address: 214 East Water Street, Elmira, N. Y.

AUSTIN, Henry:

Lawyer; born in Boston, Mass., Dec. 21, 1858; son of William and Rachel A. Austin. He was graduated from Harvard Law School in 1879 and was admitted to the bar of Massachusetts in 1880. He has been a commissioner of insolvency for six years, and is an associate justice of the West Roxbury district of the Boston Municipal court. Mr. Austin has made a specialty of the study of law involving the rural districts of New England and is author of: American Farm and Game Laws; Liquor Law in New England; and other publications. Address: 84 State Street, Boston.

AUSTIN, Oscar Phelps:

Statistician; born in Illinois. He is a newspaper man by profession, but for many years has been one of the best known statisticians economists in the United States. As Washington correspondent for metropolitan dailies he became known for his writings on finance and commerce, and in 1898 was appointed chief of the Bureau of Statistics, formerly under the Treasury Department but later transferred to the Department of Commerce and Labor, having held that office continuously since 1898, a longer term of service than any other occupant of the position. Since 1896 he has prepared the quadrennial text-book for the Republican National Committee, and is the leading authority in the United States on the matters relating to government policies and finance to which that book is devoted. He is a member of the International Colonial Institute; International Union for Study of Jurisprudence and Political Economy; the American Association for the Advancement of Science; the American Economic Association; the National Geographic Society (secretary); an incorporator and honorary member of the American Chamber of Commerce in Paris; and a member of the Commission Centrale de Statistique of Belgium. He is the author of: Uncle Sam's Secrets; Uncle Sam's Soldiers; Uncle Sam's Children (series of historical and statistical novels for youth); Steps in Our Territorial Expansion; Colonial Systems of the World; Colonial Administration; Commercial China; Commercial Japan; Commercial Philippines; Commercial India; Commercial Africa; Commercial South and Central America; Commercial Orient; Submarine Telegraphs of the World; The Great Canals of the World; The National Debts of the World; etc. He married Anna M. Richardson. Residence: 1620 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D. C. Official address: Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C.

AUSTIN, Richard Wilson:

Lawyer and Congressman; born at Decatur, Ala., Aug. 26, 1857. He was educated in the Loudoun High School and the University of Tennessee, and was admitted to the bar of Tennessee. He was assistant doorkeeper of the House of Representatives in the Forty-seventh Congress; U. S. Marshal for the Eastern District of Tennessee, 1897-1906; American consul at Glasgow, Scotland, July, 1906 to 1907, when he resigned to make the race for the Sixty-first Congress, to which he was elected in 1908 from the Second Tennessee District as a Republican. Address: Knoxville, Tenn.

AVES, Henry Damorel:

Episcopal bishop of Mexico; born in Huron County, Ohio, July 10, 1853; son of Frederick William and Francis Elizabeth (Damorel) Aves. He received his education at Kenyon College, graduating with the degree of Ph.B. in 1878, and taking the degree of D.D. in 1883. He also received the degree of D.D. from his alma mater in 1904 and an honorary LL.D. from Rutgerford College, N. C., in 1901. He took orders as a deacon of the Episcopal Church in 1883, and was ordained priest the following year by Bishop Bedell. He was connected with St. Paul's Parish, Mt. Vernon, Ohio, 1883-1885, first as deacon, then officiating as priest. In 1885 he went to Cleveland, Ohio, as priest at St. John's Church, and after seven years was called to the rectorship of Christ's Church, Houston, Tex. He remained here until 1904 when he was elected Bishop of Mexico. He was consecrated by Bishops Garrett, Brown, Brooke, Rowe, Johnson and Mills-paugh. He married Mary Gertrude Smith, at Kenton, Ohio, Sept. 11, 1883. Address: Torreon, Mexico.

AXTELL, Decatur:

Railway official; born at Elyria, Ohio, Feb. 8, 1848; son of Almon and Sophronia (Boynton) Axtell. He was educated in Illinois College, and from March 16, 1864, has been in railway service, serving in engineering capacities on various roads; and is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. He became general manager of the Richmond and Allegheny Railroad in July, 1880, and vice-president and general manager of the same road in April, 1882. He was receiver and manager of the Richmond and Allegheny Railroad from 1883-1889; became second vice-president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway in May, 1889, and since February, 1900, has been vice-president of the same road. He was also president of the Toledo and Ohio Central Railroad and vice-president of the Kanawha and Michigan Railway from 1889-1903, and since 1903 has been chairman of the Boards of Directors of those two roads. Address: Richmond, Va.

AYER, Clarence Walter:

Librarian; born in Haverhill, Mass., 1862; son of Walter Ayer and Abby West (Stevens) Ayer. He was educated in public schools of Haverhill, and at Harvard College, A.B., 1885, (magna cum laude, with second year honors in classics, and honors in music), A.M., 1888 (in English and Italian). He was instructor at Dummer Academy, near Newburyport, 1885-1886; private tutor at Cambridge, from 1886 to 1891; professor of English in Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio, 1892-1893; instructor in English in the College for Women, Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, from 1893-1895; instructor in the Volkmann private school for boys, Boston, 1895-1896; assistant in Harvard College Library from 1896-1899; librarian of Brockton Public Library from 1899-1904, and of the Cambridge Public Library since 1904. He compiled a shelf classification of music for the Harvard College Library in 1896, which was published in the Library Journal in 1902; and in 1908 he collaborated with Dr. William J. Rolfe in the preparation of a "History of the Cambridge Public Library." He is a member of the Massachusetts Library Club, (vice-president 1900-1901; president 1909-1910), American Library Association, New England Historical Genealogical Society, Harvard Musical Association, of Boston, director of the Cambridge Social Union, and a member of the Pi Eta Society of Harvard College. Mr. Ayer is a Republican in politics and a Universalist in religion. He married in Brockton, Mass., Oct. 1, 1902, Grace Standwood Blackwell, and they have one son, Donald Blackwell, born April 3, 1904. Residence: 5 Cutler Avenue, Cambridge. Office address: Public Library, Cambridge, Mass.

AYER, Edward Everett:

Capitalist and bibliophile; born at Harvard, Melbury County, Ill., Nov. 16, 1841; son of Elbridge Gerry and Mary (Titcomb) Ayer. After leaving the public schools, he became interested in the lumber business, and especially in that branch of it connected with supplying the demands of railways for cross-ties and in that line built up, in the firm of Ayer & Lord, now the Ayer & Lord Tie Company, one of the most extensive tie contracting enterprises in the country. From its inception in 1893 until 1898 he was president, and is still a director, of the Field Columbian Museum; and he is also a director of the Newbury Library, the Chicago Art Institute, and the Chicago Historical Society. He is deeply interested in American literature and history, and his library, which ranks as one of the best and most valuable in private hands in this country, is especially rich in its collection of Americana. Mr. Ayer married, Sept. 7, 1865, Emma August Burbank, by whom he has one daughter. Address: Railway Exchange Building, Chicago.

AYER, Francis Wayland:

Advertising agent; born in Lee, Berkshire County, Mass., 1848. He was educated in the schools of Western New York. Mr. Ayer started in the advertising business in 1869 at Philadelphia in association with his father, under the firm name of N. W. Ayer & Son, and upon the death of his father in 1873, Mr. Ayer became head of the firm. The yearly aggregate of the firm's payments to publishers now exceeds four million dollars. Mr. Ayer, in addition to conducting the large advertising business, is president of the Merchants' National Bank of Philadelphia. He is also senior partner of the firm of Ayer & McKenny, who have a large stock farm in New York State. Mr. Ayer is superintendent of the Sunday-school connected with the North Baptist Church in Camden, New Jersey, and is a director in large banking and commercial institutions. Residence: Camden, N. J. Office: 300 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

AYER, Frederick Fanning:

Lawyer; born in Lowell, Mass., Sept. 12, 1851. He was graduated from Harvard College as A.B. in 1873, and studied at Harvard Law School. He was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1875, and since the death of his father, James C. Ayer, has managed the great properties of the Ayer estate. He presented the Ayer Memorial Library, costing $40,000, to the town of Ayer, Mass. Mr. Ayer is a director of the Lake Superior Ship Canal, Railway and Iron Company, the Portage Lake and River Improvement Company, the Lowell and Andover Railroad, and J. C. Ayer Company, and he is a large stockholder in the New York Tribune Association, the Tremont and Suffolk Mills, and other corporations. Residence: 5 West 57th Street. Address: Mills Building, New York City.

AYERS, Howard:

Morphologist; born in Olympia, Wash., May 21, 1861. He was graduated from Harvard University as B.S. in 1883, and from the University of Freiburg, Germany, as Ph.D. in 1885. He also studied at the universities of Strasburg and Heidelberg, and has received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Missouri. Since 1889 he has been engaged in investigations into the structure of animal bodies and is one of the leaders in morphological work in the United States. He was director of the Lake Laboratory from 1889 to 1893, and has been a member of the staff of instruction at the Marine Biological Laboratory of Wood's Hole since 1889. In 1899 he became president of the University of Cincinnati, holding that position until 1904. Dr. Ayers is a member of the American Society of Naturalists; the American Morphological Society; the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and the National Educational Association. He is the author of "The Vertebrate Ear," and other papers on the morphology of animals. President Ayers has also made a scientific study of the problems of education and is the author of numerous volumes and papers on this subject. Residence: 907 Lexington Avenue. Office: 15 West Second Street, Cincinnati.

AYERS, Rufus Adolphus:

Lawyer; born in Bedford County, Va., May 20, 1849. His early education was interrupted by the Civil War, in which he took part as a member of an independent command in eastern Tennessee, western North Carolina and southwestern Virginia. After the war he engaged in farming and completed his education by personal study, and was admitted to the bar in 1872. He was active in the development of large areas of coal land in Wise County, Va., and in the construction of the railroad which handled the output of the mines so developed. Mr. Ayers was attorney-general of Virginia from 1885 to 1890. He has a large practice at the bar, and important financial interests, being director in several coal corporations and banks. He married in Estillville, Va., June 8, 1870, Victoria Louisa Morison. Address: Big Stone Gap, Wise County, Va.

AYMÉ, Louis Henry:

Consul-general; born in New York City, May 29, 1855; son of Dr. Henry Aymé (surgeon, U. S. A.) and Elizabeth Geraldine (Fitzgerald) Aymé. He was prepared at Trinity School and graduated from Columbia College, A.B. in 1871, following with two terms at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. He was scientific assistant with the United States Transit of Venus Expedition, New Zealand Station, in 1874. He was appointed United States consul at Merida, Yucatan, Mexico, in 1880, and served there until 1884, and then became connected, as a special ethnologist, with research work for the Smithsonian Institution, 1884-1886. He became a member of the editorial staff of the Chicago Inter-Ocean in 1886, remaining until appointed, in 1891, foreign press editor for the World's Columbian Exposition. Upon the fulfillment of his duties there he engaged in newspaper work. Mr. Aymé was appointed by President McKinley Jan. 6, 1898, United States consul at Guadaloupe, West Indies, where he served until June, 1903, when he was transferred to Para, Brazil, where he served until appointed in 1906 American consul-general at Lisbon, Portugal, where he is now serving. He was serving at Guadaloupe when the Martinique disaster occurred, and he was the first on the spot, going as special representative of the United States Government and special representative of the Associated Press, arriving May 11, 1902. He is a member of the American Archeological Society; the American Antiquarian Society; and various historical societies; a member the Sons of Veterans; and a member by inheritance of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, also a member of the American Association of International Law, Optimist Club of America, Theosophical Society, Consistory of the City of New York, Scottish Rite Masons (32d-degree), Mystic Shrine, and Patriarchs Militant (Odd Fellows) having received the grand decoration for loyalty and chivalry. He is author of Notes on Mitla, a valuable contribution to American archeology; and has published numerous articles on the Great Pyramid as a great metrological and mathematical monument. Mr. Aymé married at Chicago, Feb. 19, 1890, Mary Stuart. Address: American Consulate-General, Lisbon, Portugal.

AYRES, Brown:

President of the University of Tennessee; born in Memphis, Tenn., May 25, 1856; son of Samuel W. and Elizabeth (Cook) Ayres. He took the engineering course in Washington and Lee University, and then went to the Stevens Institute of Technology, at Hoboken, N. J., from which he was graduated as B.S. in 1878, and received the degree of Ph.D. in 1888. He was a fellow in Johns Hopkins University, 1879-1880, and received the LL.D. degree from Washington and Lee University, 1904, from South Carolina College 1905, from Tulane University of Louisiana, 1905, and from the University of Alabama, 1906; also the degree of D.C.L. from the University of the South, 1907. He joined the faculty of the Tulane University of Louisiana in 1880 as professor of physics, holding that chair for twenty-four years, and also being dean of the College of Technology from 1894 to 1900, dean of the Academic College and vice-chairman of the faculty from 1900 to 1904, and was acting president of that university when, in 1901, he was called to his present position as president of the University of Tennessee. He was a member of the Electric Jury of the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893, the Atlanta Exposition in 1895, and the Nashville Exposition in 1897. He is fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and a member of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education; and the American Physical Society. Dr. Ayres married at Lexington, Va., July 5, 1881, Katie A. Anderson. Address: Knoxville, Tenn.

AYRES, Philip Wheelock:

Forester; born in Winterset, Iowa, May 26, 1861. He was educated at Cornell University and Johns Hopkins University, of which he is Ph.D. 1888. Mr. Ayres has become nationally known in two lines: forestry work and charity organization work. In 1889 he became secretary of the Associated Charities of Cincinnati, serving in this position until 1895, when he went to Europe to study penal and charitable institutions. In 1895 he became general secretary of the Bureau of Associated Charities in Chicago, and later went to New York, where he became assistant secretary of the Charity Organization Society, serving until 1900. He was for seven years superintendent of the Summer School in Philanthropic Work of the New York Charity Organization Society. He took the course in forestry at Cornell University, and in 1900 he became forester of the Society for the Protection of New Hampshire Forests, and of Dartmouth College. He is a director of the American Forestry Association and the Society of American Foresters, and has contributed to the magazines. He married in Newton, Mass., Aug. 8, 1899, Alice Stanley Taylor. Residence: Franconia, N. H. Office: Concord, N. H.

B

BABB, Washington Irving:

Lawyer; born in Des Moines County, Iowa, Oct. 2, 1844; son of Miles and Mary (Moyer) Babb. His studies at the Iowa Wesleyan University were interrupted by his enlistment, in 1863, in the Eighth Iowa Cavalry, but after the Civil War closed he returned to the University, from which he was graduated A.B. in 1866, received the

A.M. degree in 1869, and the honorary degree of LL.D. from it in 1898 and from the State University of Iowa in 1907. He was admitted to the bar of Iowa in 1868, and practised there for thirty-eight years except the period from 1891 to 1895, when he served a full elective term as district judge in Iowa. For years he was one of the recognized leaders of the Democratic Party in Iowa, was elected to the House of Representatives of that State, and was Democratic nominee for governor of Iowa in 1895, and the nominee of the Democratic caucus for United States senator in the legislative session of 1896. He became a leader of the Gold Democrats of Iowa, being one of the strongest supporters of sound money while the free silver agitation existed and chairman of the Sound Money Democratic Convention in Iowa in 1896. He was made a regent of the State University of Iowa in 1898, and held that office until 1906, when he removed from the State to become general counsel for several large manufacturing corporations, with office at Chicago. He is a member of the Union League Club of Chicago. He married at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, Oct. 9, 1873, Alice Bird, and has three children. Residence: 255 West Park Av., Aurora, Ill. Office: 1329 Manhattan Building, Chicago.

BABCOCK, Harmon Seeley:

Lawyer, author; born in New Lebanon, N. Y., April 11, 1849. He was graduated from Brown University, valedictorian of class, A.B., 1874, A.M., 1877, receiving Mathematical and Rhetorical prizes. He became a teacher in the University Grammar School, Providence, 1874-1876; was admitted to the bar and began practice in Providence, 1877; superintendent of public schools, East Providence, R. I., 1879-1882; town solicitor of East Providence, 1884-1887; and again from 1900 to the present time. He has also been coroner of East Providence since 1884. Mr. Babcock was treasurer of the Watchemoket Fire District, 1892-1905; president of the East Providence Business Men's Association, 1903-1905; and he was for several years treasurer of the Franklin Lyceum.

Mr. Babcock is author of: Trifles, 1879; A Poultry Compendium, 1885; Philosophy of Judging, 1889; The Indian Game, 1891; The Argonaut, 1891; Friendship of Learning, 1893; also numerous articles in periodicals. He was poet at the convention of Beta Theta Pi fraternity in Cincinnati, and delivered a poem before the Alumni of Brown University. Mr. Babcock is a member of the Rhode Island Bar Association, and president of the Board of Trustees of the Haven M. E. Church of East Providence; and he is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He has been a candidate for representative to the General Assembly of Rhode Island, but not elected; and has been a delegate to State Republican conventions, president of campaign clubs, etc. He has been twice married: first at Lenox, Mass., June 11, 1879, to Eva S. Belden, and second, April 17, 1902, at East Providence, R. I., to Julia E. Buckminster; and he has a daughter and a son. Address: 77 Summit Street, East Providence, R. I.

BABCOCK, James Woods:

Physician, specialist in mental diseases; born in Chester, S. C., Aug. 11, 1856; son of Sidney E. and Margaret (Woods) Babcock. He was prepared for college at Phillips Exeter Academy, and was graduated from Harvard College as A.B. in 1882, and from Harvard Medical School as M. D. in 1886, and in 1905 the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by South Carolina College. He was appointed assistant physician of the McLean Hospital at Somerville, Mass., in 1885 and he held that position until 1891, when he received appointment to his present office as physician and superintendent of the South Carolina State Hospital for the Insane. Dr. Babcock, in addition to this State office, has served on the Board of Health and as chairman of the Sewerage Commission and member of the Water Commission of Columbia, S. C., and also as member of the State Commission to erect a monument to General Sumter of the American Revolution. He has written a history of the South Carolina Hospital for the Insane and various professional papers. Dr. Babcock's most important contributions to medicine are: (1) directing attention to the prevalence and prevention of tuberculosis in American Insane Asylums in 1894; and (2) calling attention to the existence of pellagra in Southern asylums in 1907. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the American Medico-Psychological Association and of State and local medical societies. He has attained a position of much distinction among American alienists. Dr. Babcock married at Lincolnton, N. C., Aug. 17, 1892, Katharine Guion. Address: Columbia, S. C.

BABCOCK, Joseph Weeks:

Manufacturer and ex-congressman; born at Swanton, Franklin County, Vermont, March 6, 1850. He removed with his parents in 1855 to Iowa, in which State he resided until 1881, when he moved to Neeshah, Wis., where he has since resided. He was for many years engaged there in the manufacture of lumber, and he has long been active in political affairs as one of the leaders of the Republican party in his State and the Nation. He was elected a member of the Wisconsin Assembly in 1888, and re-elected in 1890. In 1892 he was elected to the Fifty-third Congress from the Third Congressional District of Wisconsin, and biennially elected thereafter up to and including the Fifty-ninth Congress. He was also the Republican nominee for the Sixtieth Congress from that district in 1906, but failed of election. Mr. Babcock was chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee in 1894, 1896, 1898, 1900, 1902 and 1904; having full charge of these campaigns and making a unique record among the managers of American political campaigns for efficiency of method and success in securing results. He was a delegate at large to the National Republican Convention in 1904, and was appointed in 1905 to the National Republican Committee, to succeed the late Henry C. Payne. Mr. Babcock was for twenty years chairman of the Committee on the District of Columbia of the House of Representatives and was a member of the Ways and Means Committee in the Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh, Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Congresses. He married at Lyons, Iowa, in 1867, Mary A. Finch. Address: Necedah, Wis.

BABCOCK, Kendric Charles:

University president; born at South Brookfield, N. Y., Sept. 8, 1864; son of Gideon Perry and Lydia (Macomber) Babcock. After his graduation from the University of Minnesota as B.Litt. in 1889 he remained with that institution as instructor in history and English until 1894, and then took up graduate work at Harvard University, from which he received the degrees of A.M. in 1895 and Ph.D. in 1896. For two years he was instructor in history and political science and for five years assistant professor of history in the University of California, and during his service on that Faculty was president of the University of California Students' Co-operative Association and for five years a director of the San Francisco Settlement Association. Since 1903 he has been president of the University of Arizona, in which he also holds the chair of history and political economy. He is the author of The Rise of American Nationality (Harpers, 1906), and a contributor to magazines and reviews on historical and economic subjects. Dr. Babcock is a prominent fraternity man, was president of Delta Tau Delta fraternity from 1893 to 1899, and is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He is also a member of the American, Minnesota and Arizona Historical Societies. Address: Tucson, Ariz.

BABCOCK, Robert Hall:

Physician; born at Watertown, N. Y., July 26, 1851; son of Robert S. Babcock, of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Emily (Hall) Babcock. Following his graduation from Chicago Medical College in 1878, Dr. Babcock spent a year in the College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia University), in New York, and three years in graduate study in Germany. Since 1883 he has practised medicine in Chicago, in which city he formerly held, for fifteen years, the chairs of clinical medicine and of diseases of the chest in the College of Physicians and Surgeons. He is especially distinguished in connection with researches in and treatment of diseases of the heart and lungs, and is author of text-books on Diseases of the Heart and Arterial System (1903), and Diseases of the Lungs (1907) as well as numerous contributions to medical publications. He is consulting physician to the Cook County, Mary Thompson and St. Anthony of Padua hospitals and to the Marion Sims Sanitarium, was formerly president of the American Climatological Association and is a member of the principal National, State and local medical associations. He married at Montclair, N. J., June 12, 1879, Lizzie C. Weston, of New York City, and has two children. Address: 92 State St., Chicago.

BABCOCK, Washington Irving:

Naval architect and engineer; one of the leading figures in the ship-building interests on the Great Lakes which has constructed for the interior carrying trade of the United States one of the most remarkable fleets known to the history of the world. A specific type of vessel has been developed for the particular needs of this trade and the magnitude of the ship-building enterprises at different points along the coast of the great interior seas by far eclipses that of the ocean coasts of the United States. Mr. Babcock was born in Stonington, Conn., Sept. 21, 1858. He was graduated from the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute in 1876, and at the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, at Troy, N. Y., in 1878. His apprenticeship at ship-building was served at Morgan's Iron Works, New York City, and John Roach's shipyard at Chester, Pa., where he remained until 1885, when he became connected with the Providence and Stonington Steamship Company. He was superintendent of the Union Dry Dock Co., Buffalo, N. Y., from 1887 to 1889, and was manager ten years and president in 1889-1900 of the Chicago Ship-building Company, this period covering the years of the great initial development of the ship-building industry on the Great Lakes. He married in New Orleans, Jan. 1, 1890, Grace W., daughter of the Hon. H. P. Kernochan. Residence: 374 Fifth Avenue. Office: 8 Bridge St., New York City.

BABCOCK, William:

Banker; born in Canton, Ill.; son of William and Elizabeth A. (Kinsey) Babcock. He was educated in public and high schools, Canton, Ill. Mr. Babcock has been engaged in banking and in the organization and management of banks, financial institutions, and industrial and other corporations since 1873; now president of the American Fiscal Corporation, New York City. He engaged in mining business in Southern Nevada, with headquarters at Goldfield, his legal residence, for the past twenty years, being in New York City. He is a member of the American Bankers' Association. Mr. Babcock is a Republican in politics, and is a Mason and Knight Templar. His father and latter's only brother, A. C. Babcock, were both colonels in the Union Army during the Civil War, and both prominent in Illinois politics; both went from New York State to Illinois, and took active part in building up that State to its present greatness. Address: 35 Nassau St., New York City. Temporary address: Lock Box 63, Goldfield, Nev.

BABCOCK, William Henry:

Lawyer and solicitor of patents; born in St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 1, 1849; son of Welles J. and Catharine (Smith) Babcock. He was educated in divers private schools of New York and Washington, D. C., and the Preparatory Department and Law School of Columbian (now George Washington) University. He was three years in the Patent Office Examining Corps at Washington and since then for about thirty-one years has been in practice as a lawyer and solicitor of patents. Mr. Babcock was formerly an extensive contributor of stories, verse and articles to magazines and periodicals, and he is author of: The Tower of Wye; Kent Fort Mano; Crim of the Chariots; Cypress Beach; Lord Stirling's Strand; The Two Lost Centuries of Brit- ain; Lays from Over Sea; The Bride of the Tiger; An Invention of the Enemy, etc. He has twice married, first in June, 1874, to Anne Johns Earle, and second, Aug. 18, 1897, to Mrs. Gertrude Lee Mahood, of Richmond, Va., and he has nine children. Residence: Rock Haven, Ridge Road, near Georgetown, D. C. Office: 604 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BABCOCK, Winnifred Eaton:

Author; born in Nagasaki, Japan, 1879; daughter of Edward and Grace (Trapezis) Eaton. She received her education in the public schools of Montreal and Toronto, Canada, supplemented by courses in English in Columbia University; and she was married in New York City, July 16, 1901, to B. W. Babcock. Since 1894 she has been identified with literary work as a writer of short stories for magazines, and of books, and the years spent in Japan gave her an intimate acquaintance with the picturesque life and quaint manners and customs of its people, which has made her prominent as an exponent of Japan in fiction. Her books, written under the pen-name of "Onoto Watsuma," include: The Old Jiriksha; Miss Nume of Japan; A Japanese Nightingale; The Wooing of Wistaria; Heart of Hyacinth; Daughters of Kings; The Love of Azalea; A Japanese Blossom; The Diary of Delia. The story of a Japanese Nightingale was dramatized in 1903 and produced with success both in America and England. Address: Mamaroneck, N. Y.

BAESON, Thomas M.:

Lawyer; born in Wisasset, Maine, May 28, 1847. He was graduated from Harvard Law School in 1868, and admitted to the Suffolk Bar in 1869, and since then has practised law in Boston. For thirty years he has been continuously connected with the Boston Law Department, of which he is now the head, his first appointment being received from Mayor Prince, in April, 1879, as fourth assistant city solicitor. He was promoted to second assistant solicitor 1881, first assistant solicitor, 1885, and in 1891 was appointed corporation counsel of the City of Boston by Mayor Mathews. In 1895 the Law Department of the City of Boston was placed under the joint charge of the corporation counsel and the city solicitor, and he was appointed by Mayor Curtis as city solicitor and served as such until July 1904, when that office was abolished, and he was appointed to his present office of corporation counsel of Boston and head of the city's Law Department. Address: Corporation Counsel's Office, Boston.

BACHELDER, Nahum Josiah:

Former governor of New Hampshire, and master of the National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry; born in Andover, N. H., Sept. 3, 1854; son of William A. and Adeline E. B. Bachelder. He was educated in various academies in his native State and since leaving school has been engaged in farming. Taking an active part in political affairs and becoming a Republican leader, he was nominated by his party, in 1902, and elected governor of New Hampshire for the two-year term beginning in Jan., 1903. Governor Bachelder has for years been a prominent member of the Patrons of Husbandry, and upon the expiration of his term as governor of his State he accepted, in 1905, the presidency of the National Grange which he has held ever since. Dartmouth College conferred upon him, in 1887, the degree of A. M. Residence: Andover, N. H. Office: Concord, N. H.

BACHELLER, Irving:

Author; born in Pierpont, N. Y., Sept. 26, 1859; graduated from St. Lawrence University as B.S. in 1882, and has since received the degree of M.S. and A.M. from his college. Mr. Bachelder was actively connected with the press of New York for many years, and was the proprietor of the Bacheller Syndicate, furnishing special articles and material to the newspapers and magazines of the country. In 1900 he attracted national attention by his story, Eben Holden, a study in character which vied in popularity with the celebrated "David Harum," which was in vogue about that time. Mr. Bacheller is also author of D'ri and I, a story of the War of 1812; of Darrel of the Blessed Isles, Silas Strong, and several other popular novels. He was formerly one of the editors of the New York World. He married at Brooklyn, Dec. 10, 1883, Anna Detmar Schultz. Residence: Sound Beach, Conn.

BACON, Alexander Samuel:

Lawyer; born in Jackson, Mich., Nov. 20, 1853; son of John A. and Harriet (Smith) Bacon. He was graduated (in the "Stars") in 1876 from the United States Military Academy, in which he was the first captain in the corps of cadets, and served as lieutenant in the 1st United States Artillery, from which he resigned. He was admitted to the bar in 1879, and he has a wide practice, extending to London, Tokio and Central America; is a director and vice-president of the Webster Piano Company, the Lima Oil Company, Reservation Oil Company and the New York and Osage Oil Company; and he is treasurer of the American Sabbath Union. He served in the New York Legislature as Assemblyman, 1887, and in the National Guard of the State of New York, as captain, major and lieutenant-colonel of the Twenty-third Regiment, and as colonel of the Second Provisional Regiment. Colonel Bacon is a member of the Aurora Grata, Quill and Winter's Night Clubs of Brooklyn. He married in Denver, Colo., Sept. 1, 1886, Harriet Whetelsey Schroter, and they have two children. Residence: 101 Rugby Road, Brooklyn. Office: 37 Liberty Street, New York City.

BACON, Augustus Octavius:

United States senator; born in Bryan County, Georgia, Oct. 20, 1839. He received a high school education in Liberty and Troup counties and was graduated from the University of Georgia, in the literary and classical department, in 1859, and in the law department in 1860. He entered the Confederate Army at the beginning of the war and served during the campaigns of 1860-1862 as adjutant of the Ninth Georgia Regiment in the Army of Northern Virginia, and subsequently thereto was commissioned a captain in the Provisional Army of the Confederate States and assigned to general staff duty. At the close of the war he resumed the study of law and he began to practice in 1866 at Macon. He was several times candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Georgia. He is a trustee of the University of Georgia and also a regent of the Smithsonian Institution at Washington. He was elected to the United States Senate in Nov., 1894, and reelected in 1900 and 1907, his present term expiring March 4, 1913. Since his election as United States Senator he has traveled extensively in the dependencies of the United States and in foreign countries, where he has been a close student of languages, manners and customs. He is a forceful debater and one of the leading members of the minority of the Senate. Address: Macon, Ga.

BACON, Benjamin Wisner:

Professor in Yale University; born in Litchfield, Conn., Jan. 15, 1860; son of Rev. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, D.D., and Susan Bacon. He was graduated from Yale as B.A. in 1881, B.D. in 1884, and M. A. in 1890, and received the degrees of D.D. from Western Reserve University in 1892, Litt. D. from Syracuse University in 1894, and LL.D. from Illinois College in 1905. He was ordained in the ministry of the Congregational Church in 1884, and was pastor of the First Congregational Church of Old Lyme, Conn., until 1889, then at Oswego, N. Y., until called to his present chair of New Testament Criticism and Exegesis in 1896. Dr. Bacon has been an extensive contributor to critical and exegetical literature, translated into English Wildeboer's Kanon des Ouden Verbonds; contributed to Haupt's Sacred Literature of the Old Testament and to various periodicals and reviews, and he is the author of: The Genesis of Genesis; The Triple Tradition of the Exodus; Introduction to the New Testament; The Sermon on the Mount, and The Story of St. Paul. Dr. Bacon married at Norwich, Conn., May 27 1884, Eliza Buckingham Aiken; and they have two children, Dorothy Buckingham, and Benjamin Selden. Address: 244 Edwards Street, New Haven, Conn.

BACON, Charles W.:

Lawyer; born at Natick, Mass., March 4, 1856; son of John W. and Amelia A. (Jeffers) Bacon. He was prepared at Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., being graduated in 1875, and then entered Harvard University, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1879. Mr. Bacon has been engaged in the practice of law from 1881, and he was assistant United States attorney for the Southern District of New York from April 1, 1905, to Jan. 31, 1906. He is a member of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence of New York City, of the Papyrus Club of Boston, and of the Harvard and Republican Clubs of New York City. Mr. Bacon married at Cambridge, Mass., May 28, 1888, Rena E. Mattis, and they have two sons: John W. Bacon, born in 1892, and Ross M. Bacon, born in 1894. Residence: 460 E. Fourth Street, Mount Vernon, N. Y. Address: 31 Nassau Street, New York City.

BACON, Edward Rathbone:

Lawyer; born in New York City, Nov. 22, 1846. He was educated at Phillips Exeter Academy, and admitted to the New York bar at Buffalo, N. Y., in Nov., 1869. He was counsel for various railroad companies for eighteen years; became vice-president of the Cincinnati, Washington & Baltimore Railroad 1881 and its president 1890-1902, and has been vice-president since 1902 of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railway. He was one of the reorganizers, and is now a director, of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. He is also director of the Knickerbocker Apartment Company, the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company, and Consolidated Coal Company. Mr. Bacon is a member of the Union, Manhattan, Metropolitan, City, Midway, Tuxedo, Racquet and Tennis, Down Town and New York Yacht Clubs. Residence: 247 Fifth Avenue. Office: 2 Wall Street, New York City.

BACON, Josephine Dodge Daskam:

Author; born in Stamford, Conn., Feb. 17, 1876; daughter of Horace Sawyer and Anne (Loring) Daskam. She was graduated from Smith College, A.B., 1898, being class orator on graduation. While in college she was editor-in-chief of the Smith College Monthly, and since graduation has been continuously occupied with literature as contributor of stories and poems to magazines, and as author of books: Sister's Vocation, and Other Stories, 1900; Smith College Stories, 1900; The Imp and the Angel, 1901; Fables for the Fair, 1901; Whom the Gods Destroyed, 1902; Poems, 1903; Middle-Aged Love Stories, 1903; Memoirs of a Baby, 1904; Domestic Adventures, 1907; Ten to Seventeen, 1907; An Idyll of All Fools' Day, 1908. She was married at Stamford, Conn., July 25, 1903, to Selden Bacon, and has two daughters: Anne and Deborah. Address: Beech Hill, Pleasantville, Station, N. Y.

BACON, Robert:

Former assistant secretary of State. He was graduated from Harvard College with the degree of A.B. in 1880 (classmate of President Roosevelt). He was engaged in banking and became a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company, of New York, and was director in various large corporations. He was appointed assistant secretary of State of the United States, from Oct. 1, 1905, until March 4, 1909. Mr. Bacon was an overseer of Harvard from 1889 to 1901, and was again appointed a member of the Board of Overseers in 1902, and is now serving. Mr. Bacon married Martha Cowdin. Residence: 1333 Sixteenth Street, Washington. Official address: Department of State, Washington, D. C.

BACON, Selden:

Lawyer and law author; born in New Haven, Conn., Sept. 28, 1861; son of Rev. Dr. Leonard Woolsey Bacon, distinguished Congregationalist clergyman and author, and Susan Bacon. Mr. Bacon was educated in Yale College, Carleton College, Minnesota, A.B. 1882, A.M. 1885, University of Wisconsin, LL.B. 1884. He was admitted to the Minnesota bar, 1884, and practised law in Minnesota until 1894, since which year he has practised in New York City. Mr. Bacon was professor of civil procedure in the Law School of the University of Minnesota from 1889 to 1894, and is author of a volume on Equity Pleading and Procedure. He is a member of the American Geographical Society, and of the Archaeological Institute of America. He married first, at Madison, Wis., Oct. 24, 1894, Sally Blair Fairchild, who died in 1902, leaving two daughters, and married, second, July 25, 1903, Josephine Dodge Daskam, the well-known author, by whom he has two daughters. Residence: Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. Office: 60 Wall Street, New York City.

BADÈ, William Frederic:

Professor of Semitic literature and languages; born at Carver, Minn., Jan. 22, 1871; son of William and Anna (Voigt) Badè. He was graduated from Moravian College, as A.B. in 1892, from the Moravian Theological Seminary as B.D. in 1894, and from the Divinity School of Yale University, as B.D. in 1895, having studied Arabic there for a year. He took post-graduate work at Moravian College and Lehigh University from 1896 to 1898, receiving the degree of Ph.D. (his doctor's thesis being on The Babylonian Deluge Legends), and took special studies at the University of Berlin, Germany, in 1905. He was assistant professor of Greek and German at Moravian College from 1896 to 1898; professor of Hebrew and Old Testament Introduction at the Moravian Theological Seminary from 1898 to 1902; and has been professor of Old Testament Literature and Languages at the Pacific Theological Seminary (affiliated with the University of California) since 1902. During 1909 he was engaged on an exploring expedition in Asia Minor. He was editor of the Moravian, official organ of the American Moravian denomination in 1899 and 1900. He was dean of the Federate Summer School of Theology, at Berkeley, Calif., in 1907. He is a member of the Society for Biblical Literature and Exegesis, and the American Philological Association. Dr. Badè married at Berkeley, Calif., Sept. 26, 1906, Evelyn Marianne Rateliff (B.S. University of California), who died Sept. 18, 1907. Residence: 2616 College Avenue. Address: 2223 Atherton Street, Berkeley, Calif.

BADGER, Charles Johnston:

Captain of the United States Navy; born Aug. 6, 1853. He was appointed at large to Naval Academy, June 1869. After graduation he served on the various naval stations and was executive of the U. S. S. Alert, of the Greely Relief Expedition of 1884. For participation in this expedition, he received, by name, the thanks of Maryland as tendered in joint resolutions of the Senate and House of Delegates, assembled at Annapolis. He performed a tour of duty with conspicuous success as commandant of cadets at the Naval Academy under Superintendent Brownson and after sea service as captain of the U. S. S. Chicago returned to the Naval Academy as Superintendent, July, 1907. Address: U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

BAENSCH, Emil:

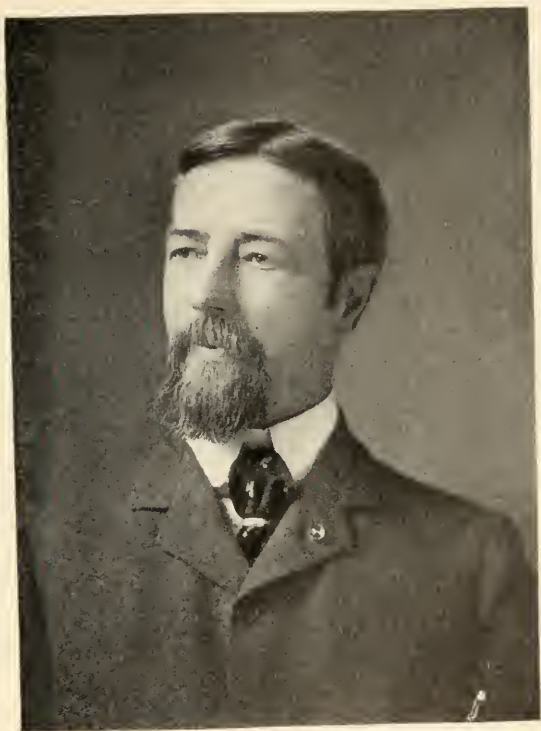

Lawyer; born at Manitowoc, Wis., June 12, 1857; son of August and Gesine Baensch. He was educated at the University of Wisconsin, and, returning to his home town and taking up the study of law, was admitted to the bar of Wisconsin in 1882. He is a Republican, and has been elected to various offices, including that of county judge and two terms as lieutenant-governor of Wisconsin. Besides his law practice, Mr. Baensch is editor and publisher of the Manitowoc Post. He has been vice-president of the Wisconsin Bar Association, and three times president of the Wisconsin Press Association; is identified with various historical associations, and makes a specialty of the history of Germans in colonial and revolutionary times. He married, in 1882, Ida Koehler. Address: Manitowoc, Wis.

BAER, George F.

President of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad; born in Somerset County, Pennsylvania, near the Village of Lavansville, Sept. 26, 1842; of German ancestry; son of Solomon and Anna Baer. He was educated at the Franklin and Marshall College. At the age of thirteen he entered the office of the Somerset Democrat, where he remained for two years, and afterward was engaged as employee and later book-keeper for the Ashtola Lumber Mills, near Johnstown, Pa., joined the Union Army at the battle of Bull Run; participated in all the engagements up to and including Chancellorsville, when he was the adjutant-general of the Second Brigade. Resuming his legal studies, he was admitted to the bar in 1864. In 1868 he removed to Reading, Pa., and became an active practitioner at the Berks County bar. He became prominent, in connection with Mr. J. P. Morgan, in the reorganization of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, 1893; and was elected president of the Reading Company, and of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, in 1901. Mr. Baer is a member, and was formerly president, of the Pennsylvania German Society; is a member of the Reading Park Commission, and took an active part in the establishment of the Reading Public Library. He is interested in literature and in historical research, and is the author of various papers on the early history of the Pennsylvania Germans. Address: 1718 Spruce Street, Philadelphia.

BAILEY, Edward:

Banker and iron manufacturer; born in Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 19, 1861; son of Charles L. and Emma H. (Doll) Bailey. He was prepared in Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University as Ph.B. in the class of 1881. Mr. Bailey is president of the Harrisburg National Bank, the Harrisburg Trust Company and the Harrisburg Traction Company. He is a trustee of the Pennsylvania State Asylum, a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, and of the University Club of New York City, and the University and Art Clubs of Philadelphia. He married at Harrisburg, Oct. 2, 1889, Elizabeth H. Reily, and they have three children. Residence: 1517 N. Front Street. Office: Harrisburg National Bank, Harrisburg, Pa.

GEORGE F. BAER
President Reading Railroad

BAILEY, Elijah Prentiss:

Editor; born in Manlius, N. Y., Aug. 15, 1834. He was educated in public and Latin and grammar schools of Utica, and has received the honorary degrees of LL.D. from St. John's College and of A.M. from Colgate University. He has been connected with the Utica Observer continuously since 1853, being city editor until 1867, when he became managing editor and part proprietor; and has been editor-in-chief since 1883. Mr. Bailey was postmaster of Utica, N. Y., for two terms under President Cleveland; school commissioner of Utica for six years; president of the New York State Civic Service Commission, 1892-1894, and Government commissioner of the Northern Pacific Railroad, 1886. He married first, in 1857, Julia S. Wetherby, who died in 1860; and, second, in 1868, Hannah Chapman. Residence: 326 Genesee Street. Office: The Observer, Utica, N. Y.

BAILEY, Joseph Weldon:

United States Senator; born in Copiah County, Miss., Oct. 6, 1863. He was admitted to the bar in 1883; served as a district elector on the Cleveland and Hendricks ticket in 1884; removed to Texas in 1885 and located in the practice of law at Gainesville, where he has ever since resided. He served as an elector for the State at large on the Democratic ticket in 1888; was elected to the Fifty-second, Fifty-third, Fifty-fourth, Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Congresses, and on the organization of the Fifty-fifth Congress, March 15, 1897, was the Democratic nominee for Speaker of the House of Representatives. He was chosen United States Senator Jan. 23, 1901, to succeed Senator Horace Chilton, and took his seat March 5 of that year; and was elected Jan. 23, 1907, for the term expiring March 3, 1913. Senator Bailey was for several years regarded as the leader of the minority in the Senate, but owing to severe attacks made upon him alleging his connection with corporate interests, especially those of the Standard Oil Company, he was compelled to give his attention to a successful defense against these aspersions during the first session of the Sixtieth Congress. Address: Gainesville, Texas.

BAILEY, Liberty Hyde:

Educator, author, editor, lecturer; born at South Haven, Mich., March 15, 1858; son of L. H. Bailey and Sarah (Harrison) Bailey. He was graduated with the degree of B.S. and later of M.S. from Michigan Agricultural College, and received the LL.D. degree from the University of Wisconsin and from Alfred University. He was professor of horticulture and landscape gardening at the Michigan Agricultural College from 1884 to 1888; professor of horticulture at Cornell University from 1888 to 1903, and has been director of the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University from 1903. President Roosevelt appointed Professor Bailey president of the Commission on Country Life, organized in 1908. Dr. Bailey is a lecturer on educational, scientific and social topics; is editor of the Cyclopedia of American Horticulture (four volumes), Cyclopedia of American Agriculture (four volumes), and the Rural Science Series; was first editor of Country Life in America; was formerly editor of American Garden, and he is author of: Survival of the Unlike; Evolution of Our Native Fruits; Elementary Textbook of Botany; Lessons With Plants; First Lessons With Plants; Principles of Agriculture; Principles of Fruit-Growing; Principles of Vegetable-Gardening; Outlook to Nature; The Nature-Study Idea; Horticulturist's Rule-Book; Nursery-Book; Plant-Breeding; Forcing-Book; Garden-Making; Pruning-Book; Practical Garden-Book; The State and the Farmer, and other books, and of botanical contributions. Dr. Bailey is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; and a member of the American Philosophical Society. He married, June 6, 1883, Annette Smith, and he has two children. Address: Ithaca, N. Y.

BAILEY, Leon Orlando:

Lawyer; born on a farm near Wellsboro, Tioga County, Pa., June 21, 1857; son of John W. and Margaret (Lewis) Bailey. He was entered as a student in the classical course at Cornell University in the class of 1880, but left at the end of the sophomore year, then entering the Indiana Law School, from which he was graduated LL.B. 1881. He began the practice of law at Indianapolis in 1881; has been admitted to all the courts of Indiana and New York, and all the Federal courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States. Mr. Bailey removed to New York City permanently in 1902, and has since practised there; and he has made a specialty of corporation law. He was a member of the Indiana State Senate from Indianapolis for four years; was chief assistant attorney-general of Indiana for four years; assistant United States attorney two years, and designated by President Cleveland as United States attorney for the district of Indiana at the close of the latter's first term. He was also corporation counsel of the City of Indianapolis for one term, and Democratic nominee for Congress from the Indianapolis district in 1898. He is now general counsel and director of the American Finance and Securities Company; counsel for the New Jersey Steel Company, and counsel and director of the Guanaquato Reduction and Mines Company, with plant at Guanaquato, Mexico. Mr. Bailey is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the Indiana State Bar Association, Indianapolis Bar Association, and Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity. Mr. Bailey has been twice married, first at Lock Haven, Pennsylvania, in 1877, to Rosamond Paty Coggeshall, who died Sept. 16, 1892 and second, at Martha's Vineyard, Mass., Sept. 1, 1901, Gertrude May Stein, by whom he has a son and twin daughters. Residence: Bronxville, N. Y. Office: 5 Nassau Street, New York City.

BAILEY, Pearce:

Physician, neurologist; born in New York City, July 12, 1865. He was graduated from Princeton, A.B. 1886, afterward receiving the A.M. degree, and was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City, M.D. 1889. Since then he has been practising medicine in New York City, now being a specialist in diseases of the mind and the nervous system. Dr. Bailey is consulting neurologist to the St. Luke's and Roosevelt hospitals. He is author of: Diseases of the Nervous System Resulting from Accident and Injury. He is a member of the Century and University Clubs. Dr. Bailey married Edith L. Black. Address: 52 W. 53d Street, New York City.

BAILEY, Theodore Layton:

Lawyer; born in New York City, June 7, 1878; son of Edward Henry and Irene (Clifford) Bailey. He was graduated from Cornell University, Ph.B. 1899, and from New York Law School, LL.B. 1901. He was admitted to the bar in 1901, and has since practised law in New York City, now being a member of the firm of Roelker, Bailey and Curtis. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the New York County Lawyers' Association, the Alpha Delta Phi and Phi Delta Phi fraternities, Squadron A of the National Guard of New York, and the Alpha Delta Phi and Underwriters Club of New York City. He married in New York City, April 20, 1907, Gillian Webster Barr, and they have one daughter. Residence: 153 E. 74th Street. Office: 62 William Street, New York City.

BAILY, Joshua L.:

Merchant; born in Philadelphia, June 27, 1826; son of Joshua Baily, Jr., and Elizabeth (Lloyd) Baily. He was educated at the Friends Select School in Philadelphia and at Westtown Boarding School in Pennsylvania. He entered the dry goods business at the age of 16 and is now senior member of Joshua L. Baily & Company, of Philadelphia and New York. He is president of the Philadelphia Society for the Employment and Instruction of the Poor; of the Philadelphia Fountain Society, and of the Pennsylvania Prison Society. He is also vice-president of the American Peace Society, the National Temperance Society and the American Tract Society, and a manager of the American Bible Society, and a director of the American Forestry Association. He is a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania; the National Geographic Society; the American Academy of Political and Social Science; an original member of the Committee of One Hundred organized in 1879, and was a member of the National Relief Commission during the Spanish-American War, and is a trustee and director of many charitable and other institutions. He is also a member of the Contemporary Club, the Merion Cricket Club and the City Club. Mr. Baily married in 1856, Theodate, daughter of John D. Lang, of Vassalboro, Me., and they have five sons, four of whom are partners with him in his business. Residence: "Langmere," Ardmore, Pa. Office address: 32 South Fifteenth Street, Philadelphia.

BAIN, George Grantham:

Journalist; born in Chicago, Jan. 7, 1865. Mr. Bain is one of the leading syndicate and special writers for the American press. Mr. Bain was graduated from the St. Louis University in 1883, and received the degree of M.A. from that University in 1890. He was formerly one of the best-known of Washington correspondents, but of late years has been located in New York, and contributes New York letters to a large number of papers. He is also a writer of short stories for the leading magazines. Office: 32 Union Square, East, New York City.

BAIN, Robert Edward Mather:

Passenger agent and amateur photographer; born in Chicago, Aug. 9, 1858, and was educated at the Washington University, St. Louis. He has had a successful career as passenger agent for various lines of transportation, and is at present general passenger manager for the Southwest of the International Mercantile Marine Company, having held this position since Feb., 1903. Mr. Bain is, however, most generally known as one of the leading amateur photographers of the United States. He has traveled through the Holy Land extensively and the results of his travels appear in his illustration of several works on the Bible from photographs made during his journeys. Mr. Bain was a member of the Missouri legislature from 1881 to 1883, and for ten years was president of the St. Louis Photographic Club. He married, Nov. 3, 1880, Mary Valle. Office: Century Building, St. Louis.

BAINBRIDGE, Oliver:

Lecturer, author and explorer. Mr. Bainbridge is British-born, but aptly designated a "citizen of the world whose heart is no island cut off from other lands but a continent that joins them." He has traveled 200,000 miles and penetrated the unfamiliar regions of the earth, mingled with every color, sort and condition of mankind. He enjoys the personal acquaintance of nearly every ruler in the world, has received many honors from various countries and fellowships from geographical, literary and scientific societies for his notable contributions to the world of science. He discovered the Black Jews in the Gulf of Papua. Mr. Bainbridge was the first scientist to visit the Chinese Jews in Raifengfu—the ancient capital of China, where he discovered a sepher, sepher Torah and an old, long, narrow stone in the side of an empty mud hut which bore traces of an inscription, dealing with these strange people. He is author of Hidden Jewish Tribes; The Devil's Note Book; Pacific Kindred, etc., and is an occasional contributor to leading magazines and journals throughout the world on Travel and Education. Mr. Bainbridge lectures before educational institutions and learned societies in the principal countries on these subjects and has coöperated with nearly every department of public instruction in existence. He owns the largest collection of autographed photographs and letters from dignitaries and celebrities in the world. Address: 2227 Maplewood Ave., Toledo, Ohio.

BAINBRIDGE, William Seaman:

Physician and surgeon; born in Providence, R. I., Feb. 17, 1870; son of William

Folwell and Lucy Elizabeth (Seaman) Bainbridge. He was educated at the Mohegan Lake School at Peekskill, N. Y., and he received the degree of A.M. from Shurtleff College, and M.S. from Washington and Jefferson; was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York (Medical Department of Columbia University) with the degree of M.D. in 1896. In June, 1907, the Western University of Pennsylvania conferred upon him the degree of Sc.D. He was for over two years on the house staff of the Presbyterian Hospital of New York City, and later was physician of the Sloane Maternity Hospital. He was a graduate student of Columbia University, for one winter, in bacteriology, and has been abroad seven times, several times professionally, and twice to study. In all he has spent about four years abroad, part of the time in China, Japan and India. He was quiz-master at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, 1894-1896, and he volunteered as surgeon in the Spanish-American War, but did not see any active service. He was formerly for years adjunct professor of gynecology at the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital; and is now surgeon and gynecologist to the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital; attending surgeon to the New York City Children's Hospitals and Schools; is clinical professor of surgery, New York Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital; consulting gynecologist to St. Andrew's Convalescent Hospital and St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, Long Island, and consulting surgeon to the Manhattan State Hospital, Ward's Island, and to the New York Home for Dependent Crippled Children; associate surgeon Woman's Hospital. Dr. Bainbridge, when a student, was graduated as senior captain from the Mohegan Lake School; served one year in Cadet Company of the Thirtieth Regiment, National Guard of the State of New York, years ago; and was for a time surgeon-general, with rank of brigadier-general, of the Boys' Brigade of America. He is a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, of the American Medical Association, of the New York Academy of Medicine, New York State Medical Society, Greater New York Medical Association, Mummi Societies of the Presbyterian Hospital and Sloane Maternity Hospital, etc., and was honorary president of the Heidelberg Congress on Cancer, held in September, 1907. He has been an extensive contributor to medical and scientific literature, and is author of: Life's Day; Guide Posts and Danger Signals in Health; Our Unseen Foes, a work on bacteriology, and The Growing Years (both based on lectures delivered at Chautauqua, and populo-scientific in character); also of a Compend of Operative Gynecology, published by the Grafton Press, New York City, and many scientific papers. Dr. Bainbridge is a bachelor, and a member of the Quill and Students' Club. Address: (summer) Hotel Athenaeum, Chautauqua, N. Y.; (winter) 34 Gramercy Park, New York City.

BAIR, Joseph Hershey:

Professor of psychology; born at Hall, Pa., in 1875; son of Daniel and Anna (Hershey) Bair. He studied at Lafayette College, and at the University of Michigan, from which he was graduated in 1899 with degree of A.B. He also received the advanced degrees of A.M., in 1900, from the University of Michigan, and Ph.D., in 1902 from Columbia University. In 1901 he took up work as a research fellow in the Carnegie Institute, in which he continued until 1902, when he went to Columbia University as assistant in anthropology. From 1903 to 1907 he was professor of psychology in the University of Colorado, at Boulder, and in 1907 he retired from active university work, and is devoting himself to research and to the publication of several books upon which he has been working for several years. He is also connected with several mining, power and other enterprises. In 1902 he was elected to membership in the Columbia Chapter of the Sigma Xi honor society, and in the same year became a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is also a member of the American Psychological Association, the Western Association of College Teachers of Education, the Colorado Scientific Society and the Boulder Commercial Association. Dr. Bair married at Jersey Shore, Pa., July, 1904, Elizabeth B. Hill, and they have two sons. Address: 4224 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

BAIRD, George Washington:

Engineer and rear admiral U. S. N., retired; born in Washington, D. C., April 22, 1843; son of Matthew and Ophelia (Cauthorn) Baird. He was educated in public and private schools in Washington, D. C., and in 1862 entered the U. S. Navy as third assistant engineer. He served through the grades in the Engineer service of the Navy, becoming chief engineer in 1892; was transferred to the Line in 1891; and retired with the rank of rear admiral, U. S. N., 1905. He invented Baird's fresh water distiller, an evaporator, steam trap, steering gear, steam heater, etc.; designed the first steam capstan used in the U. S. Navy; he also designed the system of ventilation by aspiration. He served in the Mississippi, Calhoun, Kensington and Pensacola, during the Civil War, and was under fire twenty-three times. During the Spanish War he was superintendent of the State, War and Navy Building, but did Navy duty in examining mechanical recruits. Rear-Admiral Baird was formerly president of the Board of Education, of Washington, D. C.; is past president of the Navy Mutual Aid Association; past president of the American Society of Naval Engineers; past grand master of Freemasons; member of the National Geographic Society, the Washington Society of Engineers, Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, Sons of the American Revolution and the Cosmos Club of Washington. He married in Washington, Nov. 20, 1873, Lyle J. Prather. Address: 1505 Rhode Island Avenue, Washington, D. C.

BAIRD, Henry Carey:

Publisher and bookseller; born at Bridesburg, Pa., (Frankford Arsenal), Sept. 10, 1825; son of Captain Thomas James of the U. S. Artillery and of Eliza Catherine (Carey) Baird, daughter of Mathew Carey.

He was the pioneer publisher of industrial books in America. He is a writer on economic questions, and lecturer, and has been a pamphleteer for half a century at his own cost. He is an ardent unflagging Protectionist, claiming that through this policy diversified industries are built up, the natural law of association and combination among men complied with, through which alone civilization can be assured. Mr. Baird has served as an expert witness before Committees of the House of Representatives on Currency, and on Ways and Means, and also before the Monetary Commission of 1876. He was Greenback candidate for mayor of Philadelphia, and was nominated by the Greenback Convention for State treasurer of Pennsylvania, but declined. He is head of the firm of Henry Carey Baird & Company, publishers. Mr. Baird married in Philadelphia, Sept. 26, 1850, Elizabeth Davis, daughter of John Pennington (she died, 1901), and they have had one daughter. Address: 810 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

BAIRD, Julian William:

Chemist and educator; born in Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 14, 1859; son of Abram Henry and Sarah Elizabeth (Wagoner) Baird. He was graduated from the University of Michigan as A.B. in 1882 and as M.A. and Ph.C. in 1883. He then attended Harvard University Medical School from which he was graduated as M.D. in 1890. Dr. Baird was assistant in quantitative chemical analysis in the University of Michigan, in 1882-1883, instructor in charge of qualitative chemical analysis and in assaying in Lehigh University from 1883 to 1886, and has been professor of analytical and organic chemistry, since 1886, at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, at Boston, of which institution he has also been dean since 1897. He is a member of the American Chemical Society; American Pharmaceutical Association; American Medical Association; the Society of Chemical Industry (London); Massachusetts Medical Society, and Boston Society of Medical Science; and he is honorary member of the Massachusetts State Pharmaceutical Association. He married at Laconia, N. H., Oct. 25, 1897, Hattie Bell Ellinwood, and they have one daughter. Residence: 102 St. Botolph Street. Office: Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, Boston.

BAKER, Alfred L.:

Banker and broker; born in Boston, Mass., April 30, 1859; son of Addison and Maria (Mudge) Baker. He was educated at the Lynn High School, Lynn, Mass., and was admitted to the bar of Essex County, Mass. at Lynn, in 1881, removed to Chicago in 1886, and practised law under the firm name of Baker & Greeley until he went into stocks and bonds in 1896; and he purchased in Oct., 1896, a membership in the New York Stock Exchange, of which he is still a member, also vice-president of the National City Bank of Chicago. He is vice-president and director of the Chicago and Calumet Canal and Dock Co. Mr. Baker was president of the Chicago Stock Exchange three years, from 1898 to 1900, and is still a director of that body, and was president of the Merchants' Club of Chicago in 1905. He was president for five years of the Onwentsia Club, and is president of the Board of Trustees of Lake Forest University, governor of the Society of Colonial Wars, and a member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants. Mr. Baker married at Chicago, Ill., June 6, 1894, Mary Corwith, and they have two children: Isabelle, born in 1897, and Mary Landon, born in 1901. Residence: Lake Forest, Ill. Office: 209 La Salle Street, Chicago.

BAKER, Charles Whiting:

Editor, civil engineer; born at Johnson, Lamoille County, Vermont, Jan. 17, 1865; son of Thomas Jefferson Baker and Mattie (Whiting) Baker. He was educated at the Vermont State Normal School and the University of Vermont, from which he was graduated as C.E. in 1886. He was a draughtsman at the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia, 1886-1887, and has been on the editorial staff since 1887, and chief editor since 1895 of the Engineering News, New York City, and is vice-president and a director of the Engineering News Publishing Company. He is a Congregationalist in religious affiliation; a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Economic Association, and the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He is author of Monopolies and the People (Putnam). He married, June 4, 1890, Rebekah Wheeler, of Burlington, Vermont, and they have two sons. Residence: Fern Hill, 20 South Mountain Avenue, Montclair, N. J. Address: 220 Broadway, New York City.

BAKER, Fisher A.:

Lawyer; born in Dedham, Mass., Feb. 8, 1837; son of John and Patty (Ellis) Baker. He was graduated from Dartmouth College, A.B., 1859, and studied in the Albany Law School. He served, during the Civil War, in the 18th Massachusetts Volunteers with the Fifth Corps of the Army of the Potomac. Mr. Baker was admitted to the bar in 1860, and has practised law in New York City from 1865. He is a trustee of the Bankers' Safe Deposit Company; and director of the First Security Company, First National Bank of the City of New York, and the New Jersey General Security Company. He is a trustee of the Hackley School at Tarrytown, N. Y., member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa Society, Military Order of the Loyal Legion and the Unitarian Club of New York. He married, May 25, 1869 Catherine W. Fisher. Residence: Yonkers, N. Y. Office: 2 Wall Street, New York City.

BAKER, Francis E.:

United States circuit judge; born in Goshen, Ind., Oct. 20, 1860; son of Judge John H. and Harriet (Defrees) Baker. He was educated in the Indiana State University and at the University of Michigan, from which he was graduated A.B., 1882, being class poet, and he was literary editor of the University Chronicle during the last two years at college. He entered his father's law office in 1882, and in 1885 became his partner in the firm of Baker & Baker at Goshen, Ind., until his father became United States judge in 1892, and after that as head of the firm of Baker and Miller, who were attorneys for the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway and other corporations, until he was elected a judge of the Supreme Court of Indiana in 1899 and he held that office until appointed, Feb. 4, 1902, to his present office of judge of the United States Circuit Court for the Seventh Circuit. Judge Baker is a member of the Columbia and Marion Clubs at Indianapolis, the University Club and Chicago Athletic Association of Chicago, and an honorary member of the Union League Club of Chicago. Residence: Goshen, Ind. Official addresses: Chicago and Indianapolis, Ind.

BAKER, Frank:

Superintendent of the well-known zoölogical gardens in Washington, D. C., which are under the direction of the Smithsonian Institution. Mr. Baker was graduated from the National Medical College, now a part of George Washington University of Washington, in 1880. Since 1883 he has been professor of anatomy at Georgetown University, and for many years superintendent of the National Zoölogical Park. He has written a large number of articles on anatomy for text and reference books. He is secretary of the Washington Academy of Sciences, and a member of the American Naturalists Association, Society of American Anatomists, National Geographic Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and several scientific societies in Washington. He married at Sedgwick, Maine, Sept. 13, 1873, May E. Cole. Address: 1728 Columbia Road, Washington.

BAKER, Frank Collins:

Zoölogist; born in Warren, R. I., Dec. 14, 1867. He studied at Brown University. 1888-1889, was Jesup scholar at the Academy of Natural Sciences at Philadelphia. 1889-1890, was in charge of the Invertebrate Department of Ward's Natural Science Establishment at Rochester, N. Y. 1891-1892; curator of zoölogy in the Field Columbian Museum, Chicago, in 1894, and was curator 1894-1899 and since then has been director of the Chicago Academy of Sciences of which he was also secretary, 1891-1892. He is a member of the American Association of Museums; the Naturalist Society of the Central States; Illinois State Academy of Sciences, American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the Illinois Audubon Society, of which he has been vice-president from 1896, and he is a fellow of the Rochester Academy of Sciences, and was its secretary in 1891-1892. He has written extensively on mollusca and on museum administration. Residence: 717 Pine Grove Avenue. Office: Chicago Academy of Sciences, Lincoln Park, Chicago.

BAKER, Franklin Thomas:

Educator and author; born in Hagerstown, Md., Sept. 12, 1864; son of John Henry and Julia (McCoy) Baker. He was graduated from the high school at Hagerstown, Md., then entered Dickinson College from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1885. He afterward received the degree of A.M. both from Dickinson College and Columbia University, and the degree of Litt.D. from Dickinson College. He was a teacher in the Dickinson Preparatory School from 1887 to 1892; instructor in Teachers College, from 1892 to 1893; and has been professor of English in Teachers College, Columbia University since 1893. He was a lecturer at the Brooklyn Institute 1898-1906. Mr. Baker has contributed numerous papers to educational periodicals. He edited De Quincey's Revolt of the Tartars (Sibley & Company); Browning's Shorter Poems (Macmillan); Macaulay's Poems (Macmillan); Tennyson's Princess (Appleton); The De Coverley Papers (Appleton). Mrs. Gaskell's Cranford (Longmans), and he is joint author of: The Teaching of English (Longmans) the Language Reader Series (Macmillan), and an English Composition (Holt). Professor Baker married in Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 15, 1896, Emily A. Kip, and they have three children. Address: Park Hill, Yonkers, N. Y.

BAKER, George Fisher:

Banker; born in Troy, N. Y., March 27, 1840. He is president of the First National Bank; a director of the Astor National Bank, the Long Island Water Supply Company, and the New York and Long Branch Railroad Company; vice-president and director in Bankers' Safe Deposit Co., and director in various railroad and financial corporations. He is a member of the Metropolitan, Lawyers, New York Yacht, Tuxedo and Riding Clubs, and of the Music Art Society. Residence: 258 Madison Avenue. Office: 2 Wall Street, New York City.

BAKER, James Hutchins:

President of the University of Colorado; born at Harmony, Somerset County, Maine, Oct. 13, 1848; son of Wesley and Lucy (Hutchins) Baker. He was graduated from Bates College, A.B., 1873, and received from that college the degree of LL.D. in 1892. He was principal of the Yarmouth (Maine) High School, 1873-1875; principal of the Denver High School, 1875-1892, and since then has been president of the University of Colorado. Dr. Baker was president of the National Council of Education, 1892; president of the National Association of State Universities, 1907, and has served as a member of the National Committee of Ten on Secondary Education; and he is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and a member of the Colorado Scientific Society and of the University Club of Denver. He is author of: Elementary Psychology; Education and Life; American Problems. He married in Denver, June 20, 1882, Jennie V. Hilton, and they have two children. Address: Boulder, Colo.

BAKER, Jennie Van Holland:

Physician and surgeon; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., May 25, 1851 daughter of James and Eliza Jane (Harned) Van Holland. She was educated in the Brooklyn public schools and was graduated from the New York Medical College and Hospital for Women with the degree of M.D. She married in Brooklyn, June 20, 1877, Mills P.

Baker, Jr., who died in 1879, and since 1882 she has been practising medicine in Brooklyn; and she is now chief of staff of the Memorial Hospital for Women and Children, Brooklyn, a member of the Board of Managers of that institution and a trustee of the Memorial Dispensary for Women and Children. Dr. Baker is a member of the Kings County Homeopathic Medical Society, New York State Homeopathic Medical Society, American Institute of Homeopathy, and of the Alumni Association of the New York Medical College and Hospital for Women, a member of the National Woman Suffrage Association, the Brooklyn League and the Brooklyn Woman's and Chiropcan Clubs. Address: 512 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BAKER, Ray Stannard:

Writer, editor; born in Lansing, Mich., April 17, 1870; son of Joseph Stannard and Alice (Potter) Baker. He was educated at the Michigan Agricultural College from which he was graduated as B.S. in 1889; and he took a partial literary and law course at the University of Michigan. He was formerly associate editor of McClure's Magazine, and is now associate editor of The American Magazine. He is a director of Phillips Publishing Company. Mr. Baker is the author of several books, notably: Following the Color Line, a study of the Negro race in the United States; Seen in Germany; The Boys' Book of Inventions; New Ideals in Healing and others. He has also written many series of magazine articles, being one of the coterie of magazine writers who helped to create the social and economic agitation of 1905-1907. Mr. Baker married at Lansing, Mich., Jan. 2, 1896, Jessie I. Beal, daughter of Dr. W. J. Beal, and they have four children. Address: Care of Phillips Publishing Company, 341 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

BALDWIN, Evelyn Briggs:

Arctic explorer; born in Springfield, Mo., July 22, 1862. He was graduated from Northwestern College, Naperville, Ill., and was in early life a teacher and superintendent of schools. In 1892 he became connected with the United States Weather Bureau, serving as an observer for eight years. While connected with the Bureau he accompanied the Peary North Greenland Expedition, 1893-1894, as meteorologist, and in 1897 attempted to join the Andre polar expedition, but arrived at Spitzbergen too late to do so. In 1898 he accompanied the Wellman Polar Expedition to Franz-Josef Land as meteorologist, and in connection with that expedition discovered and explored Graham Bell Land. On his return to the United States he severed his connection with the Weather Bureau and began the development of independent polar expeditions, organizing the Baldwin-Ziegler polar expedition in 1901-1902, which established depots of supplies for use in proposed attempts to reach the Pole. He continues to be engaged in matters relating to arctic research, and has added materially to the knowledge of arctic conditions by his explorations and by his numerous writings and reports. He is a member of the National Geographic Society and is a 32-degree Mason, and a member of the New York Yacht Club. Address: 37 W. 44th Street, New York City.

BALDWIN, James Mark:

Psychologist and educator; born in Columbia, S. C., Jan. 12, 1861; son of Hon. Cyrus H. Baldwin, U. S. sub-treasurer, and of Lydia Eunice (Ford) Baldwin; descendant of the Buckinghamshire (England) family of Baldwins. He was graduated from Princeton as A.B. in 1884, and received from the same college the degree of A.M. in 1887 and Ph. D. in 1889; studied in the Universities of Leipzig and Berlin in 1884-1885; received from the University of Oxford the degree of Sc.D. in 1900 (this being the first honorary degree in science ever conferred by that university), and degrees of LL.D. from the University of Glasgow, 1901, and the University of South Carolina, 1905. He was fellow and instructor in Princeton, 1885-1887, professor of philosophy in Lake Forest University, 1887-1890; professor of logic and metaphysics in the University of Toronto, 1890-1893; Stuart professor of psychology in Princeton University, 1893-1903; since 1903 professor of philosophy and psychology in Johns Hopkins University. Dr. Baldwin has an international reputation as a teacher and writer on psychology; is editor of a three volume Dictionary of Philosophy and Psychology which is probably the most frequently consulted reference book on those subjects; has edited other reference books on psychology and philosophy, and has been editor of the Psychological Review since 1894. He is author of the Handbook of Psychology (two volumes); Elements of Psychology; Mental Development in the Child and the Race; Social and Ethical Interpretations; Story of the Mind; Development and Evolution; Fragments of Philosophy and Science; Thoughts and Things, or Genetic Logic (three volumes) and of a translation of Ribot's German Psychology of To-day. Dr. Baldwin was vice-president of the International Psychological Congresses held in London in 1892 and at Munich in 1896; honorary president of the Congress of Criminal Anthropology, held at Geneva in 1896; president of the American Psychological Association in 1897; and is a member of the American Philosophical Society; London Aristotelian Society, London Sociological Society, the Paris Institute of Sociology (one of three American members), Belgian Pedagogical Society, and the Southern Society of Philosophy and Psychology, of which he was president, 1904-1907. He was awarded the gold medal of the Royal Academy of Science of Denmark in 1897 (never awarded to anyone else in America, before or since). His books have been translated into several foreign languages. An estimate of Dr. Baldwin's contributions to science, from the pen of Professor of A. T. Ormond, is to be found in the volume "A Score of Years, 1884-1904" (Scribner's, 1904). He married, in 1888, Helen Hayes Green, daughter of Rev. William Henry Green, D.D., president of Princeton Theological Seminary, and they have two daughters, known to the readers of their father's books as "H" and "E." Address: Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.

BALDWIN, Leroy Wilbur:

Banker; born in Rutland, Vt., Oct. 31, 1865; son of Warner H. Baldwin and Mary Olive (Hatch) Baldwin. He was educated in the Rutland High School and private schools. He began his business career in 1880, and he is now president and director of the Empire Trust Company, and the Rutland & Woodstock Company, and is a director of the Wisconsin Central Railway Company, Hungarian American Bank, Century Bank, American Automatic Weighing Machine Company, Limited, of England; the Rutland Railway, Light and Power Company; the Union Ferry Company of Brooklyn, the American Microscope and Biograph Company. Mr. Baldwin married in New York City, in 1890, Ettie Lucile Field. Residence: 8 East Seventieth Street. Office: 42 Broadway, New York City.

BALDWIN, Simeon Eben:

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Errors of Connecticut; born in New Haven, Conn., Feb. 5, 1840; son of Hon. Roger Sherman Baldwin, LL.D., governor of Connecticut and United States Senator, and grandson of Hon. Simeon Baldwin, judge of the Supreme Court of Errors. He was educated in Hopkins Grammar School of New Haven, at Yale College, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1861, and at Yale and Harvard Law Schools, and he received the degree of A.M. from Yale and in 1891, the degree of LL.D. from Harvard University. He engaged in the practice of law in New Haven, and was a member of State Commissions to revise the Education Laws, 1872, and General Statutes in 1873-1874, the Civil Procedure Laws, in 1878-1879, Taxation in 1885-1887. He was associate justice of the Supreme Court of Connecticut from 1893 to 1907, becoming chief justice of that court in 1907. He has been professor of constitutional and private international law in Yale University since 1872. He was president of the New Haven Colony Historical Society, 1884-1896; of the American Bar Association, 1890; of the American Social Science Association, 1897-1899; of the Connecticut Archeological Society, 1899-1901; of the International Law Association of London 1899-1901; of the Association of American Law Schools, 1902-1903; of the American Historical Association in 1905, etc. He is a member of the American Antiquarian Society, and of the National Institute of Arts and Letters and corresponding member of the Massachusetts Historical Society. He is author of Baldwin's Connecticut Digest; Modern Political Institutions; Baldwin's Illustrative Cases on Railroad Law; American Railroad Law; The American Judiciary; and co-author of: Two Centuries' Growth of American Law. He is a member of the Yale Club of New York City and the Graduates, Club of New Haven. Judge Baldwin married, in 1865, Susan Winchester, of Boston. Address: 44 Wall Street, New Haven, Conn.

BALDWIN, William James:

Mechanical engineer and expert on heating and ventilating. Mr. Baldwin was born on shipboard, June 14, 1844, his father having been a shipmaster. His birth was recorded at Waterford, Ireland. He received special training in marine architecture, and, during the Civil War, was engaged in special work in naval construction, having begun his career as mechanical engineer in 1862. He is now lecturer and professor of engineering at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, and is best known for his extensive writings on subjects connected with the heating and ventilating of buildings, his work on steam-heating and on the ventilation of schoolrooms, and those on the mechanical details of heating and ventilating problems being the standard works on such subjects. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and an associate member of the American Institute of Architects. From 1881 to 1890 he was associate editor of the Engineering Record. Residence: 151 Halsey Street, Brooklyn. Office: "World Building," New York.

BALL, James Moores:

Physician; born at West Union, Iowa, Sept. 4, 1862; son of Dr. James Moores and Martha (Glover) Ball. He studied medicine at the Iowa State University, Iowa City, Iowa, graduating with the degree of M. D. in 1884 and taking further work in New York City and abroad. Dr. Ball has made a speciality of diseases of the eye, to which he now gives his entire time and on which topic he holds the chair at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in St. Louis, Mo.; having been appointed in 1894. He has also been oculist to Jefferson Hospital, to the City Hospital, and to the Convent of the Good Shepherd in the same city. He is a member of the American Medical Association and of numerous other American professional societies. He has published a number of articles on his speciality, and is the author of Ball's Modern Ophthalmology (1904). He was for two years editor of the Annals of Ophthalmology. Residence: 4374 Washington Boulevard. Address: 4500 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

BALL, Thomas:

Painter, sculptor; born in Charlestown, Mass., June 3, 1819; son of Thomas Ball and Elisabeth Wyer (Hall) Ball. He was educated in a public school at Boston, Mass., and he received the honorary degree of A.M. from Dartmouth College in 1860. He was sculptor of the equestrian statue of Washington in Boston; the Washington Monument in Methuen, Mass., and statues of Daniel Webster. He resided for many years in Florence, Italy. He became an honorary fellow of the National Sculpture Society in 1896. Mr. Ball is author of My Three Score Years and Ten, an autobiography, and also various poems. He married in Boston, in 1854, Ellen Louisa Wild, and they have a married daughter. Residence: 105 Upper Montclair Av., Montclair, N. J. Studio: 205 East 17th Street, New York.

BALLANTINE, William Gay:

Former president of Oberlin College; born in Washington, D. C., Dec. 7, 1848; son of Prof. Elisha Ballantine, LL.D. He was graduated from Marietta College, Ohio, as A.B. in 1868, and from the Union Theological Seminary in New York in 1872; and he took post-graduate work at the University of Leipzig in 1872-1873. He was a member of the American Palestine Exploring Expedition in 1873; professor of chemistry and natural science at Ripon College, 1874-1876; assistant professor of Greek in the University of Indiana, 1876 to 1878. From 1878 to 1881 he was professor of Greek and Hebrew in Oberlin Theological Seminary, and was professor of Old Testament languages and literature from 1881 to 1891; and president of Oberlin College from 1891 to 1896, when he resigned and went to Greece to study. Since 1897 professor of the Bible at the International Y. M. C. A. Training School, Springfield, Mass. He received the degree of D.D. from Marietta College in 1885, and of LL.D. from the Western Reserve University in 1891. He was editor of the Bibliotheca Sacra from 1884 to 1891. He is author of a work on Inductive Logic. Address: Springfield, Mass.

BALLINGER, Richard Achilles:

Secretary of the Interior; born at Boonesboro, Iowa, July 9, 1858; son of Richard H. and Mary E. (Norton) Ballinger. He was graduated from Williams College in 1884 with the degree of A.B., and taking up the study of law at Chicago, was admitted to the bar of the State of Illinois in 1886. In 1890 he was made United States Court Commissioner at Port Townsend, Washington, and in 1894 was elected judge of the Superior Court of Jefferson County. Mr. Ballinger is a Republican, and was elected in 1904 as mayor of Seattle for a term of two years; and he was appointed by President Roosevelt, March 4, 1907, as commissioner of the General Land Office of the United States, which he resigned early in 1908, resuming the practice of law, until called into the Cabinet by President Taft, March 4, 1909, as Secretary of the Interior. He is a member of the Loyal Legion. Mr. Ballinger is author of numerous legal works, among them being: Ballinger On Community Property; and Ballinger's Annotated Codes and Statutes of Washington. He married Oct. 26, 1886, Julia A. Bradley, of Lee, Mass., and has two children. Address: Department of the Interior, Washington, D. C.

BAMFORD, Mary Ellen:

Author; born at Healdsburg, Calif., Dec. 10, 1857; daughter of Dr. William and Cornelia Elizabeth (Rand) Bamford. Her father was a pioneer physician who went across the plains in the early '50s, and her mother, a native of New Hampshire, went to California, 1854-1855, by a long voyage around Cape Horn. Miss Bamford was educated in the high school of Oakland, Calif., and was for four years an assistant in the Oakland Free Public Library. Her father was a contributor to the Western Lancet, and her mother wrote a good deal for the New York Independent, New York Observer and other papers. Miss Bamford is author of twenty books: Up and Down the Brooks, My Land and Water Friends; The Look About Club; Second Year of the Look About Club; Her Twenty Heathen; In Editha's Days; Jessie's Three Resolutions; Three Roman Girls; Miss Millie's Trying; Father Lambert's Family; A Piece of Kitty Hunter's Life; Thoughts of My Dumb Neighbors; Out of the Triangle, (first published serially, winning first prize of $250 for serial, offered by David C. Cook Co., Chicago); Ti; The Danby Children at the Fair; Eleanor and I; Marie's Story; Talks by Queer Folks; Janet and Her Father; Number One or Number Two; also a pamphlet on Burma; the Work and the Workers, (published by the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society), and much writing for the Youth's Companion (Boston), Cook's publications (Chicago) and the publications of the different denominational boards. Miss Bamford is secretary for North and Central California for the Woman's Baptist Foreign Missionary Society of the West, (headquarters, Chicago). Address: 621 East 15th Street, East Oakland, Calif.

BANCROFT, Edgar Addison:

Lawyer; born at Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 20, 1857; son of Addison N. and Catherine (Blair) Bancroft. He was graduated in 1878 with the degree of A.B. from Knox College at Galesburg, and from the law department of Columbia University as LL. B., in 1880. He was admitted to the bar of Illinois in 1880 and began to practise law at Galesburg. In 1892 Mr. Bancroft gave up the general practice of law and, becoming counsel for Illinois of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company, held that position for three years. This was followed by nine years as general counsel, and at the same time vice-president, of the Chicago and Western Indiana Railroad Company, and The Belt Railway Company. In 1904 he severed his connection with these, and became a member of the law firm of Scott, Bancroft & Stephens, with which he is still connected. Since May, 1907 he has also been general counsel of the International Harvester Company. In 1888 Mr. Bancroft was presidential elector of the Republican party and voted for Benjamin Harrison. He is author of several monographs on legal and political questions. He was married in New York City, April 18, 1896, to Margaret Healy. Residence: 64 Cedar Street, Chicago. Address: 206 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.

BANCROFT, Frederic:

Historian; born in Galesburg, Ill., Oct. 30, 1860. He was graduated from Amherst as A.B. in 1882, and received the degrees of Ph.D. from Columbia, in 1885, and LL.D. from Knox College in 1900. He studied law and political science at Columbia; studied history, political economy, and diplomacy at Göttingen, Berlin, Freiburg (Baden), and at École des Sciences Politiques, Paris; lectured on the political history of the Civil War and reconstruction at Amherst in 1888, and was chief of the Bureau of Rolls and Library of the Department of State, 1888-1892. He has also lectured on diplomatic and political history at Columbia, Johns Hopkins, and Chicago Universities, has contributed to most of the leading reviews and magazines, and has long been on the literary staff of the New York Nation. He was a delegate to the Paris Congress of Historians in 1900, lectured before the Lowell Institute at Boston, in 1903, on Life in the Confederacy, and made several trips through the Southern States for historical purposes. He is author of: The Negro in Politics; Life of William H. Seward (in collaboration with Wm. A. Dunning); A Sketch of the Public Life of Carl Schurz, and is writing an elaborate history of the Southern Confederacy. Address: Washington, D. C.

BANCROFT, Hubert Howe:

Author of West American Histories, Book of the Fair, Book of Wealth, Resources of Mexico, The New Pacific, etc.; born May 5, 1832, in Granville, Ohio, a New England settlement, his mother's father, Curtis Howe, coming from Vermont, and his father from Granville, Mass. Worked on his father's farm and attended the academy until sixteen years of age, when he entered, as clerk, a bookstore in Buffalo, N. Y., whose proprietor, three years later, sent him with a stock of goods to open business in San Francisco, where he arrived in March, 1852. While building up a large book-selling and publishing house, Mr. Bancroft became interested in gathering material for the history of this new and fascinating land, until his collection numbered 60,000 books, maps and manuscripts, when he erected for it a library building on Valencia Street, where it remained until it passed into the possession of the University of California, at Berkeley. Ambitious at length to reduce this vast wealth of material to forms of practical utility, Mr. Bancroft put at work a dozen and more men to sort out, extract, and classify the essential facts of history and place the results in his hands in proper form for writing a series of histories covering the western half of North America from Alaska to Panama which he had planned. This work covered a period of thirty years, and the result was the publication of the series, as follows: The Native Races of the Pacific States, 5 vol.; History of Central America, 3 vols.; History of Mexico, 6 vols.; North Mexican States and Texas, 2 vols.; California, 7 vols.; Arizona and New Mexico, 1 vol.; Colorado and Wyoming, 1 vol.; Utah and Nevada, 1 vol.; Northwest Coast, 2 vols.; Oregon, 2 vols.; Washington, Idaho, and Montana, 1 vol.; British Columbia, 1 vol.; Alaska, 1 vol.; California Pastoral, 1 vol.; California Inter Pocula, 1 vol.; Popular Tribunals, 2 vols.; Essays and Miscellany, 1 vol.; Literary Industries, 1 vol. Mr. Bancroft married at New Haven, Conn., in 1876, Matilda Griffing, and has four children, Paul, Philip, Griffing, and Lucy. Address: 2898 Jackson Street, San Francisco.

BANCROFT, William Amos:

President of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, and the chief factor in the local transportation situation in that city. General Bancroft was born in Groton, Mass., April 26, 1855. He was educated at Lawrence Academy, Phillips Exeter Academy and Harvard College, being graduated from the last named institution in 1878. He studied in the Harvard Law School from 1879 to 1881 and was admitted to the Suffolk bar in 1881. Before his connection with the Boston Elevated Railway and the transit problem in Boston, General Bancroft was best known as the best exponent of the militia system of Massachusetts. Enlisting in 1875 as a private, he served in all grades to major-general, and by his influence and example, and his untiring work in behalf of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, materially assisted in maintaining the efficiency and standing of that branch of the service of the United States. During the war with Spain his abilities as a military officer were recognized by an appointment as brigadier-general of the United States Volunteers. General Bancroft has taken an active part in the politics of Cambridge, where he took up his residence on his admission to the bar, and after a number of years of service in the city government, was elected mayor, serving for four years in that position. He has, since 1885, been in almost continuous connection with the surface railway enterprises in and around Boston, and in October, 1899, was chosen president of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, a corporation which, with its affiliated and associated concerns, carried on the tremendous transportation undertaking of carrying to Boston and returning to their more or less suburban homes, the crowds of people who constitute Boston's business and industrial population. The marked ability and success with which these problems have been met, is largely due to General Banerof's skillful direction and to the confidence in his management which is felt by the patrons of the roads under his control. General Banerof has been for many years an overseer of Harvard College, and is a director of the United States Trust Company, and trustee of Norwich University, Vermont, Lawrence Academy, Groton, Mass., and Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H. His services are frequently in demand for arranging and directing the ceremonies on notable public occasions. He is a member of the Cincinnati, The Order of Foreign Wars, Order of the Spanish War, and of a large number of clubs and associations. He married in Boston, in 1878, Mary Shaw. Residence: 12 Ware Street, Cambridge, Mass. Office: 101 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

BANDELIER, Adolph Francis Alphonse:

Archaeologist; born in Berne, Switzerland, Aug. 6, 1840, but came to the United States in his youth. From 1880 to 1885 he was commissioned by the Archaeological Institute of America to travel among the native races of New Mexico, Arizona, Mexico and Central America, and in 1892 went to Peru and Bolivia on a scientific expedition for Henry Villard. Since that time he has continued in exhaustive archaeological, ethnological and historical researches in the countries named for individuals and institutions, and the last, from 1894 to 1903, was in the employ of the American Museum of Natural History, for which he gathered an extensive collection of Peruvian and Bolivian antiquities. He has written a large number of books on various scientific matters which have been the subject of his investigations, and has lectured on these subjects as his work permitted. He returned from Bolivia to North America in 1903, and is now connected with the Hispanic Society of America, Columbia University, and with the Catholic Encyclopedia. Mr. Bandelier married, first, in Highland, Ill., Jan. 10, 1862, Josephine Huegy, and second, in Lima, Peru, Dec. 30, 1893, Fanny Ritter. Address: Care of the Hispanic Society of America, 156th Street, near Broadway, New York.

BANGS, John Kendrick:

Humorist; born in Yonkers, N. Y., May 27, 1862; son of Francis N. Bangs and Amelia Frances (Bull) Bangs. He was graduated from Columbia College as Ph.B. in 1883 and studied one year at the Columbia Law School. He was associate editor of Life from 1884 to 1888; editor The Drawer, in Harper's Magazine in 1888 and 1889, and of Literary Notes in the same magazine in 1898 and 1899; was editor of Literature in 1899, and of Harper's Weekly from 1898 to 1900, and editor of the Metropolitan Magazine in 1903. Mr. Bangs is author of: Coffee and Repartee; A House Boat on the Styx; R. Holmes & Company; A Rebellious Heroine; Mr. Bonaparte of Corsica; The Jimmieboy Books; Lady Teazle (a comic opera); Tomorrowland, a Musical Fantasy, and many other works. Mr. Bangs has been twice married, first on March 3, 1886, to Agnes Lawson Hyde, and second, April 27, 1904, to Mary Blakeney Gray. By his first marriage Mr. Bangs has three sons. Address: Cape Neddick, Me.

BANKHEAD, John Hollis:

United States Senator; born in Moscow, Ala., Sept. 13, 1842; son of James Greer and Susan (Hollis) Bankhead. He is self-educated, and from boyhood was engaged as a farmer. He served for four years in the Confederate Army, as lieutenant and captain, and was wounded three times. He represented Marion County in the General Assembly of Alabama in the sessions of 1865, 1866 and 1867, and was a member of the State Senate in 1876 and 1877, and of the House of Representatives of Alabama in 1880 and 1881. He was warden of the Alabama Penitentiary from 1881 to 1885, was elected in 1886 to the Fiftieth Congress, and biennially elected thereafter up to and including November, 1904, when he was elected to the Fifty-ninth Congress from Sixth Alabama District. For the Sixtieth Congress, in 1900, he was defeated by Richmond P. Hobson, but having been nominated by the Democratic primary, he was appointed in June, 1907, by Governor Comer, as United States Senator to succeed the late John T. Morgan, and afterward elected by the Legislature for the remainder of the term expiring March 4, 1913. Senator Bankhead is prominent in the Masonic Order, and was Grand Master of the Alabama Grand Lodge in 1880 and 1881. He married at Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 13, 1866, Tallulah J. Brockman, daughter of James Brockman, of the Greenville District, South Carolina. Address: Fayette, Ala.

BANKSON, Lloyd:

Naval Constructor, U. S. Navy; born in Philadelphia, Nov. 15, 1857; son of John Palmer and Anne Catharine (Ash) Bankson. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania (College Department), B.Sc. 1877; was graduated from the United States Naval Academy as cadet-engineer in 1881, and from the École d'Application du Génie Maritime, France, with the degree of Ingénieur, in 1890. He made a two years' cruise as a cadet on men-of-war in European and South American waters, served as cadet-engineer, 1881-1883, assistant engineer, 1883-1889, assistant naval constructor, 1889-1896, and since June 30, 1896, has been naval constructor. He was assistant engineer in the Philadelphia Water Department, 1883-1886, with Major William Ludlow of the Corps of Engineers of the U. S. Army. He is a member of the Institution of Naval Architects of England, the Association Technique Maritime of France, and Society of Naval Architects of the United States, and of the University Club of Philadelphia. Residence: 4211 Chester Avenue, Philadelphia. Address: Care of Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

BANNARD, Otto T.:

President of the New York Trust Company; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., April 28, 1854; son of John W. and Eliza Landon (Stone) Bannard. He was graduated from Yale as B.A. in 1876, and from Columbia as LL.B. in 1878. He is president of the New York Trust Company; is a director of the Niagara Fire Insurance Company, the Securities Company, the Dolphin Fute Mills, and the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company. Mr. Bannard is vice-president of the Charity Organization Society; trustee of the United Charities Building, and treasurer and trustee of the Provident Loan Society (philanthropic pawn shop). He is a Republican in politics and was a commissioner of the Board of Education of New York City under Mayor Strong. Mr. Bannard is a member and ex-secretary of the University Club; ex-president of the Yale Club; member of the Union, Century, Republican and City Midway Clubs. Address: 26 Broad Street, New York City.

BANNON, Henry Towne:

Congressman and lawyer; born in Scioto County, near Portsmouth, Ohio, June 5, 1867; son of James W. and Mary E. (Smith) Bannon. He attended the Portsmouth schools, and in 1885 and 1886 attended the Ohio State University. He entered the University of Michigan in 1886, and was graduated therefrom as A.B. in 1889. He was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1891, and was prosecuting attorney of Scioto County from 1897 to 1902. He is a Republican in politics, and in 1904 he was elected from the Tenth Ohio District to the Fifty-ninth Congress, and reelected in 1906 to the Sixtieth Congress, expiring March 3, 1909. He is a director of the First National Bank of Portsmouth, Ohio. Mr. Bannon married at Portsmouth, Ohio, May 25, 1893, Jessie Damarin. Address: Portsmouth, Ohio.

BARBER, Amzi Lorenzo:

Contractor; born at Saxton's River, Vt., June 22, 1813. He removed with his family to Bellevue, Huron County, Ohio, in 1852; to East Cleveland in 1856 and later to Austinburg, Ashtabula County, Ohio. He was graduated from Oberlin College as B.A. in 1867 and later A.M., and from Columbian (now George Washington) University at Washington, D. C., as LL.B. in 1876. He was principal of the preparatory department in 1868, and later professor of natural philosophy in Howard University, Washington, D. C., and in the real estate business in 1872, and since 1883 has been president of the Barber Asphalt Paving Company. Since 1888 he has been president of the Trinidad Asphalt Company; in 1887 he negotiated the concession with Great Britain for Pitch Lake of Trinidad for forty-two years. Mr. Barber is a trustee of Oberlin College; director of the Washington Loan and Trust Company, etc. He is a fellow of the American Society of Civil Engineers. Mr. Barber has been twice married; first at Geneva, Ohio, in 1868, to Celia N. Bradley, and second, at Harrisburgh, Pa., in 1871, to Julia Louis Langdon. Address: 7 East 42d Street, New York City.

BARBER, Edwin AtLee:

Director of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, Philadelphia; born in Baltimore, Aug. 13, 1851; son of William Edwin and Anna E. (Townsend) Barber. He was graduated from Williston Seminary, at East Hampton, Mass., in 1869; entered Lafayette College, at Easton, Pa., in 1869, and remained three years, and from there afterward received the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. He was naturalist on the United States Geological and Geographical Survey of the Territories in 1874 and 1875, and since 1901 has been curator and secretary of the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, and was made director of the Museum in 1907. He is author of about 200 illustrated articles in various magazines, and the following books: Pottery and Porcelain of the United States; Anglo-American Pottery; American Glassware, Old and New; Tulip Ware of the Pennsylvania German Potters; Marks of American Potters; Salt Glazed Stoneware; Tin Enamelled Pottery; Artificial Soft Paste Porcelain; Lead Glazed Pottery; The Maiolica of Mexico, etc. Mr. Barber is a member of important scientific and historical societies, home and foreign. He married in Philadelphia, in 1880, Nellie Louise, daughter of Major William H. Parker, of the U. S. Marine Corps, and they have one daughter, Louise AtLee Barber. Residence: 236 E. Biddle Street, West Chester. Address: Pennsylvania Museum, Memorial Hall, Fairmount Park, Philadelphia.

BARBER, Ohio Columbus:

Capitalist; born in Middlebury, Ohio, April 20, 1841; son of George and Eliza (Smith) Barber. He became associated in the match manufacturing business of his father, who had established the business in 1847, and in 1861 was admitted to partnership. He organized, with others, in 1881, the Diamond Match Company, which was a consolidation of about 85 per cent of the match manufacturing business of the country, this being one of the earliest and most successful of the consolidations which have characterized the evolution of modern business methods, and still remaining one of the best exemplars of the wisdom of the policy of industrial concentration. To Mr. Barber, who was vice-president of the Company from its incorporation until 1888 and has since been its president, is chiefly due the completeness of its organization and its continued success. Mr. Barber is also chairman of the General Fire Extinguisher Company, president of the First National Bank of Akron, Ohio, and director in various other business corporations. He founded, in 1891, Barberton (near Akron), Ohio, which has grown to be a town of 9,000 inhabitants. He married at Akron, Ohio, Oct. 10, 1866, Laura L. Brown, who is now deceased. Addresses: Akron, Ohio, and 111 Broadway, New York City.

BARBOUR, Edwin Hinckley:

State geologist of Nebraska since 1891. He was born near Oxford, Ohio, and was graduated from Yale, in 1882, receiving the degree of Ph.D. in 1887. After a number of years' service with the United States Geological Survey and of professorship in Western colleges, he became connected with the geological work of the State of Nebraska, where he is now professor of geology in the State University; the State geologist; curator of the Nebraska State Museum, and geologist of the Nebraska State Board of Agriculture. He also has charge of the Morrill annual geological expeditions, and is engaged from time to time on United States geological and hydrographical survey work. Professor Barbour is the author of more than a hundred published papers on geology, paleontology, and zoölogy. He is a fellow of the Geological Society of America, and of other National and State scientific societies. He married Dec. 7, 1887, at New Haven, Conn., Margaret Roxanna Lamson. Address: 1234 R Street, Lincoln, Neb.

BARBOUR, Ralph Henry:

Author; born at Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 13, 1870; son of James Henry Barbour and Elizabeth M. (Morgan) Barbour. He was educated in Waltham (Mass.) New Church School, and at Highland Military Academy, Worcester, Mass. He is author of: Phyllis in Bohemia (with L. H. Bickford); The Half Back; For the Honor of the School; Captain of the Crew; Behind the Line; The Land of Joy; Weatherby's Inn; On Your Mark; The Arrival of Jimpson; The Book of School and College Sports; Kitty of the Roses; An Orchard Princess; Four in Camp; Four Afoot; The Crimson Sweater; A Maid in Arcady; Four Aloft; The Spirit of the School; Tom, Dick and Harriet; Harry's Island; Captain Chub; Forward Pass; Double Play; Holly; My Lady of the Fog. Mr. Barbour is a member of the Colonial Club of Cambridge, Mass. He married in Denver, Colo., in 1895, Mabel Latshaw King. Summer address: East Gloucester, Mass. Address: Appleton Court, Cambridge, Mas.

BARCHFELD, Andrew Jackson:

Physician, congressman; born in Pittsburgh, Pa., May 18, 1863. He attended Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, where he was graduated as M.D. in 1884, and since then has been engaged in the practice of medicine in Pittsburgh. He was nominated for Congress in 1902 on the Republican ticket, but after a hard fought battle was defeated by a narrow margin by a combination of Democrats and dissatisfied Republicans. He was again nominated in 1904, and was elected from the Thirty-second Pennsylvania District to the Fifty-ninth Congress and in 1906 and 1908 was reelected to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses. He was a delegate to the Peace Congress at Brussels in 1905, and a delegate to the International Inter-Parliamentary Union at Berlin, Germany, 1908. Address: 106 Eighteenth Street, Pittsburgh.

BARCLAY, Charles F.:

Lumberman and congressman; born in Owego, N. Y., May 9, 1844; son of George A. and Eliza (Allen) Barclay. He was educated in public and high schools, in Belfast (N. Y.) Seminary, and in the law department of the University of Michigan. He enlisted as a private in Company K, 149th Pennsylvania Infantry ("Second Bucktails"), served three years, rising through successive promotions to captain, was a prisoner of war for seventeen months and eleven days, and was mustered out in 1865. After leaving the law school he did not engage in practice, but with an elder brother formed the firm of Barclay Brothers, at Sinnamahoning, Pa., where they have since been engaged in an extensive lumber business. Mr. Barclay has been for many years active in politics, as a Republican; was a presidential elector in 1882; alternate delegate at large and as such voted in the Republican National Convention of 1900. He was elected to the Sixtieth Congress in 1906, and in 1908 was reelected to the Sixty-first Congress from the Twenty-first District of Pennsylvania, and is now serving. He is a member of the Manufacturers' Club of Philadelphia and the Pennsylvania Club of Washington, and is a 32d-degree Mason. Mr. Barclay married at Sinnamahoning, Pa., Aug. 22, 1872, Margaret A. L., daughter of John Brooks. Address: Sinnamahoning, Pa.

BARD, Thomas Robert:

Railroad man, former United States Senator; born at Chambersburg, Pa., Dec.

S. 1841, was graduated from Chambersburg Academy and studied law in his home town. He became connected with the railroad business in 1861, and during the war was a strong Union man and closely connected with Colonel Thomas A. Scott, who was in charge of transportation of the Union army. He was sent by Colonel Scott, in 1865, to look after Colonel Scott's large landed interests in southern California, and has since resided in that State, where he is largely interested in oil developments and in land enterprise. In 1900 he was elected as a Republican to the United States Senate and served five years. He married in San Francisco, April 17, 1876, Mary B. Gerberding. Address: Huene, Ventura County, Calif.

BARDEEN, Charles William:

Editor and publisher of the School Bulletin since 1874. Mr. Bardeen was born in Groton, Mass., Aug. 28, 1847, and graduated at Yale in 1869. He served in the First Massachusetts Volunteers from July, 1862, to May 25, 1864, and was a successful teacher and school director until he became editor and publisher of the School Bulletin in the years above named. Besides being a contributor to magazines on educational and literary subjects, Mr. Bardeen has written a large number of school books and text books on various subjects, including technical works for the use of teachers, and has compiled a number of song books. He was president of the Educational Press Association of America from 1900 to 1906, and has been prominently connected with the educational societies of the United States, having been in charge of the educational publications of the International Congress in 1893, and has taken part in numerous meetings of educational workers. He married at New Haven, Conn., 1868, Ellen Palmer Dickerman. Residence: 1109 E. Genesee Street. Office: 406 S. Franklin Street, Syracuse, N. Y.

BARDEL, William:

Consular official; appointed commercial agent at Bamberg, Dec. 15, 1900; promoted consul at Bamberg, Dec. 17, 1902; promoted consul at Rheims, France, June 8, 1908. Address: American Consulate, Rheims, France.

BARKER, Albert Smith:

Rear admiral U. S. Navy, retired; born in Massachusetts, March 31, 1843; son of Josiah Barker. He was appointed to the Naval Academy Oct. 25, 1859. In 1861 went into active service in the West Gulf Squadron and was on the steam frigate Mississippi, participating in its engagements until the destruction of that vessel during the attack on and attempted passage of Port Hudson, March 14, 1863, and afterward in service on the Monongahela and other vessels to the end of the Civil War. He commanded the Enterprise from 1882 to 1886 and ran a line of deep-sea soundings around the world, making casts at intervals of about 100 miles. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War he was a member of the War Board. In May, 1898, he commanded the cruiser Newark, taking part in bombardment of batteries at Santiago de Cuba. He relieved Admiral Dewey as commander-in-chief of the Asiatic squadron on May 20, 1899, retaining command until the arrival of Rear Admiral Watson. He was commander-in-chief, North Atlantic fleet from April 1, 1903, to March 31, 1905, when he retired for age. He married, in 1894, Mrs. Ellen Blackmar Maxwell. Address: 1716 N Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BARKER, Ellen Blackmar:

Author; born in West Springfield, Erie County, Pa.; daughter of John Simmons and Rebecca M. Blackmar. She was educated in Edinboro, Pa., and married, in 1879, Rev. Allen Maxwell, who died in 1890, at Lucknow, India. In 1891 she married Captain (now Rear Admiral) Albert S. Barker, of the U. S. Navy. Mrs. Barker has written (under the name of Ellen Blackmar Maxwell) several books, including: The Bishop's Conversion; Three Old Maids in Hawaii; The Way of Fire. Address: 1716 N Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BARKER, Lewellys Franklin:

Physician; born at Norwich, Ontario, Canada, Sept. 16, 1867; son of James F. and Sarah Jane (Taylor) Barker. He studied medicine at the University of Toronto, where he was graduated in 1890 with the degree of M.B. He took further courses of study at Leipzig in 1895, and at Munich and Berlin in 1905. Following his graduation at the University he became for a short time resident physician in the Toronto General Hospital, after which he went to Baltimore, where he was appointed assistant in Johns Hopkins Hospital. After a year in this position, he became fellow in pathology at Johns Hopkins University, becoming in 1894 associate in anatomy, and at the same time assistant resident pathologist at the Hospital. Three years later he was appointed associate professor of anatomy, and in 1899 associate professor of pathology. In 1900 he resigned from Johns Hopkins to accept the Chair of Anatomy at the Rush Medical College in the University of Chicago, but after five years in this position he returned to Johns Hopkins, where he became professor of medicine and was made physician-in-chief of the Hospital. Honorary degrees: M.D., University of Toronto; L.L.D., Queen's University, Kingston. He is author of various books and articles, among the former of which are: The Nervous System and Its Constituent Neurones; Laboratory Manual of Human Anatomy, etc. Dr. Barker was married in October, 1903, to Lilian H. Halsey, of New York City. Address: Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.

BARKER, Wharton:

Financier, economist, publisher; born in Philadelphia, May 1, 1846; son of Abraham and Sarah (Wharton) Barker. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania as A.B. in 1866, and A.M. in 1869. He was founder of the Investment Company of Philadelphia (capital, $4,000,000), and the Finance Company of Pennsylvania (capital, $5,000,000), was special financial agent of Imperial Russian Government in 1878 and 1879, and frequently since. He served as lieutenant of the Third Regiment of United States Colored Troops, in 1863. He was a prominent leader in the Independent movements in Pennsylvania in 1881, 1882 and 1890, and presidential candidate of the People's Party in 1900. He was the proposer, in 1879, of the American Commercial Union of all American Nations, with a common tariff against European and Asiatic Nations, and fair distribution of customs receipts among Nations within the Union. He is an advocate of National money and an opponent of bank money, also an advocate of the Nationalization of the railroads, direct taxation, income tax, the public ownership of enterprises which in their nature or by law must become monopolies, and American Commercial Union of all American Nations, with free trade on the American Continent and tariff protection in all against European and Asiatic competition and the restoration of the Philippines to the Filipinos by the joint guarantee of European, Asiatic and American Nations. Mr. Barker believes that neither the Republican nor the Democratic party responds to or corresponds with the needs of the American people, and that a new political party must be, and will be, organized soon to secure to the people restoration of rule by the people and overthrow of the monied oligarchy now in control of National, State and local governments, and through such control in possession of almost all lines of finance, production, distribution and transportation. In 1869 he founded the Penn Monthly, and in 1880 merged it with the American, a weekly paper. He has been a trustee of the University of Pennsylvania since 1880. He received the Order of St. Stanislaus, in 1879, at St. Petersburg, conferred by Emperor Alexander II. Mr. Barker is a member of the American Philosophical Society, and the American Academy of Political and Social Science; the Academy of Natural Sciences; the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. He had for a time uncommon relations with high Chinese officials; the Chinese Imperial Government sending to America a special Imperial commission in 1887 for consultation with him upon economic and industrial problems of paramount importance to China, and in 1895 he visited China upon invitation of Li Hung Chang. At this time no other American has the relations of confidence of Russians and Chinese Mr. Barker has. He married Oct. 16, 1867, Margaret Corlies Baker, and he has three sons, Samuel H., Rodman and Folger. Address: 608 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

BARKLEY, Henry L.:

Bishop of the United Brethren Church; born in Adams County, Indiana, March 19, 1858, and graduated from the Bryan, Ohio, High School. Subsequent to his graduation he engaged in educational work, from which he entered into the ministry, having a successful career in the pastorate of several important churches of his denomination. He was chosen as bishop of The United Brethren Church for the Pacific Coast District, and took up his residence in Oregon. He became interested in the political welfare of the State, and as a result for two terms was elected a member of the Oregon Legislature. Address: Woodburn, Oregon.

BARNABEE, Henry Clay:

Retired operatic comedian; was born in Portsmouth, N. H., Nov. 14, 1833. His early life was spent as clerk in retail and wholesale dry-goods houses, but in 1854 he began to appear in entertainments in Boston, developing talents as a comedian, vocalist and mimic. He received his training in music as a member of choirs in Boston, and in 1865 he gave up business and devoted himself to public entertainment. He was a popular attraction in the Lyceum courses until 1879, when the Boston Ideal Opera Co., was organized to play the then popular success, Pinafore. In 1887 he organized the Bostonians with Tom Karl and W. H. McDonald, and until the dissolution of that company in 1904, was one of the leading favorites of the comic opera stage. He is chiefly remembered in the character, which he created among many others, of the Sheriff of Nottingham in the Opera of

Robin Hood. Address: Players Club, Gramercy Park, N. Y.

BARNARD, Charles:

Writer; born in Boston, Mass., Feb. 13, 1838; son of Rev. Charles F. and Sarah (Holmes) Barnard. He is practically self-educated by extensive travel and study. Mr. Barnard is a contributor to leading magazines on technical, educational and scientific subjects; wrote many children's stories and a large number of books upon many subjects. He is contributing editor to the Century Dictionary on tools and machines. He is author of: The County Fair (play); Tools and Machines; The Door in the Book; The Tone Masters; the Soprano; Ten-Rod Farm; Light (in collaboration with late Prof. Meyer). He maintains at his residence a housekeeping laboratory for experimental research, testing of new cooking, heating and other domestic appliances, etc. He married, May 17, 1881, Mary E. Knight. Address: Cedar Gate, Darien, Conn.

BARNARD, Edward Chester:

Topographical engineer; born in New York City, Nov. 13, 1863; son of Owen Howard and Anne Eliza (Lenny) Barnard. He was educated in the College of the City of New York and the School of Mines of Columbia College, from which he received the degree of E.M. in the class of 1884. He was appointed assistant topographer of the United States Geological Survey, after leaving college in 1884, and was made topographer in 1886. He mapped portions of Virginia and West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, and New York; and went West in 1894 for the United States Geological Survey and mapped areas in Montana, Oregon, Washington, and California. He went to Alaska in 1898 and 1900, and mapped areas in the Forty Mile and Nome Districts for the United States Geological Survey; was chief topographer of the United States and Canada Boundary Survey, 1903-1906; located the International boundary line between the United States and Canada, west of the summit of the Rocky Mountains, and is now geographer in charge of the Rocky Mountain Division of Topography of the United States Geological Survey. He has traveled much over the United States, twice to Alaska, down the Yukon and to Nome, also once in Europe. He is a Republican in politics. Mr. Barnard is a member of the National Geographic Society, the Geological Society of Washington, D. C., the American Institute of Civil Engineers, Washington Society of Engineers, the American Forestry Association, and the Cosmos Club of Washington, D. C. He married at St. Paul, Minn., March 31, 1904, Virginia Townsend Grover, now deceased. Address: United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

BARNARD, Edward Emerson:

Astronomer; born in Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 16, 1857. He graduated from Vanderbilt University in 1887, and has received the Sc.D. degree from this university and the A.M. degree from the University of the Pacific. He began his career as astronomer with the Lick Observatory, where he remained until 1895, and is now professor of practical astronomy at the University of Chicago and astronomer in the Yerkes Observatory. Professor Barnard is the discoverer of the fifth satellite of Jupiter, which was discovered in 1892, and has discovered sixteen comets. He is one of the foremost workers in celestial photography, having made photographs of the Milky Way, the comets, nebulae, etc. He has received several medals, including the Lalande gold medal of the French Academy of Sciences in 1892, the Arago gold medal in 1893, gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society of Great Britain in 1897, and the Janssen gold medal of the French Academy of Sciences in 1900, also the Janssen Prize of the French Astronomical Society in 1907. He is a fellow and foreign associate of the Royal Astronomical Society of England, and also of many American and foreign scientific societies. He is one of the leading contributors of the United States to astronomical journals. Address: Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis.

BARNARD, Job:

Jurist; born in Porter County, Ind., June 8, 1844; son of William and Sally (Williams) Barnard. He was educated in the district school and at the Valparaiso (Ind.) Male and Female College; served in the Civil War, 1861-1865, becoming first sergeant of Company K, 73d Indiana Volunteers. After the war he took the law course in the University of Michigan, from which he was graduated as LL.D. in 1867, and received the honorary degree of LL.D. He engaged in the practice of law until appointed by President McKinley to the office of justice of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia. Justice Barnard is president of the Audubon Society of the District of Columbia; president of the Board of Trustees of Howard University; vice-president of the General Convention of the New Church (Swedenborgian) in the United States. He is deputy governor of the Society of Colonial Wars, and a member of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Society of the Army of the Cumberland. He married, at Berrien Springs, Mich., Sept. 25, 1867, Florence A. Putnam, and has three sons. Residence 1306 Rhode Island Avenue. Office address: United States Court House, Washington, D. C.

BARNES, Albert Crane:

Jurist; born at Addison, Vermont, June 28, 1853; son of Asahel and Ellen S. (Crane) Barnes. He was graduated from the University of Vermont with the degree of A.B. in 1876, and completed a course of law studies at the Albany (New York) Law School in 1877, receiving the degree of LL.B. He was admitted to the New York State bar in 1877, and after further studies at Keesville and Plattsburg, N. Y., went, in 1879, to Washington, D. C., where he took the civil service examination and entered the employ of the Government in the General Land Office. There he was engaged for four years in writing decisions upon contested mining claims and contested land claims within the railroad grants. In 1883 he went to North Dakota, where he was appointed by the Governor as one of the commissioners to organize Bottineau County, of which in 1884 he was elected district attorney. In 1885 he removed to Chicago, Ill., and engaged in general practice of the law. For several years he was associated in his practice with S. M. Millard, Esq. In 1896 he received the appointment of assistant State's attorney of Cook County, under State's Attorney Deneen, and was his first assistant from 1900 to 1904 when Mr. Deneen was elected Governor; and he was elected judge of the Superior Court of Cook County for the term which will expire in 1910. He is a Republican and a member of the Hamilton, Homewood Golf and Union League Clubs of Chicago. He married in Chicago in May, 1895, Jessie Welles Griswold. Residence: 204 East Fiftieth Street, Chicago, Ill.

BARNES, Benjamin F.:

Postmaster of the City of Washington. Mr. Barnes was born in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, Dec. 3, 1868. He was educated in the public schools of New Jersey and the law department of Georgetown University, and was appointed clerk in the Post Office Department in Washington in 1887. After service as private secretary to several of the higher officials of the Post Office Department, he was appointed stenographer at the White House, Jan., 1898, and executive clerk in July of that year. In 1900 he was appointed assistant secretary to the President by President McKinley, and was reappointed by President Roosevelt. After several years' service in this position he was appointed to be postmaster of the City of Washington, the position he now holds. Residence: 48 R St., N. E., Washington, D. C. Office: General Post Office Building, Washington, D. C.

BARNES, Charles Reid:

Botanist; born at Madison, Ind., Sept. 7, 1858; son of Charles and Sarah (Reid) Barnes. He was educated at Hanover (Ind.) College, with first honor and A.B. degree, 1877, A.M., 1880, Ph.D. 1886, and engaged in private research work at Harvard 1885-1886, and 1892. He taught in public and high schools until 1880, when he entered Purdue University as instructor in natural history, and he was professor of natural history, 1882-1885, and professor of botany and geology, 1885-1887, in that university; professor of botany in the University of Wisconsin 1887-1899, and since 1898 has been professor of plant physiology in the University of Chicago. He is a fellow and was general secretary 1895-1896, and vice-president of Section G (botany), 1899, of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; was secretary 1894-1899, president, 1902, and is a life member of the Botanical Society of America; life member of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences and member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He has been editor of the Botanical Gazette since 1883. He married at Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 25, 1882, Mary King Ward, and they have had two sons (one now deceased). Residence: 306 East 56th Street, Chicago.

BARNES, James:

Author; born in Annapolis, Md., Sept. 19, 1866; son of Lieutenant Commander John Sanford Barnes, U. S. N., and Susan Bainbridge (Hayes) Barnes. Mr. Barnes was educated in St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and after spending two years, 1885-1887, as civil engineer on construction work with the Missouri Pacific Railroad, entered Princeton College, from which he was graduated A.B., 1891, and was editor of the Nassau Literary Magazine. After his graduation he was associated with Scribner's Magazine, and he was assistant editor of Harper's Weekly, 1894-1895; special correspondent of the Outlook during the Boer War, and in 1903 at the Venezuela blockade; now editor of Appleton's Magazine and literary adviser for D. Appleton & Co. Mr. Barnes is author of: For King or Country; Naval Actions of the War of 1812; A Princetonian; Midshipman Farragut; A Loyal Traitor; Commodore Bainbridge; Yankee Ships and Yankee Sailors; The Hero of Erie; With the Flag in the Channel; The Great War Trek; The Giant of Three Wars; Drake and His Yeomen; The Son of Light Horse Harry; The Blockaders; Outside the Law. Address: 10

East 79th Street, New York City.

BARNES, Thurlow Weed:

Negotiator of contracts; born in Albany,
N. Y., June 28, 1853; son of William and Emily P. (Weed) Barnes; grandson of Thurlow Weed, and descendant in the eighth generation of Thomas Barnes of Hartford, 1630, who was a soldier in the Pequot War. He was graduated from Harvard, A.B., 1876; spent several years in Albany in editorial and political work, then joined a publishing firm in Boston;
but for the past twenty years has been engaged in business in New York City. Mr.
Barnes has been around the world twice, made five trips to Russia, spent two winters in India and made a special study of China. He negotiated the famous Hankow-Canton contracts, constituting the only governmental concession ever obtained by an American from the Chinese Empire.
As a Republican of prominence, he has been a delegate to numerous political conventions, including the National Convention at St. Louis, 1896, and has been chairman of the Albany County Committee. Mr. Barnes is author of a Life of Thurlow Weed, 1884, and a contributor to various periodicals.
He is a member of the Metropolitan, Aero and Circumnavigators Clubs of New York, and of the Union Society of the Civil War.
Residence: 236 West Fifty-fifth Street.
Office: 43 Exchange Place, New York City.

BARNES, William Henry:

Railway official; born in Philadelphia,
July 12, 1829; son of Henry, of Marlborough Mass., and Marilla (Weldon) Barnes of New Britain, Conn. He was educated at private schools. From 1848 to 1856 he served on surveys and construction of the Western Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and 1856-1863 he was assistant superintendent, secretary and comptroller of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railway. He was in the service of the Union Railroad and Transportation Company and Empire Transportation Company, 1863-1871; and in 1871 he was director and treasurer of the Pennsylvania Company. He was receiver of the Allegheny Valley Railroad Company, 1884-1892, and then he became president of the company under its reorganization as the Allegheny Valley Railway Company. He has also been president of the Western New York and Pennsylvania Railway, New York and Pennsylvania Railway Company, since Jan. 14, 1901; and is a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad, Pennsylvania Company, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago and

St. Louis railway, and allied corporations.
Mr. Barnes married at Allegheny City, Pa.,
Oct. 27, 1857, Eva Hampton. Residence:
1727 Spruce Street; summer: Devon, Pa.
Office: 256 Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

BARNES, William:

Lawyer; born in Pompey, Onondaga County, N. Y., May 26, 1824; son of Orson Barnes, superintendent of Schools of Onondaga County, and Eliza (Phelps) Barnes.
He is seventh in descent from William Barnes, who settled near Hartford, Conn., about 1630; was one of its original pro-prieters; and was a soldier in the Pequot War. The family can be traced in England to William Barnes, A. D. 1203. Mr.
Barnes was educated in the common and select schools and at the Manlius Academy at Manlius, N. Y. He taught school, "boarding round" and making his own fires, 1840-1843, and in 1843 and 1844 organized and managed, in connection with his father, at Baldwinsville and Syracuse, N.
Y., the first teachers' institutes ever held in the state. He studied law, 1840-1846, was admitted to the bar July, 1846, and was long a member of the law firm of Hammond, King & Barnes, of Albany, N. Y. He was appointed special counsel of the Banking Department of the State of New York; special commissioner to examine the condition of several insurance companies of New York City, 1855. The results of this examination embodied in his reports, led to the passage of the Act to organize the In-insurance Department in 1859, and he was appointed the first superintendent of insurance of the State of New York, serving 1860-1870. He compiled elaborate insurance statistics, and his ten annual reports and six volumes of condensed insurance reports are established authorities in this country and Europe, and he contributed largely to the development of fire, marine and life insurance during his term of office. Great abuses existed among the insurance companies when he entered the Insurance Department, and were ended by his valuable public service, and an article by Hon. John K. Porter, judge of the Court of Appeals, giving a detailed sketch of Mr. Barnes' insurance career, ended with the statement that "it is no undue commendation to say that he has reformed the insurance system of the civilized world. He has achieved an American and an European reputation in this department such as no one had previously attained on either side of the Atlantic." After 1870 Mr. Barnes acted as consulting counsel and actuary for several life insurance companies; in 1873 and subsequent years as special counsel for the City of New York. He acted as counsel for several hundred life insurance policy-holders, was appointed by President Grant one of the U. S. official delegates to the Eighth International Statistical Congress at St. Petersburg, in 1872, and was presented with a diamond ring with the imperial monogram, as a souvenir of services at this Congress, by Czar Alexander II., and appointed a member of the permanent commission. Mr. Barnes became a member of the Liberal Party in 1843; spoke for Birney in 1844; supported Martin Van Buren for President in 1848; and was one of the leading organizers of the first Republican State Convention at Saratoga Springs in 1854. He organized the New York State Kansas Aid Society, and two National Kansas Conventions at Cleveland and Buffalo in 1856; and he was one of the chief organizers of the Semi-Centennial Celebration of the Republican party, held in September, 1904, at Saratoga Springs. He prepared the article on the Early History of the Republican Party at the Fremont Semi-

Centennial at Philadelphia in June, 1906; was a member of the Peace Congress held at Boston, in Oct., 1904, and at New York City, April, 1907. Mr. Barnes has been an honorary fellow of the Royal Statistical Society of London, since 1872; is a member of the Albany Institute, the American Geographical Society, the National Geographic Society, and the Law Institute of New York, the American Society of International Law. At the January, 1907, meeting of the society at Washington, he earnestly advocated the immunity of private property (not contraband) at sea in marine warfare, and the application of the Drago doctrine to the collection of all international contractual debts. He was one of the founders and first president of the Society of Medical Jurisprudence of New York; is a member of the New York State Bar Association, and a member and one of the founders of the Fort Orange Club of Albany, New York. He was a stump-speaker for temperance in the 'forties, and has consistently held the views he then expressed and hopes to live long enough to see all of the States in the "dry" column; is an advocate of the right of married women to their own property and believes in equal suffrage rights for the sexes. As early as 1850 he developed a taste for historical research and composition, having written a competitive prize essay (gold medal) for the Young Men's Association, on The Settlement and Early History of Albany, N. Y. Mr. Barnes married, July 10, 1849, Emily P. Weed, a daughter of Thurlow Weed, and by that union has five children, all living: Mrs. Catherine Weed Barnes Ward, of London, England; Thurlow Weed Barnes, of New York City; Mrs. George C. Hollister, of Rochester; Mrs. Rufus Hildreth Thayer, of Washington, and William Barnes, Jr., of Albany, New York. Mrs. Barnes died in February, 1889, and Mr. Barnes was again married, June 1, 1891, to Mrs. Lizzie Balmer Williams, widow of Samuel Williams, editor of the Albany Evening Journal and of the San Francisco Evening Bulletin. Address: The O'Connor-Barnes Homestead, On-the-Clim, Nantucket Island, Massachusetts.

BARNES, William, Jr.:

Publisher; born at Albany, N. Y., Nov. 17, 1866; son of William Barnes and Emily Peck (Weed) Barnes. He was educated at Albany Academy and at Harvard, graduating as A.B. in 1888. He is proprietor of the Albany Evening Journal; United States Surveyor of Customs of Albany, N. Y.; a member of the Republican State Committee since 1892, and chairman of its executive committee from 1898. Mr. Barnes has taken a prominent and influential part in the Republican politics of the State of New York and by virtue of this activity is a factor in national political affairs. Mr. Barnes married at Cincinnati, Ohio, June 12, 1888, Grace Davis, and they have two children. Address: Albany, N. Y.

BARNETT, George:

Colonel U. S. Marine Corps. Appointed from Wisconsin. Graduated from Naval Academy, and transferred to Marine Corps as second lieutenant, 1883. Commissioned first lieutenant, Sept. 1, 1890. Commissioned captain Aug. 11, 1898. Commissioned major, March 3, 1901. Nov. 20, 1897, ordered to U. S. S. San Francisco; reported on board at Smyrna, Dec. 12; as fleet marine officer, European fleet. March 27, at Gravesend, England, transferred to the Amazonas, afterwards the New Orleans; came home on board New Orleans as watch officer; rejoined San Francisco, in New York, April 14; April 17, ordered to the New Orleans; as marine officer and served on her throughout the war—first in Flying Squadron at Hampton Roads, then in Sampson's Squadron on north coast of Cuba, and then on south coast at Santiago, under Schley and Sampson; took part in bombardments, May 28, June 6, 14, 15, and at Daikari during landing of army; blockaded San Juan and Porto Rico, July 17, to August 14; entered San Juan and present during transfer. Promoted to captain to take rank from Aug. 11, 1898; joined U. S. S. Chicago, Dec. 1, 1898, and served on board until April 16, 1901, as fleet marine officer South Atlantic fleet, detached and ordered home. Examined for promotion and promoted major to date from March 3, 1901; granted leave one month; Fleet marine officer of Asiatic Fleet, 1903-1904; commanded marine brigade in Philippines, Nov., 1904, to April, 1905; promoted to lieutenant-colonel Feb. 28, 1905; commanded Marine Barracks, Navy Yard, Washington, from July, 1905; promoted colonel, May, 1909. Address: Care of the Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

BARNETTE, William Jay:

Rear-Admiral, U. S. N.; born in Morrisville, Madison County, N. Y., Feb. 2, 1847. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1868, and has served his terms of sea-duty on all of the naval stations of the United States and has had several important commands, including the command of the battleship Kentucky. He is, however, best known as one of the most useful officers of the navy on matters connected with organization and strategy for the navy, as developed by the operations of the General Board in Washington, an organization of officers established by regulation, which performs the duties, to a certain extent, of a general staff. Rear-Admiral Barnette has been for years, whether on shore duty or afloat, one of the leading minds among the officers who take especial interest in this aspect of the work of the navy, and has generally been assigned, during his terms of shore duty, to membership of the board, during which time he is also member of the joint army and navy board, established to bring about military coöperation between the two branches of the service. Rear-Admiral Barnette has been deeply interested in the proposed establishment of the general staff form of organization for the administration of the navy of the United States, and assisted in preparing the various propositions which have been advanced to this end. He married in San Francisco, Nov. 20, 1877, Evelyn G. Hutchins. Address: Care of Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

BARNHART, Arthur Middleton:

Type founder; born in Hartfield, Chautauqua County, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1844; son of Peter and Sarah (Herriek) Barnhart. In association with his three brothers he was in early life engaged in the publication of four papers in the State of Iowa, extending over the period from 1865 to 1873. He removed to Chicago in 1868, and with his brothers engaged in the advertising agency business. In 1869, with his brothers, Warren, George W., and Alson E. and Charles E. Spindler, he established the type foundry, which was subsequently incorporated under the name of Barnhart Brothers & Spindler. He is now president of the company and of several other type foundry and printers' supply companies throughout the country. Mr. Barnhart is on the advisory board of the Civic Federation, and a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Mr. Barnhart has been twice married; first in 1869, to Angie B. Stein, who died in 1895, and second, at Chicago, in 1900, to Stella I. La Zelle. He has one son living. Residence: 4455 Drexel Boulevard. Office: 183 Monroe Street, Chicago.

BARNHART, John Hendley:

Editor and librarian; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1871; son of Rev. John Wesley and Ellen Frances (Miller) Barnhart. He was graduated from Wesleyan University A.B., 1892, A.M., 1893, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, M.D., 1896. Dr. Barnhart has gained distinction as a botanist, is a member of the Torrey Botanical Club of New York and has been its vice-president since 1908, and was editor-in-chief of the Bulletin of the Torrey Botanical Club 1903-1907. He was editorial assistant, 1903-1907, and has been librarian since Oct. 1907 of the New York Botanical Garden, and was delegate from that institution to the International Botanical Congress held in Vienna in June, 1905. Dr. Barnhart is also one of the three editors of North American Flora (in thirty-two volumes) now being published in parts by the New York Botanical Garden. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; a life member of the

New York Botanical Garden, American Museum of Natural History, the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society and the New York Historical Society, and a member of the Biological Society of Washington and the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. Dr. Barnhart married in Jessamine, Fla., May 5, 1897, Emma Gertrude Platt, of Southampton, N. Y. Residence: 31 Windle Park, Tarrytown, N. Y. and 2690 Morris Avenue, Bronx, New York City. Office: New York Botanical Garden, Bronx, Park, New York City.

BARNUM, Charlotte Cynthia:

Editor and mathematician; born in Phillipston, Mass., May 17, 1860; daughter of Rev. Samuel Weed and Charlotte (Betts) Barnum. She was educated in the public schools of New Haven, Conn., at Vassar College, from which she was graduated as A.B., 1881, and afterward pursued graduate studies two years in Johns Hopkins University, and three in Yale University, from which she received the degree of Ph.D. in mathematics in 1895. She taught in Betts Academy, Stamford, Conn., in Bradford, (Mass.) Academy, in Hillhouse High School, New Haven, Conn., in Smith College, and in Carleton College, Northfield, Minn. She worked as a computer for Yale Observatory, on Dana's Mineralogy, in the actuarial departments of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., and of the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Philadelphia; in the U. S. Naval Observatory, and 1901-1908 on the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey. Dr. Barnum is a contributor to periodicals and has done important literary and scientific work. She was assistant editor of pronunciation in Webster's International Dictionary and assistant editor of its Australian Supplement; computer of the angles of crystals in Dana's Mineralogy, and has done editing and critical proof-reading on publications of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D. C., and is now editor of the Biological Survey, U. S. Department of Agriculture. She is a member of the American Mathematical Society, a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and a member of the National Geographic Society, the Phi Beta Kappa Society, the Council of the Civic Center of Washington, Association of Collegiate Alumnae, and the National Council of Charities and Correction. Her father was an author and editor of standard reference books, including Webster's Dictionary (1847 edition); Webster's International Dictionary, Smith and Barnum's Comprehensive Dictionary of the Bible, Romanism as It Is, and Vocabulary of English Rhymes. Address: U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BARR, Albert J.:

Publisher of the Pittsburgh Post and a prominent member of the Democratic party in Pittsburgh. Mr. Barr was born in Pittsburgh, Jan. 12, 1851, and was educated at the Western University. On graduation he became interested in the newspaper business and has, since 1886, been the publisher of the Pittsburgh Post. As director of a leading Democratic paper he occupies a prominent position in the councils of the Democratic party of the city of Pittsburgh and of that section of Pennsylvania. He married at Lancaster, Pa., July 28, 1884, Mary A. McDevitt. Address: The Post, Pittsburgh, Pa.

BARR, Amelia Edith:

Novelist; born in Ulverston, Lancashire, England, March 29, 1831; daughter of Rev. William Henry and May (Singleton) Huddleston. She was educated in private schools, and July 11, 1850, she married, at Kendal, Westmoreland, England, Robert Barr, son of Rev. John Barr, D.D., of Glasgow, Scotland. She came to America in September, 1853, and from 1856 to 1868 lived at Austin and Galveston, Texas. Her husband and three sons died in Galveston in 1867, of yellow fever, and in 1868 she came to New York, and in 1870 began to write. She is author of fifty-seven novels, all of which have been republished in England, and most of them have been translated into German, Dutch and other languages. She has five daughters and four sons still living. Residence: "Cherry Croft," Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y.

BARR, Frank:

Railway official; born in Nashua, N. H., and educated in the public schools of that place. He began railway service March 1, 1869 as freight and ticket clerk and telegraph operator of the Worcester and Nashua Railroad at Nashua, N. H., and was general agent of the same road, 1873-1892. He was appointed Nov. 1, 1892, superintendent of the Worcester, Nashua and Portland Division of the Boston and Maine Railroad at Nashua; Dec. 1, 1896, assistant general manager. Boston and Maine R. R. and since July 16, 1903, has been third vice-president and general manager of the Boston and Maine Railroad. Address: Union Station, Boston, Mass.

BARRETT, Harrison D.:

One of the leading exponents of the belief as to the future life known as spiritualism. Mr. Barrett was born in Canaan, Me., April 26, 1863, and graduated at the Meadville Theological Seminary in 1889. He was, for twelve years, teacher in the common schools, and for three years thereafter, supervisor of the public schools in towns of Pennsylvania. He became interested in spiritualism, and, upon conviction of the truth of its teachings, lectured throughout the United States for several years, and became editor of the Banner of Light, a spiritualist paper published in Boston, in 1879, continuing with that paper until 1904. In 1893 he was elected president of the National Spiritual Association, and has since occupied that position. For a number of years he was chairman of the Cassadaga Spiritualist Camp Association, which controls the place of the summer meetings of spiritualists. Mr. Barrett is the author of a work on the purposes of, and the results obtained at, the annual meetings at Cassadaga, and of several other works on spiritualism. He married, Oct. 13, 1897, Margaret Coffyn. Address: 600

Pennsylvania Avenue, S. E., Washington, D. C.

Club of San Francisco. Address: Pan American Bureau, Washington, D. C.

BARRETT, John:

Diplomat; born at Grafton, Vt., Nov. 28, 1866; son of Charles and Caroline (Sanford) Barrett. After graduation from the Worcester Academy at Worcester, Mass., he went to Nashville, Tenn., and attended Vanderbilt University, but finished his college work in Dartmouth College, where he was graduated as A.B. in 1889, receiving the honorary degree of M.A. in 1899. Mr. Barrett became a teacher in Hopkins Academy at Oakland, Calif., and soon afterward became assistant editor of The Statistician, a financial and industrial publication of San Francisco. He was afterward editorially connected with newspapers in San Francisco, Tacoma, Seattle and Portland, Ore., and while associate editor of The Telegram at Portland, was appointed American minister to Siam, where he secured the settlement by arbitration of claims amounting to three million dollars and settled important questions of extra-territoriality. He remained in that post until 1898, and in addition to the duties of the mission to Siam had charge of special diplomatic and commercial investigations in that country, Japan, Korea, Siberia and India. He was a war correspondent in the Philippines, 1898-1899, and American plenipotentiary to the International Conference of American Republics, at Mexico, in 1901-1902. He was commissioner-general of foreign affairs for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, 1902-1903, American minister to the Argentine Republic, 1903-1904, American minister to Panama, 1904-1905; American minister to Columbia, 1905-1906; is now director of the International Bureau of American Republics. He is author of: Admiral George Dewey, 1899, and is also a contributor to magazines on Oriental and Latin American subjects. He is a member of the University and Lotos Clubs of New York; The Metropolitan, University and Chevy Chase Clubs of Washington, the University Club of Chicago, and the University

BARRON, Elwyn Alfred:

Dramatist and novelist; born in Lima, N. Y., March 6, 1855; son of Alfred Lovejoy and Ellen Elizabeth Barron. He was educated in Robert College, Tennessee, and afterward engaged in newspaper work in Chicago; and from 1887 to 1895 he was dramatic critic and editorial writer on the staff of the Chicago Inter Ocean. He lived in London and Paris from 1895 to 1907. Mr. Barron's first two plays were written in collaboration with Morgan Bates, including A Mountain Pink, produced at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, in 1883, and A Moral Crime, produced at the Columbia Theatre, Chicago; and his subsequent plays, of which he is sole author, with the dates of their production, are: Lady Ashley, 1886; When Bess was Queen, 1894; Punchinello (produced by Edward S. Willard), 1900; The Ruling Power (New York), 1904; A Prince of the People, (produced in England), 1905. Mr. Barron is also author of: The Viking (drama in blank verse), 1888; Lawrence Barrett, a biography, 1887, and the novels (published in London and American editions): Manders, 1899; In Old New York, 1900; Marcel Levisnet, 1906. Mr. Barron married in Chicago, Sept. 9, 1884, Hannah Lee Bird, and they have a son and daughter. Address: 107 Waverly Place, New York City.

BARRON, Ernest R.:

Inventor, especially identified with the development of the typewriter; born in Meadville, Pa., May 23, 1844. He was in charge of the assembling and aligning department of the Remington Typewriter Co., in 1874, and personally prepared the first Remington typewriter used. He was later connected with the manufacture of the Calligraph typewriter and with the Densmore, Densmore Franklin, and other makes of writing machines. His last employment was with the Franklin Typewriter Co., with whom he was superintendent of the aligning and assembling department, and expert on inventions. Since his retirement from that company, he has lived on his income from royalties on the Remington machine. He has made a large number of inventions relative to typewriters which are used on the standard make of machines. Mr. Barron is a step-son of the late James Densmore, one of the early typewriter experts. He married, March 18, 1869, Rachel R. Wyman, Cochran, Pa. Address: 519 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BARRY, Edward Buttevant:

Rear-Admiral United States Navy; was born in Vatrik Place, in New York City, Oct. 20, 1849; son of Garrett Robert and Sarah Agnes (Glover) Barry. He was educated at the Lespinasse School in Clinton Place, and at St. Francis Xavier's College and was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in June, 1869. He took three practice cruises while cadet, on the Macedonian and Savannah, and after graduation a special cruise on the Sabine, 1869-1870; was promoted to ensign, 1870, and to master, 1872; commissioned lieutenant, 1875; lieutenant commander, March, 1897; commander, March, 1900, captain, March 31, 1905, and rear-admiral, Feb. 1, 1909. He served on many duties and stations as a naval officer; aboard the Wachusett, European station, and then at Key West during the Virginius trouble with Spain, 1873-1874; aboard the Alaska, 1878-1880; he witnessed the Chilean torpedo-boat attack on the Peruvian man-of-war Union, at Callao, and two of the bombardments of Callao, and also the blowing up of the Chilean Steamer Loa; Cincinnati, 1897 to Feb. 1899; on South Atlantic Station until war with Spain became imminent; then at Key West, from March, 1898, to Feb., 1899. In the Spanish-American War he was participating in the blockade of Havana, the attack on Matanzas; scouting off Cape Antonio when the Spanish fleet was reported at Curacoa; Bahama Channel and in the blockade of San Juan, Porto Rico, July, 1898. He had two interviews with Governor-general Macias at the time the armistice was proclaimed, and endeavored to secure the surrender of San Juan; convoyed the Maria Theresa to the eastern end of Cuba; the Cincinnati was in Havana when the United States flag was hoisted there, Jan. 1, 1899. He afterwards served on the receiving-ship Franklin, and the gunnery training-ship Amphitrite, and commanded the collier Marcellus, January-May, 1900. He commanded the gunboat Vicksburg, Aug., 1900, and took her to the Asiatic Station, Nov., 1900, serving there until 1903, the Vicksburg forming the naval part of the expedition, under Brigadier-General Funston, resulting in the capture of Emilio Aguinaldo. In conjunction with Brigadier-General Kobbé, he occupied for the first time, the islands of Palawan (Paragua), Kulion and Cuyo; and later, on the Samar Station, served in connection with Brigadier-General Smith during part of the insurrection. He was ordered by the Department, ten days too late, by cable from Samar, to winter in New Chwang (China), but succeeded in getting there, 2,000 miles against the N. E. monsoon. He was attached to the Navy Yard, New York, April, 1903, as aide to the commandant; was a member of the Labor Board and Board of Inspection, Oct., 1904; commanded the battleship Kentucky, 1906-1907; detached Nov., 1907, and ordered to New York as recruiting officer, from which duty he was relieved Dec. 19th and became Supervisor of Naval Auxiliaries with headquarters in New York, Dec. 31st; May 7, 1909, was detached from that duty and ordered May 17th to command second division, first squadron of the Pacific fleet. He is a member of the Order of Foreign Wars (Pennsylvania Commandery), the Naval Order of the United States (New York Commandery), and of the University and Army and Navy Clubs of New York City. He was married, April 7, 1875, to Mary Wycliff Clitz, and has one daughter living, Mary Agnes (now Mrs. L. A. Waters). Address: Care Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

BARRY, Thomas Henry:

Major-General U. S. Army; born in New York City, Oct. 13, 1855; son of David and Margaret (Dimond) Barry. In 1873, after a competitive examination, he was appointed by Hon. Robert B. Roosevelt, a cadet at the U. S. Military Academy, from which he was graduated in 1877. He served at various frontier posts and in several campaigns against Indians, and on other duties prior to the Spanish-American War, when he was assigned as adjutant-general of the Philippine forces. He served as brigadier-general of U. S. Volunteers with the China Relief Expedition, in Aug., 1900, observer with the Russian Army during the Russo-Japanese War, to Dec., 1905; assistant chief of staff, U. S. Army, and president of the Army War College from Dec., 1905, to Feb., 1907, when he was assigned to the command of the Army of Cuban Pacification, on which duty he continued till April 1, 1909. General Barry attended the maneuvers of the German Army in Sept., 1906. He married, at Washington, D. C., Jan. 23, 1884, Ellen Bestor. Address: War Department, Washington, D. C.

BARRYMORE, Ethel:

Actress; born in Philadelphia, Aug. 15, 1879, of a distinguished theatrical family, her father, the late Maurice Barrymore, having been one of the leading actors of his time, and her mother, Georgina Drew Barrymore, her uncle, John Drew, and her grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Drew, of Philadelphia, all being people of mark on the American stage. She was educated in the Convent of Notre Dame, in Philadelphia. Her first recorded experience on the stage was Sept. 23, 1895, at the Empire Theater, New York City, when she appeared as "Katharine" in That Independent Young Person. In 1896 she became a member of the Empire Theater Stock Company, headed by her uncle, John Drew, and played with it in New York and London, and in 1897 she entered Sir Henry Irving's Company, in which she remained until 1900, when she returned to the Charles Frohman management, as a star, first in Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines, and afterward in Cousin Kate; Sunday; "Nora," in Ibsen's A Doll's House; Alice Sit-by-the-Fire; Lady Frederick, etc. She married in March, 1909, Russell G. Colt. Address: Empire Theater, New York City.

BARSE, George R., Jr.:

Artist; born in Detroit, Mich., 1861; son of George R. and Susan B. (Peironnet) Barse. After completing the public school courses in Kansas City, he studied in the Chicago Art Institute, and afterward went to Paris and entered the École des Beaux Arts, where he was a pupil of Cabanel, and also studied in the Académie Julian under Gustave Boulanger and Jules LeFebvre, remaining in Paris five years. He had a studio in Boston, 1883-1885, was in Italy, 1887-1892, and since then has lived in New York City in winter, and in summer at his country home, "Lone Pine," near Katonah, N. H. Mr. Barse is a figure painter, and is also prominently known for his mural and decorative work. He painted eight decorative panels in the Library of Congress at Washington, and many mural paintings in private residences, and he is represented by paintings in many public galleries. Mr. Barse has been an academician of the National Academy of Design since 1899, and is a member of the Society of American Artists, and of the Century Club of New York. He was awarded the first prize of the National Academy of Design in 1895, the Shaw Fund prize of the Society of American Artists in 1898, and the medal of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901. He married in Rome, Italy, in 1890, Rosa Ferrara. Address: Katonah, N. H., or 7 W. 43d Street, New York City.

BARSTOW, Frank Quarles:

Capitalist; born in Waukesha, Wis., Oct. 24, 1847. Mr. Barstow is best known in connection with the later history of the operations of the Standard Oil Company, of which he is director, especially with regard to the transportation of oil and its products. He has, however, taken a prominent part in the development of the work of increasing the number of commercial products of corn and of introducing them to international use. In connection with this work he is one of the best known of those active in this work. He is a director of the Corn Products Refining Company and the New York Glucose Company. Mr. Barstow is also a director of the Railway Steel Spring Company, the Thompson-Starrett Company, the Hegeman Company, the Union Tank Line Co., the People's Bank, and Savings Investment and Trust Company. Residence: East Orange, N. J. Address: 26 Broadway, New York City.

BARTH, Charles George:

Stock broker; born in Ohio, Aug. 19, 1840; son of John M. Barth and Elizabeth (Helbig) Barth. He was educated in the public schools of New York and Michigan. Mr. Barth was a general merchant at St. Joseph, Mich., 1865 to 1868, and grain, flour and provision commission merchant in the Chicago Board of Trade, 1868 to 1891. He has been a member of the Board of Trade for thirty-three years, and a member of the Chicago Stock Exchange since 1883. He organized and was a director and cashier of the Lemont State Bank, of Lemont, Ill., 1891 to 1897. He is now president and director of the American Angora Goat and Live Stock Company; director and treasurer of the Chicago, Hobart and Valparaiso Electric Railway, and a director of the National Oil Company, the Western Construction Company, the Colorado, Oklahoma and Chickasha Railway Company and the Lemont Electric Light and Power Company. He served on the staff of Generals D. A. Russell, Pierson, Sickles and Chamberlain as aide and commissary of subsistence with rank of captain and major by brevet, during the Civil War, in the Army of the Potomac, and participated in all the battles from and including Antietam until the surrender at Appomattox. He is a Republican in politics and a Congregationalist in his religious affiliation. Major Barth has served as a school trustee. He is a member of the Western Society of the Army of the Potomac and of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States. He married at St. Joseph, Mich., in June, 1864, Emma F. Swartwout, and they had two children: Harry Arlington Barth and Nellie Ristori Barth, the latter now deceased. Residence: 369 Oak Street, Chicago. Office address: 153 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.

BARTHOLDT, Richard:

Congressman, editor; born in Schleiz, Thuringia, Germany, Nov. 2, 1853. He came to this country while a mere boy, going to St. Louis in the early 70's; and afterwards went East and was connected with several New York and Brooklyn newspapers. He returned to St. Louis and took charge of the Tribune, a daily Republican newspaper. In 1891 he was president of the Conference of German-American Societies, held in Washington, D. C. In 1892 he was elected to Congress as a Republican from the Tenth Missouri district. He was reelected in 1894, 1896, 1898, 1900, 1902 and 1904, and 1906. He is chairman of the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, and the second member on the Committee on Labor. He presided over the International Parliamentary Congress in 1904, and it was through his influence that the Congress was held in the United States. He is one of the leaders of the peace movement in this country. Address: 3319 S. Ninth Street, St. Louis, Mo.

BARTLETT, Charles Lafayette:

Lawyer and congressman; born at Monticello, Jasper County, Ga., Jan. 31, 1853. He removed in 1875 from Monticello to Macon, Ga., where he has ever since resided. He was educated at the University of Georgia, graduating as A.B. in 1870, and studied law in the University of Virginia. He was admitted to the bar in Aug., 1872; was appointed solicitor general for the Macon Judicial Court, Jan. 31, 1877, and served in that capacity until Jan. 31, 1881. He was elected to two terms in the House of Representatives of Georgia and one in the State Senate, was elected judge of the Superior Court of the Macon Circuit, Jan. 1, 1893, and resigned that office May 1, 1894. He became the Democratic nominee for Congress in 1894, and was elected to the Fifty-fourth Congress, and he has been reelected biennially since and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. Address: Macon, Ga.

BARTLETT, Charles W.:

Lawyer: born in Boston, Aug. 12, 1845. He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1869, and from the Albany Law School in 1871. He was admitted to the bar in Boston, and with a constantly increasing practice has come to be one of the leading members of that bar, being regarded especially strong as a pleader and trial lawyer. In the past few years he has taken a prominent part in the Democratic politics of Massachusetts, and made an unsuccessful campaign for lieutenant-governorship, and was also an unsuccessful candidate for the nomination of governor. He married, first in Franklin, N. H., to Mary L. Morrison, and second, in Acushnet, Mass., in Aug., 1897, to Annie M. White. Residence: 39 Melville Avenue. Office: 244 Washington Street, Boston.

BARTLETT, Edward Theodore:

Jurist: born in Skaneateles, N. Y., June 14, 1841; son of Dr. Levi Bartlett, who practised as a physician and surgeon at Skaneateles for over fifty years. He is of Norman-French ancestry, the family name having originally been Bartelot, and his first American ancestor came from England to New Hampshire in early Colonial days; and he is a great-grandson of Josiah Bartlett (signer of the Declaration of Independence and the Articles of Confederation, and first governor and chief justice of New Hampshire). He received a classical education, then studied law and was admitted to the bar at Skaneateles in Oct., 1862. He practised law at the Onondaga County Bar until 1868, when he removed to New York City, and practised there until 1894. He was Republican nominee for justice of the Supreme Court of New York in 1891, and in 1893 he was nominated and elected associate justice of the Court of Appeals of New York, which office he holds by re-election, his present term expiring Dec. 31, 1911. Judge Bartlett is a member of the Association of the Bar of City of New York, the New York Law Institute, New England Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and the Union League and Republican Clubs of New York City. Address: Union League Club, New York City.

BARTLETT, George A.:

Lawyer and congressman: born in San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 30, 1869. He has lived in Nevada from his infancy, was educated in the common schools of that State, and was graduated from the Law Department of Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., LL.B., 1894. He was admitted to the bar, and has been engaged in practice in Nevada since 1894; was elected and served as district attorney of Esmeralda County, Nev., and in 1906 he was elected, as a Democrat, to the Sixtieth Congress, and in 1908 was reelected to the Sixty-first Congress from the State of Nevada at large. Address: Tonopah, Nev.

BARTLETT, Homer Newton:

Organist and composer: born in Olive, N. Y., Dec. 28, 1845; son of Henry B. and Hannah C. (Hall) Bartlett, descendant of Josiah Bartlett (signer of the Declaration of Independence, and first governor of New York). He received a classical education and then pursued his musical studies under the tutelage of Mills, Guyon, Braun, Jacobsen and other prominent teachers, and for a number of years has been organist of the Madison Avenue Baptist Church of New York. He is a director and former president of the Manuscript Society and a nationally known teacher of the organ, besides having an international reputation as a composer, his compositions including more than 225 original works and arrangements. Among these are a symphonic poem for orchestra, entitled Apollo, illustrating part of Homer's Iliad; Legende (meditation for orchestra); Concerto in G for violin and orchestra; two pieces for string orchestra; several cantatas (chorus and piano); Ballade (violin and orchestra); Khamsin (concert aria for tenor solo and orchestra); several cantatas (chorus and orchestra); one three-act opera, La Vallière; ninety published piano-forte works, and an equal number of songs and church anthems; also organ pieces, among them the Toccata in E and suite, op. 206. Mr. Bartlett was one of the founders of the American Guild of Organists. Address: 272 Manhattan Avenue, New York City.

BARTLETT, John R.:

Organizer of corporations; born in Fred-erickton, New Brunswick, May 17, 1839. He has for the past thirty years been the moving spirit in the creation and reorganization of many large corporations. An illustration of his peculiar creative ability may be found in his conception and creation of the great water system now supplying Newark, Jersey City, Paterson, Passaic, the Oranges and other towns in New Jersey with pure water, which, in spite of strenuous opposition, was brought to a successful completion in the year 1890. He reorganized and rehabilitated the manufacturing and commercial business of The American Cotton Oil Company in this country and Europe. This company embraced thirty-five separate corporations, located in seventeen States of the Union, with a capital of $33,000,000. On the successful completion of this work, Mr. Bartlett was elected to the chairmanship of the Niagara Canal Company. The reorganization of this company was a complicated problem, but the plan formulated by Mr. Bartlett fulfilled the requirements of the situation. Perhaps the most remarkable of his works, was the consolidation in England of the British Oil & Cake Mills, Limited, which company embraced twenty-eight mills and twelve refineries, engaged in manufacturing and refining cotton seed and linseed oil and cake throughout Great Britain. This enterprise was organized on a cash basis, and is unique from the fact that it is the only large industrial combination in Great Britain or Europe organized by an American. Mr. Bartlett was managing director of the Society for Establishing Useful Manufactures, organized by Alexander Hamilton in 1772. He organized and built the Macopin Railroad; West Milford Water Storage Company and the Montclair Water Company; vice-president of the New Jersey General Security Company; comptroller of the East Jersey Water Company; director of the Passaic Water Company and the Acquachanok Water Company; president of the Drawbaugh Telephone & Telegraph Company, The American Cotton Oil Company of New Jersey, The American Cotton Oil Company, of Ohio, The National Cotton Oil Company, Union Oil Company (of Rhode Island), The N. K. Fairbank Company of Chicago, and director of the W. J. Wilcox Lard and Refining Company; president of the Union Oil Company of New Orleans, and of the Bay State Gas Company of Delaware; director of the Siemens & Halske Electric Company, Chicago, the Pennsylvania Iron Works Co. of Philadelphia, and the Maritime Canal Company, and president of the Niagara Canal Company. He is a member of the New England Society and of the Union League and Lawyers' Clubs of New York. Address: 2 Wall Street, New York City.

BARTLETT, Paul Wayland:

Sculptor; born in New Haven, Conn., in 1865. He began the study of sculpture while a boy and at the age of fourteen exhibited a bust in the Paris Salon. In 1880 he entered the École des Beaux Arts, where he became a pupil of Cavelier. He attained an early and considerable success and is best known for his equestrian statue of Lafayette in the Square of the Louvre, Paris, the gift of the school children of the United States to France. Among his other works are the equestrian statue of General McClellan, Philadelphia; statue of General Joseph Warren, Boston; statues of Columbus and Michelangelo in the Congressional Library at Washington, and the north front of the Capitol, Hartford, Conn. He is also represented in the Luxembourg Gallery and the Musée des Arts Decoratifs, Paris, Metropolitan Museum, New York, the Boston Museum, the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts, and the Chicago Art Institute. He is an officer of the Légion d'Honneur of France, and has been a member of the jury of awards at several sculpture exhibits connected with international exhibitions. Address: Southwest corner of Third Street and Randolph Place, N. E., Washington, D. C.

BARTLETT, Willard:

Jurist; born in Uxbridge, Mass., Oct. 14, 1846; son of William O. and Agnes E. H. (Willard) Bartlett. He was graduated from Columbia University, A.B., 1869, and from the Law Department of New York University, LL.B., 1868, and the degree of LL.D. has been conferred upon him by Hamilton College, 1894; New York University, 1904, and Columbia University, 1904. He was admitted to the bar in 1868; practised law in association with Hon. Elihu Root, from 1869 to 1883, when he was elected a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, and he was re-elected in 1897. He served in the Appellate Division of the New York Supreme Court until 1906, when he was appointed associate justice of the Court of Appeals of New York, and in Nov., 1907, was elected to the same office, in which his term will expire Dec. 31, 1916. Judge Bartlett has been professor of medical jurisprudence in Long Island College Hospital since 1898. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the Revolution, the University and Century Clubs of New York City, and the Brooklyn and Hamilton Clubs of Brooklyn, N. Y. He married in Brooklyn, Oct. 26, 1876, Mary Fairbanks Buffum. Residence: 21 Pierrepont Street, Brooklyn. Official address: Albany, N. Y.

BARTON, Clara:

Philanthropist; born in Oxford, Mass., Dec. 25, 1821; daughter of Captain Stephen and Sally (Stone) Barton; was graduated from Clinton Liberal Institute, and studied languages and art in the Art Institute at Worcester, Mass. She taught school for ten years, afterward becoming the first woman clerk in a Government office in Washington, having charge of the caveats in the Patent Office; which position she gave up at the opening of the Civil War for work in the field. She was in the Franco-German War, serving with it on the fields of Hagenau, Metz, Strassburg, Belfort, Woerth, the Baden hospitals, Montbelard, and in Paris after the fall of the Commune. Miss Barton spent the seven years from 1875 to 1882 in making the International Red Cross work known to the United States, and in 1881 organized the American National Red Cross. She was nominated to its first presidency by President Garfield, and secured the adhesion of the United States to the Treaty of Geneva, March 2, 1882. Under her direction the American National Red Cross took charge of relief work in the Michigan forest fires of 1881; the floods of the Mississippi and Ohio Valleys in 1882, 1883 and 1884; the Texas famine of 1885; the cyclone at Mt. Vernon, Ill., 1888; Florida yellow fever, 1888; Johnstown disaster, 1889; the Russian famine of 1892; the hurricane and tidal wave on the South Carolina Islands in 1893-1894; the Armenian massacres of 1896; the Cuban Reconcentrado relief work of 1898-1900, in which about $500,000 worth of supplies, etc., were distributed; the Spanish-American War ($800,000), 1898, and the Galveston hurricane and tidal wave, 1900, besides many minor disasters. Miss Barton represented the Government of the United States at the International Red Cross Conferences at Geneva, 1884; Karlsruhe, 1887; Vienna, Austria, 1897, and St. Petersburg, Russia, 1902. She has been the recipient of decorations and honors from many nations, including a gold cross of remembrance from the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Baden, 1870; the Iron Cross, of Prussia, conferred by Emperor William I, and Empress Augusta, 1871; medal of the International Committee of the Red Cross of Geneva, Switzerland, 1882; Red Cross by Queen of Servia, 1884; silver medal by Empress Augusta of Germany, 1884; flag voted by the Congress at Berne, Switzerland, 1884; jewels by the Grand Duchess of Baden, 1884-1887, and from the Queen of Prussia, 1887; diplomas and decorations by the Sultan of Turkey, and the Prince of Armenia, 1896; Diploma of Gratitude, and decoration, by Spain, and vote of thanks by the Spanish Cortes, 1899; decoration of the Order of the Red Cross by the Czar of Russia, 1902, and decoration by Belgium, 1902; besides resolutions of the Central Relief Committee, Galveston, 1900, and votes of thanks from the Portuguese Red Cross, 1900; and the Texas Legislature, 1901. Miss Barton added to the work of the Red Cross in America, by permission of the other nations, the feature of relief in National calamities other than War, since known as the "American Amendment" to the Red Cross, and adopted by all nations. She is the author of: The Official History of the Red Cross, printed by the Government, 1883; The Red Cross, 1899; A Story of the Red Cross, 1904; The Story of My Childhood, 1907; and many pamphlets and reports. She resigned the presidency of the American Red Cross in 1904, after having brought it to a place of assured strength in the judgment and affections of the American people, accomplishing by a rare combination of noble impulses, clear brain and high executive ability, a work for her country and her age such as has been given to few women to achieve. Address: Glen Echo, Md.

BARTON, Enos M.:

Chairman of Board of Directors of the Western Electric Company; born at Lorraine, New York, Dec. 2, 1842; son of Sidney William and Fanny (Bliss) Barton. He was educated at the public and private schools of Lorraine, and attended a course at the University of Rochester, N. Y. His entry into a business life was as a telegraph messenger boy, and his rise was rapid. In 1869 he transferred his activities to Chicago, where in 1872 he became secretary of the Western Electric Company; later he became vice-president and from 1887 to 1908 was president of the company; since then chairman of the Board of Directors. He is also a director of the Merchants' Loan and Trust Company, and is a trustee of the University of Chicago, and an associate member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. He is a Republican in politics and is a member of the Chicago, Union League, Commercial and Quadrangle Clubs of Chicago, and the Hinsdale Club of Hinsdale, Ill. He has been twice married. His first wife was Katherine S. Richardson, to whom he was united at Rochester in 1869, and who died leaving three children, Alvin L., Katharine S. (Mrs. Robert W. Childs) and Clara M. His second marriage was to Mary C. Rust, of Chicago, in 1899, and they have three children: Malcolm S., Evan M. and Gilbert R. Residence: Hinsdale, DuPage County, Ill.

BARTON, George De Forest:

Real estate; born in New York, March 23, 1841; son of William Barton and Eliza Phillips (Whittemore) Barton. He was educated in the private schools of New York City and South Williamstown, Mass. He was appointed paymaster in the United States Navy, June 5, 1861, and served in the United States ships Monticello, Sassacus, St. Louis, Supply, Swatara, and Portsmouth. On the Monticello was present at the bombardment and capture of Forts Hatteras and Clark at Hatteras Inlet, N. C., Aug., 1861, the first naval success in the War of the Rebellion. In the Sassacus was aide and signal officer to Commander Francis A. Roe, U. S. Navy, in the celebrated encounter between the Sassacus and the Confederate iron-clad, Albemarle, in Albemarle Sound, May, 1864, when Commander Roe hurled at top speed the light, wooden Sassacus on the iron-clad Albemarle, disabling and driving the latter back to her port at Plymouth, N. C., where she was afterward torpedoed and destroyed by Lieutenant Cushing. In 1866 was in the Swatara in the Mediterranean Squadron, and chased to Alexandria, Egypt, and captured there, John H. Surratt, the friend of John Wilkes Booth and one of the Lincoln conspirators, and brought him to Washington, D. C., in Feb., 1867. Resigned from the Navy and in 1871 engaged in the real estate business in New York City, with his cousin, William Lawrence Whittemore, under the firm name of Barton and Whittemore. He was treasurer of the Real Estate Exchange in 1893 and 1894, and president in 1895 and 1896. He is a Republican in politics and an Episcopalian in religious adherence. He is a companion, and treasurer-in-chief, of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion; a companion of the Military Order Foreign Wars; vice-commander of the Naval Order; member of the Sons of the Revolution; the Society of 1812; vice-president Nineteenth Army Corps; member of the Army and Navy and Union League Clubs of New York City. Mr. Barton married at Garrison-on-Hudson, Dec. 28, 1876, Anna Dudley Ward, only daughter of the late Colonel Thomas William Ward, U. S. V. Address: 122 West 74th Street, New York City.

BARTON, James Levi:

Foreign secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions; born in Chittenden County, Vt., Sept. 23, 1855. He was educated at Middlebury College and at Hartford Theological Seminary. In 1885 he was sent to Turkey as a missionary of the American Board for Foreign Missions, and in 1888 became a professor in the Theological Seminary at Harpoot. In 1893 he became president of Euphrates College at Harpoot, and in 1894 he was appointed foreign secretary for the American Board, which office he now holds. He has traveled extensively in connection with the work of the American Board of Missions, having been chairman of the respective deputations to Japan, Ceylon and India, and secretary of the deputation to China. He is author of: The Missionary and His Critics; The Unfinished Task; Daybreak in Turkey, etc. He married in West Winfield, N. Y., Flora E. Holmes. Residence: Newton Centre, Mass. Office: 14 Beacon Street, Boston.

BARUS, Carl:

Professor of physics; born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 19, 1856; son of Carl and Sophia (Mollman) Barus. He was educated in Woodward High School, Cincinnati, Columbia University, 1874-1876, and the University of Würzburg, Bavaria, 1876-1880, receiving the Ph.D. degree, and in 1907 the LL.D. degree was conferred upon him by Brown University. He was assistant to Professor Kohlrausch, at Würzburg, in 1879 and 1880; was a physicist on the U. S. Geological Survey, 1880-1892; professor of meteorology in the U. S. Weather Bureau, 1892-1893; physicist of the Smithsonian Institution, 1893-1895; since then Hazard professor of physics at Brown University, where, since 1903, he has been Dean of the Graduate Department. He served on the committee appointed by Congress in 1895 to determine the electrical standards of the Government, and was speaker for American physics at the World's Congress of Scientists, held in St. Louis in 1904. Dr. Barus is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and was vice-president, and chairman of the Section of Physics in 1897; is a member of the National Academy of Sciences; corresponding member of the British Association for the Advancement of Science; honorary member of the Royal Institution of Great Britain; fellow (Rumford medallist, 1900) of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences (Mass.); member and ex-president of the American Physical Society, and member of the French Physical Society, Paris. He has been, since 1902, a member of the Advisory Committee of the Carnegie Institution. Dr. Barus has, since 1879, been a regular contributor to the standard magazines of physical research throughout the world, and his original investigations are embodied in about two hundred and forty original articles, and numerous books on physical subjects. He married in Boston, in Jan., 1887, Annie Gertrude Howes, and they have two children. Residence: 30 Elm Grove Avenue. Office: Brown University, Providence, R. I.

BASCOM, Florence:

Geologist; born in Williamstown, Mass.; daughter of John and Emma (Curtiss) Bascom. She was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, receiving the degrees of A.B. and B.L., 1882, B.S., 1884, and A.M., 1887; was a graduate student of Johns Hopkins University, with the degree of Ph.D. in 1893. Miss Bascom was assistant in geology in the Ohio State University at Columbus, Ohio, 1893-1895; since 1895 she has been lecturer and professor of geology at Bryn Mawr College. She is an assistant geologist of the United States Geological Survey, was associate editor of the American Geologist from 1896 to 1908. Miss Bascom's contributions to geological literature include Bulletin No. 136 of the U. S. Geological Survey, The Ancient Volcanic Rocks of South Mountain, Pa., 1896, No. 150, pp. 343-349. The Aporhyllite, 1898; No. 106, The Water Resources of the Philadelphia District, 1904. She is also author of: The Structure, Origin and Nomenclature of the Acid Volcanic Rocks of South Mountain, 1893, and A Pre-Tertiary Nepheline-bearing Rock, 1896 (Journal of Geology); Aporhyllite of South Mountain, Pa., 1896, and The Piedmont Plateau of Pennsylvania, 1905 (Bulletin of the Geological Society of America); The Geology of the Crystalline Rocks of Cecil County, Md. (Maryland Geological Survey Publications); Anhydritzwilling von Ausse, with V. Goldschmidt, 1907 (Groth's Zeitschrift für Krystallographie, Leipzig); A Geologic Map of the Crystalline Rock Formations of the Philadelphia Belt, with text, 1909. Also, in the American Geologist: The Relations of Streams in the Neighborhood of Philadelphia to the Bryn Mawr Gravel, Jan. 1897; On Some Dikes in the Vicinity of Johns Bay, Maine, 1899, also reviews and editorials. Dr. Bascom is a fellow of the Geological Society of America, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science; member of the Academy of Natural Science and the Geographical Society of Philadelphia; of the National Geographic Society, the Seismic Society, and the American Forestry Association. Address: Bryn Mawr, Pa.

BASH, Bertha Runkle:

Author; born at Berkeley Heights, N. J.; daughter of Cornelius A. and Lucia (Gilbert) Runkle. Her father, who died during her childhood, was a well-known lawyer, and her mother is known as one of the editors of Charles Dudley Warner's Library of the World's Best Literature, and for many essays and critical articles. The daughter was educated at Miss Brackett's School, in New York City, and travelled in Europe and the Orient, but had her home in New York until her marriage, at San Francisco, Oct. 26, 1904, to Captain Louis H. Bash, U. S. A., after which she spent three years in the Philippines, and is now (1909) living at San Antonio, Texas. She still uses her maiden name Bertha Runkle, as a pen-name, and is author of: The Helmet of Navarre, 1901; The Truth About Tolna, 1906. Mrs. Bash is a member of the Barnard Club of New York. Address: Care of the Century Company, New York City.

BASHFORD, James Whitford:

Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church; born at Fayette, Wis., May 25, 1849; son of Rev. Samuel Bashford and of Mary Ann (McKee) Bashford. He was graduated in the classical course from the University of Wisconsin as A.B. in 1873; the theological course at Boston University as S.T.B. in 1876 and from the School of Oratory of Boston University in 1878, and from the course in all sciences of Boston University as Ph.D. in 1881. He was pastor of Methodist Episcopal churches in Boston and Auburndale, Mass., Portland, Me., and Buffalo, N. Y., 1878-1889; president of the Ohio Wesleyan University from 1889 to 1904, and was elected a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church at the General Conference held in Los Angeles in 1904. He received the degree of D.D. pro honore, from Northwestern University in 1890, and LL.D. from Wesleyan University, in 1903.

Bishop Bashford is author of: Outlines of the Science of Religion, for class use, and Wesley and Goethe. He also published recently: The Awakening of China; China and Methodism; and God's Missionary Plan for the World. In connection with his Episcopal duties he has visited India and made a study of mission work in India and Malaysia, including the Philippines. He has also visited Russia and Siberia and fifteen of the provinces of China witnessing a large increase of the missionary force and of mission work in connection with his Church in China, of which he now has oversight. Bishop Bashford married in 1878, Jane M. Field, daughter of Hon. W. W. Field, of Madison, Wis. Address: Peking, China.

BASS, John Foster:

War correspondent; born in Chicago, in 1866. He was educated at Harvard University and at Harvard Law School, graduating from the latter in 1893 and being admitted to the bar in 1894. In 1895 he went to Egypt as a war correspondent and since that time has observed the Cretan insurrection, the Armenian massacre, the Greek war, the Spanish-American war, the Philippine insurrection, the Boxer insurrection, the Bulgarian uprising, and the Russo-Japanese war, thus having taken the comprehensive range of all of the armed conflicts that have taken place in the world since the adoption of his profession. During the Russo-Japanese war, he was in the field for six months with Kuroki. He is a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London and a member of the Explorers' Club of New York. Residence: 125 Lincoln Park Boulevard. Office: 189 La Salle Street, Chicago.

BASSETT, Adelaide Florence:

Author; born in Boston in 1845; daughter of Emanuel and Abbie (Zanea) Samuels. Her father was a naturalist of note, and was one of the naturalists sent by the Smithsonian Institution across the continent when the Pacific Railroad was being surveyed. She was educated in the district school of Milton, Mass., and was married at Milton, Mass., in 1891 to Orville Bassett. She wrote four books for girls, 1872, and four books for boys, 1874, published by Lee & Shepherd, of Boston; Daisy Travers, or the Girls of Hive Hall, same publishers. 1896; Father Gander's Melodies, 1894 (Little, Brown & Co.); also many magazine articles. Address: Hammononton, N. J.

BATEMAN, James Rice:

Manufacturer; born in New York City, June 26, 1867; son of Benjamin Bateman and Louisa H. (Smith) Bateman. He was educated in private schools. He is director of the Colonial Roofing Company and vice-president of the Acme Roofing Company, president and director of the Dyett Sand-Lime Brick Co., director Dyett Machine Co. His maternal granduncle was David T. Valentine, author of Valentine's Manual, of the City of New York, and an authority on the older city. Mr. Bateman's father was born in the old historic town of Edenton, N. C., and was of English descent. He is a Democrat in politics and an Episcopalian in religion. He is member of the St. David's Society, and the Masonic order and the Economic Club of New York City. Mr. Bateman married at Evart, Mich., M. Emma Ardis. Address: 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

BATES, Arlo:

Author; born in East Machias, Me., Dec. 16, 1850. He was graduated from Bowdoin College in 1876, and began newspaper and literary work. He was editor of the Boston Sunday Courier from 1880 to 1893, when he was appointed professor of English literature of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a position he still holds. He is best known for his books on the study of literature and on writing English, having the faculty of pointing out to the private student methods of improvement which are particularly helpful. He is also regarded as a master of English style in prose and verse. Among his books are: Patty's Perversities; Mr. Jacobs; The Pagans; A Wheel of Fire; Berries of the Brier; Sonnets in Shadow; A Lad's Love; The Philistines; Albrecht; The Poet and His Self; A Book o' Nine Tales; Told in the Gate; In the Bundle of Time; The Torch Bearers; Talks on Writing English; Talks on the Study of Literature; The Puritans; Under the Beech Tree; Love in a Cloud; Talks on Writing English; The Diary of a Saint; and Talks on Teaching Literature. He married, in 1882, Harriet L. Vose, deceased. Address: 4 Otis Place, Boston.

BATES, Arthur Laban:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Meadville, Pa., June 6, 1859; son of Samuel P. Bates, LL.D., and S. Josephine Bates. He was educated in Allegheny College at Meadville, receiving the degrees of A.B., 1880, and A.M., 1883, and Phi Beta Kappa honors. He was admitted to the bar in 1882, has practised his profession continuously ever since, and served as city solicitor of Meadville, 1887-1895. He was elected to Congress from the Twenty-fifth District of Pennsylvania in 1900, and has since been biennially reelected, receiving the largest majorities ever given in that district. Address: Meadville, Pa.

BATES, Blanche:

Actress; born in Portland, Ore., in 1873; daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Bates, well known actors, her father being manager of the Oro Fino Theatre in Portland at the time of her birth. The family removed to San Francisco in her infancy and she was educated in the public schools of that city. Miss Bates made her first appearance on the stage at a benefit performance in Stockwell's Theatre in San Francisco, in This Picture and That, a one-act play by Brander Matthews. After that she played general utility parts in a company managed by T. Daniel Frawley, afterward being advanced to leading woman and later to joint star, making a notable success in 1895 as Mrs. Hilary in The Senator, and afterward in an extensive repertoire, including "Nora" in Ibsen's A Doll's House. Miss Bates played in Shakesperian drama in Augustin Daly's Company in 1898, later returning as a star under Frawley's management for a short time, then played "Mihadi" in Liebler & Co.'s production of the Musketeers, and since then under management of David Belasco in Madame Butterfly, "Cigarette" in Under Two Flags, "Princess Yo-San" in The Darling of the Gods, "The Girl" in The Girl of the Golden West, and more recently in The Fighting Hope. Miss Bates married Lieutenant (now Captain) Milton F. Davis, of the Tenth Cavalry, U. S. A. Address: Belasco Theatre, New York City.

BATES, Charles Austin:

Writer on business and finance; born at Indianapolis, Ind., April 18, 1866; son of Charles A. H. Bates and Margaret Holmes (Ernsperger) Bates. He was educated in the public schools of Indianapolis. He is president of the Security National Bank and of the Knickerbocker Syndicate, of New York City, and vice-president of the Colorado-Yule Marble Company, of Marble City, Colorado. Mr. Bates married in Chicago, Sept., 11, 1890, Belle Brandenburg, and they have two children. Summer residence: Camp Cabates (Fourth Lake), Old Forge, N. Y. Address: 109 Riverside Drive, New York City.

BATES, John Coalter:

Former chief of Staff of the Army; born in St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 26, 1842. He was educated in the Washington University of St. Louis, from which he received the honorary degree of LL.D. in 1904. He was appointed first lieutenant of the 11th United States Infantry from Missouri May 14, 1861, serving with marked credit through the Civil War, and in the Spanish-American War was made brigadier-general of United States Volunteers, and subsequently promoted to be major-general. His services in the Philippines were specially meritorious, and in 1906 he was promoted to be lieutenant-general and chief of staff of the army, subsequently retiring April 14, 1906.

after over forty years of service. General Bates received numerous brevets and promotions for distinguished service during his career. Address: 1313 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BATES, John Lewis:

Lawyer and ex-governor; born at North Easton, Mass., Sept. 18, 1859; son of Rev. Lewis Benton and Louisa D. (Field) Bates. He was graduated from Boston University in 1882 with the degree of A.B.; taught school one year and then taking up the study of law at the Law School, received the degree of LL. B. in 1885, and in that year he was admitted to the bar. Mr. Bates is identified with the Republican party and in 1893 was elected to the lower house of the Massachusetts Legislature; was reelected for five other successive terms, serving as speaker of the house during his three last sessions. In 1899 he was elected lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts and was twice reelected until 1902, when he was nominated and elected governor. He was reelected the following year, but was defeated for a third term. Governor Bates is a director of several banking institutions and is president of the board of trustees of Boston University. He is a thirty-third degree Mason, and an Odd Fellow, and a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He married at Jamestown, N. Y., July 12, 1887, Clara Elizabeth Smith and has two children. Residence: Monmouth Square. Office: 73 Tremont Street, Boston.

BATES, Katharine Lee:

Author and educator; born at Falmouth, Mass., Aug. 12, 1859; daughter of Rev. William and Cornelia Frances (Lee) Bates. She was graduated from Wellesley College as A.B. in 1880, and after graduation taught in the Natick High School and afterward at Dana Hall, Wellesley, Mass., until 1885, when she entered the teaching staff of Wellesley College as instructor in English literature, becoming associate professor, 1888, and since 1891 professor in charge of the Department of English Literature. Professor Bates has edited numerous editions of English classics, and is author of: The College Beautiful, and Other Poems; Rose and Thorn (a prize story); Sunshine, and Other Verses for Children; Hermit Island (story); The English Religious Drama (a course of lectures); American Literature; Spanish Highways and Byways; From Gretna Green to Land's End; The Canterbury Pilgrimage Retold for Children; also various booklets and magazine articles. She is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society and of the Boston Authors' Club. Address: Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.

BATES, Lindon Wallace:

Contractor; was born at Marshfield, Vt., Nov. 19, 1858; son of William Wallace and Marie (Cole) Bates. He took the Yale University technical course, finishing in 1879. He went west as assistant engineer on the Northern Pacific, Oregon Railway and Navigation Company, and Oregon Pacific Railways. He was afterwards engaged as contractor on various works on the Pacific Coast, and built several dredges on improved plans. He prepared reports and projects for the improvement adopted for the port of Antwerp, 1896-1902; executed a series of work on the Suez Canal in behalf of its enlargement; was retained by the Russian Government to design improvements for the ports and channels of the Black Sea; the Sea of Azov; the rivers Dnieper, Volga and Bug, and the Canal Marie; also by the Queensland Government to project and direct harbor works at Brisbane, and six other Colony ports. He prepared projects also (many since executed), at the request of the South Australian Government, for Adelaide, for four other harbors and rivers, and for extension of railroad system. He designed a system of regulation for the Hugli in behalf of the Calcutta Port Board; and was also one of the engineers on the International scheme for the improvement of the port of Shanghai, China. Mr. Bates was the contractor in the work of raising the grade of Galveston

City and Island, and another company, of which he is president has contracts aggregating some twenty-five miles of the New York barge canal from the Hudson River to Lake Erie and Black Rock harbor at Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Bates was awarded the Grand Prix and a decoration by the French Government in 1900 for distinguished services to science, and has two other Government decorations. He is a member of the leading engineering societies in the United States and Europe. Mr. Bates married at Chicago in 1881, Josephine White, and has two sons. Address: 14 East 60th Street, New York City.

BATES, T. Towar:

Banker; born in Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 10, 1874; son of Alfred W. and Céphise C. Bates (née Towar). He was graduated from the Berkeley School of New York City and from Columbia University, 1895. He started in business with the dry goods commission house of Faulkner, Page & Co., of New York City and Boston, of which firm his father had been a member for about twenty years. After some years in the dry goods business he engaged in the bond and investment security business, and Jan. 1, 1905, with Henry W. and William B. Shoemaker (sons of Henry F. Shoemaker), started the banking house of Shoemaker and Bates. The present firm of Shoemaker, Bates & Co. was formed Jan. 1, 1907, and does an extensive banking and general bond and stock business, with offices in Chicago and Philadelphia, as well as in New York City. He is a member of the New York Stock Exchange. April 1, 1905 he received a full and honorable discharge from the National Guard of the State of New York, having served ten years as a member of Troop 2, Squadron A. National Guard of New York. He is a Republican and Episcopalian, and a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. Mr. Bates married in New York City, Bertha Schefer, daughter of Carl Schefer, a prominent banker and dry goods importer of New York City. Residence: Woodlands, Convent, N. J. Office: 37 Wall Street, New York City.

BATTLE, William James:

Professor of Greek; born in Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 30, 1870; son of Kemp Plummer and Martha Ann Battle. He was graduated from the University of North Carolina, A. B., 1888; was instructor in Latin there, 1889-1890; then entered upon graduate study in Harvard University, from which he took the degrees of A. M., 1891, and Ph. D., 1893. He took the Greek prize, edited the College Magazine, was president of one of the two literary societies, and delivered the classical oration at graduation, in the University of North Carolina; and held the Thayer Scholarship one year and the Morgan Fellowship two years at Harvard. He was elected tutor in Latin in the University of Chicago, 1893, but later in the same year resigned to become associate professor of Greek in the University of Texas. In 1908 he was made professor of Greek in the University of Texas, and, in 1908, dean of the College of Arts. Professor Battle is a member of the Texas Academy of Science, the American Philological Society, the Archaeological Institute of America, the Hellenic Society of England, the Archaeological Society of Athens (Greece); the Zeta Psi fraternity, and the University and Town-and-Gown Clubs of Austin. Address: 2200 San Antonio Street, Austin, Texas.

BAUER, Louis Agricola:

Director Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington; born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 26, 1865; son of Ludwig and Wilhelmina (Buehler) Bauer. He was graduated from the University of Cincinnati, as C.E. in 1888, and received its degree of M.S. in 1894, and Ph.D. and M.A. from the University of Berlin in 1895. He was assistant civil engineer, Walnut Hills Cable Road, and of Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific R. R., Cincinnati, Ohio, 1886-1887; was next computer in the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, 1887-1892; and from 1892 to 1895 he pursued special studies and investigations in physics and geophysics at the University of Berlin and at the Potsdam Magnetic Observatory; engaged as docent of mathematical physics and instructor of geophysics, University of Chicago, 1895-1897; and as assistant professor of mathematics and mathematical physics at the University of Cincinnati, 1897-1899. From 1899 to 1906 he was Chief of the Division of Terrestrial Magnetism and inspector of magnetic work in the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, during which period a general magnetic survey of the United States was completed. He became director of the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington in 1904. He was also chief of the Division of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Maryland Geological Survey from 1896-1899; astronomer and magnetician of the Boundary Surveys of Maryland, 1897-1898, and has been lecturer on terrestrial magnetism at the Johns Hopkins University since 1899. He is editor-in-chief of Terrestrial Magnetism and Atmospheric Electricity founded by him in 1896. He has been a member of the International Meteorological Conference since 1898, as a member of the Permanent Committee on Terrestrial Magnetism; also member of the Committee on Terrestrial Magnetism of the International Association of Academies, since 1904. Dr. Bauer is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, (vice-president, Section Physics, 1909), and a member of the American Physical Society; the American Astronomical and Astrophysical Society; National Geographical Society; Association of American Geographers, (first vice-president, 1909); Washington Academy of Sciences; Washington Philosophical Society (president for 1908); Washington Literary Society; Sociedad Científica Antonio Alzate of Mexico; International Congress of Arts and Sciences; corresponding member of the Königlische Gesellschaft der Wissenschaften zu Göttingen since 1906; and a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity and of the Cosmos Club of Washington. Address: The Ontario, Washington, D. C.

BAUGH, Daniel:

Manufacturer; born in Chester County, Pa., Oct. 22, 1836. He was educated at private seminaries. His family, for several generations, has been engaged in the tanning business or connected with the leather industry, but in 1853 his father decided to turn his attention to the manufacture of artificial fertilizers by chemical and other means, converting the power and machinery of the old works to use in the new. In 1855 he associated with him his sons Daniel and Edwin, under the firm title of Baugh & Sons, and the manufacture of super-phosphate was begun and diligently developed. In 1860 the plant was removed to Philadelphia, and the Delaware River Chemical Works established, new lines of manufacturing being added till the business became one of great importance. In 1862, during the Civil War, Mr. Baugh, being a private in the ranks of the Gray Reserves, went with his regiment to the defense of the State when it was menaced by General Lee's Army, the regiment crossing into Maryland about the time of the battle of South Mountain, but not coming into action. In 1888, his father and brother having died, Mr. Baugh became president of the Baugh & Sons Company, incorporated the year before, and he is still at its head. He was for ten years president of the Art Club of Philadelphia and of the Sanitarium Association, and is now president of the Pennsylvania School of Design for Women, a director of the Girard National Bank and of a number of other financial, educational and charitable organizations in Philadelphia. Address: 1601 Locust Street, Philadelphia.

BAUMANN, Gustav:

Hotel proprietor; born in Saint Gall, Switzerland, in 1853; son of J. G. Baumann and A. B. Baumann. He lived in Saint Gall until 1874 and at Neufchatel from 1871-1875, in London from 1875-1881, and came to the United States in 1881. He became connected with Kinsley's, then the leading restaurant at Chicago, in which he was partner and manager until he removed to New York City, where he is now of H. M. Kinsley & Baumann, proprietor of the Holland House. In religious affiliation he is a Presbyterian; and he is a member of the Lotos, Swiss, Larchmont Yacht and Fairfield County Golf Clubs. Address: Holland House, Fifth Avenue, and Thirtieth Streets, New York City.

BAXTER, Irving Franklin:

Lawyer; born at Liverpool, Onondaga County, N. Y., Jan. 11, 1863; son of George and Amie C. (Silts) Baxter. After studying law at Syracuse, N. Y., he was admitted to practise law in the courts of that state. He removed to Omaha, Neb., in 1887, and began his legal practice there. Mr. Baxter soon showed himself to be an able lawyer and he was given various public offices and has been before the public eye continually. In 1892 he was made attorney for the Omaha Board of Education, and was elected the following year by the Republican party of which he is a member, county judge of Douglas County, Neb., and served three terms, in all six years. This was followed by five years as judge of the fourth judicial district of Nebraska. In 1904 he resigned the judgeship and became United States attorney for Nebraska, which office he held for two years, having prosecuted land frauds and various other kind of corruption. He has since been a member of the firm of Baxter and Van Dusen, attorneys. On Sept. 26, 1888, he married at Liverpool, N. Y., Mary C. Gleason. Residence: The Madison. Address: New York Life Building, Omaha, Neb.

BAXTER, Sylvester:

Author; born in West Yarmouth, Mass., Feb. 6, 1850. He was educated in Leipzig and Berlin, and entered newspaper work in Boston, subsequently going to Mexico where he was correspondent of American papers and editor of the Mexican Financier. He attended the Pan-American Conference at Rio Janeiro in 1906 as special correspondent. In Boston he has taken an active part in municipal affairs. He was the first to suggest the organization of the Boston Metropolitan Park System, and was secretary of the preliminary commission that brought about the coöperation of Boston with the surrounding municipalities in the development of a park system and leading to other metropolitan improvements. Mr. Baxter's writings cover a wide scope, economic, sociological, imaginative and in verse. They include, among others, the following works: Cruise of a Land Yacht; Berlin—A Study in Municipal Government; The Boston Park Guide; The Old New World, statement of the Hemenway Southwestern Archaeological Expedition; Greater Boston, monograph; Spanish Colonial Architecture in Mexico; The Quest of the Holy Grail; and Old Marblehead. He married in East Bridgewater, Mass., Sept. 24, 1893, to Lucia Allen Millett. Address: Malden, Mass.

BAYLIES, Edwin:

Lawyer and author; born in Clinton, N. Y., Aug. 23, 1840. He was graduated from Hamilton College as A.B., 1862, and from Hamilton College Law School, as LL.B. in 1870, and has received the honorary degree of LL.D. from his alma mater in 1901. Mr. Baylies has resided in Johnstown, N. Y., since his admission to the bar in 1870 and has been constantly engaged in the study and practice of the law and the preparation of text-books both original and edited from the works of earlier writers. Among his books are: Questions and Answers for Law Students; Sureties and Guarantors; Trial Practice; New Trials and Appeals; Code Pleading and Forms; and Supplement to Wait's Actions and Defenses. He is editor of the Revised Edition of Edwards on Bailments, American Edition of Addison on Torts, and Wait's Law and Practice. He was married in Marcy, N. Y., May 2, 1871, to Agnes E. Nutter. Address: Johnstown, N. Y.

BAYLOR, James Bowen:

Geodetist; born in Mirador, Va., May 30, 1849. He was educated in the University of Virginia and has received the honorary degree of LL.D. from Baylor University. In 1874 he was appointed an aide to the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey and has since been a field officer of that service, having determined the elements of the earth's magnetism from Canada to Mexico in almost every State of the Union. He has also done a large amount of geodetic, astronomical and hydrographic work, especially in connection with the division of the limits of oyster grounds as a means to the ascertainment of the rights of individuals and of the various States in such grounds and for the purpose of preventing the waste of such public reserves. As a part of this work, he made oyster surveys in Louisiana and the "Baylor Survey" of the oyster grounds of Virginia, together with work relating to the oyster legislation of Maryland. He was the commissioner of the United States Supreme Court for the boundary of Virginia and Tennessee from 1900 to 1902; has been boundary engineer on the Virginia and Maryland division, the Pennsylvania and New York boundary, and the United States and Canada boundary survey. He has contributed to various reports of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey. Mr. Baylor is a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, National Geographical Society, and the Philosophical Society of Washington. He married at Staunton Hill, Va., Jan. 5, 1881, Ellen C. Bruce, who is now deceased. Residence: Newmarket, Milford Postoffice, Va. Office: United States Coast and Geodetic Survey, Washington, D. C.

BAYNE, Samuel Gamble:

Banker; born at Ulster, Ireland, 1844; son of Peter and Margaret Bayne. He was educated at the Royal Academy School and Queen's College at Belfast, Ireland. He began his business life in the office of Sir James Hamilton, Belfast, and later became a linen manufacturer in Belfast. He came to the United States in 1869, and went to the oil regions in Pennsylvania in 1870, drilling 400 wells there. He made a tour of the world in 1874-1875. Mr. Bayne organized First National Bank of Bradford, Pa., becoming its president; and subsequently organized National banks in Texas, Kansas, Mississippi, Minnesota and Ohio. He organized the Seaboard National Bank, New York, in 1883, and is now its president. He is treasurer of Produce Exchange Deposit Vaults and president of the Atlas Improvement Company, and Riverside Drive Property Association. He is author of: Pith of Astronomy, 1896; On an Irish Jaunting Car Through Donegal and Connemara, 1902; Quicksteps through Scandinavia, 1908. He is a member of the New York Athletic Club. Mr. Bayne married in New York City, October, 1874, Emily Kelsey. Residence: (winter) Riverside Drive and 108th Street, New York City; (summer) White Plains, N. Y. Office 18 Broadway, New York City.

BEACH, Amy Marcy Cheney (Mrs. H. H. A. Beach):

Composer; born in Henniker, N. H., Sept. 5, 1867; daughter of Charles Abbott and Clara Imogen (Marcy) Cheney. She began her education at home under her mother's tuition, studied piano and harmony under Junius W. Hill, Carl Baermann and Ernest Parabo, and afterward studied fugue, counterpoint, form and instrumentation from text-books. She married in 1885, Dr. Henry Harris Aubrey Beach. As Miss Cheney she attained much distinction as a pianist, playing in concerts and recitals, and since her marriage she has done much in musical composition, taking a place in the foremost rank of American composers and enjoying an international musical reputation. Mrs. Beach has composed music written to Browning's poetry, and in recognition of her work in this direction has been made an honorary member of the Boston Browning Society, and she has composed many songs, cantatas, masses, concertos, and other compositions, for voice, piano and orchestra, some of the best known of her published compositions being: Mass in E-flat, sung by the Boston Handel and Haydn Society in 1892; Concerto for piano and orchestra, which she played with the Boston Symphony Orchestra; the cantatas The Rose of Avontown (for female voices), Sylvania, wedding cantata for mixed voices, The Sea Fairies; The Chambered Nautilus; Quintet for piano and strings; Part-songs for female voices; Service in A; many pieces for the piano. Address: 28 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston.

BEACH, Frederick Converse:

Editor and patent attorney; born in New York City, March 27, 1848; son of Alfred Ely and Harriet E. (Holbrook) Beach. He was graduated from Sheffield Scientific School, Yale University, as Ph.B. in 1868. He was patent solicitor in Washington, D. C. in 1868-1869; was afterward engaged as assistant superintendent in construction of the Beach pneumatic tunnel under Broadway, and was a manufacturer of electrical instruments until 1877, when he entered the office of The Scientific American, of which he later became and still is one of the editors; also editor-in-chief of Encyclopædia Americana. He is secretary and treasurer of Munn & Company, patent attorneys and publishers of The Scientific American; treasurer of the Union Waxed and Parchment Paper Company; president and treasurer American Photographic Publishing Company, and is a well known amateur photographer. Mr. Beach married, at Stratford, Conn., June 16, 1875, Margaret Allen Gilbert, and they have two children. Address: 361 Broadway, New York City.

BEACH, Henry Harris Aubrey:

Physician and surgeon; born at Middletown, Conn., Dec. 18, 1843; son of Elijah Beach and Lucy Smith (Riley) Beach. He was educated in the Cambridge public schools. During the Civil War he enlisted in the regular army and served two years in the hospital corps until the close of hostilities, becoming then surgical house officer of the Massachusetts General Hospital. At the same time he took up the study of medicine at Harvard University and was graduated M.D. in 1868. Besides his private practice, Dr. Beach was appointed in 1868 assistant demonstrator of anatomy at Harvard University and demonstrator and member of the Harvard Faculty in 1879, and in 1899 he became instructor in clinical surgery, holding this position until 1900, when he became lecturer on the same subject. For thirty-five years he has served at the Massachusetts General Hospital, first for one year, as house surgeon, then consecutively for six years as surgeon to out patients; twenty-eight years as visiting surgeon, and from 1907 as consulting surgeon. Dr. Beach has rendered valuable service in surgery and the results of his work are embodied in various articles and medical papers. He was president of the Boylston Medical Society of Harvard University, 1873-1874; is a member of the American Medical Association, the Massachusetts Medical Society, Boston Society for Medical Sciences, Boston Society for Medical Improvement, Biological Society of Washington, American Association for the Advancement of Science and is honorary member with medal of the first class of the Accademia Fisico-Chimica Italiano of Palermo, Italy. He is a Republican in politics, and an Episcopalian in religion. He has been twice married, first, June 7, 1871, to Alice C. Mandell, of New Bedford, Mass., who died July 30, 1880, and second, Dec. 2, 1885, to Amy Marey Cheney, of Boston, Mass. Mrs. Beach has attained great distinction as a musical composer. Address: 28 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston.

BEACH, Rex Ellingwood:

Author; born at Atwood, Mich., Sept. 1, 1877; son of Henry Walter and Eva (Canfield) Beach. He was educated at Rollins College, Winter Park, Florida, the Chicago College of Law, and Kent College of Law at Chicago, Ill. He is author of: Pardners; The Spoilers; The Barrier; The Silver Horde. He also dramatized The Spoilers and The Barrier and has written various articles and stories for American and English magazines and periodicals. Address: 259 W. 70th St., New York, N. Y.

BEAL, Junius Emery:

Regent of the University of Michigan; born at Port Huron, Mich., Feb. 23, 1860, of New England parentage, his grandfather Field, great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather, having been Yale graduates. His mother died when he was eleven months old and he was adopted by his uncle Rice A. Beal. He received his education at the Ann Arbor high school and University of Michigan, being graduated A.B. in 1882. During vacation, he worked in his father's printing office at the case and in the press room, getting familiar with the mechanical part of the business, and on graduation he assumed the editorship of the Ann Arbor Courier. When R. A. Beal died in 1883 he took up the work and carried on book publishing in connection with the newspaper for twenty years, when he sold out. The Dr. Chase Recipe Book published by him had a sale of a million copies in its various editions. Mr. Beal has been a member of the Ann Arbor School Board for twenty years, and was president of the Michigan Press Association in 1893. He has traveled extensively through Europe, including Russia, and about the Caribbean Sea. He is a member of various Masonic orders and a director of the Detroit F. & M. Insurance Co., and on other boards. Mr. Beal has always been an active Republican, a presidential elector in 1888; president of the Michigan League of Republican clubs, 1889-1890, and was elected to the Legislature in 1904, by 711 majority, the largest the First District had ever given. In April, 1907, he was elected Regent of the University of Michigan by over 105,000 majority. He is married and has two children, a boy and a girl. Address: Ann Arbor, Mich.

BEALE, Joseph Henry, Jr.:

Educator; born in Dorchester, Mass., Oct. 12, 1861. He was educated at Harvard College, A.M. 1882 and LL.B. 1887; University of Wisconsin, LL.D. and the University of Chicago. After a number of years' practice of the law in Boston he became teacher of law at Harvard Law School, and has been professor of law there since 1897. He was also for two years, 1902 to 1904, dean of the law school of the University of Chicago. Professor Beale has taken a prominent part in the modification of legal practice through his writings, and in 1900 was a member of the Massachusetts State Commission for Simplifying Criminal Pleadings. He is the author of numerous standard text-books on the law, including: Cases on Criminal Law; Cases on Damages; Cases on Carriers; Criminal Pleadings and Practice; Cases on the Conflict of Laws; Cases on Public Service Corporations; Foreign Corporations; Innkeepers; and Railroad Rate Regulation (with Bruce Wyman). He married in Barnstable, Mass., Dec. 23, 1891, Elizabeth C. Day. Address: 29 Chauncy Street, Cambridge, Mass.

BEALE, Truxton:

Diplomat, author; born in San Francisco, Calif., March 6, 1856; son of Edward F. and Mary (Edwards) Beale. He was graduated from the Pennsylvania Military College at Chester, Pa., in 1874, and from the Law School of Columbia University, in New York, as LL.B. in 1878. He engaged in law practice and made a special study of international questions, and was appointed by President Harrison envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Persia, and from the legation at Teheran was transferred to the post of American minister to Greece. After his service at Athens he became an extensive traveler in the Orient, and particularly in Siberia, Chinese Turkestan and other parts of Central Asia. Mr. Beale is now devoting his attention to the management of large estates in California. He is a writer in leading reviews and magazines of articles on Oriental and international subjects, and is a member of the Asiatic Society. Mr. Beale has been twice married, first to Harriet Blaine, daughter of the late James G. Blaine, and second, at New York City, April 23, 1903, to Marie Oge, of San Rafael, Calif., a granddaughter of the late Salmon

P. Chase, chief justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Address: 222 Sansome Street, San Francisco.

BEALL, Jack:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Ellis County, Texas, Oct. 25, 1866; son of Richard and Adelaide (Pierce) Beall. Both of his parents were Kentuckians and were among the early settlers of Texas. He was reared upon a farm and attended the old-fashioned country schools; taught school in 1884 and 1885; in 1886 entered the literary department of the University of Texas and in 1889 the law department, graduating therefrom in 1890, and has since been engaged in the practice of law. He served as a member of the Texas House of Representatives for three years; and in the Texas Senate for four years. Mr. Beall received the Democratic nomination in 1902 and was elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress, and in 1904, 1906 and 1908 was reelected to the Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses, and is now serving in the latter. He married, in 1898, Patricia Martin. Address: Waxahachie, Texas.

BEALL, Mary Stevens:

Secretary of the Columbia Historical Society; born in Philadelphia; daughter of James and Georgiana G. (Haines) Stevens; graduated with honors and valedictory from the Girls' High and Normal School of Philadelphia; married in Philadelphia, Alexander E. Beall, of Washington, D. C., and they have a daughter, Blanche Carroll Beall (now Mrs. T. Magruder Hughes). Her paternal ancestors came from England and settled in Talbot County, Md., in 1652; the first, William Stevens, holding the office of King's justice. Her grandfather Stevens died when her father was a lad 13 years old, and as soon as the latter attained his majority, he freed all the slaves he had inherited, and about ten years before the Civil War he gave $10,000 to help build the ship Mary Caroline, for carrying freed slaves to Liberia and establishing them there. Her maternal ancestors came from Germany, the first, Peter Snyder, being one of the first settlers of Germantown, Pa. Author of: Military and Private Secretaries of George Washington (Volume I, records of the Columbia Historical Society); Story of the Washington Coaches and of the Powell Coach now at Mount Vernon; also historical sketches and short stories in various papers and magazines. Mrs. Beall has been secretary of the Columbia Historical Society since 1895, and is an associate member of the National Alumni. She has classes each winter in the study of Shakespeare, is a lecturer on "The Merchant of Venice as Shakespeare Saw It Played" and other Shakespearean subjects, and has also prepared a series of art lectures covering the records from the earliest specimens of Egypt, Greece and Rome, down to the Christian Era. Mrs. Beall is active in the institutional and charitable work of St. John's Episcopal Church of Georgetown, D. C. Address: 1643 Wisconsin Avenue, Washington, D. C.

BEAN, Tarleton Hoffman:

Fish culturist and zoölogist; born at Bainbridge, Pa., Oct. 8, 1846; son of George and Mary (Smith) Bean. He was graduated from the State Normal School at Millersville, Pa., in 1866, later entering the medical department of Columbian (now George Washington) University, from which he was graduated as M.D. in 1876, and he received the degree of M.S. from Indiana University in 1883. He was editor of proceedings and bulletins of the United States National Museum from 1878 to 1880, and curator of fishes there from 1880 to 1895, also editing the reports and bulletins of the U. S. Fish Commission from 1889 to 1892; and he was assistant in charge of the Division of Fish Culture of the U. S. Fish Commission from 1892 to 1895. He was director of the New York Aquarium from 1895 to 1898, and acting curator of fishes in the American Museum of Natural History, 1897-1898; was chief of the departments of Fish, Game and Forestry at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition from 1902 to 1905, and is now State fish culturist of the State of New York. In recognition of his distinction as an ichthyologist and fish culturist he received from France in 1901 the decoration of chevalier of the Legion of Honor, from Germany in 1905 that of Knight of the Red Eagle, and from Japan in 1905 the Order of the Rising Sun. Mr. Bean is the author of several standard works on fish and fisheries. He married in Washington, D. C., Jan. 1, 1878, Laurette H. Van Hook. Address: 1 Madison Avenue, New York.

BEARD, Adelia Belle:

Artist and author; born in Painesville, Ohio; daughter of James Henry Beard, N.A., celebrated animal painter, and Mary Caroline (Carter) Beard, daughter of Colonel Thomas and Debora (Bartlett) Carter, and, through the Bartletts directly related to Josiah Bartlett, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Miss Beard was educated in private schools in Covington, Ky.; studied art in Cooper Union, Art Students' League, and Wyatt Eaton's studio, portrait painting under William M. Chase, life under Walter Shirlaw, and water colors under Rhoda Holmes Nichols. Miss Beard's first picture, submitted to the Academy of Design, entitled "In the World but Not of the World," was accepted, hung on the line, and sold immediately. Her works have been exhibited in various prominent exhibitions; also in the American Water Color Society of New York. For one year Miss Beard was supervisor of drawing in the public schools of Flushing, L. I., and for several years she carried on a private art school in her own studio. She is joint author, with her sister, Lina Beard, of: The American Girls' Handy Book; What a Girl Can Make and Do; Recreation for Girls; Things Worth Doing; and Home Mission Handicraft (all published by Charles Scribner's Sons); and she is a contributor to various magazines and newspapers. Miss Beard is interested in all that makes for the betterment of mankind spiritually, mentally and physically, in all new inventions and discoveries; also in art, especially as related to painting and illustrating, handicrafts of all kinds, manual training, and everything pertaining to outdoor life. Miss Beard is a member of the National Child Labor Committee, charter member of the Good Citizenship League of Flushing, L. I., in which she has been recording secretary, and chairman of the Art Committee, and she founded, for the League, the Building Fund, which has now materialized into a fine club-house, an inspiration for other women's clubs. Address: 100 Jaggard Avenue, Flushing, N. Y.

BEARD, Daniel Carter ("Dan Beard"):

Illustrator, author, editor; born in Cincinnati, Ohio, June 21, 1850; son of James H. (National Academician and distinguished artist) and Mary Caroline (Carter) Beard. He was educated as civil engineer, and graduated second in class, and studied art under Beekwith and Sartain. He made detailed maps of most of the cities, towns and villages east of Mississippi River for a map publishing company, and later started as professional illustrator. He illustrated Mark Twain's "Yankee in King Arthur's Court," Ernest H. Crosby's "Captain Jenks, Hero," John Jacob Astor's and many other books; and has done work for Life, Scribner's, Harper's, Century and the Cosmopolitan. He was formerly editor of Recreation, and contributor (in charge of a department) in Outing and Ladies' Home Journal and Circle; is associate editor of The Arena, but is especially known for the books and articles written and illustrated by himself, explaining various lines of out door work and play especially attractive to boys. Mr. Beard was an intimate friend of the late Henry George, and has been continuously active as worker and speaker in the single-tax propaganda. He is member of the Academy of Science, Ornithologists' Union, Biological Society, Linnean Society, Zoölogical Society, Scientific Alliance; fellow of Society of Illustrators (succeeded Charles Dana Gibson as president of latter). His favorite recreations are traveling in the Northwestern Wilderness, fishing and sketching wild animals; and he has recently published a book of these sketches and notes. Mr. Beard married at Newton, L. I., Aug. 15, 1894, Beatrice Alice Jackson, and they have two children. Address: 87 Bowne Avenue, Flushing, Long Island, N. Y.

BEARD, Lina:

Author and illustrator; born in Cincinnati, Ohio; daughter of James Henry Beard (National Academician and celebrated animal painter) and Mary Caroline (Carter) Beard, who was a daughter of Col. Thomas and Debora (Bartlett) Carter, and through the Bartletts directly related to Josiah Bartlett, signer of the Declaration of Independence. Miss Beard was educated in Mrs. Collins' private school at Covington, Ky., Wesleyan College, Cincinnati, and by Dr. Charles West at Brooklyn Heights Seminary, Brooklyn, N. Y. She studied drawing at Cooper Union and the Art Students' League in New York City. In collaboration with her sister, Adelia Belle Beard, she has written and illustrated four books: The American Girls' Handy Book; What a Girl Can Make and Do; Recreation for Girls; Things Worth Doing; and Home Missions Handicraft (all published by Charles Scribner's Sons). She is also a contributor to magazines and does special work for newspapers. The Bureau of Education of the U. S. Department of the Interior has solicited examples of Miss Beard's work (which she has furnished) for use in the Government exhibit at Seattle, 1909. Miss Beard is interested in all that makes for development and advancement, also in nature, out door life, antiques and handicrafts of all kinds; was one of the organizers and directors of the Brooklyn Primitive Art Club, and one of the founders and directors of the Good Citizenship League (first woman's club organized in Flushing, L. I.), originated and for several years was chairman of its Art Committee, later chairman of the Political Economy Committee and of the Board of Directors of the League, and was its delegate to the First National Arbitration and Peace Congress, which was held in New York City in April, 1907. Miss Beard is also well known as an active and ardent single-taxer. Address: 100 Jagger Avenue, Flushing, N. Y.

BEATTY, Robert Chetwood:

Lawyer; born in New York City, May 18, 1872; son of John Cuning Beatty and Hetty (Bull) Beatty. He was graduated from Columbia University Schools of Law and Political Science, as LL.B. in 1894 and LL.M. in 1895. He was junior assistant to corporation counsel, New York City, in 1897; special counsel to city, in charge of grade damage claims, from 1898 to 1903; member of the bar of courts of New York State, United States Supreme Court and other Federal courts, and a master in chancery of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York. He is member of the law firm of Beatty and Burlingame (with Frederic Anson Burlingame). He is member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, Society of Colonial Wars, Sons of Revolution. He is member of the Lawyers' Club and the Century Association. Mr. Beatty married in New York City, Jan. 30, 1901, Jean Burlingame, and they have two daughters. Address: 43 Cedar Street, New York City.

BEAUPRÉ, Arthur M.:

Lawyer and diplomat; born at Oswego, Ill., July 29, 1853. After receiving an education in the public schools of Oswego, he removed in 1874 to Aurora, Ill., where he studied law, and he was admitted to practise by the Supreme Court of Illinois. He practised law at Aurora, and in 1886 was elected to the office of county clerk of Kane County, Ill. He was appointed by President McKinley to the office of consul-general and secretary of the legation at Guatemala, in Oct., 1897, was transferred to Colombia in the same capacity in Oct., 1899, was appointed United States minister to Colombia, in Feb., 1903, and served there during the pendency of the Panama Canal Treaty in the Colombian Congress, and in March, 1904, he was appointed by President Roosevelt, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the Argentine Republic, in which office he served until his appointment to his present post as American minister to the Netherlands. Mr. Beaupré married, in De Kalb, Ill., Oct. 20, 1880, Mary F. Marsh, daughter of Hon. C. W. Marsh. Residence: Aurora, Ill. Official address: American Legation, The Hague, Holland.

BECK, Carl:

Surgeon; born in Neckargemuend, Germany, April 4, 1856; son of Wilhelm and Sophia (Höhler) Beck. After attending an institution conducted by his granduncle, Rev. August Höhler, and in the Gymnasium of Heidelberg, he pursued his professional studies in the Universities of Heidelberg, Berlin and Jena, receiving his medical degree at Jena in 1879. Coming to the United States in Feb., 1882, he has since practised surgery in New York City, where he has attained a position of distinction in his profession, and an international authority on the surgical and therapeutic uses of the Röntgen ray. He is author of valued surgical text-books and various professional papers, and also a contributor to general literature, among the more prominent of his writings being: Manual of Surgical Asepsis; Text-book on Fractures; Die Röntgenstrahlen im Dienste der Chirurgie; Röntgen Ray Diagnosis and Therapy; Surgical Diseases (English and German editions); Röntgenlehre; Der Schwedenkonrad (a novel of the Neckar Valley), Amerikanische Streiflichter; Feuchtfrochliches und Feuchtfrochliches; Sonnenblicks vom latinischen Amerika, etc. Dr. Beck is president of St. Mark's Hospital and visiting surgeon to that institution and to the German Poliklinik. He is also president of the American Therapeutic Society and of the German Medical Society of New York, and a member of other important medical societies in the United States and Germany, and is professor of surgery in the New York Post-graduate School and Hospital. Dr. Beck is also president of the Union of Old German Students of America. He married, in Germany, Hedwig S., daughter of Chief Justice Friedrich Heinrich von Loeser. Address: 37 E. 31st Street, New York City.

BECK, James M.:

Lawyer; born in Philadelphia, July 9, 1861. He was educated in the Moravian College in Bethlehem, Pa., graduated with the degree of A.B. in 1880, received the degree of LL.D. from Muhlenberg College in 1892, and from Moravian College in 1894. He was admitted to the bar at Philadelphia in 1884, was a partner with William F. Harrity from 1885 to 1898; assistant United States attorney of the Eastern District of Pennsylvania from 1888 to 1892 and from 1896 to 1900; and assistant attorney-general from 1900 to 1903. He has been prosecutor of many important criminal cases in the State and Federal Courts. As master, appointed by the United States Court, he sold in April, 1902, the Philadelphia Record for three million dollars, the highest price ever obtained for an American newspaper at public sale. In 1902 he entered the law firm of Sherman and Stirling of New York City, removing there, but remains also senior member of the firm of Beck & Robinson of Philadelphia. Mr. Beck has delivered many notable orations on patriotic and other important occasions. Mr. Beck married Lilla, daughter of James Mitchell of Philadelphia. Address: 44 Wall Street, New York.

BECKER, Frederick Walter:

Lawyer; born in Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 27, 1844; son of Hiram and Sophia (Millard) Becker. He was graduated from the Ann Arbor High School, 1861, from the University of Michigan, A. B., 1866 and LL.B., 1867, and afterward attended lectures at the Sorbonne, Paris, for two years. He was admitted to the Illinois bar, 1869, and was a member of the firm of Carter and Becker (in partnership with Walter S. Carter) until 1874, of the firm of Becker and Dale (in partnership with Samuel E. Dale) until 1880, and is now of the firm of MacChesney, Becker and Bradley (in partnership with Nathan William MacChesney and Herbert E. Bradley). Mr. Becker has been admitted to practise in the Federal Courts, including the Supreme Court of the United States, as well as to the Illinois bar. He is a Republican, a Presbyterian, a member of the Chicago Law Institute, the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and the Twentieth Century Club. He married, in 1882, Clara, daughter of Judge D. N. Cooley, of Dubuque, Iowa, and they have two sons, Walter C. and Harlan A. Residence: 4169 Berkeley Avenue. Office: 108 La Salle Street, Chicago.

BECKER, Sherburn Merrill:

Capitalist; born in Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 13, 1876. Mr. Becker is one of the leading citizens of the City of Milwaukee, being prominently identified with the financial and civic affairs of that city. He is president of the Hansen-Schmidt Tobacco Company and interested in a considerable number of financial and industrial institutions. He has for many years been actively interested in the government of the municipality and was for several years a member of the Board of Aldermen, and in 1906 became mayor of the city, serving with marked ability. He is a member of the leading clubs of the city. He married in Milwaukee, in 1899, Irene Booth Smith. Residence: 87 Prospect Avenue, Milwaukee.

BECKER, Tracy Chatfield:

Lawyer; born in Cohoes, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1855. He was educated at Union College and Albany Law School, and has received the degree of LL.B. from Union College. He was admitted to the bar in 1876, and began the practice of law in Buffalo. In 1894 he was president of the New York Bar Association, also a member of the New York Constitutional Convention of that year. For several years he was professor of criminal law and medical jurisprudence of the University of Buffalo, and is the author of Witthaus and Becker's Medical Jurisprudence, Forensic Medicine and Toxicology, in two editions. In 1907 he was appointed special assistant to the attorney-general of the United States for the purpose of carrying on proceedings intended to test the rights and responsibilities of the holders of certain land grant titles in the Northwest and was also assigned to carry on the prosecutions arising out of land frauds. This work having brought him into close contact with the legal profession of the Pacific coast he determined to remove his interests there, and he has established himself at Los Angeles in the practice of law. He married in Cohoes, N. Y., Dec. 27, 1876, Minnie A. LeRoy. Address: Los Angeles, Calif.

BECKHAM, J. Crepps Wickliffe:

Former governor of Kentucky; born near Bardstown, Ky., Aug. 5, 1869; son of William N. and Julia (Wickliffe) Beckham. He received his education at the Central University of Kentucky, from which he received the degree of LL.D. He was appointed principal of the Bardstown High School in 1888 and taught school for three years. In 1893 he commenced the practice of law, the same year being elected member of the Kentucky House of Representatives and serving in the session of 1894. He was twice reelected and was elected speaker of the House in 1898. In 1899 he was elected lieutenant-governor, becoming governor at Governor Goebel's death, Feb. 3, 1900. He was elected that year over John W. Yerkes to fill the rest of his term, ending Dec. 8, 1903. He was reelected governor in 1903, over M. B. Belknap, to serve a full term ending Dec. 10, 1907. On Nov. 6, 1906, he was nominated in a State primary by the Democratic party as candidate for United States Senator from Kentucky over James B. McCreary, the incumbent, the election to be held in the General Assembly in Jan., 1908, but as that Assembly had a Republican majority on joint ballot, he failed of election. He was chairman of the Board of Trustees of Kentucky State College and various other institutions, and is a member of the college fraternity, Sigma Alpha Epsilon. He is a Mason, a Knight Templar, and an Elk, and a member of the Ancient Order of United Woodmen. He married at Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 21, 1900, Jean Raphael Fuqua, and has two children. Address: Frankfort, Ky.

BECKINGTON, Alice:

Miniature painter: born in St. Charles, Mo.; daughter of Charles and Adeline (Chency) Beckington. She studied drawing at the Art Students' League of New York for two years; then went to Paris and remained for four years as a student in the Académie Julian and under Charles Lazar. She has exhibited miniatures in the Paris Salon and in all the best exhibitions in the United States: received honorable mention at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, and a bronze medal from the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis. Miss Beckington is instructor in miniature painting in the Art Students' League, and is one of the founders of the American Society of Miniature Painters. She has her summer residence at Scituate, Mass. Studio: 157 Carnegie Hall, New York City.

BECKWITH, Charles Minnigrode:

Protestant Episcopal bishop; born in Prince George County, Va., June 3, 1851. He was educated at the University of Georgia and the Berkeley Divinity School, and received the degree of D.D. from the University of the South, where he was master of grammar schools until 1881, when he was ordained deacon and priest. He was rector of Trinity Church of Galveston, and in 1902 was consecrated bishop of Alabama. Bishop Beckwith is the author, among other works, of The Trinity Course of Church Instruction; The Teacher's Companion to the Trinity Course; and Rightly Instructed in God's Holy Word. He married in Galveston, Texas, May 11, 1897, Mary Belle Cameron. Residence: Anniston, Alabama.

BECKWITH, Isbon Thaddeus:

Clergyman, theologian; born at Old Lyme, Conn., in 1843; son of William and Caroline (Champion) Beckwith. He was graduated from Yale as A.B. in 1868, and Ph.D. in 1872, took graduate work at Leipzig and Göttingen, 1872-1874, and received the degree of D.D. from Trinity College, Hartford, in 1898. He was instructor in Greek at the University of Tennessee, 1868-1870; at Yale 1870-1872, and 1874-1879; professor of Greek at Trinity College, Hartford, 1879-1898; professor of New Testament interpretation in the General Theological Seminary in New York City, 1898-1906, and from 1907 lecturer in biblical studies at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn. He was ordered deacon in 1875 and ordained priest in 1876, in the ministry of the Episcopal Church. Dr. Beckwith is a member of the Biblical and Exegetical Society, the American Philological Society, and the American Archaeological Society. Address: Hartford, Conn.

BECKWITH, J. Carroll:

Artist: born at Hannibal, Mo., Sept. 23, 1852; son of Charles Henry and Martha Melissa (Owen) Beckwith. He commenced studying art in Chicago in 1869, and in 1871 came to New York City, studying at the National Academy of Design for two years. Thence he went to Paris, France, where he entered the École des Beaux Arts, later becoming a pupil of the famous French artist, Carolus Duran, for five years. In 1878 he established himself as a portrait painter in New York City. He has been instructor in the schools of the Art Students' League of New York City for eighteen years; also at the Cooper Institute, and in the schools of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City. He has occupied the offices of president National Free Art League; vice-president of the Fine Arts Commission of the City of New York; treasurer of the Society of American Artists, and secretary of the National Academy of Design. He has been an exhibitor in all the important art exhibitions of the past thirty years. He represents the principles of conservative art as opposed to impressionism. He has lived many years in Europe and has traveled extensively through France, Germany, Italy, England, Spain, Egypt and Greece. He is a National Academician; a member of the corporation of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; of the American Water Color Society and other art societies. He married in New York City, June 1, 1887, Bertha Hall. Country address: Onteora Club, Tannersville, N. Y. Residence: 8 East 58th Street. Studio: 58 West 57th Street, New York City.

BEDE, J. Adam:

Congressman and journalist; born on a farm in Lorain County, Ohio, in 1856; his father being a Welshman by birth, and his mother of New England stock and Scotch extraction. He was educated in the public schools of Ohio; taught school, learned the printer's trade and engaged in newspaper work as a profession. He has lived in most of the Western and Southern States and did reportorial work in Washington. He supported Grover Cleveland in 1888 and 1892, and was appointed United States marshal for the district of Minnesota in 1894. He served through the great railroad strikes of that year and resigned. He returned to the Republican party on the financial issue in 1894, campaigning in several states that year, and in 1898 and 1900. He decided to go to Congress as a Republican and was elected from the Eighth Minnesota District to the Fifty-eighth Congress, and reelected to the Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth Congresses serving until March 4, 1909. He has lectured extensively on political and patriotic subjects under leading bureaus. Address: Pine City, Minn.

BEDFORD, Edward Thomas:

Capitalist; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 19, 1849; son of Frederick Thomas and Mary Ann Elizabeth (Pace) Bedford. He was educated in the public schools and at Maplegrove Academy, Westport, Conn. He is president and director of the New York Glucose Company, the Bedford Petroleum Company of Paris, France, the Colonial Oil Company of New Jersey, and the Self-Winding Clock Company; is vice-president and director of the State Safe Deposit Vaults; trustee of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company; director and member of the executive committee of the Standard Oil Company, the Atlantic Refining Company, the Thompson-Starrett Company, and the Manufacturers' Trust Company. He is a member of the Riding and Driving and Parkway Driving Clubs of Brooklyn, and of the Bridgeport Yacht, Black Rock Harbor, and Hokanum Golf Clubs of Connecticut. Mr. Bedford married at Bronxville, N. Y., Dec. 1871, Mary Ann Dingee, and they have five children. Residence: 181 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn. Address: 26 Broadway, New York City.

BEER, William:

Librarian of the Howard Memorial Library. Mr. Beer is a native of England, having been born in Plymouth, Devon, May 1, 1849. He was educated at the Newcastle-on-Tyne School of Physical Science, and studied medicine in Paris, 1872-1878. Mr. Beer came to the United States in 1886 and for several years practised as a mining engineer, but in 1890 was appointed librarian of the Topeka (Kan.) Public Library, from which he went to the Howard Memorial Library in New Orleans. In 1896 he created the New Orleans Public Library and was librarian of both institutions till 1906 when he resigned the latter and remains librarian of the Howard Memorial Library. Mr. Beers is a member of the American Antiquarian Society, the Société des Americanistes, the Société Géographique de France, the Grolier Club of New York, the American Historical Society, the Louisiana Historical Society, The American Folk-Lore Society, the American Economic Association, and the American Library Association, as well as of several State historical societies. He is a recognized authority on library and historical subjects. Residence: 1003 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

BEERS, Henry Augustin:

Educator; born at Buffalo, N. Y., July 2, 1847; son of George Webster and Elizabeth

Victoria (Clere) Beers. He was graduated from Yale College with the degree of A.B., 1869. Following his graduation, he went to New York City, and was admitted to the bar in 1870. For a year he practised law, but in 1871 he returned to Yale as tutor in English, subsequently becoming assistant professor and, in 1880, professor of English literature, which chair he continues to hold. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and of Skull and Bones. He is author of numerous books on English and American literature, among them being: Life of N. P. Willis, 1885; From Chaucer to Tennyson, 1890; Initial Studies in American Letters, 1891; A History of English Romanticism in the Eighteenth Century, 1899, and A History of English Romanticism in the Nineteenth Century, 1901, also of several volumes of fiction, essays and verse. He married at Covington, Ky., July 7, 1873, Mary Heaton, and they have eight children. Residence: 65 York Square. Address: Yale College, New Haven, Conn.

BEHREND, Bernard Arthur:

Electrical engineer; born in Pomerania, Germany, May 9, 1875; son of Royal Counselor M. Behrend. He was educated by private tutor, and at the University and Polytechnic Institute of Berlin, graduating in 1894; came to the United States and has since then been engaged in engineering practice with specialization in electrical engineering, being connected with the Bullock Electric Manufacturing Company, of which he was chief engineer for nine years. He has been non-resident lecturer on engineering subjects to several universities, and chief electrical engineer and consulting engineer to Allis-Chalmers Company and affiliated corporations. He is a member of the Society of Civil Engineers, Germany, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; and a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is inventor of numerous electrical devices, and machinery which received a grand prize from the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, in 1904, which he served as a member of the International Committee of organization and from which he received a gold medal. He is author of: The Induction Motor—Its Theory and Design, 1900 (French translation, 1901), (German translation, 1902); The Debt of Electrical Engineering to C. E. L. Brown, 1901; Engineering Education, 1907, and is contributor of over thirty monographs to leading American and European journals and transactions on engineering subjects and on the theory of alternating currents, motors and generators, and other scientific subjects. He is now advisory engineer of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. Mr. Behrend is a member of The Engineers' Club of New York. Residence: Pittsburgh, Pa. Office: Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, East Liberty, Pittsburgh, Pa.

BELASCO, David:

Manager, playwright; born in San Francisco, California, July 25, 1859; son of natives of England. He received his early education under Catholic priests at Vancouver, British Columbia, and was graduated from Lincoln College, California, in 1875. He early showed a predilection for the stage; was stage manager of the Baldwin Theatre, in San Francisco in 1878, and later stage manager of the Grand Opera House and Metropolitan Theatre, at San Francisco. During this time he was also engaged in dramatizing novels, adapting foreign plays and doing original work. He went East in 1880, and took charge of the productions of Mallory Brothers at the Madison Square Theatre. He joined forces with Charles Frohman in 1887, and later was manager of Mrs. Carter in his own version of Berton & Simon's Zaza, and has been manager and proprietor of the Belasco Theatre from 1902; also since 1908 proprietor and manager of the Belasco-Stuyvesant Theatre in New York. He is also proprietor of the Belasco Theatre in Washington and directs the production of his plays in different cities, having been for several years engaged in a contest with the "Theatrical Trust" so-called, in which he has championed an independent stage. He is author and co-author of a large number of plays, most of which have been artistic and financial successes and is especially noted for his skill in stage production and direction. Address: 115 West 44th St., New York City.

BELDING, Alvah N.:

Silk manufacturer; born at Ashfield, Mass., March 27, 1838; son of Hiram and Mary (Wilson) Belding. Mr. Belding was one of the founders of the firm of Belding Brothers, and is now vice-president and secretary and manager of the manufacturing part of the business of Belding Brothers & Company. He is also president of the Belding Land and Improvement Company; vice-president of the Belding Savings Bank, and director of the Spencer Electric Light and Power Company, and the Belding Gas Company, all of Belding, Mich.; director of the James I. Regan Company, of Rockville, American Mills Company, the Rockville National Bank and People's Savings Bank, all of Rockville, Conn.; member of and director of the Belding, Paul Company, Limited, Montreal, Canada, and director of the Carison-Currier Company, San Francisco, Calif. He married at Shelburne Falls, Mass., Jan. 6, 1870, Lizzie S. Merriek, and has two children. Address: Rockville, Conn.

BELL, Alexander Graham:

Inventor; born in Edinburgh, Scotland, March 3, 1847; son of Alexander Melville Bell. He was educated at Edinburgh, and at London University, of which he is LL.D., Ph.D., and M.D. He has also received a large number of degrees from American and European universities, and in 1907 received the degree of Sc.D. from Oxford University. Professor Bell came to America in 1870, studying in Canada for a year, when he came to Boston as professor of vocal physiology at Boston University. His early work was in connection with attempts to teach persons to speak who are mute because of having been deaf from birth, so that they had no incentive to imitate the voices of normal persons. In the course of experiments arising out of his investigations he invented the telephone, a patent for which was granted February 14, 1876. The great financial success of this invention has enabled Professor Bell to devote the remainder of his life to study and experimentation and he has not only perfected numerous devices of great value to humanity, but has carried on experiments which have enabled others less fortunately situated to complete inventions which been of very considerable advantage to the inventors of the world. He was associated with C. A. Bell and Sumner Taintor in the invention of the graphophone, and for a number of years has been engaged on experiments in the art of flying, having applied the tetrahedral unit to the construction of aeroplanes, making such progress in the application of this particular principle to aerial flight that it is confidently believed that the first flying machine which will solve the dangers of heavier than air flight will be developed along the lines of Professor Bell's method. He is ex-president of the American Association to Promote Teaching of Speech to the Deaf; the National Geographical Society, and regent of the Smithsonian Institution. He was awarded by the French Government in 1880 the Volta prize, and in 1902 received a medal from the London Society of Fine Arts. He is an officer of the French Legion of Honor; founder of the Volta Bureau; and is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, and other scientific organizations. He has written many papers on scientific and educational subjects, including a Memoir on the Formation of a Deaf Variety of the Humane Race. He married, in 1887, Mabel Gardiner, daughter of G. C. Hubbard. Dr. Bell has two daughters; the oldest, Elsie, married Gilbert H. Grosvenor, editor of the National Geographic Magazine, in 1900, and the younger, Marian, married David Fairchild, in charge of Agricultural Explorations of the Department of Agriculture, in 1905. Address: 1331 Connecticut Avenue, Washington, D. C.

BELL, Charles James:

Ex-governor and farmer; born in Walden, Vermont, March 10, 1845; son of James Dean and Caroline (Warner) Bell. He was educated in the common schools and at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and he received the degree of LL.D. from Norwich University at Northfield, Vt. He served in Vermont infantry and cavalry regiments during the Civil War, and since then has been continuously engaged in agriculture. He was secretary of the State Board of Agriculture of Vermont for eight years; railroad commissioner of Vermont for two years; has served in the House of Representatives and Senate of the Vermont Legislature, and was governor of Vermont, 1905-1906, being elected on the Republican ticket. Governor Bell was master of the State Grange of Vermont, 1894-1906, and is now a member of the Executive Committee of the National Grange, and he is a director of Phillips Academy and a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. He married at Cabot, Vt., Oct. 4, 1870, Mary Louise Perry, and they have two daughters. Address: East Hardwick, Vt.

BELL, Clark:

Lawyer; born in Whitesville, Jefferson County, N. Y., March 12, 1832; son of Philander F. and Sylvia (Jones) Bell; educated at Franklin Academy; LL.D., Taylor University, Indiana, and Rutherford College, North Carolina. Admitted to bar, Rochester, N. Y., 1853; practised at Hammondsport, N. Y., 1853-1861; Bath, N. Y., 1861-1864; in New York City, since 1864; attorney Union Pacific Railway, 1864, and drew the act and had charge of the legislation which passed Congress to aid its construction; attorney for Pacific Mail Steamship Company. President Medico-Legal Society, fourteen terms; founder American International Congress on Tuberculosis in 1900 (honorary president, St. Louis, 1904; treasurer and secretary Council of Congress, New York City, 1906). Editor and publisher, since 1883, of Medico-Legal Journal. Editor of Medico-Legal Papers (three volumes); Bulletin American Congress on Tuberculosis (four volumes); Proceedings Medico-Legal Congress of 1889 and 1895; Government delegate of the U. S. A. to the Paris International Medical Congress, 1900, and honorary president of the section of medical jurisprudence. Government delegate to the Lisbon International Medical Congress of 1906 at Lisbon, Portugal. Author: Bell's Medico-Legal Studies (eleven volumes; Spiritism, Telepathy and Hypnotism; History of the Supreme Court of the States and Provinces of North America (New York and fifteen other States), two volumes. He married Sept. 8, 1875, Helene S. Taylor. Residence: 170 W. Seventy-fifth Street, Union League Club. Address: 39 Broadway, New York City.

BELL, Digby:

Actor; born in Milwaukee, Wis., in 1849. He received a musical education at Naples and had a foreign debut. He returned to the United States and entered comic opera, playing the leading baritone parts, and subsequently entered the field of light comedy, making a great success in the play "The Education of Mr. Pipp," in which he appeared in the title rôle at the head of his own company. He married, in 1882, Laura Joyce, a prominent comic opera contralto, who died in 1904. Address: 1476 Lexington Avenue, New York City.

BELL, Hill McClelland:

President of Drake University; born in Ohio in 1860; son of J. H. and Elmy A. (Cooper) Bell; removed with parents to Iowa in 1865. He was educated in Hazel Dell Academy, Newton, Iowa, the Western Normal College at Shenandoah, Iowa, and at Drake University from which he received the degrees of A.B. in 1890 and A.M. in 1899; and the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by Simpson College, in 1905. He began his career as an educator at the age of 18, as teacher of a country school, soon after becoming principal of the village schools of Linnville, Iowa. He was superintendent of schools at Kellogg, Iowa, 1885-1888, teacher of mathematics in the Normal College of Drake University, 1888-1890; teacher of English in Highland Park College, Iowa, 1890-1894; teacher 1894-1897, and president 1895-1897, of Lincoln Normal College, Lincoln, Neb. He returned to Drake University in 1897, serving as dean of the Normal College from 1897 to 1900, vice-chancellor of University, 1900-1901, dean of the College of Liberal Arts 1901-1903 and acting chancellor of the University for the year 1902. In 1902 he was elected to his present position as president of the University. President Bell is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching; a member of the Iowa Committee of Selection for the Rhodes Scholarship, and during the year 1906 was president of the College Section of the Iowa State Teachers' Association. He has at different times filled various important positions in the educational world, and is author of some popular text-books in English. He married at Kellogg, Iowa, Sept. 2, 1886, Edith L. Orebaugh, and they have five children. Residence: 1091 Twenty-sixth Street. Office: Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa.

BELL, James Franklin:

Major-general, United States Army; born in Shelbyville, Kentucky, Jan. 9, 1856; son of John Wilson and Sarah Margaret Venable (Allen) Bell. He was appointed to the United States Military Academy, from which he was graduated in the class of 1878. He captured a band of half-breed Cree Indians near Fort Buford, South Dakota, 1883; was in the Sioux campaign at Pine Ridge, South Dakota, in 1891; was adjutant of the regiment and secretary of the Cavalry and Light Artillery School, from 1891 to 1894. He was appointed colonel of volunteers, July 5, 1899. He organized the Thirty-sixth Infantry of United States Volunteers in the Philippine Islands in July, 1899; commanding the regiment to December, 1899, and was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for most distinguished gallantry in action, Sept. 9, 1899, near Porac, Luzon, Philippine Islands, while in advance of his regiment charging seven insurgents with his pistol and compelling the surrender of the captain and two privates, under a hot and close fire from the remaining insurgents concealed in a bamboo thicket. He performed useful service in the pacification and control of the Philippines, and returned to the United States in 1903, and then became commandant of the Infantry and Cavalry School and Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas. He was promoted to major-general of the United States Army, Jan. 3, 1907, and is now serving as chief of the General Staff. Address: Room 224, War Department, Washington.

BELL, James S.:

Merchant miller; born in Philadelphia, June 30, 1847; son of Samuel and Elizabeth (Faust) Bell. He was educated in the public schools of Philadelphia and the Philadelphia Central High School until 1863, when he began business life as a clerk, continuing until 1868, when on attaining his majority he became a partner in the firm of Samuel Bell & Sons, in which connection he continued for twenty years. In 1888 he became a partner in the firm of Washburn, Martin & Company, and the following year became president of the Washburn-Crosby Company, the great flour milling corporation of Minneapolis, and has continued at the head of that company ever since. He is also president of the Royal Milling Company, vice-president of the St. Anthony Elevator Company, the St. Anthony and Dakota Elevator Company and the Barnum Grain Company, and is a director of the Northwestern National Bank of Minneapolis. Mr. Bell is a Republican in his political views. He is a member of the Union League Club of Philadelphia and the Minneapolis Club of Minneapolis. Mr. Bell married at Philadelphia, Jan. 8, 1873, Sallie Montgomery Ford. Residence: 2215 Park Avenue. Office address: The Washburn-Crosby Company, Minneapolis, Minn.

BELL, Lilian (Mrs. Bogue):

Author; born in Chicago, 1867; daughter of Major William W. and Nancy Caroline (Brown) Bell. She was educated at home by a governess, and afterward in Dearborn Seminary, Chicago, from which she was graduated. She married in New York City, May 9, 1900, Author Hoyt Bogue, and has a daughter, but retains her maiden name for literary purposes. She began her career in authorship in girlhood as a contributor to magazines, which she has continued ever since. She has also given many author's readings, notably in 1897, when she read in association with James Whitcomb Riley and John Fox, Jr.; and she spent four years in European travel. She is author of: Love Affairs of an Old Maid, 1893; A Little Sister to the Wilderness, 1895; The Under Side of Things, 1897; The Instinct of Stepfatherhood, 1898; As Seen By Me, 1900; The Expatriates, 1900; Sir John and the American Girl, 1901; Abroad with the Jimmies, 1902; Hope Loring, 1902; The Dowager Countess and the American Girl, 1903; The Interference of Patricia, 1903; A Book of Girls, 1904; At Home with the Jardines, 1905; Caroline Lee, 1906; Why Men Remain Bache- lors, and Other Luxuries, 1906. Address: Tarrytown, N. Y.

BELL, Louis:

Consulting electrical engineer; born in Chester, N. H., Dec. 5, 1864. He was educated in Dartmouth College and Johns Hopkins University. In 1888 he became professor of applied electricity at Purdue University, and organized the electrical course there, leaving to become editor of the Electrical World, New York. On the organization in 1892, by the General Electric Company of its electric power transmission department, he became chief engineer of that department and designed and installed the first polyphase plants for power, lighting and railway service used in the United States. Since 1895 he has been consulting engineer engaged mainly on work in connection with electrical power transmission. He has taken out twenty-five patents relating to power transmission apparatus. He was technical officer of the Volunteer Electrical Corps in the Spanish-American War, is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers; vice-president of the Illuminating Engineering Society, and was a member of the International Electrical Congress at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. He is the author of: The Electric Railway (with O. T. Crosby); Power Distribution for Electric Railroads; Electric Power Transmission; The Art of Illumination; Boston Electrical Handbook. Residence: Brookline, Mass. Office: 120 Boylston Street, Boston, Mass.

BELLAMY, Charles Joseph:

Publisher; born in Chicopee Falls, Mass., May 7, 1852. He was educated at Harvard College, and was admitted to the bar in 1876. He practised law for five years. Mr. Bellamy founded the Springfield Daily News, in 1880 which he continues to publish. He is a brother of the late Edward Bellamy, author of "Looking Backward," who was associated with him on the Daily News for three years and has himself written several novels, works on sociological subjects and several children's books. Among his publications are: The Breton Mills; An Experiment in Marriage; Were They Sinners; A Moment of Madness; The Way Out; Return of the Fairies; and The Wonder Children. He married October 14, 1879, Imogen A. Cooper. Address: Springfield, Mass.

BELLAMY, John D.:

Lawyer and ex-congressman; born in Wilmington, N. C., March 24, 1854; son of Dr. John D. Bellamy and Eliza M. (Harris) Bellamy. He was graduated from Davidson College, North Carolina, A.B.

1873, studied German and modern literature at the University of Virginia in 1874 and was graduated from that University as B. L. in 1875. He has served as county attorney of Brunswick County, city attorney of Wilmington, N. C., district counsel of the Seaboard Air Line and local counsel of the Southern Railway and one of the local counsel of Atlantic Coast Line, of the Atlantic National Bank, counsel for the Western Union Telegraph Company, Postal Telegraph & Cable Co., The Southern Bell Telephone Company, the Wilmington Homestead and Loan Association, the North Carolina Home Building Association, and other corporations. He is a prominent Democrat, was a member of the State Senate of North Carolina 1891-1892, and a member of the Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh Congresses, 1899-1903. Mr. Bellamy is a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity, has been grand master of Odd Fellows, and is a Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Cape Fear Club. Mr. Bellamy has a very large admiralty practice in the United States courts, has also a general law and equity practice in all the State and federal courts. He is author of: Sketches Historical; Life of Major-General Robert Howe, and Life of General Alexander Lillington. He married at Townesville, N. C., Dec. 6, 1876, Emma May Hargrove, and they have five children. Residence: 602 Market Street, Wilmington. Office: 416 Southern Building, Wilmington, N. C.

BELLEW, Kyrle:

Actor; born in Calcutta in 1857; son of the chaplain of the cathedral in that city. He was for seven years a junior officer in the English navy. He left the navy and went to the Australian gold fields and was also in newspaper work. He made his stage debut at the Theatre Royal in Brighton, and after a successful career in London came to the United States in 1895 as leading man in Wallack's Theatre. He subsequently toured the world as a joint star with Mrs. James Brown Potter, and in 1900-1902 headed an exploring expedition in Northern Queensland. Since 1902 he has been on the stage in the United States as a star at the head of his own company. He has marked literary talents and is the author, among other works, of the plays Yvonne, Iolande, Hero and Leander, and Charlotte Corday, and several adaptations. Address: Care Liebler & Company, 1402 Broadway, New York City.

BELMONT, August:

Banker; born in New York City, Feb. 18, 1853; son of the late August and of Caroline Slidell (Perry) Belmont. He was educated at the Rectory School at Hampton, Conn.; Phillips Exeter Academy, and Harvard University, being graduated as A.B., 1874. In 1875 he entered his father's banking house and is now head of the firm of August Belmont & Company, bankers, which, in addition to its own large interests, is the accredited representative of the Rothschilds in America. He is also chairman of the Board of Directors of the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company; director of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad; director National Park Bank, Manhattan Trust Company, and many other corporations. He is president and director of the National Civic Federation. Mr. Belmont is a Democrat in politics. He is president of the American Kennel Club; chairman of the Jockey Club, and is actively identified with turf interests in New York State. He is also a member of the Union, Knickerbocker, Manhattan and Country Clubs, and the New York Athletic Club, of which he was formerly president. He married in 1881, Bessie H. Morgan, who died in 1898. Residence (country): Hempstead, L. I., (city): 44 East 34th Street. Office: 23 Nassau Street, New York City.

BELMONT, Perry:

Lawyer, capitalist; born in New York City, Dec. 28, 1851; eldest son of the late August Belmont, financier, and of Caroline Slidell (Perry) Belmont. He was graduated from Harvard as A.B. in 1872, taking special honors in history and political economy, and following with a course in civil law at the University of Berlin, then went to the Columbia Law School, graduating as LL. B. in 1876. He was admitted to the bar in 1876, engaged as counsel for important corporate interests, and practised until 1881. Becoming active in political matters he was elected in 1880 as a Democrat to the Forty-seventh Congress from the First New York District, and was reelected to the Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Congresses, serving until 1887, and as chairman of the Committee on Foreign Affairs during the Forty-ninth and Fiftieth Congresses. He was appointed United States Minister to Spain in 1887, serving until 1889. During the Spanish-American War he volunteered for service and was appointed inspector general with the rank of major. Mr. Belmont is a director in several corporations and a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce. He is also a member of the Metropolitan, Knickerbocker, University, New York Yacht, Army and Navy, Jockey, Turf and Field Coaching, National Democratic, Manhattan and Union Clubs of New York. Mr. Belmont married, in 1899, Jessie Robbins. Address: 580 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

BEMIS, Edward Webster:

Economist; born in Springfield, Mass., April 7, 1860. He was graduated from Amherst College as A.B. 1880, A.M. 1884, and Johns Hopkins University, Ph.D., 1885. After a successful service in professorships of political economy at Vanderbilt University and the University of Chicago he became assistant statistician of the Illinois Bureau of Labor Statistics. He subsequently became professor of economic science in the Kansas State Agricultural College and later was appointed director of the Department of Municipal Monopolies of the Bureau of Economic Research in New York. His service in this position was marked by excellent results and brought him into national notice as an expert on questions relating to municipal ownership. He gave up his position in New York to become superintendent of the Water Works of Cleveland, Ohio. There his annual reports, his system of accounts and the checking by meters of the waste of water have attracted much attention. Mr. Bemis has written extensively on labor and municipal questions, his works including: Municipal Monopolies; Municipal Ownership of Gas Works in the United States. He was a member of the committee of the National Civic Federation investigating municipal ownership. He married in Clearwater, Minn., Oct. 28, 1889, Annie Louise Sargent. Address: 1847 E. 63d Street, N. E., Cleveland, Ohio.

BENEDICT, A. L.:

Physician; born in Buffalo, N. Y., 1865; son of Nathan Gregory Benedict, Jr., and Gracia Skinner (Smith) Benedict. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, A.B., from the University of Buffalo, M.D., from the University of Pennsylvania, M.D. and the Ohio Wesleyan University conferred upon him the degree of A.M. He was appointed to the United States Marine Hospital Service in 1890, but did not serve; he held various teaching positions in professional schools, including professorship in physiology in the Dental Department, University of Buffalo, from 1896 to 1901; superintendent of ethnology at the Pan-American Exposition, 1900-1901; associate editor Medical and Surgical Reporter, and editor of the American Therapist of New York. Dr. Benedict has been a vice-president of the Medical Academy of Medicine, councillor of the American Gastro-enterologic Association; is a member of the American Medical Association (gold medal in medicine), Medical Society of the State of New York (twice prize essayist); member of the Historical Society, Society of Natural Sciences, Buffalo, Delta Upsilon fraternity (president of Michigan Chapter and Western New York Alumni Association). His favorite recreation is American archeology. He is a member of the University Club, the Buffalo Historical Society and the Sons of the Revolution. Residence: Raleigh Hotel. Office: 354 Franklin St., Buffalo, N. Y.

BENEDICT, Elias Cornelius:

Banker and stock-broker; born at Somers, Westchester County, N. Y., Jan. 24, 1834. He was educated in the schools of New York until 1850, when he became a clerk in a stock-broker's office. He embarked in business for himself in 1857 and has continued ever since. He originated the Gold Exchange Bank, which grew out of gold speculation during and after the Civil War, and in recent years his specialty has been the handling of gas stocks. He is president of the Commercial Acetylene Company, the Marine Engine and Machinery Company, and he is a director of the United States Rubber Company and the Columbia Trust Company. His favorite recreations are hunting and yachting. Mr. Benedict is a member of the Players', the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht and New York Yacht Clubs. He married Sarah Hart. Residence: 10 West 51st Street. Office: 80 Broadway, New York City.

BENEDICT, James Sackett:

American consul; born at Aurelius, Cayuga County, N. Y., March 5, 1856; son of Newton and Asenath (Chapin) Benedict. He was educated in the public schools and private school, Washington, D. C. He was draftsman and clerk, for four years, in architect's office in Washington, D. C., and received a temporary appointment in the Engineer's Office, War Department; was American consular agent at Stratford, Ont., 1879-1887; American commercial agent at Moncton, New Brunswick, 1887-1897; transferred to commercial agency at Campbellton, New Brunswick, Jan. 25, 1897. On reorganization of the Consular Service by Act of Congress, April 5, 1906, the commercial agency was abolished and he was appointed American consul at Campbellton. In April, 1907, he was promoted as American consul at St. John's, Newfoundland. He is a Royal Arch Mason, Knight Templar, charter and life member of the Ontario Grand Lodge of the Royal Arcanum. He is an honorary member of the Campbellton Club, also a number of other clubs. Mr.

Benedict married at Washington, D. C., 1879, Cora Blanche Chase, and they have two children. Address: American Consulate, St. John's Newfoundland.

BENEDICT, Robert Dewey:

Lawyer; born at Burlington, Vt., Oct. 3, 1828; son of George Wylls and Eliza (Dewey) Benedict. He was graduated from the University of Vermont in 1848 as B.A. and received also the degrees of A.M. and LL.D. Mr. Benedict was admitted to the bar in New York City in 1851. He is a Republican in politics. He is author of Reports of Cases Argued and Determined in the District Courts of the United States within the Second Circuit (ten volumes); and of various pamphlets; and he was editor of Benedict's Admiralty, third edition. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Military Order of Foreign Wars, and the Order of Settlers and Defenders of America (first vice-president). Mr. Benedict married at Winooski Falls, Vt., in 1854, Frances A. Weaver. He retired from active business in 1906 and removed to Burlington. Address: Burlington, Vt.

BENJAMIN, Charles Henry:

Professor of mechanical engineering; born at Patten, Maine, Aug. 29, 1856; son of Samuel E. and Ellen M. (Fairfield) Benjamin. He was graduated from the University of Maine as M.E. in 1880. He was instructor, 1880 to 1883 and professor 1883 to 1886, of mechanical engineering in the University of Maine; mechanical engineer of the McKay Heeling Machine Association, 1886-1889; professor of mechanical engineering at the Case School of Applied Science, 1889-1907, and in 1907 was appointed dean of the Engineering Schools of Purdue University. He was supervising engineer for smoke inspection of the City of Cleveland, 1900 to 1902. In 1908 he received the degree of Doctor of Engineering from the Case School of Applied Science. Professor Benjamin is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, and is an honorary member of the Engineers' Society of the City of Cleveland, member of the Society of Sigma Xi and of the Tau Beta Pi fraternity. He is author of: Modern American Machine Tools, published in London, and of text-books on Machine Design and on the Steam Engine. He married at Oakland, Maine, August 17, 1879, Cora Louise Benson, and they have two daughters. Address: Lafayette, Ind.

BENJAMIN. Marcus:

Editor, U. S. National Museum; born in San Francisco, Calif., Jan. 17, 1857; son of Edmund Burke Benjamin, a prominent merchant, and Sarah (Mitchell) Benjamin. He was educated in the College of the City of New York and was graduated from the chemical course in Columbia University, Ph.B., 1878; afterward receiving the honorary degrees of A.M., Lafayette College, 1889; Ph.D., University of Nashville, 1889; Sc.D., University of Pittsburgh, 1905. He engaged in business pursuits four years, was editor of the American Pharmacist, 1882, and later of its successor, the Weekly Drug News; was chemist in the laboratory of the U. S. Appraisers' Stores in New York, 1883-1885; sanitary engineer to New York City Board of Health, 1885; lecturer on chemistry in the New York Women's Medical College, 1886. Dr. Benjamin has been connected with leading encyclopedias and reference books, in an editorial capacity, including Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography, Appleton's Annual Cyclopedia, Johnson's Universal, and the New International Cyclopedia, the Standard Dictionary and many others, and since 1896 has been editor of the Proceedings, Bulletins and Annual Reports of the U. S. National Museum. He is author of: Braddock's Rock, a Study in Local History, 1899; Memoir of Rear Admiral Francis Asbury Roe, 1903; Memorial of John Henry Bower, 1905; John Bidwell, Pioneer, a sketch of His Career, 1906, etc. He is also a contributor to magazines. Dr. Benjamin was a member of the Jury of Awards of the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893; Tennessee Centennial Exposition, 1897; Trans-Mississippi Exposition, 1898; Pan-American Exposition, 1901; South Carolina Interstate Exposition, 1902; Louisiana Purchase Exposition, 1904, and Jamestown Exposition, 1907; and he was a member of the U. S. Assay Commission, 1896, 1899, 1904 and 1906. He was secretary of the Section of Technical Chemistry, in the International Congress of Arts and Sciences, St. Louis, 1904, is a life fellow of the London Chemical Society, is a fellow and has been vice-president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, member of the American Chemical Society, the Society of Chemical Industry, National Geographic Society, Society of the Sigma Xi; member of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, president of the Alumni Association of Columbia University in the District of Columbia. Dr. Benjamin was governor of the Society of Colonial Wars, 1905-1907, secretary, 1894-1907, of the Sons of the Revolution in the District of Columbia, president of the Society of the War of 1812, 1898-1908, and member of other patriotic societies; also of the Authors Club of New York City and the Cosmos Club of Washington, D. C. He married June 16, 1892, Carolyn, daughter of J. Loring Gilbert, of New York City. Residence: 1703 Q Street, N. W. Office: U. S. National Museum, Washington, D. C.

BENJAMIN, Park:

Patent lawyer, author; born in New York City May 11, 1849; son of Park Benjamin (poet) and of Mary (Western) Benjamin. He was graduated from Trinity School, New York City, in 1862, and from the United States Naval Academy in 1867. He made several cruises; was with Admiral Farragut, European station, 1868; promoted to ensign, 1868, and resigned in 1869. He was graduated from Albany Law School as LL.B., 1870, was admitted to the bar same year and received the degree of Ph.D. from Union College in 1877. He was associate editor of the Scientific American from 1872 to 1878, and is a scientific expert and counsel in patent matters. He was editor-in-chief of Appleton's Cyclopedia of Applied Mechanics, from 1878 to 1891. He is associate member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers; foreign member of the British Chartered Institute of Patent Agents, and member of the American Institute of Mechanical Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers. He is author of numerous books and magazine contributions. He was the first to advocate a United States Naval Reserve. He collected, with R. M. Thompson and E. J. Berwind, a valuable library of rare works relating to electricity and presented it to the United States Naval Academy. Mr. Benjamin has been counsel to leading inventors and corporations in various proceeding and litigations. He is president of the Naval Architects' Association of New York. He married at Yonkers, N. Y., in 1891, Ida E. Crane. Residence: 270 West 73d Street (winter); The Barnacle, West Hampton Beach, Long Island (summer). Office: 165 Broadway, New York.

BENJAMIN, Samuel Greene Wheeler:

Author, artist and art critic; born in Argos, Greece, Feb. 13, 1837. He was educated at the English College, Smyrna, Turkey, and at Williams College. He read law and studied art, and for several years followed the sea, developing his abilities in marine painting, among his early work in this line being a number of marine drawings connected with the Crimean War sent to the London Illustrated News in 1854; studied art at home and abroad, receiving honorable mention. He opened a studio in Boston in 1870 and in 1883 he was appointed the first United States minister to Persia, where he prepared a code for extra-territorial practice, and as a result of his service there settled questions of land tenure by foreigners in Persia, and won honorable mention for exhibit of Persian products at New Orleans Exhibition. He is the author of: Constantinople, Isle of Pearls and Other Poems; Ode on the Death of Abraham Lincoln; The Turk and the Greek; Tom Roper, A Yarn for Boys; The Choice of Paris, a Romance of the Toad; Advice of Father to Son (translated from Latin poem); Contemporary Art in Europe; What is Art? The Atlantic Islands; Art in America; Our American Artists; The Multitudinous Seas; The World's Parades; Troy, Its Legend, Literature and Topography; A Group of Etchers; Cruise of the Alice May; Persia and the Persians; The Story of Persia; and Sea Spray. Contributor to Atlantic Monthly, London Art Journal, Harper's, Century, etc. He is a member of the Sons of the Revolution; Society of Colonial Wars; Phi Beta Kappa Society; Boston Art Club; American Free Art League; National Geographic Society; American Forestry Association, and vice-president Society of American Authors. He married, first, Oct. 20, 1863, Clara Stowell, and second, Nov. 16, 1882, Fannie Nichols Weed, the author. Address: Burlington, Vt.

BENNESON, Cora Agnes:

Lawyer and writer; born in Quincy, Ill.; daughter of Robert S. and Electa Ann (Park) Benneson. She was graduated from the University of Michigan as A.B., 1878, LL.B., 1880, and A.M., 1883, and was fellow in history at Bryn Mawr College, 1887-1888. She was admitted to the bar in Michigan and Illinois in 1880, and in Massachusetts in 1894; has been special commissioner in Massachusetts since 1895, and is now actively engaged in law practice in Massachusetts. Miss Benneson edited law reports for the West Publishing Company, St. Paul, Minn., in 1886; gave the alumni poem at the University of Michigan, June 27, 1889, printed in the Commencement Annual; wrote Executive Discretion in the United States, printed in Volume 47 of the Proceedings of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and Federal Guaranties for Maintaining Republican Government in the States, in Volume 48 of same; also many articles in magazines and other periodicals on law, education and political science. She took a trip around the world, 1883-1885, and during the two following years lectured on her travels. She is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; member of the American Historical Association, and American Political Science Association, and is sole trustee of the Edward Everett Estate. Address: 4 Mason Street, Cambridge, Mass.

BENNET, William S.:

Lawyer and congressman; born at Port Jervis, Orange County, N. Y., Nov. 9, 1870; son of James Bennet and Alice Leonora (Stiles) Bennet. He was graduated from the Albany Law School as LL.B. with honors in 1892, and was admitted to the bar of the State of New York in May of that year. Mr. Bennet had a brief experience in the newspaper business on the staff of the Port Jervis Gazette, but has practised law continuously since his admission to the bar. He removed to New York City in 1893. He was a member of the Assembly of New York State in 1901 and 1902 and justice of the Municipal Court of the City of New York, 1903. He was elected, as a Republican, from the Seventeenth Congressional District of New York to the Fifty-ninth Congress in 1904, and was reelected in 1906 and 1908 to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses. During his service in Congress he has taken an especial interest in matters relating to immigration and he is a member of the Immigration Commission. Mr. Bennet is an elder in the Fourth Presbyterian Church of New York City. He married, June 30, 1896, Gertrude Witschiel, and they have four children. Office: 60 Wall Street, New York City.

BENNETT, Charles Edwin:

Professor of Latin in Cornell University; born in Providence, R. I., April 6, 1858; son of James L. Bennett and Lucia (Dyer) Bennett. He was graduated from Brown University as A.B. in 1878; was a graduate student of Harvard University in 1881-1882, and student at Leipzig, Berlin and and Heidelberg, 1882-1884, and he received the degree of Litt.D., from Brown University in 1904. He was principal of the public school at Milton, Fla., 1878-1879; classical master at Sing Sing, N. Y., 1879-1881; head of the preparatory department at the University of Nebraska, 1884-1889; professor of Latin at the University of Wisconsin, 1889-1891; professor of classical philology at Brown University, 1891-1892, and professor of Latin at Cornell University, from 1892. He edited numerous Greek and Latin texts and is author of: Bennett's Latin Grammar, 1895; and Appendix, 1895; Latin Composition, 1896; The Foundations of Latin, 1898; Criticism of Some Recent Subjunctive Theories, 1898; The Quantitative Reading of Latin Poetry, 1899; The Teaching of Greek and Latin in Secondary Schools, 1900; Sounds and Inflections of the Cyprian dialect, 1888; Latin Lessons, 1901; Preparatory Latin Writer, 1905; Latin Language, 1906; also of numerous articles in philological and other journals. Editor of Cornell Studies in Classical Philology. Professor Bennett is a member of the American Philological Association, the Delta Upsilon fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa Society and the City Club of New York. He married at Lincoln, Neb., June 29, 1886, Margaret Gale Hitchcock, and they have four children. Address: Ithaca, N. Y.

BENNETT, Charles Goodwin:

Secretary of the United States Senate; born, and has always resided, in the old Bennett homestead in Brooklyn, N. Y. He was admitted to the bar, and graduated as LL.B. from the University of New York. He is chairman of the Broadway branch of the Mechanics' Bank, and trustee of the Kings County Savings Institution. Unsuccessful candidate in the Fifth New York Congressional District for the Fifty-third Congress; elected to the Fifty-fourth and Fifty-fifth Congresses from 1895 to 1899, serving on the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. Unsuccessful candidate for the Fifty-sixth Congress, and elected secretary of the Senate of the United States, Jan. 29, 1900. Address: United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

BENNETT, James Gordon:

Journalist; born in New York City, May 10, 1841; son of James Gordon and Henrietta Agnes (Crean) Bennett; educated by private tutors; unmarried. He was carefully trained in journalism, and on the death of his father, 1872, succeeded to the proprietorship and management of The Herald, which he has ever since continued. Mr. Bennett fitted out, at personal expense, the Jeannette Polar Exploring Expedition; sent Henry M. Stanley to Africa to find Livingston; for a time conducted a London edition, and for years has conducted, and still conducts, a Paris edition. He inaugurated in England the plan of publishing storm warnings telegraphed from the United States, and he joined John W. Mackey, in 1883, in the organization of the Commercial Cable Company, which laid an entirely new cable between America and Europe (the Mackey-Bennett cables), greatly increasing the volume and reducing the cost of transatlantic communication between the Old and the New Worlds. He won an international yacht race from Sandy Hook to the Needles, Isle of Wight, against two competitors, with his schooner yacht, the Henrietta, 1866, and sailed a similar race, 1870, from Queenstown to New York Harbor, but was beaten by the English yacht Cambria. He resides, the greater part of the time, in Paris. Address: 120 Champs Elysées, Paris, France, or New York Herald, New York City.

BENNETT, Joseph Bentley:

Lawyer and congressman; born on a farm in Greenup County, Ky., April 21, 1859; son of Benjamin Franklin and Sarah Ann (Snodgrass) Bennett. He was educated in the common schools of Greenup County and at the Greenup Academy. He taught for a short time in the common schools of Greenup County while studying law, and he was admitted to the bar Aug. 30, 1878, since then practising law at Greenup, Ky.

He was nominated by the Republicans for county attorney of Greenup County in 1882 and in 1886, each time being defeated by a small majority. He was elected in 1894 and reelected in 1897 for two three-year terms as county judge of Greenup County, and again for a four-year term in 1901. While holding that office he received the Republican nomination for circuit judge of the Nineteenth Kentucky District and was defeated by 88 majority. He was elected from the Ninth Kentucky District in 1904 to the Fifty-ninth Congress, and reelected in 1906 and 1908 to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses, expiring March 3, 1909. He was elected in 1900 and reelected in 1904, and is still serving as a member of the Republican State Central Committee of Kentucky from the Ninth District. He married at Greenup, Ky., Aug. 30, 1883, Annie Louise Mytinger. Address: Greenup, Ky.

BENNETT, William H.:

Steamship broker; born in New York City, April 17, 1852; son of Thomas and Susan S. Bennett. He was educated in the public schools and Free Academy, New York City, and at Jon's College, England. After leaving college he was a pilot on the Mississippi River, and later served as officer and captain of ships under British and foreign flags, holding British certificate No. 8997, American shipmaster's certificate, United States certificate for command of mercantile steamships and various others in foreign navies. Since 1884 he has been senior partner in the firm of Bennett, Walsh & Co., steamship brokers. He is also a director in the Atlantic Fruit Company, H. A. Kessel Company, the Tacas Company, Santa Catalina Company, Amalgamated Paint Company, Cordova Land Company, Bennett Steamship Company, and others. Mr. Bennett is a member of the New York Produce Exchange, the New York Maritime Exchange, Merchants' Association, Marine Society of New York, Master Mariners' Steamship Association, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and other organizations. He is a life member of the Masonic Veterans, a 32d-degree Mason, Knights Templar and member of the Mystic Shrine; and is also a member of the New York, New York Yacht, Coney Island Jockey and other clubs. Mr. Bennett married Helen Elizabeth Harvey. Residence: 693 West End Avenue, New York City; and (winter) Nipi, Cuba. Office: 18 Broadway, New York City.

BENOLIEL, Sol D.:

Electro-chemical engineer; born in New York City, June 1, 1874; son of David J. and Pauline (Wassermann) Benoliel. He was graduated from College of the City of New York, as B.S. in 1893, Columbia University School of Mines as E.E. in 1896, and from the Columbia School of Pure Science, with the degree of A.M. in 1896. In 1901 and 1906, as general manager and electro-chemist of Roberts Chemical Company, Niagara Falls, N. Y., he perfected a new process for the production of caustic potash and chemically pure muriatic acid by means of the electric current; rebuilt company's entire plant after their fire on Sept. 14, 1905. He resigned from Roberts Chemical Company, Oct., 1896, to become general manager of the International Chemical Company of Camden, N. J. He is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, National Geographic Society, and American Electro-Chemical Society. Mr. Benoliel married in New York City, June 1, 1897, Therese L. Lindeman, and they have three children. Address: 4508 Locust Street, Philadelphia.

BENSEL, John A.:

Civil engineer; born in New York City, 1863; son of Brownlee and Mary Maclay (Hogg) BenseL. He was graduated from the Stevens Institute of Technology, with the degree of M.E. in 1884, and was for some years engaged as engineer for the Pennsylvania Railroad, and later engaged in consulting practice, becoming consulting engineer for the City of Philadelphia and the Girard Estate in connection with improvement along the Delaware River in Philadelphia. He was afterward engineer-in-chief of the Department of Docks of New York City, and afterward was appointed dock commissioner of New York City, which office he held until 1908, when he was appointed to his present office as commissioner on the Board of Water Supply of New York City. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Institution of Civil Engineers of Great Britain, the Chamber of Commerce of New York, and of the University, Union and various other clubs. Residence: Marie Antoinette Hotel. Office: 299 Broadway, New York City.

BENSEL, Walter:

Physician and sanitarian; born in New York City, Jan. 22, 1869; son of Brownlee and Mary Maclay (Hogg) BenseL. He received his general education in private schools in New York City and was graduated with honors and a prize, and the M.D. degree from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York. After graduation he became successively interne, junior assistant, senior assistant and house surgeon of Bellevue Hospital, serving eighteen months there, and then three months in Sloane Maternity Hospital, and then engaged in private practice. Dr. BenseL was assistant surgeon to the Vanderbilt Clinic for five years, and clinical assistant, instructor and lecturer on surgery in the New York Polyclinic Medical School and Hospital for five years. He was appointed medical inspector of the Department of Health of New York City in 1892, served through the various grades until appointed assistant sanitary superintendent of the Department in 1903, and promoted to sanitary superintendent of the Department July 1, 1907. To meet an emergency, Dr. BenseL resigned July 8, 1907, to accept appointment as commissioner of street cleaning of New York City, but resigned that office Nov. 25, 1907, to resume his position as sanitary superintendent of the Department of Health, in which he continues. Dr. BenseL is a member of the American Medical Association, the New York State Medical Society, New York County Medical Society, West End Medical Society, Physicians' Mutual Aid Association, Medical Association of the Greater City of New York, and the Alumni Societies of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, the Bellevue Hospital and the Sloane Maternity Hospital, and the St. Andrew's Society of New York. He married at Newport, R. I., June 19, 1894, Alice Cooper, a grandniece of James Fenimore Cooper, the author, and they have a daughter. He has a country home on Great South Bay, Amityville, L. I. Address: 135 W. 87th Street, New York City.

BENSON, Frank Weston:

Painter; born in Salem, Mass., March 24, 1862. He received his art education at the School of Drawing and Painting in the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, and the Académie Julian, Paris. Since 1889 he has been instructor in drawing and painting at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and has created a succession of paintings which has given him a foremost place among the younger American artists. Among his well known works are the four panels in the Congressional Library at Washington. He has painted a large number of portraits, and received a medal from the Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893; a medal from Carnegie Institute in Pittsburg in 1899; two prizes from the Boston Art Club; two prizes from the Jordan Gallery in Boston; a prize from the Cleveland Art Association; the Shaw Fund Prize, Society of American Artists, New York; the Clark Prize, and the Hallsgrarten Prize, from the National Academy of Design; Ellsworth Prize from the Art Institute of Chicago; silver medal from the Paris Exposition in 1900; gold medal from Carnegie Institute in 1903; Lippincott Prize, Philadelphia, in 1904; two gold medals from the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, in 1904; gold medal from the Philadelphia Art Club in 1906; and the silver medal from the Corcoran Gallery at Washington in 1907. He married in Salem, Mass., Oct., 1888, Ellen Perry Peirson.

Residence: Salem, Mass. Studio: 42, St. Botolph Street, Boston.

BENSON, R. Dale:

President of the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia; born in Philadelphia, Dec. 6, 1841. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted in a Pennsylvania Regiment, and was mustered out as brevet major of volunteers in July, 1865. He served as colonel of the First Regiment of Infantry, National Guard of Pennsylvania during the Pittsburgh riots in 1877. For many years Colonel Benson identified himself with fire underwriting and was previously engaged in mercantile business as an importer and jobber of teas in connection with the China trade. He was elected vice-president of the Pennsylvania Fire Insurance Company, in 1881, and in 1890 became its president. He is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. Residence: 1120 Spruce Street. Office: 510 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

BENTLEY, Rev. Walter E.:

Protestant Episcopal rector of the Church of the Ascension, Brooklyn, N. Y.; born in Sheffield, England, Sept. 29, 1864. Coming to this country in early life he entered business but finally entered the dramatic profession and for several years traveled throughout the country playing various Shakespearian roles. Moved by Bishop Phillips Brooks of Massachusetts, he studied for Holy Orders and was ordained by Bishop Huntington in Syracuse, N. Y., in 1891. After serving in the Diocese of Central New York he was called to St. Mark's Church New York City as vicar and later became assistant to Dr. Heber Newton. In 1899 he became the founder of the Actor's Church Alliance and as its national secretary and organizer he established chapters in many of the largest cities of the country. He also helped to establish the Actors' Church Union throughout Great Britain and Ireland. With Professor Charles Sprague Smith he aided in founding the Peoples' Club and became its first secretary. In 1905 he entered his present work, where, in addition to the Church he has a regularly appointed theatre wherein he produces Shakespearian and other classical plays. In 1892 he married Harriott Faye Chamberlin of Syracuse and in 1893 their only son, Cyril E. Bently, was born. Address: Church of the Ascension, Kent Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BENTLEY, Wilson A.:

Meteorologist; born at Jericho, Vt., Feb. 9, 1865. He is self-educated in the technical branch in which he has become distinguished, now being internationally known among meteorologists for his studies of snow-crystals and other forms of water. After a short period of teaching music he took up the study of snow-crystals, and has made 1500 photomicrographs of such crystals; 360 of frost and 200 of ice and ice crystals, besides many of dew, clouds, raindrops, etc. He is the author of the articles on snow and frost in the Encyclopædia Americana, and of illustrated monographs on snow crystals and frost and ice crystals published by the U. S. Weather Bureau. He has also followed out the study of raindrops by means of their impressions in flour and has had a unique career among the meteorologists in the character and minuteness of his investigations. Besides being the author of various magazine articles on snow, ice and the various forms of water, he has lectured with much success on the same subjects. He is a member of the National Geographical Society and of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Address: Jericho, Vt.

BENTON, Frank:

Apiculturist; born in Coldwater, Mich., July 5, 1852. He was educated at the Michigan Agricultural College, and attended lectures at the universities of Munich and Athens. Since 1901 he has been apicultural investigator for the United States Department of Agriculture. Mr. Benton spent eleven years, previous to 1891, investigating the honey bees of Europe, Africa and Asia, and has recently completed similar investigations in the Caucasus, Persia, India and the Philippine Islands. He was the first American importer of Oriental races of bees, and has invented a wide range of appliances for bee culture, including the transport cage for sending queen bees by mail, artificial queen cells, etc. He has lectured throughout the United States on apiarian topics, and is the author of the books: The Honey Bee, Bee Keeping, and a large number of articles on subjects connected with his specialty. He married in Angelica, N. Y., Dec. 17, 1879, Harriet M. Wheeler. Residence 925 N. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. Office: Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BENTON, George Alden:

Jurist; born in Tolland, Conn., May 7, 1848; son of Azariah L. and Louisa W. (Alden) Benton, his mother being a descendant of John Alden and Priscilla Mullens, of the Mayflower. He was graduated from Cornell University, A.B. with Phi Beta Kappa honors, 1871, and from Columbia College Law School, LL.B., 1874. He engaged in the practice of law in Monroe County, N. Y., immediately upon his admission to the bar in 1874, was district attorney 1886-1892, surrogate, 1896-1905, county judge, 1906-1907, of Monroe County, and since Jan. 1, 1908, has been a justice of the Supreme Court of New York, serving in the Seventh Judicial District. He is a prominent member and campaign speaker of the Republican party; a 32d-degree Mason, Knight Templar and Shriner, and honorary life president of the Rochester Masonic Temple. Residence: Spencerport, N. Y. Office: Rochester, N. Y.

BENTON, Guy Potter:

President of Miami University; born in Kenton, Ohio, May 26, 1865; son of Daniel Webster and Harriet Maria (Wharton) Benton. He was educated in Baker University, Kansas, receiving from it the degrees of A.B., A.M., and D.D., and at Ohio

Wesleyan University from which he received the A.M. and D.D., and received the degree of LL.D. from Upper Iowa University. Dr. Benton was superintendent of schools of Fort Scott, Kan., 1890-1895; assistant State superintendent of public instruction for Kansas, 1895-1896; professor of history in Baker University, 1896-1899; member of the Kansas State Board of Education, 1899; president of Upper Iowa University, 1899-1902, and since 1902 president of Miami University. President Benton is an ex-president of the Southeastern Kansas Teachers' Association, the Ohio Conference of College Deans and Presidents and the Ohio College Association, and a member of the American Historical Association and the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He married at Arcadia, Kan., Sept. 4, 1889, Dora Konantz, and they have two daughters. Address: Oxford, Ohio.

BENTON, Maurice Erickson:

Assistant-secretary of The Land Title and Trust Company; born at Sudlersville, Maryland, Oct. 27, 1865; son of George Vincent and Eleanor J. (Downs) Benton. He was educated in the public schools of Philadelphia and at the University of Pennsylvania. In 1884 he was connected with the firm of J. Washington Miller and Sons, dealers in druggists' supplies, and two years later entered the banking establishment of Grant & Grant, Philadelphia, being the following year transferred to the New York office. In 1888, however, he resigned to take a position with The Land Title and Trust Company, Philadelphia, of which he is now assistant secretary. He is trustee of the Masonic Life Association, and also the Philadelphia Clinic for Home Treatment of Chest and Throat Diseases. He is a member of Melita Lodge of Masons, also the Philadelphia Consistory, Scottish Rite, (32d-degree) and the Royal Arcanum (Ionic Council). He is also member of the City Club of Philadelphia. He has traveled much throughout the United States, Canada and Europe. Mr. Benton is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and in politics is a Republican. He married at Philadelphia, April 15, 1905, Mary Elizabeth Upperman. Residence: 2355 East Susquehanna Avenue, Philadelphia. Office address: The Land Title and Trust Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

BERARD, Eugene Michel:

Lawyer; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., July 27, 1855; son of Joseph Eugene and Mary Roche (Grim) Berard. He was educated at home and in public and private schools and was graduated from Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1876. Since then he has been engaged in the practice of law and he is now a partner in the law firm of Hoppin and Berard and is director and treasurer of the Eastern Kentucky Coal Lands Corporation. He is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science; the American Economic Association; National Geographic Society, and an associate member of the National Child Labor Committee, and counselor of the American Civic Association, member of the Playground Association of America, New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, American Association for Labor Legislation, New York Botanical Garden, National Municipal League, and the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and is a member of the Hackensack Golf Club. Residence: Prospect Avenue, Hackensack, N. J. Office: 55 Liberty Street, New York City.

BERGEN, Caroline McPhail:

Born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 1, 1859; daughter of Leonard Cassell McPhail, M. D., and Caroline (Speir) McPhail. She was educated first in the kindergarten and after that by private instruction at home. She married in Brooklyn, Jan. 26, 1881, Tunis G. Bergen. Mrs. Bergen has taken a great interest in movements for civic betterment, and by request of two succeeding borough presidents made a report as to the need for public baths in certain congested neighborhoods in Brooklyn, and suggested sites for them which were approved and purchased by the city. Two public bath houses on these sites are now in use and others are in course of construction. Mrs. Bergen also, at the request of the city controller, reported on the playground needs of Brooklyn, and selected places appropriate for public playgrounds, which are now being developed for the use of the children. She served, by appointment of Governor Higgins, as a member of the State Probation Commission; as member of the Committee on School Census of New York City, and on the Committee on Physical Welfare of School Children of New York City. Mrs. Bergen served as volunteer probation officer of the Children's Court of Brooklyn, and received a gold badge from the attachés of that court in May, 1906. She is president of the Brooklyn Free Kindergarten Society; vice-president of the Brooklyn Division of the American National Red Cross; member of the State Charities Aid Association, and president of its committee for the boroughs of Brooklyn and Queens; trustee of the Brooklyn Society for Parks and Playgrounds; member of the Executive Committee of the National Playgrounds Association of America; director of the Metropolitan Parks Association of New York City; acting president of the Brooklyn Barnard Club; and member of the New York State Association Opposed to the Extension of Suffrage to Women, and of the Woman's Civitas and Twentieth Century Clubs of Brooklyn. Her summer residence is "Fir Tower," Anteaora, in the Catskills. Residence: 101 Willow Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BERGEN, Tunis G.:

Lawyer; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., May, 1848; son of Garret G. and Mary (Hubbard) Bergen. He was educated in Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, and at Rutgers College, was graduated A.B., 1867; afterward went to the University of Heidelberg, from which he received the degree of Doctor in Public Law in 1871. He afterward took post graduate work at the Universities of Berlin and Paris, and then took the regular law course in Columbia University, being graduated as LL.B. in 1874. Mr. Bergen was attached to the headquarters of the German Crown Prince in the Franco-Prussian War in 1870. Since his graduation in law, he has been engaged in practice in the State and United States courts, and he is also extensively identified with South American railroads and other enterprises. He was a member of the Brooklyn Board of Education twelve years, and its president from 1881 to 1886, and a New York State Commissioner of Charities, 1895-1900; and is a Republican in politics. He is president of the Bogota City Railway Company of South America, the Chapinero Company of South America, the College Heights Land Company of Niagara Falls; a director of the New York and South Brooklyn Ferry Company. He is a member of the Reformed (Dutch) Church in America and is ex-president of the Holland Society of New York, and of the St. Nicholas Society of Nassau; president of the Board of Trustees of the Brooklyn Heights Seminary; a trustee of Rutgers College; director of the Long Island Historical Society. He has delivered numerous historical addresses and has done much research work and writing on early American (New Netherlands) history. Is now actively engaged as chairman of Committee, etc., of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission. Mr. Bergen married at Brooklyn, Jan. 26, 1881, Caroline, daughter of Dr. Leonard Cassel and Caroline (Speir) McPhail. Residence: 101 Willow Street, Brooklyn. Address: 55 Liberty Street, New York.

BERKLEY, Henry J.:

Physician; born in Baltimore, Md., July 17, 1860; son of Edris Berkley and Virginia (Endres) Berkley. He was educated in the University of Maryland, the University of Vienna, graduating as M.D. from the University of Maryland in 1881 and receiving from it the honorary degree of Sc.D. in 1907. He engaged in the practice of medicine in Baltimore after his return from Europe in 1888. He is professor of psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University, is a member of the Association of American Physicians and Surgeons and of the Medico-Psychological Association and the Johns Hopkins Club. He married in Baltimore, July 13, 1886, Ella Linthicum, and they have a daughter. Address: 1305 Park Avenue, Baltimore, Md.

BERLINER, Emile:

Inventor; born in Hanover, Germany, May 20, 1851; son of Samuel and Sally (Friedman) Berliner. He was graduated from the Samson School at Wolfenbuttel in 1864, and came to the United States in 1870. Became a close and assiduous student of physics, and in 1877 invented the loose contact telephone transmitter or microphone; discovered that a loose contact will act as a telephone receiver in April, 1877, and was the first to use an induction coil in connection with transmitters, patenting this feature in January, 1878; also made other inventions in telephony. He invented, in 1887, the gramophone, which is the first talking machine which utilizes a groove of even depth and varying direction, and in which the record groove not only vibrates but also propels the stylus across the record. For this invention Mr. Berliner received the John Scott Legacy medal of the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia. He was founder and secretary (1900) of the Society for Prevention of Sickness, having for its aim the improvement of the milk supply in Washington, D. C. He proposed, planned and was a member of the Washington Milk Conference of 1907. Mr. Berliner married at Washington, D. C., Oct. 26, 1881, Cora Adler. Address: 1458 Columbia Road, Washington, D. C.

BERRY, James Henderson:

Former United States Senator; born in Jackson County, Ala., May, 15, 1841, and removed to Arkansas in 1848. He entered the Confederate Army in 1861 and was second lieutenant in the 16th Arkansas Infantry, and lost a leg at Corinth, Miss., Oct. 4, 1862. After leaving the army he studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1866, becoming a member of the Arkansas legislature in that year. In 1874 he was speaker of the lower house, and in 1876 elected judge of the Circuit Court. He served a term as governor of Arkansas, being elected in 1882, and in 1885 he was elected to the United States Senate, serving until 1907, when he was defeated by Senator Davis. Address: Bentonville, Ark.

BERRY, Joseph Flintoft:

Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church; born in Alymer, Canada, May 13, 1856; son of Francis and Anna L. Berry. He was educated in Milton Academy, Ontario, and has received the honorary degree of D.D. from Lawrence University and of LL.D. from Upper Iowa University and from Syracuse University. He entered the Methodist Episcopal ministry in 1874, and from 1884 to 1890 he was associate editor of the Michigan Christian Advocate. In the year last named he was selected as editor of the Epworth Herald, the organ of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church, serving as such until May 18, 1904, when he was elected bishop by the General Conference at Los Angeles. He married, in 1876, Olive J. Johnson. Address: 455 Franklin Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

BERRY, William H.:

Consulting engineer; born in Edwardsville, Ill., Sept. 9, 1852. Mr. Berry removed to Buffalo when he was 17 years old, and learned the machinists' trade, fitting himself for the profession of mechanical engineer by night study. He later removed to Chester, Pa., where he established a successful business which became the Berry Engineering Company, of which Mr. Berry is president and manager. He served for a term as mayor of Chester, and in 1905 was elected State treasurer of Pennsylvania. During his incumbency he brought about the disclosures which led to the investigation into the details of the building of the new Pennsylvania State Capitol and to the charges of extravagance and fraud and the prosecutions which followed. He is a Democrat in politics. He married in Philadelphia, Oct. 1, 1879, Sue Schofield.

Address: Chester, Pa.

BERRYHILL, Virginia Joynes:

Born in Fairfield, Iowa, Nov. 23, 1857; daughter of Christian Wolff and Nancy Maria (Seward) Slagle. She was graduated from the State University of Iowa with the degrees of A.B. in 1877 and M.A. in 1880, and Phi Beta Kappa honors, and was married at Fairfield, Iowa, Jan. 19, 1881, to James Guest Berryhill, graduate of the collegiate and law departments of the State University of Iowa, who has served two terms in the Iowa State Legislature, and is an influential business man and citizen of Des Moines, Iowa. Mrs. Berryhill has taken a deep interest in woman's club work, is an ex-president and director of the Des Moines Women's Club, ex-president of the Des Moines City Federation of Women's Clubs, first president and honorary president of the Iowa State Federation of Women's Clubs, and an ex-member of the Board of Directors and Executive Committee of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. She is also a member of the Women's Press Club of Des Moines, a trustee of the Associated Charities of Des Moines, and a member of the Archaeological Institute and the Society of Psychical Research. She has travelled extensively in Europe and America, and her recreations are, archery, motoring, golf and country club social life. Her publications and literary work have been chiefly connected with club work. Her children are James Guest Berryhill, Jr. and Katherine Berryhill; and her son, who was graduated from the State University of Iowa, is the first student of any university to take both Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa honors on graduation. Address: Des Moines, Iowa.

BERWIND, Edward J.:

Financier; born in Philadelphia, June 17, 1848. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1869; appointed ensign, July 4, 1870; master, March 24, 1872; and retired, May 14, 1875; title changed to lieutenant (junior grade), March 3, 1883, and resigned from the retired list, 1905. He is president of the Berwind-White Coal Mining Company, and the International Coal Company, the Havana Coal Company, Ocean Coal Company, and the Wilmore Coal Company; and is one of the leading coal supply men in the country having for years made a specialty of supplying coal for steam vessels; is a member of the Board of Managers of the Girard Trust Company (Philadelphia); trustee of the Fifth Avenue Trust Company; vice-president and director of the New York and Porto Rico Steamship Company; director of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway Company, the Cuba Company, International Mercantile Marine Company, the Interborough-Metropolitan Company, the Morton Trust Company, National Bank of Commerce, Newport Trust Company, New River and Pocahontas Consolidated Coal Company, Republic Iron and Steel Company, and various banking, railroad and mining corporations. He is a member of the United States Naval Academy Alumni Association, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, American Geographical Society, American Museum of Natural History, and the Union, University, Riding, Metropolitan, New York Yacht, Racquet and Tennis, Army and Navy, and Turf and Field Clubs of New York City; the Philadelphia Club of Philadelphia, the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C., and the Union Club of Boston. He married Herminie Torrey. Residence: 2 East 64th Street. Address: 1 Broadway, New York City.

BESSEY, Charles Edwin:

Botanist; born at Milton, Wayne County, Ohio, May 21, 1845; son of Adnah and Margaret (Ellenberger) Bessey. He was educated in the public schools, and at the Seville and Canaan Academies of Ohio; then entered the Michigan Agricultural College, graduating with the degree of B.Sc. in 1869, and M.Sc. in 1872. He studied under Dr. Asa Gray at Harvard University, and received the degrees of Ph.D.

and LL.D. from the University of Iowa, and Iowa College. Early in 1870 he became professor of botany at the Iowa Agricultural College, filling this position for fifteen college years, until appointed to head of the same department at the University of Nebraska in 1884. While at Iowa Agricultural College, he was acting president during the year 1882, and from 1888-1891 was acting chancellor of the University of Nebraska, again occupying this position during 1899-1900, and in 1907-1908. He has been dean of the Industrial College of the University of Nebraska, 1884-1888, and again since 1895. From 1888 to 1891 he was dean of the College of Literature, Science, and Arts, at the University of Nebraska. He is trustee of Doane College, Nebraska; is a life member of the Botanical Society of America (president in 1896-1897); fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science (vice-president in 1893, 1902 and 1907); member of the National Educational Association (vice-president in 1896), the American Microscopical Society (president in 1902), the American Forestry Association, etc. He is also a member of the Phi Beta Kappa and the Sigma Xi societies, and of the Schoolmasters' Club. He spends his leisure hours in mountain tramping and botanizing, and has traveled for observation and study, throughout the principal countries of Europe, the Steppes, Transcaucasia, etc. In politics he is an independent Republican; and he is a member of the Congregational Church. He married at West Tisbury, Mass., Dec. 25, 1873, Lucy Athearn, and they have three sons. Residence: 1507 R. Street. Address: The University of Nebraska, Lincoln, Neb.

BESTOR, Arthur Eugene:

Director of Chautauqua Institution; born in Dixon, Ill., May 19, 1879; son of Orson Porter and Laura Ellen (Moore) Bestor. He was graduated from the University of Chicago, A.B., 1901; was professor of history and political science in Franklin College, Franklin, Ind., 1901-1903, and since 1904 has been lecturer in political science in the Extension Division of the University of Chicago. Mr. Bestor was assistant general director of Chautauqua Institution, 1905-1907, and has been its director since 1907, spending his summers at Chautauqua, N. Y. He is a member of the American Historical Association, the Phi Beta Kappa Society, Delta Upsilon fraternity and the City and Quadrangle Clubs of Chicago. Address: 5711 Kimbark Avenue, Chicago, Ill., and Chautauqua, N. Y.

BETHUNE, Louise Blanchard:

Architect; born in Waterloo, N. Y., July 21, 1856; daughter of Dalsen Wallace and Emma M. (Williams) Blanchard. She was educated in Buffalo Central High School, and was married in Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 10, 1881, to Robert Armour Bethune, and has a son, Dr. Charles W. Bethune, born in 1883. After leaving high school she studied architecture, and she was engaged at draughtsman work in Buffalo from 1876 to 1881, when she established an independent office and became the first woman architect in the United States. Since her marriage she has practised in partnership with her husband, who is also an architect; now member of the firm of Bethune, Bethune & Fuchs. Mrs. Bethune was for nineteen years a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, and is the only woman who was ever a fellow of that society. She is a member of the Buffalo Historical Society and the New York State Historical Society; president of the Buffalo Genealogical Society; treasurer of the National Society of New England Women, Colony II; member of the Revolutionary Records Committee of the Buffalo Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution. Address 215 Franklin Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

BETTS, James Albert:

Jurist; born at Broadalbin, Fulton County, N. Y., March 18, 1853; son of Isaiah and Margaret A. (Hoes) Betts. He was graduated from the State Normal School at Albany, N. Y., taught school in Saratoga County, N. Y., 1871-1873, was principal of a public school in Kingston, N. Y., 1875-1877, law student and law clerk, 1877-1880, and in 1880 was admitted to the New York bar, practising at Kingston, N. Y., 1880-1898. He was secretary of the Civil Service Commission of New York State, 1883-1884; member of the Board of Education of Kingston, N. Y., 1885-1898; surrogate of Ulster County, N. Y., 1892-1898, and was elected on the Democratic ticket, 1898, justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the Third Judicial District; for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1912. He is also president of the Kingston Savings Bank, and vice-president of the City Hospital of Kingston, N. Y. Justice Betts married in Kingston, N. Y., Oct. 16, 1884, Frances M. Hill. Address: Kingston, N. Y.

BEVAN, Arthur Dean:

Physician and surgeon; born in Chicago, Ill., 1861; son of Thomas and Sarah (Ramsey) Bevan. After taking a year's work at the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, he became, in 1879, a medical student at Rush Medical College (now the medical department of the University of Chicago), graduating in 1883 with the degree of M.D. In that year he was appointed surgeon in the United States Marine Hospital service in Oregon, remaining there for four years, holding also in the last year the chair of anatomy at the medical department of the University of Oregon, at Portland. In 1887 he was offered a similar position at the University of Chicago, and, leaving the United States service, returned to Chicago. Two years later he became professor of surgical anatomy and at the same time associate professor of surgery, in Rush Medical College, where, in 1902, he was made professor of surgery. He is president of and surgeon at the Presbyterian Hospital of Chicago, and a prominent member of various medical associations, being president of the Chicago Medical Society in 1899; fellow of the American Surgical Society since 1900, etc. Dr. Bevan is also a member of the University, Chicago Athletic, Glen View and Chicago Golf Clubs of Chicago. He married at Akron, Ohio, February, 1896, Anna L. Barber. Residence: 2917 Michigan Avenue. Office address: 100 State Street, Chicago, Ill.

BEVERIDGE, Albert J.:

United States Senator; born on a farm in Highland County, Ohio, Oct. 6, 1862. He was graduated from De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., B.A., 1885; was admitted to the bar in 1886. He has been an active Republican from the time he became a voter, and he was elected to the Senate of the United States by the Sixty-first General Assembly of Indiana, Jan. 17, 1899, for the term beginning March 4th following, and was reelected in 1905, for the term of service, expiring March 3, 1911. He is author of a number of works dealing with foreign affairs and with moral topics including The Russian Advance; The Young Man and the World; the Bible as Good Reading; Americans of To-day and To-morrow; The Meaning of the Times, and has frequently contributed to the magazines. Among other matters he has become prominently identified in the Senate with the movement for the national child labor bill. Address: Indianapolis, Ind.

BICKHAM, Warren Stone:

Surgeon; born at Shreveport, La., Aug. 23, 1861; son of Dr. Charles Jasper and Annie Augusta (Gray) Bickham. He received his preparatory education in the academies of the University of the South (Sewanee, Tenn.), and the University of Louisiana, until 1882; he was graduated from the Medical Department of Tulane University of Louisiana, Ph.D., M.D., 1886; College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia University), M.D., 1887; followed by post-graduate study in New York, Berlin, Vienna, London and Paris, residing more than two years abroad. He practised as surgeon in New Orleans; was interne and later visiting surgeon of the Charity Hospital, in New Orleans; then located in New York City in practice of surgery. He was instructor in surgery in the Post-graduate Medical School and Hospital; assistant instructor of operative surgery, College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City; instructor of surgery, New York Polyclinic. He was visiting surgeon of the Northwestern Dispensary, and is now surgeon of the Manhattan State Hospital. Dr. Bickham is author of a text-book on Operative Surgery, and numerous contributions to medical journals on surgical topics. He is a fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine; member of the New York County Medical Society, New York County Medical Association, New York State Medical Association, American Medical Association, Medical Association of Greater New York, and the College of Physicians and Surgeons Alumni. He married in London, 1895, Flora Sabina Brandon. Address: 448 Madison Avenue, New York City.

BICKMORE, Albert H.:

Securities; born in Martinsville, Me., 1869; son of William H. and Margaret A. (Martin) Bickmore. He was graduated from Colby University, A.B., 1893. He has since been engaged in financial business, and is now senior member of the firm of A. H. Bickmore & Company, investment securities; director of the National Light, Heat & Power Company, Atlantic Shore Line Railway, Union Securities Company (president), Atlantic Construction Company, Southern Maine Steamship Company, Taylorville Gas and Electric Company, Pana Gas and Electric Company, Marshall Gas and Electric Company, Lexington Gas and Electric Company, City Gas and Electric Company, of Paris, Jerseyville Illuminating Company, Charleston Illuminating Company, Hoosick Falls Illuminating Company, Bennington Electric Company, Springfield Coal Mining Company. Mr. Bickmore is a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity, Phi Beta Kappa, and of the Union League, St. Nicholas, City, Graduates', Lawyers', Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs of New York. Mr. Bickmore married in Camden, Maine, Oct. 2, 1901, Myrtle L. French. Residence: 300 West 71st Street. Address: 30 Pine Street, New York City.

BICKNELL, George Augustus:

Rear-Admiral, U. S. N.; born on the estate of Jesse Richards, his maternal grandfather, at Batsto, Burlington County, N. J., May 15, 1846; son of George A. Bicknell, then a lawyer of New York City, and who later settled at New Albany, Ind., and Elizabeth Haskins Richards Bicknell. He received his early education in private schools in Indiana, was appointed acting midshipman from Indiana, December 2, 1861; served as first lieutenant in the United States volunteer infantry during the Morgan Raid, until the regiment was mustered out; graduated United States Naval Academy, 1866; served in the Iroquois, U. S. Asiatic fleet, 1867-1870; was at the opening of the ports, Kobe and Osaka, Japan, to trade; in landing party repelling attack of Prince Ilizen at Kobe; was second in command of the marines of two ships on outpost duty protecting Yokohama, about ten days, the fleet being absent. He was promoted to ensign, April, 1868; to master, March, 1869; to lieutenant, March 21, 1870; naval academy instructor, 1870-1871; in the Worcester, flagship of North Atlantic Station, 1872-1875; torpedo station and hydrographic office, 1875; in the Omaha, South Pacific Station, 1875; in the flagship Richmond, South Atlantic Station, 1876; navigator of the Wachusett, South Atlantic Station, 1879, going up the Mississippi one hundred miles above Vicksburg; navigator of the Marion, 1880-1882; cruised from Montevideo to Heard's Island, about seven thousand miles, seeking and rescuing about thirty survivors of the shipwrecked bark, Trinity; inspector of material for the Advisory Board, and for several bureaus, at Chester Rolling Mills and other steel works; at Roach's Shipbuilding Works, for the Dolphin, Atlantic, Boston and Chicago, then building there, 1883-1886. Promoted to lieutenant commander, 1886; executive officer, Essex, Asiatic Station, 1886-1889; assistant in equipment, navy yard, New York, May 1889 to May, 1891; executive officer, U. S. receiving ship Franklin, Jan. to Dec., 1892; executive officer, U. S. S. Atlanta, Dec., 1892, to July, 1893; executive officer, U. S. R. S. Franklin, 1893-1894; commanding the Fern, 1894-1896; captain of the yard, naval station, Port Royal, S. C., Feb. 1, 1896; attending torpedo station and war college, 1896. Promoted to commander, 1896. Inspector of Fourteenth Lighthouse District, Cincinnati, Ohio, Aug., 1897, to April 14, 1898; detached from lighthouse district, April 14, 1898, ordered to command the steamer Niagara, commissioned that vessel at New York, April 16, 1898, arrived at Key West in May, corled vessels of Sampson's Squadron, while on their way to the bombardment of San Juan; took station during the bombardment off Point Salinas, to guard against the approach of gunboats from the westward; towed monitor Terror to Key West, arriving there May 19, having delivered nearly all of cargo of this collier at sea under way; took the Niagara to Norfolk navy yard and left her May 30, to command Saturn; cruised in Saturn in Porto Rican and Cuban waters until Sept., 1898, returned to Norfolk; commanded the Monocacy at Shanghai, China, Dec. 25, 1898; cruised to Han Kow and river ports, taking the Hon. E. H. Conger and suite to visit the two Viceroy's of the river provinces; detached from the Monocacy and ordered home, May 30, 1900; reported at Mare Island, June 30, 1900; detached from navy yard, July 5, to home; to War College, July 20; to Norfolk navy yard, Oct. 4; inspector of ordnance, navy yard, Norfolk, Va., till July, 1902. Promoted to captain in April, 1901. Commandant, naval station, Key West, Fla., and commandant of the Seventh Naval District, from Aug., 1902, until Aug., 1904. Oct. 17, 1904, commanding the flagship Texas, United States Coast Squadron, under the flags of Rear-Admirals J. H. Sands and F. W. Dickens, until June 21, 1906; during this cruise, the summer maneuvers of the coast squadron, then consisting of about sixteen vessels, demonstrated the incompleteness of the shore defenses of Chesapeake Bay; commandant of U. S. Navy Yard and Station, Pensacola, Fla., and also of the Eighth Naval District, July 1, 1906, to Feb. 12, 1907. Promoted to rear admiral, Feb. 8, 1907; commandant of the First Naval District and commandant of the U. S. Navy Yard, Portsmouth, N. H., from Feb. 18, 1907, until May 14, 1908, and retired May 15, 1908, having attained the age of 62 years. He is a member of the U. S. Naval Institute and the Army and Navy Clubs of Washington and New York. He married in New Albany, Ind., May 22, 1878, Annie Sloan, daughter of John Sloan, M.D., and they have had one son, who died in infancy. Residence; 604 E. Main Street, New Albany, Ind.

BIDDLE, A. J. Drexel:

Author, explorer and lecturer; born in Philadelphia, Oct. 1, 1874; son of Edward and Emily (Drexel) Biddle. After a number of years' residence in the Madeira Islands he returned to the United States in 1891, joined the staff of the Philadelphia Public Ledger and two years later he severed his connection with the Ledger, and contributed to magazines and humorous journals. He revived the Philadelphia Sunday Graphic in 1895, and became its editor, and he was at the head of the publishing house of Drexel Biddle, in New York, Philadelphia, and San Francisco, from 1897 to 1904. He is author of the following books: A Dual Role, 1894; All Round Athletics, 1894; An Allegory and Three Essays, 1894; The Froggy Fairy Book, 1896; The Second Froggy Fairy Book, 1897; Shantytown Sketches, 1898; Word for Word and Letter for Letter, 1898; The Flowers of Life, 1898; The Madeira Islands, two volumes, 1900; The Land of the Wine, two volumes, 1901. His favorite recreations are automobiling and boxing. He has contested successfully in several amateur boxing tournaments and boxed exhibition bouts with many of the leading professional pugilists. He is a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England. He married in 1895, Cordelia Rundell Bradley, of Pittsburgh, and they have two sons and a daughter. Address: 2104 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

BIDDLE, Craig:

Jurist; born in Philadelphia, Jan. 10, 1823; son of Nicholas Biddle, notable as the president of the Bank of the United States from 1823 till its failure in 1841. He was graduated from Princeton College in 1841. He was admitted to the Philadelphia bar in 1844 and was elected to the Pennsylvania Legislature in 1849, serving one term in the House. On the outbreak of the Civil War in 1861 he became a major on the staff of General Robert Patterson, and saw service in the Shenandoah Valley; he was afterward appointed on Governor Curtin's staff, and was detailed to organize new regiments. In 1863, when General Lee invaded Pennsylvania, Mr. Biddle went to the front as a private in a militia regiment for State defense. As a lawyer he won reputation for learning and ability, and built up a large and lucrative practice, which continued till 1845, when he was appointed a judge of the Common Pleas Court of Philadelphia. In November of that year he was elected by the Republicans to this position by a large majority. The Republicans and Democrats united in nominating and electing him in 1885, and he received a practically unanimous third election in 1895. He is now presiding judge of the Common Pleas Courts, in which bench he has sat over thirty years. Judge Biddle has been much interested in agriculture, and has served as president of the Philadelphia Agricultural Society; he has also been vice-president of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. Address: 2033 Pine Street, Philadelphia.

BIDDLE, William Phillips:

Colonel, U. S. Marine Corps; born in and appointed from Pennsylvania. He was commissioned a second lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, in June, 1875; was promoted first lieutenant in 1884; captain in 1894, major in 1899, lieutenant-colonel

March 3, 1903, and colonel Feb., 1905. He has served on the varied duties and stations ashore and afloat, of an officer of marines. In Aug., 1877, during the railroad riots, he was with a battalion of marines in Washington, Baltimore, Martinsburg, W. Va., and Fort Mifflin, which opened up the traffic on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. In June, 1890, he made a forced march with a detachment of marines and sailors from Chemulpo to Seoul, Corea, to protect our legation. He commanded the marines on the Olympia during the battle of Manila Bay, May 1, 1898, and in May and June, 1898, was holding Cavite Navy Yard with a detachment of marines, and on the Olympia, blockading Manila till its bombardment and fall in August. In 1899 and 1900, he was in charge of recruiting district of Pennsylvania and Western New Jersey, and in Aug., 1900, he commanded the First Regiment of Marines of the China Relief Expedition, during the march from Tientsin to Peking, for the relief of the Legations. He commanded the marines in the battle of Pietsang, Aug. 5, Yangtsun, Aug. 6, and in the fighting on the walls around Peking, Aug. 15, when the Chinese were finally driven from the Sacred City by the American forces; president Marine Corps Examining Board for entrance and promotion, 1903; commanded a regiment of marines stationed on the Isthmus of Panama at Empire, 1904; commanded the First Brigade of Marines in the Philippines, 1906-1908. Address: Care Headquarters Marine Corps, Washington, D. C.

BIDWELL, Daniel D.:

Journalist; born in East Hartford, Conn.; son of Charles M. Bidwell and Emma W. (Brewer) Bidwell. He was educated in the East Hartford grammar schools, the Hartford high school and Yale College, graduating as A.B. in 1886. He has been engaged on newspapers in Jacksonville, Fla., New York City and Hartford, Conn., since 1886. He was a member of the Connecticut General Assembly in 1905 and 1907; representative of the town of East Hartford. He is a vice-president of the Bidwell Family Association. Mr. Bidwell is a member of the Yale Alumni Association of Hartford; a director of the Raymond Library at East Hartford, Conn. He is an Odd Fellow, a Knight of Pythias, a Mason, and a member of the University Club of Hartford. He was collaborator with Herbert Ward in publishing Five Years with the Congo Cannibals, and is a contributor to several magazines. He married at Brooklyn, N. Y., April 19, 1891, Edith M. Ross, and they have two children: Pauline B., born in 1893, and Joseph, born in 1902. Residence: East Hartford, Conn. Office address: The Hartford Times, Hartford, Conn.

BIEN, Morris:

Lawyer and civil engineer; born in New York City, April 17, 1859; son of Joseph and Theresa (Leipoldt) Bien. He was graduated from the University of California as Ph.B. in 1879; from George Washington University, Washington, D. C., as LL.B. in 1895, and from the National University, Washington, D. C., as LL.M. in 1896. He was in charge of topographic surveys in various States in the East and West in the United States Geological Survey from 1879 to 1893; was engaged in special irrigation surveys for the United States Geological Survey from 1888 to 1893; in the General Land Office at Washington, D. C., from 1893 to 1902 in charge of irrigation and the Railroad Right of Way Section; and in the United States Reclamation Service since 1902, as supervising engineer in charge of land and legal matters. In the General Land Office he prepared many reports on Irrigation and Right of Way matters, and drafted much legislation on these subjects which was passed by Congress and is now in force. In 1904 he prepared the draft of a code of State Irrigation Law, which has been enacted by several State legislatures. He is a member of the National Geographic Society of Washington, D. C., and of the University Club of Washington, D. C. He married at Hillsboro, Ohio, March 25, 1886, Lilla V. Hart, and they have two children. Residence: 1130 Lamont Street, N. W. Office: United States Reclamation Service, Washington, D. C.

BIERBOWER, Austin:

Lawyer and author; born at Shelly's Island, Dauphin County, Pa., son of Casper and Lydia (Herman) Bierbower. He was graduated from Dickinson College A.B. and A.M., and the honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by Iowa Wesleyan University in 1902. After graduating from Dickinson College he was appointed professor of Latin and Greek at Iowa Wesleyan University, holding this position three years, and spending two years in graduate work at the University of Berlin, Germany. In the meantime, taking up the study of law, he was admitted to the bar of Baltimore in 1874 and subsequently practised over twenty years in Chicago. He was attorney for Rev. H. W. Thomas, D.D., in his famous heresy trial; and among his important cases tested the High License law of Illinois in the Supreme Court. He has participated as a speaker in several political campaigns. He was for some time European correspondent of the Chicago Tribune and the Cincinnati Times Star, and an editorial writer of the Chicago Daily News. Among the writings for which he is known, besides various articles in the magazines, are the following books: The Morals of Christ; The Socialism of Christ; The Virtues and Their Reasons; From Monkey to Man; How to Succeed; Ethics for Schools; The Training of Lovers; Thoughts for the Rich, etc. Residence: 1810 Michigan Avenue. Address: 87 Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.

BIERCE, Ambrose:

Journalist; born in Ohio in 1842. Mr. Bierce saw distinguished service in the Civil War, being breveted major, and after its close went to California and subsequently to London. After a successful literary career in England he returned to California, where he contributed to the Overland Monthly, and at different times edited the Argonaut and Wasp, besides doing a large amount of other journalistic work. He at present conducts the department of the Cosmopolitan Magazine of caustic comment on literary and other matters. He is the author of a considerable number of books on English literature, including: Cobwebs from an Empty Skull; The Monk and the Hangman's Daughter (with Dr. A. Danziger); Black Beetles in Amber; Can Such Things Be?; In the Midst of Life (former title Tales of Soldiers and Civilians); Fantastic Fables; Shapes of Clay; and The Cynic's Word Book. Address: Army and Navy Club, Washington, D. C.

BIGELOW, Edward Fuller:

Naturalist; born in Colechester, Conn., Jan. 14, 1860. After a preparatory education Mr. Bigelow undertook a comprehensive course of special studies at the biological laboratories of Yale University and Cold Spring Harbor; the Nature Study School of the College of Agriculture, Kingston, R. I.; at the Marine Biological Laboratory at Woods Hole, Mass., and at the Nature Study School of Cornell University. He has received the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. from Taylor University. Upon the completion of these courses he entered upon his well known career as a lecturer and writer on nature subjects, was for eight years editor of the Nature and Science department of the St. Nicholas Magazine, and for three years was editor of Popular Science. He was also for several years editor of The Observer, a naturalist magazine. In connection with his lecture work he has for twenty-five years taken yearly several thousand boys and girls on natural history excursions, and has lectured on topics relating to his special work before the leading nature classes of the country, Chautauquas, assemblies, colleges, schools, etc. He has been instructor of nature study in summer schools in many of the States of the Union. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences;

the New York Microscopic Society; the Audubon Society of Connecticut; and was elected president of the Agassiz Association in 1907. He is the author (and designer) of Bigelow's Descriptive Plant Analysis; How Nature Study Should be Taught; Walking, A Fine Art; and the Spirit of Nature Study. He is also the editor of Our School Out of Doors, and the inventor of chemical tablets for artificial nutriment of plants. He married at Portland, Conn., July 2, 1882, Mary Augusta Pelton. Address: Arcadia, Sound Beach, Conn.

BIGELOW, Frank Hagar:

Astronomer, meteorologist, clergyman; born in Concord, Mass., Aug. 28, 1851; son of Francis Edwin and Ann (Hagar) Bigelow. He was prepared at the Boston Latin School, was graduated from Harvard as A.B. in 1873 and received its degree of A.M. in 1880. He engaged in scientific work and later studied theology, was graduated from the Episcopal Theological School at Cambridge, Mass., as S.T.B., in 1880, and received the degree of L.H.D. from Columbian (now George Washington) University in 1898. After his graduation at Cambridge he took holy orders in the Episcopal Church, and in 1881 was rector of St. Paul's Church, at Natick, Mass. This position he resigned to engage in scientific work, in which he has continued ever since, but has also, since 1892, been assistant minister of St. John's Church, Washington, D. C. He was assistant astronomer at the Argentine National Observatory at Cordoba, 1873-1876 and 1881-1883; assistant at the U. S. Naval Observatory 1876-1877, professor of mathematics at Racine College, Wis., 1884-1889; assistant at the Nautical Almanac Office, 1889-1891. Since 1891 he has been professor of meteorology in the U. S. Weather Bureau, and since 1894 professor of astrophysics in the George Washington University. Dr. Bigelow has been a member of the International Cloud Commission, Commission on Solar Physics, and chairman of the Conference Board on Evaporation, and is now in charge of the climatology of the United States. He was a member of the U. S. Eclipse Expeditions to West Africa in 1889, to South Carolina in 1900 and to Spain in 1905. He is a member and former president of the Washington Philosophical Society; member of the Society for Philosophical Inquiry, Washington Academy of Science, Deutsche Meteorologische Gesellschaft, American Association for the Advancement of Science, Sons of the Revolution, etc. He is author of more than one hundred and thirty papers, monographs and volumes in solar physics, terrestrial magnetism and meteorology. He married, Oct. 6, 1881, Mary Ellen Spalding, and they had a daughter, who died in 1884. Residence: 1625 Massachusetts Avenue. Address: United States Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C.

BIGELOW, John:

Lawyer, author and publicist; born in Malden, Ulster County, N. Y., Nov. 25, 1817. He was graduated from Union College as A.B., 1835, and received the LL.D. degree from his alma mater in 1886, from Racine College in 1886, and from the University of the City of New York in 1889. He was admitted to the New York bar, 1839. He was appointed by Governor Silas Wright one of the inspectors of Sing Sing prison, and served until inspectors were made elective by the new constitution of 1846; was editor of the New York Evening Post from 1849 to 1861. He was appointed, by President Lincoln, United States Consul to Paris, 1861, and to succeed William L. Dayton as United States minister to France, in 1864-1867; secretary of State of New York, 1875-1876, under the administration of Governor Tilden, having before that been chairman of the Canal Investigating Committee appointed by Governor Tilden. By Governor Tilden's will Mr. Bigelow was appointed one of the executors and trustees of his estate. He is president of the Tilden Trust; president of the Board of Trustees of the New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations; is trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and ex-officio member of the Art Commission of the City of New York. Mr. Bigelow, while a man of affairs in the largest sense, has also made for himself an enduring place in American literature. He is the author of: *Jamaica in 1850, of The Effect of Sixteen Years of Freedom on a Slave Colony, 1852; Life of Frémont, 1856; Les États-Unis d'Amérique en 1863 (Paris); The Wit and Wisdom of the Haytiens, 1876; Monograph on Molinos the Quietist, 1882; France and the Confederate Navy, 1888; Writings and Speeches of Samuel T. Tilden (two volumes), 1885; Life of William Cullen Bryant, 1890; Life of Samuel J. Tilden (two volumes), 1875; Life of Franklin (three volumes); and is editor of complete works of Franklin (ten volumes). He also wrote: *The Mystery of Sleep, 1897; which has already reached a third edition and has also been translated and published in the French, German and Russian languages; The Supreme Court and the Electoral Commission—An Open Letter to the Honorable Joseph H. Choate, 1903; Lest we Forget—Gladstone, Morley and the Confederate Loan of 1863, a Rectification; The Useful Life a Crown to the Simple Life, 1905; Some Recollections of Edouard Laboulaye; Our Ex-Presidents, What Shall We Do For Them, What Shall They Do For Us?, 1906; The Proprium, or What of Man is Not His Own. He was one of the early members and is president of the Century Association. Mr. Bigelow married, in 1850, Jennie Pontney, of Baltimore, and has six children: two sons, Major John Bigelow and Pontney Bigelow and four daughters: Miss Grace Bigelow, Mrs. Charles E. Tracy, Mrs. Butler K. Harding, and Honorable Mrs. Lionel Guest. Address: 21 Gramercy Park, New York City, or Highland Falls-on-Hudson, N. Y.

BIGELOW, Melville Madison:

Dean of Boston University Law School; born at Eaton Rapids, Mich., Aug. 2, 1846; oldest son of Rev. William E. and Daphne F. Bigelow. He was graduated from the University of Michigan as A.B. in 1866, LL.B. in 1868, and A.M. in 1871; and studied at Harvard University, receiving its degrees of Ph.D. and A.M. after examination in 1879; and also receiving the degree of LL.D. from Northwestern University in 1896. He is professor of law and dean of the Law School of Boston University; also lawyer and author. He is a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Harvard chapter of Phi Beta Kappa and other learned societies. He is author of: The Law of Estoppel, which has gone through five editions; Leading Cases in the Law of Torts; The Law of Torts (eight American and three English editions); Placita Anglo-Normannica; History of English Procedure; The Law of Fraud on the Civil Side; Law of Bills, Notes and Cheques (two editions), and The Law of Wills. He is also author of two chapters (VI and VII) in the seventh volume of the Cambridge Modern History. Professor Bigelow married in 1898, Alice Bradford Woodman. Residence: 200 Brattle Street, Cambridge, Mass. Office: Boston University Law School, Ashburton Place, Boston.

BIGELOW, Poultney:

Journalist; born in New York City, Sept. 10, 1855; son of John and Jane Tunis (Poultney) Bigelow. He was graduated from Yale as B.A. in 1879, and then attended the Columbia Law School, and later received the honorary degree of M.A. from Yale. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1882. Mr. Bigelow is author of: The German Emperor and His Eastern Neighbors (German translation); Down the Danube, from the Black Forest to the Black Sea; The Borderland of Czar and Kaiser; History of the German Struggle for Liberty (1806 to 1848), four volumes, 1895 to 1905; White Man's Africa, 1897; Children of the Nations, 1900. He has visited the principal tropical colonies in search of information on colonial administration and three times circumnavigated the globe. In 1905 and 1906 he was lecturer on National Expansion in the Law School of Boston University. He was correspondent of the London Times in the Spanish-American War, and has lectured at the principal universities on colonial administration and modern history. He is honorary member of the Royal United Service Institution, and of the Royal Artillery Institution (life), and a life fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, and of other kindred societies at home and abroad, and is a life member of the Imperial Yacht Club of Kiel, Germany, and Royal Corinthian of London. Address: Malden-on-Hudson, N. Y.

BIGELOW, Robert Payne:

Zoölogist and librarian; born at Baldwinville, N. Y., in 1863; son of Otis Bigelow and Margaret (Payne) Bigelow. He was graduated from Harvard as S.B. in 1887 and from Johns Hopkins University as Ph.D. in 1892, and was Adam T. Brice fellow at Johns Hopkins from 1891 to 1893. He was editor of the American Naturalist in 1897 and 1898, editor of the Technology Quarterly from 1895 to 1908. Has published various papers on zoölogical subjects. He is instructor in biology and librarian at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is a member of the American Society of Naturalists, the American Society of Zoölogists, fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and a member of the Saint Botolph Club and Commonwealth Country Club of Boston. Residence: 3 Spruce Street. Office: Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston.

BIGELOW, Willard Dell:

Chemist; born at Gardner, Kan., May 31, 1866; son of William I. and Jennie (Lytle) Bigelow. He was graduated from Amherst College in 1889, and went to Oregon, where he was professor of chemistry in the Oregon State College for a year, then instructor in chemistry in the high schools of Washington, D. C., for a year; and in July 1, 1891, he became chemist in the U. S. Department of Agriculture in which position he has ever since continued, now being chief of the Division of Foods in that Department. He was professor of chemistry in the National University at Washington from 1893 to 1898. Professor Bigelow married at College Park, Md., April 9, 1896, Nancy M. Nesbit. Address: Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BILLINGS, Cornelius K. G.:

Capitalist; born in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Sept. 17, 1862; son of Albert M. and Augusta S. (Farnsworth) Billings. He removed to Chicago with his parents in 1864, and was educated at Racine College, graduating as A.B. in 1879. He entered the office of the People's Gas Light and Coke Company of Chicago, of which his father was president, in 1879, and he has been president of that company since the death of his father in 1887. He is also president and director of the Kings County Lighting Company; director of the Union Carbide Company, the Home National Bank and the Home Savings Bank of Chicago. He was a director of the World's Columbian Exposition from 1892 to 1904, and was West Park Commissioner of Chicago in 1889. He is a member of the Metropolitan, Racquet and Tennis, Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht, New York Yacht, Turf and Field and Down Town Clubs of New York, and the Chicago and Union League Club, Chicago. He married in 1885, Blanche, daughter of Andrew MacLeish, of Chicago. Residence, 921 Madison Avenue. Address: 170 E. 75th Street, New York.

BILLINGS, Frank:

Physician, educator; born at Highland, Iowa County, Wis., in 1854; son of Henry M. and Ann (Bray) Billings. He studied medicine at Northwestern University, being graduated in 1881 with the degree of M.D., and receiving the honorary degree of M.S. in 1890. He has since his graduation practised in Chicago, and is connected with various hospitals and institutions. He has been physician of the Presbyterian Hospital since 1898, and of St. Luke's since 1892. He is also consulting physician to the Cook County, Children's Memorial, Michael Reese, and Provident Hospitals. He was teacher of anatomy, of physical diagnosis, and of the practice of medicine in the Northwestern University School of Medicine, 1882-1898. In 1898 he was appointed to the chair of medicine in Rush Medical College (now the Medical School of the University of Chicago), and in 1900 became dean of the Medical School. He is a prominent member and was president in 1902-1903 of the American Medical Association, and member and ex-president of the Association of American Physicians, and the Chicago Medical Society; also a member of the Illinois State Medical Society and various other local professional organizations. He edited Diseases of the Digestive System (1906). Dr. Billings married at Washington, D. C., May 26, 1887, Dane Ford Brawley, by whom he has a daughter. Residence: 35 Twenty-second Street. Office: 100 State Street, Chicago.

BILLINGS, John Shaw:

Librarian, physician; born in Switzerland County, Ind., April 12, 1838; son of James and Abbie (Shaw) Billings. He was graduated from Miami University, Ohio, as A.B., 1857; received the degree of A.M. from the same college, 1860, and was graduated from the Medical College of Ohio, as M.D., 1860. He afterward received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Edinburgh, in 1884; from Harvard University 1886; M.D. from the University of Munich, 1889; D.C.L. from Oxford University, 1889; was made a member of the Royal College of Physicians, of Ireland, and Royal College of Surgeons, of Ireland, in 1892; M.D., Dublin, in 1892 and Budapest in 1896 LL.D., Yale, in 1901, and LL.D., Johns Hopkins University, 1902. He was resident physician of the Commercial Hospital at Cincinnati, Ohio, 1859-60; demonstrator of anatomy of the Medical College of Ohio 1860-1861. Dr. Billings was appointed acting assistant surgeon U. S. Army, Nov., 1861; promoted assistant surgeon April 16, 1862; brevetted lieutenant colonel U. S. Army, March 13, 1865; captain and assistant surgeon, U. S. Army, July 28, 1866;

major and surgeon, Dec. 2, 1876; lieutenant-colonel and deputy surgeon-general, United States Army, June 16, 1894; and retired from active service, at his own request, 1895. He was in charge of hospitals at Washington, D. C., and West Philadelphia, 1861-63; served with the Army of the Potomac, 1863, and was with the Fifth Corps at the battles of Chancellorsville and Gettysburg; was on hospital duty, David's Island and Bedloe's Island, N. Y., Oct., 1863, to Feb., 1864; acted as board of enrollment, and then was medical inspector, Army of the Potomac, until Dec., 1864; then in Surgeon-General's Office, Washington, in charge of the organization of Veteran Reserve Corps, until 1875, and of the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office until Dec. 28, 1883; after which he served as curator of the Army Medical Museum and Library, 1885-1895. He was engaged in the reorganization of the United States Marine Hospital Service, 1870; had charge of the Division of Vital Statistics, eleventh census; was medical adviser to board of trustees of Johns Hopkins University and Hospital, Baltimore; vice-president of the National Board of Health, 1879-82; professor of hygiene in the University of Pennsylvania, 1891-96; and since 1896, director of the New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox, and Tilden Foundations. Dr. Billings is a member of the Academy of Natural Sciences, Philadelphia, the Philosophical Society, of Washington (ex-president), the American Medical Association, American Social Science Association, American Association for the Advancement of Science, the National Academy of Sciences, the American Statistical Association, and also of the Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons (ex-president), American Academy of Political and Social Science, International Statistical Institute and Committee of Fifty to Investigate the Liquor Problem. He was president of the New York Library Club, 1899-1900, and again in 1906-1907; president of the American Library Association, 1901-1902; director Carnegie Institution, and chairman since 1903. Dr. Billings has distinguished himself as a writer on medical, hygienic and bibliographical subjects, including among his works: A Bibliography of Cholera, 1875; Medical Libraries in the United States, 1876; Introduction to a Treatise on Hygiene and Public Health: Principles of Ventilation and Heating, 1884, second edition, 1893; Mortality and Vital Statistics of the United States, 1885; Index Catalog of the Library of the Surgeon-General's Office of the United States Army, Washington, D. C., 1880-1894; also various professional reports and papers. Address: 425 Lafayette Street, New York City.

BINGHAM, Henry Harrison:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Philadelphia, Dec. 4, 1841. He was graduated from Jefferson College in 1862, receiving the degrees of A.B. and A.M., and later the degree of LL.D. from Washington and Jefferson College. He studied law, entered the Union Army as a lieutenant in the One Hundred and Fortieth Pennsylvania Volunteers; was wounded at Gettysburg, Pa., in 1863, at Spottsylvania, Va., in 1864, and at Farnsville, Va. in 1865. He was mustered out of service in July, 1866, having been brevetted for distinguished gallantry as major, lieutenant-colonel, colonel, and brigadier-general, and he received the Medal of Honor for special gallantry at the Battle of the Wilderness. He was appointed postmaster at Philadelphia in March, 1867, and resigned December, 1872, to accept an election to the clerkship of the Courts of Oyer and Terminer and Quarter Sessions of the Peace at Philadelphia. He was reelected clerk of the courts in 1875; was a delegate-at-large to the Republican National Convention at Philadelphia in 1872, also delegate from the First Congressional District to the Republican National Convention at Cincinnati in 1876, at Chicago in 1884 and 1888, at Minneapolis in 1892, St. Louis in 1896, at Philadelphia, 1900, and Chicago, 1904. He was elected to the Forty-sixth Congress from the First Pennsylvania District in 1878, beginning his services March 4, 1879, and has been in continuous service by biennial elections since, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress, expiring March 3, 1911. Address: 315 South Twelfth Street, Philadelphia.

BINGHAM, Theodore Alfred:

Brigadier general United States Army, retired; born at Andover, Tolland County, Conn., May 14, 1858; son of Joel Foote and Sarah (Grew) Bingham. He spent three years at Yale, in the class of 1876, and received from that college the degree of M.A. in 1896; and he was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1879. He was appointed as second lieutenant of engineers, in June, 1879. He was military attaché of the United States Embassy at Berlin from 1889-1892, and at Rome from 1892-1894; military aide to the President of the United States, with rank of colonel, from 1897-1903; having charge of the public buildings and grounds in Washington. While on engineering duty in Buffalo, N. Y., he met with a severe accident; was promoted brigadier-general in the United States Army, July 11, 1904, and was retired for disability in line of duty, July 12, 1904. General Bingham was police commissioner of New York City, from 1906 to 1909. General Bingham is a Royal Arch Mason, and he is a Commander of the Legion of Honor of France; member of the Society of the Cincinnati; a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, and the Sons of the American Revolution. He married in St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 15, 1881, Lucille Ruthenford, and they have a son. Address: 300 Mulberry Street, New York.

BINNEY, Charles Chauncey:

Lawyer; born in Philadelphia, Oct. 20, 1855; son of Horace Binney, Jr., and Eliza Frances (Johnson) Binney. He was graduated from Harvard as A.B. in 1878, studied law in the office of William Henry Rawle in Philadelphia; also at the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, and was admitted to the bar. He was assistant attorney in the Department of Justice of the United States, 1893-1897; and from September, 1897, was special attorney for the same department until June 1, 1907, although he resumed practice in Philadelphia in November, 1901. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the American Forestry Association, the Pennsylvania Forestry Association, the University and City Clubs of Philadelphia and the Cosmos Club of Washington, D. C. He is author of: Restrictions Upon Local and Special Legislation in State Constitutions, 1894; Life of Horace Binney, 1903; and a contributor to legal periodicals. Mr. Binney has been twice married; first at Englewood, N. J., June 4, 1885, to Sarah Cook Dawes, who died Dec. 28, 1900, and second, at Providence, R. I., Nov. 29, 1904, to Isabell Nichols. Residence: St. Martin's, Chestnut Hill. Address: 703 North American Building, Philadelphia.

BINNEY, Harold:

Lawyer; born in New York City, 1867; son of Amos (of Boston) and Elizabeth N. (Talbot) Binney. He was educated in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, Columbia Law School, Washington, D. C., and the New York University Law School. He was assistant examiner of patents at Washington, 1887-1890, and has been practising in New York City since 1890; member of the firm of Binney, Brickenstein & Ogden, patent lawyers. He is a member of the Players', Calumet, Engineers', Strollers', New York Yacht, Chemists' and Lawyers' Clubs. Mr. Binney married, 1895, Gertrude A. Miles and they have two daughters: Constance, born in 1897 and Frederika, born in 1892. Address: 2 Rector Street, New York City.

BINNIE, John Fairbairn:

Surgeon; born in Stirling, Scotland, April 22, 1863. He was educated at the University of Aberdeen, and studied in London, Glasgow, Göttingen and Berlin, receiving the degree of A.M. in 1882 and his medical degrees in 1886 from Aberdeen. Since 1889, Dr. Binnie has been engaged in practice as a surgeon in Kansas City, and has an international reputation not only among the members of his profession but among laymen as well. He is professor of surgery at the University of Kansas; fellow of the American Surgical Association; member of the Société Internationale de Chirurgie; and of the American Society of Clinical Surgery. He is the author of a Manual of Operative Surgery. Residence: 3601 Main Street. Office: Argyle Building, Kansas City, Mo.

BIOREN, John S.:

Banker; born in Philadelphia, Jan. 29, 1863; son of John and Anna J. (Maull) Bioren. He was educated in private schools and the Central High School of Philadelphia. Mr. Bioren is senior member of Bioren and Company, bankers, of Philadelphia. He is president of the Delaware Insurance Company, the Cape May (New Jersey) Illuminating Company, and the Fidelity Shareholders' Company, and is a director in the American Gas Company, The National Gas, Electric Light and Power Company, The American Railways Company, the Easton Consolidated Electric (Street railway) Company, and the Merchants' Trust Company. He served in councils of Riverton, N. J., for a period of seven years, having been elected by good majorities over opponents representing the dominant local party. His own political views are Democratic. He has been connected at various times as director, manager or governor with nearly all of the local institutions of Riverton, N. J. His favorite recreations are cricket, golf, tennis, rowing and horseback riding. He is a member of the Racquet and City Clubs of Philadelphia, and of the Delaware River, Moorestown Field and Riverton Country Clubs. Residence: Riverton, N. J. Office address: 314 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

BIRCKHEAD, Hugh:

Clergyman; born in Newport, R. I., Sept. 7, 1876; son of William H. Birckhead, M.D., and Sarah G. (King) Birckhead. He was educated in St. Paul's School at Concord, N. H., Columbia University, A.

B., 1899, Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass., B.D., 1902. He was ordered deacon in 1902, and ordained priest in 1903, and he entered upon his ministry in St. George's Parish in New York City as assistant minister, 1902-1905, becoming minister-in-charge, 1905, and rector of the same parish in 1906. Address: 209 East 16th Street, New York City.

BIRD, Abraham Calvin:

Traffic director of the Gould Railway System; born in Pittsfield, Ill., March 4, 1843. He enlisted early in the Civil War, and served throughout that conflict in the 22d Illinois Infantry and the 4th United States Cavalry. In 1865, after leaving the army, he became connected with the St. Louis, Alton & Terre Haute Railway, and by successive promotions became general traffic manager of the Wabash Railroad in 1895. In 1901 he was made 3d vice-president of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, and since March 1903 has been vice-president in charge of traffic, of the Gould Lines, comprising the Wabash, Missouri Pacific, Denver & Rio Grande, Texas and Pacific, International and Great Northern and the Wheeling and Lake Erie railroads. Residence: Evanston, Ill., Office: Western Union Building, Chicago.

BIRGE, Edward Asahel:

Zoölogist, educator; born at Troy, N. Y., Sept. 7, 1851; son of Edward White Birge and Ann (Stevens) Birge. He received his preparatory education at Troy High School and entering Williams College, was graduated in 1873 with the degree of A.B., receiving that of A.M. three years later. The honorary degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by his alma mater in 1903. He studied zoölogy at the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy, Harvard University, and received the degree of Ph.D. in 1878. The Western University of Pennsylvania conferred on him the honorary degree of Sc.D. in 1897. He spent the year 1880-1881 in study at Leipzig under Professors Gaule and Ludwig. In 1875 he became instructor of natural history at the University of Wisconsin, and in 1879 became professor and head of the department of Zoölogy in that university. Since 1891 he has been dean of the College of Letters and Science, and was acting president of the university from 1900 to 1903. Besides his connection with this institution he has been Commissioner of Fisheries of the State of Wisconsin since 1895; director of the Wisconsin Geological and Natural History Survey since 1897; Forestry Commissioner since 1905; on State Conservation Commission since 1908. He has been a director of the Madison Free Library since 1890 and president of the Board of Directors since 1893. In 1904 he was a member of the International Jury of Awards at the Louisiana Purchase Expedition. In his active life, Dr. Birge has found time to be connected with various associations, professional and other. He is fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; member of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, Arts, and Letters (president, 1890-91), of the American Microscopical Society (president 1902-1903), of the American Society of Naturalists; the American Society of Zoölogists (president, Central Branch, 1907-09), the Washington Academy of Sciences, the American Fisheries Society (president, 1906-07), and the National Geographic Society. He is also member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society and Senator, 1904-10. He is a member of the Congregational Church. Dr. Birge married at Troy, N. Y., July 15, 1880, Anna W. Grant, and they have two children: Edward G., born in 1881, and Anna G., born in 1883. Residence: 741 Langdon Street, Madison, Wis. Address: University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.

BIRKHIMER, William Edward:

Brigadier-general U. S. Army, retired; born in Somerset, Ohio, March 11, 1848; son of Nathan and Temperance (Hood) Birkhimer. He was educated in the Denmark (Iowa) Academy, and was graduated from the United States Military Academy, 1870; honor graduate from the United States Artillery School, 1872, and was graduated from the Law School of the University of Oregon, LL.B., 1888. He was commissioned second lieutenant of the Third Artillery, June, 1870, first lieutenant, 1879, and captain, 1898, colonel 28th U. S. Volunteers, 1899-1901, major and lieutenant-colonel, Artillery Corps, 1901-1905; promoted brigadier general and retired at his own request after forty years' service, Feb. 16, 1906. He was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for most distinguished gallantry at San Miguel de Mayumo, Luzon, May 13, 1899. He served as judge advocate of the Department of The Columbia, 1886-1890, and he was associate justice of the Audencia (or Supreme Court) of the Philippines at Manila in 1899. Brigadier-General Birkhimer is an authority on military law, and is author of: The Law of Appointment and Promotion in the Army of the United States, 1880; Historical Sketch of the Organization, Administration, Material and Tactics of the Artillery, United States Army, 1884; Military Government and Martial Law, 1891-1904. He married at Sacket's Harbor, N. Y., Sept. 22, 1876, Geraldine, daughter of R. V. W. Howard, U. S. A. Address: 1427 20th Street, Washington, D. C.

BIRNEY, Arthur Alexis:

Lawyer; born in Paris, France, May 28, 1852; son of William and Catherine (Hoffman) Birney. He studied law at the University of Michigan, and was graduated in 1873 with the degree of LL.B. He was admitted in 1873 to the bar of Washington, D. C., and there began to practice in partnership with his father. In 1875 he was appointed assistant United States district attorney, but resigned two years later to accept the appointment of assistant corporation counsel of the City of Washington. In 1893 he was appointed by President Cleveland United States attorney for the District of Columbia, and held that office for four years, during which time he prosecuted many notable cases. He is now in private practice at Washington, as senior member of the firm of Birney & Woodward. In 1878 he was appointed to a professorship in the Law Department of Howard University, and continues to hold that position. He is a director of the Washington Market Company, the National City Dairy Company, and the Congressional Hotel Company. He is a Trustee of the National Homeopathic Hospital Association; and past master of Pentalpha Lodge of Masons. He married, Nov. 3, 1875, Helen Conway, of Baltimore, Md. Residence: 1516 Twenty-second Street. Office: 692 Eleventh Street, Washington, D. C.

BISBEE, Horatio:

Lawyer; born at Canton, Me., May 16, 1839; son of Horatio Bisbee and Sarah (White) Bisbee. He received his education at Tufts College, where he was graduated in 1863 with the degree of A.B., the degree of A.M. being conferred upon him in 1872. He left college and enlisted in Company E of the Fifth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, April 17, 1861, for three months' service, and then joined a company of the Ninth Maine Regiment and his gallantry won him rapid promotion through the ranks of captain, lieutenant-colonel and colonel in the Ninth Maine Regiment of Volunteer Infantry, with which he was discharged in 1863. He then took up the study of law and was in 1864 admitted to the bar at Chicago, Ill., and commenced practising at Jacksonville, Fla., which he had adopted for his home in 1865. In 1869 he was appointed United States district attorney for the Northern District of Florida, and held the position for four years, declining a re-appointment; and he was attorney-general of Florida for a short time in 1872. In 1876 he was elected by the Republican party, with which he is identified, to a seat in Congress and was reelected for three successive terms, being member of the Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Congresses. He is a member of the New York Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. He married at Fernandina, Fla., April 5, 1863, Florida Plotard, and of that union has four children; and married a second time, June 11, 1891, Lottie R. Beasley, of New York City. Address: 318 West Beaver Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

BISCHOFF, Henry, Jr.:

Jurist; born in New York City, Aug. 16, 1852; son of Henry and Annie Bischoff. He was graduated from Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1871, was admitted to the bar of New York in 1873, was attorney for the collection of arrears in personal taxes for the city of New York, 1889-1890; judge of the Court of Common Pleas of New York from 1890-1895, and since then justice of the Supreme Court of New York in the First Judicial District, his present term expiring Dec. 31, 1917. Justice Bischoff is a member of the American Bar Association and the New York State Bar Association, and of the Manhattan, Lotos and National Democratic Clubs. He married first in New York City, Oct. 26, 1873, Annie Louise Moshier, who died in February, 1897; and second, in April, 1902, Elizabeth, widow of Gilman Collamore. Residence: 189 West 80th Street. Office: County Court House, New York City.

BISHOP, Emily M.:

Lecturer, dramatic reader; born in Forestville, N. Y., Nov. 3, 1858; daughter of Asa L. and Ann Elizabeth (De Witt) Mulkin. She was educated in public and high schools, followed by special studies in dramatic art, and she taught for several years in the Silver Creek (N. Y.) High School, and later studied dramatic art under Steele Mackaye's direction in New York City. She was married at Silver Creek, N. Y., Dec. 31, 1884, to Coleman E. Bishop, and moved to Rapid City, S. D., where she became superintendent of the public schools. In 1888 she first lectured at Chautauqua Institution, Chautauqua, N. Y., and in 1889 she established there the department of Health and Self-Expression, of which she has been principal ever since, having had thousands of adult students. In 1894, she organized, in connection with S. H. Clark of the University of Chicago, the Chautauqua School of Expression, of which she is still co-principal. Since beginning her platform work at Chautauqua in 1888, she has given over fifty dramatic readings and many public lectures at Chautauqua, besides reading and lecturing extensively in the United States generally, and in Canada. She has been a lecturer at Drexel Institute, Pratt Institute, and for the past seven years dramatic reader and lecturer on health at the Mechanics' Institute, Rochester, N. Y. She is author of: Health and Self-Expression; Interpretative Forms of Literature; Seventy Years Young. Address: 509 West 112th St., New York City.

BISHOP, Louis Faugères:

Physician; born in New Brunswick, N. J., March 14, 1864; son of James and Mary F. (Ellis) Bishop. He was educated in St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and was graduated from the Rutgers College as A. B. in 1885, and A.M. in 1889, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia University) in 1889. He was resident physician of St. Luke's Hospital, 1889-1892; was eight years secretary of the New York Academy of Medicine, and part of that time chairman of the section on Practice of Medicine. He is now professor of diseases of the heart and circulation, Fordham University, Medical Department; and visiting physician to the Lincoln Hospital; in 1904 he established the Laboratory of Clinical Observation, for coöperative study of disease by general practitioners; chiefly occupied in general family and consulting practice in New York City, and in summer at York Harbor, Me. He is author of: Heart Disease and Blood Pressure (E. B. Treat); also numerous papers on the circulation, diagnosis and clinical pathology. He is a specialist in disorders of the heart and circulation. He is trustee of the Good Samaritan Dispensary, and member of the American Medical Association, American Academy of Medicine, Pathological Society, Neurological Society, Society of Alumni St. Luke's and Sloan Maternity Hospitals, Delta Phi, Yew York Historical Society. He is a Mason. His favorite recreations are golf, automobiling and travel. He is a member of the Calumet, Columbia University, Chemists' Clubs, and Automobile Club of America. Dr. Bishop married in New York City, 1899, Charlotte Dater, and they have one son. Address: 54 West Fifty-fifth Street, New York City.

BISHOP, Seth Scott:

Physician and surgeon; born at Fond du Lac, Wis., Feb. 7, 1852; son of Lyman and Maria (Probart) Bishop. He attended Pooler Institute, and Beloit College, where he took a three-year course. For a time he was identified with the Fond du Lac Daily Commonwealth, but afterwards took up the study of medicine, and after completing two courses in the medical department of the University of the City of New York, and studying with Dr. S. S. Bowers, he was graduated from the medical school of Northwestern University as M.D. in 1876. Subsequently he practised in Fond du Lac; since 1879 he has resided in Chicago, where he has won for himself an extensive reputation as a specialist and has made several hundred contributions to medical science. Sixty instruments of his invention have assisted greatly in operative surgery. In 1881 he was elected to the medical staff of the South Side Free Dispensary; he was also surgeon to the Illinois Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary, the Post-Graduate and Illinois Hospitals; consulting surgeon to the Illinois Masonic Orphan's Home, the Mary Thompson Hospital, the Silver Cross Hospital, and the School for Nervous and Delicate Children, and is now a professor of diseases of the nose, throat and ear in the Illinois Medical College, and the Chicago Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital. He is author of: The Ear and Its Diseases; also Diseases of the Nose, Throat and Ear, and Their Accessory Cavities. He is editor of the Illinois Medical Bulletin; is on the editorial staff of The Laryngoscope, and is a contributor to various periodicals. Dr. Bishop is a member of the International Medical Congress, the Pan-American Medical Congress, the American Medical Association, the State Medical Societies of Wisconsin, Minnesota and Illinois, the Chicago Pathological Society, the Mississippi Valley Medical Association, and the United States Hay Fever Association.

He is a 32d-degree Mason and a Templar and a Mystic Shriner. In politics he is a Republican. He married at Chicago, Ill., March 23, 1885, Jessie Button, and they have two daughters: Jessie Elizabeth, born in 1886, and Mabel, born in 1888. Residence: 1726 Ridge Avenue, Evanston, Ill. Office address: 103 State Street, Chicago, Ill.

BISHOP, William Henry:

United States consul; born in Hartford, Conn., Jan. 7, 1847. He was educated at St. John's College at Fordham, New York, and at Yale College, of which he is A.B., 1867. After leaving college Mr. Bishop studied architecture but entered the field of journalism, becoming editor and proprietor of the Milwaukee Commercial Times. His first short story was published in 1876, and since that time he has been a prolific author of fiction both in the form of short stories and of novels as well as of historical works. In 1893 he became instructor in modern languages at Yale, but resigned in 1902 to live abroad. In the following year he was appointed United States consul at Genoa, Italy, and was subsequently transferred to Palermo, where he now holds the position of United States consul. He married in New York, July 29, 1886, Mary Dearborn Jackson. His address is American Consulate, Palermo, Italy; or New Haven, Conn.

BISPHAM, David S.:

Musician and opera singer; born in Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 5, 1857; son of William D. and Jane (Seull) Bispnam. He was educated at Haverford (Pennsylvania) College, in the class of 1876. He began his musical career as an amateur; studied for the operatic stage, and made his first appearance as a professional as the "Duc de Longueville" in The Basoché, by Messager, at the Royal English Opera in London, in November, 1891. Since then he has been singing the principal baritone roles in German, French and Italian with the Royal Opera Company, Covent Garden, London, and the Metropolitan Opera Company in

New York City. He entered into theatrical management in London, in November, 1906, producing and singing the title role in the romantic opera, "The Vicar of Wakefield," the music by Liza Lehmann. Mr. Bispnam's recitals of classical songs are famous throughout the musical world. Address: Carnegie Hall, New York City.

BISPHAM, Harrison Augustus:

Commander, U. S. Navy; born in Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 10, 1865; son of Samuel Augustus Bispnam and Cornelia (Koons) Bispnam. He was educated in the private schools of Philadelphia, of which William Fewsmith was principal, and in the United States Naval Academy, from which he was graduated in the class of 1885. He has been promoted through the intermediate grades to commander, receiving his present commission Oct. 25, 1908, and is now Inspector of the Fourth Light House District. He married, first, June 30, 1893, Barbara Carr Graff, and second, Augusta R. Woodward at Hong Kong, China, Dec. 11, 1902, and by his first marriage he has two children: Barbara Carr, born in 1894, and Edward Koons, born in 1896. Address: Philadelphia, Pa.

BISSELL, George Edwin:

Sculptor; born at New Preston, Conn., Feb. 16, 1839; son of Hiram and Isabella (Jones) Bissell. He was educated in the Northville Academy, and the famous school known as The Gunnery, at Washington, Conn., enlisted as a private in Company A in the Twenty-third Regiment of Connecticut Volunteers, was taken prisoner at Brashear City, Louisiana, paroled and on the expiration of term of service in 1863, was appointed assistant paymaster in the Navy. After the war, with his father and brother, he engaged in the monument business at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he began his career as a sculptor. In 1875 and 1876 he traveled in Europe, studying art in Florence, Rome and Paris, and had a studio in the later city for about six years at different periods between 1883 and 1896, and in Florence in 1904 and 1905, and 1908 and 1909. Among his more prominent public works are soldier's monuments and portrait statues, and exposition sculpture at the Buffalo and St. Louis Expositions; was one of the contributing sculptors to the Naval Arch in Madison Square, New York City, giving to this work the Navy Group. Of his Soldier's Monuments the one in Waterbury, Conn., is the most important. He is the sculptor of the statue of Chancellor James Kent, Congressional Library, Washington, and of President Arthur and Col. Abraham de Peyster in New York City. He is also the sculptor of the bronze relief of the parting of Burns and Highland Mary 'at Aye; and statue of Lincoln and Slave in Edinburg, Scotland. Mr. Bissell is a member of the National Arts Club, the National Sculpture and Municipal Art Societies of New York, and is actively identified with the movement for decoration of public schools, inaugurated by the latter society. He has contributed articles to magazines and press on sociological and art subjects. Mr. Bissell married, Aug. 16, 1865, Mary E. Welton, of Waterbury, Conn., and has three children living. Address: Mount Vernon, N. Y.

BISSELL, Herbert Porter:

Lawyer; born in New London, Oneida County, N. Y., Aug. 30, 1856; son of Amos Alanson and Susan Amelia (Willse) Bissell. He was educated in De Veaux College, Suspension Bridge, N. Y., the Gymnasium Catharinarium, Braunschweig, Germany, and Harvard College, whence he was graduated A.B., 1880, afterward studying law. He was admitted to the bar in 1883; was a member of the firm of Bissell, Seward, Bissell & Carey until 1896, and is now head of the firm of Bissell and Riley, corporation lawyers. He is vice-president of The Niagara Gorge Railroad Company; president of the New York Power Security Co., and interested in other companies. Mr. Bissell was the Democratic candidate for mayor of Buffalo in 1901, and is now president of the Board of Education of East Aurora, N. Y., and was formerly a trustee of De Veaux College. Mr. Bissell was major and judge advocate of the New York National Guard, on the Eighth Brigade Staff, 1885-1893. He is a member of the New York State Bar Association, Sons of the American Revolution, the Lawyers, Buffalo Saturn and Transportation Clubs of Buffalo, and the University Club of New York City. He married in 1883, Lucy Agnes Caffey, and they have three daughters. Address: 714 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

BISSELL, Hezekiah:

Chief engineer of the Boston & Maine Railroad; born in East Windsor, Conn. Mr. Bissell, who is one of the best known railway engineers in the United States, was educated at the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale, from which he graduated in 1861. He was a civil engineer on the Union Pacific Railroad during its construction and also on railroad construction in Peru, South America. Returning from the latter work he became connected with the Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati Railroad, from which road he went to the Eastern Railroad of Massachusetts, which was later amalgamated with the Boston & Maine system, of which Mr. Bissell was made chief engineer. Address: West Bedford, Mass.

BITTER, Karl Theodore Francis:

Sculptor; born in Vienna, Austria, Dec. 6, 1867. He studied art in the Academy of Fine Arts of his native city, and came to the United States in 1889 to take a position connected with architectural sculpture. Mr. Bitter has taken a prominent part in the execution of the sculptures for the chief buildings of several expositions. He was one of the prize winners in the competition for the Astor memorial gates of Trinity Church, New York, and executed important sculptures for the residences of Collis P. Huntington and Cornelius Vanderbilt. He has been an exhibitor at all of the leading world exhibitions, and was awarded the silver medal at the Paris Exposition in 1900; the gold medal at the Pan-American Exposition in 1901, Philadelphia in 1902, and St. Louis in 1904. Mr. Bitter is especially well known for his services as director of sculptor of expositions, having been director of sculptures for the Pan-American Exposition in 1901 and chief of the department of sculpture at the St. Louis Exposition in 1904, both positions having been filled with distinct credit. He is an academician of the National Academy of Design and a member of the Fine Arts Council appointed by President Roosevelt. Address: 44 West 77th St., New York City.

BITTING, William Coleman:

Clergyman; born in Hanover County, Va., Feb. 5, 1857; son of Charles Carroll and Caroline (Shadinger) Bitting. He was educated in Richmond College, Richmond, Va., being graduated as philosophy medallist and receiving the degree of M. A., in 1877; was graduated from Crozer Theological Seminary, Chester, Pa., 1880, and he has received the degree of D.D. from Howard College, Ala., and from Richmond College, Va. On leaving the seminary he supplied the Lee Street Baptist Church, Baltimore, Md., from June, 1880, to Feb. 1881, then was pastor at Luray, Front Royal and Riverton, Va., until Dec., 1883, then pastor of the Mount Morris Baptist Church, New York City, Jan. 1, 1884 to Oct. 31, 1905. He became pastor of the Second Baptist Church, St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 1, 1905. Dr. Bitting is corresponding secretary of the Northern Baptist Convention, is active on boards of managers of many organizations, educational and philanthropic, national and local, and is now a trustee of the Crozer Theological Seminary, and frequently a preacher at colleges and universities. He is author of: Earthly Blooms from Heavenly Stems; Bible Study Union Sunday School Lessons; Foundation Truths; and many magazine and religious newspaper articles. He is a Scottish Rite Mason and Knight Templar, a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, and of the Mercantile, Glen Echo, Country, Town and Gown, and Chi Alpha Clubs of St. Louis. He married in Baltimore, Md., Nov. 17, 1886, Anna Mary Biedler, and they have two sons. Residence: 5109 McPherson Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

BIXBY, Tams:

Former Indian Commissioner; born in Staunton, Va., Dec. 12, 1855. He removed with his parents to Minnesota, where he was educated in the public schools of Red Wing. On arriving at manhood he entered the newspaper business, and became editor and proprietor of the Daily Republican at Red Wing. He was active in the Republican politics of the State, and an officer in its organization for many years. In 1888 he was appointed secretary of the Railroad and Warehouse Commission of the State, and from 1889 to 1897 was private secretary to the several governors of the State in those years. In 1897 he was appointed chairman of the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, which undertook the important work of determining the rights of persons claiming enrollment on the tribal list, such enrollment entitling the successful claimants to allotment of land and share in the tribal funds. This arduous duty was performed by Mr. Bixby and his associates with marked ability and success, and upon the completion of the main part of the work in 1905 Mr. Bixby was appointed sole commissioner, serving until 1907, when he terminated his work and became connected with the Pioneer Press Company of St. Paul, of which he is general manager. He is also president of the newspaper company localized at Muskogee, Okla. Mr. Bixby has for many years been a stockholder and officer in numerous Minnesota corporations. He married April 27, 1886, Clara Mues. Address: The Pioneer Press, St. Paul, Minn.

BIXBY, William Herbert:

Colonel of the Corps of Engineers of the U. S. Army; born in Charlestown, Mass., Dec. 27, 1849; son of Clark Smith Bixby and Elizabeth (Clark) Bixby. He was educated in the Brookline and Cambridge, Mass., public schools, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1866-1867, the United States Military Academy, 1869-1873, and the French National School of Bridges and Highways at Paris, 1879-1881. He was assistant professor of military and civil engineering in the United States Military Academy, 1875-1879. lectured on Coast Defenses in the United States Naval War College in 1887, and has served all grades of the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army from second lieutenant to colonel, from 1873 to date. He was on special duty examining iron fortifications in Europe, 1881-1882, was adjutant of the Battalion of Engineers of the U. S. Army, 1882-1883; and was in charge of the United States river and harbor improvements in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, 1884-1891, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, 1891-1895, in the Ohio River, 1897 to 1901, on the Ship Channel on the Great Lakes, 1902-1904, and in Illinois and Indiana, 1905-1907; and division engineer north-western United States in 1905-1908; and of western United States since 1908, in addition to being in direct charge of the U. S. improvement of the Mississippi River from St. Louis to Cairo and being president of the Mississippi River Commission since 1908. He was a member of the Army Board on Long Span Suspension Bridges in 1894, and of the Army Board on Portland and Slag Cements in 1899, and of the Lakes to the Gulf Deep Waterway Boards of 1905 and 1907; and of many other river, harbor, bridge, and engineer special boards. He was United States Lighthouse Engineer, 1895-1901, and United States lighthouse inspector, 1898-1899, and again lighthouse engineer since 1908. He was chief engineer of the Departments of the Lakes, Dakota and Missouri, of the United States Army in 1907-1908. He is a Unitarian in religion. He has traveled in England, France, Belgium, Holland and Germany on United States Army duty; and in the same countries and Switzerland and Italy for pleasure, and was sent by the United States War Department to witness the maneuvers of the French Army in 1880, and to inspect buildings at Charleston, S. C., after the earthquake in 1887. He is a Chevalier of the Legion d'Honneur of France; member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the British Association of Civil Engineers and the French Society of Civil Engineers, the United States Naval Institute, United States Military Service Institution, National Geographic Society, Washington Academy of Sciences, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, British Association for the Advancement of Science, American Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, American Economic Association, American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the International Congress of Navigation. He is also a member of the Missouri Athletic Club and the New York University Club. He married at Washington, D. C., Dec. 27, 1893, Lidey H. Rogers. Address: 428 Customhouse, St. Louis, Mo.

BJERREGAARD, Carl Henry Andrew:

Librarian, author, lecturer; born in Fredericia, Denmark, May 24, 1845; son of Janus Bagge Friis Bjerregaard, Ph.D., etc., who was president of the Fredericia College. He was educated in Fredericia College and University of Copenhagen from which he was graduated in 1863; was volunteer scout in the Prusso-Danish War in 1863 and 1864, and graduated as officer from the Royal Military Academy, in Denmark, in 1867. He served as lieutenant in the Danish Army and was later of the Danish Legation to Russian Court. He came to America for political reasons; was teacher and lecturer from 1873 to 1879; since 1879 has been librarian at the Astor Library, now Astor Branch of the New York Public Library, Astor, Lenox and Tilden Foundations. He is an extensive writer and lecturer on Oriental subjects and mysticism, was a collaborator on the Standard Dictionary, The New International Encyclopedia, the Encyclopedia Americana, and the Jewish Encyclopedia, is a contributor to magazines, and lecturer. He has been associate editor of Mind (New York City), from Jan. 1, 1905, and is author of Mysticism and Nature Worship.

two volumes; A Sufi Interpretation of Omar Khayyam and Fitzgerald; and is now engaged on History and Doctrine of Mysticism and Occultism. Mr. Bjerregaard married, in 1868, Matilda J. Thompson. Address: Astor Library, New York City.

BLACK, Frank Swett:

Lawyer; born in Limington, Maine, March 8, 1853. He was educated at Dartmouth College, from which he was graduated in 1875 and from which he received the honorary degree of LL.D. in 1898. Mr. Black's early work was in the newspaper business at Johnstown and Troy, New York. He was for a time attached to the post-office at Troy. In 1879 he was admitted to the bar and has since been in the successful practice of law except when holding public office, having been elected to Congress in 1895, and as governor of New York in 1897. He is a prominent member of the Republican party of the State of New York, and as such a national figure in Republican politics, also enjoying marked distinction for exceptional oratorical ability. Address: Troy, N. Y.

BLACK, Hugh:

Theologian; born in Rothesay, Buteshire, Scotland, March 26, 1869. He was educated at Glasgow University and at the Free Church College of Glasgow. He was ordained in Scotland in 1891, and after a successful pastorate in Paisley, Scotland, and ten years at St. George's United Free Church in Edinburgh, he came to the United States in 1906 as professor of practical theology at the Union Theological Seminary in New York. Professor Black is the author of: Friendship; Culture and Restraint; Work; The Practice of Self-Culture; Listening to God (Edinburgh Sermons); and Christ's Service of Love; and The Gift of Influence (University Sermons). He married in Paisley, Scotland, June 28, 1898, Edith Margaret Kerr. Residence: Upper Montclair, N. J. Office: 700 Park Avenue, New York City.

BLACK, John Charles:

President of the United States Civil Service Commission; born at Lexington, Miss., Jan. 27, 1839. He removed with his mother, in boyhood, to Danville, Ill., and was educated at Wabash College, Crawfordville, Ind. He enlisted on April 14, 1861. At the expiration of his first enlistment he went to Danville, Ill., and recruited a company for the Thirty-seventh Illinois Volunteers, of which regiment he became major, and took part, with his regiment, in thirteen battles and two great sieges. He served until Aug. 15, 1865, and being brevetted brigadier-general of United States Volunteers for gallantry in action at the storming of the Blakely batteries. After the war ended he studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1867, engaging in the practice of law at Danville, Vermilion County, Ill., and at Champaign, Ill. He received several unsuccessful nominations on Democratic tickets in Illinois and was appointed by President Cleveland, March 4, 1885, to be United States Commissioner of Pensions, which office he held until the close of the administration in 1889, when he removed to Chicago. He was elected in Nov., 1892, as a Democratic candidate from Illinois at large, to the Fifty-third Congress, but resigned his seat Dec. 12, 1894, to become United States Attorney for the Northern District of Illinois, 1895-99. He was nominated for governor of Illinois by the National (Gold-Standard) Democracy, but declined the nomination; he returned to private practice, 1899 to 1903, and was appointed, Dec., 1903, United States Civil Service Commissioner, and elected president of the board, still holding that office. General Black married at Urbana, Champaign County, Ill., Sept. 28, 1867, Miss Adaline L. Griggs. He received the honorary degree of M.A. from Wabash College, and that of LL.D. from Knox College, Galesburg, Ill. He is a companion and past commander of Military Order of the Loyal Legion, Commandery of the State of Illinois; was department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic for Illinois, 1902-3, and commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic of the United States, 1903-04. Address: 1717 S Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BLACK, John Clark:

Banker, capitalist; born at Middlebury, Addison County, Vt., July 3, 1837; son of Daniel and Jean (Lawrence) Black. He received his education in the public schools of Vermont. At nineteen years of age he removed to Chicago, where he was employed as a bookkeeper and cashier for the firm of Ross and Ramber, dry goods merchants, and later with Armour & Company, with whom he remained until 1881, when he entered into business on his own account. In 1883 he was one of the organizers and incorporators of the Chicago Continental Bank, of which he has been the president for many years. He is also president and a director of the Northwestern Safe and Trust Company, a member of the Western Board of Control of the Audit Company of New York, trustee of the Prussian National Insurance Company of Stettin, Germany; trustee of the Art Institute of Chicago and of the Armour Mission. He is a member of the Chicago Board of Trade; also a member of the Chicago Union League, Bankers', Saddle and Cycle Clubs. He married in New York City, Sept. 25, 1875, Elenor Clarke. Residence: 9 Walton Place. Office 218 La Salle Street, Chicago.

BLACK, William Harman:

Lawyer; born in Forsyth, Ga., June 10, 1868; son of Eugene Pinekard and Zae (Harman) Black. He was educated in the public and high schools of Atlanta, Ga., until 1884, afterward studied law and engaged in practice, first in Georgia and later in New York City, where he is president of and counsel for the Corporations Organization of New York and the Accounting Company of New York. While residing in Georgia he was special master for the U. S. District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, and was also president of the Young Men's Democratic League of Fulton County, Ga., and secretary of the Georgia Cleveland Club. Since removing to New York City he has given special attention to the law of corporations and he is author of: Black on New York and New Jersey Corporations, and of The Real Wall Street. Mr. Black was commissioner of accounts of the City of New York, 1904-1905, and he organized in 1903 and has since been vice-president of the Citizen's Independent Democracy of New York City. In 1909 he organized The Association for New York, which has for its object the advertising of the advantages of New York, and the challenge of indiscriminate abuse of the city. He is a member of the Southern Society of New York, the Metropolitan, Lawyers, and National Democratic Clubs, and the Kane Lodge of Masons. Residence: 18 E. 32d Street. Office: 111 Broadway, New York City.

BLACK, William J.:

Passenger traffic manager of the Santa Fé Railroad; born in St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3, 1864. He entered the railway service in 1879 as office boy, and since 1887 has occupied responsible positions in the traffic passenger department of the Santa Fé system, having been appointed general passenger agent in 1897 and on Oct. 10, 1905, passenger traffic manager of the entire system. Address: Railway Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

BLACKBURN, Edmond Spencer:

Lawyer; born in Watauga County, N. C., Sept. 22, 1868. He received an academic education, and after studying law was admitted to the bar in 1890, since which time he has practised his profession at Wilkesboro, N. C. He is a Republican in politics, and has been for fifteen years prominent in the councils of his party in North Carolina. He was a member of the Legislature in 1896-1897, being speaker pro tem., and assistant United States attorney of North Carolina in 1900-1901. In the latter year he was elected to Congress, and again elected in 1905. Mr. Blackburn is a trustee of the University of North Carolina. He married, Dec. 18, 1902. Louise Le Vaun.

Address: Wilkesboro, N. C.

BLACKBURN, Joseph Clay Styles:

Lawyer and ex-United States Senator; born in Woodford County, Ky., Oct. 1, 1838. He was graduated in 1857, from Centre College, Danville, Ky., from which he afterward received the degree of LL.D. He was admitted to the bar in 1859 and went to Chicago, where he practised law until the Civil War broke out, when he returned to the South, and served through the war in the Confederate Army. After the war he embarked in the practice of law in Kentucky. He has long been active in politics as a Democrat, and was a member of the House of Representatives of the Kentucky Legislature from 1871 to 1875. He was elected a member of the Forty-fourth Congress in 1874, and was biennially elected, serving until 1885, when he was elected United States Senator. He was re-elected in 1891, serving until 1897, and in 1901 was again elected United States Senator for the term which expired in March, 1907. At the conclusion of his service he was appointed to the Panama Canal Commission and assigned to the governorship of the Canal Zone. Address: Ancon, Canal Zone, Panama.

BLACKLOCK, Henry:

Clergyman; born in England; son of George and Ellen (Sawyer) Blacklock. He is a lineal descendant of Sir Thomas Gresham (1519-1579), the founder of the Royal Exchange, London; and on his paternal grandmother's side, he is a cousin of the Duke of Buccleuch and, through his mother, a cousin of Viscount Milner, of African fame. He was educated in Saint Paul's College, Burgh, College of Saint Augustine, Canterbury, and at Oxford University, where he won a mathematical scholarship in 1886, a Greek scholarship in 1889, and was Hebrew prizeman for the year 1891. He was rector of Saint Andrew's Episcopal Church, Wellington, Ont., in 1891; was curate of Saint Thomas' Church, Belleville, Ont., 1894-1905, and of St. Luke's, Kingston, Ont., in 1896, and was at Oxford University in 1897 and 1898. He was curate of St. Johns, Youkers, in 1898, but in September was called to be rector of St. Mary's Church, Charleroi, Pa., which he accepted and where he did a great work of thoroughly organizing and building up this new and important field. In Sept., 1900, he became rector of Grace Church, Mohawk, and while recuperating from the strain of overwork in Charleroi, built up the parish from thirty-three families to eighty-four and also built the most beautiful rectory, purchased a house for Parish Hall, and made other important improvements. With the return of health he accepted, in May, 1905, the curacy of St. Peter's Church, Brooklyn, N. Y. He is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, Mohawk Valley Lodge of Masons, and Mohawk Chapter Order of the Eastern Star, and the Herkimer County Historical and other societies. His recreations are mountain climbing, walking tours and art works and books. Residence: 405 Pacific Street. Office address: 347 State Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BLACKMAR, Abel Edward:

Jurist; born in Newark, N. J., Aug. 21, 1852. He was graduated from Hamilton College, A.B., 1874, and from Columbia College Law School, LL.B., 1878. He was admitted to the bar in 1878 and practised in New York City and Brooklyn, was counsel for the New York Produce Exchange and a member of the law firm of Baldwin & Blackmar until nominated by the Republican party and elected in 1908, a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the Second District for the fourteen-year term expiring Dec. 31, 1922. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and of the Union Club of Brooklyn. Residence: 1072 Bergen Street, Brooklyn. Office: Supreme Court, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BLACKMER, Henry M.:

Lawyer; born in Worcester, Mass., July 25, 1869; son of Francis T. and Abbie E.

Blackmer. He was educated in the Worcester (Mass.) High School, studied law and was admitted to the bar of Colorado, and practised in Colorado Springs in that State until 1902, when he removed to New York City. He was district attorney of El Paso County, Colo., 1894-1897. He is president of the Cripple Creek Central Railway Company; and vice-president of the United States Reduction and Refining Company. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the Revolution, the Union League, City Lunch and Whist Clubs of New York, Denver Club of Denver and the El Paso Club of Colorado Springs, Colo. Mr. Blackmer is married and has two children, a son and a daughter. Residence: New Rochelle, N. Y. Office: 49 Exchange Place, New York City.

BLACKMORE, Henry Spencer:

Industrial chemist and chemical engineer; born in Yonkers, N. Y., March 10, 1868; son of Isaac and Hannah M. (Dean) Blackmore. He was educated in the schools of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and in the New York College of Pharmacy (Columbia University), being graduated Ph.G., 1888. He makes practical chemical and metallurgical investigations, demonstrations, tests analysis and synthesis; is an expert in patents relating to chemistry, metallurgy, electro-chemistry and electro-metallurgy, and is a registered attorney of the U. S. Patent Office. Mr. Blackmore is a member of the International Congress of applied chemistry, and the International Electrical Congress. He is the inventor of processes for reducing aluminium and other metals, electric smelting, making alkali from feldspar, making caustic soda from common salt, sulphuric acid, etc., has taken out over one hundred and fifty patents. He is the discoverer, inventor and patentee of a process for making substances which are unstable at elevated temperatures but which evolve heat on their formation; and this process has economized and revolutionized the manufacture of these products, one of which is sulphuric acid. He has also discovered what is believed to be two new chemical elements of non-metallic nature, found associated or combined with sulphur, for which the names "Azurcon" and "Vernon" have been suggested. He is consulting chemist of the Consolidated Aluminum and Reduction Company, the General Industrial Alcohol Company, Phoenix Electrolytic Alkali Company, American Automatic Disinfectant Company, Chemical Engineering and Construction Company and Mexican National Leather Company; and he is vice-president of the Black-Ford Utility Oil Company. He is a fellow of the Chemical Society of Great Britain; member of the American Geographical Society, National Geographic Society, American Chemical Society, Society of Chemical Industry of Great Britain, American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Pharmaceutical Association, New York State Pharmaceutical Association, Scientific Congress, Franklin Institute (Philadelphia), Alumni Association of the College of Pharmacy of Columbia University, Chemists Club, U. S. Navy League, Veteran Association of the 71st Regiment, National Guard of New York, and he is a 32d-degree Mason, Knight Templar and Shriner. Mr. Blackmore married in New York City, June 2, 1904, Isabelle Rostosky. Residence: Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Offices: 612 F Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., and 60 Wall Street, New York City.

BLACKWELL, Alice Stone:

Editor of the Woman's Journal; born in Orange, N. J., Sept. 14, 1857; daughter of Henry B. Blackwell and Lucy Stone. She was educated in Boston University, being class president of the Class of 1881, and was chosen one of the commencement speakers by the faculty. Since graduation she has been editorially connected with the Woman's Journal, first in association with her parents and since her mother's death in 1893, as co-editor with her father, also a director of the proprietary corporation of that journal. Miss Blackwell follows in the footsteps of her parents, who were both prominent in the movement for the enfranchisement of women, and is recording secretary of the National American Woman Suffrage Association; chairman of the Executive Committee of the New England Woman Suffrage Association and of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association, and is a director of the corporation of the latter association; also a director of the Susan B. Anthony Memorial Fund (incorporated), vice-president of the College Equal Suffrage League of Massachusetts, and a member of the Board of Trustees of Boston University. She has taken a great interest in the cause of the Armenians, and received the Order of Melusina from Prince Guy de Lusignan. She is author of three books of translations: Armenian Poems; Songs of Russia; and Songs of Grief and Gladness, from the Hebrew and Yiddish; also joint compiler with Rev. Anna H. Shaw and Miss Lucy E. Anthony, of the Yellow Ribbon Speaker. Miss Blackwell is a member of the Pentagon and Epsilon college societies and of Phi Bet Kappa, and an honorary member of the New England Women's Club. Residence: 45 Boutwell Avenue, Dorchester, Mass. Office: 6 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass., Room 1018.

BLACKWELL, Antoinette Louisa Brown:

Minister, lecturer; born at Henrietta, N. Y., May 20, 1825; daughter of Joseph and Abby (Morse) Brown. She was educated in Monroe Academy until 1844, then went to Oberlin, where she took a somewhat unusual course of study, was entitled to the literary degree in 1847, but did not take it, but afterward received the A.M. degree. She took the full three years' course in theology to 1850; and at the 75th Anniversary of Oberlin College, the degree of D.D. was conferred upon her. In Jan., 1856, she married, at Henrietta, N. Y., Samuel Charles Blackwell, and she has four living daughters, three married. She was ordained in 1853 (ten years in advance of any other well-known woman), as pastor of the (orthodox) Congregational Church of South Butler, N. Y., and in the same year was the first woman to perform the marriage ceremony. Mrs. Blackwell afterward became a Unitarian, and is now pastor emeritus of All Souls Church, Elizabeth, N. J., preaching monthly, and still frequently speaking elsewhere. Her first public address in a church was at Rochester, Mich., where she was teaching during a long vacation before her first graduation in 1847. She was one of the earliest advocates of the equal rights of women, and she is also the last survivor among the speakers at the first National Woman's Rights Convention, held in Worcester, Mass., in 1850. She has, in her busy public career, been active in the American Purity Alliance and other progressive movements, as suffrage and temperance and peace societies, and the Association for the Advancement of Women, of which Mrs. Julia Ward Howe was president, and is a member and honorary member of numerous societies and clubs. Has been a member of the Association for the Advancement of Science. She is author of: Shadows of Our Social System, 1855; Studies in General Science, 1869; The Market Woman, 1871; The Island Neighbors, 1871; The Sexes Throughout Nature, 1875; The Physical Basis of Immortality, 1876; The Philosophy of Individuality, or the One and the Many, 1883; Sea Drift, a Parable in Verse, 1903. Her summer home is at Chilmark, Mass. Address: 348 Bay Way, Elizabeth, N. J.

BLACKWELL, Francis Ogden:

Consulting engineer; born in New York City, June 23, 1867; son of James and Augusta (Mills) Blackwell. He was graduated from Princeton University with the degree of C.E. in 1887, and immediately thereafter began practice as an engineer, and he is now a member of the firm of Viele, Blackwell & Buck, consulting engineers. He has been identified as electric and hydraulic engineer in the construction and equipment of many large power plants. Mr. Blackwell is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, British Institution of Civil Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Institute of Mining Engineers, and the University, Princeton and Engineers Clubs. He married Anita Searles of New York City. Residence: Englewood, N. J. Office: 49 Wall Street, New York City.

BLAIR, Charles H.:

Lawyer; born in Zanesville, Ohio, July 5, 1851; son of John A. Blair, a Virginian by birth and a distinguished lawyer of Ohio, and of Theresa (Van Voorhees) Blair. He was educated in the public schools of Zanesville, at Kenyon College, and Cornell University, from which he graduated with honor (commencement oration), as A.B. in 1872, and A.M. in 1876. He was admitted to the Ohio bar in 1873. He was in the railroad business at Ithaca from 1873 to 1875 as director, secretary and assistant to president of the Geneva and Ithaca and Ithaca and Athens Railroads, now the Lehigh Valley. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1876, and practised at Ithaca until 1882; since 1882 in New York City. He has been president of the Hanover Land and Dock Company since 1905. He was captain in the New York National Guard in 1875 and 1876, assistant adjutant general of the Twenty-eighth Brigade in 1877; colonel and engineer of the Seventh Division of the New York National Guard from 1878 to 1885. He was the Republican candidate for Congress from the Twelfth District of New York in 1890. Colonel Blair is a member of the Masonic fraternity of high rank; the Psi Upsilon fraternity; the Metropolitan Museum of Art; and Municipal Art Society, and one of the founders of the Ohio Society of New York. He is vice-president of the Staten Island Chamber of Commerce, and chairman of the Park Committee. He is the author of the "National Railway Act," a proposed amendment of the Interstate Commerce Law, N. Y., 1888, and of a "Report on the Proposed Park System for the Borough of Richmond," New York City, 1902. He has been attorney and counsel in a number of noted cases; in the case of Drawbaugh against Bell, which involved the telephone patents; counsel for Brown, Howard & Company, builders of the New York Aqueduct; the Cornell accounting case, and others of great importance; and is trustee for several large estates. He is an ardent Republican and has taken an active part in Union League Club affairs, serving on several committees, and in 1906 as chairman of the Committee on Admissions. He is a member of the Union League, Republican and Cornell University Clubs. He married at Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 11, 1873, Emma P. Cornell, and they have three children: Ezra C. Blair, Charles H. Blair, Jr., and John Hamilton Blair. Residences: Serpentine Road, Grymes Hill, S. I., N. Y., and Llenroe, Ithaca, N. Y. Address: Mills Building, 15 Broad Street, New York City.

BLAIR, Clinton Ledyard:

Banker; born in Belvidere, N. J., July 16, 1867; son of DeWitt Clinton and Mary Anna (Kimball) Blair. He was graduated from Princeton University with the degree of A.B. in 1890; and after leaving college became one of the organizers of the house of Blair & Company, bankers, of New York City. He is a director of various large corporations, including the Belvidere National Bank, the Green Bay and Western Railroad; Kewaunee, Green Bay and Western Railroad; Lackawanna Steel Company; National Bank of Commerce; St. Louis and Hannibal Railway; Securities Company; Sussex Railroad; is president of the Sussex Realty Company. He is a member of the Board of Managers of the Post-Graduate Hospital, one of the managers of the New York Zoölogical Society and the Cooper Union Museum; is a member of the American Geographical Society; the Sons of the Revolution. Mr. Blair has membership in several of the most important clubs, including the Metropolitan, Union and University Clubs, the New York Yacht Club, (of which he is vice-commander), City Midway Club, Riding Club, Jekyll Island Club, Morris County Golf Club, Racquet and Tennis Club, Princeton Club, Somerset Hills Country Club, The Pilgrims Club, Coaching Club of New York, the New York Farmers' and the Whippany River Club. Mr. Blair married, Oct. 1, 1891, Florence Osborn Jennings, and by that union there are four daughters: Marjory Bruce, Florence Ledyard, Edith Dodd and Marie Louise. Residence: Peapack, Somerset County, N. J. Address: 24 Broad Street, New York City.

BLAIR, Frank Preston:

Lawyer; born in St. Louis, Mo., in 1856; son of Major General Frank Preston Blair, a distinguished officer of the U. S. Army (United States Senator from Missouri, and Democratic nominee for the Vice-Presidency with Seymour) and Apolline (Alexander) Blair. He entered the Military Academy at West Point and was graduated from that institution in 1877. He served in the army at various posts for several years, graduating in law from Columbia Law School while stationed at Fort Hamilton and in medicine at the University of Missouri, while stationed at Columbia, Mo. In 1881 he resigned from the army and was admitted to the St. Louis bar, but shortly afterward, in 1891, removed to Chicago, Ill., where he has been engaged in active practice to the present time. He has been a lecturer on medical jurisprudence in Rush Medical College for some time. He is a member of the American Bar Association, the Selden Society of England, and of the University Club. He married in Columbia, Mo., in 1882, Florence Price and has one daughter. Address: 36 Cedar Street, Chicago.

BLAIR, Henry Augustus:

Banker, financier; born in Michigan City, Ind., July 1852; son of Chauncey Buckley and Caroline O. (De Graff) Blair; he received his education at Williston Seminary, East Hampton, Mass. He left school in 1871 and entered the Merchants' National Bank of Chicago, of which his father was founder and president, eventually becoming vice-president. He retired from the bank upon its consolidation with the Corn Exchange National Bank in 1903. He subsequently became a director and receiver of the North Chicago Street Railway Company; he is also in the directorates of the Calumet and Chicago Canal and Dock Company, the Elgin National Watch Company, the West Division Railway Company, and the Chicago Edison Company. He is a member of the Chicago Union League (director), Washington Park, Chicago Athletic, Midlothian, Chicago Golf, Caxton, Saddle and Cycle, and the Onwentsia Clubs. He married in Chicago, Feb. 19, 1878, Grace E. Pearce, and has two daughters. He has a summer residence at Jefferson, N. H. Address: 2735 Prairie Avenue, Chicago.

BLAIR, Henry William:

Former United States Senator; born in Campton, N. H., Dec. 6, 1834. He received an academic education and the degree of A.M. from Dartmouth College. He was admitted to the New Hampshire bar in 1859 and on the breaking out of the Civil War went to the front with the 15th New Hampshire Volunteers, being promoted from captain to lieutenant-colonel. Immediately after the war he was a member of the New Hampshire legislature for three years, and in 1875 was elected to Congress, serving with but two years interim, as representative and senator until 1895. He was author of the bill to extend Federal aid to education in the States, which, however, passed the Senate but failed in the House, and the bill establishing a United States Labor Department. He was also active in the formulation of bills under which pensions are now paid to soldiers of the Civil War. Ex-Senator Blair is a prominent temperance advocate, and a leader in economic defense. Since leaving Congress he has practised law, chiefly in Washington, D. C. He is the author of several works on the temperance question and a frequent contributor to the press. He married, Dec. 20, 1859, Eliza Nelson. Residence: Manchester, N. H. Office: Colorado Building, Washington, D. C.

BLAKE, Francis:

Inventor of the Blake Transmitter; born at Needham, Mass., Dec. 25, 1850; son of Francis and Caroline (Trumbull) Blake. He was educated in public schools and the Brookline, Mass., high school, and received the honorary degree of A.M. from Harvard in 1902. He served on the United States Coast Survey for thirteen years, having been engaged in the work of determining the differences in longitude between the observatories at Greenwich, Paris, Cambridge and Washington. He devoted his leisure to experimental physics, and in 1878 invented the Blake Telephone Transmitter. He has since patented many other electrical devices. He is a director of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company; a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the American Academy of Arts and Sciences; a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, Archeological Institute of America, American Folk-lore Society, American Forestry Association; National Geographic Society, and a member of the corporation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is a member of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers, and the American Antiquarian Society, and a trustee of the Massachusetts General Hospital, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, etc. He married, June 24, 1873, Elizabeth L., daughter of Charles T. Hubbard, of Weston. Address: Keewaydin, Weston (Auburndale P. O.), Mass.

BLAKE, James Henry:

Lecturer, zoölogical artist; born in Boston, Mass., July 8, 1845; son of James Henry and Louisa Maria (Russell) Blake. He was educated in the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University. He entered business in early life with his stepfather, the Hon. N. E. Atwood, and continued till 1869 when he studied for four years in the Scientific school of Harvard University, after which he became assistant to Professor Louis Agassiz and curator in the department of conchology, at the Museum of Comparative Zoology at Cambridge. Mr. Blake was with Professor Louis Agassiz on his last expedition in the steamer Hassler; later he became connected with the United States Fish commission, the United States Geological Survey and Geological Survey of the State of Mississippi. He has lectured in various cities and towns in the United States and illustrated many books on natural history. He is a member of the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati. His work has taken Mr. Blake to many parts of the world on collecting trips, and on dredging expeditions in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. He married at Provincetown, Mass., July 20, 1871, Lucinda Smith Critchett, and has two sons: Allen Hanson Blake, M.D. and Mr. Ralph Julian Blake, merchant. Address: 18 Prentiss St., Cambridge, Mass.

BLAKE, Joseph Augustus:

Physician; born in San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 31, 1864; son of William P. and Charlotte (Hayes) Blake. He was graduated from Yale as B.A. in 1885, and Ph.B. in 1886, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University as M.D. in 1889. He was formerly attending surgeon to St. Luke's and Harlem Hospitals, now of the Roosevelt Hospital. He was assistant demonstrator of anatomy, 1891-1900, instructor in surgery, 1900-1903 and since 1903 professor of surgery in the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. He is a member of the American Medical Association, Association of American Anatomists, American Surgical Association, American Society of Clinical Surgery, New York Academy of Medicine; fellow of the New York Academy of Sciences; member of the New York County and State Medical Societies, and the New York Surgical Society, and of the Yale, Metropolitan, University and Riding Clubs of New York City. He married in 1890, Catherine Ketchum, and they have two sons: Joseph A., Jr., and Francis H., 2d. Address: 601 Madison Avenue, New York City.

BLAKE, Katherine D. Umsted:

Educator, writer; born in New York City, July 10, 1858; daughter of Frank Geoffrey Quay Umsted and his wife, Lillie Devereux (afterwards Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake). She was educated in Miss Walker's School, and St. Mary's School, and graduated from the Normal College, 1876, and studied at the School of Pedagogy, New York University, 1887-1888. Miss Blake became principal of Public School No. 6, in 1894, and organized the First Evening High School, for Women in New York City, 1897. She was chairman of the Committee of Teachers and Principals that framed and presented to Mayor Grace the monster petition asking for the appointment of women on the Board of Education, which resulted in the appointment of Miss Dodge and Mrs. Agnew as Commissioners of Education; called together the committee of women teachers and principals who made the first effort to secure adequate salaries for city teachers; spoke in reply to President Roosevelt when he addressed the National Educational Association; compiled the first statistics showing the number of dark and badly lighted rooms in public schools, and called the attention of superintendents and the Board of Education to them. Miss Blake is a contributor to periodicals in verse and prose. She is vice-president of the Association of Women Principals of New York City; member of the Special New York City Committee of the National Educational Association; charter member of the Society for Political Study and member of the Executive Committee of the Normal College Alumnae. Address: The Roslyn, 104 West 84th Street, New York City.

BLAKE, Lillie Devereux:

Author; born in Raleigh, N. C., Aug. 12, 1833; daughter of George Pollock and Sarah Elizabeth (Johnson) Devereux. Her father died when she was three years old, and after that her home was in New Haven, Conn., where she was educated at Miss Apthorp's School and later took a course of study under tutors of Yale College. She married first, at New Haven, Conn., 1855, Frank G. Q. Umstead, a lawyer of Philadelphia, who died in 1859, and has two daughters by that marriage; and in 1866 she married at Stratford, Conn., Grenfill Blake, who died in 1896. Since her marriage to Mr. Blake, she has been a resident of New York City. She became deeply interested in the movement for the enfranchisement of women in 1869, and has ever since been a leader in that movement. Mrs.

Blake was the founder in 1886 and has ever since been president of the New York Legislative League, she is honorary president of the New York City Mothers' Club, and honorary president of the Society for Political Study. She has conducted many legislative campaigns and secured the enactment of many statutes of benefit to her sex, was influential in the passage of the school suffrage act, the police nation act, the act giving seats to saleswomen and other laws for the benefit of women. She has addressed the Legislatures of New York, Connecticut and North Carolina, and is a lecturer of power and distinction, and is author of: Sonhwoald, 1859; Rockford, 1863; Fettered for Life, 1874; Woman's Place To-day, 1883; A Daring Experiment, 1894, and numerous stories and articles. Address: The Roslyn, 104 West 84th Street, New York City.

BLAKE, William Phipps:

Geologist, mineralogist; born in New York City, June 1, 1826; son of Elihu and Adeline N. (Mix) Blake. He was educated in the schools in New York and at Yale (Sheffield Scientific School) graduating as Ph.B. in 1852. He has received the honorary degrees of M.A. from Dartmouth and Sc.D. from the University of Pennsylvania, and LL.D. from the University of Arizona. He was geologist and mineralogist for the United States Pacific Railway exploration and surveys, 1853; editor of the Mining Magazine and Journal of Geology, 1856-1860; was engaged in the exploration of the Comstock Lodge of Nevada in 1860; was mining engineer to the Japanese Government in 1862; made explorations in China and Alaska in 1863, and was professor of geology and mining at the College of California in 1864. He organized the School of Agriculture and the College of Mechanic Arts for the College of California and was professor of geology and mining, 1895-1904, and since 1905 has been professor of geology emeritus of the University of Arizona. He has been connected officially with the great international exhibitions from 1853-1904. Received the decoration of chevalier of the Legion of Honor in 1878. He is author of numerous papers and articles on scientific and professional topics. Mr. Blake is a member of the American Philosophical Society; Territorial Geologist Arizona; fellow of the Geological Society of London, and of America; a corresponding member of the Geological Society of Edinburgh; fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. He married at South Berwick, Me., Dec. 25, 1855, Charlotte Haven Lord Hayes, and they have three sons living: Francis H., Joseph A., and Theodore Whitney. Address: Mill Rock, New Haven, Conn., and (winter) Tucson, Ariz.

BLANCHARD, Amy Ella:

Author; born in Baltimore, Md., June 28, 1856; daughter of Daniel Harris and Sarah L. (Reynolds) Blanchard. On her father's side she is of old Huguenot stock, represented in this country since 1839, and her maternal descent is from one of the early settlers of Lord Baltimore's colony. She was educated in Baltimore, principally at home, but also at private schools, and a year in high school. She studied also in Art schools in New York and Philadelphia, and took the first prize in the life class of the Metropolitan Museum Art School in 1885. She taught drawing and painting at a seminary at Plainfield, N. J., for two years, and afterward moved to Philadelphia, where she engaged in literary work. She has for years been ranked with the most popular writers of books for girls of which she has written a large number, including: A Journey of Joy; The Four Corners; The Four Corners in California; Four Corners at School; Janet's College Career; Two Maryland Girls; Thy Friend Dorothy; Taking a Stand; Little Grandmother Jo; Little Sister Anne; A Little Tomboy; Little Miss Oddity; A Dear Little Girl; A Sweet Little Maid; Dimple Dallas; Mistress May; Mabel's Mishap; Kittyboy's Christmas; and Worth His While (all George W. Jacobs & Co., Philadelphia); also A Girl of '76;

A Revolutionary Maid; A Daughter of Freedom; A Heroine of 1812; A Loyal Lass; A Gentle Pioneer; Bonny Lesley of the Border, and A Frontier Knight (all published by W. A. Wilde Company, Boston); and Two Girls; Girls Together; Betty of Wye; Three Pretty Maids; An Independent Daughter; Miss Vanity; Because of Conscience; Her Very Best (all published by J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia). Miss Blanchard's summer residence is on Bailey's Island, Me. Address: 4102 Pine St., Philadelphia.

BLANCHARD, Charles A.:

President of Wheaton College; born in Galesburg, Ill., Nov. 8, 1848; son of Jonathan Blanchard, Jr., and Mary Avery (Bent) Blanchard. He was educated at Wheaton College, from which he was graduated and received the degree of A.B. and A.M. He was a student of Chicago Theological Seminary, but did not graduate; he has received the degree of D.D. from Monmouth College, Ill. Dr. Blanchard has been a teacher since he was fifteen years of age. In the fall of 1872 he went to Wheaton Academy as principal; taught two years in the Academy as principal and eight years in the College and was in 1882 elected president of Wheaton College, which office he has filled ever since. He is an ordained minister of the Congregational Church. President Blanchard is also president of the National Christian Association, was president for twenty years of the Sabbath Association of Illinois, is president of the College Section of the Illinois State Teachers' Association, is a member of the National Geographical Society; of the American Peace Society and of the National Educational Association. Dr. Blanchard has done considerable work in the lecture field, having addressed many audiences on the subjects of Secret Societies, Intemperance, Sabbath Observance, The Bible, the Word of God, Arctic Explorations, etc. He married in 1873, Ella Milligan, who died in 1884; in 1886, he married Jeannie Carothers, who died in February, 1894; and he again married at St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 19, 1896, Dr. Frances C. Carothers; and he has seven children. Address: Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill.

BLANCHARD, James Armstrong:

Jurist; born at Henderson, Jefferson County, N. Y., Aug. 16, 1845; son of Philip and Catharine (Drummond) Blanchard. He was graduated from Ripon College, at Ripon, Wis., A.B., 1871, and from the Law School of Columbia University, LL.B., 1873; and he received the LL.D. degree in 1902, from Ripon College. He engaged in the practice of law in New York City until appointed by Governor Roosevelt as judge of General Sessions, serving one year. In September, 1900, he was appointed a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, by Governor Roosevelt, and elected, November, 1901, to the same office for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1915. Justice Blanchard is a veteran of the Civil War, having enlisted in 1864, and served one year in Company I, of the Second Wisconsin Cavalry. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, Lafayette Post, Grand Army of the Republic, the Union League Club and Republican Club of New York City, and a trustee of St. John's Guild. Justice Blanchard married in 1881, Sallie Medbery, and they have one son. Residence: 11 East 92d Street. Address: County Court House, New York City.

BLANCHARD, Newton Crain:

Ex-Governor of Louisiana, 1904-1908 born in Rapides Parish, La., Jan. 29, 1849; son of Carey H. and Frances Amelia (Crain) Blanchard. He was educated in Louisiana State University and in the Tulane University of Louisiana, Law Department, from which he was graduated in LL.B. in 1870. After graduation he practised law at Shreveport, La. Governor Blanchard was a member of the Louisiana State Constitutional Convention of 1879; was a representative in Congress from the Fourth District of Louisiana for seven consecutive terms from 1880-1893; was United States Senator from Louisiana from 1893-1897; and a justice of the Supreme Court of Louisiana from 1897-1904, resigning from the bench when elected Governor of Louisiana in 1904, serving until 1908. He is a Democrat in politics and an Episcopalian in religion. Governor Blanchard married at Shreveport, La., Dec. 16, 1873, Mary Emily Barret; and they have two children. Address: Shreveport, La.

BLASHFIELD, Edwin Howland:

Decorative artist; born in New York, Dec. 15, 1848. He studied in Paris under Léon Bonnat, and had the benefit of the advice of Gérôme and Chapu. He was an exhibitor at the Paris Salon for nearly ten consecutive seasons and for several years at the Royal Academy in London. His work since returning to America in 1881 has been frequently exhibited and widely recognized and has achieved marked publicity. Among his paintings are: Christmas Bells and The Angel with the Flaming Sword. Mr. Blashfield's highest distinction has been obtained in the field of decorative art. He decorated one of the domes of the Manufacturers Building, World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago; central dome of the Congressional Library, Washington; Bank of Pittsburgh, Pittsburgh; Senate Chamber, State Capitol of Minnesota (St. Paul); Iowa State Capitol, Des Moines; ceiling of great ball room in Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, and Gothic supper room, house of W. K. Vanderbilt, New York City; library, house of W. C. Drexel, Philadelphia; drawing room, in house of C. P. Huntington, and house of Adolph Lewisohn, New York City; courthouse of City of Baltimore; Appellate Court New York City; ceiling and three lunettes in the Board Room of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, Newark, N. J.; court room in the Court House at Baltimore, Md., chancel of Church of the Saviour, Philadelphia, and many others. He collaborated with Mrs. Blashfield and A. A. Hopkins on Vasare's Lives of the Painters, and is co-author with his wife of the book on Italian Cities. Since 1888 he has been an academicien of the National Academy of Design; and he is an honorary member of the American Institute of Architects, and a member of the Society of American Artists, the Architectural League, Society of Mural Painters and Society of Painters in Water Colors. He has lectured on art at the leading institutions of the United States. Mr. Blasfield married in Paris, France, in 1881, Evangeline Wilbour of Rhode Island. Residence: 49 West 59th Street. Studio: Carnegie Building, New York City.

BLATCH, Harriot Stanton:

Writer and lecturer; born at Seneca Falls, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1856; daughter of Henry Brewster and Elizabeth (Cady) Stanton. She was educated at Vassar College, from which she received the degree of B.A. in 1878 (with honors in mathematics), and elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and received the degree of M.A. (on thesis) in 1893; and she also pursued graduate studies in Boston in 1879, in Berlin in 1880, and the University of Paris in 1882. She was married in 1882, in London, England, to William Henry Blatch, and she has a daughter, Nora Stanton Blatch, who was born in 1883, was graduated from Cornell as Civil Engineer in 1905, and is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers. After her marriage, Mrs. Blatch lived for twenty years in England, where she was active in the Women's Industrial Union, the suffrage organizations, the Liberal Association, and on the executive of the Fabian Society. She was a trustee of evening schools, and was associated with Charles Booth, the statistician in collecting facts on village life which formed the basis for her thesis for the degree of M.A. Mrs. Blatch is president of the League of Self-Supporting Women, founded in 1907; member of the executive board of the Women's Trade Union League; and she is a member of the Society for Ethical Culture. She is a member of the Pioneer Club of London, and of the Women's University Club of New York. She has written extensively in magazines on economic and educational questions. Address: 103 East 19th Street, New York City.

BLENK, Hubert:

Catholic archbishop of New Orleans; born in Neustadt, Bavaria, Aug. 6, 1856; son of James and Catherine (Wiedemann) Blenk. He was educated in St. James College, Baltimore at Jefferson College, Convent, La.; entered the Society of Mary in 1874, and took the theological course at the Marist Houses of Studies in France and Ireland, and a course at the Catholic University, Dublin, Ireland. He was ordained priest in 1885, and became the same year a professor in Jefferson College, Convent, La., serving in that capacity until 1890, and after that for six years president of the college. He was rector of the Church of the Holy Name of Mary, at Algiers, La., in 1897-1898; auditor of the Apostolic Delegation to Cuba and Porto Rico, 1898, and was consecrated bishop of Porto Rico, July 2, 1899 and became archbishop of New Orleans July 2, 1906. Address: 1205 Esplanade Avenue, New Orleans, La.

BLETHEN, Alden J.:

Editor; born at Knox, Waldo County, Me., Dec. 7, 1846; son of Alden and Abbie L. Blethen, of an old American family whose first New England ancestor settled at Ipswich, Mass., in 1680. He was graduated from Wesleyan Seminary and College, 1868, and from Bowdoin College, M.A., 1872, and was lessee and principal of the Abbott Family School at Farmington, Me., 1869-1873, during which period he also finished the study of law began in 1868, being admitted to the Maine bar in 1873. He practised law at Portland, Me. until 1880, when, on account of ill-health he removed to Kansas City, Mo., where he entered journalism and for four years was manager of the Kansas City Times. From there he removed to Minneapolis, where he purchased an interest in two papers, The Tribune and The Journal, serving as editor and manager of The Tribune and manager of The Journal until 1888, when he sold his interest in both for two hundred and fifty thousand dollars cash. The following year he repurchased the Minneapolis Tribune, but fire destroyed the building and contents in November, 1889, and he thus suffered a loss of one hundred thousand dollars. He set to work to rebuild in 1890, and erected the New Tribune Building in Minneapolis at a cost of $100,000 but the panic of 1893 followed so closely after his large losses and expenses, that he lost all he had saved. While in Minnesota he served as colonel on the staffs of Governor Nelson and Clough. In 1896, desiring to begin again in the newspaper field he went to Seattle, where he purchased the plant of a bankrupt newspaper, with a circulation of thirty-five hundred. He increased this 56 per cent in the first year, and it has since constantly grown until The Times now has a circulation of 69,000 each evening and 81,000 Sunday morning, occupies its own building and has the largest plant in the Northwest. Colonel Blethen is editor-in-chief of The Times, and president of the Times Printing Company. His oldest son, Joseph, is business manager and his youngest son, C. B., managing editor. He married at Farmington, Me., March 2, 1869, Rose, daughter of Captain David F. Hunter, and they have two sons and two daughters. Address: Seattle, Wash.

BLISS, Cornelius Newton:

Dry goods commission merchant; born at Fall River, Mass., Jan. 26, 1833; son of Asabel Newton and Irene Borden (Luther) Bliss. He was educated at the Academy of Fall River, Mass., and the high school of New Orleans, La. He commenced business life in New Orleans; later removed to Boston, and thence to New York in 1866. He is a member of the firm of Bliss, Fabyan & Company, dry goods commission merchants of Boston, New York City and Chicago; is a director of the Fourth National Bank of New York, the Home Insurance Company; a trustee of the Central Trust Company; also a director in various manufacturing companies in Massachusetts. He was secretary of the Interior in President McKinley's first administration, from March 4, 1897 to Feb. 20, 1899, and was treasurer of the Republican National Committee in 1892, 1900 and 1904. He is a Congregationalist, and president of the trustees of Broadway Tabernacle, New York City; and is governor of the Society of New York Hospital. Mr. Bliss is president of the Union League Club of New York City, and a member of the Metropolitan, Century and Republican Clubs of Washington, and the Jekyl Island Club of Georgia. He married in Boston, Mass., March 30, 1859, Elizabeth Mary Plummer; and they have two children. Residence: 198 Madison Avenue. Address: 117 Duane Street, New York City.

BLISS, Walter Phelps:

Capitalist; born in New York City, March 10, 1870; son of George Bliss and Augusta H. (Smith) Bliss. He was graduated from Yale as A.B. in 1892, and afterward attended the New York Law School. He is a director of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Co., Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway Co., Manhattan Trust Co., Continental Insurance Co., Quiney Mining Co. (vice-president), Gauley Mountain Coal Co., Loup Creek Colliery Co., Candelaria Mining Co., Corralitos Co., Herzog Telephone Systems Co., and Commercial Union Assurance Co., Limited, of London. He is a trustee of the Union Trust Co., Consolidated Gas Co., and Caledonian Insurance Co. of Scotland. Mr. Bliss is a member of the Union, Riding and Racquet and Tennis Clubs, New York City. He married in Detroit, Mich., April 29, 1897, Katharine Baldwin. Address: No. 71 Broadway, New York City.

BLISS, William Henry:

Lawyer; born at Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, Oct. 27, 1844; son of Philemon Bliss and Martha W. Bliss. He was educated in the public schools. He was admitted to the bar in 1871, assistant United States attorney, 1872-1876, and United States attorney, 1876-1887, at St. Louis, Mo. He was afterward vice-president and general solicitor of the St. Paul and Duluth Railroad Company, and associate counsel of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, at St. Paul, Minn., and has been practising at New York City from 1893. He is a member of the Association Bar of the City of New York; the Metropolitan Museum of Art; the Municipal Art Society; the American Geographical Society; Society of Bibliophiles; the Ohio Society, and the Union League, Metropolitan, Grolier, Players', Down Town, of New York City; the Metropolitan and Chevy-Chase Clubs of Washington; the St. Botolph Club of Boston. Mr. Bliss married first at St. Louis, April 6, 1874, Annie Louise Woods, and second at New York City, April 14, 1894, Mrs. Anna Blaksley Barnes, secretary of the American Legation at Brussels; and has a son and a daughter. Address: 6 East 65th Street, New York City.

BLOSSOM, Henry:

Author and playwright; born in St. Louis, Mo., May 10, 1866; son of Henry Martyn and Susan (Brigham) Blossom. He was educated in Washington University, St. Louis. Mr. Blossom is author of the Books: The Documents in Evidence; and Checkers, a Hard-Luck Story. He has been especially successful as a dramatic author, his list of plays including: Checkers (dramatized by him from his book of the same title); The Yankee Consul; My Modiste; The Red Mill; The Prima Donna; Miss Philura. Mr. Blossom is a member of The Lambs, The Players and the Larchmont Yacht Club of New York City, and the St. Louis Club of St. Louis. Address: The Lambs, 128 W. 44th Street, New York City.

BLUE, Victor:

Commander, U. S. Navy; born in Richmond County, N. C., Dec. 6, 1865; son of John G. and Annie M. (Evans) Blue. He was appointed from South Carolina, Naval Cadet, May 17, 1883; commissioned assistant engineer, July 1, 1889; ensign, Dec. 12, 1892; lieutenant (junior grade), Dec. 5, 1897; lieutenant, March 3, 1899; Pensacola, 1889; Navy Yard, Norfolk, 1892; Bennington, 1893; Naval Academy, 1896; Kentucky, 1898; inspection duty, Bureau of Equipment, 1901 to 1903; inspection duty, Bureau of Ordnance, since 1905. During the war with Spain he performed distinguished service in connection with the intelligence work of the Navy, his service including difficult and dangerous missions in the collection of information on Spanish soil. He was promoted and advanced in his grade for distinguished gallantry in this war. Address: Care Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

BLUNT, Stanhope English:

Colonel, U. S. A.; born in Boston, Mass., Sept. 29, 1850; son of Charles E. and Penelope B. (English) Blunt. He was graduated from the high school at Oswego, N. Y., in 1868, and from the United States Military Academy, in 1872. After graduation he served as second and first lieutenant in the Thirteenth Infantry, and on explorations and surveys west of the One Hundredth meridian in Utah, Wyoming, Colorado, and New Mexico. He was transferred to the Ordnance Department, Nov. 1, 1874, and promoted through various grades to colonel in the Ordnance Department, June 25, 1906. He served at Frankford Arsenal, Springfield Armory, Watervliet Arsenal; from March, 1897, to Aug., 1907, was in command of the Rock Island Arsenal at Rock Island, Ill., and since Aug., 1907, has been in command of the Springfield Armory, Springfield, Mass. He was at the Military Academy from 1876 to 1880 as instructor in mathematics and also ordnance and the science of gunnery. He was chief ordnance officer of the Department of Dakota, 1880-1884, and at the headquarters of the Army, Washington, D. C., 1884-1889, as inspector of small arms practice and as colonel and aide-de-camp on the staff of General P. H. Sheridan. He is author of: Rifle and Carbine Firing, adopted 1885, for the use of the Army and National Guard, and of Small Arms Firing Regulations, 1889; and is also author of various articles in encyclopedias, and other papers upon small arms and their use. Colonel Blunt is a member of the University Club of New York City, the Metropolitan, and Army and Navy Clubs of Washington, D. C.; the Troy Club of Troy, N. Y., and the Nayasset and Winthrop Clubs of Springfield, Mass. He married at Clinton, N. Y., Nov. 18, 1873, Fanny Smyth, and they have three daughters: Katharine, Evelyn Bethune (who married Arthur D. Ficke, of Davenport, Iowa), and Frances Smyth Blunt. Address: Springfield Armory, Springfield, Mass.

BLYTHER, Samuel George:

Newspaper man; born in Geneseo, N. Y., May 19, 1868, and educated at the Geneseo State Normal School. He has had a brilliant career in the newspaper business, among his many positions being those of managing editor of the Buffalo Express, editor-in-chief of the Buffalo Courier and Enquirer, and Washington correspondent of the New York World. He was also managing editor of the Cosmopolitan in 1899 and was in charge of the literary bureau of the Republican State Committee of New York in 1898. Since 1907 Mr. Blythe has been engaged in general literary work, and has written numerous sketches of foreign travel; and he conducts the weekly department of "Who's Who and Why" of the Saturday Evening Post, Philadelphia, besides furnishing matter on other topics. During his service as a Washington newspaper correspondent he was chairman of the standing committee of correspondents in Washington, and president of the Gridiron Club. He married at Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1888, Carolyn Hamilton Oak. Address: 1509 Thirteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BOARDMAN, Albert B.:

Lawyer; born in New York, Feb. 6, 1853. He was educated at Yale, A.B. 1873, and at Columbia College Law School, LL.B. 1875. He was admitted to the bar in the last named year, and has had an exceptionally successful practice. Among his many important connections are those of solicitor for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company; counsel for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company, the Rapid Transit Commission, the Trust Company of America, the United States Express Company, the Fidelity & Deposit Company of Maryland, the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railroad Company, and the Rapid Transit Ferry Company; vice-president and counsel of the Thompson-Starrett Company and the Central Hudson Steamboat Company; and director of the Standard Cordage Company. He is a member of the firm of O'Brien, Boardman, Platt & Littleton. He married in New York City, Gertrude Bomer, and has one son. Residence: 40 W. 53d Street. Office: 35 Wall Street, New York City.

BOARDMAN, Alec:

United States judge; born in Yazoo City, Miss., Dec. 10, 1839. He was educated at Kentucky Military College, and served in the Confederate Army, through the Civil War. In 1872 he was elected to the National House of Representatives and for four years he was a State judge in Louisiana. In 1881 he was appointed United States judge for the Western District of Louisiana, a position he now holds. He married in St. Louis, Mo., Frances I. Capen. Address: Shreveport, La.

BOAS, Emil Leopold:

Resident director and general manager of the Hamburg-American Line; born in Goerlitz, Germany, Nov. 15, 1854; son of Louis and Minna Boas. He was educated in the Royal Frederick William Gymnasium at Breslau, and the Sophia Gymnasium at Berlin, whence he was graduated in 1872. Becoming connected with the Hamburg-American Line in 1873, he came to the United States in the same year. He has been general manager of the Hamburg-American Line since 1892, and since 1906 also resident director. He has been very prominent and active in all efforts to improve the water-transportation facilities of New York, was on the Committee for the Extension of the Pier-head Line; on the committee before Congress to secure an appropriation for the new channel to the sea (Ambrose Channel); is treasurer and chairman of the Finance Committee of the Greater New York Canal Association, which was active in obtaining the improvement of the Erie Canal. Mr. Boas has received from the Emperor of Germany the decoration of the Order of the Royal Prussian Crown of the 3rd class and also the Order of the Red Eagle of the 3rd class; was decorated by the Emperor of Austria, having been made an officer of the Order of Francis Joseph; by the King of Italy, Chevalier of the Order of S.S. Mauritius and Lazarus; by the King of Sweden and Norway, Knight (first class) of the Order of St. Olaf; by the Sultan of Turkey, commander of the Order of Osmanieh, and commander of the Order of Medjidie; by the King of Greece, officer of the Order of the Redeemer; by the President of Venezuela, commander of the Order of Bolivar. He is treasurer of the Germanistic Society of of America; member of the Board of New York Civic Federation; member of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, the Board of Trade and Transportation (one of managing directors), the New York Produce Exchange, Maritime Association, German Society and various charitable societies. Mr. Boas is a member of various technical and scientific societies, including the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers; the National Geographic Society; the New York Academy of Political Science; American Ethnological Society; American Academy of Political and Social Science; American Association for the Advancement of Science; New York Academy of Science; the New York Zoölogical Society; the Metropolitan Museum of Art; American Museum of Natural History; Japan Society; the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, etc. Clubs: New York Yacht, Imperial Yacht Club, Kiel; Lotos, Fairfield County, Lawyers, Railroad; Deutscher Verein, Unitarian, Liederkrantz, S. S. Maurice Fish and Game. Mr. Boas married in New York, March 20, 1888, Harriet B. Sternfeld, and they have one son. Residences: (city) 128 West 74th Street, New York City; (country house) Bonnierest, Greenwich, Conn. Office: 45 Broadway, New York City.

BOAS, Franz:

Anthropologist; born in Minden, Westphalia, July 9, 1858. He was educated at the universities of Heidelberg, Bonn and Kiel. He became well known internationally by his explorations in Baffin Land in 1883 and 1884. He subsequently undertook anthropological investigations in British Columbia for the British Association for the Advancement of Science, and later for the American Museum of Natural History. He also directed explorations in the United States for the Smithsonian Institution, and directed the operations and publications of the Jesup North Pacific expedition. He has been at different times instructor in anthropology at leading universities and was chief assistant of the department of anthropology at the World's Columbian Exposition. In 1895 he was made lecturer and in 1898 professor of anthropology at Columbia University, and was curator of the department of anthropology of the American Museum of Natural History, 1895-1905. He is honorary philologist of the Bureau of American Ethnology; member of the National Academy of Sciences and the American Philosophical Society; fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the New York Academy of Sciences, and the American Anthropological societies of Berlin, Moscow, Paris, Rome, Stockholm, Vienna and Washington, and of the Anthropological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland, and of the American Antiquarian and Numismatic Society. Editor of the Journal of American Folk-Lore, and of the publications of the American Ethnological Society; author of: Baffin Land; The Central Eskimo; The Eskimos of Baffin Land and Hudson Bay; Chinook Texts; Kathlamet Texts; Indianische Sagen von der Nord-westküste Amerikas (Berlin); Social Organization and Secret Societies of the Kwakiutl Indians; Kwakiutl Texts; Ethnology of the Kwakiutl Indians; Tsimshian Texts; Mythology of the Bella Coola Indians; The Growth of Children; and Handbook of American Languages. Residence: Grantwood, Bergen County, N. J.

Address: Columbia University, New York City.

BOCKMAN, Marcus Olaus:

Theologian; born in Langesund, Norway, Jan. 9, 1849. He was educated at Christiana University, Norway, and has received the honorary degree of D.D. from Muhlenberg College in Pennsylvania. He was ordained to the ministry in Christiana in 1875, and shortly after came to the United States, where he occupied pastorates of the Lutheran church until 1886. He was subsequently professor of theology at various Lutheran seminaries until 1893, when he was appointed president and professor of theology of the Seminary of the United Norwegian Lutheran Church. He married, first in 1875, Leonharda Holby, and second in 1896, Inga Holby. Address: St. Anthony Park, Minn.

BOGART, John:

Consulting engineer; born at Albany, N. Y., Feb. 8, 1837; son of John Henry and Eliza (Hermans) Bogart. Mr. Bogart was graduated from Albany Academy and from Rutgers College, receiving the degree of M.A. in 1853. He was engaged as engineer with the New York Central Railroad; also on construction of Central Park, at New York City; and from Dec., 1861, to July, 1866, was in the engineer service with the United States Army, stationed at Fort Monroe, and in charge of construction of the fort at the Rip Raps, Va., also in the service at other points. He was engineer-in-charge of construction, in 1886, and became chief engineer of the Park Commission of Brooklyn, in 1870; and was chief engineer, Department of Public Parks, New York City, from 1872-1877. He was treasurer, secretary and editor of publications, American Society of Civil Engineers, 1876-1890. He designed the parks of Albany, N. Y., the public State Grounds at Nashville, the west side parks of Chicago, the park system of Essex County, N. J. constructing engineer of the Washington Bridge, New York City; consulting engineer of the Niagara Falls Power Company, the St. Lawrence Power Company, the Cascade (British Columbia) Power Company, the Atlanta Electric and Water Power Company, the Chattanooga and Tennessee River Power Company, Knoxville Power Company, the Verde (Arizona) Power and Irrigation, the Susquehanna Power Company, the Southern Virginia Development Company, the Western Maryland Power Company, Harbor Works in Venezuela, State Board of Health, the Rapid Transit Commission, for many railway constructions, and in various cases before the courts. He was deputy State engineer, 1886-1888, and State engineer of the State of New York, 1888-1892; Delegate U. S. Government and member Permanent Board International Navigation Congresses. He is lieutenant-colonel and chief engineer of the National Guard of New York. Mr. Bogart is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and the Institution of Civil Engineers of London. He married at West Chester, Pa., Nov. 2, 1870, Emma Cherington Jefferis. Residence: 30 Central Park South. Office: 141 Broadway, New York City.

BOGERT, Marston Taylor:

Chemist and educator; born in Flushing, N. Y., April 18, 1868; son of Henry A. and Mary Bowne Lawrence. He was graduated from Columbia University in 1890, and took the Columbia University School of Mines course of chemistry from 1890-1894. He has since been continuously on the teaching staff of Columbia University, was adjunct professor of organic chemistry at Columbia University from 1901-1904, and has been professor of same since 1904; and became a member of the University Council (Columbia) in 1908. He is a member of the American Chemical Society, having been president of the same from 1907-1909; a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; the Chemical Society of London; vice-president of the Society of Chemical Industry, of England, from 1902-1904; one of the founders, secretary from 1898-

1902, and president, 1908, of the Chemists' Club of New York, and a member of the Deutsche Chemische Gesellschaft, the Société Chimique de Paris; the Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa honor societies, and Delta Phi fraternity. Professor Bogart is also a member of the board of supervisors of Rutgers Theological Seminary. He was, by invitation of President Roosevelt, a member of the Conference on the Conservation of the Natural Resources, held at the White House, May 13-15, 1908; and was a member of the American Advisory Committee of Honor for the Seventh International Congress of Applied Chemistry, held in London, under the patronage of King Edward, May 27 to June 2, 1909. He married at Flushing, N. Y., Sept. 13, 1893, Charlotte E. Hoogland. Address: 422 W. 154th Street, New York City.

BOGGS, Carroll Curtis:

Judge of the Supreme Court of Illinois: born in Fairfield, Ill., Oct. 19, 1843; son of Richard L. and Sarah A. (Wright) Boggs. He was educated in the University of Michigan, and has since devoted his life to the law. He has held the offices of State's attorney, and county judge of Wayne County, Ill.; was circuit judge, 1885-1897, and by assignment served six years on the appellate bench for the Third Appellate District. He was elected from the First Supreme Court District, judge of the Supreme Court in 1897, and presided as chief justice for the term beginning June, 1900. In the contest for United States Senator from Illinois in 1907, Judge Boggs was the nominee of the Democratic party and received the votes of all the Democratic senators and representatives in the Legislature of Illinois. Address: Fairfield, Ill.

BOK, Edward William:

Editor of The Ladies' Home Journal; born in Helder, Holland, Oct. 9, 1863. He came to the United States at the age of six, became self-supporting during his boyhood, was a stenographer with the Western Union Telegraph Company, and while yet a lad organized a literary syndicate, which, among other notable undertakings, handled the sermons of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. In 1884 he became connected with the publishing house of Henry Holt & Company, was subsequently with Scribner's, and in 1888 was selected to be editor of The Ladies' Home Journal. Prior to his connection with the latter publication he was nationally known for his newspaper contributions on writers and their works. He is author of: The Young Man in Business; Successward; and also of a large number of incidental articles and contributions. He received in 1907, from Villa Nova College, the honorary degree of LL.D. He married Oct. 22, 1896, Mary Louise Curtis. Residence: Swastika, Merion, Pa. Address: The Ladies' Home Journal, Philadelphia, Pa.

BOLDT, George C.:

Hotel proprietor and capitalist. He is president and director of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Company, the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Company, and the Waldorf Importation Company; vice-president and director of the Apollinaris Agency Company, and trustee of Cornell University. He is president of the Bellevue-Stratford hotels, Philadelphia; director of the Commonwealth Trust Company of New York, and Lincoln Trust Company, and the New York Board of Trade and Transportation. He is a member of the American Fine Arts Society, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and of the Suburban Riding and Driving Club of New York City. Address: 6 W. 34th Street, New York City.

BOLDT, Hermann J.:

Physician, gynecologist; born near Berlin, Germany, June 24, 1856; son of Hermann (prominent agriculturist) and Amalie Boldt. He came with his parents to the United States in childhood; was educated by private tutors and in public grammar and high schools; studied and practised pharmacy until he saved means for medical education, and was graduated from the Medical School, University of New York,

M. D., 1879. He served as assistant to Professor Pallen, of the University of New York, 1879; engaged in practice, 1879; and since 1891 has been exclusively in gynecological practice. Dr. Boldt is the inventor of numerous gynecological instruments, and an operating table for abdominal surgery, for which he received a medal at the Paris Exposition, 1900. He is a contributor to the medical press, and author of various professional monographs, is professor of gynecology in the New York Post-Graduate School and Hospital; gynecologist of the German Poliklinik and St. Mark's Hospital; consulting gynecologist to Beth-Israel Hospital and St. Vincent's Hospital. Dr. Boldt is ex-president of the New York Obstetrical Society; ex-president of the German Medical Society; member of the American Gynecological Society, International Gynecological Society, British Gynecological Society, Southern Surgical and Gynecological Society, New York Pathological Society, and New York Academy of Medicine (ex-president Gynecological Section). He married in 1891, Hedwig Kruger, daughter of a publisher of Berlin. Address: 39 E. Sixty-first Street, New York City.

BOLLER, Alfred Pancoast:

Civil engineer; born in Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 23, 1840. He was educated at the University of Pennsylvania and at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. After receiving his degree of C.E. from the latter institution in 1861 he became connected with railroad corporations, and since 1885 has been contractor for bridge construction, now being of the firm of Boller & Hodge, consulting engineers. He was the engineer of the double-track bridge over the Hudson at Albany, N. Y., and the Central bridge and viaduct over the Harlem River, New York, besides a considerable number of other important works. He has been consulting engineer on important municipal works in New York and on the extension of the Wabash lines into Pittsburg. He is the author of a Treatise on the Construction of Iron Highway Bridges, and other engineering publications. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers and of the Institution of Civil Engineers of London, England, and the Century Association of New York. He married in Philadelphia, in 1864, Katherine Newbold, and they have five children. Residence: 35 Prospect Street, East Orange, N. J. Office: Singer Building, Broadway, New York City.

BOLTON, Charles Knowles:

Librarian of the Boston Athenaeum; born in Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 14, 1867; son of Charles Edward Bolton, A.M., lecturer, and at one time Mayor of East Cleveland, and Sarah Knowles Bolton, the author. He was graduated as A.B. from Harvard College in 1890. He was librarian of the Brookline, Mass., Public Library from 1894-'897, and since 1898 has been librarian of the Boston Athenaeum. Mr. Bolton is chairman of the School Committee and a Trustee of the Public Library in Shirley; an honorary member of the Harvard Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa; chairman of the Visiting Committee to the Library of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston; a member of the Bunker Hill Monument Association, the Massachusetts Historical Society, and the Colonial Society of Massachusetts. He is author of: The Private Soldier under Washington, and several other historical books and papers, and editor of the Letters of Hugh, Earl Percy 1774-1776, etc. Mr. Bolton married in Boston, June 23, 1897, Ethel Stanwood, daughter of Edward Stanwood, editor of the Youth's Companion, and they have two sons. Residence: Pound Hill Place, Shirley, Mass. Office: 10½ Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

BOLTON, Frederick Elmer:

University professor; born at Tomah, Wis., May 9, 1866; son of Edwin Latham and Rosaline (Cady) Bolton. He was graduated from the Wisconsin State Normal School at Milwaukee, 1890, from the University of Wisconsin, B.S., 1893, M.S., 1896, Honorary fellow, Clark University, 1897-1898, Ph.D., 1898. Professor Bolton was a teacher in the district schools of Wisconsin, 1885-1887; principal of the Tunnel City (Wis.) School, 1887-1888, of the high school at Fairchild, Wis., 1890-1891; principal of schools at Kaukauna, Wis., 1893-1895; professor of psychology and education in the Wisconsin State Normal School at Milwaukee, 1898-1900, and was lecturer in the Summer Session of the University of Wisconsin, 1899. Since 1900 he has been in the State University of Iowa, where he was assistant professor for one year, and since 1901 has been professor and head of the Department of Education in the University, and director of the Summer Sessions. He is author of: The Secondary School System of Germany, 1900. He was chairman of the Executive Committee of the Iowa State Teachers' Association, 1908; secretary of the National Society of College Teachers of Education; president of the Iowa Child Study Society; member of the National Educational Association, the National Society for the Scientific Study of Education, was treasurer of the Iowa Anthropological Society and is a member of the Western Philosophical Society. Professor Bolton married at Fairchild, Wis., Aug. 23, 1893, Olive A. Foster. Address: Iowa City, Iowa.

BOLTON, Herbert Eugene:

Teacher and writer of history; born near Tomah, Wis., July 20, 1870; son of Edwin Latham and Rosaline (Cady) Bolton. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin, B.L., 1895, University of Pennsylvania, Ph.D. 1899, and was Harrison fellow in history in that University, 1897-1899. He was professor of history and economics in the Wisconsin State Normal School at Milwaukee, 1899-1901, and was consecutively instructor, 1901-1905, adjunct professor, 1905-1908, and associate professor, 1908-1909, in the University of Texas, becoming in 1909, professor of American history in the Leland Stanford University. Professor Bolton is the leading authority on the historical archives of Mexico, a specialist in the Southwestern history, particularly for the Spanish period, and author of numerous papers on this subject in the American Historical Review and other journals. He was investigator in Mexican archives in the summers from 1902-1906; spent fifteen months in these archives, 1907-1908, preparing a "Guide" to them in the interest of the Carnegie Institution of Washington; has been since 1907 special investigator in history of the native tribes and missions of Texas for the Bureau of American Ethnology, and contributed Texas articles to that Bureau's Handbook of the Indians; associate editor, of the "Quarterly" of the Texas State Historical Association; and editor (with E. C. Barker) of With the Makers of Texas, 1904 (American Book Co.). He is a fellow of the Texas Historical Association, and a member of American Historical Association, Archaeological Institute of America, and Theta Delta Chi (Wisconsin), Phi Beta Kappa (honorary). Address: Stanford University, Calif.

BOLTON, Sarah Knowles:

Author; born in Farmington, Conn., Sept. 15, 1841; daughter of John Segar and Elizabeth Mary (Miller) Knowles. Her father descended from Henry Knowles, one of the founders of Warwick, R. I., who came from England, 1635; her paternal grandmother, Mary Carpenter, from Elizabeth Jencks, sister of Joseph Jencks, governor of Rhode Island; and her mother descended from Thomas Stanley (from England 1634), one of the earliest and most prominent settlers of Hartford, Conn., and from Col. William Pynchon, one of the 26 incorporators of Massachusetts Bay Colony, founder of Roxbury, 1630, and Springfield, Mass., 1636, also from Thomas Miller who came from England to Rowley, Mass., and helped to found Middletown, Conn. in 1650. Her education was received in the Hartford (Conn.) Seminary, established by Catherine Beecher, sister of Henry Ward Beecher. Oct. 16, 1866, she married Charles E. Bolton, who had been graduated from Amherst the previous year, and they removed to Cleveland, where her husband pursued a successful career in business, philanthropy, lecturing and authorship until his death Oct. 23, 1901. From the age of 15, when her first poem was published in the Waverly Magazine to the present time. Mrs. Bolton has been occupied with literature, taking a place among the nation's foremost woman writers, and being particularly well known as a biographer and a writer upon humanitarian themes, her list of books including about twenty-five titles, of which some of the more recent are: Girls Who Became Famous; European Artists; Emerson; Raphael; Famous American Authors; Social Studies in England; Famous Givers and their Gifts; Our Devoted Friend, the Dog; and a memorial sketch of her husband, Charles Edward Bolton. Of her works many are biographical volumes about famous people in this country and abroad two are of short stories and two contain her poetical works, five poems from which have been set to music. She was the first secretary of the Cleveland Woman's Christian Association, and has been active in Christian and temperance work, assistant corresponding secretary of the Women's National Christian Temperance Union, a vice-president of the American Humane Education Society, and life member of various homes for dumb animals; and she was for three years one of the editors of the Boston Congregationalists. She spent two years abroad, chiefly studying what employers are doing for their employees, to elevate them mentally and morally, and read a paper on this subject before the American Social Science Association at Saratoga, 1883. Mrs. Bolton's only child is Charles Knowles Bolton, librarian of the Boston Athenaeum and author of several books. Address: Cleveland, Ohio.

BONACUM, Thomas:

Roman Catholic Bishop of Lincoln; born in County Tipperary, Ireland, Jan. 29, 1847. He came to the United States in his infancy. He was educated at the College at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and also studied at the University of Würzburg, Bavaria. He was ordained as priest in 1870, and served as a missionary. In 1881 he was appointed pastor of the Church of the Holy Name in St. Louis, and in 1887 was consecrated the first bishop of Lincoln, Neb. Bishop Bonacum was theologian of the Third Plenary Council of the United States at Baltimore in 1884. Address: Lincoln, Neb.

BONAPARTE, Charles Joseph:

Former attorney-general of the United States; born at Baltimore, Md., June 9, 1851; descendant of the most historically interesting of our international marriages, that of Jerome Bonaparte, brother of the first Napoleon, to Miss Patterson, of Baltimore, and possessed in considerable degree the physical characteristics and temperament appropriate to that line of ancestry, his career has yet been one that, in the third generation, has revealed a devotion to the best ideals of American citizenship and a sterling quality of American statesmanship. Graduating from Harvard in the class of 1871, and from Harvard Law School in 1874, he engaged in the practice of law in Baltimore, and built up for himself a high standing in the legal profession of Baltimore and the country at large, as the result of a close study of legal and forensic principles and a thoroughly judicial and analytical mind. He became the legal representative and in many cases the trustee of large property interests in Maryland, and counsel for important organizations and enterprises. While, in National affairs, the political affiliations of Mr. Bonaparte have always been with the Republican party, his political endeavors have been chiefly along lines removed from narrow partisanship. He early became a strong believer in and advocate of civil service reform in Nation, State and municipality. In his native state and city, Mr. Bonaparte was the recognized leader of the forces of reform in administration, and in the Civil Service Reform movement he exerted a National influence which was recognized by his election as chairman of the Council of the National Civil Service Reform League, which office he held until he entered the President's Cabinet in 1905. He was one of the organizers and is now president of the National Municipal League, and is a member of the Executive Committee of the National Civic Federation. In 1904 he was elected a presidential elector from Maryland on the Republican ticket, the Democrats electing the other seven electors to which the State of Maryland was entitled. In 1902 he was appointed by President Roosevelt a member of the Board of Indian Commissioners and made a close study of the relations of the Government with the Indians; and at the close of his service in 1904, made a valuable and exhaustive inquiry into the details of registration for the purpose of protecting the Indians in the proprietorship of the lands allotted to them severally. He was one of the disinterested persons to whom were referred the conflicting charges and statements in reference to the administration of certain details in the Post Office Department in 1904, and as the result of his investigation and report, the salutary steps taken toward the purification of the postal service were inaugurated and successfully carried out. At the earnest solicitation of President Roosevelt, Mr. Bonaparte entered the Cabinet, July 1, 1905, as Secretary of the Navy, filling its duties with marked ability and public approbation, and in the reorganization of the Cabinet in the beginning of 1907, became Attorney-General of the United States, serving until March 4, 1909. Mr. Bonaparte was an overseer of Harvard from 1891-1903. He is one of the foremost Catholic laymen of the country; is a trustee of the Catholic University of America, and connected with the management of other Catholic institutions. In 1903 he was awarded the Latere Medal of the University of Notre Dame, one of which is annually awarded to the most useful Catholic layman. Mr. Bonaparte married, Sept. 1, 1875, Ellen Channing Day, of Newport, R. I., and besides his residence in Baltimore has a country home at Bella Vista, Md. Address: Baltimore, Md.

BOND, Stephen Norman:

Banker and agriculturalist; born in Plymouth, N. H., April 9, 1861. He was educated in the schools of Melrose and Boston, and by private tutors. He is senior partner of the firm of Bond and Goodwin, bankers, of Boston and New York, and is also largely interested in agriculture and stock-raising. He is president of the Hereford Railway Company, a part of the Maine Central Railroad System, and vice-president of the Colonial Securities Company of Boston, and the Rockingham Power Company of North Carolina. He has been prominent in the National Guard of the State of Massachusetts, in which he has been inspector of small arms practice and adjutant of the 8th Massachusetts Infantry. He served in the Spanish-American War, holding commission as an officer of the 8th Massachusetts Infantry, United States Volunteers. He is a fellow of the American Geographical Society and the Massachusetts Military Historical Society, and is also a comrade of the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War, and various Social Clubs. Residence: Brimmer Chambers, Brimmer Street, Boston, Mass. Office: 111 Broadway, New York City.

BONE, Scott Cardelle:

Journalist; born in Shelby County, Ind., Feb. 15, 1860. On leaving school he entered the newspaper business, being connected for seven years with Indianapolis papers, subsequently removing to Washington, where he was for seventeen years managing editor of the Washington Post. On change of ownership in that paper he founded and is now principal owner of the Washington Daily and Sunday Herald. Mr. Bone is a prominent figure in the affairs of the National Capital, and one of the best known of American Journalists. Residence: 1537 P Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BONSAL, Stephen:

Journalist; born in Baltimore, Md., March 29, 1865. He was educated in Heidelberg, Bonn and Vienna. On the breaking out of the Bulgarian-Servian War in 1885 he was appointed special correspondent of the New York Herald, and has since seen service in the Macedonian uprising, the Chino-Japanese war, the Cuban insurrection of 1897, the Spanish-American War, and the China relief expedition. He also saw service in connection with the operations of the Philippine Islands, and was in Venezuela during the revolution and blockade of 1903. Mr. Bonsal served as charge d'affaires at Peking, Madrid, Tokio and in Korea from 1891-1906. He is the author of: Morocco as It Is; The Real Situation of Cuba; The Fight for Santiago; and The Golden Horse Shoe. He married in March, 1900, Henrietta Fairfax Morris. Residence: Whitefields, Bedford, Westchester County, New York. Office: 7 W. 43d St., New York City.

BONTECOU, Reed Brinsmade:

Physician; born in Washington, D. C., Dec. 1, 1864; son of Reed Brockway and Susan (Northrup) Bontecou. He was educated in Williams College and Harvard University and at the College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia University), whence he was graduated M.D., 1889. Dr. Bontecou was pension examiner for ten years; physician and operating surgeon to the Marshall Sanatorium, Troy, N. Y., for ten years; deputy health officer of Troy, 1893-1894; attending surgeon to the Watervliet Arsenal, three years, and attending physician to the Episcopal Church Home for eighteen years. He was for five years a member of the National Guard of New York, serving during the strikes at Buffalo and Albany. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the Medical Society of the State of New York, the Rensselaer County Medical Society, and the Lauretta Boat and Island Golf Clubs of Troy. He married at Greenport, L. I., in 1890, Lula May Vail, and they have four daughters and one son. Address: 82 Fourth Street, Troy, N. Y.

BONYNGE, Robert W.:

Lawyer and congressman; born in New York City, Sept. 8, 1863; son of Robert Bonyng and Susan Bonyng. He was graduated as A.B. from the College of the City of New York in 1882, and later received A.M. degree from that college, and he was graduated as LL.B. from Columbia College Law School in 1885. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1885; he removed to Denver, in 1888, and has been engaged in the practice of law in Denver, Colo., ever since. He is a member of the firm of Bonyng & Warner. He is a Republican in politics; was a member of the Colorado State Legislature in 1893-1894; was elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress from the First District of Colorado in 1902, and was elected in 1904-1906 to the Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth Congresses, in which latter he is now serving. He is a member of the National Monetary Commission. He is a Mason, Knight Templar and member of Royal El Jebel Shrine, an Elk, and a member of the Woodmen of the World. He married in New York City, Jan. 20, 1886, Mary Abida Riblet. Residence: Hotel Metropole. Office: Equitable Building, Denver, Colo.

BOOK, George Milton:

Rear-Admiral U. S. Navy, retired; born in New Castle, Pa., May 25, 1845. He was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy, 1865, was commissioned ensign Dec. 1, 1866, master March 12, 1868, lieutenant, March 26, 1869, commander, May 28, 1881, commander, Dec. 16, 1891; Captain, March 29, 1899, and retired with the rank of rear-admiral, March 8, 1900. He was in active service during the Civil War in the summer of 1864, on board of the Marblehead, in pursuit of the Confederate steamers Florida and Tallahassee, and from that time until retirement served with an excellent record in many duties and commands. Address: New Castle, Pa.

BOOKWALTER, Lewis:

President of Otterbein University; born in Hallsville, Ohio, Sept. 18, 1846. He was graduated from the Western College of Iowa, and the Union Biblical Seminary at Dayton, Ohio. He has received the degrees of A.M., 1875, D.D., 1890 and LL.D., 1906. In 1872 he was licensed as a preacher of the United Brethren Church, and after several years passed in professorships he became a missionary in Tennessee. In 1883 he was appointed president of Westfield College, Ill., and from 1894-1904 was president of Western College at Toledo, Iowa, having also occupied pastorates during the intervening years. Since 1904 he has held his present position as president of Otterbein University. He was a member of the General Conference in 1885; also secretary of the commission created by that conference to amend the church constitution; was again a member of the General Conference in 1901; and corresponding secretary of the Board of Education of the United Brethren Church from 1885-1894. He is the author of several religious books and articles. He married in 1871, Miss E. M. Guitner. Address: Westerville, Ohio.

BOOTH, Ballington:

General-in-chief of the Volunteers of America; born in Brighouse, England, July 28, 1859; son of Rev. William Booth of the Salvation Army. He early became connected with the work of his father in connection with the Salvation Army, and was commander of the branch in Australia in 1887, when he came to the United States in command of the organization in America. He served in the Salvation Army until 1896, when he deemed it his duty to separate from the Salvation Army organization, and formed a new religious philanthropic organization, the Volunteers of America, which was incorporated Nov. 6, 1896. He has since been the head of this organization and is internationally known as a writer, public speaker and philanthropist. He was married April 16, 1887, Maud Charlesworth. Address: 38 Cooper Square, New York City.

BOOTH, Charles Edwin:

Manufacturer; born at Springfield, Mass., July 24, 1849; son of Alfred and Fanny Woodbury (Abel) Booth. He was educated in public schools of Springfield, and Lowell, Mass., and by private tutors. He is president of the Seaboard Refrigeration Company. He visited Australia and New Zealand in a trip around the world in 1901.

Mr. Booth is a Republican in politics and an Episcopalian in religion. He is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, Historic-Genealogical Society of Boston, Connecticut Historical Society, Hartford, Long Island Historical Society, Brooklyn. He is a member of the National Arts Club. Address: National Arts Club, New York City.

BOOTH, Maud Ballington:

Born in Limpfield, Surrey, England; daughter of Rev. Samuel Charlesworth. She was educated in Bellstead, Suffolk, and in Switzerland, and married in London, England, Sept. 16, 1887, Ballington Booth (second son of General Booth), and has a son and a daughter. She entered the Salvation Army at 17, as an officer, serving in Paris, and in Geneva and other parts of Switzerland, in which country, with companions, she was subject to bitter police persecution, and was expelled from Geneva, although the work was later successfully established there; was later in Salvation Army work in Great Britain, and afterward in Sweden, where she had a special series of meetings for the students of Upsala University, attended by 1800 of the 2000 students, with most successful results. With her husband, she commanded Salvation Army, 1887-1896, raising it from persecuted, unknown movement to one of success and recognition. The contention arising that they were Americanizing that institution, she started, with her husband, The Volunteers of America in 1896, and has ever since been connected with it. She started a special work for the prisoners of the United States, which is now established in many prisons, from New York to San Francisco. Mrs. Booth is author of Sleepy Time Stories; Lights of Chillum; Did the Pardon Come Too Late?; The Curse of Septic Soul Treatment; After Prison—What?; and other books. Address: 34 West 28th Street, New York City.

BOOTHBY, Frederic Eleazer:

Railroad official; born at Norway, Me., Dec. 3, 1845; son of Levi Thompson and Sophia Packard (Brett) Boothby. He was educated at the Waterville (Maine) Classical Institute. He began railroad service in 1864 as a boy with the Maine Central Railroad, with which he has ever since continued; and is now general passenger and ticket agent of the Maine Central Railroad, the Portland, Mount Desert and Machias Steamboat Company, the Washington County Railway and the Somerset Railway. He is a director of the Portland and Ogdensburg Railroad, the Union Safe Deposit and Trust Company of Portland, Me., and the New England Railway Publishing Company. He served as a member of the military staff of Governor's Joseph R. Rodwell, Sebastian S. Marble, and Edwin C. Burleigh, of Maine, retiring as commissary general with the rank of colonel. He was president of the Portland Board of Trade from 1897-1901, and mayor of the City of Portland, Me., from 1901-1903 inclusive. He is a Republican in politics, and was chairman of the Maine delegation to the National Republican Convention of 1904. He is an Episcopalian and junior warden of St. Stephen's Church, at Portland, Me. He is a member of the Maine Historical Society, and a trustee of the Coburn Classical Institute, of Waterville, Me.; trustee and treasurer of the Maine Eye and Ear Infirmary; treasurer of the Portland Prison Committee, and treasurer of the State of Maine Branch of the National American Red Cross; chairman of the executive committee of the railroad branch of the Young Men's Christian Association of Portland, Me., and director of the Maine Society for Protection of Cruelty to Animals. He is president of the Maine Society of Sons of the American Revolution, and deputy governor of the Maine Society of Mayflower Descendants. Colonel Boothby married at Waterville, Me., Oct. 25, 1871, Adelaide Endora Smith. Residence: Falmouth Hotel. Office: 238 St. John Street, Portland, Me.

BORAH, William Edgar:

United States Senator; born in Fairfield, Ill., June 29, 1865; son of William N. and Eliza Borah. He was educated at the University of Kansas, was admitted to the bar in 1889, and established himself in practice at Boise, Idaho. He became prominent in the Republican politics of that State, and especially in connection with the efforts made for the maintenance of public order as against the outbreaks incident to the labor troubles in Idaho. In 1903 he was one of the leading candidates for election to the United States Senate, and in 1907 was elected for the term 1907-1913. He took a prominent part in the pre-convention campaign which resulted in the election of President Taft, and in the national campaign of 1908. He married in Boise, Idaho, April 21, 1895, Mamie McConnell. Address: Boise, Idaho.

BORDEN, William Alanson:

Librarian; born in New Bedford, Mass., April 24, 1853; son of Alanson and Mary C. (Topham) Borden. He was graduated from Cornell University, 1874, became a farmer in 1876, agricultural editor of the New England Homestead, 1879; assistant at the Boston Athenæum, 1883; organized the Reynolds Library at Rochester, N. Y., in 1885, was appointed lecturer in the New York Library School, 1886, and in 1887 reorganized the Young Men's Institute at New Haven, Conn., of which he has been in charge ever since. Mr. Borden is inventor of the removal card catalogue drawer and of other minor library appliances and methods. He is a member of the American Library Association, and of the Connecticut, New York and Massachusetts Library Associations, and the Edgewood Civic Association. Residence: 341 Alden Avenue. Office: 847 Chapel Street, New Haven, Conn.

BORGLUM, Gutzon

Sculptor and painter; born in Idaho, March 25, 1867; son of Dr. James de la Mothe and Ida (Michelson) Borglum. He was educated at St. Mary's College, Kansas, and studied art in San Francisco and Paris, where he was a member of the Académie Julian and École des Beaux Arts, and he received the A.M. degree from Princeton, 1909. He exhibited paintings in the Paris Salon, in Spain and in London, and in 1902 he settled permanently in New York, where he was given the commission for the sculpture of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. He was commissioned to make an equestrian statue of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan in Washington, D. C. and a heroic statue of John Mackay for the State of Nevada. His Mares of Diomedes are in the Metropolitan Museum and his colossal marble head of Lincoln in the Capitol at Washington. He has exhibited at all the leading sculpture exhibitions, and received the gold medal for sculpture at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Mr. Borglum is also a painter, his work, including portraits and mural painting, besides figures and animals. He is a member of the Royal Society of British Artists, the Société Nationale des Beaux Arts, Paris; the Players and City Clubs, New York, and the Metropolitan Club of Washington. Address: 166 E. 38th St., New York City.

BOROWSKI, Felix:

Composer; born in Burton, England, March 10, 1872. He graduated at the Conservatoire, Cologne, Germany, in violin, piano and composition. He lived in London until 1897, when he came to the United States as an instructor, and is at present director of the department of composition and lecture on musical history at the Chicago Musical College. Mr. Borowski has been the musical critic of the Chicago Evening Post since 1906, and is a composer of international reputation, among his works being: "Marche triomphale" and "Eugene Onegin" (Symphonie poem), for orchestra; "Sonate-russe," "Preludes," and "Concerto, with orchestra," for the piano; Premiere Mazur, Schounka Ukrainienne, Aria" and Deuxième Mazur, Adoration," for the violin; Suite and two Sonatas for the organ; and songs for the voice. He married in Aberdeen, Scotland, Oct. 9, 1897, Edith Frances Grant. Address: 202 Michigan Boulevard, Chicago.

BOSS, Lewis:

Astronomer; born in Providence, R. I., Oct. 26, 1846. He was educated at Dartmouth College, of which he is A.M., 1873, and has received the degree of LL.D., from Union University in 1902. He was astronomer of the Northern Boundary Commission from 1872-1876, and chief of the Transit of Venus Exposition Expedition, Santiago, Chile, in 1882. He was largely instrumental in the reconstruction and enlargement of the endowment of Dudley Observatory, of which he has been director since 1876. He has also been superintendent of the New York State Bureau of Weights and Measures since 1884, and director of the department of meridian astronomy of Carnegie Institution since 1906. He is a foreign associate of the Royal Astronomical Society; member of the National Academy of Sciences; Astronomische Gesellschaft, Leipzig; corresponding member of the British Association for the Advancement of Science; and received a gold medal from the Royal Astronomical Society in London in 1905. He is the author of: Declinations of Fixed Stars; Catalogue of 8,241 Stars; prize essay on the Physical Nature of Comets; Division Correction of the Oleott Meridian Circle; Southern Stars; Solar Motion and Related Researches and Positions and Motions of 627 Standard Stars. He married in Washington, Dec. 30, 1871, Helen M. Hutchinson. Address: Dudley Observatory, Albany, N. Y.

BOSTWICK, Arthur Elmore:

Librarian; born at Litchfield, Conn., March 8, 1860; son of Dr. David Elmore and Adelaide (McKinley) Bostwick. He is the eighth in direct descent from Arthur Bostock, or Bostwick (of the Bostocks of Bostok Hall, near Northwick, Cheshire, England), who came to America in 1640. He was educated at Litchfield Institute and at Yale University, being graduated as B.A. in the class of 1881, was the first incumbent of the Silliman fellowship in physical science, from 1882-1884, receiving the degree of Ph.D. in 1883; and he was substitute instructor and proctor at Yale, from 1883-1884. After leaving Yale, he was instructor in the high school at Montclair, N. J., until 1886, then was engaged in literary work in New York City, until 1895.

ARTHUR ELMORE BOSTWICK

He was chief librarian of the New York Free Circulating Library, 1895-1899; librarian of the Brooklyn Public Library, 1899-1901, and since 1901 has been chief of the circulation department of New York Public Library, including charge of all branch libraries, now numbering forty-one. He was on the staff of Appleton's Cyclopedia of American Biography, from 1886-1888; assistant editor of the Forum 1890-1892; associate editor and office expert in physics of the Standard Dictionary, 1892-1895. He was joint author (with John D. Champlin) of the Young Folks' Cyclopedia of Games and Sports; science editor Literary Digest since 1894; also a contributor to periodicals on scientific and literary topics. He was president of the American Library Association from 1907-1908. He has been a member of the advisory committee of the Public Education Association and of the Library Council of the New York State University, from 1904, fellow of the American Library Institute since 1906; delegate to the Copyright Conference in 1905-1906, and is also a director of the People's University Extension Society. He is a member of the Authors and Delta Kappa Epsilon Clubs. Dr. Bostwick married, June 23, 1885, Lucy Sawyer. Residence: Clewellyn Park, West Orange, N. J. Address: 209 West Twenty-third Street, New York City.

BOSWORTH, Edward Increase:

Theologian; born at Dundee, Ill., Jan. 10, 1861; son of Frank S. and Sarah (Hunt) Bosworth. He received his preparatory education at Elgin (Ill.) Academy, and, entering Oberlin College in 1879, studied there for two years. Thence he continued his academic studies at Yale University, graduating in 1883 with the degree of A.B. This was followed by three years of study at the Oberlin Theological Seminary, where he received the degree of D.B. in 1886. He also took graduate work at the University of Leipzig during the year, 1890-1891, and at Athens, 1891-1892. The degree of A.M. was conferred upon him by Oberlin in 1893, and D.D. in 1901. He entered the ministry of the Congregational Church in 1886, becoming in that year pastor of the church at Mount Vernon, Ohio. A year later he became professor of English Bible at Oberlin Theological Seminary and held that position until 1890. In 1891 he was given the chair of New Testament language and literature, which he has since filled, and since 1903 he has been dean of the seminary. Dr. Bosworth has traveled through Europe several times, as well as in Egypt, Palestine, Japan, China and Korea. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society. In politics he is affiliated with the Republican party. Besides various magazine articles, he is author of: Studies in the Acts and Epistles; Studies in the Teaching of Jesus and His Apostles; Eight Studies in the Life of Jesus Christ; and New Studies in Acts. Mr. Bosworth married at Elgin, Ill., Oct. 1, 1891, Bertha McClure, and they have four children: Lawrence McClure, born in 1893; Edward Franklin, born in 1894; Richard Wilder, born in 1901; and Sarah Frances, born in 1907. Address: Oberlin, Ohio.

BOSWORTH, Edwin Mahlon:

Mining and mechanical engineer; born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 8, 1880; son of Giles B. and Melzena A. (Reed) Bosworth. After receiving a grammar and high school education, he entered Shady Side Academy, where he was graduated in 1899. His mining and mechanical engineering education was obtained at Cornell University. For a time he was mining engineer with the H. C. Frick Coke Company, and in 1903 was assistant engineer of construction with Jones and Laughlin Steel Company of Pittsburgh. From 1903-1905 he was engaged in special work in the West, and in the latter year being elected vice-president and treasurer of The Amsler Engineering Company of Pittsburgh. In 1908 he became affiliated with The Bosworth Investment Company of Denver, Colo., as treasurer, and The Union Realty and Investment Company of the same city, as secretary and treasurer. While in Pittsburgh he was secretary and director of The Manufacturers' Fuel and Light Company, and of The Southern Real Estate Security Company, all of Pittsburgh. He was a member of the Pittsburgh Board of Trade and of The Union Club. In Denver he is a member of The Denver Athletic Club and the Denver Real Estate Exchange. He is a member of the Methodist Church, and in politics is affiliated with the Republican party; he belongs to the Chi Psi and Delta Phi Delta College fraternities. Mr. Bosworth married at Pittsburgh, Pa., April 17, 1906, Helen M. Richey. Residence: 1540 Grant Street. Address: 509 Continental Building, Denver, Colo.

BOTKIN, Theodosius:

Consular official: born near Catawba, Clark County, Ohio, June 25, 1846, and was educated in the common schools. He enlisted in the 44th Ohio Volunteers, Sept. 1, 1861 and served until Aug. 5, 1865. He settled in Kansas, fed and herded cattle, broke prairie sod, farmed, drove freight team, clerked in a store and taught school, and read history and law by night. He was admitted to the bar, 1874; was police magistrate of Pleasanton, Kan., 1875-1876; probate judge, 1877-1878, practised law 1879-1899, was district judge, 1889-1892 member of the Kansas Legislature and department commander, Grand Army of the Republic, 1897. He was commissioned captain assistant adjutant general of volunteers by President McKinley, 1898; was selected by the Republican National Committee to open and lead the contest in Utah for the electoral ticket in 1900 and was successful; was appointed to the consular service as consul at Port Louis, June 10, 1905, and March 30, 1907, was appointed to his present post as consul at Campbellton, N. B. Address: U. S. Consulate, Campbellton, New Brunswick.

BOURN, Augustus Osborn:

Manufacturer, ex-governor: born in Providence, R. I., Oct. 1, 1834; son of George O. Bourn. He entered Brown University from which he received the degree of A.M. in 1855. He engaged as a manufacturer of rubber goods at Providence, founded in 1867 and became president of the National Rubber Company of Bristol, R. I., of which town he became a resident in 1873. He became active in political matters as a Republican and was elected State senator, serving from 1876-1883, during which time he was chairman of the committee on Finance and a member of the Judiciary Committee. In 1883 he was elected governor of Rhode Island, serving until 1885. He again served in the State Senate from 1886-1888, and while a member of the Upper House of the Legislature he introduced the "Bourn Amendment" to the Constitution of the State of Rhode Island, extending to foreign-born citizens the same rights of voting as are enjoyed by the native-born citizens of the State. In 1889 he was appointed by President Harrison consul-general of the United States to Italy, in which capacity he served until 1893. Governor Bourn served in the State Militia of Rhode Island in all grades from private to lieutenant-colonel of the Battalion of Cavalry. He was formerly president of the New England Rubber Club of Boston. Governor Bourn married, at Providence, R. I., Feb. 24, 1863, Elizabeth R., daughter of David C. and Mary (Wentworth) Morrill. Residence: Bristol, R. I. Office: Providence, R. I.

BOURNE, Frederick Gilbert:

Capitalist and manufacturer. He was formerly president and is now director of the Singer Manufacturing Company; also trustee of the New York Phonograph Company; director of the Liberty National Bank, the Kniekerbocker Trust, Commercial Trust Company, Manhattan Company, of New Jersey, Albany Trust Company, New York and Long Branch Railroad Company, Aeolian, Weber Piano and Pianola Company, Babcock and Wilcox Company, Babcock and Wilcox, Limited, (London) City and Suburban Homes Company, Atlas Cement Company, Diehl Manufacturing Company, etc. He is a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the New England Society of New York, and of the Metropolitan, Racquet and Tennis, Lawyers', New York Athletic, Automobile, Jekyl Island, New York Yacht, Seawan-laka-Corinthian Yacht, South Side Sportsman's Lakewood Golf, Westwood Golf, Robin's Island, and Penauit Corinthian Yacht Clubs. He married in 1875, Emma Keeler, and they have five children. Residence: Oakdale, Long Island. Address: 149 Broadway, New York City.

BOURNE, Jonathan, Jr.:

United States senator; born in New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 23, 1855, and a member of the well known family of that State. He was a member of the Harvard class of 1877, but left college in his junior year to go to sea. He was shipwrecked off the Island of Formosa, but was rescued by a vessel which landed him in Portland, Ore., where he settled and studied law and was admitted to the bar. He became interested in mining, and acquired a large fortune in this business. He is president of several Oregon corporations and of the Bourne Cotton Mills, at Fall River, Mass. He was a Republican member of the Oregon Legislature during the sessions of 1885, 1886 and 1897; was a delegate to the Republican National Conventions in 1888 and 1892, and was Oregon's member of the Republican National Committee from 1888 to 1892. In 1906 he was elected United States senator from Oregon, and has since been one of the prominent figures of the upper house of the National Legislature. During the pre-convention campaign of 1908 he was an ardent advocate of a second elective term for President Roosevelt. Residence: 331 7th Street. Office: Chamber of Commerce, Portland, Ore.

BOUTELL, Henry Sherman:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Boston, Mass., March 14, 1856; son of Louis Henry and Anna (Greene) Boutell. He removed to Chicago in 1863; was graduated from Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., in 1874; and from Harvard University, as A.B. in 1876; and received the degree of A.M. from Harvard (constitutional history and international law) in 1877, and the degree of LL.D. from Northwestern University in 1904. He is a trustee of the Northwestern University. He was admitted to the bar of Illinois in 1879, and to that of the Supreme Court of the United States in 1885, and has since practised in Chicago. He is a Republican in politics; was elected a member of the Illinois general assembly in 1884, and was one of the "103" who elected General Logan to the United States Senate. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth Congress from the Sixth Illinois District in 1897 to fill the unexpired term of Edward Dean Cooke; was re-elected from that district in 1898 and 1900, and after reapportionment was reelected from the Ninth Illinois District in 1902, 1904, 1906 and 1908, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. He is a member of the Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Boutell is a trustee of the Northwestern University, has been president of the Phi Beta Kappa Society of Northwestern University; twice president of the Illinois Society of Sons of the American Revolution; twice president of the Harvard Club of Chicago, and twice president of the University Club of Chicago. Mr. Boutell married in Providence, R. I., Dec. 29, 1880, Euphemia Lucia Gates, and they have three children. Residence: Virginia Hotel. Office address: 205 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.

BOUTON, Rosa:

Professor of home economics; born in Albany, Kan., Dec. 19, 1860; daughter of E. F. and Fannie (Waldo) Bouton. Miss Bouton was educated in the State Normal School at Peru, Neb., and the University of Nebraska, from which she was graduated as B.S., 1891, and A.M., 1893. She was for several years adjunct professor of chemistry in the University of Nebraska, but her connection with the Chemical Department was severed in order that she might devote all her time to her present position as head of the Department of Home Economics in the same university. Miss Bouton has lectured before farmers' and teachers' institutes and women's clubs, has made numerous contributions to agricultural and educational journals, chiefly on subjects related to home economics, and is author of: Home Study Series No. 1, Convenient Kitchens; No. 2, Food a Factor in the Home; Cereals and How to Cook Them. She is a member of the Sigma Xi honor society, of the Lake Placid Conference for Home Economics, and of the Advisory Board of the Young Women's Christian Association of the University of Nebraska. Address: Lincoln, Neb.

BOUVET, Marie Marguerite:

Author and teacher of French; born in New Orleans, La., Feb. 14, 1865; daughter of Jean Francois and Adeline (Bertrand) Bouvet. Miss Bouvet is of distinguished ancestry on both sides, her father being a direct descendant of Francois Comte de Bouvet d'Asti in Piedmont, who was knighted in 1483 by Roi Rene, duke of Lorraine, for valiant deeds in wars against the Duke di Ferarre; and whose grandson, Michel de Bouvet, was minister of state under Duke Charles III, and her maternal grandfather, Victor Jules Bertrand, was a cavalry officer in the service of Charles X. Her mother, who was educated in the Convent of the Sacred Heart and afterward took a degree at the Sorbonne, married her father in New Orleans, and after his death in 1870, the fortune having suffered greatly by the Civil War, became instructor in French literature in the then well-known Loquet-Leroy Female Institute in New Orleans. In that institution Miss Bouvet was a pupil until the age of 14, and thereafter, for five years, a student of St. Mary's College, Knoxville, Ill., graduating in 1885. In early childhood she lived for seven years with her paternal grandparents in the environs of Lyons, France, and since her majority has made two extended visits to European countries. She is engaged as a teacher of French language and literature and is also occupied with authorships, having published: Sweet William; Little Marjorie's Love Story; Prince Tip-Top; A Child of Tuscany; Pierrotte; A Little House in Pimlico; Bernardo and Laurette; Tales of an Old Chateau; My Lady; Clotilde; also a little book of daily French quotations, entitled "Fleurs des Poetes et des Prosateurs Francais," edited and compiled by Marguerite and Jeanne Bouvet. Miss Bouvet is an honorary member of the Woman's Club (Federated), of Reading, Pa. Address: 120 S. Fifth Street, Reading, Pa.

BOVARD, Freeman Daily:

Editor of the California Christian Advocate; born in Alpha, Ind., Jan. 9, 1851. He was educated at De Pauw University, A.M. 1879, D.D. 1890, and received the degree of Ph.D. from Illinois Wesleyan College in 1891. He was ordained to the Methodist Episcopal ministry in 1875, was professor of mathematics in the University of Southern California, 1880 to 1885, member of the National Geographical Society, and was presiding elder of the San Francisco district from 1887 to 1893. He was secretary of the movement for the exemption of churches in California from taxation, and a delegate to the General Conference in 1900, 1904 and 1908. In 1900 he became editor of the California Christian Advocate, a position he still holds. He married in Jeffersonville, Ind., June 28, 1875, Sarah North. Address: 5 and 7 City Hall Avenue, San Francisco, Calif.

BOWDITCH, Charles Pickering:

Trustee, archaeologist; born in Boston, Sept. 30, 1842; son of Jonathan Ingersoll Bowditch (A.M., LL.D., Harvard) and Luey Orne (Nichols) Bowditch. He was graduated from Harvard University, receiving the degree of A.B. in 1863, and later A.M. He served as second lieutenant, first lieutenant and captain in the Fifth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, May 1, 1863, to Feb., 1864, and captain in the Fifth Massachusetts Cavalry from Feb. to Aug., 1864. Mr. Bowditch was a director of the American Bell Telephone Company and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for many years, and was vice-president of the American Bell Telephone Company from 1883 to 1886. He is a director and trustee in many corporations of New England, including the Massachusetts Cotton Mills, the Pepperell Manufacturing Company, Saco Water Power Company, the Salmon Falls Manufacturing Company, the Massachusetts Mills in Georgia, Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance Company. He is also greatly interested in archaeological research, is a member of the faculty of the Peabody Museum of Archaeology and Ethnology of Harvard University, and has devoted much personal attention to archaeological research, the results of which he has given in various pamphlets especially devoted to the archaeology of the Central American nations. He is a member of the American Anthropological Association, vice-president of the Archaeological Institute of America, fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, member of the International Society of Americanists, of the Société des Americanistes de Paris, the Department of Archaeology of the University of Pennsylvania, the American Geographical Society, fellow and the treasurer of American Academy of Arts and Sciences. He is also interested in historical matters, and has written on the History of the Trustees of the Charity of Edward Hopkins, and the Pickering Genealogy. He is a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, the American Antiquarian Society, the Bostonian Society, Colonial Society of Massachusetts, and the New England Historic-Genealogical Society. He married at Lenox, Mass., June 7, 1866, Cornelia Livingston Rockwell, and they have four children. Residence: Jamaica Plain, Mass. Office address: 28 State Street, Boston, Mass.

BOWDITCH, Henry Pickering:

Physiologist; born in Boston, Mass., April 4, 1840. He was educated at Harvard and at Harvard Medical School. He was an officer in the United States Volunteer Cavalry during the Civil War, subsequently studied physiology in France and Germany, and from 1871 to 1906 was connected with instruction in physiology at the Harvard Medical School, being professor from 1876 to 1906. He is internationally known as the result of his work at Harvard and of a large number of papers on physiological subjects published in the United States and Europe and translated into many foreign languages. His standing in the scientific world is evinced by his honorary degrees, of which he has received D.Sc., from the University of Cambridge, England, 1898; LL.D., Edinburgh, 1898; Toronto, 1903, and University of Pennsylvania, 1904. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and was vice-president of Section K, 1904. He married in Leipzig, in 1871, Selma Knauth. Residence: Jamaica Plain, Mass.

BOWEN, Herbert Wolcott:

Diplomat and author; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Feb. 29, 1856; son of Henry Chandler Bowen, founder of the Independent. He received his preparatory education in Paris and Berlin, and was graduated from Yale in 1878. He studied law at Columbia University, and was admitted to the bar. Mr. Bowen was appointed United States consul in 1890, and consul-general in 1894 at Barcelona, Spain; American minister to Persia in 1899, and minister to Venezuela from 1901 to 1905, during which time he attracted international attention by his handling of difficult questions with Castro, then President of Venezuela, and during which his methods gave rise to the styling of the direct course of negotiations followed as "shirt-sleeve diplomacy." His separation from the diplomatic service followed a series of misunderstandings in which the official conduct of a predecessor was involved. Mr. Bowen was counsel for Venezuela and the United States at The Hague in 1903, and his distinguished services in preventing complications between Venezuela and European nations under particularly difficult circumstances, constitute a brilliant chapter in the history of the diplomacy of the United States. Mr. Bowen is author of: Verses, Boston (1884); In Divers' Tones, 1890; Losing Ground; International Law, New York, 1896. Address: Woodstock, Conn.

BOWER, George Rosengarten:

Manufacturing chemist; born in Germantown, Philadelphia, Aug. 1, 1866; son of Henry and Lysteria K. (Elliott) Bower. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania, A.B., 1885, after which he became connected with various chemical concerns. In 1885 he became clerk of Henry Bower & Son, and after two years became secretary and treasurer of the Anmonia Company of Philadelphia. In 1896 he was elected to similar offices in the Kalion Chemical Company, and in 1902 president of the Baltimore Chrome Works Company. In 1906, the last named three companies were consolidated into the Henry Bower Chemical Manufacturing Company, of which he has since been president. In politics he is a member of the Republican party, and in religion is affiliated with the Protestant Episcopal church. He is a vestryman of All Saints' Church, Lower Dublin, at Torresdale. Mr. Bower is a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and of the Alumni of the University of Pennsylvania, the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, and the Athletic Association of the University of Pennsylvania. He spends his vacations in hunting and boating, and is a member of the Philadelphia Gun, Markham, Rittenhouse, Philadelphia and Union League of Philadelphia; the Maryland Club of Baltimore; and the Down Town Association of New York. Mr. Bower married at Philadelphia, Jan. 10, 1893, Agnes Lee Fuller, and they have two sons. Residence: Torresdale, Philadelphia. Address: Gray's Ferry Road and 29th Street, Philadelphia.

BOWERMAN, George Franklin:

Librarian; born in Farmington, N. Y., Sept. 8, 1868; son of Jarvis R. and Anna M. (Ewer) Bowerman. He was graduated from the University of Rochester, A.B., 1892, and entered the New York State Library School at Albany in 1893, graduating with the degree of B.L.S., in 1895. Mr. Bowerman was reference librarian at Reynolds Library, Rochester, 1895-1896; served in the reference department of the New York State Library, 1897-1898; and was on the editorial staff of the New York Tribune, 1898-1900; and on the editorial staff of the New International Encyclopedia, 1900-1901. He resumed library work as librarian of the Wilmington (Delaware) Institute Free Library, 1901-1904, and has been librarian of the Public Library of the District of Columbia since 1904. He is a member of the American Library Association, and was its treasurer in 1906-1907, a member and president of the District of Columbia Library Association; was president of the library department of the Religious Education Association in 1905; a member of the Delaware State Library Commission from 1901 to 1904; and is now a member of the National Educational Association, the National Geographic Society, the American Economic Association, the National Society of Fine Arts, the Archaeological Institute of America, the Washington Board of Trade, the Washington Library Society, and the Cosmos Club. He has contributed extensively to The Library Journal, Public Libraries and to newspapers. Mr. Bowerman married at Albany in 1901, Sarah N. Graham. Residence: The Ontario. Office: Public Library, Washington, D. C.

BOWERS, Eaton Jackson:

Lawyer and congressman; born at Canton, Madison County, Miss., June 17, 1865; he was educated in local schools and at the Military Institute at Pass Christian, Miss. He was admitted to the bar at Canton, Miss., at the age of seventeen, and afterward engaged in the practice of law. He is a Democrat in politics. He was a presidential elector on the Democratic ticket from the Sixth District of Mississippi in 1888, and from the State at large in 1892, was elected to the State Senate of Mississippi in 1896, and in 1900 to the House of Representatives of Mississippi from Hancock County. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Kansas City in 1900 and was a member of the State Democratic Executive Committee from 1886 to 1900. He was elected from the Sixth Mississippi to the Fifty-eighth Congress in 1902, and reelected in 1904 and 1906 to the Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth Congresses; and is now serving in the latter. He married Sept. 3, 1888, Lula G. Posey. Address: Bay Saint Louis, Miss.

BOWERS, Edward Augustus:

Lawyer; born at Hartford, Conn., Aug. 2, 1857; son of Caleb Bailey and Fanny M. (Cutter) Bowers. He was graduated from the academic course of Yale University with the degree of A.B. in 1879 and remaining there as a law student for two years longer, received the degree of LL.B. at the end of that time. In 1882 he removed to Groton, Dakota, then still a territory, and began to practice his profession, while giving attention to other pursuits. In 1884 he was elected city judge of Groton, occupying the office for two years, becoming in 1887 Inspector of the Public Land Service acting directly in the West for Mr. Lamar, Secretary of the Interior, and having a general supervision of legal questions arising in the administration of the Public Lands. In 1889 he removed to Washington, D. C., where he established himself in practice. In 1893 he was appointed assistant commissioner in the General Land Office at Washington, becoming in 1895 assistant comptroller of the United States Treasury. After three years he returned to Connecticut, and has since practised at New Haven, at the same time lecturing at the University of Yale on forest law and administration, in which he is an authority. He is a member of the American Forestry Association and the American Geographical Society and of various clubs of Washington, New York City and New Haven. Residence: 209 Crown Street. Address: 410 Exchange Building, New Haven, Conn.

BOWERS, George Meade:

United States Fish commissioner; born in Gerrardstown, W. Va., Sept. 13, 1863.

He was privately educated and undertook the scientific study of matters connected with the preservation and culture of fish, and in 1898 was appointed United States commissioner of fish and fisheries, in which position he has the direction of the extensive work being carried on by the United States for the increase of the fish food supply of this country. He married in Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 18, 1884, Bessie C. Gray. He resides in Martinsburg, W. Va. Official address: Cor. 6th and B Streets, S. W., Washington, D. C.

BOWERS, Henry Francis:

Founder of the American Protective Association; born in Baltimore, Md., Aug. 12, 1837. He was educated at home and later removed to Iowa, where he began his legal career, rising from deputy clerk of courts in 1863 and deputy recorder in 1869 to county recorder in 1870, in which year he was admitted to the bar. Until 1874 he held the position of recorder and has since continued the practice of his profession, practising in the United States Courts. Mr. Bowers served with distinction on the staff of Governor John H. Gear as special aide-de-camp from 1878-1882. The work by which he is best known to the world at large began in 1887 with the founding of the American Protective Association, popularly known as the "A. P. A.," which he served in the capacity of president for six years. In connection with his various interests, he has lectured extensively throughout the United States. Address: Clinton, Iowa.

BOWERSOCK, Justin DeWitt:

Manufacturer, banker and ex-congressman; born in Columbiana County, Ohio, Sept. 19, 1842. He moved to Lawrence, Kan., in 1877, and built the dam across the Kansas River and entered upon the business of manufacturing and banking. Mr. Bowersock is a Republican in politics, and he was twice elected mayor of Lawrence, and served in the Kansas House of Representatives in 1887 and the State Senate in 1895. He was elected in 1898 from the Second Kansas District to the Fifty-sixth Congress, and in 1900, 1902 and 1904 to the Fifty-seventh, and Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Congresses, but in 1906 he declined to be a candidate for election in the Sixtieth Congress. Mr. Bowersock married in 1866, Mary Gower of Iowa City, Iowa, and they have two sons and four daughters. Address: Lawrence, Kan.

BOWKER, Richard Rogers:

Author and editor; born in Salem, Mass., in 1848. He was educated in the public schools of New York City and was graduated from the College of the City of New York as A.B. in 1868. His connection with Publishing and Editorial work began as Literary Editor of the New York Evening Mail, 1868. He was resident in London, 1880 to 1882, as representative for Harper & Brothers. He was first vice-president and executive of the Edison Electric Illuminating Company from 1890 to 1899, and is now vice-president of the De Laval Steam Turbine Co., and the De Laval Separator Co. He is editor of the Publishers' Weekly, The Library Journal, American Catalog, and other publications. Mr. Bowker is author of: Work and Wealth, 1883; The Economic Fact Book and Free Traders' Guide, 1885; Primer for Political Education, 1886; Copyright—Its Law and Its Literature, 1886; Economics for the People (5 editions); The Arts of Life, 1900; Of Business, 1901; Of Politics, 1901; Of Education, 1903; Of Religion, 1903; Civil Service Examination, and has edited: The Library List; The Reader's Guide in Economic, Social and Political Science (in collaboration with George Hoes); The Annual Literary Index, etc., besides writing many articles in magazines. He early became active in independent politics, and in 1879 originated the independent Republican movement, and because of this fact became known as "the original Mugwump." He was active in promoting the passage of the first Civil Service Reform Bill in the New York Legislature, was a member of the New York Free Trade Club and one of the incorporators and on the original Board of Trustees of the Reform Club. When free coinage of silver became an issue, Mr. Bowker became associated with the National (gold-standard) Democratic party and editor of The Campaign Text-Book of the National Democratic party, 1896. He has also been very active in the movement for improvement in the law of copyrights, and is vice-president of the American Copyright League. He is a member of the Council of the American Library Association, was formerly chairman of the Council of the City Club, and is a member of the Authors Club and other clubs of New York. He married at Brookline, Mass., Jan. 1, 1902, Alice Mitchell. Residence: New York and "Glendale," Stockbridge, Mass. Office: 298 Broadway, New York City.

BOWLES, Francis Tiffany:

Chief constructor United States Navy, with rank of rear-admiral, 1901-1903; born in Springfield, Mass., Oct. 7, 1858; son of Benjamin and Mary E. (Bailey) Bowles. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1879 and also received a post-graduate degree, Naval architect, from the Royal Naval College, Greenwich, England. Admiral Bowles has had an active career and is identified with the beginning and establishment of the so-called "New Navy," having served on the Naval Advisory Board in 1882 and having been in charge of construction and repair in the navy yards at Norfolk and New York. He has also been identified with the introduction of civil service reform in the employment of labor at navy yards. He is president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Co., of Quincy, Mass.; is a member of the Institute of Naval Architects, London; and president of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, New York. Admiral Bowles married Nov. 17, 1886, Adelaide Hay Savage of Boston. Residence: 148 Marlborough Street, Boston. Office: Quincy, Mass.

BOWLES, Samuel:

Editor; born in Springfield, Mass., Oct. 15, 1851; son of Samuel Bowles, 3rd, editor of the Springfield Republican, and of Mary Dwight (Schermerhorn) Bowles. He was educated in public and private schools in Springfield and spent two years in study and travel in Europe, afterward took a special course of two years at Yale, and later he received from Amherst College the honorary degree of A.M. He entered the service of the Springfield Republican as an editorial assistant in 1873, and two years later became the business manager of that paper, of which he has been, since 1878, the publisher and editor-in-chief, the third of his name and family to hold that position. Mr. Bowles married, at Concord, Mass., June 12, 1884, Elizabeth, daughter of Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar; they have two sons. Address: Springfield, Mass.

BOWMAN, Edward Morris:

Musician; born at Barnard, Vt., July 18, 1848; son of Joseph and Asenath (Burroughs) Bowman; descendant of Nathaniel Bowman, one of the founders and proprietors of Watertown, Mass., who came from England with John Winthrop in 1630, and, on the maternal side, from Richard Warren and Sarah Tilley, Mayflower Pilgrims. He was graduated from St. Lawrence University, and afterward became a pupil in pianoforte of Dr. William Mason of New York City and of Franz Bendel of Berlin. He studied organ under John P. Morgan of New York City, Eduard Rohde and August Haupt, Berlin; Edouard Batiste and Alexander Guilmant, Paris; and Sir Frederick Bridge, London; studied theory of music with Carl Friederich Weitzmann of Berlin, Sir George A. Macfarren and Dr. E. H. Turpin of London, and John P. Morgan of New York. He was organist of old Trinity Church, New York City, 1866-1867; teacher and conductor, 1867-1887, at St. Louis, Mo., where he was organist and director of music of the Union Methodist Episcopal Church, Second Presbyterian Church, and Second Baptist Church; then of Peddie Memorial Church (Newark, N. J.), 1887-1894, where he founded, on new and original lines, The Cecilian Choir. He was the founder in 1895 and director of the Baptist Temple

Choir and Temple Orchestra of 200 members, of Brooklyn, until May 1, 1906; since then has been organist and music director of Calvary Baptist Church (Dr. MacArthur's) in New York City, where he founded, on a similar plan, a vested quartet and chorus of 140 voices. He has also been engaged as teacher and conductor in New York City since 1887. He is a member of the Royal College of Organists, London; member and co-founder of the American Guild of Organists; founder and fellow (president eight terms) of the American College of Musicians; president (five terms) of the Music Teachers' National Association; professor and director of music at Vassar College, 1891-1895. He is a member of the Executive Board of the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian Association, and ex-member of the Executive Board of the Department of Music, Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, and member of the Board of Governors of Squirrel Island Village Corporation. Mr. Bowman is president of the Virgil Practice Clavier Manufacturing Company of New York City. He is author of Bowman's Weitzmann's Manual of Harmony and Counterpoint, 1876, and is a frequent contributor to musical journals. Residence: 1810 Avenue H, Fiske Terrace, Brooklyn; (summer) Squirrel Island, Coast of Maine. Studio: Steinway Hall, New York City.

BOWNE, Borden Parker:

Educator; born in Leonardville, N. J., Jan. 14, 1847. He was educated at the University of the City of New York, A.B. 1871, A.M. 1876, and for two years studied at the universities of Halle, Paris and Göttingen. He became assistant professor of modern languages at the University of the City of New York in 1875, and the same year joined the staff of the New York Independent. Since 1876 he has been professor of philosophy and dean of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences of Boston University. In 1881 he received the degree of LL.D. from Ohio Wesleyan University. Dr. Bowne is an extensive contributor to philosophical and theological literature, and is the author of: The Philosophy of Herbert Spencer; Studies in Theism; Metaphysics; Introduction to Psychological Theory; Philosophy of Theism; The Principles of Ethics; Theory of Thought and Knowledge; The Christian Revelation; The Christian Life; The Atonement; The Immanence of God; Personalism; Studies in Christianity; and contributions to reviews and magazines. He is an honorary member of the Imperial Education Society of Japan. Traveled extensively in journey around world, 1906, and lectured before Imperial University at Tokyo, Japan, and at the other universities and schools of Japan, China and India. Address: 380 Longwood Avenue, Boston.

BOWNE, Samuel W.:

Manufacturer, chemist; born at Montgomery, N. Y., Jan. 3, 1842; son of Cyrus H. and Hester (Wood) Bowne. He was educated at Montgomery Academy and commenced business in 1874 in the manufacture of Scott's Emulsion, which he made a great success. He is now of the firm of Scott and Bowne, chemists, is president and director of the Cold Process Company of New York, director of the Aetna National Bank, the Independent Milk Product Company, R. H. Carter & Company, and the Baldwin Steel Company of Charlestown, W. Va. Mr. Bowne is president of the Board of Trustees of the Drew Theological Seminary, and a trustee of the Syracuse University, the Wesleyan University of Watertown, Conn., and of the New York City Church Extension and Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church. He is a member of the Union League, Republican, Knollwood City and New York Athletic Clubs. Residence: 35 West 57th Street. Office: 411 Pearl Street, New York.

BOYCE, William D.:

Publisher, born in Allegheny County, Pa., June 16, 1858; son of David and Margaret J. Boyce. He was reared on a farm and received his early education in the public schools of his native county and taking a course at the University of Wooster, Ohio. He removed to Chicago in 1881, and became an advertising solicitor for a monthly magazine. In 1884 he organized a bureau of correspondents embracing twelve hundred newspapers. He organized a patent inside publishing house, for which he secured a large patronage, and was equally successful with a similar enterprise which he started in Winfield, Kansas. In cooperation with two Eastern newspaper men he established the Chicago Blade, and afterward sold out his patent inside business and devoted his entire attention to building up the Blade, which proved a great success. Later he purchased the Chicago Ledger, which he also placed in a prosperous condition and afterward established Boyce's Monthly Magazine, now the Woman's World, and other publications, all of which are published by W. D. Boyce & Company, of which he is the president and director. He is also president and director of the W. D. Boyce Paper Mills Company, and of the the Marseilles Land and Water Power Company, and is owner of a large office building at 112 Dearborn Street, Chicago. Mr. Boyce has been actively identified with politics as a Republican. He married in Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1883, Mary Jane Beacon, and they have three children. Address: 112 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

BOYD, David Ross:

Former president of the University of Oklahoma; born in Coshocton, Ohio, July 31, 1853. He was graduated from Wooster University, Ohio, as A.B., 1878, later receiving the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. He became principle of high schools at Bellevue, Ohio, on graduation, but resigned this position in 1879 to accept a similar one at Van Wert, Ohio. During the years from 1880-1892 he was superintendent of schools at Van Wert, Ohio, and at Kansas City, Kan., and in the latter year was elected to the office of president of the University of Oklahoma. He organized that institution and remained at its head till July 1st, 1909, on which date he became special commissioner of education for the Presbyterian Board of Home Missions. He has been director of the National Educational Association, and is president ex officio of the Oklahoma Board of Education. He married in Keene, Ohio, Sept. 6, 1882, Jennie Thompson. Address: Norman, Oklahoma.

BOYD, George Washington:

General passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad; born in Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 1, 1849. He was educated at the high school there, and in October, 1863, entered the freight office of the Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati and Indianapolis Railroad, where he served as clerk and chief clerk. In June, 1872, he was appointed cashier of the Passenger Department of the Pennsylvania Railroad at the general office in Philadelphia, and in 1874 he was promoted to the chief clerkship of the department. In 1882 he became the first incumbent of the newly-created office of assistant general passenger agent. He discharged the duties of this office with conspicuous ability and success until May, 1903, when he was made general passenger agent. His work in favor of abolishing illegal ticket selling by scalpers, and his efforts toward developing the personally conducted system of travel under the direct supervision of railroad companies are universally acknowledged. Residence: 125 S. 22d Street. Office: 401 Broad Street Station, Philadelphia.

BOYD, James E.:

Jurist; born in Alamance County, N. C., Feb. 14, 1845. He was educated at Graham Academy and Davidson College, in North Carolina. He enlisted in the Confederate Army during the Civil War, serving as private in the 13th North Carolina Infantry and the 1st North Carolina Cavalry. At the close of the war he was admitted to the bar of North Carolina, and was elected to the Legislature of that state in 1874, serving for one year, when he became delegate to the State Constitutional Convention. From 1880-1885 he was United States district attorney for the western district of North Carolina, and from 1897-1900 was assistant attorney general of the United States. Since July 11, 1900, he has been judge of the United States District Court for the western district of North Carolina. Judge Boyd is a member of the North Carolina Bar Association, and of other professional organizations. He married, Sept. 12, 1868, Sallie Hott. Address: Greensboro, N. C.

BOYD, John Covert:

Medical director, U. S. Navy; born in and appointed from South Carolina. He entered the service April 3, 1873 as assistant surgeon U. S. Navy, and has served in the various duties of the Medical Corps of the navy up to the rank of medical director, his present commission being dated June 20, 1903, and his present duty being that of medical director in command of the Naval Medical School; also president of the Naval Examining Board at the Naval Medical School, Washington, D. C. Address: 1836 16th Street, Washington, D. C.

BOYNTON, Charles Augustus:

Journalist; born in West Stockbridge, Mass., Sept. 30, 1836; son of Rev. Charles B. and Maria (Van Buskirk) Boynton. He was graduated from Woodward College, Cincinnati, Ohio, and Knox College, Illinois. His first newspaper work was for The Christian Nation, edited by his father. He became the New York agent for the Western Associated Press in 1870, and was appointed superintendent of the Southern Division in 1894 with headquarters in Washington, a position he has filled with marked success, being responsible also for the news gathering relative to national and international events arising in Washington and conducting the work of a large Washington bureau in addition to directing and consolidating the news reports of the south. He is a charter member of the Gridiron Club and the dean of the newspaper corps in Washington. He married, Oct. 25, 1866, Mareta Hudson. Residence: 1357 Princeton Street. Office: Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

BOYNTON, Nathan Smith:

Founder of the Knights of the Maccabees; born at Port Huron, Mich., June 23, 1837.

After receiving a high school education he engaged in mercantile business in his native city. He served as private in the Civil War. Was promoted to 1st Lieut., then captain and last major of his regiment. In 1868 he was elected to the Michigan legislature, served as mayor of Port Huron in 1874-1875 and again two terms from 1894-1898. He was elected to the Constitutional Convention 1907. He became owner and editor of the Port Huron Press in 1870. Having founded the Order of the Knights of the Maccabees, he has devoted his attention since 1881 to that organization, and now fills the office of past great commander Modern Maccabees. He is the author of Boynton's Parliamentary Rules; The History of the Ancient and Modern Maccabees; The Dependency Plan; and Fraternal Co-operation. He married in Cincinnati, Ohio, June 29, 1859, Annie Fields. He is prominent in the affairs of Southern Florida and spends his winters in that section on his large plantation and hotel in the town of Boynton on the Atlantic coast twelve miles south of Palm Beach. Address: Port Huron, Mich.

BRACKETT, John Quincy Adams:

Lawyer and ex-governor; born at Bradford, N. H., June 8, 1842; son of Ambrose S. and Nancy (Brown) Brackett. He received his academic education at Harvard University from which he was graduated as A. B. with honors in 1865, and in 1868 he was graduated from the Harvard Law School with the degree of LL.B. He was admitted in 1868 to the bar of Massachusetts and has ever since practised law in Boston. In 1872 he was elected by the Republican party, to the common council of Boston, holding that office for four successive terms and being president of it the last year. Upon the expiration of his fourth term in the council he was elected in 1876 to the lower house of the Massachusetts Legislature, and with the exception of two years a member continuously until 1887, and was elected speaker of the House of the last two years. Upon the expiration of the term ending 1887, Mr. Brackett took his oath of office as lieutenant-governor with Oliver Ames as governor, and was twice re-elected. In 1889 he was elected governor of Massachusetts and served till 1891. He was delegate at large to the National Republican Convention of 1892, and presidential elector at large in 1896-1900. He is president of the Middlesex Club and member of several other clubs. He married, June 20, 1878, Angie M. Peck, of Arlington, Mass. Residence: Arlington, Mass. Address: 53 State Street, Boston.

BRACKETT, Walter M.:

Artist; born in Unity, Me., June 14, 1823. He was self-educated and began painting in 1843, attaining considerable celebrity as a portrait painter, but later took up the painting of game fish, especially of salmon and trout. He was one of the founders and is an ex-president of the Boston Art Club. For fifty years he has been an exhibitor in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Vienna, London and other cities, receiving medals from the Universal Exposition at Vienna, Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia, medal and diploma at the Fishery Exposition at London. His works are in the Crystal Palace, London, in Buckingham Palace, London, the War Department, Washington, and in the collections of Lord Dufferin, the Liverpool Art Association, and many others. Address: 154 Boylston street, Boston, Mass.

BRADFORD, Edward G.:

United States judge; born at Wilmington, Del., March 12, 1848; son of Hon. Edward G. and Mary Alicia (Heyward) Bradford. He received his preparatory education at the Delaware Military Academy, and then entered Yale, from which he was graduated with the degree of B.A. in 1868. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, May 9, 1870, practising at Wilmington, Del., until appointed May 11, 1897, as United States district judge for the District of Delaware. Judge Bradford married at Wilmington, Del., Sept. 18, 1872, Eleuthera P. du Pont. Address: Wilmington, Del.

BRADFORD, Gamaliel:

Retired banker; born in Boston, Jan. 15, 1831; son of Gamaliel Bradford and Sophia Rice Bradford. He is the fifth of his name and is descendant in the eighth generation from William Bradford, governor of Plymouth Colony. He was graduated from Harvard as A.B. in the Class of 1849. Mr. Bradford was a member of the banking firm of Blake Brothers and Company, Boston, from 1858-1868, and since the latter year he has been retired from active business, devoting his attention largely to historical and economic researches. He is author of a two volume work, The Lesson of Popular Government, published in 1898, as well as various monographs and contributions to reviews, etc. He is a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati, and the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants (of which he was the first governor). He is Independent in politics, and has taken an active interest in the improvement of the government of the city, state and nation. Mr. Bradford married, at Woburn, Mass., Oct. 30, 1861, Clara Crowninshield Kinsman, who died in 1866. Address: 502 Beacon Street, Boston.

BRADFORD, Gamaliel, Jr.:

Author; born in Boston, Oct. 9, 1863; son of Gamaliel Bradford and Clara (Kinsman) Bradford. He attended the public schools of Wellesley, Mass., and was tutored privately for Harvard and entered the class of 1886. After a few months he was obliged to leave on account of ill-health, and was therefore not graduated. He has never engaged in any business or profession, and having some independent means has devoted himself to literature. He has published numerous magazine articles and the volumes, Types of American Character, 1895; A Pageant of Life (Poems), 1904; and the novels: The Private Tutor, 1904; Between Two Masters, 1906; Matthew Porter, 1908. Mr. Bradford married at Wellesley, Mass., Oct. 30, 1886, Helen Hubbard Ford, and they have two children. Address: Wellesley Hills, Mass.

BRADLEY, Herbert E.:

Lawyer; born at Brooklin, Ont., Canada, Dec. 20, 1874; son of Thomas and Margaret (Bradshaw) Bradley. His grandfather, John Bradley, was one of the earliest settlers in York County, Ontario, where the City of Toronto is now located, at that time known as Muddy York, and later as York Center, and the present Bradley homestead in Ontario County has been in possession of the family for more than one hundred years. Mr. Bradley was educated in the public schools of Ontario, Port Perry High School, and the Whitby Collegiate Institute, Ontario. He has since been graduated L.L.B. He afterward attended the law department of the University of Michigan, and was a special student in Northwestern Law School, 1901. Mr. Bradley taught in Canadian schools, 1893-1895; studied law in Toronto, Canada, and in 1896 went to Chicago, where he was connected with Morgan and Wright, rubber manufacturers, until 1898. He afterward engaged in the general practice of law, becoming associated in 1900, with Messrs. Nathan William MacChesney and Frederick W. Becker, in Chicago, and being admitted to partnership in the firm of MacChesney, Becker and Bradley in 1903. He was elected in 1903, secretary of the Commercial Law League of America, and he is largely interested, with his partner, Col. MacChesney, in Chicago real estate. Mr. Bradley is a member of the Seventh Ward Republican Organization in Chicago, is a Mason, is a Past regent of Fort Dearborn Council, Royal Arcanum, and a member of the Illinois, Hamilton and Twentieth Century Clubs. Residence: 4526 Lake Avenue. Office: 108 La Salle Street, Chicago.

BRADLEY, Milton:

Manufacturer; born in Vienna, Me., Nov. 8, 1838. He was educated in the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University and began life as civil and mechanical engineer. He became interested in lithography and through that in the publishing of home amusements. He organized the Milton Bradley Company at Springfield, Mass.,

Yale College and Union Theological Seminary, and was graduated from the latter. He then engaged 1700 acres of land in Texas, proposing to establish an industrial reform colony for New York slum boys, but this project was abandoned owing to lack of funds to carry it on. In 1878 he went to Alaska as missionary and later became manager of the Sitka Trading Company. He was appointed governor of Alaska, June 16, 1897, and served until April 30, 1906. On retirement he engaged in commercial pursuits connected with the development of Alaska. Address: Boston, Mass.

BRADY, John J.:

Jurist; born in New York City, Aug. 30, 1853. He was graduated from Fordham University, A.B., 1872, and received from that University the degree of LL.D., 1906. He was admitted to the bar in 1876, and engaged in successful practice as a lawyer in New York City until elected on the Democratic ticket in November, 1906, judge of the Supreme Court of New York for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. Residence: 2395 Valentine Avenue, New York City.

BRAIN, Belle Marvel:

Author; born in Springfield, Ohio, Aug. 4, 1859; daughter of William Grey and Mary (Dyer) Brain. Miss Brain was educated in the public schools of Cincinnati and Springfield, Ohio, and after graduation from the Springfield High School in 1878, served as supervisor of drawing in the public schools of Springfield, Ohio, until June, 1896, when she gave up the position on account of broken health, and then turned to literary work, as contributor to magazines and papers, principally religious, and is author of the following books: Fuel for Missionary Fires; Weapons for Temperance Warfare; Quaint Thoughts of an Old-Time Army Chaplain; The Morning Watch; The Transformation of Hawaii; Fifty Missionary Programs; Fifty Missionary Stories; Missionary Readings for Missionary Programs; Holding the Ropes; Redemption of the Red man; All About Japan; Adventures with Four-footed Folk. Miss Brain is a Presbyterian in denominational connection. Address: 32 Rosedale Court, Detroit, Mich.

BRAINARD, David Legge:

Lieutenant-colonel, U. S. A.; born at Norway, Herkimer County, N. Y., Dec. 21, 1856. After attending the State Normal School at Cortland, N. Y., he entered the United States Army as a private, Sept. 18, 1876, and later was promoted to corporal and sergeant, and participated in the Sioux, Bannock and Nez Perce Indian campaigns, 1877-1878. He was wounded in the face and right hand in the fight with hostile Sioux Indians at Little Muddy Creek, Mont. May 7, 1877; and was detailed for duty, with the Howgate Arctic Exploring Expedition, in 1880. In 1881 he joined the Lady Franklin Bay Arctic Expedition, under Lieutenant (now general) A. W. Greely, serving with it three years; was associated with the late Lieutenant Lockwood in the exploration of the interior of Grinnell Land and the north-west coast of Greenland; and on May 13, 1882, reached the then highest point North ever attained by any nation, namely, latitude 83° 24' 30" N. He was one of the seven survivors rescued at Cape Sabine by Lieutenant Commander (now Rear Admiral) W. S. Schley, U. S. N., in June, 1884. Upon his return to the United States he was transferred as sergeant to the Signal Service; later commissioned second lieutenant, Second U. S. Cavalry "for distinguished and meritorious services in connection with the Arctic Expedition, 1881-1884." He was promoted first lieutenant, Aug., 1893; captain Subsistence Department, Oct., 1896; and in Dec., 1897 was detailed for duty on the Alaska Relief Expedition for the destitute miners at Dawson City; promoted to lieutenant-colonel Subsistence Department, U. S. Volunteers, May, 1898; ordered to the Philippine Islands as chief commissary of the military forces, serving on the staffs of Major-General Merritt and Major-General Otis; promoted colonel and chief commissary of U. S. Volunteers, Nov., 1898; promoted Major, Subsistence Department, U. S. Army, Feb., 1900; promoted lieutenant-colonel U. S. A., Aug.

28, 1905. Lieutenant-Colonel Brainard is a fellow of the American Geographical Society; member of the National Geographical Society, the Arctic Club, the Explorers' Club, the New York Club, New York Athletic Club and Army and Navy Club, etc. He was awarded the Back Grant of the Royal Geographical Society for 1885, "for special services in connection with his work of exploration in the Arctic Regions." Address: Care War Department, Washington, D. C.

BRAINERD, Ezra:

President of Middlebury College; born at St. Albans, Vt., Dec. 17, 1844. He was graduated from Middlebury College in 1864, and was tutor there from 1864-1866. He was graduated from Andover Theological Seminary in 1868, and became professor of rhetoric and English Literature from 1868-1889 and of physics and applied mathematics from 1880-1885, at Middlebury College, of which he was president twenty-three years, 1885-1908. He was one of three commissioners appointed in 1887 to revise the school laws of Vermont, and has made important contributions to the Botany and Geology of that State. The degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him in 1888 by Ripon College, Wisconsin, and the University of Vermont, and that of D.D. by Howard University in 1900. Address: Middlebury, Vt.

BRALEY, Henry King:

Jurist; born at Rochester, Mass., March 17, 1850; son of Samuel Tripp and Mary A. (King) Braley. He was educated at Rochester and Pierce Academies and received the honorary degree of A.M. from Dartmouth College in 1902. He was admitted to the Plymouth County bar in 1873, and practised law at Fall River, Mass., until 1891. He was elected city solicitor of Fall River in 1874 and mayor in 1882-1883, was appointed examiner for the bar of Bristol County in 1890 by the Supreme Judicial Court, and in 1891 became associate justice of the Superior Court of Massachusetts by appointment of Governor Russell, holding that office until 1902, when he was appointed by Governor Crane to his present office as associate justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts. Judge Braley is a Democrat in his political views, and a Unitarian in his religious affiliation. He is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, of the University and Union Clubs of Boston, and the Quequechan Club of Fall River. Judge Braley married at Bridgewater, Mass., April 26, 1875, Caroline Ward Leach. Address: Fall River, Mass.

BRANCH, Mary Lydia Bolles:

Author; born in New London, Conn., June 13, 1840; daughter of John Rogers and Mary (Hempstead) Bolles. She attended the high school of her native town, 1854-1858, and Mr. Emerson's School, Boston, 1859-1860. She was married in New London, April 21, 1870, to John Locke Branch, and has had two children, John Bolles Branch, who died in 1888, and Anna Hempstead Branch. After her marriage she lived in Painesville, Ohio, until 1875, then in New York City till 1882, and in Brooklyn, N. Y., 1882-1900; since then in New London, Conn. She began writing in girlhood, first, for a few years, under the pen-name of August Bell, and after that under her own name. She is author of: The Kanter Girls; The Manner of Life of Nancy Hempstead; A Visit to Newfoundland; Aunt Patty's Schoolroom. Mrs. Branch is a member of the Lucretia Shaw Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, Society of Mayflower Descendants in Connecticut, New London County Historical Society, Hempstead Family Association, the Froebel Society of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Saturday Club of New London. Address: Hempstead House, New London, Conn.

BRANDEGEE, Frank Bosworth:

United States Senator; born in New London, Conn., July 8, 1864; son of Augustus and Nancy Christina (Bosworth) Brandegee. He was graduated from Yale as B.A. in 1885, studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1888. He has since then continued in the practice of law at New London, Conn., where he is now a member of the law firm of Brandegee, Noyes and Brennan. He was a representative in the General Assembly of Connecticut in 1888, and for ten years was corporation counsel of the City of New London. He was a delegate to the Republican National Conventions of 1888, 1892, 1900 and 1904, speaker of the Connecticut House of Representatives in 1899, and in 1902 he was elected from the Third Connecticut District as a representative to the second session of the Fifty-seventh Congress to fill a vacancy, and was reelected to the Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth Congresses. On May 9, 1905, he was elected to the United States Senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Orville H. Platt, expiring in 1909 and was reelected in January, 1909, for a full term expiring March 3, 1915.. Address: New London, Conn.

BRANDEIS, Louis Dembitz:

Lawyer; born in Louisville, Ky., Nov. 13, 1856; son of Adolph and Frederika (Dembitz) Brandeis. He studied at the Annen Realschule at Dresden, Germany, from 1873-1875. Returning to the United States in 1875, he became a law student at Harvard University where he was graduated in 1877, with the degree of LL.B. and took a post-graduate course. The honorary degree of A.M. was conferred upon him by Harvard in 1891, and he was, in 1895, made honorary member of the Harvard Chapter of the Phi Beta Kappa. From 1878-1879 he practised law in St. Louis. In 1879 formed a partnership with Samuel D. Warren, practising in Boston, Mass., under the firm name of Warren and Brandeis until 1897, when the firm of Brandeis, Dunbar and Nutter was formed. Mr. Brandeis devised and was instrumental in establishing the Massachusetts system of saving bank insurance and pensions for wage earners. He took an active part in opposition to the proposed merger by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, of steam railroad transportation, electric trolley roads and steamboat lines, east of New York. He married in New York City, March 23, 1891, Alice Goldmark, and they have two daughters. Residence: 6 Otis Place. Office: 161 Devonshire Street, Boston, Mass.

BRANNAN, John Winters:

Physician; born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 14, 1853. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1874, and at Harvard Medical School in 1878. He was physician at the Massachusetts General Hospital, from 1877 to 1878. After studying in Paris, Vienna and Strasburg, he returned to America and practised medicine in Boston, Colorado Springs and, since 1884, in New York. He then became consulting physician at the Bellevue Hospital and attending physician at the hospitals of the Health Department. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the Association of American Physicians, the American Climatological Association, the New York Academy of Medicine, the New York County Medical Society, the Pathological Society, the Harvard Medical Society, the Society of Medical Jurisprudence, the Practitioners' Society, the Medical and Surgical Society, the Neurological Society and the Bellevue Hospital Alumni Society, and also of the University, Harvard, Garden City Golf and Century Clubs. He married in New York City, Nov. 9, 1882, Eunice Dana, and they have two children. Address: 11 W. 12th Street, New York.

BRANTLEY, William Gordon:

Lawyer and congressman; born at Blackshear, Pierce County, Ga., Sept. 18, 1860. He was educated in the common schools at his native place, and was two years at the University of Georgia. He read law with ex-congressman John C. Nicholls, and was admitted to the bar in Oct., 1861, practising at Blackshear until 1889, when he removed to Brunswick, Ga. He represented Pierce County in the Georgia House of Representatives in 1884 and 1885, represented the Third Senatorial District in the Georgia Senate in 1886 and 1887, and was elected solicitor-general (prosecuting attorney) of Brunswick Circuit in 1888 for a term of four years, and was reelected in 1892. In 1896 he was elected from the Eleventh Georgia District to the Fifty-fifth Congress, and has since been biennially elected, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress, expiring March 3, 1911. He is a Democrat in politics. Address: Brunswick, Ga.

BRATTON, Theodore Du Bose:

Bishop of Mississippi; born at Winnsboro, S. C., Nov. 11, 1862; son of John and Elizabeth Porcher (Du Bose) Bratton. He was educated at the University of the South, graduating from the theological course in 1887 and receiving the degree of B.D. in 1889. He received the degree of D.D. from his Alma Mater in 1901. He took orders as deacon of the Episcopal church in 1887 and was ordained priest in 1888 by Bishop Howe. He was missionary at York, Lancaster and Chester, S. C., becoming in 1888, rector of the Church of the Advent, Spartanburg, S. C. After eleven years of activity, he became rector of St. Mary's School at Raleigh, N. C., continuing until 1903, when he became Bishop of Mississippi. He was consecrated by Bishops Dudley, Weed, Nelson, Gailor, Johnston and Beekwith. He is author of: The Ministry of the Laity; Christian Education; The Church's Duty, and other published addresses. On July 17, 1888, he married at Tallahassee, Fla., Lucy Beverly Randolph, now deceased. In Aug., 1906, he married Mrs. Ivy Perrin Gass, of Abbeville, S. C. Address: Jackson, Miss.

BRAWLEY, William H.:

United States judge; born at Chester, S. C., May 13, 1841; son of H. C. and Harriet R. (Foote) Brawley. He was graduated from South Carolina College in 1860, with the degree of A.B., and that college conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. in 1905. He studied law after the war between the States, in which he served on the Confederate side, and engaged in practice at Chester, S. C., practising there until his removal to Charleston in 1874. He became prominent in the political activities of the State as a Democrat, was solicitor of the Sixth Judicial Circuit of South Carolina from 1868 to 1874, was a member of the South Carolina Legislature from 1880 to 1890, and in 1890 was elected as a Democrat to the Fifty-second Congress. He was re-elected to the Fifty-third Congress in 1892, serving until appointed by President Cleveland in Feb., 1894, as United States judge for the District of South Carolina. Address: Charleston, S. C.

BRAXTON, Allen Caperton:

Lawyer; born at Union, Monroe County, W. Va., Feb. 6, 1862; son of Dr. Tomlin and Mary (Caperton) Braxton. He studied law in a lawyer's office and at the University of Virginia and was admitted to the bar of Virginia in 1883, and began to practise law at Staunton, Va. He was for several years Commonwealth's attorney and city attorney of that city. During the year 1901-1902, he was delegate to the Constitutional Convention of Virginia, when the Constitution of that State was revised, and served as chairman of the Committee on Corporations and as a member of several others. Mr. Braxton is an authority on corporations, writing several articles on the subject and formulating the powers and laying the foundation of the Virginia Corporation Commission for the purpose of regulating and controlling railways and all other public service corporations. He was a delegate at large from Virginia to the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis in 1904; and was president of the State Bar Association of Virginia and of the Business Men's Club of Richmond, Va. He is general counsel for the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad Co., and of the Washington Southern Railway Co., and is of the counsel for the receivers of the Seaboard Air Line Railway, and his firm are general advisory counsel for the Georgia and Florida Railway. He is a member of the Westmoreland, Commonwealth and other clubs in Richmond. Address: Richmond, Va.

BRAY, Frank Chapin:

Editor; born in Salineville, Ohio, May 7, 1866; son of Rev. James Madison and Wilhelmina (Chapin) Bray. He was graduated from Wesleyan University, Conn., in 1890. In 1891 he became city editor of the Middletown (Conn.) Herald, managing editor of the Erie (Pa.) Morning Dispatch from 1892 to 1894, served on the editorial staff of the Literary Digest from 1894 to 1899, editing also in 1898 to 1899 the Phi Kappa Psi Shield, and departments in Werner's Magazine and The Chautauquan. In 1899 he became editor of The Chautauquan, and since June, 1902, has been editor-in-chief of the Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle Books, The Chautauquan Magazine, Chautauquan Weekly, Daily (in summer season), and quarterly, and the Chautauqua Special Courses for Home Reading. He is a member of the National Arts Club of New York, and the Literary Club of Chicago. He married at Washington, Pa., June 18, 1901, Gertrude McMillan. Address: Chautauqua, N. Y.

BRAY, John P.:

American consul-general; born in Henderson, Sibley County, Minn., Feb. 14, 1859. His parents migrated from the State of New York in the year 1855. He received a high school education and was graduated from the Commercial Department of St. Cloud College. He went to Grand Forks, N. Dak., in 1876, and was one of the pioneers of the Red River Valley. He engaged in the mercantile business, but was made the first county auditor of Grand Forks County. He served in this position for three terms (six years). When the State was taken into the Union he was elected its first State auditor in 1889 and reelected in 1891. Before the expiration of his term he was appointed postmaster at Grand Forks by President Harrison. In addition to these positions Mr. Bray was chairman of the commission appointed by the Legislature to apportion and divide the public assets between the States of North and South Dakota. He was appointed by President McKinley consul-general at Melbourne, and re-appointed by President Roosevelt. Address: American Consulate General, Melbourne, Australia.

BRAZER, Clarence Wilson:

Architect; born in Philadelphia, Pa., March 13, 1880; son of Christopher Brazer and Julia Wilson (Stackhouse) Brazer. He was educated at Asbury Park, N. J., High School, the Drexel Institute and Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, Philadelphia, four years in various Philadelphia offices and four years in the office of Cass Gilbert and the Society of Beaux Arts Architects Ateliers, in New York City, and Europe, and has traveled and studied extensively in Europe. He has been engaged in practice as an architect in New York City since 1902. Architect of Trinity P. E. Church, Seventh Avenue, New York City, the Pavilion and other buildings on the boardwalk at Asbury Park, N. J., as well as many residences. In an open competition held in 1908 for the selection of an architect for the new Capitol of Porto Rico at San Juan, his design was recommended for second prize by the jury of architects from among 135 competitors. Mr. Brazer is a member of the T-Square Club of Philadelphia, and of the Architectural League of New York City. He married in Philadelphia April 25, 1905, Mary Ella Mendenhall. Address: 1133 Broadway, New York City.

BRECKENRIDGE, Clifton Rhodes:

Diplomatist; born in Lexington, Ky., Nov. 22, 1846. He was educated at schools in Kentucky and at the Washington College, Va.; served as private in the Confederate States Army, and as midshipman in the Confederate States Navy. In 1870 he moved to Arkansas, and engaged in cotton planting, and from 1883 to 1894 was a member of Congress, and served on the Ways and Means Committee during the greater part of his congressional service. He resigned from the 53d Congress and became United States Minister to Russia, from 1894 to 1897. On Nov. 21, 1876, he married in Memphis, Tenn., Catherine B. Carson. He is now president of the Arkansas Valley Trust Company. Address: Fort Smith, Ark.

BRECKENRIDGE, Ralph W.:

Lawyer; born at Carlisle, Ohio, March 14, 1860; son of Charles F. and Mary Jane (Foster) Breckenridge. He is of old New England stock, his ancestor, James Breckenridge, having played a prominent part in founding the State of Vermont. His paternal grandmother was a Morton, having descended from Stephen Hopkins, who came over in the Mayflower, and from George Morton, who came over in the Ann. He was educated in the public schools of Northern Iowa, whither his father removed at the close of the Civil War. He began the study of law at Cresco, Iowa; was admitted to the bar in 1881, and located in Omaha that year. He was first associated with William R. Morris, now deceased, under the firm name of Morris and Breckenridge. For more than twenty years he has been associated with Mr. Charles J. Greene, and is now a member of the law firm of Greene, Breckenridge and Matters. Mr. Breckenridge is a prominent member of the Nebraska State Bar Association and was its president in the year 1905; he has been a member of the Executive Committee of the American Bar Association, and chairman of its standing Committee on Insurance since that committee was created. In 1904 he was a delegate from Nebraska to the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists at St. Louis, Mo. He has made a special study of the legal problems related to insurance, upon which he has lectured at Yale, at the University of Nebraska, and at various other places. He is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and of the Connecticut Society of Mayflower descendants. He married Sept. 19, 1888, Harriet A. Allen, of Burlington, Vt., and has two children. Residence: 3611 Jackson Street, Omaha. Address: 711 New York Building, Omaha, Neb.

BRECKONS, Joseph Allison:

Newspaper writer since 1884; born in St. Clair, Pa., Nov. 27, 1857. He was educated at Kewanee, Ill., 1864 to 1869; St. Clair, Pa., 1869 to 1871, and the academy at Millersville, Pa., 1871 to 1873. He published the Cheyenne (Wyo.) Daily Leader, 1884 to 1893; was Wyoming correspondent for the New York Sun, Chicago Record, San Francisco Call, Omaha Bee, Salt Lake Tribune, Denver Republican, etc., 1894 to 1900; established the Wyoming Industrial Journal in 1899, and has been the Washington correspondent for the Denver Republican, Salt Lake Herald, Hawaiian Star, and the Portland (Ore.) Telegram since 1900; also acting as secretary to Senator Warren of Wyoming. He is a Republican, and is author of: Water Right Problems on Bear River; also wrote: "The Carey Arid Act," in the Irrigation Age; "Irrigated Colorado," in same; and "Arid Land Legislation," in Illustrated West. In 1882 he married in Philadelphia, Josephine White. Address: 1814 G. Street, N. W. Office: 613 Fifteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BREHM, Marie Caroline:

Lecturer; born in Sandusky, Ohio, June 30, 1859; daughter of William Henry and Elizabeth (Rhode) Brehm. She was educated in the public schools of Sandusky, Ohio, and at home, with her father as instructor in civics and on public questions. She organized and taught a class of fifteen boys in Sunday school at 16 years, removed from Ohio to Illinois in 1882; was superintendent of a Sunday school in Claremont, Ill., 1887; principal of the Claremont schools, 1887-1888; district president and organizer of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, 1891-1896; State superintendent of Institutes, 1895-1906, and State president, 1901-1906, vice-president since 1907 of the Illinois Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and from 1895 to 1902 superintendent of the National N. C. T. W. Franchise Department; elected in June, 1906, special lecturer on scientific temperance of the General Assembly's Permanent Committee of Temperance of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., of which she is now field secretary and lecturer. Miss Brehm was two years a trustee of the Frances E. Willard National Temperance Hospital, Chicago; was three times nominated by the Prohibition party for trustee of the State University (received 42,725 votes in 1904 and led the ticket in 1908); has lectured at Chautauqua assemblies since 1896; delivered one of the dedicatory sermons at the dedication of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Hillsboro, Ill.; and she frequently addresses ministers' meetings, synods, presbyteries, State normal schools, State universities and student bodies of various kinds on scientific temperance, Christian citizenship and woman suffrage. Her publications include her five annual addresses while State president of the Illinois W. C. T. U., and various pamphlets, leaflets, tracts, etc., and she wrote the constitution under which the Illinois W. C. T. U. does its work, including some original features which have been copied by other State and local unions. She is a life member of the National W. C. T. U., and of the Loyal Temperance Legion of Illinois, and a member of the Chicago Peace Society and the South Side Equality Club of Chicago. Address: 5464 Jefferson Avenue, Chicago.

BRENNAN, James Francis:

Lawyer; born in Peterborough, N. H., March 31, 1853; son of Hubert Brennan and Mary (Mahoney) Brennan. He was educated in the academy at Peterborough, and graduated and received the degree of B.A. from the University of Maryland, Baltimore, in 1884. Returning to his native town he engaged successfully in the practice of law and has had charge of very many important law suits. He is one of the three trustees of the New Hampshire State Library, and a member of the State Board of Charities and Correction. He has held many town and State offices, and is president and director of several of the local corporations. He is a Democrat in politics and a Catholic in religion. He is a member of the American-Irish Historical Society, New Hampshire Historical Society and Histiographer of the Peterborough Historical Society. Address: Peterborough, N. H.

BRENNAN, Thomas Francis:

Catholic bishop; born in Tipperary, Ireland, in 1853. He came to the United States in childhood, settling in Pennsylvania. After his graduation from Allegheny College, and studying the classics at Rouen, France, and theology at Innsbruck, Germany, he returned to this country, engaging in mission work in Pennsylvania, and was instrumental in building three churches. He represented the diocese of Erie at the jubilee of Pope Leo XIII. and was made domestic prelate of the Pope's household with the title of Monsignore, receiving the degree of D.D. at Rome in 1880. He was consecrated bishop of Dallas, Texas, April 5, 1891, resigning two years later. In 1893 and 1894 he was vicar apostolic of Labrador, and in 1894 and 1895 became auxiliary bishop in New Foundland, returning to Rome at the Pope's request. Address: Via del Seminario, 112, Rome, Italy.

BRENNER, Victor David:

Medalist, sculptor; born in Shavly, Russia, June 12, 1871. He arrived in New York in May, 1890, and started in business as a die cutter in 1893. In 1898 he went to Paris and became a pupil of Louis Oscar Roty, and exhibited his works at the Paris Exposition and Salon, 1900, the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, 1901, and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, 1904, receiving awards from each. Mr. Brenner designed the William Muhlenberg medal on the opening of St. Luke's Hospital; the 25th National Conference of Charities medal; souvenir plaquette of the American Section of the Paris Exposition, 1900; the George W. Curtis medal; Columbia University; Volunteers' medal, given by the State of Michigan to her soldiers and sailors; Prince Henry medal by the American Numismatic Society; Theodore L. De Vinne medal by the Typotheta of New York; John Fritz medal by the United Engineering Societies; the Wright Brothers' medal, presented to them by the Aero Club of America; Lloyd McKim Garrison medal for Harvard University; Amerigo Vespucci and John Paul Jones plaques by the American Numismatic Society; James McNeill Whistler plaque; medal of the International Congress on Tuberculosis, Washington, 1908; employees medal of the Panama Canal; the Lincoln cent adapted, Feb. 18, 1909; seals of the New York Public Library, the Fine Arts Federation of New York; busts of Professor Charles Eliot and Simon Stern; portraits of William M. Evarts, Collis P. Huntington, ex-President Theodore Roosevelt, etc. His works are included in the collections of the Paris Mint, the Munich Glyptothek, Vienna Numismatic Society, Metropolitan Museum of Art, and Numismatic Society, New York, Art Institute of Chicago, the Luxembourg Museum in Paris, and the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. Mr. Brenner is a member of the American Numismatic Society, National Sculpture Society, the Architectural League and the Arts Club in New York. Residence: 107 Second Avenue. Office: 114 E. 28th Street, New York City.

BRENT, Charles Henry:

Protestant Episcopal bishop of the Philippine Islands; born at New Castle, Ontario, April 9, 1862; son of Rev. Canon Henry and Sophia Frances (Cummings) Brent. He studied at Trinity College, Toronto, graduating with the degree of B. A. in 1884 and receiving that of M.A. in 1889 and D.D. in 1901. He was ordered deacon in the Church of England in 1886, and ordained in the Church of England in 1886, and ordained to the priesthood the following year by Bishop Sweatnam of Toronto. He became assistant at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Buffalo, N. Y., in 1887 and of St. John the Evangelist, Boston, Mass., the following year. He was associate rector of St. Stephen's Church, Boston, 1891 to 1901, in which latter year he became rector of the same church. He was elected Bishop of the Philippine Islands and consecrated bishop in 1901. In 1908, on the death of Bishop Satterlee, Bishop Brent was elected Bishop of Washington, but declined in view of the importance of his work in the Philippines. He was on the editorial staff of the Churchman (New York) from 1897 to 1900. Bishop Brent is author of: With God in the World; The Consolations of the Cross; The Splendor of the Human Body; Adventure for God; Liberty and Other Sermons; The Mind of Christ Jesus; Leadership (Longmans); With God in Prayer (Jacobs). He was Paddock lecturer at the General Theological Seminary, N. Y., in 1904, and William Belden Noble lecturer at Harvard University in 1907. He was a member of the Philippine Opium Commission in 1903 and 1904; 1908-1909, Senior U. S. Commissioner to the International Opium Commission in Shanghai and became its president. Address: 253 Calle Nozaleda, Manila, P. I.

BRETT, George Platt:

President of the Macmillan Company; born in London, England, in 1858; son of George F. and Elizabeth (Platt) Brett. He was educated in schools in London and at the College of the City of New York. He became connected in 1879 with The Macmillan Company, of which he is now president, and is also a director of the Macmillan Publishing Company, of Canada. He is a director of the American Publishers' Association. Mr. Brett is an occasional contributor to magazines, chiefly on professional topics. He is a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce, American Geographical Society, American Institute Archeology, American Association for the Advancement of Science, and is also a member of the Century Association, and the Players', Grolier, New York Athletic, National Arts, and National Democratic Clubs of New York City, and the National Club of London, England. He married in New York City, in 1891, Marie Louise Tostevin. Residence: 267 West End Avenue. Office: 66 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

BREWER, David Josiah:

Associate justice of the U. S. Supreme Court; born in Smyrna, Asia Minor, June 20, 1837; son of Rev. Josiah Brewer, one of the early missionaries of the American Board to Turkey, and of his wife, Emilia A. (Field) Brewer, who was a sister of David Dudley, Cyrus W., and Justice Stephen J. Field. He was graduated from Yale College in 1856, and from the Albany Law School in 1858, and the following year he established himself in the practice of law at Leavenworth, Kan., where he resided until he removed to Washington to enter upon his present duties. He was appointed U. S. commissioner in 1861, served as judge of the probate and criminal courts of Leavenworth County, Kan., 1863-1864, judge of the District Court, 1865-1869; county attorney of Leavenworth County, 1870. In 1870 he was elected, and in 1876 and 1882 was reelected a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Kansas. He was appointed, in 1884, by President Arthur, to the office of judge of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eighth District, which he filled until his appointment in 1889, to his present office as associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States in succession to Justice Stanley Matthews, deceased. Justice Brewer was appointed by President Cleveland to the office of president of the Venezuela Boundary Commission in 1896, and in 1899 was appointed a member of the Arbitration Tribunal to settle the boundary dispute between British Guiana and Venezuela. Justice Brewer has delivered orations and addresses on many important occasions, was orator at the Bicentennial of Yale University in 1901, and was president of the International Congress of Lawyers and Jurists, held at St. Louis in 1904 in connection with the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. Justice Brewer has had the degree of LL.D. conferred upon him by Iowa College, Washburn College, Yale, Bowdoin, Wesleyan, and the Universities of Wisconsin and Vermont. He is author of: The Pew to the Pulpit, 1897; The Twentieth Century from Another View Point, 1899; American Citizenship, 1902. He married at Burlington, Vt., Oct. 3, 1861, Louise R. Landon, who died April 3, 1898; and married again, at Burlington, Vt., June 5, 1901, Emma Miner Mott, of Washington, D. C. Address: 1923 Sixteenth Street, Washington, D. C.

BREWER, Leigh Richmond:

Bishop of Montana; born at Berkshire, Vt., Jan. 20, 1839. He was graduated from the academic course of Hobart College, B.A., 1866, M.A., 1869, and received the degrees of S.T.D. and D.D. in 1881. He studied also at the General Theological Seminary in New York City. He was ordered deacon in the Episcopal church in 1866 by Bishop Horatio Potter, and ordained priest the following year by Bishop Cox. Upon entering the ministry he became curate of Grace Church, Carthage, N. Y., later rector of Trinity Church, Watertown, N. Y. He was consecrated bishop in 1880 by Bishops Huntington, Tuttle, Bissell, B. H. Paddock and Morris, and became Bishop of Montana. He married, in 1866, Henrietta W. Foote. He is author of various addresses, appeals and reports. Address: Helena, Montana.

BREWSTER, William:

Ornithologist; born in Wakefield, Mass., July 5, 1851. He was graduated from the Cambridge High School in 1869 and is an honorary A.B. and A.M., receiving the first named degree at Amherst in 1880, and the other in 1899 at Harvard. He was the assistant in charge of the collection of birds and mammals, for the Boston Society of Natural History from 1880 to 1887; in charge of the department of mammals and birds at the Cambridge Museum of Comparative Zoölogy from 1885 to 1900, and since then he has become assistant in charge of birds. Most of his time is devoted to the managing of a private museum of ornithology in Cambridge. He is one of the three trustees of an estate in Boston, and one of eleven trustees of the Brewster Free Academy at Wolfeboro, N. H., which was endowed by his father; is ex-president of the American Ornithologists' Union; and president of the Nuttall Ornithologist Club, and the Massachusetts Audubon Society. Mr. Brewster is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and is a member of various other scientific societies in this country and Europe. On Feb. 9, 1878, he married at Boston, Caroline F. Kettell. Address: 145 Brattle Street, Cambridge, Mass.

BREWSTER, William:

Manufacturer of carriages and automobiles; born in New York City, June 2, 1866; son of Henry and Charlotte (Draper) Brewster. He was educated at St. John's School, at Sing Sing, N. Y. He started in business with Brewster & Co., Oct. 1, 1883; studied designing in Paris in 1885, and visited the principal carriage concerns of Europe in 1886. He was admitted to the firm of Brewster & Co. July 1, 1888, and has been its president since its incorporation, Jan. 1, 1903. He is also a director of the Lincoln National Bank and of the Northern Insurance Co. of New York. Mr. Brewster is an independent in politics, a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and a life member of the Museum of Natural History, and a member of the Union League, City and Barnard Clubs of New York City. He is a widower and has a daughter, Barbara. Address: Broadway and 47th Street, New York City.

BREYFOGEL, Sylvanus C.:

Bishop of the Evangelical Association; born at Pleasantville, Pa., July 20, 1851; son of Seneca and Sarah (Ely) Breyfogle. He was educated in the Central Pennsylvania College, Union Seminary of Pennsylvania, and was graduated from Illinois Wesleyan University, with the degree of Ph.B., and received the degree of D.D. from Otterbein University in 1901. He was ordained in the ministry of the Evangelical Association in 1873; filled five pastorates; was elected presiding elder in 1886, and has been bishop since 1891. He has preached in official episcopal tours throughout the United States, Canada and Europe; has made tours of inspection of missionary fields of his church in China and Japan, and speaks frequently at the summer assemblies of the Ocean Grove School of Theology; Winona Assembly, etc. He is author of: Evangelical Landmarks; The Polity of the Evangelical Association; Great Sermons by Great Preachers. He was formerly editor of The Preachers' Assistant, and is a member of the Publication Committee of his denomination. He married at Reading, Pa., May 8, 1877, Kate Boas. Address: Reading, Pa.

BRIDGES, Fidelia:

Landscape painter; born in Salem, Mass., 1834; daughter of Henry Gardner and Eliza (Chadwick) Bridges, her ancestors being among the earliest settlers of Salem and vicinity since 1624. Her earlier work was principally in oils, but more recently her paintings have chiefly been water colors, and she has been represented in numerous important exhibitions. Miss Bridges is an associate academician of the National Academy of Design and a member of the American Water Color Society. Address: Canaan, Conn.

BRIDGMAN, Frederic Arthur:

Artist; born in Tuskegee, Ala., Nov. 10, 1847. He was an apprentice in the engraving department of the American Bank Note Company in New York in 1864 and 1865, and in the meantime studied in the Brooklyn Art School and the National Academy of Design. He went to Paris, and from 1866 to 1871 was a pupil under J. L. Gérôme and at the École des Beaux Arts. His studio is in Paris, but he occasionally visits New York. Mr. Bridgman is a painter of figure and of oriental and archaeological pictures, and has won medals at Paris and elsewhere. He was appointed chevalier in 1878 and officier, 1907, of the Légion d'Honneur of France, 1878, and is an officer of the Order of St. Michael of Bavaria. Mr. Bridgman is author of: Winters in Algeria; and also (in French) of: Anarchy in Art, and the Idol and the Ideal. He is also composer of orchestral music of much merit. He is a member of the National Academy of Design; the Society of American Artists, and Parisian Society of American Artists. Address: 146 Boulevard Malesherbes, Paris.

BRIDGMAN, George H.:

President of Hamline University, Minnesota; born in Ontario, Canada, Aug. 2, 1841. He was graduated from Victoria University, Canada, in 1864, and from Syracuse University he received the degrees of A.M. in 1867, D.D. in 1878 and LL.D. in 1900. He was principal of Wesleyan Seminary at Lima, N. Y., 1873-1883, and is a clergyman of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In June, 1873, he married Mary B. Elliott, at Brantford, Ontario. Address: 1495 Hewitt Avenue, St. Paul, Minn.

BRIDGMAN, Herbert Lawrence:

Traveller, and secretary-treasurer, Peary Arctic Club. He was born at Amherst, Mass., May 30, 1844, and is a graduate of Amherst College, receiving the degrees of A.B. in 1866, A.M. in 1869; and honorary M.A. in 1904, and was president of the general association of alumni, 1908-1909. Mr. Bridgman is by profession a journalist, having been connected with the Springfield Republican in his earlier life, and successively New York agent of the New England Associated Press, Washington correspondent of the Boston Advertiser, and subsequently connected with the N. Y. Tribune, Frank Leslie's Publishing House, the New York Press, and the Brooklyn Standard Union. He began his experience with Arctic affairs by a voyage in the Falcon, 1894. He was in command of the Diana expedition in 1899, and of the Erik in 1901. He was with Prof. William Libbey in the Enchanted Mesa expedition to New Mexico, in 1897, and in 1904 made an extensive journey in the Sudan. He is best known by his services in connection with the efforts of Commander Peary to discover the North Pole, being secretary-treasurer of the Peary Arctic Club, which has raised the money necessary for the great arctic explorer's expeditions. Mr. Bridgman is a member of the International Polar Commission, the American, Philadelphia, and National Geographic Societies, Psi Upsilon fraternity, Chamber of Commerce of New York, and the Sons of the Revolution, and chevalier of the Order of Leopold II (1909). He is also a member of the Explorers' Club of New York, and the American Alpine Club of Philadelphia. Mr. Bridgman is at present the business manager of the Brooklyn Standard Union, and is a director of the Brooklyn Warehouse and Storage Co. He is author of: Africa from Sea to Center, describing a journey to the Sudan and Uganda, 1905. He married in New York, Sept. 7, 1887, Helen Bartlett, and has one son. Residence: 604 Carlton Avenue. Office: Standard Union Office, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BRIDGMAN, Lewis J.:

Illustrator; born in Lawrence, Mass., Nov. 17, 1857. He was graduated from Harvard College with the class of 1881, and he is one of the most successful of modern illustrators, and has been equally successful as a writer of short stories and of children's books illustrated by himself. He was formerly interested in the Nationalist movement, and was a delegate to the Peoples Party convention at Omaha, Neb., in 1892, but is now affiliated with the Republican party. He is prominent in the civic affairs of Salem, Mass., where he now resides. He is the author and illustrator of: Odd Business, 1893; Mother Wild Goose, 1900; Guess, 1901; Gulliver's Bird Book, 1902; Guess Again, 1902; Bridgman's Kewts, 1902; Lawsonized Lyrics, 1905; Seem-So's, 1906; The Santa Claus Club, 1907. He married first at North Andover, Mass., Nov. 8, 1883, Lucy Stanwood Blanchard; and second, at Plymouth, Mass., June 7, 1893, Annie Page Campbell, and has two sons and a daughter. Address: 42 Summit Avenue, Salem, Mass.

BRIESEN, Arthur von:

Lawyer; born in Borkendorf, Germany, July 11, 1843; son of Richard and Adèle (Brandtke) von Briesen. He was educated at the Prussian Gymnasium, Hohenstein; at Braunsberg; and by a private tutor before he came in 1858 to New York where he was graduated from the New York University law school in 1868. He was Sergeant of Company B, 1st New York Volunteer Engineers from 1861-1864, and he was on the staff of the Scientific American from 1864-1872, and of the American Artisan, 1872-1874. He was with the 10th Army Corps in South Carolina and Georgia, at the battles of Hilton Head, Ft. Pulaski, Secessionville, Pocotaligo, etc.; was president of the Citizens' Union in 1896 and the German-American McKinley and Roosevelt League in 1900, and chairman of the New York League in 1900, and of the Ellis Island investigating committee in 1903. He was admitted to the bar in 1868 and since 1888 has been senior member of the firm of Briesen and Knauth. He has been president of the Legal Aid Society since 1890, and is director of the Stapleton National Bank. He is also a member of the New York Chamber of Commerce; the National Geographic Society; the Bar Association, etc. In 1904 Mr. Briesen was a delegate to the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists at St. Louis, and the following year was decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by the French Government, and in 1908 he received from the Emperor of Germany the Order of the Crown of Prussia. He married Anna Goepel, in Brooklyn, Oct. 22, 1873, and he has five children. Residence: 1 East 47th Street. Office: 25 Broad St., New York City.

BRIGGS, Charles Augustus:

Clergyman, theologian; born in New York City, Jan. 15, 1841; son of Alanson Tuthill and Sarah Mead (Berrian) Briggs. He was educated in the University of Virginia, 1857-1860; the Union Theological Seminary, 1861-1863, and the University of Berlin, 1866-1869, receiving the degree of D.D. from the Universities of Edinburgh, Princeton, Glasgow and Williams, and of D.Litt. from Oxford. From 1870-1874 he was pastor of a Presbyterian Church at Roselle, N. J.; was professor of Hebrew from 1874-1891, of Biblical theology, 1891-1904, and since then of Theological Encyclopædia and Symbolics, at the Union Theological Seminary. He was editor of the Presbyterian Review from 1880-1890, and in 1891 was tried for heresy, but acquitted by the Presbytery of New York. In 1893, however, he was suspended by the General Assembly. In 1899 he was made deacon, and in 1900 was ordained priest by the Protestant Episcopal bishop of New York. Dr. Briggs is a member of the American Oriental and German Oriental Societies, the Oxford Historical Society, the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, and of the Century Club. He is the author of: Biblical Study: American Presbyterianism; Messianic Prophecy; Whither? A Theological Question for the Times; The Authority of Holy Scripture (inaugural address upon which the charges of heresy were based); Bible, Church, and Reason; The Higher Criticism of the Hexateuch; The Message of the Gospels; The Messiah of the Apostles; Case against and Defense of Dr. Briggs (3 parts); Study of Holy Scripture; Incarnation of the Lord; New Light on the Life of Jesus; The Ethical Teachings of Jesus; Commentary on the Psalms; Church Unity (all Scribners). Dr. Briggs is also joint author (with F. Brown and S. R. Driver) of the New Hebrew Lexicon (Houghton Mifflin), and with von Hügel of The Papal Commission and the Pentateuch (Longmans); is editor of the International Theological Library, 34 volumes, and The International Critical Commentary, 42 volumes, (both Scribners), besides contributing to leading periodicals in this country and in Europe. Dr. Briggs married in New York City, Oct. 19, 1865, Julie Valentine. Address: 700 Park Avenue, New York City.

BRIGGS, Frank Obediah:

United States senator; born in Concord, N. H., Aug. 12, 1851; son of James F. and Rosanna (Smith) Briggs. He was educated in Phillips Exeter Academy, New Hampshire, 1866-1868 and in the United States Military Academy, from which he was graduated in the class of 1872. He served as second lieutenant in the Second U. S. Infantry as second lieutenant, 1872-1877, when he resigned and became associated with John A. Roebling's Sons Company, of which he is assistant treasurer. He was elected mayor of Trenton, N. J., serving until Jan. 1, 1892; was appointed a member of the State Board of Education by Governor Voorhees, in 1901, but resigned in 1902, when appointed State treasurer to fill a vacancy, afterward being twice elected to that office and serving until elected in 1907, United States senator from New Jersey, for the term expiring in 1903. Senator Briggs has always been an active Republican, and in 1904 was elected chairman of the State Republican Committee, managing the successful campaign of that year. Besides his connection with John A. Roebling's Sons and subsidiary corporations Senator Briggs is first vice-president of the Norfolk and Portsmouth Traction Company, a director of the Broad Street National Bank, the Trenton Savings Fund Society and the Metropolitan Surety Company. He is a member of the Union League, Lawyers and Grolier Clubs of New York, the Lotus Club of Trenton, Dofobo Club of Chicago, United Service Club of Philadelphia, and the Bibliophile Society of Boston. He married in Trenton, N. J., Sept. 22, 1874, Emily A. Allison. Address: Trenton, N. J.

BRIGHAM, Johnson:

Author, librarian; born in Cherry Valley, N. Y., March 11, 1846. He graduated from Hamilton College and in 1870, at Cornell University. He was editor and half owner of the Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Daily Republican from 1882-1893; president of the Iowa State Republican League in 1892; United States Consul to Aix-la-Chapelle, Germany in 1893, and was editor and publisher of the Midland Monthly Magazine from 1894-1899. He has been the State Librarian of Iowa since 1898, and president of the Iowa Library Commission since 1900; was president of the Iowa Library Association in 1903 and of the National Association of State Libraries in 1904, and he is a member of the Iowa State Historical Society; and the State Anthropological Society. Mr. Brigham is a contributor to magazines and reviews and has been designated by the State Historical Society to write the Life of James Harlan. He is the author of: An Old Man's Jdyl. In 1892 he married Lucy Hitchcock Walker, at Ottumwa, Iowa. Address: Des Moines, Ia.

BRIGHAM, William Tufts:

Ethnologist; born in Boston, May 24, 1841. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1862, receiving the degree of A.M.; and the honorary degree of Sc.D., was conferred upon him by Columbia University in 1905. He explored the botany of the Hawaiian Islands in 1864-1865; was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1867; and for part of the next two years was instructor of botany at Harvard. While a member of the Boston school board he inaugurated a system of art instruction in the public schools, also the method of anthropometry now in general use in colleges, etc. In 1888 he removed to Honolulu and has since had charge of the museum of Polynesian ethnology and natural history founded by Mr. C. R. Bishop. He is author of: Cast Catalogue of Antique Sculpture; Guatemala, the Land of the Quetzal; Volcanic Manifestations in New England; Hawaiian Feather-work; Index to the Islands of the Pacific Ocean; Stone Implements of Ancient Hawaiians; Mats and Baskets of Hawaiians; Ancient Hawaiian Houses and Eruptions of Hawaiian Volcanoes. Dr. Brigham is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and an honorary fellow of the Royal Anthropological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland. Address: Bishop Museum of Ethnology, Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands.

BRINCKERHOFF, Henry Morton:

Electrical engineer; born in Fishkill-on-Hudson, New York, April 20, 1868. He was graduated from Stevens Institute of Technology, in 1890 as mechanical engineer and began electrical work in the employ of Thomson-Houston Company on construction work on the West End Street Railway, of Boston; was assistant engineer in the power house of the Utica Belt Line Street Railway in 1891-1892, and foreman in charge of car equipment of the General Electrical Company in Boston and on the Coney Island and Brooklyn Railway. He was assistant electrical engineer of the Intra-mural Railway at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893, which was the first third-rail elevated road of the United States, and was joint patentee of the 3rd Rail System now so extensively used, and on Aug. 4, 1894, became electrical engineer of the Metropolitan West Side Elevated Railway in Chicago, for which he equipped the first large elevated road for city transportation with electricity. From 1898-1906 he was assistant general manager and general manager of the same company, and since then has been the electrical associate of Gen. William Barclay Parsons. He is a member of the American Society of Electrical Engineers, and the Western Society of Engineers. In 1903 he married Florence L. Fay at Chicago. Residence: 3 West 8th Street. Office: 60 Wall Street, New York City.

BRINKERHOFF, Roeliff:

Banker; born at Owasco, Cayuga County, N. Y., June 28, 1828. He was educated in academies at Auburn and Homer, N. Y., and afterward engaged in teaching, beginning at the age of sixteen. He was a tutor at The Hermitage, the home of General Jackson in Tennessee, for three years, and in 1849 went to Mansfield, Ohio, where he studied law with Judge Jacob Brinkerhoff, a relative, and was admitted to the bar. He practised law in Mansfield, and was also from 1855-1859 editor and proprietor of the Mansfield Herald. At the beginning of the war he became first lieutenant and quartermaster of the Sixty-fourth Regiment of Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and served five years, attaining the rank of colonel in the Quartermaster's Department, and brevet Brigadier-general of United States Volunteers for meritorious services during the war. He resumed the practice of law until 1878, and he is now president of the Mansfield Savings Bank. General Brinkerhoff has taken high rank as a philanthropist and penologist, is a prominent member of the National Conference of Charities and Correction and was its president in 1880, was president of the American delegation to and vice-president of the International Prison Congress at Paris in 1895, and was formerly vice-president and succeeded General R. B. Hayes as president of the American National Prison Congress. He is also chairman of the Ohio Board of State Charities of which he has been a member for the past thirty years. He is also president of the Ohio Archeological and Historical Society which he organized in 1875. He married Mary Bentley, granddaughter of General Robert Bentley, of Ohio. Address: Mansfield, Ohio.

BRINTON, Christian:

Art critic; born in Thornbury, Chester County, Pa., Sept. 17, 1870; son of Joseph Hill and Mary A. (Herr) Brinton. He was educated at Haverford College of which he is a B.A. of 1892 and M.A. of 1906. He completed his studies at the University of Heidelberg and the University of Paris, and was for a time a pupil of Félix

Galipaux at the Vaudeville Theatre, Paris. After a successful career as an actor in Paris, London and New York, he became associate editor of The Critic, 1900-1903 and art director of Everybody's Magazine, 1903-1905. He has been a frequent contributor of articles on architecture, sculpture and painting to the leading magazines of the United States and is author of: Modern Artists, 1908. He has travelled extensively throughout Europe and resided abroad for protracted periods. He is a member of the Leonardo da Vinci Society, and of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, of the Pennsylvania Society of New York, and of various clubs in New York and Philadelphia. Address: 16 Gramerey Park, New York City.

BRISBANE, Arthur:

Editor N. Y. Evening Journal; born in Buffalo, New York, Dec. 12, 1864; son of Albert and Sarah (White) Brisbane. He was educated in the public schools of New York State and five years in Germany and France. Mr. Brisbane began newspaper work in 1883, on the New York Sun, with which he was connected seven years as reporter, London correspondent and editor of the Evening Sun; was managing editor of the different editions of the New York World, 1890-1897, and has been editor of the New York Evening Journal since 1897. Mr. Brisbane is one of the most prominent of American journalists, whose editorials reach a larger number of readers than those of any other man. Residence: Hempstead, L. I. Address: N. Y. Evening Journal, New York City.

BRISTOL, Frank Milton:

Methodist Episcopal bishop; born in Orleans County, N. Y., Jan. 4, 1851. In 1877 he was graduated as Ph.B. from Northwestern University, which afterward conferred upon him the A.M. and D.D. degrees. After completing the Conference course, he entered the ministry in Rock River Conference, and served as pastor of leading churches in Chicago districts for example, Trinity, Grace, Wabash Avenue and First Church, Evanston, Ill., afterward becoming pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal Church, Washington, D. C., of which President McKinley was an attendant, remaining in that charge until elected by the General Conference held at Baltimore, Md., in May, 1908, to his present office as bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and placed in charge of the South American Conference, with episcopal residence at Buenos Aires. He has five times been appointed a member of the General Conference, of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Besides the distinction he has attained as a preacher and pastor, Bishop Bristol bears high repute as a bibliophile and litterateur, and is author of several books, including: Providential Epochs; The Ministry of Art; Shakespeare and America, etc. He married in 1878 Nellie Frisbie, of Morgan Park, Ill. Address: Buenos Aires, Republica Argentina, S. A.

BRISTOW, Joseph Little:

United States senator: born in Wolfe County, Ky., July 22, 1861. In 1886 he graduated from Baker University, Kansas. From 1887-1891 he served as clerk of the district court, Douglas County, Kansas; in 1895-1897 was private secretary to Gov. Morrill (Kansas); in 1900 he had entire charge of the investigation of Cuban postal frauds and the reorganization of Cuban postal service. He owned and edited the Salina (Kansas) Daily Republican in 1890-1895, and in 1895 purchased the Ottawa (Kansas) Herald. In 1897 he was appointed fourth assistant postmaster general serving until January 20, 1905. During the latter part of his term he rendered distinguished services in the investigation and remedying of abuses in the postal service and the punishment of persons guilty of offenses under the Federal laws. He was appointed by the President special Panama Railroad Commissioner in 1905, and made an exhaustive report on the Panama Railroad. He returned to newspaper publishing in Kansas, and in the summer of 1908 became a candidate in the Republican primaries for United States senator, defeating the incumbent, Hon. Chester I. Long for the nomination and being elected for the six years, beginning March 4, 1909. He was married on Nov. 11, 1879, in Fleming County, Ky., to Margaret A. Hendrix. Address: Salina, Kan.

BRITTAİN, Joseph I.:

Consular officer: appointed consul at Nantes, France, Oct. 15, 1897; at Kehl, Germany, June 6, 1902; consul at Prague, Bohemia, Austria, March 30, 1907. He was a member of the Ohio House of Representatives from 1892-1896 and is a son of the American Revolution. Address: American Consulate, Prague, Bohemia, Austria.

BRITEN, Flora Phelps Harley (Mrs. F. E. Britten):

Lecturer and company promoter: born in Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 2, 1864; daughter of David Sower and Jennie (Phelps) Harley. On her father's side she is descended from the English Harleys, who for conscience sake left England and went to Germany, changing their name to Sower, and from Christopher Sower, who came from Germany to Pennsylvania, and printed the first Bible in German in America; and on her mother's side she is descended, in the seventh generation, from William Phelps of England, who was one of the founders of Dorchester, Mass., in 1630, and great granddaughter of John Horace Phelps, Revolutionary soldier from Northampton, Mass. She was graduated from the Manistee (Mich.) High School and from the University of Michigan as A.B., was teacher in public schools and taught art, Greek and Latin in the Central University of Iowa, became a licensed preacher in the Baptist Church, and has held three pastorates in that denomination in Nebraska and Michigan. She is a lecturer on popular themes, and also a temperance and Prohibition Party lecturer. Mrs. Britten has long been active in the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, has toured five Western States as a temperance lecturer, and especially prominent in the work in Massachusetts, where she is State superintendent of Christian citizenship in the Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance Union, president for past five years of the Boston Central Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and member of the Executive Board of the State W. C. T. U., and the Suffolk County W. C. T. U. She has written numerous small documents for circulation for Temperance purposes. Mrs. Britten has been a National lecturer of the Prohibition Party. Was office manager of the Prohibition Party of Michigan, 1898-1901. Mrs. Britten has also devoted much attention to the business of promotion and is vice-president of the Boston Development Company and director and treasurer of the Cuba Fruit Company. She married at Manistee, Mich. April 29, 1886. Rev. Fred E. Britten, then pastor of the First Baptist Church of Fairbault, Minn., and has three sons. Residence: 86 Ellory Street, Cambridge, Mass. Office: 700 Tremont Temple, Boston.

BRITTON, Nathaniel Lord:

Director on the New York Botanical Garden; born at New Dorp, Staten Island, N. Y., Jan. 15, 1859. He worked on the Vanderbilt farm in boyhood, and was educated at the Staten Island Academy, and afterward at the Columbia School of Mines, from which he was graduated as Engineer of Mines in 1879, afterward receiving from Columbia University the degrees of Ph.D. in 1881 and the honorary degree of Sc.D. in 1904. He has been connected with geological and botanical instruction in Columbia University since 1879, was professor of botany, 1891-1896, and since then emeritus professor of botany. He was appointed, in 1896, director-in-chief of the New York Botanical Garden, in which position he still continues. Dr. Britton has been an extensive contributor to the scientific press on North and South American flora and is the author of monographs on: The Flora of New Jersey; Illustrated Flora of the Northern United States and Canada; Manual of the Flora of the Northern States and Canada; North American-West Indian Flora. He was editor of the Bulletin of Torrey Botanical Club, 1888-1898. He is a member of the Botanical Society of North America, and was its president in 1898-1899; is a fellow and was vice-president in 1896 of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; a member of the New York Horticultural Society and was chairman of its Council, 1901-1907; member of the Torrey Botanical Club, New York Academy of Sciences, and was its president in 1906-1907, and is also a member of the New York Microscopical Society and other scientific societies. Dr. Britton married, August 27, 1885, Elizabeth Gertrude Knight. Mrs. Britton is herself a scientist. Residence: 2965 Decatur Avenue. Office: Bronx Park, New York City.

BRITTON, Wilton Everett:

State entomologist of Connecticut; born in Marlboro, Mass., Sept. 18, 1868; son of Benjamin Howard and Emma Eliza (Wright) Britton. He was educated in the public schools of Gilsun, N. H., and at the New Hampshire College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts, whence he was graduated B. S., 1893; at Cornell University, 1893-1894, and at Yale University, 1899-1903, receiving the degree of Ph.D., 1903. He became assistant in May, 1894, and horticulturist in October, 1894, at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, and since July, 1901 has been entomologist of the same station and State Entomologist of Connecticut. He was also lecturer in entomology in the Yale University Forest School, 1901-1906. Dr. Britton is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; is a member and was first vice-president, 1906-1908, president 1909 of the American Association of Economic Entomologists; is a member of the Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences, Connecticut Botanical Society, Entomological Society of America, the Patrons of Husbandry and the Society of Sigma Xi (Yale Chapter). He married at Surry, N. H., April 30, 1895, Bertha Madeline Perkins. Residence: 296 McKinley Avenue. Office: Agricultural Experiment Station, New Haven, Conn.

BROADHURST, George:

Dramatist; born in Walsall, England. Author of the plays: The Man of the Hour; The Call of the North; An International Marriage; What Happened to Jones; Why Smith Left Home; The Wrong Mr. Wright;

A Fool and His Money; The Crown Prince; etc. Co-author: Wildfire; The American Lord; Nancy Brown. He is a member of the Lambs, New York Athletic, American Dramatists, and Green Room Clubs of New York. Address: Lambs Club, 130 West 44th Street, New York City.

BROBSTON, Edwin:

Real estate dealer; born at Madison, Ga., Nov. 17, 1863; son of Edwin L. and Hattie (Thomas) Brobston. His grandfather, William Brobston, was a noted Presbyterian preacher in Illinois, who died at the age of ninety in 1885, at Chicago. He was educated in the common schools of Morgan County, Ga. Mr. Brobston was owner and editor of the Madisonian in 1887, and editor and manager of the first morning daily at Brunswick, Ga., 1888-1900. He engaged in general real estate development, operating through the South, and made numerous industrial speeches at Southern Pines, N. C., Huntsville, Ala., Chattanooga, Tenn. He served on numerous industrial commissions and made National notoriety by passing a ship subsidy resolution at the Maritime Congress at Brunswick, Ga., 1903. He was president of the board of education of Glynn County and Brunswick, Ga., for several years, and reorganized the schools. He is now head of the firm of Brobston & Company, real estate; president of the Jacksonville Development Company; vice-president of the Murray Hill Land Company, and the Tampa Bay Land Company, and is director in about a dozen corporations, mostly land companies. He has been a member of several Democratic State conventions in Georgia, serving on the platform committee, and active in good government. He moved to Florida in 1904, and is chairman of the emigration committee of the Board of Trade of Jacksonville, Florida. He is a Baptist in religion. Mr. Brobston is a member of the Reform Club and the Georgia Society of New York City; the Phoenix Club of Brunswick, Ga., and the Seminole Yacht, and Country Clubs of Jacksonville, Florida. He is an honorary member of the Florida Press Association. He married at Brunswick, Ga., April, 1890, Priscilla Littlefield, and they have five children. Address: 216 West Forsythe Street, Jacksonville, Fla.

BROCKWAY, Howard:

Composer, pianist; born in Brooklyn, Nov. 22, 1870; son of Leverett E. and Clara (Kingsley) Brockway. He was educated at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute; studied music with H. v. C. Korthauer, Brooklyn, and O. B. Boise and H. Barth, Berlin. Mr. Brockway gave concerts of his own works with Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, at Berlin, February, 1895; since October, 1903, member of faculty Peabody Conservatory, Peabody Institute, Baltimore, Maryland. He is a composer of Sylvan Suite, first produced by Boston Symphony Orchestra, 1901; also Symphony for Grand Orchestra, produced by Dr. Karl Muck and the Boston Symphony Orchestra in Boston, in April 5th and 6th, 1907 (chamber music), choral music, songs, pianoforte music, etc. He married, first, at Lakewood, N. J., Feb., 1896, Anabel Boise (died in 1901); and they had one daughter; married, second in Washington, D. C., April, 1906, Katherine Engs Bradford, daughter of Rear-Admiral R. B. Bradford, U. S. N. Address: Peabody Institute, Baltimore, Md.

BROCKWAY, Zebulon Reed:

Penologist; born at Lyme, Conn., April 28, 1827; son of Zebulon and Caroline Brockway, and educated at East Haddam, Conn. After acting as clerk in the Connecticut State Prison, 1848-1851, he became deputy superintendent of the Albany Penitentiary, 1851; superintendent of Monroe County Penitentiary, 1854, and in 1861 of the Detroit House of Correction, he became in 1876 the superintendent of the New York State Reformatory, Elmira, retiring in 1900. In 1873 he acted as special commissioner to establish a United States Military Prison, later located at Leavenworth, Kan. In 1901 he was non-resident special lecturer on penology at Cornell University. He is a chartermember of the National Prison Association, U. S. A.; member of Société Generale of Prisons of France. During the incumbency of Superintendent Brockway the Elmira system of reform treatment was fully developed becoming the basis of a permanent and advanced method of the treatment of criminals which has had an extensive application in all civilized countries. On April 13, 1853, he married at Wethersfield, Conn., Jane Woodhouse. Address: Elmira, N. Y.

BRODERICK, Bonadventure Finnbar:

Catholic bishop; born in Hartford, Conn., Dec. 25, 1868; son of John Harris and Margaret (Healy) Broderick. He was educated in St. Charles College, Md., from which he received the degree of A.B., 1891; in Urban College, University of the Propaganda, Rome, Ph.D., 1893, D.D., 1897; and was graduated from the American College in Rome, 1897. He was ordained priest in 1896, and took post-graduate courses in history and archaeology at Rome in 1897-1898. He was professor of history, English grammar and Italian literature in the Diocesan Seminary at Hartford, Conn., in 1898, and at Westport, Conn., 1900. In the latter year he was appointed American secretary to Monsignor Sbaretti, papal delegate to Havana, Cuba, in which capacity he carried on negotiations between the church and the Government which were successfully concluded in 1905. He was created private chamberlain by Pope Leo XIII, 1901; was American secretary to the Apostolic delegation to the Philippine Islands, 1901, serving until the appointment of the Taft Commission in 1902; and was the representative of the Catholic Church at the inauguration of the Cuban Republic, May 20, 1902. He was appointed titular bishop of Juliopolis in September, 1903, was consecrated Oct. 28, 1903, and served as auxiliary bishop of Havana, from 1903-1905. Bishop Broderick was appointed, in 1904, general commissioner of the Pope for the collection of Peter's Pence. He is a member of the Arcadia, and of the Collegium Cultorum Martyrum at Rome. Combining with his thorough ecclesiastical training and ripe scholarship exceptional executive ability and diplomatic insight, it has been the good fortune of Bishop Broderick to bear an influential part in negotiations between his church and his country, at a point in American history when such services and qualification as his were most needed, and to aid in bringing those negotiations to a conclusion alike honorable and just, both to the Church and the Nation. Address: Staatsburg-on-Hudson, N. Y.

BROMWELL, Charles S.:

Military engineer, U. S. A.; born at Newport, Ky., May 1, 1869. After a preliminary education at Cincinnati, O., he was graduated from the United States Military Academy, June 12, 1890, and the United States Engineer School of Application, West Point, N. Y., in 1893. After various appointments, he attained the rank of captain in February, 1901, in the United States Army, having been in charge of various engineering public works throughout the country. He is at present superintendent of public grounds and buildings at Washington and military aid to the President, with the temporary rank of colonel. He is a member of the Metropolitan, Army and Navy and Chevy Chase Clubs. He married at Washington, June 11, 1896, Letitia G. Scott. Residence: 1608 New Hampshire Avenue. Address: War Department, Washington, D. C.

BROOKE, Francis Key:

Bishop of Oklahoma; born at Gambier, Ohio, Nov. 2, 1852; son of Rev. John T. and Louisa (Hunter) Brooke. He studied at Kenyon College, graduating B.A. in 1874, and receiving the degree of M.A. in 1881. He received the degree of S.T.D. from Kansas Theological School in 1893. He took orders as deacon in the Episcopal Church in 1875 and two years later was ordained priest by Bishop Jaggard. He was rector of Grace Church, College Hill, Ohio, 1875-1877, of Christ Church, Portsmouth, Ohio, 1877-1880; of St. James' Church, Piqua, Ohio, 1880-1884; Grace Church, Sandusky, Ohio, from 1884-1886. In 1886 he was called to the rectorship of St. Peter's Church, St. Louis, until 1888; and from 1888-1893, he was rector of Trinity Church, Atchison, Kansas. He became Bishop of Oklahoma and Indian Territory, being consecrated in 1893, by Bishops Tuttle, Pierce, Spaulding, Jaggard, Thomas, Kendrick, Graves and Atwill. Bishop Brooke was married in 1881 to Mildred R. Baldwin. He is author of various addresses, missionary reports and appeals. Address: Oklahoma City, Okla.

BROOKE, John Rutter:

Major-general U. S. Army, retired; born in Philadelphia, July 21, 1838. In April, 1861, he enlisted in the Fourth Pennsylvania Infantry, and was promoted until he became brigadier-general of volunteers, May 12, 1864. On Aug. 1, 1864, he was made brevet major-general, and was commissioned lieutenant-colonel of the Thirty-seventh U. S. Infantry July 28, 1866. He was transferred to the Third Infantry, March 15, 1869, and March 20, 1870, was made colonel of the Thirteenth Infantry; was again transferred to the Third Infantry, June 14, 1879, and was commissioned brigadier-general April 6, 1888. He commanded the Departments of the Platte, Dakota and the Missouri, and on May 22, 1897, was made major-general. In April, 1898, he was sent to command troops at Chickamauga Park, and in July, 1898, was ordered to Porto Rico, as head of the Military Commission, becoming governor-general of Porto Rico. In December, 1898, he was appointed governor-general of Cuba, and commanded the Division of Cuba; and May, 1900, he was placed in command of the Department of the East. He was retired July 21, 1902. Major-General Brooke is a companion of the Pennsylvania Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. Address: Rosemont, Pa.

BROOKS, Amy:

Artist, author and illustrator; born in Chelsea, Mass., daughter of Alfred Hubbard and Hannah B. (Stebbins) Brooks. She was educated in the public schools of Hyde Park, Mass., and received her art education in the museum school of Drawing and Painting, where she won four scholarships for meritorious work, and she also received a fine musical training, and is an accomplished pianist. Her first painting was exhibited in 1895, and her first book, Randy's Summer, was published in 1900. She has since written and illustrated twenty more volumes, among which are: Dorothy Dainty; Dorothy's Playmates; Dorothy Dainty at School; Dorothy Dainty at the Shore; Dorothy in the City; Dorothy at Home; Dorothy Dainty's Gay Times; Dorothy Dainty in the Country; Dorothy Dainty's Winter; Little Sister Prue; Prue at School; Prue's Little Friends; etc. Miss Brooks has illustrated and designed covers for all of her own books and has illustrated over seventy books for other authors. She has also published some songs of a high class for which she has written the words and composed the music. Address: Hyde Park, Mass.

BROOKS, Bryant Butler:

Governor of Wyoming; born in Bernardston, Mass., Feb. 5, 1861; son of Silas Newton and Melissa Minerva (Burrows) Brooks. He attended the Powers Institute in his native place and in high school in Chicago, Ill. In 1882 he went to Wyoming and engaged in the live stock business in that state, in which he has continued most successfully, now being president of The B. B. Brooks Company and the Brooks-Hudson Company in that business; also president of the Coal Creek Coal Company, and director of the Casper National Bank. He has long been active in the Republican politics of Wyoming, was a member of the Wyoming Legislature, 1892; presidential elector on the McKinley and Roosevelt ticket, 1900, and in 1904 was elected Governor of Wyoming, and reelected in 1906 for the term expiring in January, 1911. He married in Alexandria, Neb., March 10, 1886, Mary Naomi Willard. Residence: Casper, Wyo. Office: Cheyenne, Wyo.

BROOKS, Franklin E.:

Lawyer and ex-congressman; born at Sturbridge, Worcester County, Mass., Nov. 19, 1860; son of E. T. Brooks and Anna E. Brooks. He was graduated from Brown University with the degree of A.B. in 1883, and received the degree of A.M. from the same institution in 1886. He taught for several years after his graduation, ending as an instructor in the Boston Latin School. He studied law in an office in Boston and attended the Law School of Boston University in 1887 and 1888. He was admitted to the bar of Suffolk County, Mass., in 1888, and practised law in Boston until 1891 when, because of failing health, he removed to Colorado. He resumed the practise of law in 1892 and is now a member of the law firm of Lunt, Brooks and Wilcox of Colorado Springs. He is a Republican in politics and he was elected from the State of Colorado at large in 1902 to the Fifty-eighth Congress, and was reelected in 1904 to the Fifty-ninth Congress, his second term expiring in March, 1907. He married at Leicester, Mass., June 3, 1891, Sarah Brainerd Coolidge. Address: Colorado Springs, Colo.

BROOKS, Samuel Palmer:

President of Baylor University; born in Milledgeville, Ga., Dec. 4, 1863; son of S. E. and Aurelia E. (Palmer) Brooks. He was graduated from Baylor University, Waco, Texas, as A.B., 1893, then went to Yale, where he received the degree of A.B., 1894, A.M., in course, 1902, and from Richmond College, Va., received the honorary degree of LL.D. in 1903. He has had a successful career as a teacher, and in 1902 was elected to his present position as president of Baylor University. He is a member of the Texas Historical Society, and is a member and was the first president of the Texas State Peace Society; and he is prominent in the Masonic fraternities. He married in Cleburne, Texas, Dec. 24, 1895, Mattie Sims, and they have a son and a daughter. Address: 1024 Speight Street, Waco, Texas.

BROOKS, William Penn:

Agriculturist; born at Norwell, Mass., Nov. 19, 1851; son of Nathaniel and Rebecca P. (Cushing) Brooks. After attending common schools and academies in Massachusetts, he took a course in the Massachusetts Agricultural College, from which he was graduated in 1875, with the degree of B.S. He also studied at the University of Halle, Germany (Friedrichs Universität), where he took the degree of Ph.D. in 1897. From 1870 to 1872 he taught in mixed and grammar schools. In 1877 he accepted a professorship in agriculture in the Imperial College of Agriculture, Japan, which position he held until 1889, acting as president of the college, ad interim, for four years. Since 1889 he has been professor of agriculture in the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and has been president of this college, ad interim, at two different periods—about two years in all. Since 1906 he has been director of the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station. His travels include Japan, Belgium, Germany, Austria, Holland, England, and much of the United States. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Massachusetts Forestry Association, and the Phi Kappa Phi and Phi Sigma Kappa fraternities, and has received from the Emperor of Japan the decoration of the Fourth Order of the Rising Sun. He married at Revere, Mass., March 29, 1882, Eva B. Hall, and they have two children. Address: Amherst, Mass.

BROOKS, William Robert:

Astronomer and lecturer; born in Maidstone, Kent, England, June 11, 1844; son of Rev. William and Caroline (Wickings) Brooks. He was educated in Marion, N. Y., and received the honorary degrees of A.M. from Hobart and D.Sc. from Hamilton College. Professor Brooks has the distinction of being the discoverer of 25 comets, more than any other living astronomer, 11 of which were discovered at Red House Observatory at Phelps, N. Y., which he founded in 1874. Upon his removal to Geneva, N. Y., in 1888, he discovered 14 comets, and since that time has been in charge of Smith Observatory in that place, and has been professor of astronomy in Hobart College. Many of his valuable discoveries were made with telescopes of his own construction. He became early interested in photography, and later in its application to astronomy. He has been the recipient of numerous medals and diplomas, principally for his astronomical discoveries, among which are the following: Over $1,000 in the Warner gold prizes; 8 medals from the Astronomical Society of the Pacific; Lalande medal from the Paris Academy of Sciences; special gold medal from the St. Louis Exposition in 1904; and gold medal and diploma from the Astronomical Society of Mexico. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; the Royal Astronomical Society, and a member of the British Astronomical Association and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He was married in Edwardsburg, Mich., Oct. 15, 1868, to Mary E. Smith, and they have one daughter, Anna Caroline. Address: Geneva, N. Y.

BROUSSARD, Robert F.:

Lawyer and congressman; born on the Marie Louise plantation, near New Iberia, La., Aug. 17, 1864, the Broussard family being of French descent, long settled in southwest Louisiana and southeast Texas, and prominent in farming, stock-raising and mercantile interests. After three years at Georgetown University he entered the Law School of Tulane University of Louisiana, at New Orleans, whence he was graduated as LL.B. in 1889. Since then he has been engaged in practice at New Iberia, La. He took a prominent part in the movement for the destruction of the Louisiana Lottery, and was elected by the Anti-Lottery Democrats to the office of district attorney of the Nineteenth Judicial District of Louisiana, and was reelected for a second term. He was elected in 1896 to the fifty-fifth Congress, and has since been biennially elected; and he is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress, expiring 1911. Address: New Iberia, La.

BROWARD, Napoleon Bonaparte:

Governor of Florida; born on a farm in Duval County, Fla., April 19, 1857; son of Napoleon Bonaparte and Mary Dorcas (Parsons) Broward. He was left an orphan at twelve years of age; attended a country school and at the age of fourteen went to work in a log camp for an uncle. He afterward worked as a farm hand, as an employee of steamboats, a seaman on sailing vessels, etc., then became a bar pilot on Saint Johns River in Florida, and later engaged in the steamboat business. Since 1902 he has been engaged in the towing and wrecking business at Jacksonville, Key West and Tampa, Fla. He has always been an active Democrat, and in 1887 he was appointed and in 1889 elected sheriff of Duval County, Fla., which office he continued to hold, by successive reelections until 1900. He was elected a member of the Florida Legislature from Duval County in 1900, was a member of the State Board of Health of Florida from 1900 to 1904, and in 1904 was elected Governor of Florida for the term which expired in Jan., 1909. Address: Jacksonville, Fla.

BROWN, Abbie Farwell:

Author; born in Boston; daughter of Benjamin F. and Clara M. (Neal) Brown. She was educated in the Girls' Latin School of Boston and in Radcliffe College. Since leaving college she has been continuously engaged in literary work, as a frequent contributor to magazines, chiefly of juvenile poems and stories. She is fond of music and a great lover of the drama, and has written many song texts and the librettos of two comic operas, and several dramatic sketches. Miss Brown was editor of the Young People's Library and is author of: Quits (a play); The Book of Saints and Friendly Beasts, 1900; The Lonesome Doll, 1901; A Pocketful of Posies (poems), 1902; In the Days of Giants, 1902; The Curious Book of Birds, 1903; The Flower Princess, 1904; The Star Jewels, 1905; Brothers and Sisters, 1906; Friends and Cousins, 1907; The Legend of St. Christopher; Fresh Posies (poems), 1908; Tales of the Red Children, 1909. She is a member of the American Folk Lore Association and of the Saturday Morning and Boston Authors' Clubs. Address: 41 W. Cedar Street, Boston.

BROWN, Addison:

Jurist and botanist; born in West Newbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1830; son of Addison and Catharine Babson (Griffin) Brown. He was educated at Harvard College, of which he is A.B. 1852; LL.B. 1854; LL.D. 1902. He was admitted to the bar at Brooklyn in 1855, and practised law in New York City until 1891, when he was appointed United States judge for the Southern District of New York, resigning in Sept., 1901. His published decisions, mostly in admiralty and bankruptcy, number about 1,800, of which he published a digest in 1902. Judge Brown is a botanist of national reputation; is a member and was for ten years president of the Torrey Botanical Club, and was one of the originators and is a director of the New York Botanical Garden. He is the author, with Professor N. L. Britton, of Britton and Brown's Illustrated Flora of the Northern United States and Canada; and also author of: The Elgin Botanic Garden, its Relation to Columbia College, the New Hampshire Grants and the Treaty with Vermont in 1790. He is a member of the American Geographical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, New York Historical and Horticultural Societies, and the Century Association. He married at Bradford, Mass., Jan. 1, 1856, Mary Chadwick Barrett, who died in 1887; and married second, in New York City, July 20, 1893, Helen Carpenter Gaskin, and he has three sons and one daughter. Address: 45 W. 89th Street, New York City.

BROWN, Alice Van Vechten:

Artist and educator; born in Hanover, N. H., June 7, 1862; daughter of President Samuel Gilman and Sarah (Van Vechten) Brown. She was educated at home and in schools at Clinton and Utica, N. Y.; studied at the Art Students' League in New York City, as well as in the studios of various artists, and traveled abroad. In 1892 she became assistant director and in 1894 director of the Norwich Art School, at Norwich, Conn., holding that appointment until elected in 1897 to her present position as professor of art at Wellesley College. Professor Brown went abroad for two years, 1905-1907, traveling and studying in Europe. She is a member of the American Fine Arts Society, the Archaeological Institute of America, Art Students' League and the National Arts Club of New York. Address: Wellesley College, Wellesley, Mass.

BROWN, Arthur Lewis:

United States judge; born in Providence, R. I., Nov. 28, 1854. He was graduated from Brown University in the class of 1876, receiving from that university the degrees of A.B. and A.M., and was graduated from Boston University Law School, LL.B., 1878. From graduation in law he practised the profession in Providence until appointed by President Cleveland, Oct. 24, 1896, United States judge for the District of Rhode Island, in which office he continues. Address: United States Court, Providence, R. I.

BROWN, Arthur Newton:

Librarian; born in Terre Haute, Ind., 1857; son of Robert Russell and Elvira (Jenks) Brown. His parents went in 1861 to Springfield, Mass., where he was educated in the public schools. From 1876 to 1878 he was in the Mass. Institute of Technology in Boston. In 1878, he was made assistant librarian of the Springfield City Library, where he had previously done work. In Jan., 1883, he went to take a position in the auditor's office of the Mexican Central Railroad in Mexico. Later he left that post to become Spanish translator for Mexican Financier, a trade journal published in English and Spanish in Mexico City, but on account of serious illness, he returned to the United States in Aug., 1884. In Feb., 1885, Mr. Brown became executive assistant to the chief librarian of Columbia College Library, New York. He became a life member in 1885 of the American Library Association. In Oct., 1885 he was elected assistant manager of the Library Bureau at Boston. Subsequently, he was appointed librarian of the United States Naval Academy, in Aug., 1886, and in Sept., 1896, was made professor of English, in the same institution, and in Oct., 1900, he again became Librarian of the Naval Academy, retaining the title of professor of English. Mr. Brown married at Boston, Mass., June 29, 1898, Annie L. D. Currier, daughter of Augustus N. Currier, of Worcester, Mass. Address: United States Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

BROWN, Benjamin West Bonney:

Lawyer; born in New York City, Feb. 13, 1870; son of Edward Flint and Eleanor (Bonney) Brown. He was educated in Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., of 1887; Yale University, class of 1891, and was a student in Columbia Law School. He was admitted to the bar and has since been engaged in practice. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, is a trustee of the Northern Dispensary, a member of the Board of Managers of the Northwestern Dispensary, a member of the Yale and Republican Clubs, the Society of Colonial Wars, New England Society, the Sons of the Revolution, the Military Society of the War of 1812, Phi Gamma Delta, Saint Nicholas Society. He was elected in 1905 and reelected 1907 to the Board of Aldermen from the 28th Aldermanic (27th Assembly) District to the Board of Aldermen, and is executive member of the Republican County Committee of New York County for the 27th Assembly District. Residence: 44 W. 44th Street. Office: 18 Wall Street, New York City.

BROWN, Calvin S.:

Professor of Romance languages; born in Obion County, Tenn., Feb. 13, 1866; son of Calvin S. and Margaret (Martin) Brown, and a descendant of Virginia stock. He was graduated from high school in Obion County, Tenn., from Vanderbilt University; studied at the University of Paris, France, and the University of Leipzig, Germany; and received the degree of Ph.D. from the University of Colorado. He has held chairs in Vanderbilt University, the University of Missouri, the University of Colorado, and the University of Mississippi; and he has been professor of Romance languages in the University of Mississippi since 1905. He has traveled extensively in the United States, England, France, Spain, Portugal, Madeira, the Azores, Italy, Greece, Asia, Russia, Germany, Holland, Belgium and Canada. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Modern Language Association of America, and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He is editor of the Later English Drama, and of Tennyson's Poems. He married at West Point, Ga., in 1905, Maud Morrow, formerly professor of Greek and Latin in the Agnes Scott College at Atlanta, and they have a daughter and a son. Residence and postoffice: University, Miss. Express address: Oxford, Miss.

BROWN, Charles Carroll:

Consulting civil engineer and editor; born in Austinburg, Ohio, Oct. 4, 1856; son of George P. Brown and Mary (Seymour) Brown. He was in Cornell University one year, and then went to the University of Michigan, whence he was graduated as C.E. in 1879. He served on the United States Lake Survey for three years, and on the New York State Survey one year; is in general practice as consulting engineer and has been for twenty years; professor of civil engineering for ten years (at Rose Polytechnic Institute three years, and at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., seven years); consulting engineer of the New York State Board of Health six years; in the city engineers' offices of Indianapolis two years, and of Omaha, Neb., one and a half years; associate editor of Municipal Engineering five years, and since 1900 its editor-in-chief. Mr. Brown has also been consulting engineer for many cities and towns in New York, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois, North Dakota, and other States. Mr. Brown is vice-president of the Municipal Engineering Company, treasurer of the Public School Publishing Company, secretary and engineer of the Grand Valley Land and Mineral Company. He was also president of the Bridge and Stream Improvement Commission of Indianapolis, recently merged in the Municipal Art Association. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, founder and ex-secretary of the National Association of Cement Users; member of the American Waterworks Association; past president of the American Society of Municipal Improvements; past president of the Indianapolis Technical Club; vice-president of the Indiana Engineering Society; past president of the Illinois Society of Engineers and Surveyors; was first national president of the Society of the Sigma Xi; is member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity; president of the Municipal Art Association of Indianapolis; member of the National Municipal League and of the Commercial Club of Indianapolis. Mr. Brown married in Dublin, Ind., Sept. 10, 1878, Cora Stanton, and they have a son and a daughter. Residence: 2247 N. Pennsylvania Street. Office: 408 Commercial Club Building, Indianapolis, Ind.

BROWN, Charles H.:

Lawyer; born at West Winfield, N. Y., July 20, 1858; son of Hiram Clark and Alice Ann (Stuart) Brown. He was educated at West Winfield Academy, 1870-1875, and at Hungerford Collegiate Institute, Adams, N. Y., 1875-1877. He was admitted to the bar in 1880; district attorney of Allegheny County, N. Y., 1889-1897; assistant U. S. attorney for the Northern District of New York, 1897-1899; U. S. attorney of the same district, 1899-1900; U. S. attorney for the Western District of New York, 1900-1906. In 1906 he was elected justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. He is a Republican in politics. He is a Mason and a member of the Buffalo and Ellicott Clubs of Buffalo. Judge Brown married at Adams, N. Y., Nov. 16, 1881, Alice C. Smith, and they have three children. Address: Belmont, Allegheny County, N. Y.

BROWN, David Walter:

Lawyer; born in Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 10, 1852; son of Henry J. and Cornelia J. (Allen) Brown. He was graduated from Yale, B.A., 1876, Ph.D., 1878. He studied law and was admitted to the bar of New York, and he is now senior member of the law firm of D. W. and H. V. Brown, and counsel in the firm's patent causes. Mr. Brown published A New Theory of Differential Calculus in the Journal of the Frank- lin Institute, 1897, and numerous articles on the law of Inter-State Commerce in law periodicals from 1904 to 1907. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the New York State Bar Association, and of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Residence: 337 W. 34th Street. Office: 5 Nassau Street, New York City.

BROWN, Edward Osgood:

Jurist; born at Salem, Mass., Aug. 5, 1847; son of Edward and Eliza (Dalton) Brown. He was graduated from Brown University as A.B. in the class of 1867, and then, returning to Salem, became a student in the law offices there, and afterward in Dane School at Harvard University. He was admitted to the bar in 1870, became assistant clerk to the Supreme Court of Rhode Island in 1870-1871, and began practice in the firm of Peekham and Brown at Chicago in 1872, continuing practice until his elevation to the bench. Judge Brown is classed politically as a Radical Democrat, and has for years been known throughout the country as one of the leaders in the Single-tax movement. In 1903 he was elected for a term of six years to his present position as one of the judges of the Circuit Court for Cook County, Ill. He was designated by the Supreme Court of Illinois, in 1904, as one of the judges of the Appellate Court for the First (Chicago) District. Judge Brown is author of numerous legal and economic papers and other contributions to the periodical press. He married at Chicago, June 25, 1884, Helen Gertrude Eagle. Residence: 400 N. State Street. Office address: 400 Ashland Block, Chicago.

BROWN, Ernest William:

Professor of mathematics; born in Hull, Yorkshire, England, Nov. 29, 1866; oldest son of the late William Brown, and of Emma (Martin) Brown. He was educated at the Rev. J. D. Bell's School, at Totteridge Park, Hertfordshire, England, and at Hull and East Riding College, and at Christ's College, Cambridge, England, as scholar in 1884. He was fellow from 1889 to 1895, and he received the degree of B.A. in 1887 and that of Sc.D. in 1896. He was professor of mathematics at Haverford College, Pa., 1891-1907, and since 1907 has been professor of mathematics in Yale University. He is author of: Treatise on the Lunar Theory, New Theory of the Motion of the Moon; and editor of the transactions of the American Mathematical Society, 1900-1907; also author of various papers on the Lunar theory and on Celestial Mechanics during past sixteen years, chiefly in Memoirs and Proceedings of Royal Astronomical Society, London Mathematical Society, American Journal of Mathematics and American Mathematical Society; articles and lectures on popular subjects. He is a fellow of the Royal Society and a member of the Royal Astronomical Society, and was awarded the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society in 1907 and won the Adams Prize at Cambridge in 1907. He is a member of the American Philosophical Society; the American Mathematical Society, etc. He has frequently visited Switzerland, has traveled in Sweden, Denmark, Russia, Germany, and other European countries and visited South Africa in 1905. His favorite recreations are rowing, music, chess, climbing, and golf. He is a member of the Graduates Club and Country Club of New Haven, Conn. Address: Yale University, New Haven, Conn.

BROWN, George Francis:

Retired officer of The Pullman Company; born in Chicago, Oct. 1, 1843. He was chief clerk of the United States quartermaster department from 1861 to 1866. Entered railroad service, July, 1867, as secretary and treasurer for receiver on the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad, and was agent in charge of war claims and in the freight department of the Illinois Central Railroad in 1868 and 1869, and secretary of the Bloomington (Ill.) Fire Insurance Company, during the next two years. Mr. Brown has been with the Pullman Company since 1871 successively as clerk; assistant to the general superintendent for seven years, acting general superintendent; and general superintendent from 1880 to 1885; general manager from 1885 to 1905; elected treasurer in May, 1905, and placed on the retired list in Nov., 1907. Address: Pullman Building, Chicago.

BROWN, Glenn:

Architect; born in Fauquier County, Va., Sept. 13, 1854. He was educated at the Washington and Lee University, and took a special course in architecture at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Since 1878 he has practised his profession in Washington, D. C., and in Maryland and Virginia, and has written several books bearing on the subject in which he is most interested, among them being: Healthy Foundations for Houses; Trap Syphonage; History of the United States Capitol; and Papers on Improvement of Washington City. He is also editor of European and Japanese Gardens, and of the Proceedings of the American Institute of Architects, and is a contributor to technical journals. Mr. Brown is a fellow and director of the American Institute of Architects; corresponding member of the Societe Centrale des Architectes Francais, of Paris; corresponding member of the Society of Architects, of Antwerp, Belgium; secretary of the Public Art League of the United States; honorary corresponding member of the Royal Institute of British Architects and of the Societa degli Ingegneri e degli Architetti Italiani, of Rome; life member of the American Academy in Rome; and a member of the executive committees of and delegate of the United States Government to the International Congress of Architects at Madrid, London and Vienna; regent and secretary of the National Academy of Art; member of the Executive Committee, Council of the Fine Arts, appointed by President Roosevelt. He married in Staunton, Va., Feb. 4, 1876, Mary Ella Chapman. Residence: 195 I Street. Office: 806 17th Street, Washington, D. C.

BROWN, Goodwin:

Lawyer; born at Henderson, Jefferson County, N. V., April 5, 1852; son of Thomas Goodwin and Josephine Cornelia (Keith) Brown. He was graduated from Cornell University, 1875; honorary A.M. Union College, 1891. He was admitted to practice by the Supreme Court of New York, 1879, and to U. S. Courts, 1882; was secretary to Governors Cleveland and Hill, having charge of the extradition of fugitives from justice, and also of pardon matters, and resigned 1889. He was appointed N. Y. State commissioner in lunacy, 1889; reappointed, 1893, and retired, 1899; was delegate to and secretary of the Extradition Conference, 1888, appointed to frame statute amending U. S. extradition laws. Mr. Brown is author of numerous statutes relating to criminals and criminal procedure. He served as president of the Board of Health, Yonkers, several terms; is author of the first general statutes providing for free public baths, and with two associates recommended the act which passed the New York Legislature removing the insane from county poorhouses in 1890; centralized the management of N. Y. State Hospital for Insane, 1893; was appointed commissioner to revise and consolidate the statutes of New York State, 1906, and appointed receiver of the International Trust Company, 1907. He is a Democrat and Unitarian; is a member of the Psi Upsilon and Phi Kappa Psi college societies, Sons of Revolution, Society of Colonial Wars, Founders and Patriots, and Masonic Order. Mr. Brown is a manager of St. John's Riverside Hospital and Sprain Ridge Hospital, Yonkers, N. Y., and a member of the Fort Orange Club of Albany, and the Psi Upsilon Club of New York City. Mr. Brown married in Hartford, Conn., 1877, Lillian Spencer Woodhouse, and they have one son. Residence: 643 Palisade Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y. Office: 135 Broadway, New York City.

BROWN, Harry Fletcher:

Chemist; born in Natick, Mass., July 10, 1867; son of William Henry and Maria Frances (Osgood) Brown. He was educated in Harvard University, from which he graduated as A.B., 1890, followed by two and a half years in residence in the Graduate School, specializing in inorganic chemistry and receiving the degree of A.M. in 1892. Mr. Brown was an assistant in elementary chemistry during the academic year, and an instructor in the Summer School at Harvard, during his post-graduate course. In Nov., 1892, he was appointed chemist to the United States Naval Torpedo Station at Newport, R. I., where he was engaged in the investigation and experimental manufacture of smokeless powder and high explosives until 1900, and while so engaged made many confidential reports to the Navy Department. In 1900 he took his present position as general superintendent of the International Smokeless Powder and Chemical Co. He is also chemical director of the smokeless powder department of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours Powder Company, of Wilmington, Del. While at Harvard, Mr. Brown was president of the Boylston Chemical Club, and secretary of the Pierian Sodality, and he is now a member of the Society of Chemical Industry and a director of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. He married at Newport, R. I., Oct. 26, 1897, Florence M. Hammett. Address: Wilmington, Del.

BROWN, Helen Dawes:

Author and lecturer; born in Concord, Mass., in 1857; daughter of William Dawes and Martha (Swan) Brown. She was graduated from Vassar College in 1878, receiving the degree of A.M. in 1890. She afterwards taught four years at Vassar, and fifteen years in the Brearley School in New York City. Miss Brown has lectured in New York and vicinity for the past twenty-five years. She is author of: Two College Girls; The Petrie Estate; Little Miss Phebe Gay; Her Sixteenth Year; A Book of Little Boys; Mr. Tuckerman's Nieces (all published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.), and A Civilian Attaché (published by Scribner's). She was a trustee of Barnard College, 1887-1905, is a member of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, the College Settlements Association, Vassar Students' Aid Society, the Onteora Club (Catskill Mountains), and the Barnard Meridian, and Women's University Clubs of New York. Address: Montclair, N. J.

BROWN, Henry Billings:

Associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, retired; born at South

Lee, Mass., March 2, 1836. He was graduated from Yale College as B.A. in 1856, and attended the law schools of Yale and Harvard. He went to Detroit and engaged in practice until 1875, when he was appointed by President Grant, judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Michigan, which office he held until appointed, in 1891, an associate justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, in which office he served until 1906, when he retired. The degree of LL.D. was conferred upon Judge Brown by the University of Michigan in 1887, and by Yale in 1891. He compiled Brown's Admiralty Reports. Justice Brown was lecturer upon Admiralty law in the University of Michigan and in Georgetown University. He is a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, and the Society of Mayflower Descendants. He married first, at Detroit, Mich., in 1864, Caroline Pitts, who died in 1901. He married again, June 25, 1904, Josephine E. Tyler. Address: 1720 Sixteenth Street, Washington, D. C.

BROWN, John A.:

Lawyer; born at Tamersville, Greene County, N. Y., June 21, 1876; son of James Brown and Catharine (Goggins) Brown. He was educated by a private tutor, and at the Chicago High School. He studied at the Kent College of Law in Chicago, graduating as LL.B. in 1898, and took a post-graduate course at the Illinois College of Law, from which he received the degrees of LL.B. and LL.M., in 1899. He was admitted to the bar in Dec., 1898, and has been engaged in general practice in the State and Federal courts. He handled the Tug Trust case, the Quotation cases involving the property rights of the boards of trade in quotations through the United States Supreme Court, the Marks murder case, and Frawley murder case, and many important civil and criminal cases. He has been associated with Jacob J. Kern, formerly city attorney of Chicago, and later States attorney of Cook County, Ill., since his admission to the bar, the firm now being Kern & Brown. He is a director in many of Chicago's largest corporations, as well as attorney for many of its business enterprises. He is the owner of the addition bearing his name to Glen Ellyn, one of the city's most beautiful suburbs. He is Democratic in politics, though he has never held a public office. Mr. Brown is a member of the Illinois State Bar Association, and the Chicago Bar Association; trustee of the Illinois College of Law, and director of the University Extension Law School. He is a member of the Phi Alpha Delta law fraternity, and president of its Alumni association; is past regent of the Illinois Council of the Royal Arcanum; sitting past regent of Ar Council, Royal Arcanum; member of the Banner Lodge, 219, Knights of Pythias; and he is a member of the Press Club of Chicago, and Birchwood Country Club. Residence: 403 E. Ontario Street, Chicago. Office: 79 S. Clark Street, Chicago.

BROWN, John Pinkney:

Editor and civil engineer; born at Rising Sun, Ind., Jan. 19, 1842; son of Elbridge Gerry Brown, who was a descendant of General Brown, of the Massachusetts Militia during the Revolutionary War, and Adaline (Style) Brown. He was educated in the schools of Indiana, and for a brief period at Hanover College, Hanover, Ind. He served as a member of the Sixteenth Indiana Regiment, 1861-1865, and was with the U. S. Sanitary Commission of Indiana for service in the Mississippi River in 1863, and with General Logan's Division in Mississippi River Service in 1864 and 1865. Mr. Brown was engaged as a civil engineer in the survey of the Pacific Railway east from California in 1866, the survey of the State line between California and Nevada in 1866, and on various railway engineering projects. He surveyed the boundary of the Crow Indian Reservation for the Government in 1890. He has made forestry studies in the field, in the Rocky Mountains, and all portions of North America. He originated the plan for extensive tree planting by railroads for timber purposes, and twenty-five million trees have been planted as the result of his efforts in that direction. He is secretary and treasurer of the International Society of Arboriculture, and he has traveled over three hundred thousand miles in North and Central America in the study of forests. Mr. Brown established, in 1902, the magazine Arboriculture, devoted to economic forestry, as an advocate of Governmental, State, corporation and individual tree planting for the benefit of the future Nation and the present generation, and he is author of: Practical Arboriculture, a book covering the problems of railway engineers, manufacturers, lumbermen and farmers in relation to tree planting and particularly the reforestation of denuded areas. He has been the leader in advocacy of the planting of the American tree Catalpa speciosa, a rapid maturing and valuable economic tree, formerly almost unknown but now through his advocacy growing by the millions in this and many foreign countries. For the purpose of demonstrating the methods and practicability of forest planting and management, he has established at his own expense an experimental forest plantation of 200,000 trees, mostly Catalpa, upon which farm in Baldwin County, Ala., he spends most of his time. He is an honorary member of many foreign societies of arboriculture and forestry. He is an Independent Republican in politics, and is a Royal Arch Mason. He married at Baldwin, Kan., March 18, 1868, Mary Ellen Stephens, and they have ten children living, three sons, married, and seven daughters. Address: Connersville, Fayette County, Ind.

BROWN, Moreau Roberts:

Physician; born in Galveston, Tex., July 26, 1853; son of James Moreau and Rebecca Ashton (Stoddart) Brown. He was educated in the private schools of his native place and at Chester (Pa.) Academy. He received his medical education at the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, and in the medical department of the University of Louisville, Ky., where he was graduated as M.D. in 1876. He also took post-graduate courses in Austria and Germany, then returned to Galveston, Texas, where he built up an extensive practice and was house physician of the Galveston City Hospital, county physician of Galveston County, quarantine physician and city physician of Galveston. He removed to Chicago, in 1886, where he became a specialist in the treatment of diseases of throat, ear and nose. For many years he was professor of laryngology, rhinology and otology in the Chicago College of Physicians and Surgeons, resigning that position in order to lessen the amount of work, in 1902; and he is now professor of laryngology and rhinology in the Chicago Polyclinic, and medical director of the National Union. He is a fellow of the American Laryngological Society; member of the Chicago Medical Society, the State Medical Society, the American Medical Association, the Medico-Legal Society, the Chicago Laryngological and the Medical Examiners' Societies. He is a member of the Physicians' Club of Chicago. Dr. Brown has been twice married, his second marriage being to Louise Grevemberg, at Jeanerette, La., July 18, 1887; he has two children. Residence: Winnetka, Ill. Office: 34 Washington Street, Chicago.

BROWN, Norris:

United States senator; born at Maquoketa, Iowa, May 2, 1863; son of William Henry and Eliza Ann (Phelps) Brown. He was educated in the Iowa State University, being graduated in 1883 and A.M., 1885. He studied law and was admitted to the Iowa Bar, Oct. 1883, and in April, 1888, located in the practice of law at Kearney, Neb. He served as county attorney of Buffalo County, Neb., 1892-1896; was deputy attorney-general 1900-1904, and attorney-general, 1904-1906, and in January, 1907, was elected as a Republican to the United States Senate for the term expiring March 3, 1913. Address: Kearney, Neb.

BROWN, Orvon Graff:

President of Miami Military Institute; born in Greensburg, Westmoreland County, Pa., July 1, 1863. He was educated at Mount Union College, the University of Cincinnati and Denver University. He became professor of science at Cincinnati Wesleyan College in 1882, and three years later organized and procured a charter for the Twin Valley College, of which he is president. He has been president also of the Miami Military Institute since its organization in 1894, as the Military Department of Twin Valley College. He married, April 5, 1887, Lulu Reed. Address: Germantown, Ohio.

BROWN, Rollo Walter:

Professor of rhetoric in Wabash College; born in Crooksville, Ohio, March 15, 1880; son of Alexander and Roselba (Seareh) Brown. He was educated in Ohio Northern University, 1898-1903, Litt.B. and A.M., and in the Graduate School of Harvard University, 1903-1905, receiving the degree of A.M. from the University. Immediately after he left Harvard he was elected to an instructorship in Wabash College, and at the end of that college year, 1905-1906, he was elected to a full professorship. Professor Brown is a member of the Modern Language Association of America and of the American Dialect Society, the Phi Beta Kappa Society and the Harvard Club of Indiana. Address: 607 South Water Street, Crawfordsville, Ind.

BROWN, Roscoe C. E.:

Editor; born in Scottsville, N. Y., Aug. 23, 1867; son of the late D. D. S. Brown, who was for some time proprietor of The Rochester Democrat, now The Rochester Democrat and Chronicle, and vice-president of the Rochester and State line, now the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railroad. He attended the public school of his native town and was graduated from the University of Rochester in 1889. That institution conferred upon him the degree of M.A. in 1904. Immediately after graduation from college he joined the city staff of The New York Tribune, and became assistant day editor in 1893. He was an editorial writer for that journal, devoting himself especially to political, constitutional and sociological questions from 1895-1906, and in 1906 he became its managing editor. He was appointed State civil service commissioner by Governor Higgins on Jan. 19, 1905, to succeed Cuthbert W. Pound, who resigned to become the Governor's counsel. Mr. Brown was a member of the Executive Committee of the New York Civil Service Reform Association, and he is a director of the People's University Extension Society. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society and Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, and of the Union League, Alpha Delta Phi and City Clubs of New York, and the Hamilton Club of Brooklyn. Address: New York Tribune, New York City.

BROWN, W. Robinson:

Manufacturer; born in Portland, Me., 1875; son of William W. and Emily Hart (Jenkins) Brown. He was graduated from Phillips Andover Academy, 1893, William's College, B.A., 1897. He is director and manager of the Woods Department of the Berlin Mills Company, and Burgess Sulphite Fibre Company, manufacturers of newspaper sulphite and lumber, Portland, Me., and is managing director of the Quebec & St. Maurice Industrial Company of Quebec. He is president of the Brown Memorial Library of Clinton, Me.; colonel on staff of Governor Kimby of New Hampshire, 1908, and member of the Forestry Commission of New Hampshire, 1909. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha fraternity (Williams College). Address: Berlin, N. H.

BROWN, William Adams:

Clergyman and theologian; born in New York City, Dec. 29, 1865; son of John Crosby and Mary E. (Adams) Brown. He was educated in St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and was graduated from Yale College, A.B., 1886, A.M., 1888, and Ph.D. in 1901. He was graduated from the Union Theological Seminary in 1890, and he spent the years 1890-1892 in study at Berlin as a fellow of the Union Theological Seminary. The honorary degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by Union College in 1902, and by Yale University in 1907. He has been a teacher in the Union Theological Seminary from 1892, at first in the department of Church History, afterwards in that of Systematic Theology, and since 1898 has been Roosevelt professor of systematic theology in that institution. He is a member of the Society of Biblical Exegesis, the American Geographical Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the American Philosophical Association. He is a patron of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; a director of the Yale Alumni Fund; a member of the Board of Trustees of the New York Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb, of the Governing Board of the Union Settlement of New York City, and of the Executive Committee of the Grenfell Association. He is independent in politics and a Presbyterian in his ecclesiastical connection. He is author of: Musical Instruments and Their Homes, 1888; The Essence of Christianity, 1902; Christian Theology in Outline, 1907; as well as of the articles, Salvation, Millennium, etc., in Hastings' Dictionary of the Bible, and of numerous contributions to reviews and magazines on theological and historical subjects. He is a member of the American Editorial Board of the Hibbert Journal. Dr. Brown is a member of the Century Association, the University, Yale, American Alpine, Apawamis Golf and West Side Tennis Clubs. He married in St. Paul, Minn., in 1892, Helen Gilman Noyes, and they have three sons. Dr. Brown has a summer home, The Tree Tops, at Seal Harbor, Me., where he is president of the Harbor Cliffs Tennis Club, and a trustee of the Congregational Church. Residence: 114 East 30th Street. Address: 700 Park Avenue, New York City.

BROWN, William Maxwell:

Civil engineer; born in Warwick, R. I., Aug. 13, 1853; son of William M. and Susan A. (Clapp) Brown. He was graduated from Brown University in 1873, with the degree of Ph.B., and immediately engaged in the practice of civil engineering, first on public work for the city of Providence, R. I., afterward assistant engineer of the Massachusetts State Board of Health at Boston, chiefly on work of drainage, and since 1894 he has been chief engineer of the Massachusetts Metropolitan Sewerage Commission at Boston. He has been a member since 1887, and was a director 1902-1904, of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers, member since 1895 of the American Society of Civil Engineers, member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and from 1902-1905 was a member of the Chelsea (Mass.) School Committee. Mr. Brown is author of various reports relating to Metropolitan sewerage works. He married in Boston, in 1884, Julia Ida Daniels. Residence: 1285 Commonwealth Avenue. Office: 1 Ashburton Place, Boston.

BROWN, William Montgomery:

Bishop of the Episcopal Church, Diocese of Arkansas; born near Orrville, Wayne County, Ohio, Nov. 6, 1855. He studied at Kenyon University and received the degree of D.D. from Kenyon and the University of the South. He was ordered deacon in 1883 and was ordained to the priesthood by Bishop Bedell the following year. In 1886 he became rector of Grace Church, Galion, Ohio, and organized seven missions in his district. He remained in this pastorate until 1891, when he became general missionary and archdeacon of the Diocese of Ohio. He was consecrated bishop coadjutor of Arkansas in 1898, becoming bishop of Arkansas in 1899. He is author of: The Protestant Episcopal Church Defended against Five Unjust Allegations, 1889; The Church for Americans, 1896; The Crucial Race Question, 1907; and he has also published numerous sermons and addresses. Bishop Brown married, at Cleveland, Ohio, April 9, 1885, Ella Scranton Bradford. Address: Little Rock, Ark.

BROWN, William Wallace:

Assistant attorney-general of the United States; born in Summer Hill, Cayuga County, N. Y., April 22, 1836. He was educated at Alfred College in New York, where he received the degree of LL.D. in 1886. He enlisted as private in the 23d New York Volunteers during the Civil War, and later served in the 1st Pennsylvania Rifles. At the close of the war he was admitted to the bar, and in 1867 was elected district attorney for McKean County, Pa., in which county, at a later date, he served as recorder of deeds and superintendent of common schools. In 1872 he was elected to the legislature of Pennsylvania, serving until 1876, and in 1883 became a member of the National House of Representatives, serving for two terms. He was auditor for the War Department for two years, and from Aug. 10, 1899 to June 1, 1907 was auditor for the Navy Department. On the latter date he was appointed assistant attorney general for the defense of suits before the Spanish Claims Commission, having charge of the interests of the United States in opposing claims for dowages on account of the Spanish War, this government having assumed the liability of the Spanish government to American citizens. This position includes the gathering of a vast amount of testimony for the United States especially in Cuba and is being directed by Mr. Brown in such a manner as to successfully safeguard the interests of the United States against claims mounting to many millions of dollars. Residence: The Dewey. Office: Munsey Building, Washington, D. C.

BROWNE, Charles Francis:

Landscape painter; born at Natick, Mass., May 21, 1859; son of George Warren and Emeline (Wetherbee) Browne. After attending the Art schools at Boston and Philadelphia, he studied under Gérôme and others in Paris from 1879-1883. He was a designer for the Forbes Lithographic Manufacturing Company. He made three trips to Europe, in 1887 and in 1903 and 1908. He also traveled extensively in the Rocky Mountains in 1895, and spent one year in Scotland, painting. He was professor of Art at Beloit College, Wisconsin, now instructor and lecturer in painting at the Art Institute of Chicago. He belongs to the Society of Western Artists, the Chicago Society of Artists, the Chicago Water Color Club, the National Geographic Society, the Little Room, and the Cliff-dwellers Club, Chicago. He is a trustee of Sharon Church, Chicago, and is a member of the City Club, Chicago. His pictures were exhibited in the Exposition at Paris in 1889, Chicago, 1903, at the International Exhibitions at Buffalo, in 1901, Omaha in 1903, at Paris in 1900, and at current exhibitions in the United States since 1890. He has pictures in the Roger Williams Park Museum, Providence, R. I., in the Union League Club, and in the Municipal Gallery, Chicago. He received the Fine Arts Building Prize (of $500.00) in 1908. He married at Chicago, May 21, 1898, Turbie Taft, and they have one son. Address: The Art Institute of Chicago. Studio: 216 East 57th Street, Chicago.

BROWNELL, George Francis:

Lawyer and railroad official; born in Des Moines, Iowa, June 5, 1861; son of Samuel Clark and Catherine (Fox) Brownell. He was educated in the Medina (N. Y.) Academy, Lockport (N. Y.) High School, Albany Law School, LL.B., 1882, University of Michigan, LL.B., 1883. He began the study of law in the office of Childs and Pitts at Medina, N. Y., and later with Thomas M. Cooley, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Michigan and dean of the Law Department of the University of Michigan. He was admitted to the Bar in 1883; became member of the Buffalo law firm of Sprague, Morey, Sprague and Brownell in 1888, and since 1897 has been a member of the law firm of Moot, Sprague, Brownell and Marey. He became general solicitor of the Erie Railroad Company, June, 1897, with offices in New York City and since Jan. 1, 1904, has been vice-president and general solicitor of the Erie Railroad Company, vice-president, general solicitor and director of the New York, Susquehanna & Western Railroad Company, and of the Chicago and Erie Railroad Company; vice-president and director of the Wilkes Barre and Eastern Railroad Company, Erie and Jersey Railroad Company, Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad Company, Pennsylvania Coal Company, Hill-side Coal and Iron Company and the Erie Terminals Railroad Company; director of the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Railroad Company, Buffalo Creek Railroad Company, Southwestern Construction Company, Cincinnati, Indiana and Western Railroad Company, Blossburg Coal Company, Long Dock Company, Lake Keuka Navigation Company and the General Railroad Signal Company. He is a member of the Chi Psi Fraternity and of the Lotos, Railroad, Buffalo and Chi Psi Clubs, and the Lodge of Ancient Landmarks (Masonic). Mr. Brownell married in Buffalo, June 7, 1897, Annie Kniseley Abbott, and they have two sons. Residence: 312 West 89th Street. Office: 50 Church Street, New York City.

BROWNING, Eliza Gordon:

Librarian; born in Fortville, Ind.; daughter of Woodville and Mary Anne (Brown) Browning. She received her education in public and private schools. Since 1892 she has been librarian of the Indianapolis Public Library. Miss Browning is a member of the American Library Association, member and ex-president of the Indiana Library Association; State historian of the Indiana Society of Daughters of the American Revolution; only woman member of the Indiana State Historical Society, member of the Indianapolis Art Association, Indianapolis Library Club, Fortnightly Literary Club and Y. W. C. A. She was joint editor, with Mrs. Harriet McE. Foster, of the Lineage Book of the Indiana Society of Daughters of the American Revolution; and is author of numerous unsigned articles in newspapers and magazines. She has traveled in all parts of the United States, and spent one summer in Europe. Address: Public Library, Indianapolis, Ind.

BROWNING, William:

Physician, neurologist; born in New London County, Conn., July 7, 1855. He was educated in Norwich Free Academy, Sheffield Scientific School, Yale, Ph.D. 1876; University of Pennsylvania, from which he received a diploma in anatomy; and the universities of Leipzig and Wurzburg, Germany, receiving the degree of M.D. from the former in 1881. Dr. Browning was instructor in science at Media Academy for three years, but since 1883 has been engaged in the practice of medicine in Brooklyn, N. Y. He has also been connected with several hospitals in and around New York, among them being the German Hospital, the Long Island State, Long Island College, Norwegian, German, St. John's Jewish, Eastern District, Bushwick, St. Christopher's and St. Catherine's hospitals. He was also physician to Central Dispensary for two years; neurologist to Long Island College Dispensary nine years; on the editorial staff of the Annals of Surgery, 1885-1891; lecturer on normal neurology at Long Island College Hospital Medical School, 1887-1901; librarian of the Medical Society; and co-editor of the Brooklyn Medical Journal. He has been professor of diseases of the mind and nervous system at Long Island College Hospital since 1901. Dr. Browning is a member of a large number of medical and scientific associations, and is author of: The Veins of the Brain and Its Envelopes; The Epileptic Interval; Circulation in the Central Nervous System; is editor of the Journal Neurographs, and an extensive contributor to medical literature. Address: 54 Lefferts Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BROWNLOW, Walter Preston:

Journalist and congressman; born at Abingdon, Va. He attended the common school for three years, but because of the death of his father (the celebrated "Parson" Brownlow, famous for his adherence to the Union Cause during the Civil War), he earned his support from the age of 10. He entered the newspaper business as a reporter for the Knoxville Whig and Chronicle (edited by his uncle, the late Hon. William G. Brownlow United States Senator), in 1876. In the same year he purchased the Herald and Tribune, a Republican newspaper published at Jonesboro, of which he has since been the editor and proprietor. He was a delegate from his district to the Republican National Convention of 1880, 1896 and 1900, and a delegate from the State at large to the National Conventions of 1884 and 1904. He was appointed postmaster at Jonesboro in March, 1881, and resigned in December to accept the doorkeepership of the House of Representatives of the Forty-seventh Congress. In 1884, 1896, 1900, and 1906, he was elected by the delegation from his State to the National Conventions as Tennessee's member of the Republican National Committee, but failed of reelection in 1908. He was elected by Congress as a member of the Board of Managers for the National Soldier's Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh, and Fifty-eighth and Fifty-ninth, and Sixtieth Congresses, and was re-elected in 1909 to the Sixty-first Congress, in which he is now serving. He has twice been the Republican nominee for United States Senator from Tennessee, and in 1908 was elected as Tennessee's member of the National Congressional Committee. Address: Jonesboro, Tenn.

BROWNSCOMBE, Jennie Augusta:

Artist painter; born in Honesdale, Pa., daughter of William and Elvira (Kennedy) Brownscombe. She was educated in the high school at Honesdale, and afterward studied art in New York City, one year in the School of Design for Women (Cooper Union), receiving the trustees' silver medal, and five years in the National Academy of Design, receiving silver medals in the Antique and Life schools. She also studied in Paris with Henry Mosler for one year; has been abroad four times on prolonged visits and has spent five winters in Rome at different times. When she had been a student of art less than two years she began the making of drawings for illustrated periodicals—Harper's and others, and three years later to exhibit. Four years afterward she went abroad for a year's study, and after her return her pictures began to be reproduced in etchings, engraving and photo-engraving, and about sixty of these, all figure pictures, and many of them of colonial and early American subjects, have been published as proofs and prints, some in monochrome and some in colors. She was at one time, for two years, a writer of art notes for a daily newspaper in New York. Miss Brownscombe has exhibited from time to time in the National Academy and American Water Color Society Exhibitions in New York, and also in Philadelphia, Chicago and Western exhibitions, and also with dealers in these and other cities, and she received a silver medal in 1907 from the American Art Society of Philadelphia. Address: 96 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

BROWNSON, Mary Wilson:

Professor of modern European history; born in Washington, Pa., daughter of Rev. James Irwin Brownson, D.D., and Eleanor McCullough (Acheson) Brownson. She was educated Washington (Pa.) Seminary, the Pennsylvania College for Women at Pittsburgh, A.B., 1904, the Graduate School of Washington and Jefferson College, A.M. 1905; she has pursued graduate study in summer sessions of the Chicago and Wisconsin Universities, and in 1907 at Oxford University, England, and she has done research work in French history in Harvard University. Miss Brownson holds the chairs of Modern European History and of Biblical Literature in the Pennsylvania College for Women at Pittsburgh. She has given illustrated lectures on the Holy Land after an extended camping tour in that country in 1900. She is author of: The Old Testament Story, to be completed in four volumes, of which two have been issued (W. A. Wilde Company); His Sister (Winona Publishing Co.). Miss Brownson is a member of the American Historical Association, and of the College Club of Pittsburgh. Address: Pennsylvania College for Women, Pittsburgh, Pa.

BROWNSON, Willard Herbert:

Rear-Admiral, U. S. Navy, retired; born in Lyons, N. Y., July 8, 1845; son of Morton and Harriet (Taft) Brownson. Upon his graduation from the Naval Academy in 1865 he served for three years in the flagship of the North Atlantic Squadron, when he was ordered to the Pacific station. After service on the Coast Survey, in deep sea investigation and as inspector of hydrography, he was placed in command of various United States ships, among them being the Petrel, Dolphin, and the Detroit at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, during the revolution. In 1894 he was detailed as commandant of the cadets at the Naval Academy, and from 1896-1898 was on the Board of Inspection and Survey. He was commander of the Yankee during the war with Spain, and of the Alabama from 1900-1902. For four years he was superintendent of the Naval Academy, and on May 6, 1906 was promoted to the rank of rear-admiral. He commanded the Fourth Division of the Atlantic fleet from July 8th to Aug. 15th, 1906; commanded a special service squadron for two months thereafter; and from Oct. 15, 1906, to April 1, 1907, was commander-in-chief of the Asiatic fleet. On May 20, 1907 he became chief of the Bureau of Navigation, and although he was retired by operation of law two months later, was kept on active duty by order of the President until his resignation of the position of chief of bureau. He married July 10, 1872, Isabella King Roberts and they have three children. Address 1751 N. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

BRUCE, Matthew Linn:

Jurist; born at Mercersburg, Pa., Oct. 1, 1860; son of Rev. James Bruce, D.D., and Mary (Linn) Bruce. He received his preparatory education at the Andes (New York) Academy, and then entered Rutgers College, from which he graduated as valedictorian of his class, with the degree of A. B. in 1884 and A.M. in 1887. After graduation he engaged in teaching and studied law in the office of Casius M. Shaw, of Andes, New York; and was admitted to the bar in September, 1889. He removed to New York City and has practised law there ever since except during his service as a justice of the Supreme Court. Judge Bruce has always been an active Republican. He was president of the Republican County Committee of New York, in 1903. He was elected lieutenant-governor of New York, in 1904, and renominated in 1906, but failed of reelection, and was then appointed a justice of the Supreme Court for the First Judicial District of New York. He resumed practice in 1908. He was reappointed a justice of the Supreme Court in 1908 by Gov. Hughes. Judge Bruce is a prominent layman of the Presbyterian Church, and was a commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Buffalo, in 1904, and is president of the Presbyterian Union of New York. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and of the St. Andrew's Society. Judge Bruce is also a member and vice-president of the Republican Club of New York. He married, in 1894, Mrs. Lillian (Ballantine) Knapp, daughter of the late Duncan Ballantine, of Andes, N. Y., and of this union there are three children. Residence: 523 West One Hundred and Fiftieth Street. Address: 18 Wall Street, New York City.

BRUCE, Wallace:

Orator and author; born in Hillsdale, N. Y., Nov. 10, 1844. He was educated at Hudson River Institute and Yale, whence he was graduated in 1867, and has been engaged in literary work since 1868. Mr. Bruce is a poet and orator of international reputation, having delivered addresses on numerous centennial and memorial occasions, among them being the Burns anniversary addresses at Ayr, Edinburgh and Kilmarnock, Scotland, and at Boston, Hartford and Chicago. He also delivered an address on Washington Irving at the Stratford Grammar School, Stratford on Avon, England. He was United States consul at Edinburg, Scotland, from 1889-1893. Mr. Bruce is honorary president of the Shakespeare Society of Edinburgh and president of the Florida Chautauqua at De Funiak Springs, Florida, and is the author of: The Land of Burns; The Yosemite; The Hudson; From the Hudson to the Yosemite; Old Homestead Poems; The Hudson Panorama; In Clover and Heather; Here's a Hand; Wayside Poems; Scottish Poems; Leaves of Gold; and Wanderers. He married at Schodack Depot, N. Y., June 29, 1870, Annie Becker. Address: 267 Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BRUNCKEN, Ernest:

Lawyer; born in Feldhausen, Oldenburg, Germany, Feb. 16, 1865. He came to America with his parents at the age of 16, learned the printing trade, and worked on newspapers in Chicago and Milwaukee. He studied law in a private office, and in 1892 was admitted to the Wisconsin bar, practising in Milwaukee, where he was assistant city attorney for four years, until 1902. He was State Forestry Commissioner from 1897-1899, and the following year made campaign speeches through the western states for the Republican National Committee. He was assistant forester of the Biltmore estate from 1902-1904, and since December of the latter year has been legislative reference librarian of California. He is a member of the American Forestry Association, the American Historical Association, the American Library Association; and the California State Library Association; and the author of: North American Forests and Forestry; German Political Exiles in the United States; and (jointly with W. Hense-Jensen) of Wisconsin's Deutsch-Amerikaner; also numerous articles on forestal, legal and sociological subjects in various periodicals. He married in Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 28, 1892, Erna Nohl. Address: State Library, Sacramento, California.

BRUNDAGE, Albert Harrison:

Physician, toxicologist, and author; born at Camdor, N. Y., March 3, 1862; son of Dr. Amos H. and Sarah Mervina (Dinnick) Brundage. He was graduated from the New York University Medical College as M.D. in 1885, and followed his graduation with post graduate work there and at the Long Island College Hospital; and he was graduated also from the Brooklyn College of Pharmacy as Ph.G., 1892, Ph.D., 1897; and received the degree of A.M. from the University of Nashville, 1898, and of M. S. from the Science Department of the Rhode Island College of Pharmacy and Allied Sciences in 1905. He engaged for over fifteen years in the practice of medicine in Brooklyn, N. Y., and was president in 1903, and board examiner in toxicology and posology from 1898-1905, of the Board of Pharmacy of the State of New York. He was professor of toxicology, physiology and hygiene in Brooklyn College of Pharmacy, 1898-1904; professor of toxicology and physiology at the Rhode Island College of Pharmacy and Allied Sciences, 1903-1907; and was toxicologist to the Bushwick and other hospitals in Brooklyn. He removed in 1906 to Milwaukee, Wis., where he is professor of toxicology in Marquette University, in the Department of Medicine, Dentistry and Pharmacy. Dr. Brundage is a member of the American Medical Association, the American Pharmaceutical Association, American Microscopical Society, American Anthropological Association, American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Geographical Society, American National Red Cross, and many State and local societies, and was formerly president of the Brooklyn College of Pharmacy. He is author of Practical Points in Physiology and a manual of Toxicology and many contributions to professional journals on medical and pharmaceutical subjects. Dr. Brundage married, Sept. 26, 1888, Sarah Alice, daughter of Rev. Kilburn Holt, of Amherst, Mass., and has a daughter, and a son. Residence: 2404 State Street, Milwaukee, Wis. New York address: 70 Linden Street, Brooklyn, N. Y. Y.

BRUNNER, Arnold William:

Architect; born in New York City, Sept. 25, 1857; son of William and Isabella (Solomon) Brunner. He was graduated in the special course in architecture from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in 1879 and then entered the office of George B. Post. After extended travel in Europe he commenced practice in architecture. He was architect of the Cleveland (Ohio) postoffice, custom house and court house, the Mount Sinai Hospital Buildings, the School of Mines of Columbia University, New York, and many other public and private buildings in New York City; designed the pavilions in William H. Seward Park, Thomas Jefferson Park, the Public Baths, etc. He was appointed by Governor Nash of Ohio, one of the three supervising architects to prepare group plans of public buildings and grounds for the City of Cleveland; and was appointed a member of the Board of Education of New York in 1902. In 1907 he was appointed by Mayor McClellan a member of the Arts Commission of the City of New York. Mr. Brunner is a member of the Architectural League of New York.

and was elected its president in 1903-1904. He is a fellow of the American Institute of Architects and president of the New York Chapter and is a member of the National Sculpture Society, and was its vice-president 1907. Mr. Brunner is a member of the National Council of Fine Arts, appointed January, 1909, by President Roosevelt. Mr. Brunner was a contributor to Russell Sturgis' Dictionary of Architecture, and has published numerous professional papers. Residence: 1748 Broadway. Address: 33 Union Square, West, New York City.

BRUSH, Charles Francis:

Scientist; born in Euclid, Ohio, March 17, 1849. He was educated in the University of Michigan, from which he received the degrees of M.E., 1869, and M.S., 1899; and Western Reserve University, of which he is Ph.D. 1880, and LL.D. 1900; and he received from Kenyon the degree of LL.D. 1903. Mr. Brush has been active in the electrical field for many years, and possesses the distinction of being the pioneer inventor of modern electric arc lighting. He was the founder of the Brush Electric Company, and is president and a director of many large corporations; also trustee of many educational institutions. He was decorated by the French Government in 1881 for his achievements in electrical science, and was awarded the Rumford medal in 1899. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; a life member of the British Association; and a member of numerous other engineering and scientific societies. He married, in 1875, Mary E. Morris. Address: 481 The Arcade, Cleveland, Ohio.

BRUSH, George Jarvis:

Mineralogist; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 15, 1831. He was educated in public schools until 1846, when he entered business in New York City; severe illness in 1848 decided him to become a farmer; he went to Yale for six months' course in agriculture; remained two years studying chemistry and mineralogy; was assistant to Professor Benjamin Silliman, Jr., at the University of Louisville, in 1851, traveled in Europe with Professor Silliman, Sr., in 1851, and received the degrees of Ph.B. in 1852, and A.M. in 1857, from Yale, and LL.D. from Harvard in 1886. He was assistant in chemistry in the University of Virginia, 1852-1853; took post-graduate studies at University of Munich, 1853 and 1854; at Royal Saxon School of Mines, 1854-1855, and Government School of Mines, London, 1855-1856. He was professor of metallurgy, 1855-1871, professor of mineralogy, 1864-1898 at the Sheffield Scientific School, Yale, and has been emeritus professor since 1898. Dr. Brush was director, 1872-1899, of the Sheffield Scientific School. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences from 1868; fellow of the American Association of Science (president in 1881), American Society of Naturalists, American Academy of Sciences, American Philosophical Society, Connecticut Academy of Sciences, New York Academy of Science, foreign member of the London Geological Society; corresponding member of the Edinburgh Geological Society, St. Petersburg Imperial Mineralogical Society; Bavarian Royal Academy of Sciences. He is author of a Manual of Determinative Mineralogy; and also many memoirs and articles chiefly on the chemical composition of American minerals. Mr. Brush married Harriet Silliman Trumbull. Address: 14 Trumbull Street, New Haven, Conn.

BRYAN, Charles Page:

Diplomat; born in Chicago, Oct. 2, 1856; son of Thomas Barbour Bryan (vice-president of the World's Columbian Exposition), and of Jane Byrd (Page) Bryan. He is of an old Virginia family and received his education at the University of Virginia, afterward entering the Law College of Columbian (now George Washington) University of Washington, from which he was graduated LL.B. in 1878. He was admitted to the bar in 1878, and in 1879 removed to Colorado, where he remained until 1883, becoming a member of the House of Representatives of that State, and a colonel on the staff of Governor Eaton, of Colorado. He has been a resident of Elmhurst, Du Page County, Ill. (sixteen miles west of Chicago), since 1883, and was engaged in law practice in Chicago. He was for four consecutive terms a member of the lower house of the General Assembly of Illinois; and was colonel on the staffs of Governors Oglesby, Fifer and Altgeld of that State; and is an active and influential member of the Republican party of Illinois. In 1897 he was appointed envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to China, but was transferred to Brazil in 1898, remaining there until Sept., 1902, when he was transferred to Switzerland, continuing until Jan., 1903, when he was appointed to his present post as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Portugal. Address: Department of State, Washington, D. C..

BRYAN, Mary Edwards:

Author and editor; born near Tallahassee, Fla.; daughter of Major John D. and Louisa Crutchfield (Houghton) Edwards. She attended the Fletcher Institute, Thomasville, Ga., and married, while a school-girl in her fifteenth year, I. E. Bryan, a planter of Louisiana, and was graduated four years later from College Temple, Newnan, Ga., with the degree of M.A. Mrs. Bryan began writing when only 15, and published poems, stories and two serials. She edited The Sunny South at Atlanta, Ga., for nine years, then went to New York and edited the New York Bazar and The Half Hour, magazines published by George Munro, and she has published ten novels: Manch; Wild Work (a novel of the Reconstruction Era); Kildee; Nan Haggard; Uncle Ned's White Child; His Legal Wife; A Fugitive Bride; Ruth—An Outcast; The Girl He Bought; My Own Sin; also Poems and Stories in Verse; Poems for Dramatic Readings. Her books were first published by the Appletons, but the copyrights of her novels were bought by George Munro, who issued them in cheaper form. Mrs. Bryan returned from New York in 1899, and became associate editor of The Sunny South, and continued in the work until that publication was merged into the Remus Magazine (Joel Chandler Harris, editor), when she became one of the editorial staff, conducting a department, and writing stories. Mrs. Bryan is an accomplished reader and speaker, and occasionally appears on the platform to deliver commencement addresses, and reads dramatic poems at entertainments for charity. Her favorite recreation is cultivating flowers and fruit trees, for which she has always had opportunity, her husband being a farmer. She is a member of United Charities, and of the Woman's Home Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Georgia; and she has been a member of the Sorosis Club, New York, since 1886, member and formerly vice-president of the New York Woman's Press Club, and was vice-president of a former Georgia Woman's Press Club. She has had five children, of whom a son and two daughters are now living. Address: Uncle Remus Magazine, Atlanta, Ga.

BRYAN, William Jennings:

Editor, lecturer, political leader; born at Salem, Ill., March 19, 1860; son of Judge Silas Lillard and Mariah Elizabeth (Jennings) Bryan. The Bryan family, of Irish extraction, were citizens of Virginia for at least three generations, Mr. Bryan's father being born near Sperryville, Va. Mr. Bryan's mother was born in Walnut Hill, Marion County, Ill., of which place her grandfather, Israel Jennings, was one of the first settlers. Mr. Bryan was educated in the public school at his birthplace, and at Jacksonville, Ill., in Whipple Academy and Illinois College, whence he was graduated A.B. (valedictorian) 1881, A.M., 1884, and later received the degree of LL.D., and was graduated from Union College of Law, Chicago, LL.B., 1883. He practised law at Jacksonville, Ill., 1883-1887, and afterward in Lincoln, Neb., was elected to the Fifty-second and Fifty-third Congresses in 1890 and 1892; received the Democratic votes in the Nebraska Legislature for United States Senator in 1895, but was defeated in the Legislature by John M. Thurston, Republican, and was editor of the Omaha World-Herald, 1894-1896. He was a delegate from Nebraska to the National Democratic Convention at Chicago, 1896, and made a speech on the platform which is one of the most noted in the annals of American oratory, was nominated for the Presidency by that convention, and after one of the most strenuous and bitterly fought campaigns was defeated for President by William McKinley. Mr. Bryan took the lecture platform in 1897; in 1898 raised the Third Regiment of Nebraska Volunteers for the War with Spain; was again nominated for the Presidency in 1900, and again defeated by William McKinley. Immediately after the election he established at Lincoln, Neb., the Commoner, a political weekly paper, which he still conducts. Mr. Bryan headed the Nebraska delegation to the National Democratic Convention at St. Louis, 1904, and took an active part in the subsequent campaign. In 1905 and 1906, with Mrs. Bryan, he went on a world-tour, during which he took an important part in the meeting of the Interparliamentary Union in London. In 1908 Mr. Bryan received for the third time the nomination of the Democratic party for President, but after another remarkable campaign was defeated for the election by William Howard Taft. Mr. Bryan has attained great prominence as a lecturer in lyceum and Chautauqua courses, his lectures being of a religious-ethical character, and those entitled "The Value of an Ideal," and "The Prince of Peace," and "The Price of a Soul" have attained wide celebrity. Mr. Bryan is author of: The First Battle, 1897; The Old World and Its Ways, 1907; and Letters to a Chinese Official, 1907; as well as many articles in magazines and newspapers. He married in Perry, Ill., Oct. 1, 1884, Mary Elizabeth Baird, and they have three children: Ruth, William J., Jr., and Grace D. Address: Lincoln, Neb.

BRYANT, David E.:

United States judge; born in LaRue County, Ky., Oct. 19, 1840, removing with his parents in 1853 to Grayson County, which has ever since been his home. He studied in the schools at Sherman, Texas, until entering Trinity College, N. C., from which he was graduated in 1871. He studied law in offices at Sherman, Texas, and was admitted to the bar there in 1873, and engaged in the general practice of the law there until appointed, May 28, 1890, to the office of United States judge for the Eastern District of Texas, in which he is still serving. Address: Sherman, Texas.

BRYANT, Henry Grier:

Explorer; born in Allegheny, Pa., Nov. 7, 1859. He was educated at Princeton University, from which he received the degree of A.M. in 1886, and was graduated in law from the University of Pennsylvania in 1886. His explorations began in 1891 with that of the Grand Falls of Labrador, and the following year he accompanied the Peary Relief Expedition as second in command. In 1894 he was placed in command of the Peary Auxiliary Expedition, and led an expedition to Mt. St. Elias, Alaska, in 1897. He is president of the Geographical Society of Philadelphia, a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London; corresponding member of the Geographical Society of Stockholm and Geographical Society of Geneva; secretary since its formation of the American Alpine Club, and is an officer of the French Academy. He is a contributor to magazines and to the proceedings of various societies and geographical congresses. Residence: 2013 Walnut Street. Office: 806 Land Title Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

BRYANT, Percy:

Physician and alienist; born at Charles City, Iowa, April 19, 1862; son of Nathaniel Cushing Bryant, U. S. N. (commander who served in the Mexican War as acting master of the "Dale" and through the American Civil War, commanding the gunboat Cairo, Mississippi Flotilla, and received prize money for capture of the Confederate gunboats, Sumpter, General Bragg and Hiawatha), and of Mary Eliza (Southall) Bryant. He was educated in the high school at Cedar Falls, Iowa, and Columbia College, New York City, being graduated as M.D. in 1887. He received his first degree in medicine at the Chicago Homeopathic Medical College in 1883, was appointed interne to Cook County Hospital in the June following, and served twenty-two months. He was ambulance surgeon to Chambers Street Hospital, New York City, in 1886. Dr. Bryant was assistant physician at Ward's Island Insane Asylum, New York City, 1888-1889; assistant physician at Buffalo State Hospital, 1889-1894, and was promoted to first assistant in 1895. He was promoted to medical superintendent of Manhattan State Hospital, Ward's Island, New York City, in 1897, and resigned in 1901 on account of ill health. He entered into practice in Brooklyn, but ill health obliged him to retire. He purchased the Bowdoin estate at Rahway, N. J., in 1906. Dr. Bryant served as assistant surgeon of the Seventy-fourth Regiment of New York National Guard, 1893-1898, and qualified every year as sharpshooter. He is Democratic in politics and an Episcopalian in religion. He is a member of the New York State Medical Association and the American Medico-Psychological Association; a life member of the Society of Colonial Wars, and the Society of Mayflower Descendants; a Companion, by inheritance, of the Military Order of Loyal Legion; and a member of the Saturn and Liberal Clubs of Buffalo. He married in New York City, Feb. 21, 1900, Josephine Myrick Webb, and they have two sons. Residence: Woodbridge, N. J. Address: Bowdoin Park, Rahway, N. J.

BRYANT, W. Sohier:

Physician; born at Boston, Mass., May 15, 1861; son of Henry Bryant, distinguished physician and naturalist, who served in the Union Army as brigade surgeon in 1861, and surgeon of the 20th Massachusetts Volunteers, and Elizabeth Brimmer (Sohier) Bryant, of the senior branch of Sohier de Vermandois, the surviving branch of the ancient Counts of Vermandois, the junior branch from Emperor Charlemagne. Her family passed through the Island of Jersey from Cambrai to Boston. The Bryant family passed through Normandy, Devonshire and Barbados to Boston, descended from Rollo and John de Brienne. Christian King of Jerusalem and Emperor of the East. He received his preparatory education at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and from tutors. He was graduated from Harvard College as A.B. in 1884, and from Harvard Medical School as M.D. in 1888, in which year he also received the A.M. degree for anatomical discoveries from Harvard University. Dr. Bryant has been engaged in the practice of medicine from 1888, and is now practicing as a specialist in diseases of the ear, nose and throat. He was formerly aural surgeon at the Boston Dispensary; assistant in anatomy and otology at the Harvard Medical School; assistant aural surgeon to the Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary; instructor in otology, College of Physicians and Surgeons, N. Y.; clinical assistant in the Department of Otology, Vanderbilt Clinic, N. Y.; assistant surgeon, St. Bartholomew Clinic; clinical instructor and attending surgeon, Otological Department, Cornell University Medical School; physician in class of nose, throat and ear diseases at the Presbyterian Hospital, N. Y.; and adjunct professor in the Department of Diseases of the Ear, New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital. He was a member of the Boston Society of the Medical Sciences, the Boylston Society of Medical Improvement, the International Congress of Arts and Sciences in 1904, the Seventh and Eighth International Otological Congresses, the Fourth and Fifth Pan-American Medical Congresses, the Fifteenth and Sixteenth International Medical Congresses, and the Sixth and Seventh Congresses of the American Physicians and Surgeons. He served in the Massachusetts National Guard from 1883 to 1898, and also in the Spanish-American War as assistant surgeon of the First Massachusetts Regiment of Heavy Artillery, United States Volunteers, and was soon afterward commissioned by President McKinley as major and brigade surgeon of Volunteers. He served with Major-General Fitzhugh Lee in the Seventh Army Corps until May, 1899; then served two years as surgeon of Battery A, Massachusetts National Guard. He removed to New York and engaged in practice; is now consulting otologist of the Manhattan State Hospital; and senior assistant surgeon to the Aural Department of the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary. He is a member of the American Otological Society, the New York Academy of Medicine, chairman of the Section on Laryngology and Otology of the American Medical Association; member of the Medical Societies of the County and State of New York, the New York Otological Society, the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States, the American Laryngological, Rhinological and Otological Society, the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Oto-Laryngology, Massachusetts Medical Society, American Society of Sanitary and Moral Prophylaxis, American Public Health Association, Boston Medical Library Association, Harvard Medical Alumni Association, president of the Harvard Medical Society of New York, the Medical Association of the Greater City of New York, Association for the Promotion of Hygiene and Salubrity in Dwellings, East Side Physicians Association, American Therapeutic Association, Boston Society of Natural History, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Academy of Medicine, and the National Geographic Society. Dr. Bryant is a Mugwump in politics, and an Episcopalian in religious affiliation. He is a member of the Spanish War Veterans, the Military Order of Foreigners Wars, the Naval and Military Order of the Spanish-American War, Society of the Seventh Army Corps, and is a veteran member of the First Corps Cadets, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia; a member of the Zeta Psi and Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternities, the Porcellian Club, the New England Society of New York, the Loyal Legion, the Harvard Club of New York, the Society of the Colonial Wars, the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Sons of Veterans, and the Sons of the Revolution. Dr. Bryant is the author of the ear section of Knight and Bryant's "Nose, Throat and Ear" (Blakiston's Sons & Co., and also of 115 medical publications, anatomical and otological. He married at Orange, N. J., in 1887, Martha Lyman Cox, and they have six children. Address: 41 E. Thirtieth Street, New York City.

WILLIAM SOMNER BRYANT, M. D.

BRYCE, Lloyd:

Editor, author; born in Flushing, Long Island, N. Y., Sept. 20, 1851; son of Major Joseph Smith Bryce, U. S. A., and Elizabeth (Stephens) Bryce. He was graduated from Oxford University, England, as B.A. and M.A. Mr. Bryce was editor and owner of the North American Review from 1889 to 1896. He is author of: Paradise Friends in Exile; The Romance of an Alter Ego; A Dream of Conquest; Lady Blanche's Salon; The Literary Duet; After Christianity—What?; and also of essays, etc., contributed to reviews. He was for a time paymaster-general of the State of New York. He was elected as a Democrat from the Seventh District of New York City, to the Fiftieth Congress, serving from 1887 to 1889. He married, Edith, daughter of Mayor Cooper, of New York City, and they have three children. Address: Roslyn, Nassau County, N. Y.

BUCHANAN, Charles Jay:

Lawyer; born in New Berlin, N. Y., Dec. 27, 1843. He was educated at the public schools and the United States Military Academy, and he served during the Civil War in the First Regiment of United States Sharpshooters (Berdan's) as a private, non-commissioned officer, and first lieutenant; and as adjutant of the regiment. Mr. Buchanan has been practising law in Albany, N. Y., since Jan., 1874, and is now a member of the law firm of Buchanan, Lawyer and Whalen. He is also a director of the Union Trust Company, trustee and secretary of the National Savings Bank of Albany, N. Y. He is a Republican in politics, and a member of the Episcopal Church. Mr. Buchanan is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and of the Buchanan and St. Andrew's societies; the secretary and a trustee of the Albany Law School; a trustee of the Albany Academy for Girls, and the Young Men's Association of Albany, N. Y. He is also a member of the Fort Orange University, and Army and Navy Clubs, and is active in various corporate interests. Has received the degree of M.A. Address: 79 Chapel Street, Albany, N. Y.

BUCHANAN, James Isaac:

Banker; born in Hamilton, Ontario, Aug. 3, 1853; son of the late Hon. Isaac Buchanan, who was president of the Executive Council corresponding with the present Privy Council, and a prominent Canadian Government official. He was educated at Dr. Tassie's Collegiate Institute, of Galt, Ontario. He began his business training in 1868 in his father's wholesale dry-goods house, and in 1870 he visited South Africa, and afterwards, in 1871, returned to Canada to the same business in which he received his early training. In Jan., 1877, he became a junior clerk with the Oil City Trust Company, at Oil City, Pa., and from that became private secretary and business manager to the late Captain J. J. Vandergrift, financier, oil operator and manufacturer. On Captain Vandergrift's death, he was made by his will one of the trustees of his estate. He became vice-president of the Pittsburg Trust Company, later succeeding in 1904 to the presidency of the last named corporation. He has been a director of several corporations in Pennsylvania and now president of the Pittsburg Trust Co., Pittsburg Terminal Warehouse & Transfer Company and Terminal Trust Company; secretary and treasurer of the Keystone Commercial Company; and he is a director of the Washington Oil Company; Unity Oil Co.; Taylorstown Natural Gas Co.; The Natural Gas Co. of West Virginia, and of the Keystone National Bank of Pittsburg; and senior partner of J. I. Buchanan & Co., bankers. Mr. Buchanan was for eight years chairman of the Orchestra Committee of the Pittsburg Art Society, and is president of the Athalia Daly Home for Working Girls. He is an elder of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church of Pittsburg and a former president of the Presbyterian Union of Pittsburg. He is a past president of the Academy of Science and Art of Pittsburg; a member of the Botanical Society of Western Pennsylvania, and a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; the American Geographical Society, and the National Geographical Society, and a life member of St. Andrew's Society of New York and St. Andrew's Society of Pennsylvania. He is a member of the Masonic fraternity and since 1890 an active member of the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite, thirty-third degree, and deputy for Pennsylvania since 1897. Mr. Buchanan married at Pittsburg, July 11, 1901, Eliza Macfarlane, of Pittsburg. Address: 6108 Walnut Street, Pittsburg.

BUCHANAN, Roberdeau:

Assistant, nautical almanac office; born in Philadelphia, Nov. 22, 1839; son of Pay Director McKean Buchanan of the U. S. Navy, and F. Selina (Roberdeau) Buchanan. He was educated at the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University, graduating as B.S. in the class of 1861. Mr. Buchanan engaged in practice as a civil engineer, and became connected with the Nautical Almanac in 1879, and he is now one of the assistants in the Nautical Almanac Office, at the United States Naval Observatory at Washington. He is author of various technical and biographical works, including: Mathematical Theory of Eclipses; Projection of the Sphere, and Introduction to the Differential Calculus by Means of Finite Differences; also genealogies of the Roberdeau, Shippen and McKean families. He is a contributor to astronomical magazines. He married in Washington, D. C., Sept. 12, 1888, Eliza M. Peters, daughter of Thomas Peters of Maryland, and grandniece of Judge Richard Peters of Philadelphia. Address: 2015 Q Street, Washington, D. C.

BUCHANAN, William Insko:

Diplomatist; born on a farm near Covington, Miami County, Ohio, Sept. 10, 1853. In 1874 he was appointed engrossing clerk in the House of Representatives of Indiana, in which position he remained for a year. In 1876 he removed to Piqua, Ohio, and from there in 1882, to Sioux City, Iowa. It was while he was a resident of the latter place that he took a prominent place in organizing and managing the first four corn palaces at Sioux City, a series of novel autumn exhibitions which became famous throughout the country. He was appointed in 1890 as the Democratic member from Iowa of the National Commission charged with carrying out the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, of which he was chief of the Departments of Agriculture, Live Stock and Forestry. In 1894 he was appointed by President Cleveland envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to the Argentine Republic, which post he resigned in 1900. While so engaged he was designated in 1898 by the Congresses of both Argentina and Chile as the deciding member of the joint Commission created to settle the boundary controversy between the two countries as to the line north of Latitude 23 degrees, and as such fixed the existing boundary between the two countries. He was Director General of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, 1899-1901. He was appointed a delegate from the United States to the Second International Conference of American States, held in the City of Mexico, 1901-1902. He was appointed by President Roosevelt in 1902 the first United States minister to the new Republic of Panama, during the organization of the Republic and the making of her constitution. He was appointed a delegate and chairman of the United States delegation to the Third International Conference of American States, held at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, July to Sept., 1906; appointed a member of the United States delegation to the Second International Peace Conference at the Hague, held in 1907, and representative of the United States in the Central American Peace Conference at Washington, Nov. and Dec., 1907. He attended and took part in the inauguration of the International Court of Justice at Cortago, Costa Rica, in 1908, as High Commissioner representing the President of the United States; in 1909 he was sent on special missions to Venezuela as High Commissioner representing the President to arrange the conditions for the reestablishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and that country, resulting in the settlement of all claims of American citizens against Venezuela. Residence: 34 Gates Circle, Buffalo, N. Y.

BUCHTEL, Henry Augustus:

Ex-governor of Colorado, clergyman, educator; born near Akron, Ohio, Sept. 30, 1847; son of Dr. Jonathan B. Buchtel. He was educated at Ashbury (now De Pauw) University, receiving the degrees of A.M. 1875, D.D. 1884, and LL.D. 1900. In 1873 he was sent to Bulgaria as a missionary, and since his return to this country has held numerous pastorates, among them being Methodist Episcopal churches in Zionsville, Greencastle, Knightstown, Grace Church in Richmond, Trinity Church in La Fayette, and Central Avenue Church in Indianapolis, Ind.; Evans Chapel and Trinity Church in Denver, Colo.; 1st Church in Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; and Cavalry Church in East Orange, N. J. He was appointed chancellor of the University of Denver in 1900, and still holds that office. At the election in 1906 he was elected on the Republican ticket as governor of Colorado, his term expiring in January, 1909. He married in Greencastle, Ind., Feb. 4, 1873, Mary N. Stevenson. Address: University Park, Colo.

BUCK, Albert Henry:

Physician; born in New York City, Oct. 20, 1842; son of Dr. Gurdon and Henrietta E. (Wolff) Buck. He was graduated from Yale, A.B., 1864, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University, M.D., 1867. He was aural surgeon at the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary, 1871-1883, and professor of otology at Columbia University, 1887-1904. He is consulting aural surgeon to the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary; is an honorary member of the American Otological Society, and the New York Otological Society. Dr. Buck is author of: A Treatise on Diseases of the Ear; and editor of the following works; Stricker's Histology (translation), one volume; Ziemssen's Cyclopaedia of Medicine (translation), seventeen volumes; Hygiene and Public Health, two volumes; Reference Handbook of the Medical Sciences, eight volumes, (two editions); and (in conjunction with Dr. Joseph D. Bryant) American Practice of Surgery, eight volumes. Dr. Buck married at New Haven, Conn., Laura, daughter of Rev. John S. C. Abbott. Address: care of H. W. Buck, 49 Wall St., New York City.

BUCK, Dudley:

Composer, organist; born at Hartford, Conn., March 10, 1839; studied at Trinity College, Hartford and later at the Leipzig Conservatory of Music under Hauptmann, Richter, Reitz, Moschelles and Plaids, being a classmate there of Sir Oliver Sullivan. He also studied under Schneider at Dresden, and in 1861-1862 at Paris. Mr. Buck was for three years organist of the Music Hall at Boston. He became assistant conductor of the Garden Concerts at New York City, on invitation of Theodore Thomas, in 1875; and he composed the cantata sung at the opening of the Centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia, which was executed by 800 voices and 150 instruments, conducted by Theodore Thomas. He was organist of the Church of Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, conductor of the Apollo Club twenty-five years and retired from all but theoretical work and composition in 1902. He is author of numerous compositions in various forms, but for the greater part vocal, and both sacred and secular. Among the more prominent of his compositions are: The Legend of Don Munio, 1874; Marmion Overture, 1880; The Golden Legend (for the Cincinnati May Festival, winning the $1,000 prize) the music to Longfellow's and Edmund C. Stedman's Poems; Light of Asia, published and first performed in London, 1886-1887. Mr. Buck is also author of A Dictionary of Musical Terms; and of The Influence of the Organ in History, 1882. Address: G. Schirmer & Co., 35 Union Square, New York City.

BUCK, Gertrude:

Professor of English, Vassar College; born in Kalamazoo, Mich., July 14, 1871; daughter of George Machan and Anne (Bradford) Buck. She was graduated from the University of Michigan as B.S., 1894, M.S., 1895, Ph.D., 1898, and was fellow in English in the University of Chicago in 1895. She was assistant in English in the University of Michigan, 1896-1897; teacher of English in the Indianapolis High School, 1897, and since then has been in Vassar College as instructor, 1897-1901, associate professor, 1901-1907, and professor since 1907. Professor Buck is author of: The Metaphor-A Study in the Psychology of Rhetoric, in the series of "Contributions to Rhetorical Theory," edited by Professor F. N. Scott, 1899; A Course in Argumentative Writing, 1899; A Course in Expository Writing (with Elizabeth Woodbridge), 1899; A Brief English Grammar (with F. N. Scott), 1905; Ruskin's "Sesame and Lilies," in the series of Longman's English Classics, 1906; A Course in Narrative Writing (with E. W. Morris), 1906; also magazine articles on educational subjects in The Forum, The Educational Review, The School Review, Education, Modern Language Notes, The Elementary School Teacher, etc. She is a member of the Modern Language Association of America, the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, the Alpha Phi Sorority, Daughters of the American Revolution, Equal Suffrage League, and the Women's University Club of New York. Address: Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

BUCK, Lillie West ("Amy Leslie"):

Critic of music, drama and art; born in Burlington, Iowa; daughter of Albert and Kate (Conant) West. She was graduated as valedictorian of the class of 1874 from St. Mary's Academy, at Notre Dame, Ind., receiving a gold medal in the academic course and a gold medal and special diploma in the Conservatory course in vocal music. She went on the stage in Boston in 1880, creating rôles in Audran's "Planchette" and in Offenbach opera bouffe, and afterward made a great success in the Fifth Avenue Theatre as "Fiametta" in The Mascot, in Olivette and in other leading soprano rôles. She married in Chicago, in 1884, Harry Brown, the popular comedian, and she retired from the stage upon the death of her only son, Francis Albert Brown, in 1889. The same year she entered upon the position of dramatic critic of the Chicago Daily News, which she still holds at one of the highest salaries ever paid a critic, her articles on matters dramatic, musical and artistic, signed "Amy Leslie," carrying the greatest weight of authority with the Chicago public. In 1901 she married, in Chicago, her present husband, Franklin Howard Buck, now head of the publicity department of Klaw & Erlanger. In addition to her newspaper she has published a pamphlet on sensational dress in public, "Amy Leslie at the Fair," an exhaustive story of the World's Columbian Exposition, 1903; a book of European travels, and "Some Players," a book of personal reminiscences of celebrated actors, with personal autograph letters and pictures; also biographies of Mansfield, Modjeska, Irving, Terry and others, and she has translated books from the French and Spanish. She lives, winter and summer, in a secluded country home called "The Roose" at Norwood Park, Ill., where she raises Homing pigeons, Black Spanish chickens, rare flowers and small fruits. Residence address: 265 Crescent Avenue, Norwood Park, Ill. Office: Chicago Daily News, Chicago.

BUCKLEY, Ernest Robertson:

Director of the Missouri Bureau of Geology and Mines; born in Milbury, Mass., Sept. 3, 1872; son of Thomas M. and Grace (Robertson) Buckley. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin as B.S. in 1885 and Ph.D. in 1898. He served four years in the Wisconsin National Guards and two years in the University of Wisconsin Regiment, in charge of small arms firing; and was alderman of the city of Madison, Wis. He is a life member of the Geological Society of America, American Institute of Mining Engineers, American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Mining Congress, and is a member of the Wisconsin Academy of Sciences, Washington Academy of Science, Arts and Letters, Wisconsin Clay Workers'

Association, the Wisconsin Natural History Society, and the American Society for Testing Materials. He is author of: Building and Ornamental Stones of Wisconsin, 1898; Clays and Clay Industries in Wisconsin, 1900; Highway Construction in Wisconsin, 1902; Quarrying Industry of Missouri, 1904; Public Roads in Missouri. Geology of the Granby Area; Disseminated Lead Deposits of St. Francois and Washington Counties, Mo. He is a member of Masonic lodges and of the Mercantile Club of St. Louis. Mr. Buckley married at Milwaukee, Aug. 25, 1903, Grace Emeline Magdeburg. Address: Rolla, Mo.

BUCKLEY, James Monroe:

Editor of the Christian Advocate; born in Rahway, N. J., Dec. 16, 1836. He studied parts of two years at Wesleyan University, from which he has received the degrees of A.M. and D.D., also the degree of LL.D. from Emory and Henry College in Virginia. He was also a student in theology at Exeter, N. H. In 1859 he joined the New Hampshire Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and held pastorates in Detroit and Brooklyn during the years from 1863-1866. From that time until 1880 he was in charge of pastorates in and near New York. In 1880 he was elected by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church to the editorship of The Christian Advocate, at New York, and he has been continued in that position by quadrennial reelections by the General Conference. Dr. Buckley was elected a member of the General Conference in 1872, and has since been reelected to each of the subsequent General Conference quadrennial sessions, down to and including that of 1908 at Baltimore. He is the author of a large number of religious books, among them: Oats or Wild Oats; Faith Healing, Christian Science and Kindred Phenomena; Christians and the Theatre; The Land of the Czar and the Nihilist; Travels in Three Continents—Europe, Asia, Africa; History of Methodism in the United States; Extemporaneous Oratory for Professional and Amateur Speakers; Supposed Miracles; and the Fundamentals and Their Contrasts. He is now editor of the New York Christian Advocate. Residence: Morristown, N. J. Business address: 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

BUCKNER, Simon Bolivar:

Soldier; born in Kentucky in 1823. He was appointed from Kentucky to the United States Military Academy, from which he was graduated in the Class of 1844. He was professor of ethics in the United States Military Academy in 1845-1846. He served in the Mexican War from 1846-1848, was wounded at the battle of Cherubusco, and promoted to captain. He returned in 1848 to West Point as assistant instructor of military tactics until 1850; and was appointed captain in the Subsistence Department in 1852 and resigned from the U. S. Army in 1855. At the beginning of the war between the States he entered the Confederate States Army, of which he became one of the most distinguished lieutenant-generals. He was elected governor of Kentucky in November, 1886, serving a four-year term from 1887-1891, and in 1896 he was the candidate nominated by the Indianapolis Convention of National Democrats (gold standard) for vice-president of the United States, on the ticket with General John M. Palmer of Illinois for president. Address: Munfordville, Ky.

BUFFINGTON, Joseph:

United States judge; born in Kittanning, Pa., Sept. 5, 1855. He was graduated from Trinity College as B.A., 1875. He studied law and was admitted to the bar Sept. 5, 1878, and from that year until 1892 practised in Kittanning, Pa. In 1892 he was appointed judge of the U. S. District Court for the western district of Pennsylvania, and since Sept. 21, 1906, has been judge of the United States Circuit Court for the 3d circuit. He was married in Emmitsburg, Md., Jan. 29, 1885, to Mary Alice Simonton. Residence: 5324 Ellsworth Avenue. Office: Federal Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

BULKELEY, Morgan Gardner:

United States senator; born at East Haddam, Conn., Dec. 26, 1837; son of Hon.

Eliphalet A. Bulkeley, who was the first Republican speaker (1857) of the Connecticut House of Representatives. He was educated in the schools of his native town and Hartford. In 1889 he received from Yale University the honorary degree of M.A. In 1852 he commenced a business life in Brooklyn, N. Y., and as clerk and partner continued until 1872. In 1862 he enlisted in the Thirteenth Regiment of the National Guard of the State of New York, and served at Baltimore and Suffolk, Va., under the command of Brigadier-General Max Weber. He returned to Hartford in 1872, and organized and was the first president of the United States Bank, and in 1879 was chosen president of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, organized by his father. Mr. Bulkeley was for four terms, from 1880-1888 mayor of the city of Hartford. In 1888 he was unanimously nominated as Republican candidate for governor, and occupied that office from 1889 until 1893. He was a delegate to the Republican National Conventions of 1888 and 1896; and was nominated by the Republican caucus, Jan. 11, 1905, as the candidate for United States Senator, to succeed Hon. J. R. Hawley, and was elected to the United States Senate, and took his seat March 4, 1905. His term will expire March 3, 1911. Address: Hartford, Conn.

BULL, Charles Stedman:

Physician; born in New York City; son of Henry King and Eliza A. (Ludlow) Bull. He attended Professor Elie Charlier's French School; was graduated from Columbia University, A.B., 1864, A.M., 1867, and M.D., 1868; attended the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia, three years, and was at Universities of Paris, Berlin, Vienna and Heidelberg. He has been ophthalmic surgeon to the City Hospital and New York Dispensary, now is attending surgeon to New York Eye and Ear Infirmary and consulting ophthalmic surgeon to the Presbyterian Hospital, and to St. Mary's Hospital for Children. Professor of Ophthalmology in Cornell University Medical College since 1900. He is a member of the American Ophthalmological Society, New York Ophthalmological Society, American Medical Association, New York State Medical Association, New York Academy of Medicine and Practitioners' Society; director of the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary. He is a member of the Sons of the Revolution, Society of Colonial Wars, Huguenot Society of America and the Century Association and University Club. Dr. Bull married at Waterbury, Conn., June 10, 1882, Mary E. Kingsbury, and they have three children. Address: 47 West 36th Street, New York City.

BULL, Melville:

Ex-member of congress; born in Newport, R. I., in 1854. He graduated from Harvard College in 1877, and since then has been engaged in farming. He has been active in the politics of the Republican party since 1883, when he became a member of the State legislature. At the expiration of his term he was elected to the State Senate, serving for seven years, when he became lieutenant-governor of the State, serving for one term. He was a member of the Republican State Central Committee from 1885-1895, and a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1888. He became a member of the National House of Representatives in 1895, from the First Rhode Island District, and served for four consecutive terms, but was defeated in 1902. He has been one of the board of managers of the Rhode Island College of Agriculture and Mechanic Arts since 1888. Address: Middletown, R. I.

BULL, William Lanman:

Capitalist and broker; born in New York City, Aug. 23, 1844. He was educated in the University of the City of New York. Mr. Bull is chairman of the Board of Directors of the Wisconsin Central Railway, is a director of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, the Baltimore and Southwestern Railway Company, the Louisville, Evansville and Saint Louis Railway, New York, Susquehanna and Western and other large railroad and mining corporations. He is a trustee of the Metropolitan Trust Company, and is a member of the firm of Edward Sweet and Company, brokers. Mr.

Bull is a member of the New York Stock Exchange and was its president, 1888-1890. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the New England Society, the American Fine Arts Society, the Mayflower Society, the Dunlap Society, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and of the New York Yacht, Metropolitan, Grolier, University, Union, Players', Century, Alpha Delta Phi, Riding, Republican, Ardsley, Church and City Midway Clubs of New York. Residence: 805 Fifth Avenue. Address: 38 Broad Street, New York City.

BULLARD, George E.:

Banker; born at Boston, March 4, 1839; son of Francis Bullard and Harriet D. Bullard. He was agent and attorney for Brown Brothers & Co., New York, and Brown, Shipley & Co., London, for thirty years, and resigned, Dec. 31, 1908. Trustee Eliot Five Cents Savings Bank; director of the American Woolen Company, of New Jersey, Arlington Mills, Lawrence, Mass., Woods Worsted Mills, Lawrence, Mass., National and Providence Worsted Mills, Providence, R. I., and Cochecho Manufacturing Co., Dover, N. H. Address: 60 State Street, Boston, Mass.

BULLEN, Percy Sutherland:

American correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph; born at Hastings, Sussex, 1867; third son of the late Captain Charles Bullen, of the Royal Navy, and grandson of Admiral Sir Charles Bullen, G.C.B., who was in command of H.M.S. Britannia at the Battle of Trafalgar. He has traveled largely in Europe and Morocco; has represented leading American papers in Paris, Berlin and Rome; and was special staff correspondent of the Daily Telegraph in the Boer War in 1900. He is a fellow of the Institute of Journalists of London, and a member of the London Press Club. Address: 116 Nassau Street, New York City.

BUMPUS, Hermon Carey:

Director of the American Museum of Natural History; born in Buckfield, Me., May 5, 1862; son of Laurin A. and Abbie

Ann (Eaton) Bumpus. He was graduated from Brown University, Ph.B. (Phi Beta Kappa), 1884, Clark University, Ph.D., 1891; and has received the honorary degree of D.Sc. from Tufts College, 1905, and Brown, 1905. He was professor of biology in Olivet College, 1886-1889, fellow in Clark University, 1889-1890, assistant professor and associate professor of Zoölogy, and later professor of Comparative Anatomy in Brown University, 1890-1901. Professor Bumpus was assistant director of the Marine Biological Laboratory, 1893-1895, director of the Biological Laboratory of the United States Fish Commission Station at Wood's Hole, Mass., 1896-1901; was assistant to the president and curator of the Department of Invertebrate Zoölogy in the American Museum of Natural History, 1901, and since 1902 has been director of the American Museum of Natural History. He is author of: A Laboratory Course in Invertebrate Zoölogy and numerous articles on biological subjects. Dr. Bumpus is a corporate member of the Boston Society of Natural History, and the American Fisheries Society, and a charter member of the Brown Chapter of the Society of Sigma Xi; member of the American Society of Naturalists, American Society of Zoölogists, National Geographic Society, Linnean Society of New York, New York Zoölogical Society, the Faculty of Pure Science of Columbia University, New York Botanical Garden, honorary member of the Rhode Island Medical Society, fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and of the New York Academy of Sciences; member of the Board of Governors of Brown University, trustee of the Marine Biological Laboratory, member of the Corporation of the Rhode Island School of Design, vice-president of the Audubon Society of the State of New York, and director of the National Association of Audubon Societies. He was president of the International Fisheries Congress, Washington, 1908, and of the American Association of Museums, and member of many other scientific and educational societies. He is a member also of the Century Association of New York and the University Club of Providence, R. I., and is president of the Brown University Club in New York City. Dr. Bumpus married in Dorchester, Mass., in 1886. Ella Nightingale, and they have two sons. Address: American Museum of Natural History, New York City.

BUMSTEAD, Horace:

Clergyman and college president; born in Boston, Mass., Sept. 29, 1841; son of Josiah Freeman and Lucy Douglas (Willis) Bumstead. He was graduated from Yale College as B.A. in 1863, M.A. in 1866. He was also graduated from Andover Theological Seminary in 1870, and studied at the University of Tübingen, Germany, 1870-1871. He received the degree of D.D. from New York University in 1881. He served as major in the Forty-third Regiment of United States Colored Troops from April, 1864, to December 1865, serving in Virginia (siege of Richmond and Petersburg) and in Texas. He was pastor of the Second Congregational Church, Minneapolis, Minn., from 1872-1875. He was professor in Atlanta University, Atlanta, Ga., from 1875-1897, and was president of the same institution from 1888 to 1907. He resigned the presidency, to take effect Sept. 1, 1907, being placed at that time upon the retiring list of the Carnegie Foundation. Dr. Bumstead is a member of the Military Order of Loyal Legion of the United States, and of the Phi Beta Kappa Society and Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. He married at Conway, N. H., Jan. 9, 1872, Anna M. Hoyt, and they have had five children. Address: 91 St. Paul Street, Brookline, Mass.

BUNN, Charles Wilson:

Lawyer; born at Galesville, Wis., May 21, 1855; son of the Hon. Romanzo Bunn former United States district judge and Sarah (Purdy) Bunn. He was graduated from the Scientific course of the University of Wisconsin in 1874 with the degree of B.S. He also graduated at the Law School of the University of Wisconsin and commenced practice in La Crosse, Wisconsin in 1876. In the latter city he practised until 1885 when he removed to Saint Paul, Minn., where he still resides. In 1896 Mr.

Bunn was appointed general counsel of the Northern Pacific Railway Company, and continues to act in that capacity to the present day. He is a member of the University Club of New York, Chicago Club of Chicago, and Minnesota Club of St. Paul. He was married Aug. 9, 1877, to Mary Anderson, of La Crosse. Residence: 549 Portland Avenue. Address: Northern Pacific Railway Building, St. Paul, Minn.

BURBANK, Luther:

Naturalist, originator of new fruits and flowers; born in Lancaster, Mass., March 7, 1849; son of Samuel Walton and Olive (Ross) Burbank. He spent his boyhood on a farm and was educated in the Lancaster Academy. He has always been devoted to the study of nature, especially plant life. In 1875 he removed to Santa Rosa, Calif., where he conducts Burbank's Experiment Farms. He is the originator of the Burbank potato; the Gold Wickson Apple, October purple, Shiro, Chaleo, Santa Rosa, Formosa, America and Climax plums; the Giant, Splendor, Sugar, and Stoneless prunes; a new fruit, the Plumcot; Peach-blow, Burbank and Santa Rosa and other Roses; gigantic forms of amaryllis, tigridias; the Shasta daisy; Giant and fragrant callas; and various new apples, peaches, nuts, berries and other valuable trees, flowers, fruits, grasses, grains and vegetables. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and of the American Pomological Society; an honorary member of the American Breeders' Association, and of numerous scientific societies. He is special lecturer on evolution at Leland Stanford University. Address: Santa Rosa, Calif.

BURCKHALTER, Charles:

Astronomer in charge Chabot Observatory; born in Ohio in Jan., 1849, and had only a high school education. He followed mercantile pursuits, and was engaged in the railroad and fire insurance businesses until he was 33 years of age, using his spare time to secure an education in the higher mathematics. His attainments in this direction secured him recognition and in 1886 he was placed in charge of the Chabot Observatory at Oakland, Calif. He was a member of the Lick Observatory expedition to observe the eclipse of the sun in Japan in 1896, and headed expeditions from his own observatory to observe the eclipse in California in 1889, in India in 1898 and in Georgia in 1900. Prof. Burckhalter is a fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society, member of the British Astronomical Society, for three years secretary and twice elected president of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific; member of the California Academy of Sciences; etc., and he was appointed member of the State Earthquake Commission, 1906. He married Mary Catherine Nash in 1878 and has five children. Residence: 1224 Linden Street. Office: Chabot Observatory, Oakland, Calif.

BURDETTE, Clara Bradley:

Born in East Bloomfield, N. Y., July 22, 1855; daughter of Albert Harvey and Laura Orinda (Coville) Bradley. After passing through the graded and high schools of Syracuse, N. Y., she entered Syracuse University, from which she was graduated as B.S. in 1876. While there she led in the organization of what is now the Alpha Phi Society, one of the leading Woman's Greek Letter Societies. * Upon leaving college she became preceptress in a private school for girls until 1878. She married at Syracuse, July 24, 1878, N. Milman Wheeler, who had been fellow student at Syracuse, and removed to Wisconsin, where he was engaged in educational work, and was soon after appointed professor of Greek in Lawrence University. Because of his health they later removed to California, where Professor Wheeler died Dec. 6, 1886. On June 4, 1890 she married at Los Angeles, Calif., Col. Presley C. Baker, a former cavalry officer of the Confederate Army, who died Sept. 5, 1893, and March 25, 1899, she married Robert J. Burdette, well known as humorist and lecturer and now pastor of the Temple Baptist Church at Los Angeles, Calif. Mrs. Burdette has always been interested in woman's work, founded the Woman's Exchange in Los Angeles, was one of the organizers of the Chautauqua movement in California and is a trustee of the Throop Polytechnic Institute, Pasadena, a member of the Hospital Board of Pasadena Hospital, to which she gave a Maternity Wing in 1904, one of the founders and incorporators of the Southwest Museum of Los Angeles, and a member of the Associated Charities. She was one of the charter members of the Ebell Club of Los Angeles, was elected its president in 1897 and erected its club house; organized the women's clubs of California in 1900, into a State Federation, of which she was elected president, took it into the General Federation of Women's Clubs, and served at its head until elected vice-president of the General Federation in 1902. She is a daughter of the American Revolution, organized the Pasadena Chapter and was its first Regent. While herself a Presbyterian, Mrs. Burdette has actively filled the duties falling to her as wife of the pastor of a Baptist Congregation that numbers from 5,000 to 6,000 each Sunday, was one of the incorporators and is now first vice-president of the Auditorium Company that built in Los Angeles an eight-story building in which her husband's church worships. She was chairman of the Finance Committee that built this structure at a cost of $625,000, was on the Building Committee, and the Furnishing Committee, and is now chairman of the Supervisory Committee. She has numerous business and philanthropic interests, has made frequent addresses, has written numerous articles in magazines and newspapers and is the author of various booklets and books, notably: The Rainbow and The Pot of Gold. Mrs. Burdette is a member of the American Institute for Social Science, American Civic Association, National Geographic Society, the Archaeological Institute of America, the Ebell, Friday Morning and Badger Clubs of Los Angeles, and the Shakespeare Club of Pasadena. Mrs. Burdette holds a place of national distinction as a woman of activity and usefulness. She has a son, Roy Bradley Wheeler, and a step-son, Robert J. Burdette, Jr. Address: 891 Orange Grove Boulevard, Pasadena, Calif.

BURDETTE, Robert Jones:

Humorist and lecturer; born in Greensboro, Pa., July 30, 1844. In his early youth he removed to Peoria, Ill., and at the beginning of the Civil War entered the Union army, serving as a private in the 47th Illinois Volunteers until 1865. He was associated with several newspapers in Peoria, and later became associate editor of the Burlington (Iowa) Hawkeye, where he made his reputation as a humorist. After a period with the Brooklyn Eagle he entered the lecture field. In 1887 he became a licensed minister of the Baptist church, and was ordained in 1903. Since 1903 he has been in charge of the Temple Baptist Church at Los Angeles, Calif. He is member of the Archaeological Institute of America; the American Social Science Association; and the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity. He is the author of several books, principally humorous, among which are: Hawkeyetems; The Rise and Fall of the Moustache; Hawkeyes; Life of William Penn (in lives of American Worthies); Immaeh Garden; Sons of Asaph; Chimes from a Jester's Bells; and Smiles Yoked with Sighs. He married, March 25, 1899, Clara Bradley Baker. Residence: Pasadena, Calif.

BURFORD, John Henry:

Jurist; born near Judson, Parke County, Ind., Feb. 29, 1852; son of James and Sarah Ann (Reddish) Burford. He attended the Collegiate Institute of Waveland, Ind., and the Indiana State University Law School, from which he was graduated as LL.B. in 1874. He was admitted to the Indiana Bar in 1873, and engaged in the general practice of law in that State. In 1890 he settled in Oklahoma and became probate judge of Beaver County, Oklahoma, in 1890. He was appointed by President Harrison register of the United States Land Office at Oklahoma City, Okla., in 1890 serving until 1893. He was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court of the Territory Oklahoma serving from 1893 to 1897, and in 1898 he was appointed by President McKinley, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Oklahoma, in which position he continued until the admission of the State. Judge Burford is a Republican in politics. He has been editor of the Oklahoma Territory Supreme Court Reports 1896-1908, and has published volumes v to xviii. Judge Burford is a member of the American Geographical Society, and is a prominent member of the Masonic fraternity. He married at Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 14, 1876, Mary Anna Check, and they have a son. Address: 712 East Springer Avenue, Guthrie, Okla.

BURGESS, Albert Franklin:

Entomologist; born at Rockland, Mass., Oct. 2, 1873; son of Emory and Mary (Lewis) Burgess. He was graduated from the Massachusetts Agricultural College as B.S. in 1895, and M.S. in 1897. Mr. Burgess was assistant entomologist to the Massachusetts Board of Agriculture from 1895-1899, assistant in entomology at the University of Illinois from 1899-1900, assistant inspectors of Nurseries and Orchards of Ohio from 1900-1902, chief inspector of nurseries and orchards of Ohio from 1902-1907, and he was agent of the Gypsy Moth Department at Boston, Mass, from March 1, 1907 to Sept. 1, 1907; since then he has been assistant entomologist in the Bureau of Entomology, at Washington. Mr. Burgess is secretary of the American Association of Economic Entomologists, associate Editor of the Journal of Economic Entomology, past president of the Association of Official Horticultural Inspectors, and is a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity. He married at Castalia, Ohio, June 20, 1904, Mary E. Dwight, and they have a son. Address: Bureau of Entomology, Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

BURGESS, (Frank) Gelett:

Author and grotesque draughtsman; born in Boston, Mass., Jan., 30, 1866; son of Thomas H. and Caroline (Brooks) Burgess. He was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology as B.S. in 1887. He became a civil engineer on the Southern Pacific Railroad in California from 1887-1890; instructor in topographical drawing in the University of California from 1891-1894, and designer till 1896, when he took up literary work as a profession, illustrating most of his writings. He was editor of The Lark from 1895-1897, and assistant editor of the Wave in 1896-1897; became associate editor of Ridgway's in 1906 and he is a contributor to various American and English periodicals. He is author of Vivette, 1897; The Lively City o'Ligg, 1899; Goops, and How to Be Them, 1900; A Gage of Youth, and The Burgess Nonsense Book, 1901; The Romance of the Commonplace, 1902; More Goops, 1903; The Reign of Queen Isyl (with Will Irwin), 1903; The Picaroons (with same), 1904; The Rubaiyat of Omar Cayenne, 1904; Goop Tales, 1904; A Little Sister of Destiny, 1905; Are You A Bromide?, 1906; The White Cat, The Maxims of Methuselah; The Heart Line, 1907; Blue Goops and Red, 1909; Lady Méchante, 1909. Address: 1285 Commonwealth Avenue, Boston. The Bohemian Club, San Francisco; The Players, New York City.

BURGESS, Frederick:

Bishop of Long Island; born in Providence, R. I., Oct. 6, 1853; son of Frederick and Julia Ann (Niles) Burgess. He was graduated from Brown University, as B.A., 1873, then attended one year in Oxford University, England, and in 1898 he received degree of D.D. from Brown University. He was ordered deacon of the Episcopal Church by the Bishop of New Hampshire, in 1876, and ordained priest by the late Bishop Clark in 1877. He began his ministry as deacon in charge of St. Mark's Mission at Mendham, N. J., in 1877, and a year later became rector of Grace Church, Amherst, Mass., subsequently occupying rectorates in Detroit and Brooklyn, N. Y. He was elected Bishop, Nov. 21, 1901, and consecrated Jan. 15, 1902, by Bishops Potter, Doane, and Davies, as Bishop of Long Island. He is president of the Church Charity Foundation, and Diocesan Missions of Long Island, the Cathedral of the Incarnation, of the Trustees of Clergymen's Retiring Fund; president of the Trustees of the Estate belonging to the Diocese of Long Island and is trustee of the Domestic and Foreign Missionary Society. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, and of the Hamilton, Twentieth Century and Garden City Clubs. He received the degree of D.D. from Brown University in 1898. He married at Mendham, N. J., Sept. 13, 1881, Caroline G. Bartow, and by that union there are four sons. Residence: See House, Garden City, N. Y. Office: Diocesan House, 170 Remsen Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BURKE, James Francis:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Petroleum Center, Venango County, Pa., Oct. 21, 1867; son of Richard J. and Anna (Arnold) Burke. He was graduated from the law department of the University of Michigan with the degree of LL.B. in 1892. He was admitted to the bar in the Supreme Court of Michigan, in the Superior and Supreme Courts of Pennsylvania, and in the United States courts, and he has practised law in Pittsburg since 1893. He was for a time secretary of the Republican National Committee in 1892, being the youngest man who ever held that office. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1908. He was elected in 1904 from the Thirty-first Pennsylvania District to the Fifty-ninth Congress, in 1906 to the Sixtieth Congress, and reelected in 1908 to the Sixty-first Congress, in which he is now serving. He is a member of the leading clubs and commercial organizations of Pittsburg. He married in Detroit, Mich., April 15, 1895, Josephine Burch Scott. Address: Berger Building, Pittsburg, Pa.

BURKE, John:

Governor of North Dakota; born in Keokuk County, Iowa, Feb. 25, 1859; son of John and Mary Burke. He was educated in the public schools of his native county and the Iowa State University, from which he was graduated LL.B., 1886. He practised law in Des Moines until 1888, when he removed to North Dakota, practising first at Rolla and afterward at Devils Lake, where he is at the head of the law firm of Burke and Middaugh. He served as county judge of Rolette County, N. Dak., 1889-1891, and 1896-1898; member of the House of Representatives, 1891-1893, and the Senate, 1893-1895, in the State Legislature, and in 1906 he was elected governor of North Dakota, and reelected in 1908 for the term expiring in Jan., 1911. Governor Burke is a Democrat in politics. He married at Rolla, N. Dak., Aug. 22, 1891, Mary Kane. Address: Bismarck, N. Dak.

BURKE, Maurice Francis:

Roman Catholic bishop; born in Ireland, May 5, 1845. He was educated at old St. Mary's of the Lake, Chicago, and Notre Dame, Ind. After nine years of study at the American College in Rome, he was ordained priest at that place May 22, 1875, and later held a pastorate in Joliet, Ill. On Oct. 28, 1887, he was consecrated bishop of Cheyenne, Wyo., and six years later was transferred to the see of St. Joseph, Mo. Bishop Burke is known as a linguist, speaking fluently Italian, Latin, French, German and Spanish, and being a Greek and Hebrew scholar of extensive attainments. Address: St. Joseph, Mo.

BURKE, Thomas Martin Aloysius:

Roman Catholic bishop; born in Ireland, Jan. 10, 1840. He came to the United States in his early youth, living in Utica, N. Y., until he took up studies at St. Michael's College in Toronto. He was graduated in classics from St. Charles' College, Md., in 1861, and after teaching in college, took up the study of theology in St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore, graduating with the degrees of A.M. and B.T. in 1864. On June 30, 1864, he was ordained priest, and during the following ten years was assistant and assistant rector of St. John's, Albany, N. Y. He held the pastorate of St. Joseph's in the same city for twenty years, and in 1887 became vicar-general of the diocese of Albany, and upon the death of Bishop McNeirney was made administrator sedes vacante. He was consecrated bishop of Albany, July 1, 1894. He was theologian of the Third Plenary Council, 1884. He was created Knight of the Holy Sepulchre in 1890 and Knight of the Grand Cross in 1894. Address: 225 Madison Avenue, Albany, N. Y.

BURKET, Harlan Fessenden:

Lawyer; born at Findlay, Ohio, May 15, 1860; son of Jacob F. and Pamy D. (Walters) Burket, and is of old colonial stock. He received his preparatory education in the schools of his native city and at Oberlin Academy, and entering Oberlin College in 1878, was graduated four years later with the class of 1882. He received the degree of Ph.B., 1890, A.M., 1891. After his graduation from college, he took up the study of law in his father's law office at Findlay, where he was admitted to the bar in 1887, and has since practised. In 1891 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Hancock County, serving for a term of three years. He is president of the American National Bank of Findlay. Mr. Burket is very prominent in his profession, and is a member of various national and local legal organizations. Among these are the American Bar Association, the Ohio State Bar Association, etc. He is also a member of the Sons of the American Revolution. In 1904 he was a delegate to the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists at St. Louis. He was for two years vice-president of the Ohio Republican League. He married at Findlay, Jan. 16, 1895, Augusta Dukes. Address: Findlay, Ohio.

BURKETT, Charles William:

Editor of American Agriculturist; born at Thornville, Perry County, Ohio, Jan. 3, 1873; son of Joseph W. and Anne (Clinginger) Burkett. He was graduated from the Ohio State University as B.Sc. in 1895, and as M.Sc. in 1898. He was assistant in agriculture at New Hampshire Agricultural College, and agriculturist of the New Hampshire Experiment Station from 1898 to 1901; professor of agriculture at the North Carolina Agricultural College and agriculturist at the North Carolina Experiment Station, 1901-1906; was director of the Kansas State Agricultural Experiment Station, 1906-1908, when he became editor of American Agriculturist. Professor Burkett founded the Agricultural Student, the first distinctly college student agricultural journal in the land. For some years he was agricultural editor of The Progressive Farmer, and The Ohio State Journal, at Columbus, Ohio, and has contributed extensively to the literature of Agricultural Science. He went abroad in 1907, traveling in Europe investigating the sources of seed wheat adapted to the State of Kansas. Professor Burkett is the author of a number of books: A History of Ohio Agriculture; Agriculture for Beginners; Cotton; Soils; Our Domestic Animals; Farm Stock. He is also editor of the Country Life Education series of college text books, the following having already appeared: Types and Breeds of Farm Animals; Threnematology; Fungous Diseases of Plants and many others in press or in preparation. Professor Burkett married at Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 7, 1900, Laura Anna Weisman, and they have two children. Address: Manhattan, Kan.

BURKETT, Elmer Jacob:

United States Senator; born in Mills County, Iowa, Dec. 1, 1867; son of H. W. Burkett. He attended the public school and afterward Tabor College, at Tabor, Iowa, from which he was graduated in 1890. Upon his graduation he was elected principal of schools at Leigh, Neb., which position he held two years, when he entered the State University of Nebraska for a law course, graduating from there with the degrees of LL.B. in 1893, and LL.M. in 1895. He was admitted to the bar at Lincoln, June, 1893. He was elected trustee of Tabor College in 1895, and was elected a member of the State Legislature in 1896; and a Representative in Congress in 1898, 1900, 1902 and 1904, resigning from Fifty-ninth Congress, to succeed Hon. C. H. Dietrich in the United States Senate, taking his seat March 6, 1905. His term of office will expire March 3, 1911. Senator Burkett married, Sept. 1, 1891, Fanny F. Wright, of Glenwood, Iowa. Residence: 1544 B Street. Office Fraternity Building, Lincoln, Neb.

BURLEIGH, Edwin C.:

Ex-governor of Maine, and congressman; born at Linnens, Aroostook County, Maine, Nov. 27, 1843. He was educated at the Houlton Academy; afterward taught school and was land surveyor and served in the office of the State adjutant-general. He is now publisher of the Kennebec Journal, Daily and Weekly. From 1876 to 1878 he was State land agent, was State Treasurer from 1885 to 1888, and governor from 1880 to 1892. He was elected in 1897 from the Third Maine District to the Fifty-fifth Congress in place of Seth L. Milliken, deceased, reelected in 1908, and has since been biennially reelected and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. Address: Augusta, Maine.

BURLESON, Albert Sidney:

Member of Congress; born in San Marcos, Texas, June 7, 1863. He was graduated from the University of Texas in 1884, and the following year was admitted to the bar. He was assistant city attorney of Austin, Texas, from 1885 to 1890, and attorney for the 26th judicial district of Texas from 1891 to 1898. In 1899 he was elected to the National House of Representatives from the 9th Texas District, serving until 1903, when he was elected from the 10th Texas District, and successively elected to subsequent Congresses, including the Sixty-first, beginning March 4, 1909. He is a Democrat and one of the foremost of the minority members of the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives. Address: Austin, Texas.

BURNAM, John Miller:

Educator; born in Irvine, Ky., April 9, 1864. He received a liberal education, having attended Central University at Richmond, Ky.; Washington University at St. Louis, Mo.; Yale, of which he is A.B. 1884, and Ph.D. 1886; and studied in Europe during the years between 1886 and 1904. From 1889 to 1891 he was professor of Latin and French at Georgetown College, Ky., and for eight years was assistant professor of Latin at the University of Missouri. Since 1900 he has been professor of Latin at the University of Cincinnati. His celebrated private collection illustrating ancient forms of writing, including manuscripts of all ages, is the largest in the United States, and hardly surpassed by similar collections belonging to even the richest American universities. He is the author of numerous monographs, among which are: The Paris Prudentius; The So-Called Placidus Scholia of Statius; and Glossmata de Prudentio; and is a contributor to the American Journal of Archaeology. He is a member of the American Philological Association; the New Palaeographical Society of London; and Gesellschaft für romanische Literatur, Göttingen. Address: University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio.

BURNHAM, Clara Louise:

Author; born in Newton, Mass.; daughter of Dr. George F. and Mary O. (Woodman) Root, her father being the well-known composer of "The Battle Cry of Freedom," "Tramp, Tramp," and other of the most stirring of the war songs of the Civil War period and many ballads, cantatas and other compositions. She was educated in Chicago and Boston, and she married, in Chicago, Walter Burnham, a lawyer. Mrs. Burnham wrote many librettos for her father's cantatas and operettas, and is author of the following novels, published by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.: No Gentlemen; A Sane Lunatic; Dearly Bought; Next Door; Young Maids and Old; The Mistress of Beach Knoll; Miss Bagg's Secretary; Dr. Latimer; Sweet Clover; The Wise Woman; Miss Archer; Archer; A Great Love; A West Point Wooing; Miss Pritchard's Wedding Trip; The Right Princess; Jewel; Jewel's Story Book; The Opened Shutters; The Leaven of Love. Her summer home is The Mooring, Bailey Island, Maine. Residence: 55 Fifty-third Street, Chicago, Ill.

BURNHAM, George, Jr.:

Manufacturer; born in Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30, 1849. He was educated at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, receiving the degree of C.E. in 1872, when he entered the Baldwin Locomotive Works, owned by Burnham, Williams & Co., of which his father, George Burnham, was senior partner. Mr. Burnham is a director of the Central National Bank and vice-president and director of the Union Trust Company, and until his retirement, Dec. 31, 1906, was a member of the firm of Burnham, Williams & Company, of whose financial department he was, up to that time, the manager. He is a member of the council of the National Civil Service Reform League; president of the Pennsylvania Civil Service Reform Association; treasurer and member of the executive committee of the National Municipal League; and was formerly president of the Municipal League of Philadelphia. He has been an active reformer in municipal affairs and since 1907 has been a member of the Philadelphia Common Council. He is also an associate of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and a member of the University and Art Clubs of Philadelphia, and is president of the City Club of Philadelphia, and a member of the City Club of New York. He was married in Philadelphia, April 14, 1881, to Anna G. Lewis. Residence: 214 N. 34th Street. Office: 1218 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

BURNHAM, Henry Eben:

United States Senator; born in Dunbarton, N. H., Nov. 8, 1844; son of Henry L. and Maria A. Burnham. He was graduated from Dartmouth College in 1865. He studied law in the office of Minot and Mugridge, at Concord, and in the offices of E. S. Cutter and Judge Lewis W. Clark, in Manchester, N. H. He was admitted to the bar in April, 1868, and since that time has practised in Manchester. He was judge of probate for Hillsboro County, was a member of the Constitutional Convention of 1889, and has served as Ballot Law commissioner. In 1888 he was chairman of the Republican State Convention to nominate delegates to the National Convention and has always been a Republican in politics. He was elected to the United States Senate to succeed Hon. W. E.

Chandler for the term beginning March 4, 1901, and was reelected in 1907, the term of service expiring March 3, 1913. Senator Burnham married, Oct. 22, 1874, Elizabeth H. Patterson, of Manchester, and they have three daughters. Address: Manchester, N. H.

BURNHAM, Sherburne Wesley:

Astronomer; born in Thetford, Vt., in 1838. Professor Burnham has been closely identified with the scientific world for many years, having begun the study of astronomy as an amateur and gaining prominence through his discoveries, notably of double stars with a six-inch refractor. In 1874 he became a fellow of the Royal Astronomical Society of England, which, in view of his discovery and measurement of double stars, his catalogue of 1,274 new double stars, far outnumbering those discovered by any other one observer, awarded him its gold medal in 1894. In 1876 he became connected with the Chicago Observatory, later associated himself with Lick Observatory, and is now professor of practical astronomy at the University of Chicago. He has compiled several catalogues of known stars, the best known of which are his general catalogue of stars discovered by himself and published as Volume I of publications of the Yerkes Observatory, and his general catalogue of all known double stars visible in the northern hemisphere, published by the Carnegie Institution. In 1898 he was elected Associate of the Royal Astronomical Society and was awarded the Lalande prize in Astronomy by the Paris Academy of Sciences in 1904. Address: Yerkes Observatory, Williams Bay, Wis.

BURNS, Waller T.:

United States judge. He was formerly engaged in the practice of law in Houston, Texas, and active in politics in that State as a Republican, until appointed, in 1902, to his present office as judge of the United States District Court for the Southern District of Texas. Address: United States Court, Houston, Texas.

BURR, George Lincoln:

Historian and librarian; born at Oramel, N. Y., Jan. 30, 1857; son of William Josiah and Jane Charlotte (Lincoln) Burr. After his graduation from Cornell University in 1881, he pursued post-graduate studies in the University of Leipzig, the Sorbonne and École des Chartes, Paris, and the University of Zurich; and he received the honorary degrees of LL.D. from the University of Wisconsin in 1904, and of Litt.D. from the Western Reserve University in 1905. Dr. Burr has been librarian of the President White Library of Cornell University since 1878; was president's secretary and instructor in history at Cornell, 1881-1884, and 1888-1889; assistant professor, 1889-1890, and has been professor of medieval history in Cornell University since 1892. He was historical expert to President Cleveland's Commission on the Venezuelan Boundary, 1896-1897. He has been an editor of the American Historical Review since 1905, and is editor of the Century Historical Series. Professor Burr is a member of the American Library Association, the American Historical Association, American Bibliographical Society, and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. Address: Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

BURR, Joseph Arthur:

Jurist; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 11, 1850; son of Joseph Arthur and Harriett (Nash) Burr. He was graduated from Yale, B.A., 1871, and from Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1873. He was admitted to the bar in 1874, and practised in Brooklyn, and was corporation counsel of the City of Brooklyn from Jan., 1896, to Jan., 1898. He was appointed by the governor, justice of the Supreme Court of New York, to fill a vacancy, Dec. 27, 1904, and elected to the same office Nov. 1905, for the full term expiring Dec. 31, 1919. On Jan. 1, 1909, he was assigned to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court for the Second Judicial Department. Justice Burr is a Republican in politics, is a member of the Brooklyn Bar Association, the Brooklyn Institute, Brooklyn League, the New England Society of Brooklyn, the Sons of the Revolution. He is also a member of the Brooklyn, Hamilton and University Clubs of Brooklyn and the Graduates Club of New Haven, Conn. He married in New Haven, Conn., Ella A. Dawson, and they have two married daughters. Residence: 169 Columbia Heights. Office: County Court House, Brooklyn, N. Y.

BURR, William Hubert:

Civil engineer; born in Watertown, Conn., July 14, 1851. He was educated in Watertown Academy and the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, at Troy, N. Y., being graduated as C.E. in 1872. He was in subordinate positions, building wrought iron bridges in New York and waterworks at Newark, N. J., 1872-1875; was a member of the faculty of the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, 1875-1884, as professor of rational and technical mechanics, also practising civil engineering. He was assistant to the chief engineer of the Phoenix Bridge Company in 1884, and later became its general manager. Mr. Burr became vice-president of SooySmith & Co., in 1891, and was professor of engineering at Harvard, 1892-1893, and since 1893 has been professor of civil engineering at Columbia University. In 1894 he was appointed by President Cleveland member of a Board of Engineers to investigate the crossing of the Hudson River at New York City with a one-span bridge; and was also one of the sub-committee of the Committee of Seventy for considering the improvement of the city water front. Mr. Burr was a member of the expert committee on plans and estimates for rapid transit; member of the Board of Consulting Engineers to the Dock Department of New York City, 1895-1898; consulting engineer to the Department of Public Parks, 1896, in charge of building the Harlem River driveway and bridges; was appointed by President Cleveland on the Board to locate a deep-water harbor on the South California Coast, 1896-1897, and from 1896 to 1905 was consulting engineer of the Department of Bridges in New York City. Mr. Burr was appointed by President McKinley in 1899 a member of the first Isthmian Canal Commission and in 1904 by President Roosevelt a member of the second Isthmian Canal Commission. In 1902 and 1903 he was chairman of the commission on Additional Water Supply for New York City; was a member of the Board of Consulting Engineers of the Isthmian Canal Commission in 1905; and since 1905 has been consulting engineer of the Board of Water Supply of New York, and expert engineer to the Aqueduct Commission, New York City. In 1896-1897 he won the national competition for the design of the proposed bridge across the Potomac River at Washington as a memorial to American patriotism. Mr. Burr has been consulting engineer to the Department of Bridges of New York City for the design and construction of the Henry Hudson Memorial Bridge since 1907, the 750-foot arch span being his design. He is a trustee of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine; member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Institution of Civil Engineers of Great Britain, and the National Geographic Society. He is author of: Stresses in Bridges and Roof Trusses, 1881; The Elasticity and Resistance of Materials, 1883; Ancient and Modern Engineering and the Isthmian Canal, 1902, and of numerous contributions to engineering and scientific societies. Mr. Burr married first, in 1876, Caroline Kent Seelye, who died in 1894, and second in 1900, Gertrude Gold Shipman, and they have four children. Address: 151 W. 74th Street, New York City.

BURRAGE, Henry Sweetser:

Chaplain of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, Maine, and chaplain-in-chief of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States; born in Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 7, 1837. He was educated at Brown University and Newton Theological Institution, and was a student at the University of Halle, Germany. During the Civil War he served in the 36th Massachusetts Volunteers, being promoted successively from sergeant-major to captain and brevet-major, and was also acting assistant adjutant-general on the staff of the 1st brigade, 2d division, 9th Army Corps.

After the close of the war he became a Baptist minister, receiving the degree of D.D. from Brown University in 1883, and from 1874 to 1905 was editor of Zion's Advocate, Portland, Maine. He is the author of numerous books, principally religious and historical, among which are the following: Brown University in the Civil War; The Act of Baptism in the History of the Christian Church; History of the Anabaptists of Switzerland; Rosier's Relation of Waymouth's Voyage to the Coast of Maine; Baptist Hymn Writers and Their Hymns; History of the Baptists in New England; Gettysburg and Lincoln; and Early English and French Voyages. He is a member of the Maine Historical Society; the American Historical Association; The National Geographical Society; The Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States; The Maine Society of the Sons of the American Revolution; and the Maine Society of Colonial Wars. He is also a member of the Board of Fellows of Brown University, and State Historian of Maine. Address: National Soldiers' Home, Maine.

BURROUGHS, John:

Author; born at Roxbury, N. Y., April 3, 1837; son of Chauncey A. and Amy (Kelly) Burroughs. He was educated at Cooperstown (N. Y.) Seminary, and the Heading Literary Institute at Ashland, N. Y. Mr. Burroughs was a school teacher from 1854 to 1863; a treasury clerk and bank examiner from 1864 to 1885; a fruit farmer from 1885 to 1902; and has been a writer for magazines since the age of twenty-three. He took trips to England and France in 1871 and 1882; was a companion to President Roosevelt in a trip to Yellowstone Park in 1893, and was a member of the Harriman Expedition to Alaska in 1899. Mr. Burroughs is an Independent in politics, and holds to no denominational faith. He is author of: Wake Robin; Signs and Seasons; Pepacton; Riverly; Birds and Poets; Winter Sunshine; Locusts and Wild Honey; Fresh Fields; Indoor Studies; Whitman, a Study; The Light of Day; Squirrels and Other Fur Bearers; Literary Values; Far and Near; Ways of Nature; Leaf and Tendril; and Bird and Bough (collected poems). He married Sept. 13, 1857, Ursula North, and they have one son, Julian, born in 1879. Address: West Park, Ulster County, N. Y.

BURROWES, Katharine:

Piano and normal teacher and author; born in Kingston, Ontario; daughter of Edwin Annesley and Florinda A. (Radcliffe) Burrowes. She received her general education under private governesses in Napanee, Ont., and later studied music under J. C. Bachelder of Detroit, and Professor Karl Klindworth of Berlin, Germany. Miss Burrowes was a member of the faculty of the Detroit Conservatory of Music for eight years, and in 1895 she organized the Burrowes Piano School, of which she was the directress. She originated the "Burrowes Course of Music Study," a method for beginners, protected by two United States patents and twenty-six copyrights, and she read a paper and demonstrated her work before the Music Teachers' National Convention in 1902. Miss Burrowes is a contributor to the musical magazines, and is author of: Burrowes' Course of Music Study (Kindergarten and Primary), 1895; Manual for Teachers, 1901; Class Songs, 1901; Modern Music Methods, 1902; The Note Gatherers, 1903; Short Pieces for Small Hands, 1904; Forty Reading Studies, 1904; Playtime Pieces, 1904; Musical Puzzle Stories, 1905; The Girl and the Doves, 1905; The Five Squirrels, 1905; Theory Course, or Some of the Knowledge which a Music Teacher of Children Should Possess, 1906. She is a member of the Music Teachers' National Association and of the Michigan Music Teachers' Association. Address: Detroit, Mich.

BURROWS, Julius C.:

United States senator; born in North East, Erie County, Pa., Jan. 9, 1837. He acquired a common school and academical education, and at the age of seventeen years taught school and read law. In 1859 he went to Michigan, taught school a year and engaged in the practice of law at Kalamazoo. During the war he served as captain in the Seventeenth Michigan Infantry, 1862 to 1864, when he returned to Kalamazoo and resumed the practice of law. In politics he has always been a strong advocate of the principles of the Republican party, and very active in campaigns. He was elected in 1872 as a Republican representative to the Forty-third Congress; in 1878 to the Forty-sixth Congress; and was reelected in 1880 to the Forty-seventh Congress; in 1884 to the Forty-ninth Congress, and reelected in 1886, 1888, 1890, 1892 and 1894, serving in the lower house until Jan. 23, 1895. On the convening of the Michigan Legislature in Jan., 1895, Mr. Burrows was chosen United States senator to succeed John Patton, Jr., for the unexpired term of the late Senator Stockbridge. On the convening of the Legislature of 1899-1900, Senator Burrows was chosen by the unanimous vote of the Republican members of the Legislature to succeed himself in the United States Senate for the term of six years, from 1899 to 1905; and in 1905 was chosen by the unanimous vote of the Legislature for another term, expiring March 4, 1911. Address: Kalamazoo, Mich.

BURT, Horace Greeley:

Consulting engineer; born in Indiana, Jan., 1849. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1873, and entered the railway service in 1868, becoming resident engineer the year of his graduation from college, which position he held until 1881. From that year until Aug., 1887, he was division superintendent, and during the succeeding year was chief engineer of the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Company. For eight years he was general manager of the Fremont, Elkhorn & Missouri Valley and the Sioux Railroad companies, and in 1896 was general manager of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha Railway, holding that position for three months, when he became 3d vice-president of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, until Dec. 31, 1897. From that time until January, 1904 he was president of the Union Pacific Railroad, and he now has an extensive clientele as consulting engineer. Address: Oak Park, Ill.

BURT, William:

Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church; born in Padstow, Cornwall, England, Oct. 23, 1852. He was graduated from Wesleyan University, A.B., 1879; graduated from Drew Theological Seminary at Madison, N. J., 1881 with the degree of B.D.; and received the degree of D.D. from Grant University in 1888. He entered the New York East conference in 1881, and held pastorates in Brooklyn, N. Y., until 1886, when he was transferred to the Italy Conference and made presiding elder of the Milan district. In 1888 he removed to Florence and later to Rome, remaining there 14 years in charge of churches and schools, and accomplishing important work along educational lines, being the founder of a publishing house and organizer of boys' college, a young ladies' college and other schools. He received the honorary degree of D.D. from Wesleyan University, 1902. On May 20, 1904, he was elected a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church by the General Conference held at Los Angeles, Calif., and was consecrated May 26, 1904. He is the author of several books in the Italian language, and received the order of Cavaliere di SS. Maurizio e Lazzaro from the King of Italy in 1903. He married in Lynn, Mass., April 14, 1881, Helen B. Graves. Address: 30 Volta Strasse, Zurich, Switzerland.

BURTON, Ernest De Witt:

Theologian; born in Granville, Ohio, Feb. 4, 1856; son of Rev. Nathan Smith Burton, D.D., and Sarah J. (Fairfield) Burton. He was graduated from Dennison University, Granville, Ohio, B.A., 1876, and studied in the Rochester Theological Seminary, 1879-1882; the University of Leipzig, 1887, and the University of Berlin, 1894. He was a teacher in public and private schools from 1876-1879; was instructor in Rochester Theological Seminary, 1882-1883, and associate professor, 1883-1886. He was associate professor in the Newton Theological Institution, 1883-1886, and professor, 1886-1892; and from 1892 has been professor of New Testament interpretation and head of the New Testament department at the University of Chicago. He was associate editor of the Biblical World, 1892-1906, and has been its editor-in-chief since 1906. He visited India and China in 1908-1909, as Oriental Educational Commissioner of the University of Chicago. He has been editor (with others) of the American Journal of Theology since 1897. He is author of numerous theological works and is a member of the Quadrangle Club of Chicago. He married Frances Mary Townson, in 1883, and they have one daughter. Address: University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.

BURTON, Charles G.:

Former commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic; born in Ohio in 1846. He enlisted in the Union Army in 1861 at the age of fifteen years, saw much hard service, and after the war studied law. He practised his profession in three States and finally settled at Nevada, Mo., became successively circuit attorney, judge and congressman, and is now collector of internal revenue for his district. He is a prominent Republican and has been delegate to the National Convention. He has been commander of the Department of Missouri and chairman of the National Pensions Committee of the Grand Army of the Republic, and was elected commander-in-chief at the National Encampment at Saratoga in 1907. Address: Nevada, Mo.

BURTON, George Dexter:

Inventor; born in Temple, N. H., Oct. 26, 1855. He received an academic education. Mr. Burton is a well-known lecturer and inventor along metallurgical and electrical lines, gaining special prominence in the scientific world through his inventions of a liquid process of heating and welding metals by an electric current. He is also the inventor of the Burton stock ear and the underground electric trolley system for surface railways and the process of making paper from corn stalks, straws, grasses and fibre plants by electricity. He is president of the American Electric Forge Company and of the Reno, Nev., Reduction Works. He has lectured on Heating and Working Metals by Electricity before the Harvard Lecture Club of Jefferson Physical Laboratory of Harvard College; before the Society of Arts of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia. He was married in Newton, Mass., in Jan., 1894, to Frances C. Jones, and resides in New Ipswich, N. H. Address: 185 Summer Street, Boston.

BURTON, Hiram Rodney:

Physician and ex-congressman; born in Lewes, Sussex County, Delaware, Nov. 13, 1841; son of Joshua S. and Ruth Hunn (Rodney) Burton. He was educated in the local schools of Lewes, Del., and then taught for two years in the schools of Sussex County, Del. He was engaged in the dry goods business at Washington, D. C., from 1861-1865, then entered the medical department of the University of Pennsylvania, whence he was graduated as M.D. in 1868. He was appointed deputy collector of customs in 1877; was acting assistant surgeon in the United States Marine Hospital Service, stationed at Lewes, 1890-1893, and was nominated for State senator from the Fifth District of Sussex County in 1898. He was elected from the State of Delaware at large, in 1904, to the Fifty-ninth Congress, and re-elected in 1906 to the Sixtieth Congress, serving until March 4, 1909. He was a delegate to the National Republican Convention of 1896 and 1900. He married in 1877, Margaret V. Rawlins, who died in 1897, and has one daughter. Address: Lewes, Del.

BURTON, Lewis William:

Bishop of Lexington; born in Cleveland, Ohio, Nov. 9, 1852; son of Rev. Dr. Lewis and Jane (Wallace) Burton. He was graduated from Kenyon College as first honor man in 1873, with the degree of A.B.; and from the Philadelphia Divinity School in 1877. He received the degrees of A.M. in 1886 and D.D. in 1896 from his alma mater, as well as D.D. from the University of the South, in 1896. He was made a deacon of the Episcopal Church in 1877, becoming assistant of All Saints' Church, Cleveland, Ohio; and the following year he was ordained priest by Bishop Bedell. After rectories in Cleveland, Richmond and Louisville, he was elected, Dec. 5, 1895, and on Jan. 30, 1896, he was consecrated bishop of the Diocese of Lexington (which embraces the eastern half of the State of Kentucky). He is author of: The Name of the Church, 1903; The Necessity to the Minister of a Personal Spiritual Life, 1904; Annals of Henrico Parish, in J. S. Moore's Virginiana, 1904. He traveled abroad in 1880, and again in 1897 and 1908, attending the Lambeth Conferences in London in the two latter years. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society (Kenyon Chapter); a trustee of Kenyon College and of the University of the South; is president of the Board of Directors of Margaret College, a diocesan institution for girls and young women at Versailles, Ky.; and is the Episcopal head of Saint John's Collegiate Institute at Corbin, Ky., and of the Bishop Dudley Collegiate Institute at Beattyville, Ky. Bishop Burton is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars. He married at Decatur, Ga., Jan. 15, 1883, Georgie Hendree Ball, and they have had three children, two of whom (daughters) are living. Address: 436 West Sixth Street, Lexington, Ky.

BURTON, Richard:

Educator and author; born in Hartford, Conn., March 14, 1859. He was educated at Trinity College, Hartford, of which he is A.B., and received the degree of Ph.D. in 1887, from Johns Hopkins University, where he became teacher of Old English a year later. He became managing editor of the New York Churchman, and after traveling in Europe for a year was appointed literary editor of the Hartford Courant, which position he held for seven years. In 1897 he became associate editor of Warner's Library of the World's Best Literature, and from 1898-1902 was professor of English literature at the University of Minnesota. The succeeding year he became affiliated with the Lothrop Publishing Company, of which he was editor, two years, then until 1906, was professorial lecturer on English Literature in the University of Chicago. He has been professor of English literature at the University of Minnesota since 1906. Mr. Burton is the author of the books: Dumb in June; Memorial Day; Literary Likings; Lyrics of Brotherhood; Life of Whittier; Forces in Fiction; Message and Melody; A Book of Verse; Literary Leaders of America; Rahab—a poetic drama and Three of A Kind, a piece of fiction. He is a member of the Authors Club and the Players, New York City, also of the National Institute of Arts and Letters. He married in London, Oct. 7, 1889, Mrs. A. R. Parkhurst. Address: 2109 Blaisdell Avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.

BURTON, Theodore Elijah:

United States senator; born at Jefferson, Ohio, Dec. 20, 1851; son of Rev. William and Elizabeth (Grant) Burton. He studied at Grand River Institute, Austinburg, Ohio; at Iowa College and at Oberlin College whence he was graduated in 1872, and later received the degree of LL.D. He began the practice of law in 1875. Mr. Burton was a member of the House of Representatives in the Fifty-first Congress, but was defeated for reelection in 1890. He was again elected in 1894 and biennially after that up to and including the election of 1908 as representative from the Twenty-first Ohio (Cleveland) District. In January, 1909, however, he was elected United States senator from Ohio, for the term expiring March 3, 1915. During his service in the House of Representatives he was for many years chairman of the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, in which position he was the chief factor in the regulation of the vast expenditures of the country for internal improvement of seaports, and he is a prominent member of the Waterways Commission. He took a leading part in the anti-Foraker movement in Ohio in 1906-1907, and unsuccessfully contested the mayoralty campaign in Cleveland in 1907 against Tom L. Johnson. He was regarded as the leader of the Roosevelt forces in Ohio in the pre-election primaries in 1908, and he made the nominating speech for Taft in the National Republican Convention at Chicago. Senator Burton is author of: Financial Crises and Periods of Commercial Depression; and Life of John Sherman. He is unmarried, and resides at The Rochambeau in Washington, D. C. Address: 709 Society for Savings Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

BURTON-OPITZ, Russell:

Physician and physiologist; born in Ft. Wayne, Ind., Oct. 25, 1875. He was graduated from the University of Chicago as M. D. (Rush Medical College) in 1895; as S.B. in 1898, S.M., 1902, Ph.D., 1905. He was a graduate student at the University of Vienna in 1898; was volunteer assistant, 1898-1899, and assistant docent in physiology from 1899-1901 in the University of Breslau; investigator of the Marine Biological Station at Naples in 1901; assistant in physiology at Harvard University in 1901-1902; and since 1902 at Columbia University as assistant demonstrator of physiology, instructor in physiology, adjunct professor of physiology since 1904, and head of the Department of Physiology since 1909. Dr. Burton-Opitz has traveled extensively in Europe and Africa. He is a member of the American Physiological Society, the Deutsche Physiologische Gesellschaft, Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine, the Harvey Society, the American Society of Biological Chemists, Society of American Naturalists, and American Chemical Society; and fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is co-editor of the Biochemische Centralblatt, Biophysikalische Centralblatt, Hygienische Centralblatt and a frequent contributor to scientific journals. Dr. Burton-Opitz is a 32d-degree Mason, a member of the Sigma Chi, Theta Nu Epsilon, and Nu Sigma Nu fraternities, and the Sigma Xi, and Alpha Omega Alpha honorary fraternities. Residence: Palisade, N. J. Office address: 437 West 59th Street, New York City.

BUSBY, L. White:

Journalist; born in Vienna, Ohio, Nov. 22, 1852. He received a common school education, and after teaching for several years began newspaper work in 1879 with the Chicago Inter Ocean, with which paper he remained until 1905 as special correspondent and Washington correspondent. Since 1904 he has served with marked distinction in the difficult position of secretary to the Speaker of the National House of Representatives. He became active in Republican politics during the campaign of 1900, and was author of: The Battle of 1900, a discussion of the political issues before the country, in which Willis J. Abbott took part representing the Democratic party. He married, at Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1896, Katherine Graves. Address: 2336 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D. C.

BUSCH, Adolphus:

Brewer; born in Mayence-on-the-Rhine, Germany, July 10, 1842. He was educated in the schools at Mayence, and came to the United States in 1857. After serving four months under General Lyon during the Civil War, he became associated in the brewing business with his father-in-law, E. Anheuser. In 1865 he became a partner in the E. Anheuser Brewing Company, which later became the Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, of which he is now president. He is connected with several banks and corporations, among which are the South Side Bank, of which he is president; the Manufacturers Railway Company; the American Diesel Engine Company of New York; the Grand Pacific Hotel Company; the Geyser Ice Company of Waco, Texas; the St. Louis Union Trust Company; the Third National Bank; the Kinloch Telephone Company; the North American Company; the American Car and Foundry Company; the United States Independent Telephone Company; the Missouri Safe Deposit Company; and the American Bottle Company. He has been decorated by the Emperor of Germany. He is a member of the St. Louis, Noonday, University, and Mercantile Clubs of St. Louis, and the Engineers and Midway Clubs of New York. He married in St.

Louis, March 7, 1861, Lilly Anheuser, and resides in Busch Place in that city. Office: Anheuser-Busch Brewing Association, St. Louis.

BUSCK, August:

Entomologist; born in Randers, Denmark, Feb. 18, 1870. He was educated at Ordrup College in Denmark, and studied natural sciences at the Royal University of Copenhagen, where he received the degrees of B.P. and A.M. Since 1896 he has been entomologist of the United States Department of Agriculture. He is a member of the Washington Entomological Society; the Washington Biological Society; the Entomological Society of Stockholm, Sweden; and the Entomological Society of Copenhagen, Denmark. He is a contributor of technical papers on American Microlepidoptera to various journals. Mr. Busck married in New York, Aug. 21, 1895, Ville Christensen, and resides in Hyattsville, Md. Office: United States National Museum, Washington, D. C.

BUSH, John Standish Foster:

Physician; born in Burlington, Vt., June 4, 1850; son of Solon W. and Theola (Foster) Bush. He obtained his early education in the schools of Burlington, and the Roxbury Latin School, his parents having moved to Boston when he was fourteen years old. He took a special course in chemistry in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; a course in natural sciences at Cornell University; and was graduated as M.D. from the Harvard Medical School in 1874. In 1873 he was appointed house surgeon in the Massachusetts General Hospital. For many years he was surgeon to the Boston Dispensary; and he is now physician to the Children's Mission, and one of its directors. He is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, and one of the Councilors of the society. Dr. Bush is actively interested in fraternal organizations, being a member of the Grand Lodge of Masons of Massachusetts, and of the Grand Commandery of Knights Templar for Massachusetts and Rhode Island, and has the 33d-degree of the Scottish Rite. He is a member of many leading clubs of Boston. Dr. Bush married, June 4, 1875, Josephine M. Mason, and they have two children. Address: Boston, Mass.

BUSH, Thomas Greene:

Financier; born in Pickensville, Ala., in 1847. At the age of 13 he organized two military companies, one of which was accepted temporarily by the governor of Alabama. He entered the University of Alabama in 1861, but after three years of study resigned to enter the Confederate army as adjutant in the 62d Alabama Regiment. He was captured by Federal troops and held a prisoner at Ship Island and New Orleans until the surrender of General Dick Taylor and exchange of prisoners at Vicksburg, Miss. After completing his education at the University of Mississippi in 1867 he engaged in various business enterprises, and in 1886 was elected to the Legislature of Alabama, since which time he has been president of the Mobile & Birmingham Railway Company. He is also president of the Shelby Iron Company of Shelby, Ala., and a member of the Monetary Commission created by the Indianapolis Monetary Conference in 1897. He is a trustee of The Foundation for the Promotion of Industrial Peace. Address: Birmingham, Ala.

BUSH-BROWN, Henry Kirke:

Sculptor; born in Ogdensburg, N. Y., April 21, 1857; son of Robert W. and Caroline (Udall) Bush. He was educated in the schools of Newburgh, N. Y.; and he studied art with Henry Kirk Brown, and in Paris with Antoine Mercie. Among his more notable works are: the Indian Buffalo Hunt, exhibited at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, in 1893; and equestrian statues of General G. G. Meade and General John F. Reynolds, erected on the battlefield of Gettysburg, Pa.; the Civil War Memorial, at the Union League, Philadelphia; the Statue of Justinian, in the Appellate Court House at New York City; of Horace Mann, at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, 1904; of Truth, for the Pan American Exposition at Buffalo, in 1901; and an equestrian statue of General Anthony Wayne for Valley Forge, Pa. He is a trustee of the Scenic and Historic Preservation Society; a member of the National Sculpture Society, the Architectural League of New York City, the Municipal Art Society, the Mayflower Society, and the Empire State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, and of the National Arts Club of New York. He married, April 7, 1886, Margaret W. Lesley, of Philadelphia, and they have four children. Address: Newburg, N. Y.

BUSSE, Fred A.:

Mayor of Chicago; born in Chicago, Ill., March 3, 1866. He was educated in the public schools of Chicago, and began his business career as a clerk with his father, who was engaged in the hardware business. From the store he graduated into the coal business, and finally became secretary and treasurer of the Northwestern Coal Company. Later he organized and became president of the Busse-Reynolds Coal Company, what was afterward reorganized as the Busse Coal Company. When elected mayor in 1907, he retired from the coal business. He has always been active in politics, his affiliations being with the Republican party. He was town clerk of North, Chicago for one term; was in the sheriff's office for four years, and following that was chief clerk in the North Town Collector's office. He was a member of the House of Representatives in the Thirty-ninth and Fortieth General Assemblies, elected in 1894 and 1896; State senator from the Twenty-first Senatorial District of Chicago in 1898, and in 1892 was elected State treasurer of Illinois for the term expiring in 1906. He was appointed postmaster of Chicago by President Roosevelt in 1906, but resigned to accept the mayoralty, to which office he was elected in April, 1907, for the term of four years. He is a member of the Republican State Committee from the Ninth District, and a member of the Cook County Central Republican Committee. He is a member of the Masonic order, in which he has the 32d-degree. Address: 504 North Clark Street, Chicago, Ill.

BUTLER, Charles Henry:

Reporter of the U. S. Supreme Court; born in New York City, June 18, 1859; son of William Allen and Mary (Marshall) Butler. He was at Princeton College in the class of 1881, but did not graduate. In 1882 he was admitted to the New York State bar, where he practised for many years. In 1898 he was attached as legal expert to the United States delegation in the Anglo-American-Canadian Commission. In 1902 he gave up the active practice of law, and was appointed reporter of the Supreme Court of the United States, and has published its Reports since Vol. 187. He is a member of the American Bar Association, and on its Executive Committee, the International Law Association, and the Bar Association of New York City and State, and recording secretary of the American Society of International Law. In 1907 he was a technical delegate on the United States Delegation to the Second Hague Conference. He is a Republican and a Presbyterian. Mr. Butler has written on subjects of international law and relations and other works of a legal and semi-legal nature, among these being: Our Relations With Spain, 1898; Our Treaty With Spain, 1899; Freedom of Private Property on the Sea, 1899; and Treaty Making Power of the United States, 1902. He was also joint author with Mr. Justice Brewer, of a work on International Law. He married in 1882, Marcia Flagg, of Yonkers, N. Y. Residence: 1535 I Street, Washington, D. C.; and Yonkers, N. Y. Address: U. S. Supreme Court, Washington, D. C.

BUTLER, Edward Hubert:

Editor and proprietor of the Buffalo News; born in LeRoy, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1850. He was educated in public and private schools. In 1873 he established the Buffalo Sunday News, and on Oct. 11, 1880, started the Evening News, of which he is sole proprietor. For many years he has been connected with various editorial associations, being president of the State Editorial Association in 1891; president of the Republican State Editorial Association in 1898; late director of the Associated Press, and late vice-president of the United Press. He was Republican presidential elector at large in New York in 1896 and 1900 and one of the four delegates at large to the National Republican Convention, 1908. He is a member of the Grade Crossings Commission, President of the Grosvenor Library, and President of the Board of Directors of the State Normal School, a director of several banks. Residence: corner of Delaware Avenue and North Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

BUTLER, Ellis Parker:

Author; born in Muscatine, Iowa, Dec. 5, 1869; son of Audley Gazzam and Adella (Vesey) Butler. He received a high school education; and after leaving school held several mercantile positions at Muscatine, Iowa. Upon coming to New York in 1898 he engaged in trade journalism, and for six years, ending in 1905, was part owner and editor of The Decorative Furnisher, monthly magazine, published in New York City. Since 1905 he has devoted his time to authorship exclusively. He is author of: Pigs are Pigs; Mr. Perkins of Portland; The Incubator Baby; Cheerful Smugglers; That Pup; Confessions of a Daddy; Mike Flannery, On Duty and Off; Kilo; The Great American Pie Company; as well as many stories and articles in magazines. Mr. Butler is a director in the Universal Electric Welded Wheel Company, the Fessenden Food Company, etc., and is a member of the Players Salmagundi and Dutch Treat Clubs and Iowa Society of New York, the Country Club and Niantic Club of Flushing, L. I., and the Authors Club of London. He married in Muscatine, Iowa, June 28, 1899, Ida Anna Zipler, and they have a daughter. Address: 242 State Street, Flushing, L. I.

BUTLER, Howard Crosby:

Archaeologist; born in Croton Falls, N. Y., March 7, 1872. He was educated at Princeton, from which he received the degree A.M., 1892, and took post-graduate studies in the Columbia School of Architecture and the American Schools of Classical Studies in Rome and Athens. He was university fellow in archaeology at Princeton, 1893-1897, and a fellow of the American School of Classical Studies in Rome, 1897-1898. He organized and conducted archaeological expeditions in Syria in 1899-1900, and 1904-1905, and was professor of the history of architecture at Princeton. He is a member of the Archaeological Institute of America and the American Oriental Society, and the author of: Scotland's Ruined Abbeys; The Story of Athens; Architecture, Part II of Publications of American Archaeological Expedition to Syria; Ancient Architecture in Syria, Division II of Publications of Princeton Expedition to Syria; also papers in archaeological journals. Address: Princeton, N. J.

BUTLER, John Vernon:

Musical director; born in Birmingham, England, Aug. 24, 1868. He studied voice culture and the organ with prominent Boston and London teachers, and since 1890 has been organist and choirmaster at Pilgrim Congregational Church. He is musical director and conductor of the Worcester Oratorio Society, and is founder and conductor of the series of Nationally known oratorio concerts in that city introducing for the first time in New England a number of important musical works. He is vice-president of Worcester County Musical Festival Association, and director of music at the Highland Military Academy at Worcester. He married in Worcester, Mass., June 22, 1905, Ruth Nelson. Address: 4 Charlotte Street, Worcester, Mass.

BUTLER, Marion:

Lawyer; born in Sampson County, N. C., May 20, 1863. He was educated at the University of North Carolina, graduating in 1885 with the degree of A.B. In 1888 he bought the Clinton Caucasian, and advocated the establishment of a Railroad Commission and generally the cause of the Farmers' Alliance. In 1890 he was elected State senator, was made chairman of a Joint Committee on Railroad Commission, and was the author of the law governing corporations enacted by that Legislature. In 1891 he was elected president of the State Farmers' Alliance and later president of the National organization. In 1892 he organized the People's Party in his State and campaigned the State as a Weaver elector-at-large. In 1895 he was elected to the United States Senate. In the meanwhile, he took up the study of law and was admitted to practice before the bar of the State of North Carolina in 1899 and in the United States Supreme Court in 1902, practising both at Raleigh, N. C., and at Washington. In 1891 he was made trustee of the University of North Carolina. He married, August 31, 1893, Florence Faison, of North Carolina, and they have five children. Address: Raleigh, N. C., and Washington, D. C.

BUTLER, Nicholas Murray:

President of Columbia University; born in Elizabeth, N. J.; son of Henry I. and Mary J. (Murray) Butler. He was graduated from Columbia University, as A.B. in 1882; A.M. in 1883; Ph.D. in 1884; and received the honorary degree of LL.D. from Syracuse University in 1898, Tulane University in 1901, Johns Hopkins, Princeton, the University of Pennsylvania, and Yale, in 1902; the University of Chicago, 1903; St. Andrew's University, Manchester University, in 1905; Cambridge University in 1907; Litt.D. from the University of Oxford in 1905; and was made officier de la Legion d'Honneur of France in 1906. He has been a member of the faculty of Columbia University since 1889; as adjunct professor, from 1889-1890; dean of the faculty of philosophy, and professor of philosophy and education from 1890-1901; since January, 1902, as president of Columbia University (including also the presidency of Barnard College, the Teachers' College and the College of Pharmacy). Dr. Butler was a member of the State Board of Education of New Jersey from 1887-1895; special commissioner from New Jersey to the Paris Exposition in 1889; president of the Patterson (New Jersey) Board of Education in 1892-1893, and chairman of the Administrative Board of the International Congress of Arts and Sciences of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904. He is a trustee of the Carnegie Foundation for Advancement of Teaching, trustee of the National Educational Association, and was its president in 1895; governor of the Society of the Lying-in-Hospital; director of the New York Botanical Garden; trustee of Columbia University Press Club, and of the American Academy in Rome. He is a member of the American Philosophical Association, and the American Psychological Association; life member of the National Red Cross, the American Historical Association, and the New York Historical Society; chairman of the College Entrance Examination Board; president of the Germanistic Society, the University Settlement Society, and member of the American Copyright League. He is a Republican in politics, and an Episcopalian in his religious affiliations. He edited: Scribner's Great Educators' Series; Macmillan's Teachers' Professional Library; Monographs of Education in the United States (forming part of the United States Educational Exhibit to Paris); editor of the Educational Review; Columbia Contributions to Philosophy and Education, from 1898-1902; and one of the editors of the Internationale Pädagogische Bibliothek. He is author of: The Meaning of Education. He married at Bergen Point, N. J., Feb. 8, 1887, Susannah Edwards Schuyler (who died Jan. 10, 1903), and has a daughter. He married in New York, March 5, 1907, Kate La Montagne. Address: Columbia University, New York City.

BUTLER, Thomas S.:

Congressman, lawyer; born in Uwchlan, Chester County, Pa., Nov. 4, 1855. He received a common school and academic education and afterward studied law, engaging in the practice of his profession at West Chester, Pa. He was elected and served several years as judge of the 15th Judicial District of Pennsylvania. In 1896 he was elected from the Sixth Pennsylvania District to the Fifty-fifth Congress, and was reelected in 1898 and 1900. In 1902 he was elected from the new Seventh Pennsylvania District, and was reelected in 1904, 1906 and 1908, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. Mr. Butler is a prominent member of the House Committee on Naval Affairs and one of the most energetic and forceful of the members of the lower branch. He is of Quaker ancestry and faith, but has earned the title of "The Fighting Quaker" by his impetuous championship of the measures he believes to be for the benefit of the nation. Address: West Chester, Pa.

BUTLER, Willard Parker:

Lawyer; born in New York City, March 8, 1857; son of Benjamin F. and Ellen G. (Parker) Butler, his father being the second son of the late Benjamin F. Butler, Attorney-General in the Cabinet of Jackson and Van Buren, and one of the Revisors of the Statutes of the State of New York, and his mother being the eldest daughter of Dr. Willard Parker, the distinguished surgeon. Mr. Butler was graduated from Columbia University (School of Mines) with the degree of E.M., afterward studied in the University of Berlin, and then attended the Columbia Law School, from which he was graduated LL.B., 1883. He was admitted to the Bar of the State of New York, May 19, 1883, and has since practised law continuously in New York City, now being a member of the law firm of Whitridge, Butler and Rice. He is a director and treasurer of the New York Juvenile Asylum; a member of the Alumni Association of the School of Mines of Columbia University, of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, was a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity, Kappa Chapter, when at Columbia, and is a member of the Century, University and Down Town Clubs of New York. He is unmarried. Residence: 143 East 36th Street, New York City, and Morristown, N. J. Office: 59 Wall Street, New York City.

BUTTRICK, Wallace:

Secretary of the General Education Board; born in Potsdam, N. Y., Oct. 23, 1853; son of Charles H. and Polly Dodge (Warren) Buttrick. He was educated in Ogdensburg (N. Y.) Academy, and the Potsdam Normal School, and under private tuttion for three years. After serving in the Railway Mail Service 1875-1880, he entered, 1880, and was graduated from the Rochester Theological Seminary, 1883, and received the degree of D.D. from the University of Rochester, 1898. He was pastor of the First Baptist Church of New Haven, Conn., 1883-1889, First Baptist Church, St. Paul, Minn., 1889-1892, Emmanuel Baptist Church, Albany, N. Y., 1892-1902, and in the latter year was appointed to the position he has filled ever since, of Secretary of the General Education Board, in which he is also trustee; and he is a trustee of the John F. Slater Fund. Dr. Buttrick is a member of the City Club of New York, the Quadrangle Club of Chicago, and the Teaneck Club, Teaneck, N. J. He married in Saginaw, Mich., in December, 1875, Isabella S. Allen, and they have two sons and a daughter. Residence: Teaneck Road, Englewood, N. J. Office: 2 Rector Street, New York City.

BYNUM, William Dallas:

Lawyer; born in Newberry, Ind., June 26, 1846. He studied law, was admitted to the bar, and became city attorney of Washington, Ind., where he was mayor, 1875-1879. In 1876 he was presidential elector on the Tilden ticket. He removed to Indianapolis, and became a member of the Indiana Legislature in 1882 and speaker in 1883. He was elected to the National House of Representatives in 1885, and was active in the organization of the National (gold-standard) Democratic Party in 1896, being chairman of its national committee during the four succeeding years. From 1900-1906 he was a member of the commission appointed by President McKinley to revise the laws of the United States. Address: 1921 Ashland Avenue, Indianapolis, Ind.

BYRD, Mary Emma:

Astronomer; born in Le Roy, Mich., Nov. 15, 1849; daughter of Rev. John Huntington and Elizabeth Adelaide (Lowe) Byrd; and she is a descendant on the father's side from Timothy Edwards, father of Jonathan Edwards, and on the maternal side from Governor John Endicott. She was educated in the high school of Leavenworth, Kan., and after several years of teaching to earn money for college expenses, she secured a collegiate education in Oberlin College, and the University of Michigan, from which she was graduated A.B., 1878, and she received the Ph.D. degree from Carleton College, 1904. Miss Byrd was principal of the Wabash (Ind.) High School, 1879-1882; first assistant in the Observatory of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., 1883-1887; director of the Smith College Observatory, Northampton, Mass., 1887-1906, and professor of astronomy in Smith College, 1898-1906, resigning for conscience sake on account of the character of donations being received by the college. Miss Byrd is a member of the British Astronomical Association, the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, and the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America. She is author of several technical articles contributed to the Astronomical Journal, and Astronomische Nachrichten. Her non-mathematical articles have for the most part appeared in the Sidereal Messenger and in Popular Astronomy. She is also author of: Laboratory Manual in Astronomy, 1899 (Ginn), and has in preparation A Laboratory Handbook in Astronomy. Address: Box 77, R. R. 9, Lawrence, Kan.

BYRNE, Thomas Sebastian:

Roman Catholic bishop; born in Hamilton, Ohio, July 29, 1841. He attended schools in Hamilton until he reached the age of eleven years, when he went to work and became an expert machinist. Later he entered the Preparatory Seminary of St. Thomas at Bardstown, Ky., and was graduated from St. Mary's of the West in 1865. He also studied three years at the American College in Rome, and was created D.D. by Leo XIII in 1887. After being ordained priest in Cincinnati in 1869 he devoted himself to literature and teaching in St. Mary's Seminary, and later had charge of the Cathedral at Cincinnati. Upon the reopening of the seminary he became its rector, serving until 1894. He is translator (with Very Rev. Dr. Pabisch) of Dr. Alzoy's Church History; Jesus Living in the Priest (from the Italian); and Abridgement of Christian Doctrine prescribed by Pope Pius X. He is the author of: "Man from a Catholic Point of View," which was read at the Parliament of Religions in 1903. He is also the author of other pamphlets and papers, chiefly religious. He was consecrated and installed bishop of Nashville, Tenn., May 10, 1894. Address: 607 Capitol Square, Nashville, Tenn.

BYRUM, Enoch Edwin:

Clergyman, editor and author; born in Randolph County, Ind., Oct. 13, 1861; son of Byrum and Lucinda (Fields) Byrum. He was graduated in 1886, from the School of Elocution and Oratory at Valparaiso, Ind., following which he took a course of Sunday School work at Otterbein University, Westerville, Ohio. After leaving Otterbein University in 1887, he became business manager of the Gospel Trumpet Company, later becoming president and editor-in-chief of its four weekly papers. In 1892 he was ordained to the ministry of the Church of God, and went as missionary to foreign lands. Mr. Byrum has traveled throughout the United States and Canada. In 1904 he took a trip around the world, including a tour in Palestine, Egypt and India, and during his travels he made a specialty of examining the ancient manuscripts of the Bible. He is trustee of the Institution and Home for the Aged at Anderson, Indiana, and director of contributions for famine sufferers and charitable missionary work in foreign lands. He is author of a number of religious works, among them being: Divine Healing of Soul and Body, 1892; The Secret of Salvation, 1896; The Prayer of Faith, 1899; The Great Physician, 1900; Ordinances of the Bible, 1904; also of several books for boys, and Travels and Experiences in Other Lands, 1905. He was married at Grand Junction, Michigan, June 29, 1889, and has six children. Residence: Union Avenue. Address: 201 East Ninth Street, Anderson, Ind.

C

CABELL, Benjamin Francis:

President of Potter College, since 1889; born in Campbellsville, Ky., June 6, 1859; son of Thomas Jefferson Cabell. He graduated at Wesleyan University, Delaware, Ohio. In 1875 he became the professor of Warren College, (now called Ogden College), at Bowling Green, Ky., and was elected president of the Cedar Bluff College, in Warren County, Ky., in 1877. Mr. Cabell is a Methodist. He married Ellen Douglas Patterson, at Campbellsville, Ky., June 15, 1876. Address: Bowling Green, Ky.

CABLE, Benjamin Taylor:

Manufacturer; born in Georgetown, Ky., in 1853; son of Philander L. and Mary (Taylor) Cable. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1876, and was a delegate of the Democratic National Convention, in 1884, and delegate-at-large, during the years of 1892, 1900, and 1904. From 1891-1893 he was a member of Congress, declining renomination. He was a member of the National Democratic Committee from 1892-1896, and was chairman of the western branch of the same Committee in 1892; in 1896 was one of the organizers of the National (gold) Democratic party, and also delegate-at-large to the National (Gold) Democratic Convention at Indianapolis. He returned to the regular ranks in 1898, becoming a member of the Illinois Democratic State Committee, and in 1902 was chairman of the executive committee of the Democratic Congressional Committee. Mr. Cable is a member of the Chicago and Chicago Athletic Clubs, the University, Grolier and Manhattan Clubs in New York, Rittenhouse Club, Philadelphia, and the Metropolitan Club at Washington. Address: Rock Island, Ill.

CABLE, George Washington:

Author; born in New Orleans, La., Oct. 1, 1844, his father, George W. Cable, having been a Virginian, while his mother, Rebecca Boardman Cable, was from Indiana. He was educated in the New Orleans public schools, but has received the honorary degrees of A.M. and Litt.D. from Yale and of Litt.D. from Washington and Lee University and from Bowdoin College. In 1863 he entered the Confederate Army in General Wirt Adams' Brigade of the Fourth Mississippi Cavalry, and he served until the close of the Civil War. For fourteen years he was accountant and cashier of a firm of cotton factors, and for eight years of the same time acting as secretary of the Finance Committee of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange. He was writing in the meantime, and in 1879 formally entered upon a literary career. In 1884 he removed to New England. Mr. Cable is author of: Old Creole Days, 1879; the Grandissimes, 1880; Madame Delphine, 1881; The Creoles of Louisiana, 1883; Dr. Sevier, 1884; The Silent South, 1884; Bonaventure, 1888; The Negro Question, 1888; Strange True Stories of Louisiana, 1888; John March, 1894; Strong Hearts, 1899; The Cavalier, 1901; Bylow Hill, 1902; Kineaid's Battery, 1908. In 1887 he founded the Home Culture clubs, designed to promote more cordial relations between divergent ranks of society. Mr. Cable has been twice married: first in New Orleans, Dec. 7, 1869, to Louise Stuart Bartlett, who died Feb. 26, 1904, by whom he has a son and six daughters; and second in Philadelphia, Nov. 24, 1906, to Eva C. Stevenson, of Lexington, Ky. Address: Tarryawhile, Northampton, Mass.

CABLE, Hobart M.:

Manufacturer of pianos and organs; born in Walton, Delaware County, N. Y., March 3, 1841; son of Silas and Mary (Goodrich) Cable. He received his education in the public schools of Delaware County and at the Franklin Literary Institute, Franklin, N. Y. He began teaching district schools when but sixteen years of age and was elected school commissioner of his native county when he was in his twenty-second year, retaining that position for three years. He then obtained employment with A. S. Barnes & Company, publishers of school books, of New York City, and remained with the concern for fifteen years. He resided in Hyde Park, a suburb of Boston, for twenty years, was a member of its School Board, and its Public Library Board, and was a selectman. He was elected to the Massachusetts State Legislature, for four successive years, serving on several important committees. In 1889 he removed to Chicago, where he began the manufacture of pianos and organs, becoming one of the founders of the Hobart M. Cable Company, in association with Herman D. Cable, his brother. Upon the death of his brother in 1900, he became president of the company. The factories are at La Port, Ind., and Freeport, Ill., and they employ over six hundred persons. Mr. Cable is a 32d-degree Mason. He married in Walton, N. Y., in 1869, Estella R. Ells, and they have three children. Address: 4947 Lake Avenue, Chicago.

CABOT, Ella Lyman:

Author and educator; born in Boston; daughter of Arthur T. and Ella (Lowell) Lyman. She was educated in private schools in Boston, and at Radcliffe College as a special student in philosophy, and married in Waltham, Mass., Oct. 26, 1894, Richard C. Cabot, M.D., assistant professor in Harvard Medical School. She has been identified with education as a teacher of ethics in the Boston private schools, and in connection with the administration of State Normal schools. Mrs. Cabot was chairman of the Vacation School Committee of the Massachusetts Civic League, and a director of its Summer Schools for three years until they were adopted by the city. She ran for the School Committee of Boston in 1902, and received thirty thousand votes, and she was appointed by Governor Douglas a member of the State Board of Education in 1904. Mrs. Cabot is a member of the Radcliffe College Governing Board and chairman of the Education Department of the Boston Women's Municipal League, is president of the Massachusetts Civil Service Reform Auxiliary, and a member of the College Club of Boston. Mrs. Cabot is author of: Everyday Ethics, published by Henry Holt, and of articles on An Experiment in the Teaching of Ethics, in the Educational Review, on Moral Training in Schools in the Western Journal of Education, and the Seventieth Report of the Massachusetts Board of Education. Address: 190 Marlborough Street, Boston.

CADWALADER, John:

Lawyer; born in Philadelphia, Pa., June 27, 1843; son of Judge John Cadwalader. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1862, and received the degree of A.M. He was a Democrat and active in political affairs; has been director of the public schools, and was collector at the Port of Philadelphia, from 1885 to 1889. He is president of the General Society of the War of 1812; president of the Pennsylvania Institution for the Blind; president of the University Club; president of the New York & Baltimore Transportation Line; president of the Baltimore & Philadelphia Steamboat Company; a member of the American Philosophical Society; and a member of the Board of Council of the Academy of Natural Sciences. Address: 1519 Locust Street, Philadelphia.

CADWALADER, John Lambert:

Lawyer; born in Trenton, N. J., Nov. 17, 1837. He was graduated from Princeton, A.B., 1856, from Harvard Law School, LL.B., 1863, and received the degree of LL.D. from Princeton in 1899. Since 1863 he has practised law in New York City and is now a member of the law firm of Strong and Cadwalader. He was assistant secretary of State of the United States (under Hamilton Fish), 1874-1876. He is a trustee of the New York Life Insurance and Trust Company, the New York Public Library, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the New York Zoölogical Society. Mr. Cadwalader is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the Society of the Cincinnati, Sons of the Revolution, American Fine Arts Society, American Museum of Natural History, and of the Union League, Union, Century, Grolier, Lawyers', University, Princeton, Knickerbocker, Metropolitan, New York Yacht, City, Midway, Down Town, Delta Phi, City and Riding Clubs of New York City. Residence: 12 E. 35th Street, New York City. Address: 40 Wall Street, New York City.

CADY, J. Cleveland:

Architect; born in Providence, R. I.; son of Josiah and Lydia Cady. He was educated at Trinity College, Hartford, where he received the degree of A.M. in 1880 and LL.D. in 1905. He has been practising as an architect since 1870, and is now a member of the firm of Cady and Gregory, architects for many large colleges, hospitals, museums, churches, and other buildings in New York and other cities. Among them are the Metropolitan Opera House, the Museum of Natural History and fifteen buildings for Yale College. He is also a frequent writer for the Outlook and Homiletic Review of New York City. He is a director of the New York City Mission and a governor of the Presbyterian Hospital, and also president of the National Federation of Churches and the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital. He is a member of the Architectural League, American Institute of Architects and of the Religious Education Association, also of the Century Association, the Aldine, and Quill Clubs. Mr. Cady married in Orange, N. J., in 1881, Emma M. Bulkeley, Residence: Alpine, N. J., and 315 W. 89th Street, N. Y. Office: 6 W. 22d Street, New York City.

CAFFIN, Charles Henry:

Art critic, lecturer and author; born in Sittingbourne, Kent, England, June 4, 1851; son of Rev. Charles Smart Caffin (rector of Broadway, Worcestershire) and Harriet Caffin. He was graduated from the University of Oxford in 1876, afterward traveled as a private tutor and engaged in other scholastic work, and then, after six years' experience in theatrical work as actor and manager, he came to the United States in 1892, taking a position in the decorating department of the World's Columbian Exposition. He settled in New York City in 1897, taking a position with Harper & Brothers, as art critic of Harper's Weekly. Later he became art critic of the New York Sun, and now occupies a similar connection with the New York Evening Post. He was until recently American editor of The Studio, is a lecturer of the University Extension Association, has lectured in academic institutions in New York, in the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, and at Yale. Mr. Caffin is a frequent contributor on art to the principal magazines, and is author of: American Masters of Painting; American Masters of Sculpture; Photography as a Fine Art; How to Study Pictures; Spanish Masters; The Story of American Painting; The Child's Guide to Pictures; Appreciation of the Drama; also several short stories. He married, in 1888, Caroline, daughter of Robert Scurfield, an East India merchant. Address: 17 W. 8th Street, New York City.

CAIN, James William:

President of the Washington College, at Chestertown, Md.; born in New Haven, Conn., Sept. 1, 1860. He was educated at Yale University, receiving the degrees of A.B. from Yale College in 1884, A.M. from Yale University in 1893, and LL.D. from St. John's College in 1903. He was principal of the Lewiston (Pa.) Academy, afterwards going to St. John's College, at Annapolis, Md., of which he was successively professor, treasurer, and vice-president, leaving that institution in 1903 to become president of Washington College. He is a member of National Geographic Society, American Historical Society, and American Academy of Political and Social Science. He married at New Haven, Conn., Dec. 25, 1890, Rose Cecelia Mallahan, and has two sons and three daughters. Address: Chestertown, Md.

CALDER, William M.:

Builder and congressman; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 3, 1869. He was educated in the public schools of Brooklyn and at the Cooper Institute of New York City. He is engaged as a builder in Brooklyn, where he has built more than one thousand houses. He was elected as a Republican to the Fifty-ninth Congress in 1904, and reelected to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses from the Sixth New York District. Mr. Calder married in 1893, Catherine E. Harloe, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Residence: 551 First Street. Office: 91 Windsor Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CALDERHEAD, William Alexander:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Perry County, Ohio, Sept. 26, 1844. He was educated in the common schools and by his father, Rev. E. B. Calderhead, a minister of the United Presbyterian Church. He spent the winter of 1861 and 1862 in the preparatory department of Franklin College at New Athens, Ohio, and enlisted in Aug., 1862, as a private in Company H, One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Ohio Infantry. He was transferred to Company D, Ninth Veteran Reserves, for disability incurred in the service, and discharged June 27, 1865. He spent two years recovering health, then one session at school; and he went to Kansas in the fall of 1868 and engaged in farming. In 1872 he settled on a homestead near Newton, Harvey County, Kan.; taught school one year in Newton; read law in the office of Hon. J. W. Ady, and was admitted to the bar in 1873. He went to Atchison, Kan., in 1875, and spent four years there reading law and teaching country schools during the winters. He settled in Marysville, Kan., in Nov., 1879, and engaged in the general practice of law. He was elected county attorney in the fall of 1888, and served two years, and was for several years clerk of the board of education of Marysville. In 1894 he was elected to the Fifty-fourth Congress, and in 1898 to the Fifty-sixth Congress, and has since been biennially reelected, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress from the Fifth Kansas District. Was ten years on the Committee on Banking and Currency and a member of the Ways and Means Committee in the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses. Address: Marysville, Kan.

CALDWELL, Eugene Wilson:

Physician; born at Savannah, Mo., in 1870. He was graduated from the University of Kansas with the degree of B.S. in 1892; from the University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College as M.D. in 1905, and was a special student at the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1898 and 1899. He was engaged in experiments in wireless telephony (with L. I. Blake) for the United States Light House Establishment from 1893 to 1895 and was assistant in the engineering department of the New York Telephone Company from 1895 to 1897. Since 1897 he has devoted nearly all of his time to experimental work with Rontgen rays, their practical application to diagnostic and therapeutic uses; and he is director of the Edward N. Gibbs Memorial X-Ray Laboratory, at Bellevue Hospital Medical College. He is the author (with Dr. W. A. Pusey) of The Rontgen Rays in Therapeutics and Diagnosis, and was a contributor on original work (chiefly telephony and Rontgen Rays) in the Electrical Review and New York Medical Journal, etc. He is the inventor of the Caldwell Liquid interrupter, and of special forms of Rontgen ray apparatus. Dr. Caldwell is a member of the New York Electrical Society, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the Rontgen Society, London, the American Rontgen Ray Society, the New York County and State Medical Societies, the American Medical Association, New York Academy of Medicine, the Phi Kappa Psi, Sigma Xi, and the Nu Sigma Nu. He is a member of the New York Club. Residence: 480 Park Avenue, New York City.

CALDWELL, Francis Cary:

Professor of electrical engineering; born in Hlazen, N. Y., Dec. 25, 1868; son of George C. Caldwell and Rebecca S. (Williams) Caldwell. He was graduated from Cornell University as A.B. in 1890, M.E. and E.E. in 1891 (holding the Sage fellowship); elected member of the honorary societies Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi. He studied at the National Polytechnic, Zurich, Switzerland, 1892-1893; was assistant professor of electrical engineering, Ohio State University, 1883-1893; becoming associate professor of electrical engineering, 1897-1901, and professor of electrical engineering since 1901. He is secretary of the National Engineering Company, and president of the Neil King Company. Prof. Caldwell is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and of the Engineers' Club of Columbus, of which he was president, 1906-1907. He married in Columbus, Ohio, July 12, 1900, Louise Taft Orton, and they have two children. Residence: 206 Sixteenth Avenue. Office: Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio.

CALDWELL, John C.:

Consular official; appointed consul at Valparaiso, April 19, 1869. He acted as chargé d'affaires ad interim to Chili from Aug. 1, 1870, to Dec. 2, 1870; on Jan. 8, 1874, he was appointed minister resident to Uruguay and Paraguay. He was appointed chargé d'affaires to Uruguay and Paraguay, Aug. 15, 1876, and retired in May, 1881. On July 2, 1897, he was appointed to his present post as consul at San José, Costa Rica. Address: San José, Costa Rica.

CALHOUN, Patrick:

Lawyer; born at Fort Hill, Pendleton District, S. C., March 21, 1856; son of Andrew Pickens and Margaret (Green) Calhoun; and grandson of John C. Calhoun, vice-president of the United States. He moved to Dalton, Ga., in 1871, and was educated in private schools. He was admitted to the Georgia bar in 1875, and the Missouri bar in 1876; practised at Atlanta, Ga., from 1878 to 1894, chiefly in corporation and railroad law, and became especially prominent in the consolidation of railway and traction interests, notably the Central Railroad of Georgia, the Richmond and Danville Railway, and the Richmond and West Point Terminal Railway and Warehouse Company, for all of which he was counsel from 1889 to 1892. Since then he has devoted his attention chiefly to the consolidation and development of street railways, taking an active part in the consolidation of the street railway systems in Pittsburg, St. Louis, Baltimore and San Francisco. He is a director of the Philadelphia Company, and the United Railways of Pittsburg; is president of the United Railroads of San Francisco, the United Railways Investment Company, and Calhoun Mills; and is owner of Euclid Heights, Cleveland, Ohio, and director of the Euclid Heights Realty Company, and largely interested in real estate in South Carolina, Georgia and Texas. Mr. Calhoun married in Charleston, S. C., Nov. 4, 1885, Sarah Williams. Residence: Charleston, S. C. Address: 30 Broad Street, New York City.

CALIGA, Isaac Henry:

Artist; born in Auburn, Ind., March 24, 1857. He was educated at the public school in New York, and studied art at Munich. He was a pupil of William Lindenschmidt, from 1879 to 1883, and he has been represented by pictures in numerous exhibitions. He married Phoebe J. Woodman, niece of the poet, Whittier, at Oak Knoll, Danvers, Mass. Residence: Salem, Mass. Studio: 142 Federal Street, Salem, Mass.

CALKINS, Franklin Welles:

Author; born in Arena, Wis., June 5, 1857; son of John Franklin and Abigail (Welles) Calkins. He was educated in private and public schools and the Iowa State College, and has been a constant student. He was an early explorer of the Black Hills of South Dakota, following closely upon Custer's first expedition in 1874. His studies of the fauna of Western North America have given him rank among naturalists. He is acquainted with many Indian tribes and intimately with several historic characters among those of the northwest. Mr. Calkins speaks several Indian tongues and has lived with aborigines in their primitive fashion. He has contributed numerous papers with regard to Indian life and habits, including a historical series ("Famous Indians"), to various periodicals; among others the Associated Sunday Magazines; and since the age of 22 has been a constant contributor of tales of western life and adventure to The Youth's Companion. Among the juvenile books are: Frontier Sketches; Indian Tales; Hunting Stories; The Cougar Tamer; and My Host, the Enemy. He is also author of the novels: Two Wilderness Voyagers; and the Wooing of Tokala. Address: Maine, Ottertail County, Minn.

CALL, Annie Payson:

Author; born in Arlington, Mass., May 17, 1853; daughter of Henry Edwin and Emily Payson Call. Miss Call was educated in various schools and has made a special study of nerve training, in which she is a teacher of wide repute. She is a trustee of the Free Reading Room of Waltham, Mass. Miss Call is author of: Power Through Repose; As a Matter of Course; Freedom of Life; A Man of the World; Every Day Living; The Heart of Good Health. Address: Hillside, Waltham, Mass.

CALL, Edward Payson:

Publisher. He was private secretary to the late R. M. Pulsifer, publisher of the Boston Herald, for seven years, and advertising manager of the same paper. He was assistant advertising manager for the Royal Baking Powder Company, 1887-1893; advertising manager of the Philadelphia Press, 1893-1897; publisher of the Evening Post, 1897-1903; publisher of the New York Commercial, 1904-1907. He was chairman of the Publishers' Association from 1897 to 1903. Mr. Call is a member of the Chamber of Commerce and the New England Society; and is a member of the City, Hardware, Apiwamis, Horseshoe Harbor, New York Press, and other clubs. Address: Larchmont Manor, New York.

CALLAHAN, James Morton:

Educator and author; born at Bedford, Ind., Nov. 4, 1864; son of Martin I. and Sophia Oregon (Tannehill) Callahan. He was graduated from Indiana University as A.B. in 1894 and A.M. in 1895, and from Johns Hopkins University as Ph.D. in 1897 (fellow in 1896 and John Marshall Prize in 1900). He was instructor in Johns Hopkins University from 1895 to 1897; acting professor of American history and constitutional law at Hamilton College in 1897 and 1898, and lecturer at Johns Hopkins University from 1898 to 1901. He made extensive researches in archives at Washington, London and elsewhere while preparing his various monographs on American diplomatic history, four of which are published by the Johns Hopkins Press. He is head of the department of history and political science at West Virginia University, and editor of the West Virginia University Studies in American History and West Virginia History. He is a member of the American Historical Association, American Political Science Association and Phi Beta Kappa. He married at Vinita, Indian Territory, Sept. 4, 1907, Maud Louise Fulcher, who had been assistant in American history at West Virginia University. Address: Morgantown, W. Va.

CALLAWAY, Llewellyn Link:

Lawyer; born in Tuscola, Ill., Dec. 15, 1868; son of James Edmund Callaway and Mary E. (Link) Callaway. He was educated in the common schools in Virginia City and Helena, Mont., the Hamilton School at Philadelphia, from which he was graduated in 1886, the University of Michigan (Literary Department) in 1886 and 1887, and he was graduated from the Law Department of that University, in 1891, as LL.B. He was admitted to the bar in Michigan in May, 1891, and in Montana the following August. He tried and won his first case in the Supreme Court in Jan., 1892. He was busily engaged in practice until appointed to the Supreme Court in March, 1903. He is a Republican in politics, was elected county attorney of Madison County, Mont., in 1894 and 1896, mayor of Virginia City three terms, was appointed Supreme Court Commissioner by the Supreme Court in March, 1903, his opinions being in volumes 28 to 31, of the Montana Reports, and he was elected in 1904 and re-elected in 1908 judge of the Fifth Judicial District of Montana. He is chairman of the Commission on Conservation of Natural Resources for the State of Montana, appointed by the governor, 1908; is past master of Virginia City Lodge No. 1, and past grand master of Masons of Montana; past exalted ruler of Oro Plata Lodge No. 390, of Virginia City, Mont., and past president of the State Association of Montana, of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. He is also a member of the Lambs' Club of Helena, Mont., the Beaverhead Club of Dillon, Mont., and Madison Club of Virginia City, Mont. He married at White Sulphur Springs, Va., Dec. 12, 1894; four children. Address: Virginia City, Mont.

CALVERT, William Jephtha:

Physician; born in Lexington, Ky., Oct. 7, 1871; son of Henry Clay and Rebecca (Downing) Calvert. He was graduated from the Kentucky University in 1893, with the degree of A.B., and from Johns Hopkins University, in 1898, with the degree of M.D. Dr. Calvert was first lieutenant and assistant surgeon with the United States Army in the Philippines, 1899-1902, and was lecturer on tropical diseases at the Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., 1902-1903. He was assistant professor of internal medicine in the University of Missouri, 1903-1908, and professor of physical diagnosis and clinical pathology at the same college in 1908, since which time he has been engaged in the practice of internal medicine. He is a member of the Sigma Xi honor fraternity, and the Columbia Club, of Columbia, Mo. Address: Columbia, Mo.

CAMERON, Edgar Spier:

Artist; born in Ottawa, Ill., May 26, 1862; son of John Rush and Emily (Spier) Cameron. He was educated at the Art Students' League, of New York, and the École des Beaux Arts, Académie Julian, and the École des Arts Decoratifs, of Paris. Mr. Cameron first exhibited his work at the Paris Salon in 1888. He was art critic of the Chicago Tribune, 1891-1900, during which time he worked on the World's Fair decorations, in 1892. He was vice-president of the Chicago Society of Artists in 1902, and organized, with Max Manch and Robert Thompson, the Municipal Art League. He was a member of the International Jury of Award, Class XII, of the Paris Exposition of 1900; received silver medal for this service and he also received the Grower Prize, for best group of paintings at Chicago Artists' Exhibition, Art Institute, 1909, $100. Mr. Cameron is a member of the Chicago Society of Artists, the Chicago Water Color Society, and the Cliff Dwellers. His most important work is "The Youth of Christ," and his works include figures and landscape pictures and mural decorations; and has done decorative work in the Illinois Supreme Court Library at Springfield, the Indianapolis Cathedral and theaters, restaurants and residences in Chicago and elsewhere. He married in Chicago, Feb. 7, 1890, Marie Josephine Marthe Gelon. Address: 15 Studio Building, Chicago.

CAMERON, James Donald:

Ex-Senator from Pennsylvania; born in Middletown, Pa., May 14, 1833; son of Simon Cameron, for years United States Senator from Pennsylvania. He was graduated from Princeton in 1852, and was consecutively clerk, cashier, and is now president of the National Bank of Middletown. From 1863 to 1874, he was president of the Northern Central Railroad Company. He was secretary of War of the United States, 1876-1877; United States Senator from Pennsylvania, 1877-1897; delegate to the National Republican Conventions, 1860-1880; and chairman of the National Republican Committee in 1880. He has large interests in coal mines and iron manufactures. Address: Middletown, Pa.

CAMP, Walter:

Author and manufacturer; born at New Britain, Conn., April 7, 1859; son of Lev-erett Lee Camp and Ellen (Cornwell) Camp. He was prepared at Hopkins Grammar School at New Haven, and graduated from Yale University as B.A., 1880, M.A., 1907. He is president, treasurer, and general manager of the New Haven Clock Company; member of the Yale University Council; director of the Peck Brothers Company; trustee of Hopkins Grammar School, and treasurer of the Board of Trustees; treasurer of the Yale Financial Union and treasurer of Yale Field. He is a Chamber of Commerce delegate to the Philadelphia Commercial Museum. Mr. Camp has always taken a great interest in athletic sports and has attained a national reputation in the management of the athletics at Yale. He is author of American Football (Harper); The Book of College Sports (Century); The Substitute, (fiction) (Appleton); is joint author (with Deland) of Football (Houghton, Mifflin Company); (with Brooks) of Drives and Puts (L. C. Page and Company), and (with Welch of Yale—the Campus and Class Room (L. C. Page and Company)). He is sports editor of various periodicals and a contributor to the Century, Harper's, Collier's and St. Nicholas magazines. Residence: New Haven House. Address: 133 Hamilton Street, New Haven, Conn.

CAMPAU, Daniel J.:

Lawyer and turfman; born in Detroit, Mich., Aug. 20, 1852. He was educated at Saint John's College, Fordham, N. Y., and afterward studied law and was admitted to practice in all the courts of Michigan, and the Supreme Court of the United States. He was appointed collector of customs at Detroit by President Cleveland in 1886, and held that office until 1890. He has always been a Democrat in politics and has been the leader of his party in the State for the past twenty-five years. He is owner of The Horseman and Spirit of the Times, a journal devoted to the breeding and turf news, and is one of the most prominent men connected with the trotting turf. Office address: 22 Campau Building, Detroit, Mich.

CAMPBELL, Edward R.:

Physician and surgeon; born in Westminster West, Vt., Sept. 27, 1853; son of Daniel and Julia A. (Hall) Campbell. He was educated in Kimball Union Academy; Dartmouth College (Scientific Department, one year), and the Medical Department of the University of Vermont, M.D., 1875 (valedictorian). Dr. Campbell has been continuously engaged in the practice of medicine in Massachusetts and Vermont from graduation, and has attained a prominent position in the profession in his native State. He was president of the Vermont Medical Society, 1888, and has been treasurer of the Connecticut River Valley Medical Association since 1878. Member of Vermont State Tuberculosis Commission, 1904 to 1906. Dr. Campbell is a Democrat in politics, and was a member of the Vermont House of Representatives, 1904-1906. He is a member of the Westminster Club. Dr. Campbell married in Westminster, Vt., May 10, 1876, Iuez E. Morse, and they have had two sons, of whom one is deceased. Address: 21 Henry Street, Bellows Falls, Vt.

CAMPBELL, James Daniels:

Lawyer: born in Bridgewater, Beaver County, Pa., Jan. 14, 1839. He was admitted to the bar in Nov., 1859, and practised law at Huntingdon until April, 1861, when he enlisted in the local military company, of which he was elected 2d lieutenant. The company was assigned to the 5th Pennsylvania Volunteers as a 90-day regiment, and was mustered out at the end of the term, but he recruited Company D, 49th Pennsylvania Volunteers, of which he became Captain, Aug. 10, 1861, and was present in battles and movements of the Army of the Potomac under McClellan. He was honorably discharged Jan. 13, 1863, to accept a semi-military appointment under the Conscription Act, which he held until 1864, when he resumed the practice of law, and was district attorney of Huntingdon County, and county solicitor until March, 1866; then practised at Davenport, Iowa, 1866 to 1880. In 1880 he went to New York and became counsel for Austin Corbin and his associates, superintending the legal work of reorganizing and consolidating the railways on Long Island, and later was chief counsel of financiers in acquiring control and reorganizing the finances of the Central Railroad Company of

New Jersey. From 1887 to 1890 he was special counsel to the president and management, and since October, 1890, has been the general solicitor and head of the legal department of the Philadelphia and Reading System. Mr. Campbell married Ada Katherine Campbell, at Huntingdon, Pa., Sept. 17, 1863. He is a member of the Loyal Legion. Residence: Wyncote, Pa. Office: Reading Terminal, Philadelphia.

CAMPBELL, James E.:

Lawyer and ex-governor of Ohio; born in Middletown, Ohio, July 7, 1843. He received an academic education, was admitted to the bar, served in the United States Navy during the Civil War, and then began law practice at Hamilton, Ohio, where he became prosecuting attorney. He was a member of Congress, 1893-1899, and was governor of Ohio from 1890-1892. He is a Democrat and a leading figure in the State and National councils of his party. Address: Hamilton, Ohio.

CAMPBELL, John:

Jurist; born in Monroe County, Ind., Sept. 13, 1853; son of James M. and Nancy Campbell. He was graduated from the State University of Iowa, A.B., 1877, and LL.B., 1879, later receiving the A.M. degree. He located in the practice of law at Colorado Springs, Colo., where he was engaged at the bar for nine years, during which time he was city attorney three years and county attorney one year. He became active in politics as a Republican and became a member of the General Assembly of Colorado, 1885, and of the Senate in 1887. He was elected judge of the District Court in 1888, serving from 1889-1895, and since 1895 has been an associate justice, and for six years chief justice, of the Supreme Court of Colorado, his present term expiring in 1913. Judge Campbell has been ever since 1881 a trustee of Colorado College, at Colorado Springs, is dean of the Law School of the University of Colorado, at Boulder; and president of The Miss Wolcott School, at Denver. He is a member of the El Paso Club of Colorado Springs, Colo., and of the University and Country Clubs of Denver. He married at Iowa City, Iowa, June 28, 1881, Harriet J. Parker. Address: 1401 Gilpin Street, Denver, Colo.

CAMPBELL, John Allyn:

Owner of timber lands; born in Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1754; son of John A. B. Campbell and Damaris (Partholomew) Campbell. He was educated in the schools of Buffalo, N. Y. He engaged in business first as secretary of the Buffalo and Jamestown Railroad (now the Southwestern branch of the Erie Railroad), then as a grain shipper and merchant on the Buffalo Board of Trade; and at that place built the floating elevator Buffalo, and the large grain elevator there called The Frontier, with a capacity of two million bushels, and was a large owner in the same. He now resides in Chicago and is largely interested in, and owner of oil wells in Kansas and Indian Territory, also a large owner of timber and timber lands in Alabama, Mississippi, and Florida, and in upper Michigan. He edited and published numerous large biographical works (steel plate series) at different times in Chicago, entitled: Prominent Men of the Great West, issued in several editions. Mr. Campbell is now an officer and director in several different companies and corporations. He has traveled everywhere in the United States, traveling over half of his time, and has made several trips through Europe. He is a Republican in politics. He is a member of the Illinois Athletic Club of Chicago. He was married at Buffalo, N. Y., March 14, 1878, to Eva J. Ratcliffe, and they have a daughter, Mrs. Thomas Rushton Pearce, residing at St. Paul, Minn. Address: Auditorium Annex, Chicago, Ill.

CAMPBELL, Killis:

Philologist and educator; born in Enfield, Va., 1872; son of Robert Camm and Alice (Hawes) Campbell. He was educated in The College of William and Mary, 1888-1890, and 1893-1894, receiving from that College the degree of B.A., 1894, The University of Nashville, 1890-1892, B.L., 1892, Johns Hopkins University, 1894-1898, Fellow 1897-1898, Ph.D., 1898. Dr. Campbell was master of English in the Culver Military Academy, 1898-1899; and has been instructor and adjunct professor of English in the University of Texas since 1899. He has been editor of the University of Texas Record since 1906; has edited The Seven Sages of Rome, a book published by Ginn & Co., in their Albion Series, 1907; and is author of A Study of the Seven Sages of Rome, with Special Reference to the Middle English Versions (doctor's dissertation), and articles in Modern Language Notes, The Journal of English and Germanic Philology, and the Nation. He spent the summers of 1897, 1902 and 1904 in Europe, mainly in study in the British Museum and at Oxford. He is a member of the Modern Language Association of America, the Kappa Sigma fraternity, and the University Club of Austin, Texas. Dr. Campbell married in Baltimore, Md., June 26, 1902, Mary Hogg Aitken, and they have three daughters. Address: 2301 Rio Grande Street. Office: The University of Texas, Austin, Texas.

CAMPBELL, Phillip Pitt:

Congressman and lawyer; born in Cape Breton, Nova Scotia, April 25, 1862; son of Daniel A. and Mary (McRae) Campbell. He was graduated from Baker University, A.B., 1888, and A.M., 1891, read law on the farm, and was admitted to the Kansas bar in 1890, and engaged in practice at Pittsburg, Kan. He was elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress from the Third Kansas District in 1902, reelected in 1904, 1906 and 1908, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. He is a Republican. Mr. Campbell married at Walnut, Kan., Nov. 23, 1892, Helen Goff. Address: Pittsburg, Kan.

CAMPBELL, R. E.:

Jurist. He was engaged in the practice of law in Oklahoma until appointed by President Roosevelt in 1907 to the office of judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Oklahoma. Address: Muskogee, Okla.

CAMPBELL, Thomas Mitchell:

Governor of Texas; born in Ruok, Cherokee County, Texas, April 22, 1856; son of Thomas D. and Rachel (Moore) Campbell. He was educated in the public schools and at Trinity College, Tehuacana, Texas, until 1874. He then read law in an office at Longview, Texas, and in 1878 was admitted to the bar. He served as master in chancery, 1889-1891; and he was receiver, 1891-1892, and general manager, 1892-1897, of the International and Great Northern Railroad. He was elected in 1906, and reelected in 1908, governor of Texas, being at each election the regular nominee of the Democratic party. His present term will expire in 1911. Address: Austin, Texas.

CAMPBELL, William Wallace:

Astronomer; born in Hancock County, Ohio, April 11, 1862; son of Robert Wilson and Harriet (Welsh) Campbell. He was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1886, as B.S., and received from it the honorary degree of M.S. in 1899, and D.Sc. in 1905; and from the University of Wisconsin of LL.D. in 1902. He was professor of mathematics in the University of Colorado, 1886-1888, instructor in astronomy in the University of Michigan, 1888-1891, became an astronomer at Lick Observatory in 1891, and has been its director since 1901. He was in charge of the Lick Observatory Eclipse Expeditions to India in 1898, to Georgia in 1900, to Spain in 1905, and to Flint Island in 1908. He is a foreign associate of the Royal Astronomical Society, and a member of the National Academy of Sciences and many other learned societies, and the honorary society of Sigma Xi. He received the Lalande prize and gold medal from the Paris Academy of Sciences, the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society, London; and the Draper Gold Medal from the National Academy of Sciences. He married at Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 28, 1892, Elizabeth Ballard Thompson, and they have three sons. Address: Mt. Hamilton, Calif.

CANDEE, Helen Churchill:

Writer; born in New York, of Puritan ancestry. She attended the first kindergarten in this country, under Rose Porter, and the first natural method German school, under Professor Heness, receiving her education in New Haven and Norwalk, Conn. Her mother was Mary Churchill Hungerford, a writer and editor of reputation, and from girlhood the daughter has been a writer having written innumerable short stories and much miscellany for various publications, and the books: An Oklahoma Romance, and Styles and Periods in Decoration. She has traveled all over this country, has lived in Italy and has made frequent trips abroad. She is a member of the Chevy Chase Club at Washington. Address: 1718 Rhode Island Avenue, Washington, D. C.

CANDLER, Ezekiel Samuel, Jr.:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Bellville, Hamilton County, Fla., Jan. 18, 1862; oldest son of Ezekiel Samuel and Julia Bevil Candler, who are natives of Georgia. He is a direct descendant of William Candler, who was a colonel in the Army of the American Revolution. When he was eight years old he removed with his parents to Tishomingo County, Mississippi; was educated in the Male Academy, at Iuka, Miss., and attended the law department of the University of Mississippi for the term 1880-1881. On June 30, 1881, he graduated in law, when a little over nineteen years old, and, his minority being waived he at once commenced the practice of law with his father at Iuka. He removed from Iuka to Corinth, Jan. 1, 1887. He was nominated by the Democratic State Convention in 1888 for presidential elector for the First Congressional District. In November, 1900, he was elected from the First Mississippi District to the Fifty-seventh Congress, was reelected in 1902, 1904, 1906, and 1908, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. He married, April 26, 1883, Nancy Priscilla Hazlewood. Address: Corinth, Miss.

CANDLER, Flamen Ball:

Lawyer; born in Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 16, 1838; son of Samuel Marsden Candler and Elizabeth Cecilia (Ball) Candler. He was educated in the New York College, and he was admitted to the New York bar in May, 1860, and has practised law in New York City ever since. He has occupied his present offices forty-two years. He was partner with Edgar S. Van Winkle for seventeen years, and now, with Colonel William Jay and his oldest son, Robert W. Candler, forming the firm of Jay & Candler. Mr. Candler and Colonel Jay have been partners since 1868—the longest law partnership in New York City. He has been president of the Republican Ward Associations of the First, Seventh and Twentieth Wards of Brooklyn. He was first president of the Department of Law in the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, holding the position several terms, and is a member of the Board of Council of the Long Island Historical Society, of the Ohio Society (of which he has been vice-president, one of the governors and chairman of the executive committee); and is also a member of the Sons of the Revolution. Mr. Candler is a member of the Union League, Down Town, and Tuxedo Clubs of New York City, and the Hamilton Club of Brooklyn. He married in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 18, 1865, M. Lillian Welch, and they have three children. Address: 48 Wall Street, New York City.

CANDLER, Warren A.:

Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; born at Villa Rica, Carroll County, Ga., Aug. 23, 1857; son of Samuel Charles and Martha (Beall) Candler. He was graduated from Emory College, at Oxford, Ga., in 1875, and later received the degrees of D.D. and LL.D. He was licensed to preach, May 15, 1875, entered the North Georgia Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South in December, 1875, and continued in the pastorate until July, 1886, when he became assistant editor of the Christian Advocate, at Nashville, Tenn., the official organ of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, thus serving until 1888, when he was elected to the presidency of Emory College. In May, 1898, he was elected by the General Conference and consecrated bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Bishop Candler besides his episcopal and educational labors, has contributed extensively to religious literature, and is author of: History of Sunday Schools, 1880; Georgia's Educational Work, 1893; Christus Auctor, 1899, High Living and High Lives, 1901; Great Revivals and the Great Republic, 1905. Bishop Candler married at La Grange, Ga., Nov. 21, 1877, Nettie Curtright, and they have three children. Address: 630 Edgewood Avenue, Atlanta, Ga.

CANEVIN, J. F. Regis:

Catholic Bishop of Pittsburgh. He was formerly rector of St. Paul's Cathedral and a member of the board of diocesan consultants and diocesan school board of the diocese of Pittsburgh; was consecrated in 1903 as coadjutor bishop of Pittsburgh, and on the death of Bishop Phelan in 1904, succeeded him as diocesan. He is president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America. Address: 519 Grant Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

CANFIELD, George Folger:

Lawyer and professor of law in Columbia University; born in New York City, Aug. 21, 1854; son of Albert Warren and Elizabeth I. H. (Bage) Canfield. He was graduated from Phillips Exeter Academy in 1871, from Harvard as A.B., 1875, and LL.B., 1880, and he also spent two years in German universities. He was admitted to the bar in 1880, and is a member of the law firm of Wilmer, Canfield and Stone, and he has been professor of law in Columbia University since 1894. Mr. Canfield is chairman of the Board of Directors and general counsel of The Bradstreet Company; director and vice-president of the Atlanta and Charlotte Air Line Railroad Co.; director of the Building and Sanitary Inspection Co., and of the Butte Electric and Power Co. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, New York State Bar Association, American Bar Association, the Law Institute, Civil Service Reform Association, Metropolitan Museum of Art, and several Clubs. He is also member of the Board of Managers and vice-president of the State Charities Aid Association. Mr. Canfield married first, at Peekskill, N. Y., in 1884, Sarah Kittredge, who died in 1897; and in 1904 he married at Columbia, S. C., Frances M. Marshall, by whom he has three sons. Address: 49 Wall Street, New York City.

CANNON, Frank Jenne:

Former United States Senator, and journalist; born in Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 25, 1859. He was graduated from the University of Utah, A.B., 1878. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1892, and that same year was defeated as a delegate to Congress, but secured the election in 1894, and served as United States Senator from 1896-1899. He left the St. Louis National Republican Convention of 1896 because of dissatisfaction with the Gold Standard plank of platform, and has since been affiliated with the Democratic party. Address: Ogden, Utah.

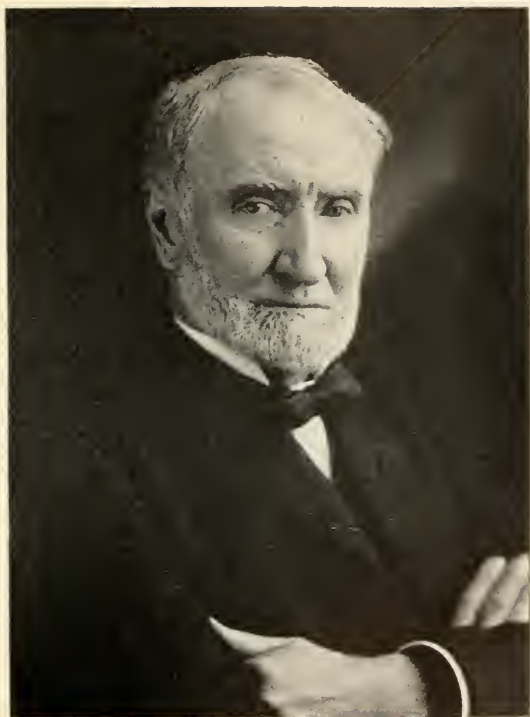

CANNON, Henry White:

Banker; born in Delhi, Delaware County, N. Y., Sept. 27, 1850; son of George B. Cannon. He was educated in private schools at Delhi and the Delaware Literary Institute; and began his business career in the First National Bank of Delhi, in which he became teller before he was twenty years of age. Shortly afterward, in 1870, he went to the Second National Bank of Saint Paul, Minn., and the following year, at the age of twenty-one years, organized the Lumberman's National Bank of Stillwater, Minn., of which he was cashier and active manager for thirteen years, carrying the bank safely and successfully through the disastrous panic of 1873. While at Stillwater he became secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and treasurer and general manager of the gas and water companies of that city. When the public debt was funded, Mr. Cannon became active in buying and exchanging Government bonds for Minnesota banks, and also negotiated loans for the city of Saint Paul. He was appointed by President Arthur comptroller of the Currency to succeed Hon. John J. Knox, in 1884 and was asked to continue in office by President Cleveland, but he resigned early in 1886 and removed to New York, where he became vice-president of the National Bank of the Republic.

In November, 1886, he became president of the Chase National Bank, of which he is still at the head as president of the Board of Directors. He was a member of the International Monetary Commission at Brussels in 1892; a member of the Assay Commission during the administration of President Harrison; and a member of the Aqueduct Commission of New York during the administration of Mayor Hugh J. Grant. He is a director of the Great Northern, Lake Erie and Western, Fort Wayne, and Cincinnati and Louisville railway; president of the Pacific Coast Company; also director of the Manhattan Trust Company, United States Guarantee Company, and Guarantee Company of North America. He is a member of the Sons of the Revolution, and the Union League, Century, Players', Metropolitan, Tuxedo, New York Yacht, Republican, and National Arts Clubs of New York. Mr. Cannon married Jenny O. Curtis, and they have two sons. Residence: 288 Madison Avenue. Office: 83 Cedar Street, New York City.

CANNON, Joseph Gurley:

Speaker of the House of Representatives; born at Guilford, N. C., May 7, 1836, of mingled Scotch and New England Quaker ancestry. When a boy his parents removed to Illinois, where he was reared on a farm, and he procured his education in country schools, and afterward studied law. He was admitted to the Illinois bar, and engaged in practice at Danville; and at the age of 24 was elected State's attorney of Vermillion County, Ill., in which office he served for the seven years from 1861-1868. In November, 1872, he was elected from the Twelfth Illinois District to the Forty-third Congress and has been biennially elected, from that district, now the Eighteenth, with the exception of the period of the Fifty-second Congress, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. He has been one of the prominent figures in Congress from his first term, and for many terms was chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. At the beginning of the Fifty-eighth Congress he was chosen speaker of the House, in which responsible post he has since been retained.

JOSEPH G. CANNON
Speaker of the House of Representatives

Mr. Cannon has been from his youth one of the ablest campaigners of the Republican party, and he was permanent chairman of the National Republican Convention of 1904. Address: Danville, Ill.

CANTOR, Jacob Aaron:

Lawyer; born in New York City, Dec. 6, 1854; son of Henry and Hannah Cantor. He studied law in offices and the University Law School, whence he was graduated as LL.B. in 1875; and he was admitted to the bar in 1876. He was elected to the General Assembly from the Twenty-first District of New York City in 1884, 1885, and 1886, and was State senator, 1887-1898. He was chosen unanimously by his associates as Democratic leader in the State Senate in 1888, and continued as such until his retirement from the senate in 1898. Mr. Cantor was president of the Senate and acting lieutenant-governor from 1893-1894; and chairman of the Committee on Finances; and he received votes for governor in the Democratic State Convention at Saratoga in 1902. Since Jan. 1, 1904, he has been chairman of the Committee of Highways and Parks of New York City Improvement Commission, appointed by the mayor of New York City. He was elected president of the Borough of Manhattan on the Reform ticket in 1901 and served from 1902-1904, declining a renomination. He married, Sept. 25, 1897, Lydia Greenebaum, and they have three children. Residence: 9 West 70th Street. Office: 25 Broad Street, New York City.

CAPEN, Samuel Billings:

Merchant; born in Boston, Dec. 12, 1842; son of Samuel C. and Ann (Billings) Capen. He was educated in the Boston public schools, and the English High School of Boston, and he has the degree of A.M., received from Dartmouth College, and of LL.D., received from Oberlin and Middlebury Colleges. Since his graduation from the English High School in 1858 he has been in the carpet business, and he is now treasurer of the Torrey, Bright & Capen Company. He was a member of the Boston School Committee, 1889-1892, and its president in 1892; and was president of the Boston Municipal League, 1894-1899. He is one of the foremost laymen of the Congregationalist denomination. He is president of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, president of the Board of Trustees of Wellesley College; is governor-general of the Society of Mayflower Descendants; vice-president of the Congregational Sunday School and Publication Society; vice-president of the American Congregational Association, and a trustee of the United Society of Christian Endeavor. Mr. Capen married in Boston, Dec. 8, 1869, Helen M. Warren, and they have a son and a daughter. Residence: 38 Greenough Avenue, Jamaica Plain, Mass. Office: 350 Washington Street, Boston.

CAPERS, John G.:

Lawyer; born at Anderson, S. C., April 17, 1866; son of the late Ellison Capers Episcopal bishop of South Carolina, and Charlotte Rebecca (Palmer) Capers. At the age of sixteen he entered the South Carolina Military Academy at Charleston, where he studied for four years. He was admitted to the bar in 1888. In 1896, upon the nomination of Bryan, he joined the Republican party, although previous to that time he had been a Democrat. Since that time he has been prominent in the Republican party, campaigning for McKinley in 1896-1900. He was a delegate-at-large to the National Republican Convention held in Chicago in 1904, and is now the member of the Republican National Committee for South Carolina. He was U. S. District Attorney for South Carolina from May, 1901 to February, 1906, and on June 5, 1907 he was appointed commissioner of Internal Revenue of the United States. Residence: Greenville, S. C. Office: Treasury Department Building, Washington, D. C.

CAPPS, Washington Lee:

Chief constructor and rear-admiral, U. S. N., and chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair; son of the late Washington Tazewell and Frances Bernard Capps; born at Portsmouth, Va., Jan. 31, 1864. He was educated at private schools in Norfolk, Va., and appointed to the United States Naval Academy from Norfolk County in October, 1880; graduated from the Naval Academy in 1884 and immediately assigned to duty on the flagship Tennessee, of the North Atlantic Station, remaining on this duty until May, 1886; during this period of service afloat, acted as aide on the personal staff of the commander-in-chief, also as watch and division officer. Was promoted to Ensign in June, 1886, and subsequently assigned to duty at the University of Glasgow for a special course of instruction in naval architecture. Graduated from the University of Glasgow with the degree of Bachelor of Science in April, 1888; transferred to the Construction Corps of the Navy as assistant naval constructor shortly thereafter, continuing on duty at the University of Glasgow in order to take a special post-graduate course in naval architecture. Returned to the United States in July, 1889; was promoted to naval constructor with the rank of lieutenant in January, 1895, to naval constructor with the rank of commander in August, 1899, and to chief constructor with the rank of rear-admiral in October, 1903. From 1889-1903 served at various stations at home and abroad and in various important boards at the Navy Department, also as superintending constructor for naval vessels building at private shipbuilding yards, the principal stations being as follows: At the Navy Department and the William Cramp & Sons Shipbuilding Company in 1889; at the Navy Yard, New York, from September, 1889, to July, 1892; at the Bureau of Construction and Repair from July, 1892, to December, 1895; as superintending constructor for the Navy at the Union Iron Works from January, 1896, to May, 1898; technical aid on the staff of Admiral Dewey, commander-in-chief of the Asiatic Station, during the Spanish-American War and until October, 1899; was a member of the Board of Inspection and Survey at Washington, D. C., from October, 1899, to March, 1901, and head of the department of Construction and Repair at the Navy Yard, New York, from March, 1901, to October, 1903. While serving as aide on the technical staff of Admiral Dewey, had charge of all work in connection with the raising and preliminary refitting of the captured Spanish vessels Isla de Cuba, Isla de Luzon, and Don Juan de Austria. Was one of the founders of the American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, and was its first secretary. As chief constructor and chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, has general supervision, under the direction of the Secretary of the Navy, of all matters under the cognizance of his Bureau connected with the construction, repair, and maintenance of vessels of the United States Navy, with headquarters at Washington, D. C. During his period of office as chief constructor there have been designed under his supervision the American representatives of the "all-big-gun" type of battleship, including the South Carolina and Michigan, the Delaware and North Dakota, the Florida and Utah, and the Arkansas and Wyoming; is a member of various clubs and technical societies, including the American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, of which he is a vice-president; the British Institution of Naval Architects; the American Society of Naval Engineers; the Washington Society of Engineers, etc. Address: Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

CAPRON, Adin Ballou:

Miller and congressman; born in Mendon, Mass., Jan. 9, 1841; son of Carlile W. and Abby (Bates) Capron. He was educated at Woonsocket High School and Westbrook Seminary, near Portland, Me. He enlisted as sergeant in the Second Rhode Island Infantry, in May, 1861; was promoted to sergeant-major, July 11, 1861; commissioned lieutenant, September, 1861, and ordered on detached service in the Signal Corps, in December, 1861. He served in the Signal Corps until the close of the war, having been commissioned first lieutenant in the Signal Corps, U. S. A., March 3, 1863, and receiving promotion to the rank of captain and major by brevet. Since the war he has been in business pursuits and is now engaged in milling and dealing in grain. He was elected representative to the General Assembly of Rhode Island in 1887, and re-elected in 1888, 1889, 1890, 1891, and 1892; and he was speaker of the House in 1891-

1892. He was Republican candidate for Congress in 1892, and was elected in 1896 to the Fifty-fifth Congress from the Second Rhode Island District, since which he has been biennially reelected and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. Address: Stillwater, Providence County, R. I.

CARBONE, Agostino:

Vocal teacher, and late vocal artist of the Metropolitan Grand Opera, in New York; born in Genoa, Italy, May 19, 1856. He was educated at the Civic Institute of Music, Genoa, where he was graduated in the art of singing with gold medal, and studied also with the famous tenor, Vettimio Malvezzi. He was engaged at the grand opera houses in Milan, New York, Paris, London, St. Petersburg, Moscow, Rome, Turin, Lisbon, etc. He came to the United States for the first time in the season of 1881 and 1882, engaged with Strakosh's Italian opera company. He was also a member of Patti's, Gerster's Melba's, Sembrich's and Campanini's opera and concert company, and was a member of the Metropolitan Grand Opera Co., for eleven seasons. His last appearance in opera at the Metropolitan Opera House was in 1899. In Italy he created the leading rôles in many operas, and has distinguished himself in New York as a singer and now as a vocal teacher. He studied many years upon the physiology of the voice, and the science of voice production. Mr. Carbone married in Genoa, Italy, 1883, Lilly Cerbi, and they have four children. Address: 601-602 Carnegie hall, New York City.

CAREY, Charles Henry:

Lawyer; born in Cincinnati, Oct. 27, 1857. He graduated at the Farmers' College, College Hill, Ohio; the Denison University, Granville, Ohio, with the degree of Ph.B., in 1881, and the Law School of the Cincinnati College with the degree of LL.B. in 1883. He has been practising law at Portland, Ore., since 1883, except when he practised at Detroit, Mich., 1888-1889. He was municipal judge of Portland, Ore., 1892-1895; vice-president of the American Bar Association 1894-1907; president of the State League Republican Clubs, 1895-1896; and from 1894-1898 he was the chairman of the Republican Congressional Committee and president of the Garfield Republican Club. He has been president of the American Trust and Investment Company since 1902, and is vice-president of the Union Meat Company and the Western Electric Company. Mr. Carey is one of the founders and a director of the Multnomah Law Library, and one of the founders and formerly secretary of the Oregon Bar Association. He has been a member of the Republican National Committee since 1904, and is a member of the Sons of the American Revolution; the American Forestry Association; American Institute of Civics, the American Historical Association, and the Arlington and Commercial Clubs, and is a 32d-degree Mason. Mr. Carey is author of Index Digest of the Oregon and Washington Reports; and History of the Pacific Northwest. He married in Portland, Ore., Sept. 24, 1883, Mary N. Bidwell. Address: 410 Chamber of Commerce, Portland, Ore.

CAREY, James F.:

Shoemaker, socialist leader; born in Haverhill, Mass., August 19, 1867. He was educated at the Haverhill public schools, and afterward learned the shoe-making trade. He joined the International Boot and Shoemakers' Union and was made chairman of the convention in Boston, in 1895, which amalgamated three national organizations of shoemakers into one union, and he was one of the three leaders in the unemployed agitation on Boston Common, in 1894. The Governor appointed him a commissioner of the unemployed but he was not confirmed. He was the first socialist elected to a political office in New England, was president of the Haverhill common council, and elected a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives; in 1898, 1899, 1900, 1901 and 1902, the last four elections being over a combination of Democratic and Republican parties. He is now the national organizer of the Socialist Party. Address: Haverhill, Mass.

CARHART, Henry Smith:

Professor of physics; born at Coeymans, N. Y., March 27, 1844; son of Daniel S. and Margaret Carhart. He was graduated from Wesleyan University, A.B., 1869, studied at Yale, Harvard and the University of Berlin and received the LL.D. degree from Wesleyan in 1893. He became professor of physics and chemistry at Northwestern University, 1872-1886, and since 1886 has been professor of physics at the University of Michigan. He was a member of the International Jury of Award at the Paris Electrical Exposition, 1881, president of the Board of Judges in the Department of Electricity at the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893, member of the Jury of Award at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901; and an official delegate of the United States and vice-president of the Saint Louis International Electrical Congress in 1904. In 1905 he went with the British Association for the Advancement of Science, as an invited guest, to South Africa, traveled in the interior as far as Victoria Falls on the Zambesi, and sailed around the continent. Returning from South Africa, he attended in Berlin, by invitation, the Preliminary Conference on Electrical Units and Standards, and he was present as an official delegate from the United States, at the International Conference on Electrical Units and Standards held in London in October, 1908. Professor Carhart is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the American Electrochemical Society (of which he is ex-president), and the American Physical Society, and foreign member of the Institution of Electrical Engineers of Great Britain. He is author of various works on electricity and physics. He married in 1876, Ellen M. Soule. Address: Ann Arbor, Mich.

CARL, Katherine Augusta:

Artist; born in Louisiana; daughter of Francis Augustus Carl, Ph.D., LL.D., and Mary (Breadon) Carl. She was graduated from the State College of Tennessee, at Memphis, with the degree of M. A., and afterward studied art in Paris under Bouge-reau, Jean Paul Laurens and Gustave Courtois. She first exhibited in the Paris Societe des Artistes Francais in 1887, received honorable mention from that society in 1890, and was made an associate of the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts, Paris, in 1894. Miss Carl is a painter of portraits and figure paintings, and has painted many notable subjects, including Prince El Hadj and Mahomet Ali in Algiers in 1892, and also portraits of the late Empress Dowager of China in 1903-1904, in Peking, and various figures and groups which have been shown in numerous exhibitions. The Empress Dowager conferred upon her the orders of Officer of the Double Dragon and the Manchu Flaming Pearl. She wrote and illustrated an account of her life in the Imperial Palace of China which was published by the Century Company under the title of "With the Empress Dowager of China; and she has also contributed to the Century Magazines. Miss Carl is a member of the International Society of Women Artists, London, Societe Nationale des Beaux-Arts, Paris and of the Lyceum Clubs of London and Paris, and she was a member of the juries of fine arts in the Sections of Painting and of Applied Arts in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis in 1904. Address: 51 Washington Square, New York City.

CARL, William C.:

Concert organist; born in Bloomfield, N. J., March 2, 1865; son of Samuel Randolph and Mary Prudence (Crane) Carl. He was educated in the Bloomfield schools, and completed his musical education in Paris, France under M. Alexandre Guilmant (organ and theory), in Paris, France. For five seasons he was director of the Baton Club, for two seasons, director of the Gamut Club; was director, and for several seasons the chairman of the Membership Committee of the Manuscript Society in New York, and founded and since its organization, has been the chairman of the Membership Committee of American Guild of Organists. He is the organist and choirmaster of the First Presbyterian Church, and director of the Guilmant Organ School in New York. President of the Guilmant Club. Mr. Carl has made extensive organ tours in Europe and America, including three to the Pacific Coast, and one to Dawson City, in the Klondike, being the first concert organist to go to the far north, and has given over 130 organ concerts in the First Presbyterian Church in New York. He has appeared as soloist with many of the best orchestras and at music festivals, and displayed the great organ at the St. Louis Exposition for the jury of awards, besides giving a series of concerts there. He is author of several songs and organ arrangements, Master Studies for the Organ, Novelties for the Organ, Books I and II, Masterpieces for the Organ, and thirty Postludes for the Organ. Address: 34 West 12th Street, New York City.

CARLAND, John Emmet:

Jurist; born in Oswego County, N. Y., Dec. 11, 1853; son of Captain John Carland, of the United States Army. After a preliminary education in the schools of Corunna, Mich., he studied law, was admitted to the bar in 1875, and engaged in the general practice of the law in the Territory of Dakota. He became active in politics and the Statehood movement, and in May, 1885, he was appointed by President Cleveland to the office of United States attorney for Dakota Territory, which he held until appointed, by the same President, in March, 1888, associate justice of the Supreme Court of Dakota Territory. He was elected a member of the Constitutional Convention of North Dakota in 1889, and was chairman of the Judiciary Committee of that body, and in that capacity had much to do with the framing of the present Constitution of the State. He resumed the practice of law in South Dakota after the organization of that State, until his appointment by President Cleveland, Aug. 31, 1896, to his present office of United States district judge of the District of South Dakota. Judge Carland married at Bismarck Dak., Sept. 29, 1884, Albertine Knaack. Address: Sioux Falls, S. Dak.

CARLE, Richard:

Actor, playwright; born in Somerville, Mass., July 7, 1871. He was educated at the high school of Somerville, Mass., and began his stage career at the Bijou Theater, New York City, Sept. 20, 1891, playing in The Spring Chicken in 1906 and 1907, and in Mary's Lamb, 1908 and 1909. He is the author of the plays: Main'selle Awkins; The Tenderfoot; The Storks; The Mayor of Tokio; The Spring Chicken, and Mary's Lamb. Residence: 200 Riverside Drive, New York City.

CARLETON, Mark Alfred:

Cerealist, United States Department of Agriculture; born at Jerusalem, Ohio, March 7, 1866; son of Lewis D. and Lydia Jane (Mann) Carleton. He was graduated from the Kansas State Agricultural College as B.Sc. in 1887 and M.Sc. in 1893; was professor of natural history at Garfield University, 1889-1891; assistant botanist of the Kansas Agricultural Experiment Station, 1892-1894, and has been cerealist in the United States Department of Agriculture since 1894. He was agricultural explorer for the United States Department of Agriculture, 1898-1900, in Eastern Europe and Siberia; was in charge of the Government Grain Exhibit at the Paris Exposition in 1900; was on the International Jury of Awards of the Paris Exposition of 1900; and at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904. Professor Carleton established the Durum Wheat industry in this country, now valued at thirty-five million dollars annually. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Botanical Society of America, American Breeders' Association, Washington Botanical Society, Washington Biological Society, National Geographic Society, and he is Chevalier du Merite Agricole de France. He married at Perkins, Okla., Dec. 29, 1897, Amanda Elizabeth Faught, and they have three children. Address: United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

CARLETON, Will:

Author and lecturer; born in Hudson, Mich., Oct. 21, 1845; son of John H. and Celeste E. (Smith) Carleton. He was graduated from Hillsdale College with the degree of B.S., in June, 1869, and afterward received from it the degrees of A.M. and Litt.D. After his graduation he did newspaper work in Hillsdale for several years; then was on the staff of papers in Detroit and Chicago, became known as a poet, and has lectured and given author's readings through the United States, Great Britain and continental Europe. He is the editor of the illustrated magazine, Every Where, in Brooklyn, and president of the Every Where Publishing Co.; and is the author of: Farm Ballads; Farm Legends; Farm Festivals; City Ballads; City Legends; City Festivals; Rhymes of Our Planet; The Old Infant, and Similar Stories; Young Folks' Centennial Rhymes; Songs of Two Centuries (poems); Poems for Young Americans; In Old School Days; Drifted In; A Thousand Thoughts; and many magazine and newspaper articles. He is a member of the Authors' Club of New York City, and the Brooklyn University Club. Address: 444 Greene Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CARLISLE, James Henry:

President emeritus of Wofford College; born in Winnsboro, S. C., May 4, 1825. He graduated from South Carolina College in 1844, and received the degree LL.D. from the Southwestern University of Texas. He was professor of mathematics at Wofford College from 1854 to 1902, was president of that college, 1875-1902, and has been president emeritus since 1902. Dr. Carlisle was editor of the Lives of Ascham and Arnold and The Young Astronomer. In 1848 he married Margaret Jane Bryce, who died, 1891. Address: Spartanburg, S. C.

CARLISLE, John Griffin:

Lawyer, ex-secretary of the Treasury; born in Campbell County, Ky., Sept. 5, 1835. He received a common school education, and studied law with J. W. Stevenson and W. B. Kinkhead. He taught school for a time at Covington, Ky., before being admitted to the bar in 1858. He served one term in the Kentucky House of Representatives and one term as State Senator. He was a member of the Democratic National Convention in 1860; lieutenant-governor of Kentucky, 1871-1875; presidential elector in 1876; member of the United States House of Representatives, 1877-1890, and a member of the Committee on Ways and Means; was speaker of the House of Representatives from 1883 to 1889, and United States senator, succeeding James Beck, 1890-1893. He was secretary of the Treasury of the United States in the cabinet of President Cleveland, 1893-1897, and engaged in the practice of law in New York City from 1897 to 1907, when he removed to Washington, where his practice is largely before the Supreme Court of the United States. He married Jane Goodson, who died Aug. 4, 1905, and has two sons. Address: 1426 K Street, Washington, D. C.

CARMALT, William Henry:

Physician; born in Friendsville, Pa., Aug. 3, 1836; son of Caleb and Sarah (Price) Carmalt. He received his general education in boarding schools in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Virginia, was graduated from the Medical College of Columbia University in 1861, and received the honorary degree of A.M. from Yale in 1881. Dr. Carmalt practised in New York City, 1861-1869; studied in Germany, 1869-1874. He moved to New Haven in 1876, was professor of surgery in Yale University, 1881-1907, then resigned and was made professor emeritus. He is connected with the New Haven Hospital; has been president of the American Surgical Association and of the Connecticut State Medical Society; is secretary of the Congress of American Physicians and Surgeons, and is a member of several other medical organizations. Dr. Carmalt is a member of the Century Club of New York and president of the Graduates' Club in New Haven. He married at Stratford, Conn., Dec. 8, 1863, Laura Woolsey Johnson. Address: 87 Elm Street, New Haven, Conn.

CARMAN, (William) Bliss:

Journalist and poet; born in Fredericton, New Brunswick, April 15, 1861. He was graduated from the University of New Brunswick in 1881, took post-graduate study in the University of Edinburgh, 1882-1883, and at Harvard, 1886-1888. He studied law, practised civil engineering, taught school and was office editor of the New York Independent from 1890 to 1892. Mr. Carman is the author of: Low Tide on Grand Pre; A Sea-mark; Behind the Araras; Ballads of Lost Haven; By the Aurelian Wall; Songs from Vagabondia (with Richard Hovey); More Songs from Vagabondia (with same); Last Songs of Vagabondia (with same); St. Kavin, a Ballad; At Michaelmas; The Girl in the Poster; The Green Book of the Bards; The Vengeance of Noel Brassard; Ode on the Coronation of King Edward; From the Book of Myths; Pipes of Pan, Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4, and 5; Poems, Collected Edition (2 vols); Kinship of Nature; Friendship of Art; From the Book of Valentines. Address: Care L. C. Page and Company, Boston.

CARMER, Hermon A.:

Lawyer; born in Dryden, N. Y., April 14, 1858; son of Abram Chester and Sarah (Griswold) Carmer. He was educated in the Munro Collegiate Institute, Elbridge, N. Y., the University of Michigan, LL.B., 1883, National University Law Department, Washington, D. C., M.L., 1887. Mr. Carmer held a position as clerk in the Treasury Department at Washington, from April, 1886, to Nov., 1891, and since then has been engaged in the practice of law at Seneca Falls, N. Y., where he is a member of the law firm of Hawley & Carmer. He is a director and manager of the Water Works Company of Seneca Falls, N. Y., a trustee of Elmira College, and director of the Seneca Falls Historical Society. Mr. Carmer is a prominent Democrat of his city and section and was the candidate of his party for the State Senate in 1906. He is also prominent as a Presbyterian layman, and was a commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Los Angeles, Calif., in 1903. He married at Homer, N. Y., Oct. 10, 1886, Ella Rosa. Address: Seneca Falls, N. Y.

CARMICHAEL, Annie Darling Cole:

Composer, writer, artist; born in Portland, Me.; daughter of Charles Octavius

Cole, artist, of noble Huguenot ancestry, and of Mary Brackett (Smith) Cole, artist, poetess and singer, who was of Mayflower stock. The daughter displayed early a great love and genius for painting and music, and her mother became her first teacher. Her general education was received in Portland, at public and private schools; afterwards at Academy, Gorham, Me., and at Gorham Seminary, from both of which she was graduated with high rank in literature, the sciences and the languages, excelling in art, music and poetry; and in a later home in New York she studied pianoforte in New York City, as a favorite pupil of S. B. Mills, acquiring great proficiency as a pianiste. She was a member of the Portland Society of Art, and founder of the Brunswick and Topsham Musical Association. She married in New York City, in 1877, Professor Henry Carmichael, Ph.D. Mrs. Carmichael has been much occupied with musical composition, the writing of prose and poetry, and artistic work. Her musical works consist of compositions for various instruments, for large and small orchestras, songs, works for voice and orchestra, and the lyrics for the songs which she sets to music. Among these works, "Remembrance" (for orchestra, for violin or flute and piano, for 'cello and piano, and also for piano) was first publicly played at a popular concert of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, 1897 and 1908, receiving marked favor. This opus, and her idyl, "Sympathy" (violin or flute and orchestra) were given and most favorably received at the Maine Music festivals, 1899. "Sympathy" is also arranged for piano and for violin or flute and piano. Among her other compositions are: Gondellied; Love and Song for orchestra, also for piano; Twilight Voices (set of songs, among them a lullaby, entitled "Mother's Old Song," "O'er Loss of the Gains," "When Voices of Love," "O Wondrous Affection," "With Scent of Rose," "Evergreen Song," etc.), dedicated to her mother. Other important works are: "Dreams of Venice," suite, "The Dream Journey," set of pieces from book of moods; "Caprice Melancolique," "Aspiration," "Hope," "Content," "Constancy," etc.; The Shepherd's Love Life in two books, "Pastorale Romance" and "Pastorale Tone Poem," for voice and orchestra, or orchestra, or for voice and piano; A Symphonic poem, "Life," or the "Seasons," "The Loom," "The Weavers," Fancies; "The Invisible Fountains," "The Rose-colored Scarf," "Whispering Leaves," "Flower Children," Fancies of the Sea, "The Giant's Stairway," Studies of Sunset and Sunrise tone pictures. A versatile writer of numerous forms of composition, consisting of dreams, poetic fancies, pictures, inventions of the imagination, studies, impressions and moods of nature and of the heart. Those already played or known in Europe or America have made her beloved as a writer with the purest and highest ideals, the lover of nature and of humanity, who has done much for the uplifting and advancement of American art. Always sympathetically interested in the welfare and progress of others, Mrs. Carmichael, in addition to her artistic, literary and musical activities, has engaged actively in private and public charities, and in a successful movement for granting summer holidays to store clerks; is an active member of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Malden Boys' Industrial Club, Malden, and the Women's Guild of Workers for the Peabody Home for Crippled Children, Hyde Park, Boston, Mass. Her artistic home at Malden is noted for its literary gatherings, and its festivals of music and song. Address: "The Arches," Highland Terrace, Malden, Mass.

CARMICHAEL, Henry:

Chemist, metallurgist and educator; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 5, 1846; son of Daniel and Eliza (Otis) Carmichael. His father was a famous anti-slavery agitator, a railroad contractor and inventor, son of John and Nancy Carmichael, who came from Scotland to Philadelphia in the latter part of the Eighteenth Century; and Professor Carmichael's mother was a direct descendant from John Otis of Barnstable, Devonshire, England, who settled in Hingham, Mass., as early as 1635. He was graduated from Amherst College, with Phi Beta Kappa honors, in 1867, receiving the degrees of A.B. and A.M., and from the University of Göttingen, with the degree of Ph.D. in 1877. He was professor of chemistry in Iowa College, Grinnell, Iowa, 1871-1872, professor of chemistry in Bowdoin College and in the Maine Medical School, both at Brunswick, Me., 1872-1885. Since 1885 he has been engaged in private practice as analyst, assayer and chemical engineer in Boston, and he was for two years special lecturer in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston. Professor Carmichael has made numerous inventions which have been patented, and some of which have found extensive application. Among these may be mentioned Indurated Fibre, which is manufactured on an enormous scale in the form of tubs, pails, etc., also electrolytic apparatus and processes for the production of chlorine and caustic soda, and metallurgical processes for extraction of metals, and carbonating apparatus. He has been connected as an expert chemist with the North Metropolitan Sewage Commission, the Boston Rapid Transit Commission, United Indurated Fibre Company, Carmichael Reduction Company, New England Static Carbonating Company, and is an officer in many industrial corporations; and he has served as expert in many important patent and other legal proceedings. He has made geological trips in Germany, Italy and Switzerland, and mineralogical, and mining expeditions in the United States generally, in British Columbia, and in the provinces of Ontario, Nova Scotia, etc. He is a member of the American Chemical Society, American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Institute of Mining Engineers, the Society of Chemical Industry, and other scientific and technical organizations. Professor Carmichael married in New York City, in 1877, Amie Darling Cole, musician, writer and artist. Residence: "The Arches," Highland Terrace, Malden, Mass. Office: 15 Exchange Street, Boston, Mass.

CARPENTER, Fanny Hallock:

Lawyer; born in Rainbow, Conn.; daughter of Rev. Thomas H. and Eliza (Hal-lock) Rouse. She was educated in Mills Seminary (now College) in California, and the New York University Law School, whence she was graduated with the degree of LL.B. After growing up in California and spending her late girlhood in the Hawaiian Islands she came East and she married in West Winsted, Conn., Sept. 3, 1880, Philip Carpenter, living for the first few years of married life in New Hampshire, and since then in New York City. Mrs. Carpenter was admitted to the bar of the State of New York in 1897, and practised law continuously for five years. She has been active in club work and has made many public addresses, some of which have been published, and also has published a few poems and several magazine articles. She is president of Sorosis, ex-president of the National Society of New England Women, the Woman Lawyers' Club and the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs; is a director of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, director of the Women's Bar Association of the City of New York; member of the Mills College Alumnae Association, the New York Law School Alumni Association, Woman's Press, National Arts and National California Clubs, and is honorary member of the New York Daughters of 1812. Mrs. Carpenter has been an extensive traveler in the United States, Canada, Mexico, Europe and the Hawaiian Islands. She is of old New England lineage, being granddaughter on her mother's side of Leavitt Hallock of Amherst, Mass., and of Elizabeth Snell, who was a daughter of Squire Ebenezer Snell of Plainfield, own cousin of William Cullen Bryant, the Snells being direct descendants of John and Priscilla Alden, from whom Mrs. Carpenter is the tenth generation. Her father's family, the Rouses, are related to the Dewey, Breckinridge and Henderson families, all of Vermont. Address: "Graywings," Van Cortlandt Terrace, Yonkers, N. Y.

CARPENTER, Frank George:

Journalist; born in Mansfield, Ohio, May 8, 1855. He was graduated from Wooster University in 1877, and began newspaper work in 1879 as legislative correspondent for the Cleveland Leader at Columbus, Ohio. He spent the year of 1881 in European and Egyptian travel; was the Washington correspondent for the Cleveland Leader in 1882; for the American Press Association in 1884, and for the New York World in 1887. In the years 1888 and 1889 he made a trip around the world for a newspaper syndicate and the Cosmopolitan Magazine, and made subsequent newspaper trips to Mexico in 1891, to Russia, Germany and England in 1892, and to China, Japan and Korea in 1894. He spent the year 1898 in South America, traveling about 25,000 miles, and the year 1900 was spent in the Philippines, China, Java, Australia and New Zealand. He made a newspaper tour in 1902 to investigate American "commercial invasion" in England, France, Germany, Russia, Holland, Belgium, Norway, Sweden, Denmark; thence, in 1905, to Panama, Cuba, and Canada, and a part of 1906 and 1907 was spent in Africa. He is the author of: Carpenter's Geographical Readers—Asia; North America; South America; Europe; Australia; Our Colonies and other Islands of the Seas; Africa; Through Asia with the Children; Through North America with the Children; Social, Industrial and Political South America; Foods, or how the World is Fed; and of the popular syndicate newspaper articles on travel used by the leading Sunday papers. Mr. Carpenter married Joanna D. Condict at Mansfield, Ohio, Jan. 10, 1883. Address: 1318 Vermont Avenue, Washington, D. C.

CARPENTER, Louis George:

Irrigation engineer and expert; born in Orion, Mich., March 28, 1861. After graduating from the Michigan Agricultural College in 1879, and taking post-graduate courses in engineering and science at the University of Michigan and at Johns Hopkins, he became an instructor in Michigan Agricultural College for eight years; and in Colorado, since 1888, is director of the Colorado Experiment Station and has been employed by the United States Department of Agriculture as irrigation expert. He has been consulting engineer and irrigation expert in several State Irrigation Suits, and notably the Kansas-Colorado case, also on many important dams and hydraulic enterprises. He was appointed on the Irrigation Commission of British Columbia, 1907-1908, preparing a report on the line to be followed in the code of water laws, afterwards enacted into law; State engineer of Colorado, 1903-1905, having charge of the water administration; and was arbitrator in the Colorado Springs Lighting controversy, notable for the number of famous experts appearing to testify. He is on the editorial staff of the Standard Dictionary, has assisted in editing the Annual Report of the American Society of Irrigation Engineers, of which he was president, and has written extensively on subjects relating to engineering and prepared many bulletins and reports on irrigation. Mr. Carpenter is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; a member of the British Association; a member and officer of the American Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education; member of the American Society for Testing Materials, etc. In 1895 he was decorated by the French Government as Chevalier du Mérite Agricole, and was awarded a gold medal by the Paris Exposition for his researches in regard to agriculture and irrigation. He married at Lansing, Mich., Feb. 17, 1887, Mrs. Mary J. C. Merrell. Address: Fort Collins, Colo.

CARPENTER, Philip:

Lawyer; born at Bath, N. H., March 9, 1856; son of Alonzo P. and Julia R. (Goodall) Carpenter. Alonzo P. Carpenter, the father, was justice of the New Hampshire Supreme Court for many years, and for the last few years before his death in 1898 was chief justice. Mr. Carpenter was prepared at St. Johnsbury Academy, St. Johnsbury, Vt., and was graduated from Dartmouth College with the class of 1877, with the degree of A.B., and was class historian. Following his graduation he studied law, and was admitted to the New Hampshire bar Sept. 2, 1880, and practised at Lancaster, N. H., for five years, then removing to New York City, where he has practised law ever since, attaining distinction at the metropolitan bar. He was judge advocate general of New Hampshire, 1885-1886, and assistant district attorney of New York County in 1897. Mr. Carpenter is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the New York State Bar Association, the Society of Medical Jurisprudence and the Law Institute, and is also a member of the New Hampshire Historical Society, the Dartmouth Association in New York, the New Hampshire Society of New York, and the Delta Kappa Epsilon Association of New York. He is a Republican in politics. He is a member of the Union League, Republican, West Side Republican, National Arts and the Dartmouth Clubs of New York City. Mr. Carpenter married at West Winsted, Conn., Sept. 3, 1880, Fanny Hallock Rouse. Residence: Van Cortlandt Terrace, Yonkers, N. Y. Office: 111 Broadway, New York City.

CARPENTER, William L.:

Jurist; born at Orion, Oakland County, Mich., Nov. 9, 1854; son of Charles K. and Jennette (Coryell) Carpenter. His early education was received in the schools of Oakland County, and he afterward entered the Agricultural College of Michigan, from which he was graduated as B.S. in the class of 1875. He followed with the law course at the University of Michigan, from which he was graduated LL.B. in 1878. He was admitted to the bar of Michigan, and engaged in general law practice at Detroit until elected, in 1894, judge of the Wayne Circuit Court, at Detroit. He served in that capacity until Nov., 1902, when he was elected one of the justices of the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan. He resigned from the bench Sept. 15, 1908, and resumed the practice of law in Detroit as a member of the firm of Stevenson, Carpenter & Butzel. Judge Carpenter has also been, since July, 1902, president of the Detroit College of Law. He is a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, and of the Detroit Club. Judge Carpenter married in Detroit, Oct. 15, 1885, Elizabeth C. Ferguson. They have two children. Residence: 36 Delaware Avenue. Office: Ford Building, Detroit, Mich.

CARNEGIE, Andrew:

Manufacturer and philanthropist; born in Dunfermline, Scotland, Nov. 25, 1835. He came to the United States in 1845 and attended school a few years in Pittsburg, and in after life received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Glasgow in 1905, and from the University of Pennsylvania, Aberdeen, and Edinburgh in 1906. As a boy he attended a small stationary engine, but soon became a telegraph messenger for the Atlantic and Ohio Telegraph Company, and later operator and clerk in the office of the superintendent and manager of the telegraph lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Pittsburg. While there he made acquaintance of Mr. Woodruff, the inventor of the sleeping car, and joined with him in the enterprise, which proved successful. He became superintendent of the Pittsburg Division of the Pennsylvania Railroad; was successful in a venture at Oil Creek, and in the founding of a rolling-mill, from which grew his immense control of iron and steel industries: the Edgar Thompson Steel Works; the Pittsburg Bessemer Steel Works, the Lucy Furnaces, Union Iron Mills, Keystone Bridge Works, the Hartman Steel Works, Frick Coke Company, Scotia Ore Mines, etc., all now merged in the United States Steel Corporation, of the bonds of which he is the largest owner. Mr. Carnegie founded the Pittsburg Institute; has given over forty million dollars for fifteen hundred libraries, and large sums for other philanthropic works; these include ten million dollars to the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburg, five million dollars to New York for the establishment of branch libraries, ten million dollars to the Carnegie Institution at Washington, ten million dollars to Scotch universities, five million dollars to the fund for employees of the Carnegie Steel Company. He was elected lord rector of the University of St. Andrew, Edinburgh, in 1902. Mr. Carnegie has more recently been especially active in movements for the promotion of peace among the nations and furnished funds for the building of a home for the Permanent Court of Arbitration at the Hague, and a building for the home of the Bureau of American Republics in Washington. He has received from the French Government the decoration of Commander of the Légion d'Honneur. He is author of: An American Four-in-Hand in Britain; Round the World; Fifty Years' March of the Republic; also various articles on the labor question. He is a member of the Union League, Authors, Engineers', Lotos and other clubs. Mr. Carnegie married in New York City, in 1887, Louise Whitfield, and has a daughter. Address: 21 E. 91st Street, New York City.

CARR, Camillo Cassatti Cadmus:

Brigadier-general U. S. A. (retired); born in Harrisonburg, Rockingham County, Va., March 3, 1842. He entered the Chicago University in 1859, and left in his senior year before graduating to enter the army, and in 1873, at this same college, he received the honorary degree of A.M. He served as a private in the Civil War and rose to the rank of brigadier-general. For over twenty years he campaigned in the Indian country; was assistant instructor and instructor of cavalry in the United States Infantry and Cavalry School at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; and inspector-general of the Department of Columbia. In 1898 and 1899 he was in command of the western part of Porto Rico; later commanding a regiment in the Philippines, and in 1901 was commandant at the School of Application for Cavalry and Field Artillery, Fort Riley, Kan. He was commandant of the Department of Missouri, soon after being transferred to the Department of Dakota, and was retired by operation of law in 1906. General Carr is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, the Society of the Army of the Potomac, Society of the War of 1812, Grand Army of the Republic, etc. He has contributed to military journals, and translated from the French, Cavalry Outpost Duties. In 1878 he married Mrs. Marie C. Camp (now deceased). Address: 1338 Washington Boulevard, Chicago.

CARR, Clark E.:

Lawyer; born in Boston Corners, Erie County, N. Y., May 20, 1836; son of Clark M. and Delia Ann (Torrey) Carr. He went to school at Springfield, not far from his native town, then studied at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill. He then took up the study of law in a law office, and was afterwards graduated from the Albany Law School at Albany, N. Y.; and he has received the degree of LL.D. from Knox College. When the Civil War began, he became colonel on Governor Yates' staff. He practised law for many years at Galesburg, but is now retired from practice. He is a strong member of the Republican party and has been exceedingly active, having spoken in nearly every Northern State, and in every political campaign, for a period of fifty-one years back. He has been a delegate to two National Conventions, was postmaster at Galesburg, Ill., for twenty-four years, and was United States minister to Denmark from 1889 to 1893. He is author of: The Illini, of Lincoln at Gettysburg; My Day and Generation; History of the Postal Railway Service. Mr. Carr was married at Mt. Carroll, Ill., Dec. 31, 1873, to Grace Mills. Address: Galesburg, Ill.

CARR, Gene:

Caricaturist, illustrator for magazines; born in New York, Jan. 7, 1881. He was educated at public school No. 1, in New York, but never studied art. In 1894 he was employed on the New York Recorder, and afterwards on the New York Herald, Philadelphia Times, New York Journal and since 1903, he has been employed on the New York World. He created the comic series, Lady Bountiful, Phyllis, Romeo, All the Comforts of Home, Willie Wise, Home, Sweet Home, Reddy and Carnso, Prodigal Son and the Step Brothers. On Aug. 22, 1906, he married Helen Stilwell, artist and writer. Residence: Redbank, N. J. Address: Care New York World, New York.

CARR, William John:

Jurist; born in Brooklyn, Oct. 10, 1862; son of Cornelius and Mary (Gallagher)

Carr. He was graduated from the College of St. Francis Xavier, in New York City, A.B., 1882 and Villanova College, Pennsylvania, conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. in 1905. He was admitted to the bar of the State of New York in Sept., 1884; served as a clerk in the Supreme Court in Kings County, 1891-1892; U. S. commissioner, 1893-1894; assistant corporation counsel of the City of New York, 1892-1902. He was elected, in 1906, a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the Second Judicial District, for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. He is a member of the Brooklyn, Montauk and Riding and Driving Clubs. He married in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 12, 1887, Julia M. Fryer, and they have six children. Address: 831 Carroll Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CARRÈRE, John Merven:

Architect; born in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Nov. 8, 1858, of American parents. He was educated in Europe, graduating from the École des Beaux Arts, at Paris, in 1882. He is in partnership with Thomas Hastings, forming the firm of Carrère and Hastings. He has designed many important buildings, including the New York Public Library, the new National Academy of Design, also the Alcazar and Ponce de Léon Hotels at St. Augustine, Fla. Mr. Carrère is a member of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects and has been twice president, and is also a founder and twice president of the Beaux Arts Society of New York City, a delegate to Fine Arts Federation and a member of the Architectural League of New York. He is a member of the Century, Players', Apawamis Golf, City and Richmond County Country Clubs. Mr. Carrère married, in 1886, Marion Dell, and they have two children. Residence: 101 E. Sixty-fifth Street. Address: 225 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

CARRINGTON, Fitz-Roy:

Dealer in engravings and etchings; born in Surbiton, Surrey, England, Nov. 6, 1869. He was educated at Bute House, Petersham, England, and Victoria College, Jersey, Channel Islands. He came to the United States in 1886 and for one year was a farmer at Hastings, Minn. In 1888-1889 he was on the railway survey of the Great Northern Railway, and gave up that position to work for Harrington Beard (fine arts), in Minneapolis until 1892, when he became a clerk and salesman; with Frederick Keppel & Co., for whom he later became general manager, and since 1899 he has been a partner and is now treasurer, a director and general manager of Frederick Keppel and Company. He has edited, arranged and written introductions for various artistic books, including: Dante's The New Life (translation and pictures by Rossetti); The Queen's Garland (Elizabethan verse); Songs and Sonnets by Richard Lovelace; The Apocalypse (designs by Albert Durer); The Kings Lyrics (Temp. James I and Charles I); The Pilgrim's Staff (sacred verse chiefly 17th Century); The Shepherd's Pipe (pastoral verse, mainly of the 17th Century); Pictures and Poems (Rossetti); Pictures of Romance and Wonder; St. George and the Dragon; The Doom of King Aërisius, by William Morris; and The Song of Songs. He married, Feb. 24, 1897, Charlotte Austen Singleton. Residence: Mamaronck, N. Y. Office: 4 East 39th Street, New York City.

CARRINGTON, Henry Beebee:

Brigadier General, U. S. Army, retired, teacher, lawyer and historian; born in Wallingford, Conn., March 2, 1824; son of Miles M. and Mary (Beebee) Carrington; grandson of James Carrington, noted inventor, partner of Eli Whitney, in making rifles for the United States at Whitneyville, Conn.; great-grandson of Rev. James Beebee (Yale 1745) who served under General Amherst in French and Indian War, 1757-1789; great-grandson of Caleb Atwater, President of the Connecticut Land Company that laid out "New Connecticut" as the "Western Reserve." He was at school at Torrington, Conn., 1836, when John Brown, from New Hartford, nearby, pledged the school boys, on reaching manhood, to fight human slavery; was graduated from Yale, B.A., 1845, and M.A., 1848; taught science and classics at Irving Institute, Tarrytown, N. W., 1846-1847; instituted military drill; was led by

W. Irving to take up Revolutionary History; at Yale Law School, 1847-1848, teaching also at Root's Institute. He received the LL.D. degree from Wabash College, 1873. He moved to Columbus, Ohio, and while there was law partner of William Dennison until 1861. He was an anti-slavery Whig in politics; was on the Resolutions Committee of the Fusion Convention, July 13, 1854, and chairman of the Special State Committee towards other states to fuse as a National party (the Republican). He was a special railroad and corporation attorney; was elder and superintendent of Sunday school of the Second Presbyterian Church of Columbus, and founded the first Young Men's Christian Association west of Pittsburgh, and was a trustee of Marietta College. During the illness of U. S. District Judge Leavitt, he was selected by the Ohio bar, to act as Commissioner pro hac vice, in admiralty cases; and was afterward a member of the U. S. Supreme Court Bar. He was adjutant-general under Governors Chase and Dennison, and escorted the Legislatures of Kentucky and Tennessee, from Cincinnati, to Columbus; also the Prince of Wales, and Mr. Lincoln on 52d birthday from Indiana to Columbus. On April 11, 1861, he declared war as begun, and moved the State Militia into West Virginia; organized the first 26 regiments of Ohio Volunteers, May 14, 1861, and was appointed colonel of the 18th U. S. Infantry. On July 1st, he organized Camp Thomas, for instruction and recruiting four three-Battalion regiments at the west; moved the 1st Battalion of the 16th, and 2d Battalion of the 18th Infantry, to support General Thomas at Lebanon, Ky., assigned to command a brigade of the 18th, with the 9th and 35th Ohio and 2d Minnesota Volunteers; ordered by War Department to resume recruiting service. On Bragg's Kentucky invasion, he was ordered to Indiana, as State recruiting superintendent; placed 20 regiments in Kentucky, in twelve days, and organized 100,000 Indiana Volunteers. He commanded District and Draft Rendezvous, broke up disloyal societies, rejoined the Army of the Cumberland, and in 1865 was sent with the 18th Infantry, recruited to full strength, to the frontier; commanded in Nebraska; in May, 1866, was sent to open road to Montana; had 51 fights with Indians; lost party of 80 in Fetterman massacre through disobedience of commanding officer; wounded in later skirmish; on leave one year; commanded Fort Sedgwick, Colo., 1868-1869; military professor, Wabash College, Ind., 1869-1878, and retired from active service because of renewed trouble with the former wound, Dec. 1870. In 1875, he was admitted to the British and French archives of the Revolutionary War; called from Paris by the British War Department, to see test of the first 81-ton gun, at Woolwich, England. He became a member of the British Association of Science, 1875; made treaty with Flathead Indians, Mont., 1889, took the census of the Six Nations, N. Y., and Cherokees, N. C., in 1870, and moved the Flathead Indians to Jocko Reservation, Montana. 1891. General Carrington is a life member, of the American Historical Society, Army of the Cumberland, Loyal Legion, and various historical and educational societies; and was a delegate from Massachusetts Department, Grand Army of the Republic to the National Conventions 1894-1895 and 1903-1909. He is author of: Battles of the American Revolution; Battle Maps and Charts (42) of the American Revolution; The Six Nations; Washington the Soldier; The Washington Obelisk and its Voices; The Patriotic Reader; Columbian Selections; Beacon Lights of Patriotism; Christopherus, the Christ Bearer; Absaraka, or Land of Massacre; Crisis Thoughts, etc; editor of F. S. Smith's Poems, Home and Country, and he has in preparation: Lafayette and American Independents, with maps; Exodus of the Flatheads; Rentvale and Other Poems, and Civil War Reminiscences, as well as contributions to magazines. Address: Hyde Park, Mass.

CARROLL, B. F.:

Governor of Iowa. He has long been active in the political affairs of Iowa, and was auditor of the State in 1908, when nominated by the Republican State Convention for the office of governor, to which he was in November, 1908, elected for the term expiring in January, 1911. Address: Des Moines, Iowa.

CARROLL, Howard:

Journalist, author; born in Albany, N. Y., in 1854. He was educated in the public schools of New York City, Hanover, Germany, and Geneva, Switzerland. He was connected with the New York Times for many years as reporter and special correspondent; then went into business, and is now vice-president of the Starin Transportation Company, and president of the Sicilian Asphalt Paving Company. He served as chief of artillery of the State of New York from 1895-1898, and inspector-general of the New York troops in the Spanish-American War. He is a Republican in politics and was a candidate for Congress from the State at large; and he has been a delegate three times to National Republican Conventions. Mr. Carroll is author of: A Mississippi Incident; Twelve Americans. Their Lives and Times; The American Countess (play), etc. He married Caroline Starin, and they have three children. Residence: 9 West Thirty-eighth Street. Address: 41 Park Row, New York City.

CARROLL, John Lee:

Ex-governor of Maryland; born at Homewood, a suburb of Baltimore, Sept. 30, 1830. He is a great-grandson of Charles Carroll of Carrollton, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and he was educated in Georgetown College, Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., and at Harvard Law School. He was admitted to the Maryland bar in 1851, and engaged in practice, and has been prominent in the affairs of his native State. He was elected to the State Senate as a Democrat in 1867 and reelected in 1871, and in 1875 he was elected governor of the State of Maryland, serving from 1876-1880. Governor Carroll is president-general of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution. His first wife, who was Anita Phelps, died in 1873, and he afterward married Mary Carter Thompson, of Staunton, Va., whose father, Hon. Lucas P. Thompson, was a well-known Virginia jurist. Address: Doughoregan Manor, Ellicott City, Md.

CARROLL, John P.:

Roman Catholic bishop; born in Dubuque, Iowa, Feb. 22, 1864; son of Martin and Catherine (O'Farrell) Carroll. He was educated at St. Raphael's Parochial School, and St. Joseph's College, Dubuque, until 1883, and at the Grand Seminary of Montreal Canada, until 1889, when he graduated with the degree of D.D. He was ordained priest on July 7, 1889, appointed professor of mental philosophy, in St. Joseph's College, Dubuque, Sept. 12, 1889, and became president of that college, Sept. 12, 1894. He was appointed bishop of Helena, Sept. 12, 1904, and consecrated Dec. 21, 1904. Address: Helena, Mont.

CARROLL, Mitchell:

Philologist, author and educator; born in Wake Forest, N. C., June 2, 1870; son of Rev. John L. Carroll, D.D., an eminent Baptist divine. After graduation from Richmond College, Virginia, in 1888, with the degree of A.M., he pursued graduate studies in classical philology in Johns Hopkins University, receiving the degree of Ph. D. in 1893, and in the Universities of Leipzig and Berlin, 1893-1894. After filling the chair of Greek at Richmond College for two years, he went to the American School of Classical Studies at Athens, Greece, for a year returning in 1898 to Johns Hopkins University, where he was reader in classical archaeology until 1899, when he took his present chair of classical philology in the George Washington University at Washington. Professor Carroll is a contributor to philological and archaeological publications and is author of: "Aristotle's Poetics in the Light of the Homeric Scholia," and "Greek Women;" joint author of "Early Christian Women;" and is associate editor of The World's Orators, collaborating on The Orators of the Early and Medieval Church and The Orators of Ancient Greece. He edited The Attica of Pausanias, in the College Series of Greek Authors, with introduction, notes and excursuses. Dr. Carroll is a member of the American Philological Association, and the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and is secretary of the Archaeological Institute of America. Address: Cleveland Park, Washington, D. C.

CARROLL, Royal Phelps:

Yachtsman; born in New York City, Oct. 29, 1862; son of Governor John Lee Carroll and Anita (Phelps) Carroll. He was graduated from Harvard College, in 1885, receiving the degree of A.B. In 1894 his yacht Navahoe participated in the important European regattas, and in the race for the Brenton Reef Cup, defeated the celebrated Britannia, owned by the Prince of Wales. Mr. Carroll is a member of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, also a member of the Union, Racquet, Knickerbocker, New York Yacht, Larchmont Yacht, and Seawanhaka-Corinthian Yacht Clubs, the Automobile Club of America, the Turf and Field, Ardsley and Porcelain Clubs of New York City; the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C., and the Eastern Yacht Club of Boston. He married in 1891, Marion, daughter of Eugene Langdon, of New York City, and they have one daughter. Residence: 41 East 49th Street, New York City. Summer residence: Newport, R. I.

CARRUTH, (Fred) Hayden:

Journalist and author; born near Lake City, Minn., Oct. 31, 1862; son of Oliver Powers and Mary (Veeder) Carruth. He attended the schools of his native place and the University of Minnesota, from which he went into newspaper work in Minneapolis. From there he went to Estelline, S. Dak., where he conducted the local paper, the Estelline Bell, the bright and witty stories of which were widely copied and circulated. He came to New York in 1888 as editorial writer for the New York Tribune, continuing until 1892, and then engaging in literary work. He was editor of the Editor's Drawer Department of Harper's Magazine, 1900-1902, and has been literary editor of The Woman's Home Companion since May, 1905. Mr. Carruth has contributed to The Century and Harper's magazines, The Youth's Companion, Saturday Evening Post, Collier's Weekly and other periodicals and is author of The Adventures of Jones, 1895; The Voyage of the Rattletrap, 1897; Mr. Milo Bush and Other Worthies, Their Recollections, 1899. Residence: Tarrytown, N. Y. Office: 11 East 24th St., New York City.

CARSE, David Bradley:

Consulting engineer; born at Jeffersonville, Ind., Dec. 1, 1862; son of Thomas and Matilda (Bradley) Carse. He was educated in the Chicago public schools, and the University of Illinois. He was resident engineer on the construction of the Sixty-eighth Street Water Supply Tunnel of Chicago in 1883; resident engineer of the Construction Works of the United States Rolling Stock Company, Hegewisch, Ill., 1884-1885; president of the Black Diamond Coal Mining Company, of Denver, Colo., 1886, of the Racine Cement and Pipe Company of Racine, Wis., 1888-1894, of the Carse Brothers Company, Chicago, from 1897-1903, and member of the Advisory Committee of the United States Steel Corporation, 1902-1907. He is president and director of Carse Brothers Company of Chicago and of David B. Carse and Company, of New York; director of the Central Foundry Company. Mr. Carse is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Electro-Chemical Society, the Royal Arcanum, and the Presbyterian Union, also of the New York Yacht Club and the Chicago Athletic Association. He married at Cleveland, Oct. 4, 1899, Marguerite Switzer, and they have four children. Residence: 215 Palisade Avenue, Yonkers, N. Y. Address: 12 Broadway, New York City.

CARSE, John Bradley:

Member of the Advisory Committee of the United States Steel Corporation: born at Jeffersonville, Ind., Sept. 1864; son of Thomas and Matilda (Bradley) Carse. He was graduated from Williams College with the degree of A. B., 1886, and he was director and official in several corporations in Chicago up to 1903, when he removed to New York City; and he was located in business in England from 1895-1897. Mr. Carse is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, the Illinois Society of New York, and the University, Railroad, St. Andrew's Golf, Chicago Athletic and Chicago Yacht Clubs. The American Academy of Political and Social Science, and director of the Young Men's Christian Association of the City of New York. He married in Chicago, in 1896, Anna Reed Williams, and they have had two sons of whom one is now deceased. Residence: Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y. Office: 71 Broadway, New York City.

CARSON, Hampton Lawrence:

Former attorney-general of Pennsylvania; born in Philadelphia, Feb. 21, 1852; son of Dr. Joseph Carson, long professor of materia medica in the University of Pennsylvania. He was graduated as A.B., 1871, A.M. and LL.B., 1874, from the University of Pennsylvania; and he received the degree of LL.D. from Lafayette College in 1898, and the same degree from the Western University in 1904 and from the University of Pennsylvania in 1905. He was admitted to the bar of Philadelphia in 1874, and soon took a prominent place at the bar. He has argued cases in every branch of the United States Courts, and in the Supreme Courts of Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey and other States. He was prominently connected with the trials of various bank cases in the Federal Courts, one of which was the first of its kind to reach the Supreme Court of the United States, and has become a leading case; and he was the leading counsel in a case in the Supreme Court of the United States, which involved the rights of the Indian tribes in Oklahoma, known as the Lone Wolf Case. He was the special representative of the American Bar Association at the gathering of the English and French bars at Montreal, and was invited to speak before the bench and bar of England in London, at the banquet to Labori, who defended Dreyfus and Zola. He was appointed attorney-general of Pennsylvania by Governor Pennypacker, Jan. 20, 1903. He is author of: Law of Criminal Conspiracies; A History of the Celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Promulgation of the Constitution of the United States; History of the Supreme Court of the United States; and is now engaged in writing the history of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and a life of Lord Mansfield. For many years he was a professor of the law of contracts and sales in the law department of the University of Pennsylvania. He is a member of the Philadelphia Law Association, the American Philosophical Society, the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, and the Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of the Revolution. Residence: 1033 Spruce Street, Philadelphia. Office address: 1336 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

CARSON, Howard Adams:

Civil and consulting engineer. Mr. Carson, who is a native of Westfield, Mass., was graduated in 1869 from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the Civil Engineering course with the degree of B.S. He has the honorary degree of A.M. from Harvard University. His professional career has been as follows: 1870, appointed assistant engineer for a coal mining and iron manufacturing company in western Pennsylvania; 1871, appointed assistant engineer on the construction of the Providence Water Works; 1873, placed in charge of the construction of the Providence sewers; winter of 1877-1878, in Europe studying various sewerage systems; 1878, appointed principal superintendent of construction on the Boston Main Drainage; from 1884, in general practice as civil and consulting engineer; 1887, made the design for the North Metropolitan and Charles River Valley Sewerage Systems for the State of Massachusetts, and in 1889 was appointed chief engineer of the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission, having charge of constructing the said sewerage system; August, 1894, was appointed chief engineer of the Boston Transit Commission and had charge of constructing the Boston Subway, the East Boston Tunnel under Boston Harbor, the Washington-street Tunnel, and is now in charge of constructing the tunnel under Beacon Hill for the Cambridge Connection. He has been consulted concerning works in various parts of the country and is now consulting engineer on the Detroit River R. R. Tunnel. He was president of the Alumni Association of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for four years and is now a trustee of that institution. He has been president of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers. His published writings have been mainly reports on engineering subjects, including somewhat extensive annual reports as Chief Engineer of the two above-mentioned Commissions and he has also written an article on Tunneling for the London Times edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica. Address: Boston Transit Commission, Boston, Mass.

CARSON, John Miller:

Chief of the Bureau of Manufacturers, Department of Commerce and Labor; born in Philadelphia, June 18, 1838; son of Thomas and Jane Carson. He was educated in the schools of Philadelphia, afterward served several years as a compositor in a printing office, and then became a reporter on Philadelphia dailies until 1861 when he entered the Union service as lieutenant in the 27th Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, from which he was honorably discharged as captain in 1864. Resumed his newspaper career with Philadelphia newspapers until 1873; when he removed to Washington and was night editor of the National Republican, 1873-1874; assistant Washington correspondent 1874-1877, and chief of the Washington Bureau, 1877-1882, of the New York Times; chief of the Washington Bureau, Philadelphia Public Ledger, 1877-1902, and after that chief of the consolidated bureaus of the Philadelphia Public Ledger and the New York Times, until 1905, when he was appointed to his present office as chief of the Bureau of Manufacturers of the Department of Commerce and Labor. In that capacity he is in charge of the special investigation of foreign market conditions, and of the dissemination of information relating thereto gathered by the Bureau of Manufactures by special agents and the Consular Service. Mr. Carson assisted in formulating the Kelley tariff act of 1883, and the McKinley act of 1890, when he served as clerk of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives. He was one of the founders of the Gridiron Club, became its first president and was again chosen its president in 1905. He is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion. He married, Nov. 28, 1861, Annie L. Miller. Residence: 1332 Vermont Avenue. Office: Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C.

CARTER, Arabella:

Journalist: born at Byberry, Pa., July 12, 1867, daughter of Elmer and Rebecca I. (Kirk) Carter. She was educated at the Byberry Friends' School and afterward in Swathmore College, where her health failed and she was kept at home for some years. Later she turned to writing and she was graduated in journalism at Haven College, Philadelphia, in 1899. For years she has been a frequent contributor to papers, was sometime editor of the Hospital Messenger, and Managing Editor of the Berean Record, both of Philadelphia and now being managing editor of The Peacemaker, organ of the Universal Peace Union, Philadelphia, of which organization she has been a trustee; and the business manager since Jan., 1900. Her early writings were signed with the pen-name, Minnie Moss, but more recently she has assumed the pseudonym of "Auntie Belle" when writing for children. She is an active member of the Society of Friends, and for years has been secretary of the General Conference of Friends' Associations, with over forty-five locals comprising the membership. Two years ago she was made secretary of the Philanthropic Section of Friends' General Conference. She is a member of the Woman's Suffrage Society of Philadelphia, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Bensalem, Pa.; secretary of the Pennsylvania Peace Society; secretary of the Old Pupils Association of Byberry Friends' School; honorary member of the Rhode Island Editors' and Writers' Club, 1900, an honorary member of the Writers' Club of San Francisco. Address: 1305 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

CARTER, Ernest Trow:

Musical director and composer; born in Orange, N. J., Sept. 3, 1866; son of Aaron and Sarah Swift (Trow) Carter. He was graduated from Princeton University in 1888 as A.B. with the Philosophical Oration, and from Columbia University, receiving in 1889 the degree of M.A. in the School of Political Science, and studying from 1888-1891 in the Law School; and he was engaged in musical studies in Berlin, Germany, 1894-1898. Mr. Carter was admitted to the Bar of New York State in 1891, and was a member of the law firm of Fisher and Carter, with William P. Fisher, 1892-1894. He was lecturer on music, organist and choirmaster of Princeton University, 1899-1901. Mr. Carter is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and the Musical Mutual Protective Union of New York; member of the Adirondack League, of which he was seven years trustee, and is trustee of the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks, being a devotee to forestry and woods life. He is a member of the American Forestry Association, the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, and Brown's Tract Guides' Association; and has membership in the University, Princeton, and National Arts Clubs New York City, and the Nassau and Ivy Clubs of Princeton, N. J. He is a member and district captain of the Citizens' Union of New York City; is an Independent Democrat in politics, and a Presbyterian in religious faith. He married in New York City, Sept. 29, 1891, Laura Hoe, and they have three children. Residence: 150 West 58th Street. Office, 55 West 33d Street, New York City.

CARTER, George Roberts:

Governor of the Territory of Hawaii; born in Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, Dec. 28, 1866; son of H. A. P. Carter and S. A. (Judd) Carter. He was graduated from Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., in 1885, and from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale, in the civil engineering course, in 1888. He was a member of the varsity football team and crew while at Yale. He was a member of the Hawaiian Senate, 1901-1903, and in 1902 visited Washington at the President's request. He was secretary of the Territory of Hawaii from February to November, 1903, and since Nov. 23, 1903, has been governor of that Territory. He is a Republican in politics. He married in Rochester, N. Y., April 19, 1892, Helen Strong. Address: Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii.

CARTER, Orrin N.:

Lawyer; born in Jefferson County, N. Y., Jan. 2, 1854; son of Benajah and Isabel (Cole) Carter. He was but ten years of age when his parents removed to DuPage County, Ill., where he completed his early education in the public schools. His father not having the means to pay for a collegiate course, he worked his way through Wheaton College, graduating in 1877. From this college he received the degree of LL.D. in 1899. He began the study of law in Chicago immediately after his graduation under the direction of Judge Murray F. Tuley and Gen. Isaac N. Stiles, supporting himself in the meantime by teaching public schools in Grundy County. He was superintendent of schools of that county two years, and in 1882 began the practice of law at Morris, Ill., and he was prosecuting attorney of Grundy County, 1882-1888. He removed to Chicago in 1888 and engaged in general practice. He was attorney for the Sanitary District of Chicago, 1892-1894. In the latter year he was elected county judge of Cook County, to which position he was re-elected in 1898-1902, and in 1906 he was elected a justice of the Supreme Court of Illinois. Judge Carter is a member of the Union League, Menoken, Congregational, Hamilton and Lincoln Clubs of Chicago. He married at Morris, Ill., Aug. 1, 1881, Nettie I. Stevens, and they have two children. Address: 1331 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Ill.

CARTER, Thomas Henry:

United States senator; born in Scioto County, Ohio, Oct. 30, 1854. He received a common school education in Illinois, and was afterward engaged in farming, railroad-ing, and school-teaching for many years. He studied law and was admitted to the bar, and in 1882 he moved from Burlington, Iowa, to Helena, Mont. He was elected in 1888 delegate from the Territory of Montana to the Fifty-first Congress, and upon the admission of the State was elected its first representative in Congress. He was commissioner of the General Land Office from March, 1891 to July, 1892, when he was elected chairman of the Republican National Committee. In January, 1895, he was elected to the United States Senate by the Legislature of Montana for the term beginning March 4, 1895, and ending March 3, 1901. He was appointed by President McKinley a member of the Board of Commissioners of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and was chosen its president. He was again elected to the United States Senate, January 15, 1905. His term of service will expire March 3, 1911. Address: Helena, Mont.

CARTER, William Harding:

Colonel U. S. Army; born at Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 14, 1851; son of Samuel J. Carter and Anne (Vaulx) Carter. He was educated at the United States Military Academy, at West Point, N. Y. He was commissioned second lieutenant of the Eighth Infantry, June 13, 1873, transferred to the Sixth Cavalry, Nov. 28, 1874, commissioned first lieutenant April 14, 1879, captain Nov. 20, 1889, major, assistant adjutant general, Jan. 29, 1897, lieutenant colonel, assistant adjutant general May 18, 1898, colonel, assistant adjutant general April 15, 1902, brigadier general July 15, 1902. He toured around the world; England and France and Spain, inspecting army horses; China and Japan on leave. Served in the Philippines; visited Cuba and Porto Rico. He received a Medal of Honor for services in action with Indians. He married at San Francisco, Calif., Oct. 27, 1880, Ida Dawley, and they had two children. Address: Care Adjutant General, United States Army, Washington, D. C.

CARTWRIGHT, James Henry:

Judge of the Supreme Court of Illinois; born at Maquoketa, Iowa, Dec. 1, 1842; son of Barton Hall Cartwright. He received his education at Mount Morris Seminary, Mount Morris, Ill., and the University of Michigan, where he was graduated as LL.B. in 1867. He served as a volunteer during the Civil War and was mustered out with the rank of captain. After the war he practised law at Oregon, Ogle County, Ill., until he was elected judge of the circuit court in 1888. He was reelected in 1891 and was assigned to the appellate bench for the Second Appellate District. He was elected judge of the Supreme Court in 1895, and reelected in 1897, and again in 1906 for a term ending in 1915, from the Sixth Supreme Court District of Illinois. Address: Oregon, Ill.

CARUS, Paul:

Editor and author; born in Ilsenburg, Harz, Germany. July 18, 1852; son of Dr. Gustav C. and Laura (Kruger) Carus. He was educated in the Gymnasium in Stettin, the University of Strassburg and the University of Tübingen, from which he received the degree of Ph.D. in 1876. Dr. Carus has attained distinction as an accomplished scholar in the fields of philosophy, psychology, ethics, religion in its relation to science, and the history of religion. He has been editor of The Open Court since 1887 and of The Monist since 1890; was a prominent factor in the World's Parliament of Religions, held in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893, and of the Extension movement which grew out of that Parliament and was joint author, with the late Charles C. Bonney (president of the World's Parliament), of The World's Parliament of Religions and of the Religious Parliament Extension, a memorial published by the Religious Parliament Extension Committee. Dr. Carus is author of the following books: Fundamental Problems; The Soul of Man; Primer of Philosophy; Kant and Spencer; A Study of the Fallacies of Agnosticism; The Gospel of Buddha; Godward; The History of the Devil and the Idea of Evil; History of the Cross; Lao-Tze's Tao Teh King, (Chinese-English, with introduction, transliteration and notes); Homilies of Science; The Religion of Science; The Ethical Problem; Whence and Whither; Truth in Fiction; Karma, a Story of Early Buddhism; Nirvana, a Story of Buddhist Psychology; Amitabha, a Story of Buddhist Theology; The Crown of Thorns, a Story of the Time of Christ; The Chief's Daughter, a Legend of Niagara; Eros and Psyche; The Nature of the State; Freidrich Schiller, a sketch of His Life and an Appreciation of His Poetry; The Rise of Man; Our Children, Hints from Practical Experience for Parents and Teachers; The Story of Samson and its Place in the Religious Development of Mankind; Chinese Thought; Chinese Life and Customs; The Philosopher's Martyrdom, a Satire; God, a Solution of the Problem from the Standpoint of Science; also many shorter monographs and pamphlets. He has edited an edition of Kant's Prolegomena, has translated and published some of his own works in German, and has translated, edited, and published several works from the Chinese. Dr. Carus is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Oriental Society, Egypt Exploration Fund, Illinois Academy of Science, Royal Philosophical Association of London, Religious Education Association, Royal Asiatic Society of England, Chicago Press Club and the University Club of Chicago. Residence: La Salle, Ill. Office: Open Court Publishing Co., 378 Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

CARVALHO, David Nunes:

Handwriting expert; born in Philadelphia, Sept. 29, 1848; son of Solomon Nunes and Sarah (Solis) Carvalho. He was graduated from the College of the City of New York (then called the New York Free Academy), and he specialized in organic chemistry, photography, light and color. Since 1875 he has been professionally engaged as an expert in handwriting and inks, was official handwriting expert to the Grand Jury, New York City, 1881-1906, and he has testified in over one thousand cases where handwriting was in dispute, including many of national prominence in all sections of the United States. He was the first expert in the world to restore, in open court, fraudulently bleached out handwriting, which he did in 1884. In addition to his practice in legal matters Mr. Carvalho has made researches and discoveries of principles and processes in optics and radiography, which have proven of much practical value. He was the first (1880) to separate white light into its complementary parts in order to absorb the actinic rays on the sensitive photographic plate, this being the principle upon which the present orthochromatic processes are based; and he was the first to make photographs on celluloid. He was city librarian of New York in charge of archives in 1885, and while there made exhaustive studies of ancient writing and inks. He is author of: Forty Centuries of Ink, and of numerous contributions to magazines; and he is also well known as a diligent and successful collector of incunabula. Mr. Carvalho was president of the New York State Reformatory for Women, 1892-1899. He married in New Orleans, March 22, 1876, Annie Abrams. Residence: 125 West 93rd St. Office: 265 Broadway, New York City.

CARY, Charles Preston:

State superintendent of public instruction of Wisconsin; born at Marshall, Ohio, Jan. 28, 1856; son of William Henry Cary and Eve Cary. His mother was of German descent, and his father was directly related to the political economist, Henry Carey. Until he was seventeen years of age he worked on his father's farm in summer and attended the district school in winter. At seventeen he began to teach district school in winter and continued working on the farm in summer. In 1877 he entered the Ohio Central Normal School, from which he was graduated in 1879. After this he taught for seven years as principal of graded schools in Ohio and Kansas, and served during most of this period as county examiner of teacher and instructor in teachers' institutes. In 1886 he was elected county superintendent and two years later high school principal at Fairbury, Neb., which position he resigned in 1893 to become instructor in pedagogy and principal of the training department of the Milwaukee State Normal School, which he resigned in 1901 to become superintendent of the Wisconsin School for the Deaf, at Delavan, Wis. He resigned from that position in 1902 to accept the Republican nomination for the office of State superintendent of public instruction, to which he was elected in 1902, reelected in 1905 as a non-partisan candidate for four years, and again reelected in 1909. He holds life certificates to teach in the schools of Nebraska and Wisconsin, and is a graduate of the University of Chicago, class of 1898. He is an active member of the National Educational Association; a member of the National Society for the Scientific Study of Education, and has devoted his life to the study of all the sciences and arts that bear upon the problems of education. Address: The Capitol, Madison, Wis.

CASE, Frances Powell:

Author; born in Newburgh, N. Y.; daughter of Robert Ludlow and Marian (Gibson) Case. She was educated at home and for several years past has been engaged in literary work under the pen-name of Frances Powell, and is author of: The House on the Hudson; The By-Ways of Braith; The Prisoner of Ornith Farm; and Old Mr. Davenant's Money, all published by Charles Scribner's Sons. Address: Wainscott, L. I., N. Y.

CASEY, Edward Pearce:

Architect; born in Portland, Maine, June 18, 1864; son of Brigadier-General Thomas Lincoln and Emma (Weir) Casey. He was educated at the Emerson Institute at Washington, and graduated from the School of Mines of Columbia University, where he received the degree of C.E. in 1886, and that of architect in 1888. He studied also at the Ecole des Beaux Arts in Paris. He was supervising architect of the Congressional Library Building, at Washington, 1892-1897; was one of the six equal winners in the New York City Hall competition in 1893; also, in conjunction with Professor Burr in 1900, won the first prize for a design for the Memorial Bridge over the Potomac River, Washington; and in conjunction with H. M. Shady, won first prize for a design for the Grant Monument at Washington; and architect of Memorial Continental Hall and the Connecticut Avenue Viaduct, also in Washington. Mr. Casey is a member of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, the Beaux Arts Society, the Architectural League, the Natural Sculpture Society, Century Association, and Sons of the Revolution. Residence: 55 W. 33d Street. Office: 1 Nassau Street, New York City.

CASEY, Silas:

Rear-admiral U. S. Navy, retired; born at East Greenwich, R. I., Sept. 11, 1847; son of General Silas and Abbie (Pearce) Casey. In 1856 he was appointed from New York to the U. S. Naval Academy, from which he was graduated in the class of 1860; and he was promoted through the various grades until he became rear-admiral March 3, 1899. He served on the steam frigate, Niagara, 1860-1862, being in the engagements with the batteries at Pensacola, Fla., in 1861; also in several engagements with Fort McAllister in 1862, while serving on the gunboat Wissahickon, in the South Atlantic Blockading Squadron, 1862-1863. While on the Quaker City, of the North Atlantic Blockading Squadron, 1863-1865, he took part in the first attack on Charleston, under Admiral Dupont, and in the attacks on Fort Fisher in Dec., 1864. He served on the Winooska, Atlantic Squadron, 1865-1867; at the Naval Academy, 1867-1870; on the frigate Colorado, Asiatic Squadron, 1870-1873, and commanded a battalion of sailors from that fleet in the Korean Expedition and in the attack on Fort McKee (Elbow Fort), on the Seoul River, in June, 1872; he was on ordnance duty at the Philadelphia Navy Yard, 1873-1874; and after that commanded several ships of the Navy, including the battleship New York in 1897; was commandant of the League Island Navy Yard, 1891-1901, and commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet from 1901 until he was retired Sept. 11, 1903. He married in Philadelphia, in Oct., 1865, Sophie Gray Herberton. Address: 1729 P Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

CASEY, Thomas L.:

Colonel, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A.; born at West Point, N. Y., Feb. 19, 1857; son of Brigadier-General Thomas Lincoln and Emma (Weir) Casey. He was educated at the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, class of 1877 (non-graduate), and was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1879. Since graduation he has been engaged in the professional work of the Corps of Engineers of the United States Army. He was with the United States Transit of Venus Expedition to South Africa, 1882-1883; also a member of the Greer County Commission in 1886, and of the Mississippi River Commission, 1902-1906; was in charge of the fortification work and submarine mine defense of Hampton Roads during the war with Spain; and since 1906 has been member and engineer secretary of the Lighthouse Board. He is author of numerous papers, chiefly on biological subjects. Colonel Casey is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; a member of the New York Academy of Sciences, the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, the American Society of Naturalists, the Biological Society of Washington, the Societe Entomologique de France, and others; is a member of the University Club of New York City, and the Cosmos, Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs of Washington, D. C. Colonel Casey married in Philadelphia, June 1, 1898, Laura Welsh. Address: 1419 K Street, Northwest, Washington, D. C.

CASSEL, Henry Burd:

Merchant and congressman; born in Marietta, Lancaster County, Pa., Oct. 19, 1855; son of Abram Neff and Mary J. Cassel. He was educated in the public schools and the Columbia Classical Institute. He engaged in business pursuits and is now senior member of the firm of A. N. Cassel & Son, lumber dealers, and is also associated as director or stockholder in various other companies. He has always been a staunch Republican, and became interested in politics at an early age. His first public office was as a member of the county committee in 1881; he became chairman of the county committee in 1893; was sent as a delegate to the National Republican Convention held in St. Louis in 1896, and in 1898 was nominated and elected to the lower house of the State Legislature, where his father had served fifty-nine years before, and reelected in 1900. He was elected from the old Tenth District of Pennsylvania, Nov. 5, 1901, to the Fifty-seventh Congress to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Hon. Marriott Brosius; and in 1902, 1904 and 1906 was reelected from the new Ninth District of Pennsylvania, serving until March 4, 1909. Address: Marietta, Pa.

CASSELBERRY, William Evans:

Physician; born in Philadelphia, Sept. 6, 1858; son of Jacob Rush and Ellen Lane (Evans) Casselberry. He was educated at the Fremont Seminary, Morristown, Pa., and graduated from the Lincoln Grammar School. He attended jointly, the Auxiliary Department of Medicine (Science) of the University of Pennsylvania, 1875-1879, and its Medical Department, from which he was graduated M.D. in 1879. He was interne at the Germantown Hospital, Philadelphia, 1879-1881; took special courses at Vienna General and London Throat Hospitals, 1882, and since 1883 has practised at Chicago as a specialist in lung, throat, and nasal diseases. He was professor of therapeutics, 1883-1894, professor of laryngology and rhinology, 1894-1908, and since then professor emeritus in the Northwestern University Medical School. He is laryngologist to St. Luke's and Wesley Hospitals of Chicago, a member of the Chicago Academy of Science, ex-president of the American Laryngological Association and the Chicago Laryngological Association, member of the American Climatological Association, American Medical Association, and the Illinois State and Chicago Medical Societies. He is a Republican, and an adherent of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and is a member of the Onwentsia University, Lake Forest Winter and Physicians' Clubs of Chicago. He married in Chicago, June 23, 1891, Lillian Hibbard, and they have three children. Address: 34 Washington Street, Chicago.

CASSON, Herbert Newton:

Author, sociologist; born in Ontario, Canada, in 1869; son of Rev. Wesley and Elizabeth (Jackson) Casson. He was educated in Victoria College at Coburg, Ontario, and afterward entered the Methodist ministry in Canada, from which he later resigned. He founded the first labor church in America, at Lynn, Mass., in 1893, lectured on social reform in Great Britain, the United States and Canada, later editing The Coming Nation, at Ruskin, Tenn. He was an editor on the staff of the New York Journal one year, the New York World four years, afterward on the staff of Munsey's Magazine and contributing to various magazines; now member of The Emerson Company, efficiency engineers. He is also a lecturer on humane education in the New York Board of Education lecture course. Mr. Casson is author of: The Crime of Credulity; Organized Self-Help; The Races that Made America; The Romance of Steel; The Romance of the Reaper, etc. He was president of the Brooklyn Philosophical Association, 1902-1903; is charter member of the New York City Humane Society and of the Railroad Club. Mr. Casson married at Ruskin, Tenn., in 1899, Lydia K. Commander. Address: 1522 Hudson Terminal, 30 Church Street, New York City.

CASTLEMAN, John Breckinridge:

Retired citizen; born in Fayette County, Ky., June 30, 1841; son of David and Virginia (Harrison) Castleman. He was attending the Transylvania University, when, at the age of nineteen years, he entered the Confederate Army at the beginning of the war as a trooper of Morgan's Cavalry, serving until Oct., 1864, and becoming major of Morgan's old regiment. He commanded the expedition which, in 1864, went to release Confederate prisoners confined in Illinois and Indiana, and while so engaged he was captured, and was placed in solitary confinement for nine months, and released on parole, in July, 1865, to leave the United States, never to return. The parole was revoked by President Johnson. He studied in Europe; was graduated from the law department of the University of Louisville in 1868, and engaged in the practice of law in Louisville, later becoming identified with insurance interests as manager for the Royal Insurance Company of Liverpool, 1869-1902, when he retired. Governor Knott appointed him adjutant-general of Kentucky in 1883, and he has been commanding officer of the Louisville Legion since 1891. He organized and enlisted the First Kentucky Volunteer Infantry in 1898, and served as its commander in the Porto Rican Campaign. He was commissioned brigadier-general of United States Volunteers, and he declined the commission of brigadier-general in the United States Army, offered him by President McKinley. He commanded the Kentucky Militia during the troubles following the assassination of Governor Goebel. He has taken great interest in politics as a Democrat; was chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee from 1890 to 1892; and delegate to the National Democratic Conventions of 1888 to 1892. He has been president of the Louisville Board of Park Commissioners since 1891. Address: Louisville, Ky.

CATHCART, William Ledyard:

Engineer; born in Mystic, Conn., Aug. 12, 1855; son of William Cathcart, D.D., and Eliza (Caldwell) Cathcart. He was educated in the Philadelphia public schools, the preparatory school of Henry D. Gregory, the University of Pennsylvania, and the United States Naval Academy, Annapolis. Mr. Cathcart was treasurer of a manufacturing company, 1891-1897; professor of marine engineering at Webb's Academy of Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering, New York City, 1897-1899, and adjunct professor of mechanical engineering, Columbia University, 1899-1903. After graduation from the Naval Academy he served in the Engineer Corps of the United States Navy until 1891, when he resigned to enter private business. He volunteered in the Spanish-American War, was appointed chief engineer, U. S. Navy, and ordered to special duty as assistant to Rear-Admiral Melville, engineer-in-chief, U. S. Navy, at the Bureau of Steam Engineering of the Navy Department during that war. Mr. Cathcart is author of a work on Machine Design, of two books on Graphic Statics, and The Losses of Heat from Steam Pipes, now in course of publication, and of various technical papers. He is a member of the American Society of Naval Engineers, Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, Franklin Institute, and American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He married in Philadelphia in 1882, Mary Davis Lee. Address: Gwynedd, Pa.

CATLIN, Charles Albert:

Chemist; born in Burlington, Vt., May 10, 1849; son of Henry Wadhams and Mary (Mayo) Catlin. He received his collegiate education in the University of Vermont, from which he received the degrees of B.S. and Ph.B. He engaged in practice as a chemist, and has specialized in chemical processes relating to the manufacture of phosphates for dietetic use, has invented and patented many chemical processes and applications, has published a book on Baking Powders, which is a treatise on their characteristics, and methods for determination of their chemical and dietetic values, and he also published various papers in technical and scientific journals on the commercial value of cream of tartar substitutes, on improved apparatus for the volumetric determination of carbon dioxide, and on other topics connected with his special branch of chemical research. He is chemist of the Rumford Chemical Works at Providence, R. I., is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a member and a counsellor of the American Chemical Society, a member of the Society of Chemical Industry, a member and director of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers, and of other scientific societies. He married at Burlington, Vt., June 20, 1877, Frances L. Herriek. Address: 133 Hope Street, Providence, R. I.

CATLIN, Louise Ensign:

Author; born in Lockport, N. Y., May 9, 1861; daughter of H. A. and Halsey (Oakley) Ensign. She was graduated from Smith College as A.B., 1881, and M.A., 1884, and did post-graduate work under professors of the Sorbonne, Paris, and the University of Jena, Germany. She married at Owego, N. Y., Oct., 1882, Frederick Ward Catlin, and has a son, Randolph Catlin, born Dec. 6, 1887, and graduate of Princeton, 1908. Mrs. Catlin is author of: Margorie and Her Neighbors; My Little Lady in Waiting; short stories and serials for the various publications of the Methodist Book Concern, and occasional travel sketches for the New York Evening Post. She has traveled throughout the American Continent and Europe, and a portion of the Orient. Mrs. Catlin is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Daughters of the Revolution; and also of the Smith College Alumnae Association. Address: 285 Henry Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CATT, Carrie Chapman:

Lecturer; born in Ripon, Wis.; daughter of Lucius and Maria (Clinton) Lane. She was graduated from the Iowa State College at Ames, with honors, was successively principal and superintendent of schools, and married first, Leo Chapman, who died two years after their marriage, and later married George William Catt, a distinguished engineer, who died in 1905. Mrs. Catt has lectured in every State in the Union and in foreign countries on woman suffrage, and is active in all the suffrage associations and clubs where anything can be done for the advancement of women. She was elected president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, when Miss Susan B. Anthony retired, and served four years, and when, in 1904, in Berlin, Germany, the International Woman Suffrage Alliance was formed, Mrs. Catt was elected its president, and still holds that office. In that capacity she presided over and conducted the meetings of the Alliance in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1906, and in Amsterdam, Holland, in 1908. Address: 2 W. 86th Street, New York City.

CATTELL, Henry Ware:

Physician and medical editor; born in Harrisburg, Pa., Oct. 7, 1862; son of Rev. William C. Cattell, D.D., LL.D., and Elizabeth (McKeen) Cattell. He was graduated from Lafayette College in 1883, and from the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania as M.D. in 1887. He was editor of International Medical Magazine, 1894-1897; International Clinics, 1900-1903; translator of Zeigler's Special Pathology; and is author of Post-Mortem Pathology. Dr. Cattell is now editor of Medical Notes and Queries and of Lippincott's Medical Dictionary. He was demonstrator of morbid anatomy at the University of Pennsylvania, 1892-1897; senior coroner's physician of Philadelphia, 1896-1899, and has appeared as an expert in many murder trials. He was director of the Ayer Clinical Laboratory, 1899-1901, and has been pathologist to the Presbyterian Hospital, the Philadelphia Hospital and many others. He has traveled extensively abroad and has written many articles for the medical press. Address: 3709 Spruce Street, Philadelphia.

CATTELL, James McKeen:

Psychologist, editor and educator; born in Easton, Pa., May 25, 1860; son of Rev. William C. Cattell, D.D., LL.D. (president of Lafayette College (1863-1883), and Elizabeth (McKeen) Cattell. He was graduated from Lafayette College, A.B. in 1880, A.M. in 1883, and received from that college the degree of LL.D. in 1907. He was a student at Göttingen, Leipzig, and Geneva, 1880-1882; a fellow of Johns Hopkins University, 1882-1883, receiving the degree of Ph.D. in 1886. Dr. Cattell was lecturer in the University of Pennsylvania, and Bryn Mawr College, 1887; in the University of Cambridge, England, 1888; and professor of psychology, University of Pennsylvania, 1888-1891. He has been professor of psychology in Columbia University since 1891, and during part of this time has been the executive head of the Departments of Philosophy and of Anthropology as well as of Psychology. He was co-editor of The Psychological Review, 1893-1904; has been editor of Science since 1894; of The Popular Science Monthly since 1900, and of the American Naturalist since 1908. He edited American Men of Science in 1906. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences; fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and was its vice-president in 1898; of the American Psychological Association (president, 1895), American Society of Naturalists (president, 1902); member of the American Philosophical Association, American Physiological Society; fellow of the American Ethnological Society; member of the American Philosophical Society; fellow of the New York Academy of Sciences (president, 1902 and 1903), and of the London Aristotelian Society. Dr. Cattell is an extensive contributor to psychology of researches relating to the measurement of psychological and mental processes, individual differences, etc. Address: Garrison-on-Hudson, N. Y.

CAUGHY, Charles M.:

Consular official; appointed clerk in the Department of State, Feb. 1, 1889, and retired May 2, 1892. He was appointed consul at Messina, Italy, Sept. 29, 1893, and transferred as consul at Malaga, Spain, in April, 1907. Address: Malaga, Spain.

CAULDWELL, Leslie Giffen:

Artist; born in New York City, Oct. 18, 1861; son of William and Eliza Ellen Cauldwell; and he was educated in the schools of New York City. He was for a time engaged on the New York Mercury, of which his father was the head, but went to Paris in 1884, becoming a student in the Académie Julian, and a pupil of Boulanger, Lefebvre and Carolus Duran. He exhibited pictures at the Paris Salon in 1886 and 1888, at the Paris Exposition in 1889, and at the annual salons on the Champs du Mars from 1890 to 1896; also in the exhibitions of the Royal Academy and Society of British Artists, London, the Academies at Liverpool and Berlin, Society of American Artists and the National Academy of Design, the Louisiana Purchase Exposition and in several American cities. Since 1896 he has made a profession of the decorating and finishing of interiors, doing that work at the Hotel Ritz in Paris, 1897-1898, and in the Carlton Hotel, London, 1899. He was awarded the gold medal of the Paris Exposition, 1900, for artistic interior work at the British Pavilion and the exhibit of Waring & Gillow in the British Section of that Exposition. Since Jan., 1907, he has been manager of the New York branch of E. Alavoine & Co., of Paris, interior decorators. Mr. Cauldwell is a member of the Architectural League and of the Fencers' Club, in New York City and other artistic and social organizations. Address: 58 W. Fifty-seventh Street, New York City.

CHACE, Jonathan:

Ex-senator, manufacturer; born in Fall River, Mass., July 22, 1829; son of Harvey and Hannah (Wood) Chace. He received his education in the Friends' School of Providence, R. I., and engaged in manufacturing business. He was elected to the Rhode Island State Senate, serving 1876-1878. In 1880 he was elected to Congress and in 1882 was reelected, serving in the 47th and 48th Congresses; and in 1885 he was elected to the United States Senate to fill a vacancy. He served until 1889 and was then reelected for a full six-year term, but resigned after attending the short session and returned to his manufacturing interests. Senator Chace is a trustee of Brown University. He married at Fallsington, Pa., in 1854, Jane C. Moon. Address: Valley Falls, R. I.

CHADWICK, French Ensor:

Rear-admiral United States Navy, retired; born at Morgantown, W. Va., Feb. 29, 1844; son of Daniel and Margaret Eliza (Evans) Chadwick. He was appointed from Virginia to the United States Naval Academy Sept. 28, 1861, and continued in the Navy as an officer, reaching the rank of rear-admiral, Oct. 11, 1903, and being retired by operation of law, Feb. 28, 1906. Admiral Chadwick has filled the duties of a naval officer in many stations. He was a naval attaché to the American Legation at London, 1882-1889, served on several boards, and was chief of the Bureau of Equipment with the rank of commodore from July, 1893, to Nov., 1897. He commanded the United States armored cruiser New York, flagship of the North Atlantic Squadron, from Dec., 1897, to Dec., 1899, and was chief of staff to Admiral Sampson during the Spanish-American War. He took part in all the important actions in Cuban waters during that war and was advanced five numbers in his grade for eminent and conspicuous conduct in battle. He was president of the Naval War College, 1900-1903, and commanded the South Atlantic Squadron from 1904 until his retirement. He is author of two volumes:

Temperament, Disease and Health; and An Unsolved Problem. He married at Utica, N. Y., Nov. 20, 1878, Cornelia J. Miller. Address: Newport, R. I.

CHADWICK, George Whitefield:

Musician and composer; born in Lowell, Mass., Nov. 13, 1854. He received his general education in the schools of Lowell, studied music in German conservatories, 1877-1880, and after his return to America, established himself in Boston, where he has earned distinction as an organist and conductor, and has also taken rank as one of the foremost American composers. He is now the director of the New England Conservatory of Music and his services to the country as one who has done much to raise the standards of musical taste, and advance the cause of musical education, have been recognized by the conferring upon him by Yale of the degree of A.M., and by Tufts College of the degree of LL.D. His compositions include the opera Judith; the overtures Rip Van Winkle, Thalia, Melpomene, Adonais and Enterpe; three symphonies; the Dedication Ode for the World's Columbian Exposition, songs, string quartettes, and various choral and orchestral works. Address: 360 Marlborough Street, Boston.

CHAFFEE, Adna Romanza:

Lieutenant-general U. S. Army, retired; born in Orwell, Ashtabula County, Ohio, April 14, 1842. He was educated in the public schools. He enlisted July 22, 1861, as a private in the Sixth Regiment U. S. Cavalry, was commissioned second lieutenant March 13, 1863, and first lieutenant Feb. 23, 1865. At the close of the Civil War he remained in the service and served in several Indian campaigns. He was brevetted several times for gallantry, both in the Civil and Indian Wars and was appointed brigadier-general U. S. Volunteers, May 4, 1898. He commanded the Third Brigade of the Second Division of the Fifth Army Corps, serving in the Santiago campaign from June to Aug., 1898. He commanded the Second Division of the Fifth Corps in Aug. and Sept., 1898; was promoted major-general of U. S. Volunteers, July 8, 1898; commander of the First Division of the Fourth Corps in Nov. and Dec., 1898, and was chief of staff of the Division of Cuba from Dec., 1898, to May, 1900. He was honorably discharged as major-general, April 13, 1899, but was again appointed brigadier-general of the U. S. Volunteers, April 13, 1899, and was assigned to the command of the United States forces for the relief of the United States Legation at Peking, China, June 24, 1900. He arrived at Peking, China, Aug. 14, 1900, and was promoted major-general U. S. Army, Feb. 5, 1901. He was assigned to command the Division of the Philippines and appointed military governor, July 4, 1901, and was relieved Sept. 30, 1902, and assigned to command the Department of the East. He was detailed to the General Staff Corps, Oct. 2, 1903, and assigned to duty as assistant to the chief of staff at Washington. He was promoted lieutenant-general U. S. Army, and appointed chief of staff, Jan. 9, 1904, serving in that capacity until April 14, 1906, when he was retired from active service by operation of law. General Chaffee married at Junction City, Kan., March 30, 1875, Annie Frances Rockwell. Address: 987 Magnolia Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

CHAFFEE, J. Irvin:

Mathematician and educator; born in Seekonk, Mass., Jan. 3, 1861; son of Oliver and Abby M. (Gray) Chaffee. He was graduated from Brown University, A.B., 1883, A.M., 1886, and took post-graduate work in Johns Hopkins University and the University of Berlin, Germany. He was principal of the High School in East Providence, R. I., 1882-1889; superintendent of schools in Seekonk, Rehoboth and Swansea, Mass., 1891-1892; principal of the Stratford (Conn.) High School, 1893-1895. He has been of the Faculty of Webb's Academy and Home for Shipbuilders, as professor of mathematics since 1895, and dean of the Faculty and resident manager since 1896. Mr. Chaffee is co-author of a volume on Elements of Graphic Statics, soon to be issued by the D. Van Nostrand Company. He is a member of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers and of the Masonic Order. He married in Rehoboth, Mass., Dec. 23, 1885, Betsey Wright Marvel, and has a daughter and two sons. Address: 188th Street and Sedgwick Avenue, New York City.

CHAFIN, Eugene W.:

Lawyer and lecturer; born at East Troy, Wis., Nov. 1, 1852; son of Samuel E. and Betsy (Pollard) Chafin. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin with the degree of LL.B. in 1875. He practised law at Waukesha, Wis., for twenty-five years. Mr. Chafin removed to Chicago in 1901 to become superintendent of the Washingtonian Home, serving as such for three years, and he is now a Chautauqua lecturer. He has served as police justice and as member of the school and library board. He is a Prohibitionist in politics, and was a candidate for Governor of Wisconsin in 1898, and for attorney-general of Illinois in 1904. He was nominated for President of the United States July 16, 1908, at Columbus, Ohio, by the Prohibition National Convention. He is author of: The Voter's Handbook, 1876; Lives of the Presidents, 1896; Lincoln, the Man of Sorrow, 1908. Mr. Chafin is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He was grand chief templar of the Wisconsin Good Templars for four years and of Illinois Good Templars one year, and is now president of the Good Templars' Mutual Benefit Association, and he is an Odd Fellow and Forester. He married at Waukesha, Wis., Nov. 24, 1881, Carrie A. Hunkins, and they have a daughter, Desdemona Chafin. Address: 326 Eastwood Avenue, Chicago.

CHAILLÉ-LONG, Charles:

Soldier and diplomat. One of the most picturesque figures of the period since the Civil War. He was born at Princess Anne, Md., July 2, 1842, was educated at the Washington Academy, Md., and attended the Columbia College of Law in New York, graduating in 1880, with the degree of LL.B. He entered the Union Army during the Civil War and became a captain in the Eleventh Maryland Infantry. At the close of the war he went to Egypt, and was appointed, in 1869, a lieutenant colonel in the general staff of the Egyptian Army. He was chief of staff to General Gordon, governor of the Equatorial Provinces of Egypt, 1874-1877, and during this service made extensive explorations of the unknown Victoria Nile; discovered Lake Ibrahim and completed the solution of the problem of the sources of the Nile, left incomplete by Speke and Baker. He was decorated, promoted Colonel and Bey, and cited in General Orders to the Army for distinguished gallantry at M'rooli, and for the success of the diplomatic mission by which the Treaty of Uganda was executed and that country annexed to Egypt. In 1882, when the United States Consulate at Alexandria was abandoned in a moment of peril by its faithless agents, the United States requested him to take charge. Under his direction the consulate became the refuge of foreigners of all nations, and before and after the bombardment and burning of Alexandria, with the aid of United States sailors and marines, he saved hundreds of lives, including those of the Khédive and family, and saved the city of Alexandria from entire destruction. He was secretary of the legation and consul-general from the United States to Korea, 1887-1889; secretary, Universal Postal Congress, Washington, May, 1887; secretary, Aug., 1897, and chargé d'affaires, Oct., 1897, to Sept., 1898, of the U. S. Special Commission to the Paris Exposition of 1900. He is a Chevalier of the Légion d'Honneur of France; an honorary member of the Institut Egyptien; a member of the Maryland Historical Society, and is also a member of the geographical societies of Cairo, Paris, Rouen, and Bordeaux, the Societa Africana d'Italia, and is registrar in France for the Sons of American Revolution. He was presented by the General Assembly of Maryland, (by a unanimous vote,) with resolutions of thanks and a gold medal for "services to science and valiant conduct in Central Africa and Egypt," March 3, 1904. He is the Author of: Central Africa—Naked Fruths of Naked People, 1876; L'Afrique Centrale, 1877; The Three Prophets, 1883; Les Sources du Nil, 1891; L'Egypte et ses Provinces Perdues, 1892; La Corée on Chôsen La Terre du Calme Matinal, 1894; Les Combattants Français, 1778-1783, Paris 1905 also the American edition 1906. He is a contributor to French and American reviews and magazines on Egyptian and African subjects. Since his last public service he has contributed many notable articles to American and foreign publications, and is chiefly engaged in historical research and writing. Colonel Chaille-Long married at Crown Point, N. Y., July 16, 1890, Marie Amelie Hammond. Address: Maryland Historical Society, Baltimore, Md.

CHALMERS, Stephen:

Novelist and poet; born in Dunoon, Scotland, Feb. 29, 1880; son of Stephen and Katherine Maria (McFarland) Chalmers. He was educated at a Scots grammar school, began active life as a telegraph messenger, and studied telegraphy and various other things which fitted him for journalistic general work. He served on the staff of the Daily Gleaner, Kingston, Jamaica, 1900-1901; New York Commercial, 1902; New York World, 1902-1903; New York Sun, 1904; New York Times, 1904-1907. In 1907 he took up fiction and verse as a profession, retiring from newspaper life because of ill health. He has traveled as correspondent for newspapers, to the West Indies, the Canal Zone, Columbia, Venezuela, etc. Mr. Chalmers is author of: A Daughter of the Armada; Little Lights (verse); and the Vanishing Snuggler (1909). Residence: Saranac Lake, N. Y. Office: Care New York Times, New York City.

CHAMBERLAIN, Eugene Tyler:

United States commissioner of navigation; born in Albany, N. Y., Sept. 28, 1856; son of General Frank Chamberlain and Celia Deborah (Tyler) Chamberlain. He was graduated with honors in metaphysics from Harvard University in 1878. After his graduation he was instructor in Albany Academy for a year, following which he was engaged in a grain and elevator business for two years. He then engaged in the newspaper business in Albany and in December, 1893, he was appointed United States Commissioner of Navigation at Washington, the office he now holds. He is an honorary associate of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, member of the American Maritime Law Association, of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and various social clubs. He is an occasional contributor to American and foreign publications on subjects relating to merchant shipping and seamen. He married at Washington, D. C., April 17, 1900, Mary Lee Barnette, (died Aug. 29, 1904). Residence: The Ethelhurst, 15th & L. Sts. N. W. Address: Bureau of Navigation, Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C.

CHAMBERLAIN, George A.:

Consular official. He was appointed deputy consul-general at Rio Janeiro, April 29, 1904; appointed vice-deputy consul-general, June 24, 1904, and retired December, 1904. He was appointed consul at Pernambuco, June 22, 1906. Address: Pernambuco, Brazil.

CHAMBERLAIN, George Earle:

United States senator; born near Natchez, Miss., Jan. 1, 1854; son of Charles Thompson and Pamela A. (Arthur) Chamberlain. He received his education in the Washington and Lee Universities of Virginia, where he was graduated from both the classical and law departments of that institution in 1876. Following his graduation he removed to Oregon in December, 1876, where he engaged in the successful practice of law. He also became prominent in politics as a Democrat; was elected to the House of Representatives of the Oregon Legislature in 1880, and district attorney of the Third Judicial District of Oregon, for a two-year term, in 1884. He was appointed in May, 1891, and elected in 1892, to the office of attorney general of Oregon, which he filled until January, 1895, and was elected to a four-year term as district attorney of the Fourth Judicial District of Oregon, in June 1900. He resigned that office, however, upon his election in 1902 to the office of governor of Oregon, and in 1906 he was reelected for a second four-year term, but resigned the office upon his election by the legislature as United States Senator from Oregon for the six year term expiring March 4, 1915. Senator Chamberlain married in Natchez, Miss., May 21, 1879. Sarah Newman Welch. Address: Portland, Ore.

CHAMBERLAIN, John Loomis:

Colonel and inspector-general, U. S. A.; born in South Livonia, N. Y., Jan. 20, 1858; son of Jabez Lewis and Charity (Hart) Chamberlain. He was educated in the district schools until 1871, then at the State Normal School at Geneseo, N. Y., until 1876, when he entered the United States Military Academy from which he was graduated in 1880. He was also graduated from the Artillery School and the School of Submarine Mines, at Willet's Point. He was appointed second lieutenant, First Artillery, June 12, 1880; first lieutenant, Aug. 14, 1887; captain, March 2, 1889; major and inspector-general, Nov. 10, 1900; lieutenant-colonel and inspector-general, March 1, 1901, and colonel and inspector-general, Nov. 14, 1904. He was engaged on regimental duty, 1880-August, 1884; was instructor of the department of chemistry at the United States Military Academy, from August, 1884 to August, 1888; at the Artillery School until July, 1890; was on ordnance duty, Navy Yard, Washington, until April, 1892; chief ordnance officer of the Department of the Missouri until August, 1893, and on regimental duty until January, 1895. He was military instructor at the Peekskill Military Academy until August, 1896, then on regimental duty until July, 1897. He was then appointed military attaché to the American Legation at Vienna; became adjutant on the Siege Artillery Train and chief ordnance officer and adjutant-general of the First Division of the Seventh Army Corps in 1898; major of United States Volunteers from July 18, 1898, to April 12, 1899, when he was honorably discharged from volunteer service. He was adjutant of the First Artillery from 1899 to 1900; inspector-general of the Department of California, from 1901 to 1902, and inspector-general of the Philippine Division 1903-1904; on leave in China and Japan in February and March, 1905; inspector-general Pacific Division and Department of California, 1905-1907; from Dec. 1907 to Aug. 1908, inspector-general Department of the East, and since Aug. 1908 has been on duty in the office of the inspector-general, U. S. Army. Colonel Chamberlain is a member of the Metropolitan and the Army and Navy Clubs of Washington, D. C. Colonel Chamberlain married at Narragansett Pier, Rhode Island, Sept. 9, 1896, Carolyn Marrow. Their children are: John Loomis, Junior, born May 28, 1903, and Carolyn, born April 14, 1906. Address: Care War Department, Washington, D. C.

CHAMBERLAIN, Joshua Lawrence:

Ex-governor of Maine; born at Brewer, Me., Sept. 8, 1828; son of Joshua and Sarah Dupee (Brastow) Chamberlain. He was educated at the Bowdoin College, receiving the degree of A.B. in 1852, A.M. in 1855, and LL.D. in 1869; was graduated from Bancroft Theological Seminary in 1855 and received the LL.D. degree from Pennsylvania College in 1866. He became professor of rhetoric and oratory at Bowdoin College in 1856. He entered the Union Army as lieutenant-colonel of the Twentieth Maine Infantry, became its colonel in 1863, took part in the battle of Gettysburg, was given the Congressional Medal of Honor for bravery there, and, on the battlefield of Petersburg, Va., was promoted brigadier-general by General Grant. He commanded the parade on the surrender of General Robert E. Lee, and was commander of the First Division of the Fifth Corps of the Army of the Potomac. During the War he was wounded three times, once almost fatally, and he received the brevet of major-general in 1865 for distinguished gallantry in action. He was elected governor of Maine, serving from 1866 to 1871, and major-general of Maine charged with the protection of peace and order in the absence of civil government in 1879 and 1880. From 1871 to 1882 he was president of Bowdoin College. He was United States commissioner of education to the Paris Exposition in 1900. General Chamberlain has been department commander of the Grand Army of the Republic in Maine, and is a companion of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion and the Society of the Army of the Potomac.

He is author of several books on historical and philosophical subjects. Residence: in Brunswick, Me. Office address: Portland, Me.

CHAMBERLAIN, Leander Trowbridge:

Clergyman; born in West Brookfield, Mass., Sept. 26, 1837; son of Eli and Aehsah (Forbes) Chamberlain. He was educated at the Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and at Yale,—being valedictorian in both institutions—where he received the degree of B.A. with Phi Beta Kappa honors in 1863. He was graduated from the Andover Theological Seminary in 1869; and received from the University of Vermont the degree of D.D. in 1879. He served in the United States Navy as assistant paymaster and afterward as naval storekeeper and judge advocate of the South Pacific Squadron. 1863-1867. He was pastor of the New England Congregational Church of Chicago 1869-1876; the Broadway Congregational Church, Norwich, Conn., 1876-1883; and of the Clason Avenue Presbyterian Church of Brooklyn, from 1883-1890, when he resigned. He was superintendent of relief, after the great Chicago fire in 1871, and is now president of the Evangelical Alliance for the United States; president and treasurer of the American and Foreign Christian Union; president of the New York State Colonization Society; chairman of the directors of the Thessalonica Agricultural and Industrial Institute; vice-chairman of the Immigration Department of the National Civic Federation; patron of the Gem Collection in the National Museum at Washington; patron and honorary curator of eocene mollusca, in the Academy of Natural Sciences at Philadelphia; honorary associate of the Smithsonian Institution, and director of the American India Relief Association. Dr. Chamberlain is the author of A Short History of the English Bible; Colonial Policy of the United States; The State, Its Origin, Nature and Functions; The Evolutionary Philosophy; Patriotism and the Moral Law; Government Not Founded in Force; The Suffrage and Majority Rule, A Citizen's Manual, and the True Doctrine of Prayer. He is a member of the Executive Committee of the Civil Service Reform Association, the New York Academy of Science, The Torrey Botanical Club, the New York Historical Society, and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. His clubs are the Century, the Authors, the Quill, and Sigma Chi. Dr. Chamberlain married in Philadelphia in 1890, Francis Lea, who died in 1894. Address: 222 West Twenty-third Street, New York City.

CHAMBERLIN, Henry Barrett:

Journalist; born in Washington, D. C., March 10, 1867, and resided in boyhood in Mansfield, Ohio, where he attended school, afterward taking a partial law course in the Law School of Northwestern University. He edited and published The Guard-man, a military newspaper, from 1886-1892, and did work as a reporter on the leading Chicago newspapers. He was night manager of the City Press Association from 1891, with the Laffan Bureau and the New York Sun, 1894, and was afterward, for two years, with the Omaha World-Herald, in charge of various departments. Mr. Chamberlin was in charge during the Spanish-American War of the Chicago Record's dispatch boat "Hercules," which was the only newspaper boat present at the battle of Santiago, July 3, 1898, where he was between the fire of the fleets. While in that command he cruised 35,000 miles in the waters of Cuba, Porto Rico and the West Indies, covering news and stories. At the close of the Spanish War he became city editor of the Chicago Record, 1898-1901, and then was until 1904 assistant secretary of the Municipal Voters' League, a non-partisan organization which became a great purifying force in the local politics of Chicago by the publicity given to the records and environments of candidates for office. He established and is editor of The Voter, a paper devoted to the advocacy of clean politics, and is writer of a column entitled Stories of the Streets and of the Town, in the Chicago Record-Herald. Mr. Chamberlin is secretary of the State Legislation Committee of the City Council of Chicago, assistant secretary of the Chicago Charter Convention, is captain of the First Infantry, Illinois National Guard, and is a member of the Press, Iroquois and City Clubs. He married in 1903, Irene Celens Byrne. Residence: 5227 Calumet Avenue. Office: 312 Record-Herald Building, Chicago, Ill.

CHAMBERLIN, Thomas Crowder:

Geologist; born in Mattoon, Ill., Sept. 25, 1843. He was graduated from Beloit College, A.B., 1866, receiving the A.M. degree, 1869. University of Michigan, B.S., 1869; and he has received the degree of Ph.D. from the Universities of Michigan and Wisconsin, 1882. LL.D. from the University of Michigan, Beloit College, and Columbian University, 1887, University of Wisconsin, 1904, and Sc.D. from the University of Illinois, 1905. He was professor of natural science in the State Normal School at Whitewater, Wis., 1869-1873; professor of geology in Beloit College, 1873-1882; president of the University of Wisconsin, 1887-1892; head of the Department of Geology, and director of the Walker Museum of the University of Chicago, since 1892. Professor Chamberlin was assistant State geologist of Wisconsin, 1873-1876, chief geologist of Wisconsin 1876-1882, and geologist of the Peary Relief Expedition of 1894. He made a special study of the glaciers of Switzerland in 1878, and has been United States geologist in charge of the Division of glacial geology since 1882. He is editor of the Journal of Geology, author of The Geology of Wisconsin, and joint author with Professor R. D. Salisbury of a General Treatise on Geology, and has been an extensive contributor of papers on geological subjects to the Scientific press. Professor Chamberlin has been a member of the National Academy of Science since 1902, and was president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in 1908. He was appointed a member of the University of Chicago Oriental Investigation Commission in 1909. He married, in 1867, Alma Isabel Wilson. Address: University of Chicago, Chicago.

CHAMBERS, Julius:

Journalist, author; born at Bellefontaine, Ohio, Nov. 21, 1850. He was graduated from Cornell University (Phi Beta Kappa and Delta Kappa Epsilon) in the class of 1870, afterward studied in the Columbia Law School, and later read law under U. S. Attorney General Brewster. He entered the service of the New York Tribune the day after leaving Cornell University in 1870; joined the staff of the New York Herald in February, 1873, and was its city editor 1876-1877. He fitted out an expedition to the headwaters of the Mississippi in 1872, and on June 4, 1872, he discovered Elk Lake, Minnesota, now recognized as the source of the great river. He served on the New York Herald over fifteen years, in the London, Paris, Havana, Madrid, and Washington offices; was called to New York City to become managing editor in October, 1886, and during this period (in 1887) started the Paris edition of The Herald. He was managing editor of the New York World from 1889-1891; and since then has been engaged in literature and travel. He is author of: A Mad World; On a Margin, A Wall Street Story; Lovers Four and Maidens Five; Missing, a Romance of the Sargasso Sea; The Rascal Club; and The Destiny of Doris. He edited an edition of Balzac; is author of a farce produced in New York in 1903, and of a comedy produced in New York in 1904, and has published over a hundred and fifty short stories and numerous travel books. Mr. Chambers is a member of the National Geographical Society, and a 32d-degree Mason; and is non-resident lecturer on journalism at Cornell University. He is a member of the Authors and Lotos Clubs of New York City. Address: 558 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

CHAMBERS, Robert William:

Author and artist; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., May 26, 1865; son of William P. and Caroline (Boughton) Chambers. He studied in the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and afterward in Paris, at the Académie Julian, including among his instructors Lefeburs, Carmon, Conlin and Benjamin-Constant, remaining at work in the Champs de Mars Salon until 1891, when he returned to the United States, and engaged in illustrating in Life, Truth, Vogue, and other publications. Since 1894 he has given his entire time to literary occupations as a writer of books and short stories, also being one of the best known of American writers on field sports and other out-door matters. His books, many of which are ranked with the best sellers, include: In the Quarter; The King in Yellow; The Red Republic; A King and a Few Dukes; With the Band (verse); Lorraine; The Conspirators; Cardigan; The Maids of Paradise; The Maid-at-Arms; Iole; Outdoor Land; Orchard Land; Forest Land; The Fighting Chance; Mountain Land; Tracer of Lost Persons; The Tree of Heaven; The Second Generation; etc. He also wrote for Miss Ada Rehan The Witch of Ellangowan, a drama played in Daly's Theatre in New York City. Mr. Chambers is a member of the Century and Calumet Clubs of New York. He married in New York City, in 1898, Elsa Vaughn Moler. Address: 43 East 83rd Street, New York City.

CHAMBERS, William Lea:

Jurist; born in Columbus, Ga., March 4, 1852; son of William Henry and Anne (Flewellen) Chambers. He attended Emory College, Georgia, taught school for two years while studying law, and was admitted to the bar in 1873, engaging successfully in the practice of the law in Alabama, and became president of the First National Bank of Montgomery, Ala. He became identified with important real estate interests in Northern Alabama, and became president of the company which founded Sheffield, Ala., now the second city of the South in the volume of its iron production, which city has been his home since 1888. He was appointed as the American member of the Joint Commission created by the Berlin Treaty between the United States, England and Germany in reference to the Government of Samoa. and in 1897 he was appointed chief justice of the International Court of Samoa. Since 1900 Judge Chambers has been a member of the Spanish Treaty Claims Commission. He is a member of the Archaeological Institute of America, the National Geographic Society, the Alabama Historical Society and the Chi Phi fraternity. He married, Oct. 27, 1873, Laura Ligon Clopton. Residence: Sheffield, Ala. Office: 1415 H Street, N. W. Washington, D. C.

CHAMPION, Charles Sumner:

Patent lawyer; born in Washington, D. C.; son of Charles and Catherine Elizabeth (Hyde) Champion. He was educated in public and high schools in Washington, and New York University Law School. He has been engaged for twenty years in practice as solicitor, lawyer, mechanical, electrical and chemical expert, principally for the leading inventors of America and Europe, among them Thomas A. Edison, first on the records of the United States Patent Office with 750 patents, and six years, (1894-1900) with Francis H. Richards, second on the list with nearly 700 patents; and first assistant in charge (1893-1894) of all the American patent interests of Dr. Werner von Siemens and the various Siemens companies of Europe and America. He has been patent counsel at different times for members of the late firm of Evarts, Choate & Beaman, patent counsel continuously since 1901 for Frank E. Kinsman, inventor of the automatic train stop, etc., and for Elias E. Ries, inventor of the alternating current railway system, etc. Politically he is an independent Republican, and in 1905 started and conducted in the Seventh Assembly District of Brooklyn the first campaign in New York State for the selection of party leaders by direct primary nominations, and he is a member of the Executive Committee of the Brooklyn Young Republican Club. He is a member of the New York State Historical Association and the Phi Delta Phi fraternity. Residence: Ridgewood, N. J. Office: 50 Church Street, New York City.

CHAMPNEY, Elizabeth Williams:

Author; born in Springfield, Ohio, Feb. 6, 1850; daughter of Judge Samuel B. and Caroline (Johnson) Williams. She was graduated from Vassar College as A.B., 1869, and married in Manhattan, Kan., May 15, 1873, J. Wells Champney, distinguished artist, who died May 1, 1903, and by whom she had two children: Edouard Frere Champney (A. B. Harvard, and École des Beaux Arts), architect, and Mrs. Marie (Champney) Humphreys (A. B. Vassar, 1896), artist, who died Dec. 3, 1906. Mrs. Champney is author of forty juvenile books, among others the Three Vassar Girls Abroad series, Witch Winnie series, Great Grandmother's Girls series, Dames and Daughters of Colonial Days series; and for adults: Romance of the French Chateaux (three volumes); Romance of the French Abbeys; and Romance of the Italian Villas (two volumes); also many magazine articles and stories. She is vice-president of the Messiah Home for Children, New York City, and is a member of the Congregational Church, the Society of Colonial Dames, the Vassar Alumnae, American Historical Association, and the Wednesday Afternoon and Sorosis Clubs of New York City. Mrs. Champney is familiar with France by many tours and long residence in that country and has made occasional visits to Italy and other parts of Europe. Address: "The Elmstead" (her ancestral home), Deerfield, Mass.

CHANCELLOR, William Estabrook:

Superintendent of schools, university lecturer and author; born in Dayton, Ohio, Sept. 25, 1867; son of David Warwick Chancellor and Harriet (Estabrook) Chancellor. He was graduated from Amherst College as A.B. in 1889, and M.A. in 1895; from Long Island Medical School in 1892, from Harvard Law School in 1895, and from the School of Pedagogy of New York University in 1904. He was superintendent of schools at Bloomfield, N. J., from 1897-1904; of Patterson, N. J., from 1904-1906, and of the District of Columbia, 1906-1908. He was lecturer at New York University, 1904-1906, and has been lecturer at George Washington since 1906; Johns Hopkins University since 1907; and the University of Chicago and the University of Wooster since 1907, on Education. He is now superintendent of schools of South Norwalk, Town of Norwalk, Conn. He is author of:

A Theory of Notions, Ideals and Values in Education; Our Schools, Their Administration and Supervision; Our City Schools — Their Direction and Management; and ten works on mathematics, five works in American history, various text-books and of numerous magazine articles. He is a member of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the American Historical Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, etc.; and a member of the Masonic order, the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, the Phi Beta Kappa Society, Cosmos Club of Washington, D. C., and Alpha Delta Phi Club of New York. He married at Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 14, 1892, Louise Beecher, who died in Washington, D. C., Aug. 18, 1908, there are four daughters and one son. Address: 28 East Avenue, Norwalk, Conn.

CHANDLER, Albert Brown:

President of the Postal-Telegraph Cable Company; born in West Randolph, Vt., Aug. 29, 1840. He is of the American family of Chandlers, which had its origin in three brothers who settled in Roxbury, Mass., in 1637, and is also a descendant of John Winthrop, first governor of Massachusetts, through his daughter, Mary Winthrop. He was educated in the schools of West Randolph, Vt., spending his vacation learning the printing art and working as a compositor, and also learning telegraphy and working as a messenger in the local telegraph office. He was manager of the Western Union Telegraph office at Bellaire, Ohio, 1858-1859; was in the office of the superintendent of the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad in 1859 for three months, then became agent for the same road at Manchester, Pa., until 1863. In 1863 he was cipher operator in the War Department, and in October of the same year, distributing clerk for General Eckert, superintendent of telegraph of the Department of the Potomac, until 1866. He was chief clerk in the office of superintendent of the Eastern Division in 1866, and was also placed in charge of transatlantic cable traffic, and later, in addition, was made superintendent of the Sixth District of the Eastern Division until January, 1875, when he became assistant general manager of the Atlantic and Pacific Telegraph Company, in which he became successively secretary, trustee, treasurer and vice-president, and in 1879 president until the absorption of that company by the Western Union Telegraph Company in 1882. He was also president of the Fuller Electric Company, one of the first companies engaged in the arc system of electric lighting, in October, 1881. He was employed in December, 1884, at instance of John W. Mackay, as counsel by the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, and appointed receiver of the same company in 1885 by the Supreme Court of New York. Through his efforts the company was reorganized and he became its president and manager; also general manager of the United Lines Telegraph Company, and director, vice-president and member of the executive committee of the Commercial Cable Company, and of the Pacific Postal Telegraph Company; and director and later president of the Commercial Telegraph Company. With several chief officials of the Western Union Telegraph Company, he effected in 1887 arrangements for the discontinuance of the previously existing destructive competition. He is now president of the New England Telegraph Company; vice-president of the Commercial Cable Company, the Postal Telegraph and Cable Company, the Otis Elevator Company, and the National Surety Company. Mr. Chandler married at West Randolph, Vt., Oct. 11, 1864, Marilla Eunice Stedman. Residence: 389 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn. Address: 253 Broadway, New York City.

CHANDLER, Francis Ward:

Architect and educator; born in Boston, Sept. 30, 1844; son of Samuel Ward Chandler (A.B. Harvard, 1822). Soon after his graduation from the Lancaster (Mass.) Academy in 1861, he enlisted as a private in the 53d Massachusetts Volunteers, and after the service of two years entered upon the study of architecture. From 1864 to 1867 he was engaged as draughtsman and assistant with the firm of Ware & Van Brunt, architects, in Boston; and he was a student in the architectural schools of Paris, 1867-1869, and assistant in the Architectural Department of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Mr. Chandler was assistant architect of the Treasury Department in Washington, 1871-1874, and thereafter practised his profession in Boston until appointed in 1888 to the chair of architecture in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, which he has since held. Mr. Chandler has contributed articles on architectural subjects to the Technology Quarterly, is editor of Municipal Architecture in Boston, and author of: Construction Details, prepared as a text-book for the use of the students of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and of Notes on Limes, Cements, Mortars and Concretes. Since 1896 he has been advisory architect to the mayor of Boston, and, since 1898 a member of the Board of Art Commissioners of the City of Boston; and he is an honorary member of the American Institute of Architects. He married in Boston, Oct. 12, 1882, Alice Daland. Address 195 Marlborough St., Boston, Mass.

CHANDLER, Julian Alvin Carroll:

Educator and editor; born at Guineys, Caroline County, Va., Oct. 29, 1872; son of Dr. Joseph A. and Emuella Josephine (White) Chandler. He was graduated from William and Mary College, A.B., 1891, A.M., 1892, Johns Hopkins University, Ph.D. in history and English, 1896, and LL.D. Richmond College, 1904. He was instructor in history and English in William and Mary College, 1891-1892, principal of public schools in Houston, Va., 1892-1893; instructor in Morgan College, Baltimore, 1894-1896; dean of the Faculty of the Woman's College at Richmond, 1896-1899, and acting president of same, 1899-1900; acting professor of history and literature, 1897-1900, and professor of English, 1900-1904, in Richmond College, dean of Richmond Academy, 1902-1904; editor of educational publications for Silver, Burdette & Co., publishers, New York, 1904-1907. Dr. Chandler was director of history and education of the Jamestown Exposition of 1907, and is now editor of the Virginia Journal of education, and professor of history and political science in Richmond College. He is a lecturer of the Virginia Summer School of Methods, and is author of: Representation in Virginia, 1896; History of Suffrage in Virginia, 1899; Makers of Virginia History, 1904; and is joint author of: Geography of Virginia, 1902, and Makers of American History, 1904. He is a member of the Board of Editors of The South in the Building of the Nation and is also a member of the American Historical Association, Virginia Historical Society, Society for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities, National Educational Association, Political Science Association, the Phi Beta Kappa Society and the Kappa Alpha fraternity. Dr. Chandler married in Churchland, Va., July 10, 1897, Lenore Burten Duke. Address: Richmond, Va.

CHANDLER, Lloyd Horwitz:

Lieutenant commander U. S. N.; born in Washington, D. C., Aug. 17, 1869; third son of William E. Chandler, late secretary of the Navy and United States senator from New Hampshire. He was appointed from New Hampshire to the United States Naval Academy, entering in September, 1884, and being graduated in June, 1888. He served as a naval cadet on board the United States steamer Boston, was commissioned ensign, July 1, 1890; promoted to lieutenant, junior grade, in April, 1898, to lieutenant March 3, 1899, and to lieutenant-commander July 1, 1905. In February, 1898, he became secretary to Commodore John A. Howell, and served with him on the Northern Patrol Squadron and the Havana blockade during the Spanish-American War. In April, 1899, he went to duty aboard the torpedo-boat Mackenzie, first as executive and later as commanding officer; put the Scorpion in commission as executive officer in August, 1899, and in the following October went to the Bureau of Ordnance, assuming charge of the torpedo and mine work of that bureau. He assumed command of the torpedo-boat Bailey in July, 1901, and, later was assigned to command of the task of transfer of a fleet of torpedo-boat destroyers from the Atlantic to the Philippines, which he successfully accomplished. He then served from May to Aug., 1904, as assistant to the naval attaché, Tokio, Japan, during the Russo-Japanese War. He returned to the Bureau of Ordnance, Jan. 21, 1905, and in Sept., 1906, joined the U. S. S. Connecticut, where he served as executive officer and navigator until Aug., 1907, when he reported for duty as flag secretary to the commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, Rear-Admiral Robley D. Evans, U. S. N., and served as such on board the flagship Connecticut during the voyage of that fleet from Hampton Roads, through the Straits of Magellan to San Francisco, during the winter of 1907-1908. When Admiral Evans hauled down his flag at San Francisco on May 9, 1908, Lieutenant-commander Chandler proceeded to duty in the Bureau of Navigation. He married Agatha Buford Edson, only daughter of the late Major Theodore Edson of the Ordnance Corps of the United States Army, and they have a son and daughter. Address: Care Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

CHANDLER, William Eaton:

Lawyer; born in Concord, N. H., Dec. 28, 1835; son of Nathan S. and Mary Ann Chandler. He was graduated from the law school, in 1854, of Harvard University with the degree of LL.B. In early life he was a newspaper writer and court reporter, and in 1855 was admitted to the bar, and commenced to practice in Concord. He served during the years 1862, 1863, 1864 and 1881 as a member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives, and as speaker in 1863 and 1864. In 1865 he was appointed judge advocate-general in the Navy Department. In the same year he became assistant secretary of the Treasury, and in President Arthur's administration he was Secretary of the Navy from 1882 to 1885. In 1887 he was elected to the United States Senate, and was a member of the Fiftieth to the Fifty-sixth Congresses. At the expiration of his term in the Senate he was appointed a member of the Spanish treaty claims Commission and was president of that body until he resigned in 1907. He was one of the counsel for the relatives of Mrs. Mary Baker Glover Eddy

WILLIAM EATON CHANDLER
-Former U. S. Senator

in their suit against persons about her alleged to be exercising undue influence. Mr. Chandler has for many years been interested in the leading newspaper of New Hampshire and has always been a vigorous fighter, an energetic worker and at the present writing (1909) retains his faculties to a remarkable degree, having taken an active interest in the campaign of the year 1908, writing and speaking on subjects connected therewith with his accustomed force. Address: Concord, N. H., and Washington, D. C.

CHANLER, Lewis Stuyvesant:

Lawyer, former. lieutenant-governor of New York; born in Newport, R. I., Sept. 24, 1869; son of Hon. John Winthrop Chanler and Margaret Ward Chanler, daughter of Samuel Ward, Jr., and Margaret, daughter of William B. Astor. He was educated at the Columbia Law School murder, and in other prominent cases. He was admitted to the bar in 1891, was counsel in the defense of Carlyle Harris and Roland B. Molineaux, on trial for murder, and in other prominent cases. He was Democratic and Independence League nominee for lieutenant-governor of New York in 1906 and was elected. He was nominated on the Democratic ticket for governor of New York in 1908, but was defeated in the election. He is a member of the Board of Managers of the Hudson River State Hospital and the House of Refuge, Randall's Island. He married Alice Chamberlain. Residence: 14 E. Seventy-fifth Street. Address: 346 Broadway, New York City.

CHANLER, William Astor:

Explorer, author and ex-congressman; born in Newport, R. I., June 11, 1867; grandson of William B. Astor. He was graduated from Harvard in 1887. Mr. Chanler spent the year of 1892 exploring in Africa and made a second expedition to Africa from 1892 to 1894. For these services he was made honorary member of the Royal Geographical Society of Vienna and of the British Royal Geographical Society. In 1896 he became a member of Tammany Hall and in 1897 was elected to the State Legislature. At the outbreak of the Spanish-American War he equipped a regiment, which being refused by Governor Black, he left, going to Tampa, Fla. He was soon after appointed by President McKinley assistant adjutant on General Wheeler's staff. At the close of the war in 1898 he was elected to Congress from the Fourteenth District of New York, serving from 1899 to 1901. Mr. Chanler is a member of the American Geographical Society, and the St. Nicholas Society. He is author of: Through Jungle and Deserts, and Travels in Eastern Africa. Address: Rokeley, Barrytown, N. Y.

CHANNING, Edward:

Professor of history in Harvard University; born in Boston, June 15, 1856; son of William Ellery Channing, distinguished poet and essayist, and Ellen Kilshaw (Fuller) Channing. He was graduated from Harvard College, A.B., with honors in history, and from Harvard University, Ph.D., 1880. Since 1884 he has been instructor, assistant professor and professor of history in Harvard University. Professor Channing has been an extensive contributor to historical literature; was associated with the late Justin Winsor in authorship of The Narrative and Critical History of America, 1886-1888; with Thomas Wentworth Higginson on English History for Americans, 1893, and with Professor Albert Bushnell Hart on Guide to the Study of American History, 1896; A Students' History of the United States, 1897, and other text-books; and wrote the United States of America, 1765-1865, in the Cambridge Historical Series. He is also author of: Town and County Government in the English Colonies of North America, 1884; The Narragansett Planters, a Study of Causes, 1886; The Navigation Laws, 1890; History of the United States, Vol. I, The Planting of a Nation in the New World, 1905; Vol. II, A Century of Colonial History, 1660-1760, 1908; also various contributions to historical publications. Professor Channing married in West Newton, Mass., July 22, 1886, Alice Thacher, and they have two daughters. Address: 74 Sparks Street, Cambridge, Mass.

CHANNING, Walter:

Alienist; born in Concord, Mass., April 14, 1849; son of William Ellery Channing, distinguished poet and essayist, and Ellen (Fuller) Channing. After completing his preparatory education in the Chauncy Hall School in Boston, and a year of scientific work in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he entered the Harvard Medical School, from which he was graduated as M.D. in 1872; and he was an honorary fellow of Clark University, 1890-1892, and received the degree of LL.D. from Tufts College, 1900. Dr. Channing was assistant physician of the State Asylum for Insane Criminals, 1875-1877; first assistant physician of the State Insane Hospital at Danvers, Mass., 1878-1879; has been superintendent of a private hospital for mental diseases since 1879. He was professor of mental diseases in Tufts College Medical School, 1895-1903, and was appointed chairman of trustees of Boston State Hospital, 1908. He has attained distinction in connection with the pathology and treatment of mental and nervous diseases, and has contributed many papers to medical journals in relation to his specialty. He is a member of the American Neurological Association, the American Medico-Psychological Association and the American Medical Association, as well as other medical societies. Dr. Channing married, June 5, 1878, Anna K. Morse. Address: Brookline, Mass.

CHANUTE, Octave:

Civil engineer; born in Paris, France, Feb. 18, 1832; son of Joseph and Eliza (De Bonnaire) Chanut. He was educated in New York City private schools and by tutors. He was engaged as a railroad engineer from 1850 to 1884, and has been in practice as a consulting engineer since 1884. He built important bridges across the Missouri and Mississippi Rivers; reported on rapid transit for New York City; reported on wood preservation and has written papers on various engineering subjects. He has been president of the Chicago Tie Preserving Company since 1894. He is a member and ex-president of the American Society of Civil Engineers and of the Western Society of Civil Engineers; an honorary member of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers, and of the British Institute of Civil Engineers; a member of the Société des Ingénieurs Civils de France, and was vice-president in 1886 of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Engineering from the University of Illinois. His favorite recreation is aerial navigation, and he has served in an advisory capacity for the Wright brothers and others in attempts at aviation and was one of the earliest to point out practical ways for the navigation of the air. He married at Peoria, Ill., March 12, 1857, Annie James, and they have six children. Address: 61 Cedar Street, Chicago, Ill.

CHAPIN, Henry Edgerton:

Educator, biologist; born at Wilbraham, Mass., May 9, 1859; son of Samuel W. and Maria M. (Damon) Chapin. He was graduated from the Boston University, as B.Sc. and the Massachusetts Agricultural College, as B.Sc. in 1881; was graduate student at Johns Hopkins University in 1886 and 1887; received the degree of M.Sc. in 1893 from Michigan Agricultural College, and D.Sc. (honorary) in 1908 from McKendree College. He was teacher and editor from 1881 to 1886, teacher of the Natural Sciences, Pennsylvania State Normal School, Bloomsburg, Pa., 1888-1890; teacher of biology in the Springfield (Massachusetts) High School, 1890-1891; professor of biology and geology at the Ohio University (Athens, 1891-1900; and he was in charge of the Department of Biology, summer school, New York University, in 1900; teacher of biology and lecturer, New York City; president of the Department of Botany in Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, and member of the Council. He is joint author of Elementary Zoölogy and Laboratory Guide; and author of monographs and scientific articles. He was captain of Company B, 17th Regiment, of the Ohio National Guard, 1892-1893. He is a member of the American Society of Naturalists, honorary fellow of the Society of Biological Chemistry, London; charter member of the Ohio State Academy of Sciences, and also member of the University Club of Brooklyn. He married at Athens, Ohio, June 29, 1893, Endora M. Hoffman, and they have two daughters. Address: 49 Lefferts Avenue, Richmond Hill, L. I., N. Y.

CHAPIN, Roy Dikeman:

Manufacturer of automobiles; born in Lansing, Mich., Feb. 23, 1880; son of Edward C. and Ella Rose (King) Chapin. He was educated in the Lansing High School and the University of Michigan, and he has been connected with the automobiles industry almost since its inception. In 1906 he organized the E. R. Thomas Detroit Company, which later became the Chalmers-Detroit Motor Company, makers of the Chalmers-Detroit cars, of which he is treasurer, general manager and director. He is also secretary and director of the Hudson Motor Car Company, director of the Fairview Savings Bank. Mr. Chapin is a member of the Executive Committee of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, is a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, and of the Country, Detroit, University, Detroit Racquet and Curling, Automobile, Detroit Boat, Detroit Boat Club, Yachtsmen and the Bankers' Club of Detroit. Residence: Pasadena Apartments. Office: Chalmers-Detroit Motor Co., Detroit, Mich.

CHAPMAN, Frank Michler:

Ornithologist; born at Englewood, N. J., June 12, 1864. He received an academic education, and he has been associate curator of the Department of Ornithology and Mammalogy in the American Museum of Natural History since 1887, and curator since 1908. He was president of the Linnean Society of New York City in 1897; is honorary member of the New York Zoological Society and a fellow of the New York Academy of Sciences (vice-president, 1907. He was elected vice-president in 1905 of the American Ornithologists' Union; is a foreign member of the British Ornithologists' Union, and a member of the Society of Colonial Wars and of the Century Association. Mr. Chapman is author of: Handbook of Birds of Eastern North America, 1895; Bird-Life, a Guide to the Study of Our Common Birds, 1897; Bird studies with a Camera, 1900; Color Key to North American Birds, 1903; Economic Value of Birds to the State, 1903; the Warblers of North America, 1907; Camps and Cruises of an Ornithologist, 1908; and also numerous papers on birds and mammals. He is editor of Bird-Lore, and associate editor of The Auk. Mr. Chapman married, in 1898, Fannie Bates Emury, and they have one son. Residence: Englewood, N. J. Address: American Museum of Natural History, New York City.

CHAPMAN, J. Wilbur:

Clergyman, evangelist; born at Richmond, Ind., June 17, 1859; son of A. H. and Lorinda Chapman. He was educated in the schools of Richmond, Ind., and Oberlin, Ohio, and at the Lake Forest University, graduating from there as A.B., 1879, and from Lane Theological Seminary, 1882; and he received the degree of D.D. from Wooster University, Ohio. He was ordained in the ministry of the Presbyterian Church and was pastor at Albany, New York, Philadelphia, Pa., and at the Fourth Presbyterian Church of New York City; and since 1903 has been executive secretary of the Committee on Evangelistic Work of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. In that capacity he has conducted evangelistic services in all the chief cities of the country, and has added largely to the membership of the Presbyterian and other Evangelical churches. He is the originator of what is known as the simultaneous plan of evangelistic meetings. Dr. Chapman has been an extensive contributor to the religious press, and is author of several books including: Received Ye the Holy Ghost; And Peter; Kadesh Barnea; The Lost Crown; The Secret of a Happy Day; The Surrendered Life; Spiritual Life in the Sunday School; From Life to Life; Present Day Parables; Life of D. L. Moody; Present Day Evangelism; and Judas, and Fishing for Men. Dr. Chapman is also the director of the Winona Assembly Bible Conference, which holds its annual sessions at Winona Lake. It is one of the largest assemblies of its kind in the world. Dr. Chapman married in 1882, Irene E. Steddom, and after her death, married, at Albany, N. Y., in 1888, Agnes Prun Strain, who died June 25, 1907. Addresses: 156 Fifth Avenue, New York City, and Winona Lake, Ind.

CHAPMAN, Pleasant Thomas:

Lawyer and congressman; born on a farm in Johnson County, Ill., Oct. 8, 1854. He attended the public schools until he was seventeen years of age, when he went to McKendree College at Lebanon, Ill., graduating therefrom as A.B. in 1876. He was admitted to the bar at Mount Vernon, Ill., June, 1878, and has since practised at Vienna, Ill. He is also actively engaged in the banking business and farming. He was elected superintendent of public schools in Johnson County in 1877, and served five years; was elected county judge in 1882, and reelected in 1886; was elected State senator from the Fifty-first Senatorial District in 1890; and reelected in 1894 and in 1898. He was elected as a Republican to the Fifty-ninth Congress from the Twenty-fourth District of Illinois in 1904, and in 1906 and 1908 was reelected to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses. Judge Chapman is married and has three children. Address: Vienna, Ill.

CHAPPLE, Joseph Mitchell:

Editor; born in La Porte City, Iowa, July 18, 1867. He was educated at Cornell College, Mt. Vernon, Iowa, and became engaged in newspaper work in Dakota, Ashland, Wis., and Chicago till 1897, when he took charge of The Bostonian, afterwards changing the title to The National Magazine, of which he has since been the editor and publisher. Mr. Chapple is a unique type among American editors for the reason that he carries on his editorial work by means of close personal touch with men of affairs in the United States instead of in a secluded sanctum. He is a frequent visitor to Washington, making close at hand studies of events, and his magazine exhibits the results of his methods of work. He is author of the following works: The Minor Chord; Boss Bart, Politician; Mark Hanna; Heart Throbs; The Panama Canal. He married, in 1886, Annie F. Ryder at Grand Rapids, N. D. Address: 944 Dorchester Avenue, Boston, Mass.

CHARLTON, James:

Railway official. He began his railway experience in the employ of the New Castle and Carlisle Railway, at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, in 1847, as a junior clerk in the freight department, advancing to chief clerk and cashier, and serving there until 1857, when he went to Canada and entered the service of the Great Western Railway of Canada as assistant to the chief clerk of the Audit office, in charge of statistics and freight accounts; and later he became chief clerk, auditor and general agent. On March 22, 1870, he became general passenger and ticket agent of the North Missouri Railroad, and July 13, 1871, he became general passenger and ticket agent of the Chicago and Alton Railroad, in which service he continued until Jan. 1, 1900. Since Oct., 1900, Mr. Charlton has held his present position as chairman of the Transcontinental Passenger Association. Office: Railway Exchange Building, Chicago.

CHASE, Emory Albert:

Jurist; born at Hensonville, Greene County, N. Y., Aug. 31, 1854; son of Albert and Laura O. (Woodworth) Chase. He was educated at Hensonville Village School, and at Fort Edward, N. Y. He then studied law and was admitted to the bar May 6, 1880, and engaged in the practice of law at Catskill, N. Y., until 1896. Judge Chase is a Republican in politics, and was elected supervisor of the Town of Catskill, N. Y., in 1880; and was a member of the Board of Education of Catskill, 1882-1896, the last five years being president of the board. In Nov., 1896, he was elected as justice of the Supreme Court for the Third Judicial District, and Jan. 8, 1900, was designated an associate justice of the Appellate Division, Third Department. On Dec. 31, 1905, he was designated as an associate judge of the Court of Appeals, under the Constitutional Amendment of 1889. Judge Chase is president of the Greene County Bar Association, first vice-president of the Catskill Savings Bank; director of the Tamers' National Bank and president of the Catskill Rural Cemetery Association. He is a Presbyterian in his religious affiliation. He is a member of the Rip Van Winkle Club of Catskill, N. Y., and the Fort Orange Club of Albany, N. Y. Judge Chase married at Prattsville, Greene County, N. Y., June 30, 1885, Mary E. Churchill, and they have two children. Address: 25 Prospect Avenue, Catskill, N. Y.

CHASE, Frederick Lincoln:

Astronomer; born at Boulder, Colo., June 28, 1865; son of George Franklin and Augusta Ann (Staples) Chase. He was graduated from the University of Colorado as A.B. in 1886, and from Yale as Ph.D. in 1891. Dr. Chase has been astronomer at Yale Observatory since 1891, and was instructor in the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, 1894-1907. He is author of various astronomical papers published in the Transactions of the Astronomical Observatory of Yale University. Dr. Chase is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America, the Connecticut Academy, the Sigma Xi Society, and the Delta Tau Delta fraternity. Address: Yale Observatory, New Haven, Conn.

CHASE, George:

Jurist; born in Portland, Me., Dec. 29, 1849; son of David T. and Martha E. Chase. He was graduated from Yale College as A.B. in 1870, being valedictorian of the class and receiving the appointment to Phi Beta Kappa; and was graduated from the Columbia Law School in 1873 as LL.B. He was assistant professor of municipal law, 1875-1878; professor of criminal law and procedure, and of torts, 1878-1891, at Columbia University; and since 1891 he has been dean of the New York Law School. Mr. Chase is a member of the American Bar Association, New York State Bar Association, Association of the Bar of the City of New York, American Geographical Society, American Academy of Political and Social Science, American Social Science Association, the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He is author of: Chase's Cases on Torts; and of The Students' Blackstone; he is also editor of Stephen's Digest of the Law of Evidence, and Chase's New York Code of Civil Procedure. Mr. Chase married in Boston, Nov. 25, 1884, Eva R. Hawley. Residence: 309 West 74th Street. Office: 35 Nassau Street, New York City.

CHASE, George Colby:

President of Bates College; born at Unity, Me., March 15, 1844; son of Joseph and Jane (Dyer) Chase. He was graduated from Bates College in 1868 as A.B.; was a student at Cobb Divinity School, 1870-1871; a graduate student at Harvard, 1871-1872, and received the degrees of D.D. from Colby College in 1895 and of LL.D. from Colorado University, 1895, University of New Brunswick, 1900, and from Bowdoin College, 1902. He was teacher of Greek and Latin in the New Hampton Literary Institution, 1868-1870, and was professor of rhetoric and English literature, 1872-1894, and since 1894 has been president and professor of psychology and logic of Bates College, at Lewiston, Maine. He is a member of the Modern Language Association of America, the Religious Education Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and numerous educational associations. Dr. Bates married at Norway, Maine, June 12, 1872, Emma Francetta Millett, and they have five children. Residence: 6 Frye St. Office: Bates College, Lewiston, Maine.

CHASE, Lewis Nathaniel:

Educator, writer; born at Sidney, Me., June 27, 1873; son of Ethan Allen and Augusta (Field) Chase. He was educated in public and private schools of Rochester, N. Y., University of Rochester, Leland Stanford, Harvard, Grenoble and Columbia University, being graduated from the latter as A.B. 1895, A.M. 1898, and Ph.D. 1903. He became assistant in literature, Columbia University, 1899-1900, assistant in comparative literature, 1900-1901, tutor in comparative literature, 1901-1902, public lecturer on literary subjects, New York and vicinity, in 1903; instructor in English, Indiana University, in 1903 and 1904; assistant professor of English, Indiana University from 1904 to 1907; professor of English, University of Louisville, 1907 to 1908. Resident in Europe since 1908, and since 1909 lecturer (professeur au cours libre) in the Faculty of Letters of the University of Bordeaux, the first American to give a course of public lectures in any French university outside of Paris, and with the exception of the exchange professors on the Hyde foundation, the first American to give such a course in France. He is author of: The English Heroic Play (Macmillan), 1903; editor of Emerson's Compensation (University Press of Sewanee, Tenn.), 1906; is literary correspondent of the Boston Herald and a contributor to newspapers and magazines. He is a member of the Modern Language Association of America. He married Pearl Rowell Mikesell, of New York. Address: 14, rue Duplessis, Bordeaux, France.

CHASE, Walter Greenough:

Physician; born in Boston, May 30, 1859; son of Charles G. and Relief J. (McQuesten) Chase. He was graduated from Nobles School, Boston, A.B., 1882, Harvard Medical School, M.D., 1901 and Johns Hopkins Medical School, post-graduate, 1902. He traveled in Alaska in 1883 as correspondent of the Boston Herald, traveled in South America and in Japan, 1893-1897, and made three trips around the world between 1902 and 1907. He established the Mason Regulator Co., steam regulating devices in 1883 and was connected with it until 1893. Dr. Chase is not a practising physician, but has occupied himself with medical research. He adapted the cinematograph to the study of nervous diseases, especially epilepsy, and demonstrated in before the leading medical societies of the United States. He was sent as United States delegate to the International Medical Congress at Lisbon, 1906 and also demonstrated before the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons in Edinburgh and other English medical societies. Mr. Chase is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the American Medical Society, and a member of the Massachusetts Commission on Old Age Pensions. He is also a member of the University, Country, Massachusetts Automobile Club, and Aero Club of New England, Boston; University and Harvard Clubs, New York City, and Royal Automobile Club of London, England. He married in Wiscasset, Me., Oct. 20, 1906, Frances Scott Hubbard, of Charleston, S. C., and has a son. Address: Boston, Mass.

CHASE, William Martin:

Jurist; born at Canaan, N. H., Dec. 28, 1837; son of Horace and Abigail (Martin) Chase. He was graduated from Dartmouth College, with the degree of B.S. in 1858, and that college conferred upon him the degrees of A.M., 1879 and LL.D., 1898; and he was elected an honorary member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, connected with Dartmouth College, in 1883. After teaching for a time in Henniker Academy in New Hampshire, he took up the study of law, and in August, 1862, was admitted to the bar of the highest court of New Hampshire, practising law at Concord, until appointed, April 1, 1891, judge of the Supreme Court of New Hampshire, in which office he continued until reaching the constitutional limit of age, Dec. 28, 1907. Judge Chase is a Democrat. He was clerk of the New Hampshire Senate in 1871; and was a member of the New Hampshire Senate in 1909. He was chairman of the commission appointed to revise and codify the laws of the State of New Hampshire, upon the report of which commission the Public Statutes of New Hampshire were enacted into law at the January session of the New Hampshire Legislature in 1891. Judge Chase is a trustee of Dartmouth College. He married at Concord, N. H., March 18,

LLOYD H. CHANDLER
Lieutenant Commander U. S. Navy

1863, Ellen S. Abbott, and they have a son, Arthur H. Chase, State Librarian of New Hampshire. Address: Concord, N. H.

CHASE, William Sheafe:

Clergyman; born at Amboy, Lee County, Ill., Jan. 11, 1858; son of Newton Simpson and Harriet (Peckham) Chase. He was educated in the public schools and high school at Providence, R. I.; was graduated from Brown University, A.B., 1881, and received the degree A.M., 1884 from the same university; and in 1885 he was graduated with the B.D. degree from the Episcopal Theological School, in Cambridge, Mass. Mr. Chase was principal of the high school at Bristol, R. I., 1881-1883, and became assistant minister of Emanuel Church, Newbury Street, Boston, in 1885. He was rector of St. James' Church, Woonsocket, R. I., 1885-1902, honorary canon of Garden City Cathedral, and chaplain of St. Paul's School, Garden City, N. Y., 1902-1905; rector of Christ Church, Brooklyn, since 1905. He is a Phi Beta Kappa man and a member of the Delta Upsilon fraternity and was editor-in-chief of the Delta Upsilon Quinquennial Catalogue in 1884. Mr. Chase has traveled extensively in Europe. He is director of the Society for the Prevention of Crime of New York City; president of the Brooklyn Clerical League; vice-president of the Brooklyn Juvenile Probation Association, and president of the Union Social Service Committee; and a member of the Hanover Club of Brooklyn. Mr. Chase married at Bristol, R. I., Jan. 11, 1887, Susan Gladding Collins, who died Dec. 21, 1897, leaving one son, Newton Gladding. Address: 481 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHATARD, Francis Silas Marean:

Catholic bishop of Vincennes; born in Baltimore, Md., Dec. 13, 1834; son of Ferdinand E. and Eliza Anna (Marean) Chatard. He was graduated from Mount Saint Mary's College at Emmitsburg, Md., in 1853, with the degree of A.B., then took the medical course at the University of Maryland, from which he was graduated, with the degree of M.D., in 1856. After his graduation there he decided to enter the church, and became a student at the Urban College of Propaganda in Rome, Italy, Nov. 1857, in which he took the degree of D.D. in 1863. He became vice-rector and later rector of the American College at Rome, which office he administered until 1878, when he was appointed and consecrated bishop of the diocese of Vincennes, in the State of Indiana, establishing his episcopal residence at Indianapolis, to which city the see was transferred later. He has contributed extensively to religious literature, and is the author of: Christian Truths; Occasional Essays, and also of various pastorals and addresses. Address: 1437 North Meridian Street, Indianapolis, Ind.

CHATARD, Thomas Marean:

Mining engineer; born in Baltimore, Md., Dec. 15, 1848. He was graduated from Mt. St. Mary's College with the degree of A.B. in 1867, and received those of S.B. at Harvard University in 1871, and Ph.D. at Heidelberg in 1876. He is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers and other societies, and has contributed scientific articles to various journals. He married in Baltimore, Feb. 12, 1889, Eleanor A. Williams. Address: 1716 Rhode Island Avenue, Washington, D. C.

CHATFIELD, T. I.:

Jurist. He was engaged in the practice of law in Brooklyn, N. Y., until appointed by President Roosevelt in 1907 to the office of judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of New York. Address: United States Court, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHATFIELD-TAYLOR, Hobart Chatfield:

Author; born in Chicago, March 24, 1865; son of Henry Hobart and Adelaide (Chatfield) Taylor. He was educated in the Trinity School, Tivoli, N. Y., and in European schools and Cornell University, from which he was graduated as B.S. in 1886. He established in Chicago, in 1888, a weekly political review named America, conducting it until 1890, when he went abroad and was special correspondent of the Chica- go Daily News. He was consul of Spain at Chicago during the World's Columbian Exposition and was a member of the Spanish Commission to that World's Fair. He has contributed to all principal magazines, and is author of: With Edged Tools; An American Peeress; Two Women and a Fool; The Land of the Castenet; The Vice of Fools; The Idle Born; The Crimson Wing; Fame's Pathway; Moliere, a Biography, etc. He has lectured upon Moliere and the French drama of the Seventeenth Century at the University of Chicago, Cornell, Bryn Mawr and other colleges. He is a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England; and has received the decorations of Chevalier of the Légion d'Honneur and officier de l'Instruction Publique, chevalier of the Order of St. James (Portugal), officer of the Order of the Bust of the Liberator (Venezuela), and chevalier of the Royal Order of Isabella the Catholic (Spain). He is a member of the New Hampshire Society of the Cincinnati and of the Illinois Society of Colonial Wars. Mr. Chatfield-Taylor married at Chicago, June 10, 1890, Rose, daughter of the late Chas. B. Farwell, United States senator from Illinois; and they have four children. Residence: Lake Forest, Ill. Office: 100 Washington, St., Chicago, Ill.

CHENEY, Charles Edward:

Reformed Episcopal bishop; born in Canandaigua, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1836; son of Dr. E. Warren and Altie Wheeler (Chipman) Cheney. He was graduated from Hobart College, A.B., 1857, following which he took the course at the Protestant Episcopal Theologian Seminary at Alexandria, Va., and he received the degree of D.D. from Iowa College in 1871. He was ordained in the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church, Nov. 21, 1858, and after two brief pastorates in New York State became rector of Christ Church, Chicago, in which relation he has continued ever since. During the years from 1869 to 1873 he became involved in ecclesiastical difficulties growing out of doctrinal views concerning baptism, and on Dec. 2, 1873, he joined Bishop George David Cummins, D.D., in the organization of the Reformed Episcopal Church, and Dec. 14, 1873, was consecrated bishop of the Reformed Episcopal Church, with jurisdiction over the churches of the Northwest, subsequently becoming bishop of the Synod of Chicago, in which position he continues, retaining also the rectorate of Christ Church. June, 1908 he received the degree of S.T.D. from his Alma Mater, Hobart College. He is a member of the American Historical Association, American Geographical Society, Chicago University Club, Chicago Historical Society, Chicago Literary Club, the Illinois Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and the Illinois Society of Mayflower Descendants. Bishop Cheney, besides a volume of Sermons, published 1880, is author of: What Do Reformed Episcopalians Believe?, 1888; The Enlistment of the Christian Soldier, 1892; A King of France Unnamed in History, 1902; The Second Norman Conquest of England, 1907. He married in Chicago, April 25, 1860, Clara Emma Griswold. Address: 2409 Michigan Avenue, Chicago.

CHENEY, Charles H.:

Consular official. He was appointed consul at Matanzas, Jan. 6, 1892, and retired in June, 1894. He was appointed consul at La Paz, Mexico, Feb. 4, 1898, and transferred to consul at Curacao, Feb. 2, 1899. Address: Curacao, West Indies.

CHENEY, James William:

Librarian in the War Department since the autumn of 1897; born in Newburyport, Mass., Jan. 22, 1849. He was graduated from Dartmouth College as A.B. in 1870, received the degree of A.M. in 1875. He was engaged in teaching for seventeen years. He has been engaged as a church organist and choir master since 1864, now serving in that two-fold capacity at St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church (Rock Creek Parish) Washington. He is one of the pioneers of the Esperanto movement in the National Capital and is Number 46 in the American Esperanto Association. He is a 32d-degree Mason. Mr. Cheney married, July 19, 1887, Margaret Kline Staver, and they have three children: James W. Cheney, Jr., born in 1888; Frank Shaw Cheney, born in 1890, and Edith Cheney, born in 1892. Address: 816 Taylor Street, Petworth, Washington, D. C.

CHENEY, Thomas Charles:

Lawyer; born in Morristown, Vt., Oct. 10, 1868; son of William S. and Mary E. (Gates) Cheney. He was graduated from the People's Academy, Morrisville, Vt., 1886, and the University of Vermont, 1891. He was admitted to the Vermont Bar, Oct. 15, 1895, and has twice since been engaged in the practice of law. He was assistant clerk of the Vermont House of Representatives, 1894-1898, clerk of the same, 1898-1906; was States attorney for Lamoille County, 1900-1902. He has been member from Morristown of the House of Representatives, of Vermont, for the term 1906-1908, and 1908-1910, and was unanimously elected Speaker of the House at both sessions. Mr. Cheney is one of the Republican leaders of the Green Mountain State. He is a member of the Vermont Bar Association, vice-president of the Vermont Mutual Fire Insurance Company, trustee of the People's Academy of Morrisville, Vt., member of Executive Committee of the Alumni Association of University of Vermont, member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, a Mason, Knight Templar, Shriner and Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Pastime Club of Morrisville, Vt. He married in Middletown, Conn., Jan. 15, 1896, May Lily Terrill. Address: Morrisville, Vt.

CHENOWETH, Alexander Crawford:

Civil engineer and contractor; born in Baltimore, Md., June 5, 1849; son of Rev. George Davenport Chenoweth and Frances Ann Crawford Chenoweth. He was graduated from Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pa., in 1868, with the degree of A.M.; LL.D., 1908, then studied engineering at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, Troy, N. Y. He was engineer on Prospect Park, Brooklyn, in 1871; assistant engineer on the Brunswick and Western Railroad in Georgia in 1873; assistant engineer of public works at Washington, D. C., in 1874-1875; was engaged in mining work in the United States of Colombia, in 1882; consulting engineer to General Mariano y Prado, President of Peru, in 1884. He prepared the foundation of the Statue of Liberty on Bedloe's Island in 1889; was resident engineer in charge of the Croton Aqueduct in 1889; and since 1895 has been in a general engineering and contracting business. He was awarded the John Scott bronze medal by the city of Philadelphia in 1889 for improvements relating to placing electrical conductors underground; also the Edward Longstreth silver medal by the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia in 1890, for improvement in constructing concrete drainage conduits. He received an award for plans to reclaim land under water in Newark, N. J., by the Board of Water and Street Commissioners, after public competition. He is the inventor of the Chenoweth reinforced concrete railroad sleepers, and Chenoweth reinforced concrete piles for foundation construction. Mr. Chenoweth has devoted much time to archaeological investigation in North and South America, and made a collection of Indian remains which he discovered on Manhattan Island, the only one now in existence and now in the possession of the Museum of Natural History. Mr. Chenoweth is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity, the New York Chamber of Commerce, the Society of Colonial Wars, Society of the War of 1812; is a veteran of the Seventh Regiment of the National Guard of New York, and a member of the Academy of Sciences. He married, April 19, 1876, Catherine Richardson Wood, and they have one son, Alexander Fernando Wood Chenoweth. Address 66 Madison Avenue, New York City.

CHENOWETH, Caroline Van Deusen:

Professor of English literature, and author; born near Louisville, Ky.; daughter of Charles and Mary (Huntington) Van Deusen. Her preparatory education was in St. Charles Institute, New Orleans, receiving later a collegiate education and the degree of A.M. She married Colonel Bernard Peel Chenoweth of Virginia, by whom she had three children: Ernest Bernard (Harvard '88), now deceased; Arthur Peel, artist, and Laura Cromwell, who died in infancy. Colonel Chenoweth served with distinction in the Civil War, and was on the staffs, successively, of General Dodge and General U. S. Grant. He died while U. S. consul at Canton, China, and following his death Mrs. Chenoweth settled the affairs of the Consulate, receiving due recognition from the United States and Chinese Governments. During Colonel Chenoweth's absence from his post he made her the duly accredited vice-consul at that large and important post; and Mrs. Chenoweth regards as one of her most unusual privileges in life her official correspondence with the Chinese viceroy of Kwang Tung Province while thus serving. She has been for sixteen years associate editor of the Medico-Legal Journal of New York, and was professor of English Literature at Smith College, 1883-1884. Mrs. Chenoweth is author of: Stories of the Saints; School History of Worcester, Mass.; History of the Second Church in Leicester, Mass.; Child Life in China, etc. She is the founder of three chapters in the Society of the Daughters of the Revolution and Daughters of the American Revolution; and served for seven years as chapter regent and two years as State historian for Massachusetts of the Daughters of the American Revolution. Mrs. Chenoweth has travelled throughout the United States and part of Canada, and in China and Japan. She is a member of the American Health League, the National Geographic Society and the Boston Authors' Club. Address: Worcester, Mass.

CHENOWETH, Catherine Richardson:

Founder of the Society of Daughters of Holland Dames; born in New York City, daughter of Hon. Fernando Wood who was forty years in public life (twice mayor of New York, member of Congress many years and chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, and entertained King Edward VII when he visited New York in 1860 as Prince of Wales); and of Ann Dole (Richardson) Wood, daughter of Hon. Joseph L. Richardson, judge of the Supreme Court of New York. She was educated in Miss Rostun's French school, in New York City, and she married in St. Thomas' Church,

New York City, April 19, 1876, Alexander Crawford Chenoweth. Mrs. Chenoweth founded the Society of Daughters of Holland Dames, descendants of ancient and honorable families of New York to commemorate the early history of New York and to erect lasting memorials to the early Dutch, and she has traveled extensively in Holland, studying the Dutch and early history, and has made special studies of the Dutch history of New York and of international law. Mrs. Chenoweth was a delegate to the National Arbitration and Peace Congress at New York, 1907, is a member of the Cercle International, peace society of The Hague, Holland, was a member of the Hospital Ship Maine fund for wounded English and Boer soldiers during the South African War; is a member of the Red Cross Society appointed by the London Committee; a member of the Hungarian Women's Society of Hungary, and a member of the Executive Committee of the Washington Square Auxiliary of the Stony Wold Hospital. Address: 66 Madison Avenue, New York City.

CHERRIE, George Kruck:

Naturalist; born in Knoxville, Iowa, Aug. 22, 1865; son of Martin and Agnes (Breckinridge) Cherrie. He was educated in the State Agricultural College at Ames, Iowa, specializing in biology devoted much time to research work as a field naturalist. In 1889 he was appointed curator of the National Museums of Costa Rica, and in 1894 became assistant curator of ornithology in the Field Columbian Museum in Chicago, holding that position until 1897. In 1899 he was appointed to his present position as curator of ornithology in the Brooklyn Institute Museum. Mr. Cherrie made extensive zoological explorations in Costa Rica, 1889-1893; in the interior of San Domingo, 1895, the Valley of the Orinoco, 1897-1899; French Guiana, 1902-1903; Trinidad and the middle Orinoco region, 1905 and 1907. Results of Mr. Cherrie's explorations have been published in technical journals, including papers on Central American birds, with descriptions of new species, in the Proceedings of the United States National Museum Science Bulletin, Brooklyn Institute Museum, and in The Auk, and is also author of The Ornithology of Santo Domingo, published by the Field Columbian Museum of Natural History in Chicago. He is a member of the American Ornithologists' Union, and of the Explorers' Club of New York. Mr. Cherrie married at Knoxville, Iowa, Dec. 1, 1895, Stella Mae Bruere, and they have five children. Address: Brooklyn Institute Museum, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHESHIRE, Fleming Duncan:

American consul general at large; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 4, 1849. He received an Academic education, then engaged in mercantile life in China from 1869 to 1877, in the American firms of Augustine Heard & Co. and Russell & Co. He was sent to Peking by the firm of Augustine Heard & Co., in 1870 to study the Chinese language. Mr. Cheshire was appointed acting interpreter to the American Consulate at Foochow, Sept. 1877; was appointed vice-consul at Foochow, Aug. 7, 1878, and in charge of the consulate at Foochow from Nov. 20, 1878 to June 8, 1879; in charge of the consulate at Canton Oct. 18, 1879 to April 19, 1880; appointed interpreter to the Consulate-General at Shanghai, June 19, 1880; also appointed vice-consul-general at Shanghai, March 22, 1882; in charge of Consulate-General at Shanghai, Aug. 24, 1882 to May 10, 1883, and from Dec. 15, 1883 to July 1884. He was appointed acting interpreter to the American Legation at Peking, Sept. 2, 1884, and was Chinese secretary to The Legation, from July 1, 1900 to Feb. 21, 1901, when he resigned, and he served as Chinese secretary to the special plenipotentiary of the United States from April to September, 1901. He was appointed consul-general at Mukden, Manchuria, Jan. 22, 1904, holding that position until entering, July 1, 1906, upon his present duties as one of the American consul-generals at large. Address: Care of Department of State, Washington, D. C.

CHESHIRE, Joseph Blount:

Bishop of North Carolina; born at Tarboro, N. C., March 27, 1850; son of Joseph

Blount and Elizabeth Toole (Parker) Cheshire. He studied at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., being graduated as B.A. in 1869, and M.A. in 1872. He received the degree of D.D. from the University of North Carolina in 1890, and from the University of the South in 1894. He practised law from 1872 until 1878, in which latter year he was ordered deacon of the Episcopal Church by Bishop Atkinson, and two years later was ordained priest by Bishop Lyman. He became rector of the Chapel of the Cross, at Chapel Hill, N. C., soon after being ordered deacon, and held this office until he was called to the rectorate of St. Peter's Church, Charlotte, N. C., in 1881, where he remained for twelve years. In 1893 he became bishop-coadjutor of North Carolina, and a short time later bishop of the same diocese. He was consecrated bishop by Bishops Lyman, Watson and Capers. Bishop Cheshire has been trustee of the University of the South since 1885, and is one of the Chaplains General of "Society of the Cincinnati." He is author of: Early Conventions of the Church in North Carolina, 1882; Fragments of North Carolina Church History, 1886; The Church in the Province of North Carolina; Decay and Revival; Parson Miller and Whitehaven Church, 1890. He has also published numerous addresses and sermons. Address: Raleigh, N. C.

CHESNEY, Cummings C.:

Electrical engineer; born in Selinsgrove, Pa., Oct. 28, 1863; son of John C. and Jane (McFall) Chesney. He was graduated from the Pennsylvania State College as chemist in 1885, and afterward taught mathematics and chemistry in that institution and at the Doylestown Seminary until 1888, when he became connected with the electrical laboratory of William Stanley at Great Barrington, Mass. In 1889 and 1890 he was with the United States Electric Lighting Co., of Newark, N. J., and in 1890 became one of the incorporators of the Stanley Electrical Manufacturing Co., of Pittsfield, Mass., of which he is now the chief engineer and first vice-president. He is also consulting engineer of the General Electric Co., the Northern Electrical Manufacturing Co.; and director in several electric light and power companies. Mr. Chesney has pioneered many of the most important developments of electrical engineering, including the designing of alternating current generators for high voltages, and the first poly-phase power transmission plant to be operated in America was laid out by him. He is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and of the Society of Arts of London. Mr. Chesney married at East Orange, N. J., in 1891, Elizabeth Cutler. Address: Pittsfield, Mass.

CHESNUT, Victor King:

Chemist; born at Nevada City, Calif., June 28, 1867; son of John A. and Henrietta S. (King) Chestnut. He was graduated as B.S. from the University of California in 1890, and took post-graduate work at the University of Chicago and at George Washington University. He was assistant and instructor in the University of California, 1890-1893; assistant in charge of Poisonous Plant Investigations in the United States Department of Agriculture 1894-1904; collaborator of the United States Department of Agriculture, 1904-1906; professor of chemistry and geology at the Montana College of Agriculture and Mechanical Arts and chemist of the Montana Experimental Station, 1904-1907, and was appointed assistant chemist of the Drug Laboratory at the United States Department of Agriculture, July 1, 1907. He is author of several bulletins on Poisonous Plants, etc. Mr. Chestnut is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Chemical Society, Washington Academy of Sciences, and the National Geographic Society. He married at Berkeley, Calif., July 18, 1899, Olive Branch Spöhr, and they have four children. Address: Bureau of Chemistry, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

CHESTER, Alden:

Jurist; born at Westford, Otsego County, N. Y., Sept. 4, 1848; son of Alden and Susan G. (Draper) Chester, and is a descendant of Elder William Brewster, one of the Mayflower pilgrims. He was educated in the district school, at the Westford Literary Institute and at the Columbia Law School, graduating as LL.B. in 1871. He was admitted to the bar, in 1871; practised in partnership with his cousin, Andrew S. Draper (now commissioner of education of the State of New York) for sixteen years, and after that continued to practise alone. He was deputy clerk of the New York Assembly, 1874-1876; assistant United States Attorney of the Northern District of New York, 1882-1885; president of the Board of Public Instruction, Albany, 1884; assistant corporation counsel of the City of Albany, 1894-1895; and was appointed by Governor Morton member of the Commission to prepare a uniform charter for cities of the second class, from which he resigned, November, 1895, upon his election to his present office as justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the Third Judicial District, for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1909. He was designated by Governor Odell, November, 1902, to serve in the Appellate Division, Third Department of New York, in which he is now serving. He is president of the Albany Academy for Girls; vice-president and trustee of the Albany Medical College, Graceland Cemetery and the Albany Exchange Savings Bank, and a governor of Union University. Judge Chester is a special lecturer on the Federal judicial system at the Albany Law School of Union University. He is a Republican in politics. Judge Chester married, Oct. 5, 1871, Lina, daughter of Ezra R. Thurber, of East Worcester, N. Y., and they have one daughter. Address: County Building, Albany, N. Y.

CHESTER, Frank Dyer:

Linguist; born at Newton Lower Falls, Mass., Dec. 2, 1869; son of Charles Edward and Miranda (Burgess) Chester. He was graduated from the English High School at Boston, receiving the Franklin medal, in 1886, and was graduated from Harvard as A.B. in 1891 and A.M. in 1892, afterward taking special studies in Arabic language and literature and receiving the degree of Ph.D. in 1894. He was instructor in Semitic languages at Harvard, 1893-1895, studied as Rogers fellow of Harvard University, at Damascus, Syria, 1895 and 1896, and at the University of Budapest, Hungary, 1896-1897. He was appointed by President Cleveland in Dec., 1896, Consul at Budapest, Hungary, took office under McKinley on March 11, 1897, and in May, 1904, was promoted by President Roosevelt to be consul-general. Resigned June 1, 1908, and traveled east around world. Dr. Chester is a member of the American Oriental Society, and a contributor to its Proceedings and Journal, and was a member of the International Conference of Orientalists at Geneva, Switzerland, in 1892, and at Paris in 1894. He has a thorough knowledge of the Hungarian language, reading, writing, and speaking it fluently; has also studied Croatian, and has long been conversant with French, German and Italian. He made special studies in public law while in Hungary and did special work in immigration reports. Replaced all subordinates by native Americans resident in Hungary. Fiume consular agency raised to consulate. The American export to Hungary greatly increased since he encouraged the opening of permanent direct steamship service from New York City to Fiume. Now engaged in finishing genealogical work of deceased brother, Arthur H.; has resumed Oriental research. Residence: Hotel Bristol, Boston.

CHILCOTT, Ellery Channing:

Expert in dry farming; born in East Hamburg, N. Y., April 8, 1859; son of Benjamin Franklin and Philenda (Freeman) Chilcott. He was educated at the East Hamburg Friends' Institute and the South Dakota Agricultural College, from the latter of which he received the degree of M.S. He has been U. S. deputy surveyor, 1882-1892; State Senator, South Dakota, 1892-1893; professor of Agriculture, South Dakota Agricultural College, and agriculturist, S. D. Experiment Station, 1893-1905; professor of Geology and Agronomy and vice-director, 1897-1905; member State Board of Agriculture, South Dakota, 1901-1902; agriculturist in charge of Dry Land Agriculture Investigations, U. S. Department of Agriculture, since 1905. He is leading expert in the United States in the development of intensive farming or the utilization of methods to preserve the moisture in the soil in order that the effects of drought may be minimized, and is engaged in directing scientific investigations and conducting experiment farms with a purpose of extending the tillable areas of the semi-arid plains of the Western States. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the National Geographic Society, and is a life member of the South Dakota Historical Society. He married in Campbell County, S. D., Jan. 2, 1884, Alice Bushey, and has four children. Residence: Fairfax Court House, Va. Club: Cosmos, Washington, D. C. Official address: U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

CHILD, Edwin Burrage:

Artist, illustrator, writer; born at Gouverneur, N. Y., 1868; son of Jonathan B. and S. J. (Burnham) Child. He was graduated from Amherst College as A.B., 1890, and then was a pupil for a year at the Art Students' League in New York City, and afterward studied with John La Farge, and was for several years his assistant in mural decoration and stained glass work. Mr. Child has been continuously represented in the leading exhibitions in New York City, Philadelphia, Chicago, etc., by landscapes, portraits and figure paintings. He was also represented in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis and the Lewis and Clark Exposition at Portland, Ore., by paintings and illustrations. Mr. Child has illustrated many important articles in Scribner's and other leading magazines, and he is author, as well as illustrator, of The Marble Mountains (Scribner's); Uncle Ira's Sugar Season (Appleton's), and others. He is a member of the Architectural League of New York and of the Salmagundi Club, director of the choir in the First Congregational Church at Flushing, L. I., and a member of the University Glee Club of New York. Address: 71 Broadway, Flushing, N. Y.

CHILTON, Robert S., Jr.:

Consular official; appointed temporary clerk in the Department of State, Aug. 7, 1877, and was several times promoted in the service, up to and including Class Four. He resigned April 2, 1889, to accept appointment as private secretary to the Vice-president, and resigned that position Feb. 14, 1893, and was appointed chief clerk of the Department of State, Jan. 9, 1893, to take effect Feb. 15, 1893. He was appointed confidential clerk to the second assistant secretary of State, April 15, 1893; appointed temporary vice-consul at Erzerum, June 21, 1895; appointed chief of the Consular Bureau, Dec. 30, 1895, and resigned Jan. 3, 1902, to take effect Feb. 1, 1902. He was appointed consul at Toronto, March 10, 1905. Address: Toronto, Ontario, Canada.

CHISHOLM, Hugh J.:

Capitalist; born at Niagara-on-the-Lake, Canada, of Scottish parentage, in 1847. He had only a common school education supplemented with night studies at the Commercial College in Toronto. He began his business career in the railway news service of the Grand Trunk Railway, advanced steadily and later became publisher and dealer in railway literature at Portland, Maine, and a manufacturer of paper and pulp. In the early eighties he became impressed with the vast unused water power of the Androscoggin River at Rumford Falls, Maine, and organized the Rumford Falls Power Company. Later he acquired the Rumford Falls and Buckfield Railroad, which he reorganized as the Portland and Rumford Falls Railway and furnished an outlet for the Rumford Falls Paper Company and for the Otis Falls Pulp Company, lower down on the Androscoggin River. He has taken an active interest in the thriving town of Rumford Falls, building model dwellings for mill workers, etc. He also took an active part in the formation of the International Paper Company, a combination of about thirty of the leading Eastern newspaper and pulp mills with a capacity of over seventeen hundred tons of finished product, daily. Mr. Chisholm was president of this concern from 1898 until 1907, when he became chairman of the Board of Directors. He is president of the Portland and Rumford Falls Railway, Rumford Falls Power Company, the Rumford Falls Realty Company, the Rumford Falls and Rangeley Lake Railroad Company, and is a trustee of the New York Orthopaedic Dispensary and Hospital. He married at Portland, Maine, in 1872, Henrietta Mason, and they have one son. Residence: 813 Fifth Avenue. Address: 30 Broad Street, New York City.

CHITTENDEN, Hiram Martin:

Lieutenant-Colonel of Engineers, U. S. Army, and author; born in Cattaraugus County, N. Y., Oct. 25, 1858; son of William F. and Mary Jane (Wheeler) Chittenden. He was graduated from the United States Military Academy (third in class), in 1884, and assigned to the Corps of Engineers, in which he reached the rank of lieutenant-colonel, U. S. A., July 28, 1908. He has had charge of the Government works in the Yellowstone National Park, and on the Missouri, Ohio and other Western rivers; also of reservoir surveys in arid regions. During the Spanish-American War, 1898-1899, he was Lieutenant-Colonel of U. S. Volunteers and Chief Engineer of the Fourth Army Corps. In 1904 he was a member of a Federal Commission on the Yosemite National Park, and of a State Commission of engineers on the Sacramento flood control. Lieut.-Col. Chittenden is author of: Yellowstone National Park, Historical and Descriptive; Reservoirs in the Arid Regions; Reservoir System of the Great Lakes; Forests and Reservoirs in Relation to Stream Flow; The American Fur Trade of the Far West; History of Steamboat Navigation on the Missouri River; Life of Father De Smet. Member American Society of Civil Engineers; American Historical Association; American Forestry Association; National Geographic Society; Honorary member Missouri Historical Society. He married at Arcade, N. Y., Dec. 30, 1884, Nettie Mae Parker, and they have three children. Address: Seattle, Wash.

CHITTENDEN, Jonathan Brace:

Lawyer, mathematician; born in Milford, Conn., May 13, 1864. He was graduated from the Worcester Polytechnic Institute in 1888, with the degrees of M.E. and C.E.; from Harvard as A.B. 1889, and A.M. 1896, and in 1892 those of A.M. and Ph.D. at Königsberg, Prussia. He was instructor in mathematics at Princeton, 1893-1896, and for the next five years at Columbia and Barnard Colleges, and professor of mathematics at Cooper Institute, New York, and since 1890 has been professor of mathematics at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. Professor Chittenden was admitted to the New York bar in 1901, and is an expert in engineering law, with law office in Brooklyn. He is a member of the American Mathematical Society, and the American Geographical Society; fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and member of the Massachusetts Society of Sons of the Revolution. Professor Chittenden is author of: Functions of Lame, a translation of the Clebsch-Lindemann Geometry, and also of articles on mathematics, potential function, quaternions, trigonometry, squaring of the Circle, etc., in the Encyclopædia Americana and is a writer on general mathematical subjects. He has in preparation works on the calculus, and theory of binary forms. He married, in New York City, 1900, Evelyn Louise Betts. Address: 162 Montague Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CHITTENDEN, Russell Henry:

Educator, chemist and author; born in New Haven, Conn., Feb. 18, 1856. He was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University as Ph.B., 1875, and Ph.D., 1880, and he received the degree of LL.D. from the University of Toronto, 1903, and Sc.D. from the University of Pennsylvania, 1904. He has been professor of physiological chemistry since 1882 and director of the Sheffield Scientific School since 1898 in Yale University, and was lecturer on physiological chemistry in Columbia University, 1898-1903. Professor Chittenden has obtained special distinction as an investigator and writer on physiological chemistry, as well as an educator, and is author of: Digestive Proteolysis; Studies in Physiological Chemistry (four volumes); Physiological Economy in Nutrition; The Nutrition of Man; and many papers on various subjects in physiological chemistry in technical publications in the United States and foreign countries. He is associate editor of the American Journal of Physiology, and of the Journal of Biological Chemistry. He is a member and has been president of the American Society of Naturalists, American Physiological Society, American Society of Biological Chemists; has been a member of the National Academy of Sciences since 1890, and is also a member of the American Philosophical Society. He married, in 1877, Gertrude L. Baldwin. Address: 83 Trumbull Street, New Haven, Conn.

CHOATE, Charles Francis:

Lawyer; born in Salem, Mass., May 16, 1828; son of Dr. George Choate. He was graduated from Harvard, A.B. and A.M., 1849, and from Harvard Law School as LL.B., 1853, also receiving the A.M. degree from Dartmouth College, in 1872. He was a tutor in Harvard from 1851 to 1851, in which year he was admitted to the Suffolk bar, and was thereafter engaged in the practice of law in Boston until 1878, when he became president of the Old Colony Railroad Company, continuing in that office until April, 1907, when he retired. He has been president of the Massachusetts Hospital Life Insurance Co. since 1901, and is also president of the Essex Company, of Lawrence, Mass. He was president of the Commercial Club of Boston, 1898-1900. Mr. Choate married in Utica, N. Y., Elizabeth W. Carlile, of Providence. R. I. Residences: 205 Beacon Street, Boston (winter); Southborough, Mass. (summer). Office: 50 State Street, Boston.

CHOATE, Joseph Hodges:

Lawyer, diplomat; born at Salem, Mass., Jan. 24, 1832. He is a descendant of one of the oldest New England families, and has had many relatives who have gained distinction in various fields of effort, particularly at the bar. Mr. Choate entered Harvard at sixteen and was graduated with the degree of A.B. and Phi Beta Kappa honor, in 1852. He then entered the Dane Law School of Harvard, graduating as LL.B. in 1854. Mr. Choate has received degrees of LL.D. from Amherst in 1887, Harvard in 1888, Cambridge in 1900, Edinburgh in 1900, Yale in 1901, St. Andrew's in 1902, Williams in 1905, Pennsylvania in 1907, and D.C.L. from the University of Oxford in 1902. He was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1855 and to the New York bar in 1856, and since then has been practising at New York City. He was counsel for General Fitz-John Porter in his protracted and successful fight for reinstatement in his military rank; and counsel in the Cesnola case; and was one of the Committee of Seventy (and chairman of the Committee on Elections), which broke up the Tweed Ring. He was president of the New York Constitutional Convention of 1894; and was ambassador of the United States to Great Britain, from 1899 to 1905. He was appointed in 1907 as the first delegate of the United States to the Second International Peace Conference at the Hague. He is distinguished as an orator and after-dinner speaker, and his addresses on Abraham Lincoln, Admiral Farragut, Rufus Choate, etc., has been printed. His forensic and oratorical gifts have been recognized in Great Britain as well as in his own country, and he was elected an honorary bencher of the Middle Temple of London, England, April 10, 1905. Mr. Choate is a member and ex-president of the American Bar Association, of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and of the Harvard Law School Association. He is a trustee of the American Museum of Natural History, the Metropolitan Museum of Art; a governor of New York Hospital; and has been president of The New England Society, the Union League Club, the Harvard Club, and of the New York State Bar Associations, and is a member of the American Philosophical Society. He has also been president of the National Civil Service Reform League. Mr. Choate married, Oct. 16, 1861, Caroline Dutcher Sterling, daughter of Frederick A. Sterling, of Cleveland, Ohio. Residence: 8 East Sixty-third Street. Address: 60 Wall Street, New York City.

CHRISTIAN, Henry Asbury:

Physician; born in Lynchburg, Va., Feb. 17, 1876; son of Camillus and Mary E. (Davis) Christian. He was educated in the Lynchburg High School, Randolph-Macon College, A.B., A.M., 1895, Johns Hopkins University, M.D., 1900; and he received the A.M. degree in course from Harvard, 1903. Mr. Christian was instructor in pathology, 1903-1905, and in the theory and practice of physic, 1905-1907, at Harvard; assistant professor, 1907-1908, and since Sept. 1, 1908, has been Hersey professor of the theory and practice of physic, dean of the Faculty of Medicine and of the Medical School of Harvard University since Sept. 1, 1908. Dr. Christian was formerly assistant pathologist to the Boston City Hospital and to the Children's Hospital, of Boston, and assistant visiting physician to the Long Island Hospital; and is now physician-in-chief of the Carney Hospital of Boston. He is a member of the American Medical Association, the Association of American Physicians, American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists, the Massachusetts Medical Society, etc., and author of numerous papers on medical subjects, published in various medical journals. He is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, honorary member of the Phi Rho Sigma fraternity, and a member of the University, St. Botolph, and Longwood Cricket Clubs of Boston, and the Johns Hopkins Club of Baltimore, and other social organizations. Residence: 252 Marlborough Street. Office: Harvard Medical School, Boston.

CHRISTIE, Alexander:

Catholic archbishop of Oregon City; born at Highgate Falls, Franklin County, Vt., May 28, 1848; son of Adam and Mary Christie. After a secular education he made his studies in divinity at the Grand Seminary of Montreal, where he was ordained priest Dec. 22, 1877. He labored as a priest of the archdiocese of Saint Paul for twenty-one years, in which he was for thirteen years pastor at Waseca, Minn., four years pastor of Ascension Parish, Minneapolis, and four years pastor of Saint Stephen's Parish, Minneapolis. He was consecrated June 29, 1898, bishop of Vancouver Island, British Columbia, and Feb. 12, 1899, was promoted to the archiepiscopal see of Oregon City, Ore. Address: Portland, Ore.

CHRISTY, Howard Chandler:

Illustrator and writer; born in Morgan County, Ohio, Jan. 10, 1873. He was educated at Duncan's Falls, Ohio, and went to New York in 1893. Since then he has been connected with the New York illustrated periodicals, but went to Cuba with the Second U. S. regulars and the "Rough Riders," and saw the fighting before Santiago. His letters and illustrations are published in Scribner's Magazine, Harper's Magazine and Collier's Weekly, and by R. H. Russell, publisher; and he had charge for nine years of the illustrating class at Cooper Institute, but resigned on account of health. Mr. Christy was also instructor at the Art Students' League, Chase School, New York School of Art, Gibson School and Whipple School, but has resigned from them all. As an illustrator he is best known by his types of attractive young ladies, many of his drawings having been published in portfolio and other art forms and as high-class posters. He has also illustrated fine holiday editions of the poems of James Whitcomb Riley, published by the Bobbs-Merrill Co., of Indianapolis, and other books. Mr. Christy is a stockholder and helped form the firm of Moffat, Yard & Co., who are now his publishers. Residence: The Warwick Arms, 101 West 80th Street. Address: Care Moffat, Yard & Co., 31 East 17th Street, New York City.

CHRISTY, Samuel Benedict:

Professor of mining and metallurgy; born in San Francisco, Calif., Aug. 8, 1855; son of James and Elizabeth (Hubel) Christy. He was graduated from the University of California as Ph.D. in 1874, and received the degree of Sc.D. from Columbia University in 1902. He is professor of mining and metallurgy in the University of California. Professor Christy was vice-president of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, in 1891 to 1893, and from 1907 to 1909, is a member of the Institute of Mining and Metallurgy of London, and the Society of Mining, Metallurgy and Chemistry of South Africa, the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, and the California Mining Association. He is author of numerous papers on the mining and metallurgy of gold, silver and quicksilver, and on engineering education, and he is the inventor of processes for treating gold ores. He is a member of the Phi Delta Theta and Sigma Psi fraternities. He married at Berkeley, Calif., Feb. 23, 1880, Sarah Adèle Field, and they have three children. Residence: 2234 Piedmont Way, Berkeley, Calif. Office address: University of California, Berkeley, Calif.

CHURCH, Augustus B.:

President of Buchtel College; born in North Norwich, N. Y., Jan. 11, 1858; son of A. William and Catherine (Conkling) Church. He was graduated from St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., with honors and A.B., 1886, and from the St. Lawrence Theological School, 1888; and received the honorary degrees of A.M. from Buchtel College, 1899, D.D. from St. Lawrence University, 1901, and LL.D. from Tufts College, 1905. He was ordained in the Universalist ministry, 1888; was pastor of the First Universalist Church of South Berwick, Maine, 1888-1890, of the First Universalist Church of North Adams, Mass., 1890-1897; First Universalist Church of Akron, Ohio, 1897-1901; acting president, 1901-1902, and since then president and chairman of the Board of Trustees of Buchtel College. He is a member of the National Educational Association, the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, and of various other societies. He married in Canton, N. Y., Sept. 5, 1889, Anne Atwood, and has four children. Address: Buchtel College, Akron, Ohio.

CHURCH, Frederick Stuart:

Artist; born in Grand Rapids, Mich., Dec. 1, 1842. He received a public school education, and was in the employ of the American Express Company, in Chicago, from 1855 to 1861, and served in the Union Army for more than three years. He studied at the Chicago Academy of Design and later at the Art Students' League and the National Academy of Design in New York. Mr. Church is a painter of figures and animals, and has exhibited at various exhibitions in the United States and Europe. Among his more notable paintings are: A Sea Princess; Back from the Beach; Muskrat's Nest; A Foggy Day; A Willing Captive; Retaliation; Peacocks in the Snow; The Sorceress; Pegasus Captured. He was elected a National Academician in 1885, and is a member of the American Water Color Society, and of the Society of American Artists. Address: 1512 Broadway, New York City.

CHURCH, Samuel Harden:

Author, railway official; born in Caldwell County, Mo., Jan. 28, 1858; son of William Church and Emily (Scott) Church. His family has resided in Pittsburg since 1822, and he was educated in schools and academies there until 1875, when he entered the service of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, in which he has continued ever since, beginning as office messenger of the law department, and later clerk in the same department until 1879, then stenographer at the general superintendent's office at Pittsburg, 1879-1880; chief clerk of the general manager's office at Columbus, Ohio, from 1880 to 1884; superintendent of transportation, from 1884 to 1898, and since 1898 assistant secretary of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg. He is also vice-president of the Union Steel Casting Company, and secretary and trustee of the Carnegie Institute. While a resident of Columbus, Ohio, he was a colonel on the staff of Governor Hoadly, and he was presented with a sword by the governor and his staff for his conduct in handling troops for the suppression of riots in Cincinnati in 1884. Colonel Church has taken a prominent place in literature, and is author of: Oliver Cromwell, a History, 1894, (six editions); of which The Spectator said: "It is not disparaging any other fame to say that Church's 'Life of Cromwell' is the greatest book ever written by an American author." John Marmaduke, 1897; Beowulf, a poem, 1901; Penruddock of the White Lambs, 1903; The Brayton Episode (play), 1905; A Short History of Pittsburg, 1908; also frequent contributions to leading magazines. Editor of a railroad compilation, Corporate History of the Pennsylvania Lines West of Pittsburg, thirteen volumes, 1906. Colonel Church is a Republican in politics and was a speaker in the presidential campaigns of the past twelve years in Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention of 1904. He has received the honorary degrees of Litt.D. from the Western University of Pennsylvania, LL.D. from the University of Pittsburg, and A.M. from Yale. He married at Pittsburg, March 15, 1898, Bertha Jean Reinhart, daughter of James McH. Reinhart. Office address: Union Station, Pittsburg, Pa.

CHURCH, William Conant:

Editor and writer; born in Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 11, 1836; son of Rev. Pharellus and C. Emily Church. He was educated in the Boston Latin School. He has been for the past fifty-three years a resident of New York City, where he has large interests. During the Civil War he served as an officer on the staff of Major-General Silas Casey; and then was brevetted lieutenant-colonel. He was publisher of the New York Sun, leaving it to enter the military service. He is editor of the Army and Navy Journal, which he established in 1863; established the Galaxy Magazine in 1868 and conducted it until it was merged in the Atlantic Monthly in 1878. He was appointed by President Arthur, as Government inspector for the Northern Pacific Railroad. Mr. Church has taken an active part in public affairs in New York City. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, George Washington Post, and was one of the earliest members of the Loyal Legion; is charter member, has been junior and senior vice-commander of the New York Commandery, and is now member of the commandery-in-chief of the Legion. He also took an active part in the establishment of the National Rifle Association and was its president. Mr. Church is the author of: Life of John Erickson, 1890; and Life of Ulysses S. Grant, 1899. He was one of the founders and is a fellow in perpetuity of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; and a life member and director of the Zoölogical Society. Address: 51 Irving Place, New York City.

CHURCHILL, Winston:

Author; born in St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 10, 1871; son of Edward Spalding and Emma Bell (Blaine) Churchill. He was educated at Smith Academy and at the U. S. Naval Academy in the class of 1894. Mr. Churchill is author of: The Celebrity; Richard Carvel; The Crisis; The Crossing; Coniston; Mr. Crewe's Career; and some magazine articles. Mr. Churchill is a Republican and served two terms as a member of the New Hampshire Legislature in 1903-1905, and was candidate for governor of New Hampshire in 1906. Besides being in the front rank of American novelists, Mr. Churchill is one of the chief representatives of the new idea in politics and has for several years led a movement against an alleged domination of railroad and other interests in his state. He married at St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 22, 1895, Mabel Harlakenden Hall, and they have two children, Mabel Harlakenden and John Dwight Winston. Residence: Cornish, N. H. Address: Windsor, Vt.

CLAFLIN, John:

Merchant; born in Brooklyn, July 24, 1850; son of Horace Brigham Claflin and Agnes (Sanger) Claflin. He was graduated from the College of the City of New York in 1869. He entered the dry goods house of H. B. Claflin & Company (established by his father in 1843) as clerk, in October, 1870, became a partner in 1873, and head of the house on the death of his father in 1885. He organized the business as a corporation, The H. B. Claflin Company, in June, 1890, and has been its president. The house has been from the end of the Civil War the largest wholesale dry goods business in New York City. He has traveled extensively all over the United States, Mexico, South America, Europe, and Asia, and made a notable trip in the summer of 1877. Starting from the Peruvian Coast of the Pacific Ocean, at the latitude of ten degrees south, and with a single white companion, he crossed the South American continent from west to east at its widest part, reaching the Atlantic at the mouth of the Amazon. Mr. Claflin is an Independent Republican and a Congregationalist. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic and of the Metropolitan, Tuxedo, Merchants', Jekyl, Morris County Golf, and Morristown Clubs. Mr. Claflin married at Monterey, Calif., June 27, 1890, Elizabeth Stewart. Residence: 15 Washington Square North. Address: 224 Church Street, New York City.

CLAPP, Jacob Crawford:

President of Catawba College; born at Allemance, Guilford County, N. C., Sept. 5, 1832; son of Joshua and Delilah (Huffman) Clapp. He was graduated from Amherst College, A.B., 1857, and afterward received the degree of D.D. from Ursinus College, Pa. After teaching in schools in North Carolina and Mississippi he became professor of ancient languages in Catawba College at Newton, N. C., in 1860, and two years later became the president of the College, in which position he has continued ever since. Dr. Clapp is a clergyman of the Reformed Church in the United States (German Reformed), having been ordained by the Classis of North Carolina in 1865, and has served almost continuously since as pastor, in addition to his collegiate duties. He is author of a History of the Reformed Church in North Carolina. He married at Bolton, Hinds County, Miss., July 4, 1860. Emma Lewis. Address: Newton, N. C.

CLAPP, Moses Edwin:

United States Senator; born in Delphi, Ind., May 21, 1851. His parents removed to Hudson, Wis., in 1857, and after obtaining a common school education he was graduated from the Wisconsin Law School in 1873. In 1878 he was elected county attorney of St. Croix County, Wis., and in 1881 he moved to Fergus Falls, Minn., and resided there until 1891. He was elected attorney-general of Minnesota in 1887, 1889 and 1891, and removed to St. Paul and made that his permanent home in 1891. He was elected to the United States Senate, Jan. 23, 1901, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Senator Davis, of Minnesota, and took his seat Jan. 28, 1901, and was reelected in 1905. His term of service will expire March 3, 1911. He married in 1874, Hattie Allen, and has three children: one son and two daughters. Address: 610 Manhattan Block, St. Paul, Minn.

CLARK, Aaron Baker:

Clergyman; born at Westport, N. Y., Jan. 27, 1855; son of Aaron and Harriet Patience Clark. He was educated at the University of Vermont, in class of 1875, and at the General Theological Seminary of New York, 1884-1886. He was assistant principal of the Vermont Episcopal Institute, 1874-1881, principal of the Vergennes graded schools, 1881-1883, rector of the Greenwich and Schuylerville parishes in the Diocese of Albany, N. Y., 1886-1888; rector of St. Philips, Belmont, Western New York, 1888-1889. Mr. Clark has been missionary at the Rosebud Agency, S. Dak., since May, 1889, conducting services in Sioux and English at a score of churches and stations among the Upper Brule Sioux. From May, 1889, he has been absorbed in mission work which required the acquisition of the difficult Sioux (Dakota) language and the constant use of it in daily intercourse with a dependent people accustomed to appeal to the missionary for advice in all the affairs of life, and this among a small population, scattered over a district as large as Connecticut. As a lecturer upon Indian school and mission work, Mr. Clark has traveled in the New England and the Middle and North Atlantic States. He is now especially prominent and still active as a leader in defense of Indian rights and demanding fair treatment for them in all respects, as men and fellow citizens. He has assisted these Indians in getting a fairer price for lands sold and protecting their trust and treaty funds from unjust diversion. He is a Republican in politics. Mr. Clark is a member of the National Geographic Society, and of the Sisco Lodge of Masons, New York. Mr. Clark married at Vergennes, Vt., July 1, 1886, Sarah White Booth, and they have three children: John Booth, born in 1887; David W., born in 1889, and Hobart Hare, born in 1894. Address: Rosebud, S. Dak.

CLARK, Alonzo Howard:

Curator, Section of American History, U. S. National Museum; born in Boston, April 13, 1850; son of Thatcher and Abby (Barnes) Clark. He was educated at Wesleyan University, and received from it the honorary degree of A.M., 1906. Mr. Clark engaged in commercial pursuits in New York City until 1875. He had charge of the United States Fish Commission Station at Gloucester, Mass., and was special agent of the Tenth Census, 1879-1880, and since 1881 he has held his present curatorship in the U. S. National Museum at Washington, and is also an editor at the Smithsonian Institution. He went to the Fourth London International Exhibition, 1883, as assistant U. S. Commissioner, and was expert commissioner to the Exposition Universelle at Paris in 1889, receiving the decoration of Officier du Mérite Agricole of France. He is author of: The Fishery Industries of the United States; Whale and Seal Fisheries; Food Industries of the World (in Reports of the Paris Exposition of 1889); also monographs and articles on various historical topics. He is secretary of the American Historical Association; secretary-general and registrar-general of the Sons of the American Revolution; and is also a member of the Baronial Order of Runymede, Society of Mayflower Descendants, Society of Colonial Wars and Society of the War of 1812. He married in Gloucester, Mass., Alice Morrow. Address: Smithsonian Institution, Washington, D. C.

CLARK, Champ:

Lawyer and congressman; born near Lawrenceburg, Anderson County, Ky., March 7, 1850; son of John Hampton and Aletha Jane (Beauchamp) Clark. He was educated in Kentucky University at Lexington, and graduated from Bethany College, Pennsylvania, as A.B. in 1873, and later received the degrees of A.M. and LL.D. from that college; and he was also graduated from the Cincinnati Law School as LL.B. in 1873 and 1874 he was president of Marshall College, West Virginia. After graduation from Cincinnati Law School, he removed to Missouri and became principal of the high school at Louisiana, Mo. In 1876 he entered the active practice of law, and was city attorney of Louisiana, Mo., and afterwards of Bowling Green, Mo. He served as prosecuting attorney of Pike County, was editor of the Riverside Press in 1879 and 1880, then presidential elector and member of the Missouri Legislature. He was elected to the Fifty-third Congress in 1892, and to the Fifty-fifth Congress in 1896, and has since been biennially reelected from the Ninth Missouri District, which he now represents in the Sixty-first Congress. Mr. Clark was elected by the Democratic Caucus of the Sixtieth Congress to the position of leader of the minority on the floor of the House, and is a member of the Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Clark has also attained great prominence as a lecturer in lyceum courses and at Chautauquas. He is a member of the Christian, or Disciples Church, and he is president of the Board of Trustees of Park College. He married at Aux Vasse, Callaway County, Mo., Dec. 14, 1881, Genevieve Bennett, and they have two living children, two others having died in infancy. Address: Bowling Green, Mo.

CLARK, Charles Amory:

Lawyer; born at Sangerville, Maine, Jan. 26, 1841; son of William Godding and Elizabeth White Stevens Clark; and a descendant of Hugh Clark, who settled in Watertown, Mass., in 1640. He was educated in the common schools of Sangerville, at Foxcroft Academy and by home studies. He began as a school teacher at the age of 15, in 1856, and taught every fall and winter until he enlisted, at Foxcroft, Maine, April 24, 1851, in Company A, Sixth Maine Infantry. He was the first man to volunteer from his county and one of the very first to answer the call of President Lincoln, and was successively corporal, sergeant and second lieutenant in the company in which he enlisted. He became first lieutenant and adjutant of the Sixth Maine Regiment in August, 1862, and served with it until honorably discharged because of wounds, in February, 1864. He reentered the army in April, 1864, being commissioned by President Lincoln captain and assistant adjutant-general of volunteers, and was brevetted major for gallantry at Marye's Heights, May 3, 1863, and lieutenant-colonel for gallantry at Rappahannock Station, Va., Nov. 7, 1863; and he received the Congressional Medal of Honor for bravery at Bank's Ford, Va., May 4, 1863. He served in the Army of the Potomac and the Army of the James, and resigned in the fall of 1864 by reason of wounds and bad health. He went to Iowa in 1866, and practised law at Webster City in that State until 1876, and since then at Cedar Rapids, Iowa. He has practised in the Supreme Court of Iowa since 1868, the Federal Courts of Iowa and several other States since 1871, and the Supreme Court of the United States since 1878. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, Military Order of the Loyal Legion and the Medal of Honor Legion; has been commander of the Loyal Legion for Iowa; commander of the Department of Iowa, Grand Army of the Republic, 1906, 1907, and judge advocate-general, G. A. R., 1905-1906. Colonel Clark married, Dec. 19, 1863. Helen E. Brockway, of his native town of Sangerville, Maine, and they have six children. Address: Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

CLARK, Charles Edward:

Rear-Admiral United States Navy, retired; born at Bradford, Vt., Sept. 29, 1843. He was at the United States Naval Academy from 1860-1863, and he was promoted to ensign Oct. 1, 1863, was attached to the sloop Ossipee in the West Gulf Blockading Squadron, from 1863 to 1865, and participated in the battle of Mobile Bay, Aug. 5, 1864, and the bombardment of Fort Morgan, Aug. 23, 1864. He served on various stations and duties and in January, 1898, when commanding the Monterey, he was ordered to command the battleship Oregon, just built at San Francisco. He left San Francisco in March with the battleship Oregon, and arrived with her at Key West, Fla., fourteen thousand miles, May 26, 1898, in time to take active part in the Spanish-American War, and he commanded her in the battle of Santiago. This cruise of the Oregon was unprecedented for speed with a battleship, and has taken a prominent place in naval annals. From the time of his promotion to rear-admiral he was governor of the United States Naval Home at Philadelphia, until he retired in 1905. The University of Pennsylvania conferred upon Rear Admiral Clark the degree of LL.D. in 1905. He married Maria Davis, daughter of W. T. Davis of Greenfield, Mass. Address: Montpelier, Vt.

CLARK, Charles Hopkins:

Editor of the Hartford Courant; born in Hartford, Conn., April 1, 1848; son of Ezra Clark, Jr. He was graduated from Yale in 1871, with the degree of M.A., and has ever since been connected with the Courant; and he succeeded the late U. S. Senator Joseph R. Hawley in the editorship of that paper. He is president and director of the Hartford Courant Co.; vice-president of the Collins Company, and director of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, and Phoenix Fire Insurance Company. He is also treasurer of the Hartford Public Library, the Watkinson Library and Good Will Club, and the Wadsworth Athenæum, and is a member of leading clubs in New York and Hartford. Address: Courant, Hartford, Conn.

CLARK, Clarence Don:

United States senator; born at Sandy Creek, Oswego County, N. Y., April 16, 1851. He was educated in the common schools and at the Iowa State University; was admitted to the bar in 1874, and taught and practised law in Delaware County, Iowa, until 1881. In that year he removed to Evanston, Wyo., where he has since resided. He was prosecuting attorney for Uinta County four years; was a delegate to the National Republican Conventions of 1888, 1900 and 1904 and 1908. He was appointed associate justice of the Territory of Wyoming in 1890, but declined the office. Upon the admission of Wyoming as a State, he was elected to the Fifty-first and Fifty-second Congresses. He was defeated for reelection to the Fifty-third Congress by a fusion of Democrats and Populists; was elected, Jan. 23, 1895, to the United States Senate for the term ending March 3, 1899, to fill a vacancy caused by the failure of the Legislature to elect in 1892 and 1893, and was reelected in 1899 and 1905. His term of service will expire March 3, 1911. Senator Clark is chairman of the important Committee on Judiciary of the Senate. Address: Evanston, Wyo.

CLARK, Edgar Erastus:

Member of the Interstate Commerce Commission; born at Lima, N. Y., Feb. 18, 1856; son of Henry Dean and Nancy E. (Jones) Clark. He was educated in Genesee Wesleyan Seminary at Lima, N. Y. Mr. Clark was grand chief conductor of the Order of Railway Conductors from 1890 to 1906; member of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission, in 1902 and 1903; and was appointed member of the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1906. He is a member of the National Civic Federation, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the National Child Labor Committee and the Institute for Social Service.

Mr. Clark married at Ogden, Utah, Sept. 1, 1880, Lovenia Jenkins, who died in 1903, and they have five children. Residence: The Rochambeau. Address: Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, D. C.

CLARK, Francis Edward:

Clergyman, founder of the United Society of Christian Endeavor; born at Aylmer, Province of Quebec, Canada, Sept. 12, 1851, of New England parentage. His parents who were named Symmes died in his boyhood and he was legally adopted by an uncle, Rev. E. W. Clark, who took him to Claremont, N. H. He graduated from Dartmouth as A.B. in 1873 with Phi Beta Kappa honors and received from it the degree of D. D. in 1887. He studied at Andover Theological Seminary, 1873-1876, and then took charge of a mission at Portland, Me., was ordained to the ministry of the Congregational Church, and built up the mission to a prosperous church known as the Williston Congregational Church of Portland. It was there that, in February, 1881, he founded the Society of Christian Endeavor, now a world-wide organization with millions of members among the young people of the various evangelical churches. In 1883 he became pastor of Phillips Church, South Boston, in which he continued until 1887, and since then has devoted his entire attention to the Christian Endeavor work, being president of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, president of the World's Christian Endeavor Union, and editor of The Christian Endeavor World. Dr. Clark is author of the Christian Endeavor Manual, and of various volumes on religious subjects, also several volumes relating to his world-wide travels in the interest of Christian Endeavor work. Residence: Auburn-dale, Mass. Office: Tremont Temple, Boston.

CLARK, Frank:

Congressman, lawyer; born at Eufaula, Ala., March 28, 1860; son of John Wise and Mary Emiline (Kells) Clark. He was educated in the common schools of Alabama and Georgia. He was admitted to the bar at Fairburn, Ga., Aug. 3, 1881, and has since been engaged in practice of law in Florida, and he is also a member of the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States. He served three terms in the Florida Legislature; was assistant district attorney of the Southern District of Florida, and United States attorney for same district from 1893 to 1897. He was chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Florida, was elected member of the Fifty-ninth Congress from the Second Florida District, in 1904, and reelected in 1906, and 1908, to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congress, in which he is now serving. He married at Bartow, Fla., Oct. 8, 1884, Mary Ellen Mayo. Address: Lake City, Fla.

CLARK, George Harlow:

Naturalist and explorer; born in Hyde Park, Mass., Feb. 21, 1871; son of Theodore E. and Ellen A. Clark. He was educated in the high school of Brookline, Mass., from which he was graduated in 1887, and afterward devoted much attention to biological research. He became a member of the Look-out Mountain Exploring Expedition, was the naturalist of the Peary Polar Expedition, 1893-1894, and was a companion of Lieutenant Peary on the journey over the Greenland Ice Cap and during the sledge journeys over the frozen sea. Mr. Clark has since been a leader in several expeditions in the Arctic regions, having commanded the North Alaskan Expedition in 1898-1900, and was associated with an expedition to the interior of Labrador in 1902; and he has contributed on zoölogical subjects and Arctic research to many of the scientific publications. He is a member of the Boston Society of Natural History, American Folk-Lore Society, American Anthropological Society, the Polar Research Club, and the Geographic and Arctic Club of America. He married in San Francisco, March 21, 1900, Estelle May Baker. Address: Winthrop, Mass.

CLARK, Imogen:

Author; born in New York City; daughter of George Homer and Phillie (Beatty) Clark. She was educated in Madam de Silva's French and English School in New York, and by private tutors. Miss Clark is a constant contributor to the magazines and is author of the books: Will Shakespeare's Little Lad; God's Puppets; The Victory of Ezra Gardiner; The Heresy of Parson Medlicott; and Santa Claus' Sweetheart; A Charming Humbug; We Four and Two More. The Book "Will Shakespeare's Little Lad" has been especially commended by the Shakespearean scholar, W. J. Rolfe, who advocates the reading of it in his classes; and the social life of early New York, as pictured in "God's Puppets," has been much praised, the value of the Dutch element being particularly noted. Miss Clark is a member of the Wednesday Afternoon Club and of the Barnard Club, both of New York City. Address: 302 West 88th Street, New York City.

CLARK, John Bates:

Professor of political economy, author; born in Providence, R. I., Jan. 26, 1847; son of John Hezekiah and Charlotte Stoddard (Huntington) Clark. He was educated in Brown University, Amherst College, A.B., 1872, and the Universities of Zürich and Heidelberg; and he has received the degree of Ph.D. and LL.D., from Amherst and LL.D. from Princeton. He was professor of political economy and history in Carleton College, Minn., 1877-1881; professor of history and political science, Smith College, 1882-1892, professor of political economy in Amherst College, 1892-1895, and professor of economics in Columbia University since 1895. He was also lecturer in economics in Johns Hopkins University. Dr. Clark is author of: The Philosophy of Wealth; the Distribution of Wealth; The Control of Trusts; The Problem of Monopoly; Essentials of Economic Theory, all bound volumes, also about one hundred monographs, parts of volumes, and articles in economic journals, American and foreign. He is author of a system of economic theory which is presented in these publications. He is a member, and was president for two years of the American Economic Association, is a member of the Commission on Wall Street, appointed by Governor Hughes; member of the American Association for the the Advancement of Science, American Academy of Political and Social Science, New York Academy of Political Science, American Association for Labor Legislation, and other societies, a trustee of Smith College, director of the League for Political Education, trustee of Madura College; member of the Executive Committee of the New York Peace Society, and the Ethical Social League; and member of the Century Club of New York, and others. He married in Minneapolis, Minn., in Sept. 1875, Myra A. Smith, and they have three sons and a daughter. Residence: 635 West 115th Street. Office: Columbia University, New York City.

CLARK, Joseph Bourne:

Clergyman and missionary secretary; born in Sturbridge, Mass., Oct. 7, 1836; son of Rev. Joseph S. Clark, D.D., and Harriet Bates (Bourne) Clark. He was graduated from Amherst College, A.B., 1855, and from the Andover Theological Seminary in 1861, and in 1884 he received the degree of D.D. from Amherst. After his ordination in the Congregational ministry in 1861, he served as pastor of the First Congregational Church at Yarmouth, Mass., for seven years, the Central Congregational Church of Newtonville, Mass., for four years, and the Central Congregational Church of Jamaica Plains, Boston for seven years, becoming, in 1897 secretary of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society. He served in that position until 1882, when he was transferred to the National field in his present position as secretary of the Congregational Home Missionary Society, with headquarters in New York. Dr. Clark is author of: Leavening the Nation, (New York, 1903). He married at Falmouth, Mass., Oct. 23, 1878, Clara N. Herendeen. Residence: 271 McDonough Street, Brooklyn. Office: United Charities Building, New York City.

CLARK, Kate Upson:

Writer and lecturer; born in Camden, Ala., Feb. 22, 1851; daughter of Edwin and Priscilla (Maxwell) Upson. She was graduated from Wheaton Seminary, Norton, Mass., 1869, from Westfield (Mass.) Normal School, 1872, and taught in Central High School, Cleveland, Ohio, 1872-1873. She married in Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 1, 1874, Edward Perkins Clark, who died in 1903, and she has three sons. Mrs. Clark edited Good Cheer, 1882-1887; conducted the Helping Hand Department of the Philadelphia Press, 1883-1886; Romance, 1892-1895; and Food and Drink, 1908; has contributed to most of the leading magazines, especially to those for the young, writes editorially for the Christian Herald and Brooklyn Eagle, and lectures extensively upon social and educational topics. She is author of: Bringing up Boys, 1900; White Butterflies, 1900; How Dexter Paid His way, 1901; Move Upward, 1902; Up the Witch Brook Road, 1902; A Soldier of Conscience, 1903; The Adventures of Spotty, 1904; Donald's Good Hen, 1905; The Dole Twins, 1906; Art and Citizenship, 1907. Mrs. Clark is a charter member of the Meridian Club of New York, organized 1906; was president of the Wheaton Club of New York, 1886-1906, and has been a trustee of Wheaton Seminary since 1907. Address: 248a Monroe Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CLARK, Lester Williams:

Jurist; born in Brookline, Mass., Jan. 22, 1854; son of Lester Manzer and Maria Isabella (Williams) Clark. He was graduated from Harvard College, A.B., 1875, Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1878, was admitted to the bar and engaged in practice until elected on the Republican ticket, in November, 1906, a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the Second Judicial District for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. Justice Clark is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the Harvard Club of New York City, Hamilton Club of Brooklyn, and the Staten Island and Richmond County Country Clubs. He married, Oct. 20, 1883, Irene M. de M. Carty. Address: New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y.

CLARK, Victor Selden

Writer, economist; born at Portageville, N. Y., June 12, 1868; son of Major S. N. and Helen F. (Davis) Clark. He was graduated from the Minnesota State University as Litt.B. in 1890; was honorary fellow of the University of Chicago, studying at the University of Gottingen and the University of Berne, and received his Ph.D. degree from Columbia University in 1900, being a fellow of that university, 1897-1898. He was president of the Insular Board of Education and director of Public Instruction of Porto Rico 1899-1900; was engaged in investigating tropical labor conditions for the United States Bureau of Labor, 1902-1906; and has been collaborator in charge of the Division of Manufacturers, Department of Economics and Sociology, in the Carnegie Institute of Washington since 1906. He traveled in Europe, Porto Rico, Cuba, Hawaii and the Philippines, also in the British tropical colonies in the East; Java, and the German Colonies in the Pacific, and extensively in New Zealand and Australia. He is author of: Teacher's Manual Studies in the Latin of the Middle Ages and the Renaissance; The Labor Movement in Australasia, as well as of numerous Government reports on labor conditions; in foreign countries and is editor, with notes, of editions of The Colloquies of Erasmus and the Historia Romana of Eutropius. Residence: The Ontario. Address: Carnegie Institute, Washington, D. C.

CLARK, Walter:

Chief Justice of North Carolina; born in Halifax, N. C., Aug. 19, 1846; son of Gen. David and Anna M. (Thorne) Clark. He joined the Confederate Army in the Spring of 1861, at fourteen years of age and after over two years' service and reaching the rank of first lieutenant and adjutant of the Thirty-fifth North Carolina Regiment, he resigned and entered the University of North Carolina, from which he was graduated June 2, 1864, the next day again entered the Confederate States Army, and on July 4, 1864 became lieutenant-colonel of 70th North Carolina Regiment, at the age of seventeen, being the youngest officer of that rank in either army during the Civil War. After the war he took up the study of law and was admitted to the bar of North Carolina in 1867. He practised law until 1885, when he became judge of the Superior Court of North Carolina, and held that office until elected in 1889 one of the judges of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. In 1894, he was renominated by the Democratic, Republican and Populist parties and unanimously elected by the people. He has remained on that bench ever since, and has been chief justice since Jan. 1, 1903. He has attained high distinction as a jurist and legal author, compiled and edited the North Carolina State Records, in seventeen folio volumes, Histories of the North Carolina Regiments, from 1861 to 1865, in five volumes; and has edited and annotated a reprinted edition of ninety-eight volumes of the Reporter of the Supreme Court of the State of North Carolina, and is author of several legal works. He has also contributed extensively to reviews and magazines, and he translated, from the original French, Constant's Memoirs of Napoleon, published in three volumes in 1895. Judge Clark married, at Hillsboro, N. C., Jan. 28, 1874, Susan W. daughter of Hon. William A. Graham (governor of North Carolina 1845-1849, secretary of the Navy 1850-1852, and U. S. Senator from North Carolina), and has seven children. Address: Raleigh, N. C.

CLARK, Walter:

Landscape artist; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 9, 1848; son of Daniel Candee and Helen Maria (Ballard) Clark. He was educated in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in the class of 1870, and was afterward a student at the National Academy of Design, the Art Students' League and under the late George Inness, and also a student in sculpture under J. S. Hartley. He exhibited at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893, at the Paris Exposition of 1900, the Pan-American and St. Louis Expositions and was awarded silver medals at the two latter and received the Inness gold medal of the National Academy of Design. He followed sculpture for five years until 1881, and since then he has been a landscape artist. He is an associate member of the National Academy of Design, a member of the Society of American Artists, the Society of Landscape Painters, the New York Water Color Club, the Artists' Fund Society, and the Century Association of New York City. He married in New York City, in 1876, Jennie W. Clark, and they have six children. Address: 134 Meadow Lane, New Rochelle, N. Y.

CLARK, Walter Gordan:

Electrical engineer; born in Salt Lake City, Oct. 23, 1876; son of Thomas Allen and Eunice Madelina (Wright) Clark. He was educated in public schools, Salt Lake Academy, California Technical Schools and by private instruction. He engaged in hydraulic, steam and electrical engineering, 1893-1903, in California, Washington, Oregon, Hawaiian Islands and Japan. He organized the Kilbourne & Clark Company, and was engaged in electrical engineering, contracting and jobbing of electrical equipment, 1899-1903; became manager of the electrical branch of the Ansonia Brass and Copper Company, New York City, 1903; president of the Parker-Clark Electric Company, New York City, 1905. He carried on research work at Columbia University, 1903-1906, and in conjunction with Professor Herschel C. Parker of Columbia University, invented a new electric lamp (Helion), the Helion Resistance Unit, and Helion Air Burning Filament. He conducted research work on electrical conductors and insulators for high potential power transmission and has patented inventions in these lines. He is president of the Parker-Clark Electric Company, the Clark Electric and Manufacturing Company; and director of the Texas Traction Company, Dallas, Texas, American Railway and Lighting Company of New York, and the Kilbourne and Clark Company, Seattle, Wash. Mr. Clark has made explorations in Mexico, the Sierra Nevada Mountains, Rocky Mountains, the Olympia Mountains of Washington, and made the first ascent of Mount Olmypus, Wash., 1906. He is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Electro Chemical Society, Pacific Northwest Society of Engineers and the Pacific Transmission Association, the Union League, Railway, and Engineers' Clubs of New York, the Faculty Club of Columbia University, Ramier Club of Seattle, Wash., and the Fairfield County Golf and Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs, of Greenwich, Conn., is treasurer of the Explorers' Club of New York City, and a member of Masonic and Elks lodges in Seattle. Residence: Engineers' Club, 32 West 49th Street. Office: 149 Broadway, New York City.

CLARK, William Andrews:

United States Senator, banker and mine owner; born on a farm near Connellsville, Pa., Jan. 8, 1839. He received a common school education; moved to Iowa with his father in 1856, and assisted in farm work for a short time; taught school, and studied law at Mount Pleasant, Iowa; worked in the quartz mines around Central City, Colo., in 1862, and went in 1863 to Montana, where he has since resided. He was State orator at the Philadelphia Centennial in 1876; was elected grand master of the Masonic fraternity in 1877; was major of a battalion that pursued Chief Joseph and his band in the Nez Perces invasion of 1877; was president of the Constitutional Convention of the State in 1884, and was also president of the Second Constitutional Convention in 1889. He was Democratic candidate for Congress in 1888, but was defeated; and elected to the United States Senate by the Democratic Legislature in 1890, but was not seated. He was the caucus nominee of his party for the Senate in 1893, and he assisted materially in retaining the State capital at Helena in a memorable contest between that city and Anaconda in 1894. Senator Clark is extensively engaged in banking, mining, transportation, manufacturing, and various other business enterprises, and is possessed of very large financial resources. He was elected United States Senator, Jan. 28, 1899, to succeed Hon. Lee Mantle, Republican. A memorial was filed in the Senate asking that the election of Senator Clark be investigated, which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections; after an investigation a resolution was reported to the effect that the election was void. This resolution was not acted upon by the Senate, as Senator Clark, in a speech on May 15, 1900, stated that he had sent his resignation to the governor of Montana and desired to submit the matter to the people of his State, and would abide by their verdict. The acting governor of the State immediately appointed him to fill the vacancy created by his resignation, but he did not present himself to be sworn in under the credentials. In the Democratic State convention, held in Montana in September, a resolution was unanimously adopted demanding his reelection to the Senate, and a legislative ticket favorable to his reelection as elected in Nov. and on Jan. 16, 1901, he was re-elected for the term of six years, which expired March 3, 1907. Senator Clark is a member of the American Institute of Mechanical Engineers, the New York Chamber of Commerce, New York Historical Society, New York Zoölogical Society, New York Botanical Gardens. He married first in 1869, Kate L. Stauffer, who died in 1893, and second May 25, 1901, Anna E. La Chapelle. Residence: 175 West 58th Street. Office address: 49 Wall Street, New York City.

CLARK, William Braddock:

President Aetna Insurance Company; born in Hartford, Conn., June 29, 1841; son of Abel Newell Clark, formerly proprietor of the Hartford Courant, and Emily I. (Braddock) Clark. He was educated in the public and high schools of Hartford. At the age of sixteen he entered the office of the Phoenix Insurance Company of Hartford as bookkeeper, and remained with that company eleven years, the last four as secretary. He became assistant secretary of the Aetna Insurance Company in 1868, became vice-president of that company in 1888, and succeeded to the presidency, Nov. 30, 1892. He was vice-president of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, 1894-1895, and was elected president of that board in 1896. Mr. Clark is also a director of the Travelers' Insurance Company, the First National Bank, City Bank, Society for Savings, Mechanics' Savings Bank, and the Fidelity Company of Hartford. He is a Republican in politics and has served as alderman and water commissioner in Hartford. He is a member of the New England Society in New York, and of the Republican Club of Hartford. Mr. Clark married, at Hartford, Conn., May 13, 1863, Caroline H. Robbins, who died June 29, 1902, leaving three daughters. Residence: 268 Farmington Avenue, Hartford, Conn.

CLARK, William Bullock:

Director of the Geological Laboratory of Johns Hopkins University since 1894; born in Brattleboro, Vt., Dec. 15, 1860. He was graduated from Amherst College as A.B., 1884; University of Munich, Ph.D., 1887, and received the degree of LL.D. from Amherst College, 1908. He has been in continuous service as instructor and professor in geology at Johns Hopkins University since 1887, and was geologist of the U. S. Geological Survey up to 1907. He is State geologist and highway commissioner of Maryland, and was a member of the Conference on the Conservation of Natural resources at the White House, in May, 1908. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences; a fellow of the Geological Society of America; foreign correspondent of the Royal Geological Society of London, and a member of the German Geological Society. He is also president of the Children's Aid Society of Baltimore. He is author of: The Eocene Deposits of the United States; The Mesozoic Echinodermata of the United States; and other publications of the U. S. Geological and Maryland Surveys. Prof. Clark was married at Boston, Mass., Oct. 12, 1892, to Ellen Clark Strong, and they have four children. Residence: 8 East Read Street, Baltimore, Md. Office: Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

CLARK, William W.:

Jurist; born in Elgin, Ill., Feb. 14, 1858; son of De Marcus and Mary Ella (Walker) Clark. He was educated in the Whites-town (N. Y.) Seminary and Hamilton College, being graduated A.B., 1878, studied law and upon admission to the bar engaged in practice at Wayland, N. Y., in 1879. He served as district attorney of Steuben County, 1893-1902; judge of the Steuben County Court, 1902-1906, and was elected in 1906, on the Republican ticket a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the Seventh Judicial District for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. Justice Clark is also president of the First National Bank of Wayland, N. Y. He married at Forestport, N. Y., Sept. 18, 1879, Hattie M. Hill. Address: Wayland, N. Y.

CLARKE, Albert:

Lawyer and economist; born in Granville, Vt., Oct. 13, 1840; son of Jedediah and Mary (Woodbury) Clarke. After graduation from the Barre (Vt.) Academy in 1859 he studied and practised law at Montpelier, Vt., and in 1888 he received the honorary degree of A.M. from Dartmouth College. He enlisted in the 13th Vermont Volunteer Infantry, Aug., 1862, and was three times promoted, and during the battle of Gettysburg he was commander of the company and captured cannon and prisoners, and in 1865 was colonel on Governor Paul Dillingham's staff in Vermont. He was, from 1868 to 1880, editor and proprietor of the St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger; was editorially connected with the Boston Daily Advertiser, 1883-1885, and was editor and manager of the Rutland (Vt.) Herald from 1886 to 1889; since then secretary of the Home Market Club and editor of the Protectionist. Mr. Clarke is one of the best known advocates of the protective tariff system in the United State. His writings and addresses in this connection have been very extensive and form a considerable part of the literature depended upon for protective tariff arguments. He was a member of the Vermont Senate, 1874; member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives, 1896, 1897 and 1898, and chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means of that body. He was president of the Vermont and Canada Railroad, 1885-1886. Mr. Clarke was a delegate to the National Republican Convention in 1892, and was a member and later chairman of the U. S. Industrial Commission, 1899-1900. He is a member and was judge advocate general, 1897, of the Grand Army of the Republic. He married in Rochester, Vt., Jan. 21, 1864, Josephine Briggs. Residence: 879 Beacon Street. Office: 77 Summer Street, Boston.

CLARKE, Sir Caspar Purdon:

Director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; born in London in 1846; son of Edward Marmaduke and Mary Agnes (Close) Clarke. He was educated in Gaultiers Collegiate School, Sydenham, England; at Beancourts' School, Boulogne, France, and entered the National Art Training School at South Kensington, London, in 1862, becoming medallist in 1864, and receiving the National Medallion in 1865. He was in Government employ after that in the Office of Works in the House of Parliament, London, two years; in the Architects' Office, South Kensington Museum, 1867; superintendent of art reproductions in Italy, 1869; building the British Legation in Teheran and surveying consular property in Persia, 1874; collecting art objects in Greece, Turkey and Syria, for the South Kensington Museum, 1876; architect of the Indian Section and commercial agent of the Government of India at the Paris Exposition, 1878. After that he was again in the service of the South Kensington Museum, collecting art examples in Spain, Italy and Germany, 1879; rearranging the Indian collections, 1892, assistant director, 1893-1896, and director of the South Kensington Museum, 1896-1905. Since Sept. 1, 1905, he has been the director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City. He designed and built Cothelstone Church, Durham, England, 1876, the Indian Pavilion at the Paris Exposition, 1878, Alexandra House, Kensington, 1884, Indian City, Colonial and Indian Exhibition, 1886, National School of Cookery, 1887, Lord Brassey's Indian Museum at London, and the Indian Palace at the Paris Exposition, 1889, winning a gold medal. He was the British official delegate to the Vienna Exposition of 1891, and was appointed by the Austrian Government, editor of a work on Oriental Carpets; was Royal commissioner to the Paris Exposition, 1902; and to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, 1904. He was created Knight in 1902; companion of the Order of the Indian Empire, 1883; commander of the Victorian Order, 1905; chevalier de la Legion d'Honneur, 1878. He is a fellow of the Royal Society of Antiquaries, the Royal Society of British Architects; member of the Royal Asiatic Society, and Royal Academy of Madrid; is a Girdler and Mason of the City of London, and member of leading London and New York Clubs. McGill University, Montreal, has conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. He married Frances Susannah Collins. Address: Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City.

CLARKE, Frank Wigglesworth:

Chemist; born in Boston, Mass., March 19, 1847; son of Henry W. and Abby M. (Fisher) Clarke. He was graduated from Harvard as B.S. in 1867; received the honorary D.Sc. from Victoria University, and LL.D. from the University of Aberdeen. He was instructor at Cornell University in 1869; professor of chemistry at Howard University, Washington, 1873-1874; professor of chemistry and physics in the University of Cincinnati, 1874-1883, and has been chief chemist of the United States Geological Survey and honorary curator of minerals of the United States National Museum since 1883. He is a member of the Washington Academy of Sciences; fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; corresponding member of the British Association, Edinburgh Geological Society, etc. He is past president of the American Chemical Society, and chairman of the International Committee on Atomic Weights; member of the International Jury of Awards, Paris Exposition in 1900, and received the decoration of Chevalier of the Legion d'Honneur. He is honorary member of the Manchester (England) Literary and Philosophical Society (from which he received the Wilde medal), and of The Chemical Society (London); member of the American Philosophical Society and of the Cosmos Club, of Washington, D. C. He is author of several books and more than a hundred papers on scientific topics. Dr. Clarke married at Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 9, 1874, Mary P. Olmsted, and they have three daughters. Residence: 1612 Riggs Place, Washington, D. C. Office: United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

CLARKE, James P.:

United States Senator; born at Yazoo City, Miss., Aug. 18, 1854; son of Walter and Ellen (White) Clark. After a preparatory education he entered the law department of the University of Virginia, from which he was graduated in 1878, when he established practice at Helena, Arkansas. He has been active in political matters as a representative Democrat, served in the Arkansas House of Representatives, 1886-1887, the Arkansas Senate, 1888-1892, serving in 1891 as president of the Senate and ex-officio lieutenant-governor; attorney-general of Arkansas, 1893-1894, governor of Arkansas from Jan., 1895, to Jan., 1897, then, declining reelection, removed to Little Rock and engaged in the practice of law. He was elected in 1903 to the United States Senate for the term expiring in March, 1909. Senator Clarke was formerly the Arkansas member of the National Democratic Committee. He married at Helena, Ark., Nov. 10, 1883, Sallie Moore. Address: Little Rock, Ark.

CLARKE, John Proctor:

Jurist; born in Florence, Italy, of American parents, April 23, 1856; son of I. Edwards and May Louise (Proctor) Clarke. He was graduated from Yale, B.A., 1878. He was admitted to the bar in 1880; was assistant U. S. attorney for the Southern District of New York from July 1, 1881, to May 1, 1886, and was a member of the law firm of Hascall, Clarke & Van der Pool, from May 1, 1886, to March 1, 1895. He was assistant corporation counsel in Mayor Strong's administration from March 1, 1895, to Jan. 1, 1898, was counsel to Fallow's Committee of the Assembly to investigate the Surrogate's Court in 1899; counsel to the Mazet Committee of the Assembly to investigate the New York City Government in 1899; and was appointed by Governor Roosevelt, Dec., 1900, justice of the Supreme Court to fill a vacancy; and elected, Nov., 1901, for a full term, and was assigned to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, for the First Department, by Governor Higgins, in Oct., 1905. Mr. Clarke is a Republican in politics and is a member of the Bar Association of the City of New York. He is also a member of the Union League, University, Yale, Manhattan, Larchmont Yacht, Republican, and West Side Republican Clubs of New York City. He married at Shrewsbury, N. J., June 25, 1884, Sarah M. Parker, and they have a son, Robert Parker. Address: 1 West 81st Street, New York City.

CLARKE, R. Floyd:

Lawyer; born at Columbia, S. C., Oct. 14, 1859; son of Samuel C. and Caroline B. (Clarkson) Clarke. He was graduated from the College of the City of New York, A.B., 1880, and A.M., 1899, and from Columbia College Law School, LL.B., cum laude, with first prize in municipal law. He was for many years counsel for the New York and New Jersey Bridge Company, and the George A. Fuller Company. He was counsel in the Kemp will case, and is now counsel in the following matters: for the North River Bridge Company, for the United States Venezuela Company, owners of the Crichfield concession in Venezuela, cancelled by Castro and claim now pending in the State Department of the United States and sent to the Hague Tribunal for arbitration by protocol sequel between the United States of America and Venezuela Feb. 13, 1909, for the McGivney & Rokeby Company, owners of the sewerage contract for the city of Havana under the Platt amendment and Governor Wood's proclamation (which claim was now pending in the State Department of the United States) and has now resulted in a new contract between the Republic of Cuba and the McGivney & Rokeby Construction Company, dated June 23, 1908, for the same work with 10 per cent of the Havana customs receipts set aside to pay for it, for the Mexican claimants to land in El Chamizal District, El Paso, Texas (claim now pending between Mexico and the United States). He is a director of the Unadilla Valley Railroad Company, and the Chamizal Title Company. Mr. Clarke is a member of the American Bar Association, the American Society of International Law, the New York State Bar Association, the Bar Association of the City of New York, and the Colonial Order of the Acorn. His favorite recreation is yachting, and he is owner of the sloops Atala and Argonaut. Mr. Clarke is author of: The Science of Law and Law Making, 1898 (Macmillan). A Permanent Tribunal of International Law—Its Necessity and Value. He is a member of the New York Southern Society, the University, New York Yacht, Larchmont Yacht, and Atlantic Yacht Clubs, the Lawyers' Club and the Down Town Association of New York. Residence: 6 West 74th Street. Address: 37 Wall Street, New York City.

CLARKE, Thomas Benedict:

Art collector and connoisseur; born at New York City, Dec. 11, 1848; son of George W. and Mary J. Clarke. He was educated at the Mount Washington Collegiate Institute, New York City. Mr. Clarke has devoted a lifetime to the collection of works of art, and in 1899 sold a collection of works of American artists for $235,000. He is a member of the National Academy of Design, and founded and endowed the Clarke Composition prize at that institution. He is also a member of the American Fine Arts Society, the American Museum of Natural History, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the Chamber of Commerce of New York; the Century, the Metropolitan, The Brook, Manhattan Union League, Lambs', New York Yacht, and New York Athletic Clubs. Mr. Clarke married at New York City, Fanny E. Morris, and by that union there are two children. Residence: 22 E. 35th Street. Address: 12 East 41st Street, New York City.

CLARKE, Thomas Shields:

Sculptor and painter; born April 25, 1860; son of Charles J. and Louisa (Semple) Clarke. He was graduated from Princeton University in 1882, then took up the study of painting and sculpture at the École des Beaux Arts, Paris, and in Florence and Rome. Mr. Clarke has received awards and medals for both sculpture and painting from many expositions and represented by pictures in museums in Boston and Philadelphia, and by large works in marble and bronze in New York, Chicago and other cities. He is an associate National academician of the National Academy of Design, member of the National Sculpture Society, Metropolitan Museum of Art, Architectural League, American Museum of Natural History, New York Zoological Society, National Geographic Society, Royal Society of Arts of London, National Society of Arts and Crafts, and of the Princeton, University and Century Clubs. He has a summer residence at Lenox, Mass. Address: 50 Riverside Drive, New York City.

CLARKE, William Horatio:

Musical author and organist; born in Newton, Mass., March 8, 1840; son of Horatio and Elvira (Richards) Clarke. He was educated in the public and high schools of Dedham, Mass. Mr. Clarke was organist in the Tremont Temple, Boston, the Roberts Park Church, Indianapolis, and in the First Baptist Church at Rochester, N. Y. He retired from professional life in 1892. Since 1865 he has written and compiled thirty books for organ, choirs and musical education, and his New Method for Reed Organs, published in 1869, had a sale of 150,000 copies. Besides being a musical author and correspondent, Mr. Clarke is an organ expert, having invented several improvements in organ building. He was senior member of the firm of William H. Clarke and Company, organ builders, of Indianapolis, Ind., 1874-1878, and is a member of the firm of E. T. Clarke and Company, music book publishers, Reading, Mass. He has been member of the Society of Arts, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, since 1879, and his latest musical works are: Valuable Organ Information, 1906; How to Use Organ Stops and Pedals, 1908; An Illustrated Treatise on Standard Organ Building, 1909. He married at Winchester, Mass., Dec. 18, 1861, Eliza Tufts Richardson, and they have five children. Residence: Clarigold Hall. Office: 28 South Street, Reading, Mass.

CLARKSON, James S.:

Surveyor of customs; born in Indiana, in 1842. He removed to Iowa in 1856 and was educated in the public schools. He became a school teacher in 1859, and then was in the employ of the Daily State Register at Des Moines, Iowa, as printer foreman, business manager and editor, from 1862 to 1870, and with his brother, the late Richard P. Clarkson, purchased the paper in 1870. He sold his interest in 1891. From 1871 to 1877 he was postmaster at Des Moines, Iowa, and from 1889 to 1890 was first assistant postmaster-general of the United States, from which position he resigned in 1890; and he has been, surveyor of customs of the Port of New York since 1902. He is a Republican in politics. Mr. Clarkson was chairman of the Iowa State Republican Committee in 1866, and for years after; a member of the National Republican Committee, from 1884 to 1896, and its chairman from 1890 to 1892. He was also a member of all the Republican National Conventions from 1880 to 1896, and president of the Republican League of the United States in 1891 and 1892. He organized and was president of the company which constructed five of the railways into Des Moines, Iowa; and is president of the New York and New Jersey Bridge Company, organized to construct a suspension bridge over the Hudson River at Fifty-ninth Street with terminals. Mr. Clarkson married, in 1867, Anna Howell. Residence: The Hendrick Hudson, Riverside Drive and 110th Street. Office address: Custom House, New York City.

CLAY, Alexander Stephens:

United States Senator; born Sept. 25, 1853, on a farm in Cobb County, Ga. He received his primary and preparatory education in the country schools and the high school at Palmetto, Ga., and was graduated from Hiawassce College in 1875; taught school for two years and studied law under Judge David Irwin, of Marietta. Mr. Clay was admitted to the bar in Sept., 1877, and has been engaged actively in the practice of law ever since. He was elected a member of the City Council in 1880 and re-elected in 1881, and represented Cobb County in the General Assembly of the State from 1884 to 1887; and in 1886 and 1887 was elected speaker pro tempore. He was re-elected for 1889 and 1890, and served as speaker for two years, and in 1892 was elected to the State Senate, and served as president of that body for two years. In 1894 he was elected chairman of the State Democratic Executive Committee, and conducted the State campaign between the Democrats and Populists in that year; was re-elected to the same position in 1896 and still occupies the place. He was elected to the United States Senate to succeed John G. Gordon, in Oct., 1896, and took his seat March 4, 1897, and was re-elected in 1903 and 1909. His present term will expire March 3, 1915. Address: Marietta, Ga.

CLAY, Brutus Junius:

Diplomat; born in Madison County, Ky., Feb. 20, 1847; son of General Cassius Marcellus and Mary Jane (Warfield) Clay. He was educated in the famous school of Jason Chenault at Louisville, at Transylvania University, and the University of Michigan, receiving the degrees of B.S. and C.E. in 1868. He established a mercantile business in 1868 at Richmond, Ky., of which place he has ever since been a citizen, conducted farms in Illinois and Kentucky and a cotton plantation in Mississippi, also owned lumber mills, freestone quarries and other interests at various places in Kentucky. Mr. Clay has been active in political affairs in Kentucky as a Republican, and in 1897 he was offered the appointment of American minister to Argentina by President McKinley, but declined the appointment. He was United States commissioner to the Paris Exposition of 1900, and in 1905 was appointed by President Roosevelt to his present position as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to the Swiss Republic. Mr. Clay married first, at Richmond, Ky., 1872, Pattie Amelia Field, and second, at Nicholasville, Ky., 1895, Lalla R. Fish. Address: American Legation, Berne, Switzerland.

CLAYPOLE, Edith Jane:

Physician (pathologist); born in Bristol, England; daughter of Edward Waller and Jane (Trotter) Claypole, and is one of twin girls. She was brought to America as a child and was educated by her father and mother until she entered college. She was graduated from Buchtel College, Akron, Ohio, as Ph.B., from Cornell University as M.S., taught physiology and histology five years from Wellesley College, where she was acting professor two years, then entered the Medical School of Cornell University, and after completing two years there, during which she also taught physiology in the Medical Department, went to California, taught a year at the Throop Polytechnic Institute in biology, and completed her medical course in the Medical School of the University of Southern California, specializing in pathology and receiving the degree of M.D., and she took a prize for the best microscopical paper from the American Microscopical Society. Dr. Claypole lives in Pasadena and has her office in Los Angeles, practising in those cities as a pathologist, and being pathologist to the Pasadena Hospital. She is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and of the Southern California Academy of Science; member of the American Medical Association, the California State Medical Society, Delta Gamma (Cornell University), Sigma Xi (honorary scientific), A.E.I. (Medical), the Wellesley College Club, and the Cornell University Club of Southern California. Dr. Claypole is assistant editor of the Year Book in Climatology, and is author of The Blood of Necturus and Cryptobranchus, and of several papers in histology. Residence: 50 South Grand Avenue, Pasadena, Calif. Office: 800 Temple Auditorium, Los Angeles, Calif.

CLAYTON, Henry De Lamar:

Congressman; from 3rd Alabama district; born in Barbour County, Alabama. He was graduated from the University of Alabama as A.B. in 1878; studied law; was admitted to the bar, and since then has practised his profession at Clayton, Barbour County, and subsequently at Eufaula, Ala. He was elected presidential elector in 1888 and again in 1892, and was United States attorney for the middle district of Alabama, from May, 1893 to October, 1896, and since 1888 has been a member of the National Democratic Committee. He was first elected to Congress in 1897 and has been successively elected, his election to the Sixtieth Congress being remarkable from the fact that he received every vote cast. During the Congress he was the chairman of the Democratic Caucus called to determine the action of the minority in important matters. Mr. Clayton has been reelected to the Sixty-first Congress. Address: Eufaula, Ala.

CLAYTON, Henry Helm:

Meteorologist; born in Murfreesboro, Tenn., March 12, 1861. He was educated in the public schools and at the University of Michigan, where he became student assistant in the astronomical Observatory, 1884-1885, then became assistant in the Harvard Observatory, 1885-1886; observer at the Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory at Hyde Park, Mass., 1886-1891; was local forecast official of the United States Weather Bureau, 1891-1893; and from January, 1894 to April, 1909, was meteorologist at the Blue Hill Meteorological Observatory of Harvard College. He has invented numerous devices in meteorological apparatus, including the Blue Hill Box-Kite, an attachment for anemometers, and others. He was consulting expert in the preparation of the Cloud Atlas prepared for the Hydrographic Office under Captain Sigsbee, U. S. N.; and he is author of: Discussions of the Cloud Observations at Blue Hill; Exploration of the Air by Means of Kites; and The Lawrence Tornado (all in the Annals of the Harvard Astronomical Observatory); also the Eclipsis Cyclone and the Diurnal Cyclones; A Study of Cyclonic and Anticyclonic Phenomena with Kites; The Annual and Diurnal Periods of Temperature, Humidity and Wind Velocity in the Free Air; also a large number of papers on meteorological subjects in American and European scientific journals. With Mr. Erbslöh he won the International balloon race in America in 1907, traveling the greatest distance ever made by balloon in America. He is now devoting his time to promoting the development of aeronautics and to lecturing and writing on the subject. He married at Nashville, Tenn., 1892, Francis Fawn Coman. Address: Canton, Mass.

CLAYTON, Joseph Culbertson:

Lawyer, publicist; born at Smithfield, June 16, 1830; son of Rev. Thomas Greer and Virginia Ann (Bayley) Clayton. He was educated at Madison College, Pennsylvania, and by private tutors, and read law for three years with John L. Norris, at Washington, D. C. He was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, in 1863, and to the bar of the United States Supreme Court in 1866; to the bar of the State of New York in 1869, as well as in many United States Circuit and District Courts, and the U. S. Circuit Courts of Appeal. After five years' general practice, he gave most of his time to practice in the National Courts, making a specialty of patent law, and from 1868 to 1888 he was in charge of the great litigation in favor of the Driven Well patent. He was mustered into the United States service as a private in the National Rifles at Washington, D. C., April 15, 1861, being the first company in the United States sworn in under Lincoln's first call for volunteers. In 1896 he edited the posthumous second volume of Curtis's Constitutional History of the United States. Mr. Clayton has been editor of the department of national and international law, of The American Lawyer, of New York City. His series of articles from December, 1906, in Keat Magazine, entitled: The Law Constitution: Suggestions Towards its Interpretation, have attracted much attention, and will be issued with revisions and additions in a volume under that title. At the Peace Congress in New York City, in April, 1907, he submitted (the first) A Plan for A Tentative Constitution of the United Nations. Mr. Clayton is an "Independent" and "Nationalist" in politics. Prior to 1896 he often voted the "Democratic" ticket. Since 1896 he has voted with the Republicans, and has supported the policies associated with the names of McKinley and of Roosevelt, and to that end has extensively contributed in the metropolitan press and magazines, and in pamphlets. In 1896, 1900, 1904, and 1908 he made numerous addresses in favor of the Republican candidates. Since 1896 he has largely devoted himself to the careful study of the Constitutional Law and History of the United States for the purpose of maintaining the broad doctrine of the Paramountcy of the United States as an Integral Nation; and of opposing the conflicting doctrine of State Sovereignty. He is a member of the N. Y. Southern Society, and of "The Virginians." Mr. Clayton married, at Springfield, Ill., Dec. 19, 1876, Miss Elsie Franklin Rowe. He has two sons, Robert Rowe (1878) and Conrad Crawford (1879). Residence: 221 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, N. Y. Address: New York City.

CLEARWATER, Alphonso Trumbour:

Jurist, publicist; born at West Point, N. Y., Sept. 11, 1848; son of Isaac Clearwater and Emily Boudoin (Trumbour) Clearwater; of Dutch and Huguenot ancestry. He was educated at the old Anthon Grammar School in New York City and at the Kingston (New York) Academy, and in 1903 received the degree of LL.D. from Rutgers College for Distinction in the public service. He was admitted to the bar in November, 1871; elected district attorney of Ulster County, N. Y., in 1877, and re-elected in 1880 and 1883. He declined a nomination for Congress in 1884 and 1886. He has repeatedly been a delegate to the Republican National State, Judicial, Congressional and Senatorial conventions. He was elected county judge of Ulster County in 1889, was re-elected in 1895 and in 1898 resigned to accept the appointment, by the Governor, as justice of the Supreme Court of New York, in place of Alton B. Parker, then elected Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, and in 1909 was appointed by the Governor of New York a member of the State Probation Commission of that State. He is a trustee of Rutgers College; was a delegate of New York State Bar Association to the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists, held in connection with the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904, he was the chairman of the Committee of the New York State Bar Association to suggest reform in the introduction of medical expert testimony in civil and criminal trials and chairman of the joint Committee of that Association, of the New York State Medical Society, of the Homœopathic Medical Society of the State and of the New York Academy of Medicine to urge the passage of a law regulating the introduction of that testimony. At the request of the editor of the North American Review he wrote an article upon Medical Expert Testimony which appeared in the June, 1909, number. He was appointed a member of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission in 1906. At the request of David Dudley Field, he prepared many of the provisions of the Penal Code and the Code of Criminal Procedure of New York. He was appointed commissioner in 1895 to supervise the translation from Dutch into English of the Dutch records of Ulster County (1661-1684), and completed the work in 1898. He was one of the founders and first vice-president for Ulster County of the Holland Society; one of the founders and since its formation a vice-president of the Huguenot Society of America; vice-president of the Old Senate House Association of Kingston; Ulster Historical Society; trustee of the Kingston City Hospital; member of the St. Nicholas Society of New York City, of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, the American Bar Association, the New York State Bar Association; honorary member of the St. Andrew's Society of Charleston, S. C., member of the New York Historical Society; the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, the Huguenot Societies of London, of South Carolina and of

New Paltz, the Ex-Libris Society of London, the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society, the Historical Society of Newburg Bay and the Highlands, American Numismatic Society, and the Minnisink Historical Society. He is also corresponding member of the historical societies of various states. In 1907 he edited an authoritative history of Ulster County. He has written many papers and delivered frequent addresses in America, Holland and France upon the influence of the Dutch and Huguenots in the formation of the American Republic, and has made a large collection of original and unpublished manuscripts relative to that subject. He delivered the address at the opening of the great Protestant Mission at Menilmontant, Paris, France, in June, 1888, and the response to the address of welcome to the Holland Society made by the Burgomaster of Rotterdam, Holland, on the occasion of the visit of the Holland Society to that country in 1888. Judge Clearwater has been an extensive and valued contributor to historical literature, being a contributor to the North American Review, and the author on The Influence of the Dutch and Huguenots in the Formation of the American Republic; Louis XIV and the Revocation of the Edict of Nantes; The Huguenot Settlement at New Paltz, in Ulster County; Huguenot Medals in the British Museum; Founders of New Amsterdam; Dutch Governors of New York; the Jurists of Holland; Dutchmen of Albany and the Iroquois; Lord North and the American Colonists; Ulster in the War of the Revolution; The Adoption of the First Constitution of New York at Kingston, 1777; The Struggle for the Highlands during the War of the Revolution; The Inaugural of George Clinton, the First Constitutional Governor of New York, at Kingston. He delivered notable memorial addresses upon the life and services of Abraham Lincoln, General Ulysses S. Grant, William McKinley; Ulster in the War of the Rebellion; Protest Against the Destruction of the City Hall of New York; Significance of Dutch Local Names; Antiquity of Free Masonry; The Trial of Christ from the Standpoint of a Roman Lawyer of the Time of Tiberius.

Judge Clearwater also has written extensively on criminological and legal subjects and public matters including: Heredity and Criminal Propensity; Lombroso and the Danger of Sentimental Criminology; Moral Accountability of Criminals; Goethe and the Sentimentalists. At the request of the Kingston Literary Club he prepared and read before it an address upon Delusions: The Undervaluation of American Citizenship. At the request of the New York State Bar Association, he prepared and read at its annual meeting in January, 1906, an address upon The Disregard of Law. He is a member of the Union League, Metropolitan and Grolier Clubs of New York City, and of the Automobile Club of America. He is one of the founders, a member, governor and former president of the Kingston Club, and president and one of the founders of the Twaalfskill Golf Club. Judge Clearwater is a noted after dinner speaker, a collector of early Americana and early American silver, an enthusiastic golfer and automobilist. He married in 1875, Anna Houghtaling Farrand, daughter of Colonel William D. Farrand, of San Francisco. Address: 316 Albany Avenue, Kingston, New York.

CLEARY, Peter Joseph Augustine:

Physician and surgeon; born on the Island of Malta, Nov. 7, 1839; son of Patrick and Seraphina Laura (Cetti) Cleary. He was educated in Queen's University, Ireland (Galway Branch), the Dublin hospitals and was graduated from the Royal College of Surgeons of England (London), as M.D. in May, 1860. The following August he came to the United States and practised his profession in Brooklyn until August, 1862, when in response to a call for surgeons by Secretary of War Stanton he volunteered his services after the second battle of Manassas, and was assigned to duty at Washington with the wounded from that battlefield. Dr. Cleary was appointed assistant surgeon, U. S. V., Oct. 4, 1862, surgeon U. S. V. April 13, 1862; was brevetted lieutenant-colonel U. S. V. for faithful and meritorious services Aug. 9, 1865, and honorably mustered out Aug. 10, 1865. During the Civil War he served most of the time with the Army of the Cumberland; converted the Crutenfield House into a hospital in Chattanooga, Tenn., and took in the first wounded from the battles of Chicamauga and Mission Ridge in September and November 1863. After the Civil War he was appointed assistant surgeon U. S. A., Oct. 9, 1867; captain Dec. 26, 1867; major Jan. 30, 1883; lieutenant-colonel and deputy surgeon general, Nov. 15, 1897; colonel and assistant surgeon general, Feb. 4, 1901; brigadier general, U. S. A., Aug. 6, 1903, and retired Aug. 7, 1903. His service after the Civil War was on the Western frontier—Colorado, Kansas, Arizona, New Mexico, Indian Territory, etc. He was chief surgeon of the Department of Texas from 1896 until the Spanish-American War in 1898, when he became chief surgeon of the Department of the Gulf, with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga.; and after that war closed he was again chief surgeon of the Department of Texas until his retirement. Brigadier-General Cleary is a member of several medical and army societies and social clubs. He married in Athens, Tenn., Sept. 28, 1865, Sarah Maria, daughter of Judge Charles F. Keith, and has one son. Address: Care of the Adjutant General U. S. A., Washington, D. C.

CLELAND, McKenzie:

Municipal judge; born at Delhi, N. Y., Oct. 8, 1860; son of William J. and Judith (Wilson) Cleland. After his graduation from Monmouth College, Illinois, with the A.M. degree in 1882, he entered the law department of Washington University, St. Louis from which he was graduated as LL. B. in 1884. In the same year he was admitted to the Illinois bar, and he afterward engaged in the practice of law in Chicago. On the organization of the new Municipal Court in Chicago in 1906, he was elected justice and assigned to the Maxwell Street branch. He has administered the duties of the office on the basis of the view that it is the purpose of the law to keep men out of prison, and with a most extensive use of the probation and parole system, with remarkable results in the reformation of offenders. Judge Cleland is prominent in religious work and particularly in Bible-Class work in Chicago. He is a member of the United Presbyterian Church. He organized a Bible Class of men upon methods that made it popular, and was made director of adult work for the Cook County Association, with the result that thousands of young men, represented in many churches, were organized in Bible Classes, with attractive inter-class social relations. He presented the work to the International Sunday School Association at Toronto in 1905, with the result that it became an international movement. He was for six years president of the Englewood Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago, is president of the National Probation League, and of the Chicago Branch of the American Bible League, and is a director of the Moody Bible Institute. Residence: 6439 Normal Boulevard, Chicago. Office address: 148 Michigan Avenue., Chicago.

JOHN L. CLEM
Colonel U. S. Army

CLEM, John Lincoln:

Colonel U. S. Army; born at Newark, Ohio, Aug. 13, 1851. He was in his tenth year when the Civil War began, and he several times tried to enlist as a drummer boy, but was rejected because of his extreme youth. He succeeded in May, 1863, by securing enlistment as musician in the Twenty-second Michigan Volunteers, and he took part in the hot fights and at Shiloh especially distinguished himself, his drum being literally shot full of holes, and his conduct on that occasion has endeared him to the country and especially its veteran soldiers as The Drummer Boy of Shiloh. At Chickamauga he threw away his drum, and, seizing the musket of a fallen comrade he entered the ranks. Being called upon by a Confederate soldier to surrender, he not only refused to entertain the summary proposition, but succeeded in placing his would-be captor hors de combat. He was mustered out of the service in September, 1864, as lance sergeant of Company C of the Twenty-second Michigan Infantry, and attended school. Lossing says he was probably the youngest soldier that ever bore arms in battle. President Grant in 1871, appointed him to a place in the Artillery Training School at Fort Monroe, and he was commissioned second lieutenant in the Twenty-fourth Infantry. He was promoted first lieutenant Oct. 5, 1874; captain and assistant quartermaster Sept. 12, 1883; major quartermaster Sept. 22, 1896, lieutenant-colonel and deputy quartermaster-general, Oct. 26, 1901, colonel and assistant quartermaster-general since Jan. 20, 1904. Address: Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, Texas.

CLEMENS, Samuel Langhorne:

Author; born in Florida, Mo., Nov. 30, 1835; son of John Marshall and Jane (Lampton) Clemens. He was educated in the common schools at Hannibal, Mo., but has received several honorary degrees, including those of M.A. and L.H.D. from Yale in 1901, LL.D. from the University of Missouri in 1902, and Litt.D. from the University of Oxford in 1907. He began in 1848 as a worker at the printing trade and later was a steamboat pilot. He went in 1861 to Nevada, as private secretary to his brother, who had been appointed Territorial secretary there. He became city editor of the Virginia City Enterprise in Nevada, where his gift of humor first attracted attention. He was afterwards a miner in Calaveras County, California, made a voyage to Hawaii, and became a lecturer and writer of fiction under the nom de plume of Mark Twain. He published a book, called by the name of his first story, The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County, the success of which, together with his humorous lectures, rapidly extended his fame. He joined an excursion to the Orient in 1867-1868, and immortalized the trip in a book under the title of Innocents Abroad; was editor of the Buffalo express from 1869 to 1871, and was connected with the publishing house of Charles Webster & Company from 1884 to 1891. The failure of that house left him without means, and in debt, and led him to make a lecture tour around the world from 1895 to 1896, by means of which he reestablished his fortune. Mr. Clemens is author of: The Jumping Frog of Calaveras County, 1867; Innocents Abroad, 1869; Roughing It, 1872; The Gilded Age (with Charles Dudley Warner), 1873; Adventures of Tom Sawyer, 1876; A Tramp Abroad, 1880; The Stolen White Elephant, 1882; The Prince and the Pauper, 1882; Life on the Mississippi, 1883; Adventures of Huckleberry Finn, 1885; A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court, 1889; the American Claimant, 1892; Merry Tales, 1892; The £1,000,000 Bank Note, 1893; The Tragedy of Pudd'nhead Wilson, 1894; Tom Sawyer Abroad, 1894; Personal Recollections of Joan of Arc, 1896; More Tramps Abroad, 1897; Following the Equator, 1897; The Man that Corrupted Hadleyburg, 1900; A Double-Barreled Detective Story, 1902; Christian-Science, 1903; serially, Is Shakespeare Dead? 1909; besides numerous contributions to magazines. He is a member of the Authors and Lotos Clubs of New York City. Mr. Clemens married in 1870, Olivia L. Langdon, of Elmira, N. Y., who died in 1904, and he has two daughters. Address: Redding, Conn.

CLEMENT, Edward Henry:

Editor; born at Chelsea, Mass., April 19, 1843; son of Cyrus and Rebecca Fiske (Shortridge) Clement. He is a descendant of Robert Clement of Coventry, England, who came to Massachusetts in 1643 and was chosen to buy from the Indians and survey the territory of Haverhill. Mr. Clement entered Tufts College from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1864; and he received from that college the degree of A.M. and Litt.D. in 1904. He began his newspaper career in 1864 as reporter of an army-post newspaper started with the deserted plant of the Savannah Daily News, and continued until 1867. He then returned north and worked on several newspapers, became chief proof-reader of the Boston Daily Advertiser in 1867, then went to the New York Tribune, under the editorship of Horace Greeley. From that he went to the Daily Advertiser, of Newark, N. J., as managing editor, and from 1871-1874 he was editor and part proprietor of the Journal of Elizabeth, N. J. In 1875 he was called to Boston to become assistant editor of the Transcript, then under the editorship of William A. Hovey, and upon Mr. Hovey's retirement in 1881, Mr. Clement was promoted to the position of editor-in-chief of The Boston Transcript, from which he retired in 1906, still remaining on the editorial staff. He was one of the founders, and is still a member of the Saint Botolph Club of Boston, and of the Massachusetts Historical Society and is active in the benevolent organizations of Boston. He married first at New York City, in 1869, Gertrude Pound, and by that union there were three children. He again married at Boston in 1898, Josephine Hill Russell, and they have one child. Residence: Brookline, Mass. Office: 324 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

CLEMENTS, Judson Claudius:

Interstate Commerce Commissioner; born in Walker County, Ga., Feb. 12, 1846. He was educated in an academy at Villanow, Ga., until Jan., 1864, when he entered the Confederate States Army as a private, afterward being commissioned first lieutenant and serving until the close of the War. He afterward studied law in Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., in the class of 1868, was admitted to the Georgia Bar in 1869 and practised law at La Fayette, Ga., until 1887, when he removed to Rome, Ga., where he was for a year president of the Chattanooga, Rome and Columbus Railroad. He was elected county school commissioner of Walker County in 1871; was a member of the Georgia Legislature from 1872 to 1876, of the Georgia Senate from 1877 to 1880; was elected in 1880 to the Forty-seventh Congress from the Seventh Georgia District, and was reelected to the Forty-eighth, Forty-ninth, Fiftieth and Fifty-first Congresses. In March, 1892, he was appointed a member of the Interstate Commerce Commissioner, to fill the unexpired term of Commissioner Bragg, and he was reappointed for six year terms in 1895, 1901 and 1907, his present term expiring Jan. 1, 1913. Mr. Clement married at Louisville, Ky., in 1886, Lizzie E. Dulaney. Residence: Rome, Ga. Address: 2113 Bancroft Place, Washington, D. C.

HENRY CLEWS
Banker

CLEPHANE, James Ogilvie:

Born in Washington, D. C., Feb. 21, 1842; son of James Clephane, a native of Edinburgh, Scotland, and whose family being socially intimate with Sir Walter Scott, had the advantage of his valuable advice in their literary efforts. Mr. James O. Clephane was at an early age admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, and was soon in the enjoyment of a good practice. Being of a progressive nature, however, he sacrificed his promising career at the Bar to take up with what to him appeared to be a more attractive and important field—that of certain inventions which he saw were very much needed. Among them was the development of the Sholes, (now known as the Remington Typewriter;) the Moore Typewriter, succeeded recently by the Planograph. While pursuing this interesting line of activity, he conceived the idea of getting up a machine which should dispense with typesetting by hand. Recognizing the extraordinary genius of Mr. O. Mergenthaler, who at that time was employed by A. Hahl & Co., of Baltimore, he explained to him in a general way his ideas. From that time for about fifteen years he and Mr. Mergenthaler were closely associated, the result being the perfection of the present popular Linotype machine. He is still a director in that successful Company, having among his associates, Whitelaw Reid, D. O. Mills, and P. T. Dodge. He also organized the Locke Steel Belt Co., the Linomatrix Machine Co., the National Typographic Co., the Aurora Mining Co., the Horton Basket Machine Co., the Fowler-Henkle Printing Press Co., the Oddur Machine Co., (about to introduce a new line-casting machine). In all of these companies he has been a Director, and President of several. Mr. Clephane has published interesting accounts of several of his journeys abroad and in this country. Residence: Englewood, N. J. Office: 45 Broadway, New York City.

CLERGUE, Francis Hector:

Engineer, organizer and promoter of industries; born in Bangor, Me., May 28, 1856; son of Joseph H. and Frances (Lombard)

Clergue. He was educated in the University of Maine. Was admitted to the bar of Maine in 1876, and afterward in other States and in the Supreme Court of the United States. Since 1880 his energies have been directed toward hydraulic engineering and the establishing of industries to be developed by the utilization of water-powers, and since 1894 has concentrated his activities in development of the industrial possibilities of the Falls of St. Mary at Sault Sainte Marie, Michigan and Ontario. There, at a cost of over thirty million dollars, he has built up great hydraulic power plants, factories, blast furnaces, steel rail mills, pulp mills, chemical, reduction and refining works, has developed nickel and copper mines and iron mines, constructed the Algoma Central Railway and the Manitoulin Railway, and has created the transportation facilities, terminals and steamship lines requisite to the vitality of these great enterprises. Address: Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, Canada.

CLEWS, Henry:

Banker and author, is a native of Staffordshire, England, his father having been an extensive manufacturer of goods exclusively for the American and Russian markets, and his grandfather a partner in business with Sir Robert Peel's father. Henry Clews received a liberal preliminary education, it being the design of his parents that he should become the curate of the Parish of Woolstanton, of which his cousin, the Rev. Dr. Tyson, was vicar. On a visit to New York, however, he determined to remain here, and obtained a position in the large importing house of Wilson G. Hunt & Co., but finally developed an ambition to enter the field of finance. On the heels of the great panic of 1857, in Wall Street, his opportunity came when he organized the banking firm of Stout, Clews & Mason. The new firm met with success from the start, and, on the retirement of Mr. Stout and Mr. Mason, who were succeeded by Mr. Charles F. Livermore, the firm became Livermore, Clews & Co. Mr. Clews was appointed by Hon. Salmon P. Chase (Secretary of the Treasury in Lincoln's Cabinet), financial agent for the sale of Government bonds issued to carry on the Civil War. These bonds were not very favorably received by the business world at the time as, owing to the uncertainties of the War, they were generally regarded as more or less risky securities; but Mr. Clews, though he knew the Treasury was empty, had the utmost faith in the strength and ability of the Government and the recuperative power of the North, and not only invested every dollar of his own in the bonds, but went in debt for millions of them besides. Secretary Chase gave well deserved credit to Henry Clews for the success achieved in floating his loans. He was, indeed, outspoken in saying, "If it had not been for Jay Cooke and Henry Clews, I should never have been able to sell enough of the 7-30 notes and 5-20 bonds to carry on the war." Mr. Clews, after the War, made banking his special business though he retained his valuable commission business in Government bonds. The revival in railroad interests that followed offered one of the most valuable fields for investments and his house negotiated for the sale of railroad bonds in Europe, a line of business in which it became extensively engaged. The present firm, that of Henry Clews & Co., was formed in 1877. Mr. Clews has always taken deep interest in American politics, but merely to the extent of promoting and securing good government, as he persistently declined to accept official position. Twice the portfolio of the Treasury Department was tendered him, and as often the Republican nomination for Mayor of New York, but business interests in each case forced him to decline these proffered honors. He also declined the post of Collector of the Port of New York, but recommended General Chester A. Arthur for the position, who received the appointment from President Grant. General Grant, however, appointed Mr. Clews fiscal agent of the Government for all foreign nations as a recognition by the Administration of his services in financing the Government during the War. He never hesitated to act when reform became imperative, and to him was due the credit of originating and organizing the famous

New York Committee of Seventy, as he selected and nominated 65 of the 70 original members before whose assault the Boss Tweed Ring went down. Mr. Clews is author of: Twenty-eight Years in Wall Street, 1885; The Wall Street Point of View, 1900; Fifty Years in Wall Street, 1908, and Speeches and Essays, 1909. In addition to his activities as a banker and author Mr. Clews is well known as a great orator and debater, his addresses having been delivered in all the chief cities of the country before conventions of Bankers, Manufacturers and Commercial Travelers, Universities, Schools of Finance and Business, Economic Clubs and other representative audiences. He has also made notable addresses on popular subjects in Cooper Institute, Madison Square Garden, the Hippodrome, and the Columbia Theatre (Brooklyn), and has occasionally done this from the pulpits of Plymouth Church in Brooklyn, and the Metropolitan Temple in New York. He served for many years as Treasurer of the American Geographical Society and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; and was one of the founders of the Union League Club. He is, too, one of the seven oldest members of the New York Chamber of Commerce, and the fourth oldest member of the Union Club, and also a member of the Army & Navy and Turf & Field Clubs, as well as the fifth oldest member of the New York Stock Exchange, and a member of the New York Cotton and Produce Exchanges and Chicago Board of Trade. In addition he is a life member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, The American Museum of Natural History, and the National Academy of Design; Trustee of the Civic Forum of New York, Director and Treasurer of the National Peace League, Director of the Economic Club of New York, Trustee and Treasurer of the American Civic Alliance of New York and President of the National Protective Highways Association, a Director of the Japan Peace Society and Director and Treasurer of the Richmond Hill Settlement, besides being connected with numerous other institutions. In May, 1908, the Emperor of Japan conferred upon Mr. Clews the Imperial Decoration of Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of the Rising Sun, and engraved on the insignia were the words, "the most exalted mark of merits and services." The Emperor also gave Mr. Clews a diploma bearing his own signature and Imperial Seal. This was in recognition of his services to the Japanese Government in advising and aiding it to organize the new financial system forty years ago, he having been appointed special agent in connection therewith, the appointment being recommended by General Grant while President. The opening up of Japan to the world of finance, under the preliminaries thus inaugurated, was declared by Ambassador Takahira in a recent speech at a "Peace" banquet to have been an event second only in importance to Commodore Perry's great service in opening the ports of Japan to the world, and he gave the credit therefor to Mr. Clews. In 1874 Mr. Clews married Miss Lucy Madison Worthington, of Kentucky, grandniece of President Madison and great granddaughter of General Andrew Lewis, next in command to General George Washington in the Revolutionary Army. Her father, Colonel William Worthington, who was shot from his horse while in command, in the Civil War, was a grandson of Gov. Slaughter, of Kentucky, and a gallant soldier on the Union side. Address: 15 Broad Street and 27 West 51st Street, New York City.

CLEWS, James Blanchard:

Banker; born in Dunkirk, N. Y., Aug. 4, 1869; son of John and Sabina (Dayman) Clews. He received his education in Chamberlain College, and his first commercial training was in the general offices of the Red Line Transit Company, and of the Union Steamboat Company at Buffalo, N. Y., where a knowledge of the railroad and transportation business was acquired and later he became president of the Toledo, Ann Arbor and Northern Michigan Railway Company during the period of reorganization. He was chairman of the Ontario and Western Railroad Stockholders' Committee, which succeeded in dissolving the Voting Trust which had been in existence for many years, and after several other committees had failed, and he has served on several reorganization committees. Mr. Clews is a member of the firm of Henry Clews & Co., bankers, and a well-known financial writer. He is chairman of the Board of Directors of the Standard Cordage; president of the Cannabis Manufacturing Company; director of the Irving Publishing Company, and New Amsterdam Casualty Company; trustee of the East River Savings Institution and a governor of the Northwestern Dispensary. He is also trustee of several large estates. Mr. Clews is a member of the Union League Club of New York and of the Automobile Club of America. Mr. Clews married in November, 1908, Mrs. Leta Nichols Livingston, daughter of Washington Romaine Nichols and great-granddaughter of General Benjamin Romaine of prison ship martyr fame. Residence: 1039 Fifth Avenue. Office: 15 Broad Street, New York City.

CLINCH, Edward Sears:

Lawyer; born in New York City; son of Frederick and S. Sophia (De Milt) Clinch. He was educated at the public schools; was graduated from the College of the City of New York as B.S., and from Columbia Law School as LL.B. He engaged in the practice of law and made a specialty of the commercial, probate and real estate branches of law. He was appointed justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the first Judicial District in 1906. Judge Clinch has always been an active Republican. He served as a member of the Republican County Committee of New York County for fifteen years, and was elected a presidential elector in 1904. He is a prominent Baptist layman, vice-president of the New York City Baptist Mission Society, and a member of the Executive Committee of the Northern Baptist Convention and a member of the Baptist Social Union, the Municipal Art Society, National Geographic Society, the Audubon Society, New York Historical Society, the American Society of International Law, American Bar Association, the New York State Bar Association, and Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the American Museum of Natural History. He is also a member of the Hardware and Quill Clubs, and the Harlem and Mt. Morris Republican Clubs. Judge Clinch married at New York City, Sept. 15, 1869, Cornelia B. Todd. Address: 133 West 121st Street, New York City.

CLINEDINST, Benjamin West:

Artist; born at Woodstock, Va., in 1859; son of Barnet M. and Mary Caroline Cline-dinst. He was educated at the Virginia Military Institute, and, after finishing there, went to Paris, and for several years studied art at the École des Beaux Arts, and under the famous French artists, Cabanel and Bonnat. Mr. Clinedinst is one of the best and most successful artists in the United States, both in black and white and color work. He has given considerable time to book and magazine illustrations, principally in the works of Mark Twain, Harriet B. Stowe, George W. Cable, Thomas Nelson Page, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Robert Louis Stevenson and Bret Harte. He is now engaged largely in portrait painting, having last year painted the portraits of several prominent Americans, among them being President Roosevelt, General G. W. Curtis Lee, General John Clous and others. He was, from its inception to its close, professor in the Art Schools of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and is now director of the Women's School of Applied Design of New York City, the School of Illustration, and the Drexel Institute of Philadelphia. In 1900 he was awarded the Evans Prize by the American Water Color Society, and he received medals at the Buffalo Exposition in 1901, and at the Charleston Exposition in 1902. He is member of the National Academy of Design, of the American Water Color Society, the Society of American Artists, of the Phi Kappa and various Masonic fraternities; he is also a member of the Century and Fencers' Clubs of New York City. Mr. Clinedinst spends much of his leisure time in riding and driving. He married at Baltimore, in 1888, Emily Gertrude Waters, and has two children.

Residence: Pawling, N. Y. Address: 7 West Forty-third Street, New York City.

CLINTON, Charles William:

Architect; born in New York City, 1838; son of Dr. Alexander and Adeline Arden (Hamilton) Clinton. He is a descendant of an old New York family, being great-grandson of General James Clinton and grand-nephew of Governor De Witt Clinton. He received his education in the schools of New York City. Mr. Clinton has been engaged as an architect for many years and is now senior member of the firm of Clinton & Russell, architects. He was architect of the Mutual Life Insurance Building, of the Seventh Regiment Armory, the Brown Brothers & Company, Wilkes, Central Trust, Bank of America, Mechanics' Bank, Continental Insurance and Stokes Buildings, and, in connection with Mr. Russell, of the Broad-Exchange, Exchange Court, Wall-Exchange, Atlantic Mutual, Sixty Wall Street, Hotel Astor, Seventy-first Regiment Armory, and other important buildings. Mr. Clinton is a member of the Seventh Regiment of the National Guard of the State of New York; is a member and has served as vice-president of the American Institute of Architects. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Architectural League, the Municipal Arts Society, and of the Tuxedo, Riding, New York Yacht, and Century Clubs of New York City. He married Emily de S. Gorsuch, and of that marriage were born three children. Address: 39 East 57th Street, New York City.

CLINTON, George:

Lawyer; born at Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 7, 1846. He received his general education in the schools of his native city and then entered the Law School of Columbia University, from which he was graduated as LL.B. in 1868. He was admitted to the bar of the State of New York in 1868, and has since then been continuously engaged in the practice of law. He was member of the Assembly of the State of New York in 1884, and afterward served as a park commissioner of the city of Buffalo, and as chairman of the Board of Trunk Sewer Commissioners of the City of Buffalo. He was president of the Merchants' Exchange of Buffalo in 1893 and was a member of the commission to investigate the expenditure of nine million dollars for canal improvement, in 1898. He is a member of the International Waterways Commission (of the United States and Great Britain) appointed in 1902, and is president of the Erie County Bar Association. Mr. Clinton is also a member of the Buffalo Historical Society, of the Buffalo Society of Natural Science, of the Permanent International Association of Navigation Congresses and of the American Society of International Law. Address: Buffalo, N. Y.

CLINTON, George Wylie:

Bishop of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church; born in Cedar Creek Township, Lancaster County, S. C., of slave parents, March 28, 1859. After graduation from the Brainerd Institute at Chester, S. C., he took the junior classical course in South Carolina University, from which he was graduated in 1878; and took the theological course from Livingstone College, which afterward conferred upon him the degrees of A.M., 1893, D.D., 1894, and LL.D., 1906; and he also received the LL.D. from Wilberforce College in 1893. Entering the ministry of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church in 1879, he has ever since been engaged in teaching and preaching, holding pastoral charges while teaching in the high school at Lancaster, S. C., and the graded schools at Union, S. C., for twelve years; and he was the founder, in 1889, and for two years editor of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Quarterly Review, and editor of the Star of Zion from 1892 until his election as bishop in 1896. Bishop Clinton is president of Atkinson College, Madisonville, Ky., and a trustee of Livingstone College; president-general of the Church Extension Board of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, and president of the Young People's Christian and Educational Congress, and was the first manager of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Publishing House. He is author of: The Negro in the Ecumenical Conference; The Three Alarm Cries; Tuskegee Lectures; Twenty-five Years as an Itinerant, etc. He married, in 1901, Marie Louise Clay. Address: Charlotte, N. C.

CLOUD, Frederick Douglass:

Consular official; born in Westfield, Ind., Feb. 17, 1874; son of Seth and Rebecca A. (Johnson) Cloud. He completed the academic courses in the Washington State Agricultural College in 1876, and was graduated from Drake University, Des Moines, Iowa, in 1901, with the degree of Ph.B. He entered the consular service of the United States, being sent as student interpreter to Peking, 1902, and was appointed vice-consul at Antung, Feb., 1904; vice-consul at Hangchow, Aug., 1904, and he was acting consul at Hangchow from Feb., 1904, to July, 1906; was appointed vice consul-general at Shanghai, Oct., 1907; acting consul-general at Shanghai, July, 1908, appointed, July 1, 1908, consul at Antung, which position he holds, and is also acting consul-general at Mukden. Mr. Cloud has traveled through China and Japan, and he is author of a book on Hangchow, entitled "Hangchow the City of Heaven and Soochow the Beautiful," published by the Presbyterian Mission Press at Shanghai. He is a member of the Royal Asiatic Society at Shanghai, and of the Peking, Shanghai and Mukden Clubs. Mr. Cloud married in Ottumwa, Iowa, Jan. 29, 1907, Myrtle Le Compte, and they have a son, Frederick Donald, born in Shanghai, Jan. 4, 1908. Address: Mukden, China.

CLOVER, Richardson:

Naval officer. He was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1867; was appointed ensign, Dec. 18, 1868; master, March 21, 1870; lieutenant, March 21, 1871; lieutenant-commander, May 19, 1891; commander, Sept. 14, 1897; captain, April 11, 1902. He has served in various stations and departments, notably in the Coast Survey service, in charge of the survey of southeast Alaska from 1885 to 1886; hydrographer of the Bureau of Navigation, 1889-1893; chief of the Office of Naval Intelligence, 1897-1898; and a member of the War and Strategy Board from March 15 to April 25, 1908. He commanded the U. S. Steamer Bancroft from May 1, 1898, to the end of the Spanish-American War. He then returned to the Naval Intelligence Office; was naval attaché in London from 1900-1903, and since Dec., 1903, has been commanding the United States Steamer Wisconsin on the Asiatic Station. Captain Clover is a member of the National Geographic Society and of the Metropolitan Country, and Chevy Chase Clubs at Washington; and the University and New York Yacht Clubs at New York City. He married May 19, 1886, Mary Eudora, daughter of the late General John F. Miller, senator from California. Residence: 1535 New Hampshire Avenue, Washington, D. C.

CLOWRY, Robert C.:

President of the Western Union Telegraph Company; born in Will County, Ill., Sept. 8, 1838. He was educated in the public schools, then learned telegraphy and was engaged as an operator when the war began, and he entered the Government service. He has charge of the military telegraph lines from 1863 to 1866, and was brevetted lieutenant-colonel, U. S. Volunteers. Upon the completion of that service, in 1866, he became identified with the Western Union Telegraph Co. in various capacities until he reached his present position as president, general manager and director. He was director and member of the Grounds and Buildings Committee of the World's Columbian Exposition (Chicago World's Fair). He is also president and director of the American Telegraph and Cable Co., the Gold and Stock Telegraph Co., American Union Telegraph Co., International Ocean Telegraph Co., Southern and Atlantic Telegraph Co., American Speaking Telegraph Co., Pacific and Atlantic Telegraph Co., American District Telegraph Co. of New York, American District Telegraph Co. of New Jersey, Eastern District Messenger Co.; director of the New York Telephone Co., Great Northwestern Telegraph Co., of Canada; Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railway Co., Mercantile National Bank, Bowling Green Trust Company. He married at Omaha, Neb., Aug. 29, 1865, Caroline A. Estabrook, who died in April, 1896. Residence: 301 West 76th Street. Office: 195 Broadway, New York City.

CLUTZ, Jacob A.:

Clergyman; born in Adams County, Pa., Jan. 5, 1848; son of Henry and Hannah (Buffington) Clutz. He received his education at the Lutheran College and Seminary at Gettysburg, Pa., receiving the honorary degree of D.D. in 1889. He enlisted in the United States Volunteers in 1864, when but sixteen years old, and after serving four months was honorably discharged. After pastorates in several Lutheran churches in Pennsylvania and Maryland until 1877, he became general secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions, Lutheran General Synod, serving until 1883, when he became general secretary of the Board of Home Missions of the same church. Upon leaving the last named position he was chosen president of the Midland College, at Atchison, Kan., serving until 1904, leaving this post for the one he now holds as pastor of St. James Lutheran Church, Gettysburg, Pa. In 1891 he served as president of the Evangelical Lutheran General Synod meeting in Lebanon, Pa. Dr. Clutz is a director of Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, Pa. He was married at Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 4, 1872, to Liberty A. Hollinger, and he has five children. Address: 109 York Street, Gettysburg, Pa.

COAN, Titus Munson:

Physician, author and editor; born at Hilo, Hawaiian Islands, Sept. 27, 1836; son of Titus and Fidelia (Church) Coan. He was educated at the Punahou School, Honolulu, the Royal School of Honolulu, also in Yale College, Williams College, where he received the degree of A.B. (1859), and later that of A.M.; and the

New York College of Physicians and Surgeons, graduating in 1861 with the degree of M.D. Dr. Coan made a voyage around Cape Horn in a whaler in 1856. From 1861 to 1863 he was interne in Bellevue Island and Army Hospital, and from 1863 to 1865 was acting assistant surgeon in the United States Navy in the West Gulf Squadron under Farragut. He has made many visits to Europe, and was in medical practice in New York City for many years. Dr. Coan is the author of technical papers on mineral waters and health resorts, critical essays and verse. In 1880 he founded and is now director of the New York Bureau of Literary Revision. He is also author of: Ounces of Prevention; Hawaiian Ethnography; Hawaiian Climate; French Mineral Springs, etc. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society and the Military Order of the Loyal Legion and of the Century, the Authors, and the Neighborhood Clubs, and the German Liederkranz. Dr. Coan is a widower and has two sons. Address: 70 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

COBB, George H.:

Lawyer and State Senator; born in the town of Hounsfield, Jefferson County, N. Y., 1864. While a youth he was at his father's farm near Sacket Harbor, N. Y., and at an early age he began teaching in the country schools of his county, and later took a course and was graduated from the Potsdam State Normal School in June, 1886. After serving for two years as the principal of the graded school at Hammond, N. Y., he entered the law offices of the firm of Lansing & Rogers, which consisted of the Hon. Frederick Lansing, who at one time represented Mr. Cobb's senate district in the State Senate, and Watson M. Rogers, now a justice of the Supreme Court; and he was admitted to the bar in 1891. He is now the senior member of the law firm of Cobb & Cosgrove, and has a large practice. Shortly after his admission he received the appointment of deputy county clerk, which position he held until the following year when he was elected city judge of the city of Watertown, serving in this capacity for a term of four years. In the fall of 1898 he was nominated and elected district attorney. Three years later he was re-nominated without opposition, and was serving his last year of the second term in 1904, when he was nominated as a Republican and elected to the State Senate, and he was reelected in 1906 and 1908. Mr. Cobb was appointed chairman of the Senate Committee on Railroads in 1909, and is a member of the Senate Committees on Judiciary, Finance, and Forest, Fish and Game. Address: Watertown, N. Y.

COBB, Henry Ives:

Architect; born in Brookline, Mass., Aug. 19, 1859; son of Albert A. and Mary R. (Candler) Cobb. He was educated in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and in the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard, whence he was graduated B.S., 1881, and afterward pursued architectural studies in Europe. He practised as an architect at Chicago for several years, and now has offices at Chicago, Washington and New York, with headquarters in the latter city. He was a member of the Board of Architects of the World's Columbian Exposition; special architect of the United States Government for eight years, designing and building the United States' new Post Office Building at Chicago and many other large buildings for the Government, and his practice has been very extensive in buildings of all kinds in all sections of the country. Mr. Cobb is president of the Forty-two Broadway Company, John Jay Realty Company and the Fidelity Development Company. He is a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, and a member of leading clubs in New York, Washington and Chicago. Mr. Cobb married in New York City in 1882, Emma M. Smith, and they have seven sons and a daughter. Residences: 128 West 59th Street, New York City, and (summer) Rockdale Farm, Brewster, N. Y. Office: 42 Broadway, New York City.

COBLENTZ, Virgil:

Chemist; born in Springfield, Ohio, March 12, 1862; son of John Philip and Susan (Zitzer) Coblentz. He was educated in Wittenberg College, Springfield, Ohio; was graduated from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy as Ph.G., and later received the degree of Ph.M.; pursued post-graduate studies in sciences in the University of Göttingen, Strassburg, Wurzburg, Munich and Berlin, receiving from Berlin the degree of Ph.D. in 1891. He was professor of materia medica and toxicology in the Cincinnati College of Pharmacy, 1884-1887, and since 1891 has been professor of chemistry in the Department of Pharmacy of Columbia University. Dr. Coblentz is nationally known for his contributions to chemical and other publications in the United States and foreign countries, is chairman of one of the important committees on the Revision of the United States Pharmacopoeia, and is author of several volumes, including: Handbook of Pharmacy; Volumetric Analysis; The Newer Remedies and joint author of Pharmaceutical and Medical Chemistry. He was chairman of the New York Section of the Society of Chemical Industry, 1902-1904; vice-president of the British Society of Chemical Industry, 1903-1904; and is chairman of the New York Section of the Verein Deutscher Chemiker. He married in Strassburg, Alsace, Germany, in 1889, Anna Baul, and has two sons. Residence: 145 Chester Street, Mount Vernon, N. Y. Office: 115 West 68th Street, New York City.

COBURN, Foster Dwight:

Agriculturist; born in Jefferson County, Wis., May 7, 1846; son of Ephraim W. and Mary Jane (Mulks) Coburn. He was reared on a farm and educated in the district schools. He enlisted in the 135th Regiment of Illinois Volunteers and was later sergeant-major of the 62d Illinois Infantry, to the end of the Civil War, being honorably discharged in March, 1866. In 1867 he went to Franklin County, Kan., becoming a successful farmer and stockman. He was elected secretary of the Kansas Department of Agriculture in 1882, serving four years. In Jan., 1894, he was again elected to the same position, which he has held ever since. He is widely known as an expert in live stock, was for six years editor of the Kansas City Live-Stock Indicator, has served as judge of live stock at many leading expositions and fairs, and was chief of the Department of Live Stock in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis, 1904. Mr. Coburn has written much on agriculture and live stock, and in addition to about twenty volumes of Kansas Agricultural Reports, has written two books on Alfalfa, and two on Swine Husbandry. He has been four times appointed a regent of the State Agricultural College of Kansas, and served as vice-president and president of the Board of Regents continuously. In June, 1906, he received the governor's appointment as United States senator from Kansas to fill a vacancy, but declined the honor. Mr. Coburn married at Pomona, Kan., in Sept., 1869, Lou Jenkins. Address: State Department of Agriculture, Topeka, Kan.

COCHRAN, A. M. J.:

Jurist. He was engaged in the practice of law in Kentucky until appointed by President McKinley, in 1901, to the office of judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Kentucky. Address: Maysville, Ky.

COCHRANE, Aaron Van Schaick:

Jurist; born in Coxsackie, N. Y., March 14, 1858. He was graduated from Yale in 1879, studied law at Hudson, N. Y., and was admitted to the bar in 1881 and engaged in practice. He was police justice of Hudson, N. Y., 1887-1888; district attorney of Columbia County, N. Y., 1889-1892; elected to the Fifty-fifth and re-elected to the Fifty-sixth Congresses from the Nineteenth New York District, serving 1897-1901, and elected in Nov., 1901, a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the Third Judicial District, for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1915, in which office he is now serving. Address: Hudson, N. Y.

COCHRANE, Henry Clay:

Brigadier-General U. S. Marine Corps; born in Chester, Pa., 1842; son of James and Sarah J. Gillespie. He was educated in the best schools of that section and Philadelphia, and was one of the first to volunteer his services in the Civil War; was examined and passed for a lieutenant in the Marine Corps, but being under the required age served in the Volunteer Navy under Admirals Goldsborough, Dupont and Farragut, until 1863, when he was appointed lieutenant; took part in the battle of Port Royal, S. C., on his nineteenth birthday, and during the following forty years served at the Naval Academy, War College, every Navy Yard on the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts; also in Alaska, Honolulu, Mexico, Central and South America, the West Indies, Europe, Africa, China and the Philippines. He spent fifteen years at sea, cruising in ships from the old sailing vessel Jamestown to the modern flagship Philadelphia; helped to suppress labor riots (1877) and arson and pillage aboard, in Alexandria, Egypt, after the bombardment of that city by the English in 1882, also on the Isthmus of Panama in 1885; was present at the coronation of Czar Alexander III. in Moscow, and decorated with the Cross of the Legion of Honor by President Carnot of France, for services at the Universal Exposition of 1889, where he commanded a detachment of United States marines. During the war with Spain he was major of the famous Marine Battalion that held the heights of Guantanamo, Cuba, and detailed as governor of City of Manzanillo; sent to China in 1900 when the foreign legations were besieged in Peking, in which remarkable campaign his regiment lost a captain and over thirty men; ordered to Manila and organized and commanded First Brigade of Marines; then appointed military governor of the Peninsula of Cavite. He was promoted to brigadier-general and retired upon his own application after forty years' service March 10, 1905. He is a companion of the Pennsylvania Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and member of the Grand Army of the Republic, Military Order of Foreign Wars, Military Order of the Dragon, and other societies. Brigadier-general Cochrane married, in 1887, Elizabeth F., daughter of Captain Edward P. Lull, United States Navy, then commandant of the Navy Yard at Pensacola. Permanent Address: Chester, Pa.

COCKRAN, William Bourke:

Lawyer and congressman; born in County Sligo, Ireland, Feb. 28, 1854; son of Martin and Harriet (Knight) Cockran. He was educated in France and Ireland, came to the United States in 1871, and soon after was appointed teacher in a private academy, afterward becoming principal of a public school in Westchester County, N. Y. While engaged in teaching, he read law, and in 1876 was admitted to practice in the Supreme Court of New York, and he has ever since practised law in New York City. Mr. Cockran is one of the leading exponents of the forensic art in the United States, has delivered numerous notable addresses and orations, and during his service in Congress has been one of the most brilliant of the speakers and debaters on the minority side. He has been active in municipal, State and local politics; was a member of the Fiftieth Congress, 1887-1889; member of the Commission to revise the Judiciary Article of the Constitution of the State of New York; member of the 52d and 53d Congress, 1891-1895; opposed the platform adopted by the National Democratic Convention at Chicago in 1896, and voted for McKinley. In November, 1896, at Chickering Hall, New York City, addressed the first public meeting in favor of intervention by the United States Government to terminate the perpetration of barbarities in Cuba, and at the Academy of Music, New York City, in January, 1899, addresses the first meeting in opposition to forcible annexation or conquest of the Philippines. In 1900 Mr. Cochran supported Mr. Bryan for President on the ground of opposition to Imperialism. He was elected at the special election held Feb. 23, 1904, to the 58th Congress from the Twelfth New York District, to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of George B. Mc-Clellan, and was reelected to the 59th and Sixtieth Congresses, his service expiring March 14, 1909. Mr. Cockran married in New York City, Nov. 5, 1906, Anne Clay Ide. Residence: The Cedars, Port Washington, N. Y. Office: 31 Nassau Street, New York City.

COCKRELL, Francis Marion:

Member Interstate Commerce Commission; born on a farm in Johnson County, Mo., Oct. 1, 1834; son of Joseph and Nancy (Ellis) Cockrell. He was graduated from Chapel Hill College in 1853 with the degree of A.B. He then went to Warrensburg, where he studied law and was admitted to the bar. In 1861 he joined the Confederate Army, was elected by his company as captain and in recognition of valuable services rendered was advanced successively to the rank of captain, lieutenant-colonel, colonel, and brigadier-general. At the close of the war he resumed his practice and became prominent as a member of various committees appointed to investigate affairs of State. As a member of the Democratic party he was elected to the United States Senate in 1875, in which he served by successive re-elections, until 1905, when he became by appointment of President Roosevelt, a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, on which he is now serving. Mr. Cockrell married, first in 1853, Arethusa D. Stapp, who died in 1860, second, in 1867, Anne E. Mann, who died, and in 1873 he married Anna Ewing, who died Jan. 6, 1894, and he has six sons and two daughters. Residence: Warrensburg, Mo. Office: 1518 R Street, Washington, D. C.

CODY, William Frederick:

Scout and showman; born in Scott County, Iowa, Feb. 26, 1846. His boyhood was spent on the Kansas-Missouri border, where his father was killed in the Border War. He was a pony express rider over the Great Salt Lake Trail in 1860-1861, and for the four years of the Civil War was a Government scout and guide and a member of the Seventh Kansas Cavalry Regiment. After the war he contracted to furnish the construction gangs of the Kansas Pacific Railway with all the buffalo meat required to feed them, and in eighteen months killed and delivered 4280 buffaloes, earning the sobriquet of "Buffalo Bill," by which he is popularly known all over this and many other countries. As a Government scout and guide he served in the operations against the Sioux and Cheyennes, 1868-1872; and in 1876 he was attached as scout to the 5th U. S. Cavalry, participating in many Indian battles, and he killed the Cheyenne chief Yellow Hand, in a hand-to-hand fight at the battle of Indian Creek. During the Sioux "Ghost Dance" outbreak of 1890-1891, Colonel Cody was commanding officer of the National Guard of Nebraska, with headquarters at Pine Ridge Agency, and took part in the battle of Wounded Knee. In 1883 he inaugurated the "Wild West Show," a travelling aggregation illustrative of cow-boy life, Indian warfare and other frontier incidents, and has since added to his entourage of cowboys, Indians, etc., all sorts of rough-riders from all lands. Colonel Cody was long resident in Nebraska, and once served in its State Legislature, but for some years past has lived in Big Horn County, Wyoming, where he founded the town of Cody, and is identified with ranching and real estate interests and large irrigation enterprises, being president of the Shoshone Irrigation Co. He is co-author of The Great Salt Lake Trail. He married, in 1866, Louisa Frederici. Address: Cody, Wyo.

COE, Henry Clarke:

Surgeon; born in Cincinnati, Feb. 21, 1856; son of Erastus Pease, and Mary (Ross) Coe. He was graduated from Yale, A.B., 1878, A.M., 1881; from Harvard University (Medical Department) in 1881, Columbia University (Medical Department) 1882, Member of the Royal College of Surgeons (England) 1884, Licentiate of the Royal College of Physicians (London) 1884. He has practised in New York City since 1884, his specialty being obstetrics and the diseases of women. Dr. Coe has been on the editorial staff of several medical journals, has written many papers, monographs, etc., and has been for twenty-five years a medical teacher. He is now professor of gynecology at the University and Bellevue Hospital Medical College, gynecologist to Bellevue and General Memorial Hospitals, consulting gynecologist to the Woman's and Foundling Hospitals, etc. He is an honorary fellow of the Edinburgh Obstetrical Society, Fellow of the American Gynecological Society, American Therapeutic Society, member of New York State Medical Society, New York Obstetrical Society, Clinical Society, Harvard Medical Society, County Medical Society, Academy of Medicine, the Society of Alumni of Bellevue Hospital, etc. Dr. Coe is a trustee of the general Memorial Hospital. He is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa (Yale), Delta Kappa Epsilon, Order of Foreign Wars, Society of Colonial Wars, the Mayflower Society, Society of the War of 1812, Sons of the Revolution, and several city clubs. Dr. Coe married Sara Werden and they have three sons. Address: 8 West 76th Street, New York City.

COFFEY, George Nelson:

Scientific expert on soils; born at Patterson, N. C., Jan. 17, 1875; son of Elijah and Mary Ann (Nelson) Coffey. He was graduated from the University of North Carolina as Ph.B., cum laude, in 1900; received the representative medal, junior year, for best original oration, and received the degree of M. S. from George Washington University, 1908. Upon his graduation he entered the Bureau of Soils of the United States Department of Agriculture. He wrote reports upon soils of various areas; was in charge of the Soil Survey from July, 1904 to 1905; and since then he has been in charge of the classification and correlation of the soils of the United States. He has made a special study of the soils of the United States, and is recognized as one of the highest authorities upon this subject. President American Society of Agronomy, 1909. Office: Bureau of Soils, Washington, D. C.

COFFIN, Charles Albert:

Financier, manufacturer; born in Somerset County, Me.; son of Albert and Anstrus (Varney) Coffin; of Nantucket ancestry.

He was graduated from Bloomfield Academy, Bloomfield, Me. After leaving school, Mr. Coffin engaged in manufacturing business in Massachusetts, and in 1881 was one of a number who purchased the Thomson-Houston Electric Company, which in 1892, together with the Edison General Electric Company, was merged in the General Electric Company, of which he has since been president. He is a member of the Chambers of Commerce of Boston and New York, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and is a trustee of Vassar College. Mr. Coffin is a member of the Union League, Metropolitan, Pilgrims, Lawyers', National Arts, and Westchester Country Clubs of New York City, and other societies and clubs, and of the St. Botolph and Algonquin Clubs in Boston. He is a director in many financial institutions and companies. He married Caroline L. Russell, daughter of Rev. E. Russell, D. D., and they have had a son (now deceased), and have two daughters. Residence: 145 West 58th Street. Office: 44 Broad Street, New York City.

COFFIN, William Anderson:

Painter and art critic; born at Allegheny, Pa., Jan. 31, 1855; son of James Gardiner and Isabel Catherine (Anderson) Coffin. He was graduated from Yale College as B.A. in 1874; received the honorary degree of B. F.A. from Yale University in 1901, studied art in the United States from 1874 to 1877, and in Paris under M. Léon Bonnat, 1877-1882. He has had his studio in New York City since 1882, and is a painter of landscapes and figure pieces. He was art critic of the New York Evening Post and the Nation, 1886-1892 and 1903-1904; and of the Sun (New York) 1897-1901, and has been a frequent contributor on art topics to the Century Magazine, Scribner's Magazine, etc. He was manager of the Exhibition of Historical Portraits and Relics at the Washington Centennial Celebration in New York City in 1889; was manager of the first Portrait Show, Portraits of Women, in New York City in 1894, and was director of Fine Arts at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901. He painted the picture, The Rain, in the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City and At Break of Day, in the Buffalo Fine Arts Academy (Albright Gallery). He exhibited at the Paris Salon from 1879-1882, and is a regular exhibitor at the National Academy of Design, the Society of American Artists, etc. Mr. Coffin received the Hallgarten prize from the National Academy of Design in 1886 and the Webb prize from the Society of American Artists, in 1891. He received medals from Paris Exposition in 1889, from the Art Club, Philadelphia (gold) in 1898 and from the Louisiana Purchase Exposition (Silver) at St. Louis in 1904, besides other awards. He is an associate member of the National Academy of Design; member of the Society of American Artists (was its secretary from 1887 to 1892), Municipal Art Society (a founder and vice-president), and the Architectural League of New York (vice-president two terms). Clubs: Lotos, Fencers. He has a farm and summer home in Somerset County, Pa. Address: Jennerstown, Pa.

COHAN, George M.:

Actor, manager, playwright and song writer; born in Providence, R. I., July 4, 1878; son of Jerry J. and E. Cohan, both of whom are well known on the stage and are now playing in their son's company. His sister, Josephine, is also an actress. Mr. Cohan made his first appearance on the stage in a play written by his father. Before he was of age he wrote at least one play which was performed by the Four Cohans. His first great success was in "Little Johnny Jones," of which he was the author of music and words. This musical comedy was first produced October 10, 1904, and was played continuously until April 12, 1906. It made a fortune for its author, who was also its owner, manager and star. This was followed by another musical comedy, equally as successful, Forty-five Minutes from Broadway, first produced September 25, 1905. In February, 1906, he produced George Washington, Jr., at the Herald Square Theatre, New York City, and he has since produced many other plays, and is a prolific song writer. Address: New Amsterdam Theatre, New York City.

COHEN, David Solis:

Lawyer; born in Philadelphia in September, 1852; son of Myer David and Judith Semiah (Solis) Cohen. After completing his course in the public schools of Philadelphia he went West, and engaged in business as a wholesale exporter and importer in Portland, Ore. His interest in the study of law led him to adopt it as his profession, and he was admitted to the Oregon bar, and since 1895 has practised in Portland, where he is well known as an eminent lawyer and public-spirited citizen. He has gained praise in the literary world by his writings, among them being two plays produced by Roland Reed, and a number of delightful fairy tales. He is also a frequent contributor to current periodicals. He married, at Portland, Ore., in 1892, Bertha Kahn. Address: Washington Building, Portland, Ore.

COHEN, Solomon Solis:

Physician; born in Philadelphia, Sept. 1, 1867; son of Myer David and Judith Semiah (Solis) Cohen. He was educated at the Central High School of Philadelphia, where he received the degree of A. B. in 1872 and A.M. in 1877, and was graduated from Jefferson Medical College as M. D. in 1883. Dr. Cohen is professor of clinical medicine in Jefferson Medical College; physician to Jefferson Medical College Hospital, the Philadelphia General Hospital, and the Rush Hospital for Consumptives, and consulting physician to the Jewish Hospital. At one time he was professor of medicine and therapeutics in the Philadelphia Poly-clinical and College for Graduates of Medicine. Dr. Cohen is recorder of the Association of American Physicians; was president of the Philadelphia County Medical Society; and is a fellow of the College of Physicians and of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. He is author of a text book on therapeutics; Therapeutics of Tuberculosis; Essentials of Diagnosis; and is editor of System of Physiologic Therapeutics; and is also known as a writer of graceful verse. He is also a member of the Penn. Pegasus and Franklin Inn Clubs of Philadelphia. He married at Philadelphia, March 24, 1885, Emily Grace Solis, and they have one daughter and three sons. Address: 1525 Walnut Street, Philadelphia.

COHN, Adolphe:

Philologist and educator; born in Paris, France, May 20, 1851; son of Albert and Mathilde (Lowengard) Cohn. He was graduated from the University of Paris, Bachelier es lettres, 1868, LL.B., 1873; archiviste paleographe, École Nationale de Chartes, Paris, 1874. He served in the French Army, 1870-1871, taking part in the Franco-Prussian War and came to New York City in 1875. He was instructor in French in Columbia University, 1882-1884, then went to Harvard University, where he was instructor and afterward assistant professor of French until 1891, when he returned to Columbia University where he has since been professor of Romance languages and literatures. Professor Cohn is a member of the Modern Language Association of America and of the American Historical Association. He is author, in collaboration with Dr. B. D. Woodward, of Voltaire's Prose; of Le Sage's Gil Blas (in collaboration with R. Sanderson); and author of Montaigne (in French Classics for English Readers, of which he is co-editor); also editor of the Silver Series of Modern Language Text-Books. Professor Cohn's chief service to his adopted country has been in connection with making more familiar the masterpieces of French literature. He has been a frequent contributor to French and American journals and magazines, and was for several years United States correspondent for several leading French newspapers. He is a Knight of the Crown of Italy, chevalier of the Legion d'Honneur, and honorary president of l'Alliance Française. He married first, in Cambridge, Mass., April 6, 1887, Marian Loys Wright, who died in 1888; and he married second, in New York City, June 4, 1904, Madeline Merlin, and he has two sons and a daughter. Residence: 2018 Fifth Avenue. Office: Columbia University, New York City.

COLAHAN, John Barron, Jr.:

Lawyer; born in Philadelphia, May 18, 1848. He was educated in Saunders' Institute St. Joseph's College and the Philadelphia High School, whence he was graduated, 1866. He began the study of law under his father, a distinguished member of the Philadelphia Bar, also attending the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania, was admitted to the bar in 1869, and established in practice in Philadelphia. He soon became known as an expert in real estate law and the investigation of titles to property, and built up a large practice. Mr. Colahan has served as counsel in litigated cases affecting cases of vast importance, including the court proceedings brought by the heirs of the late Joseph Dugan, General Robert Patterson and Francis A. Drexel. He was one of the principle factors in the organization of the Real Estate Title and Insurance Company of Philadelphia, and was for a long time a director of The Land Title and Trust Company. He was for six years chairman of the Board of Censors of the Law Association of Philadelphia, has been president of the Pennsylvania State Bar Association and chairman of its Executive Committee, and vice president of the American Bar Association. He was an active member of the Committee of Fifty in Philadelphia and chairman of its Committee on Nominators, and was president of the Twenty-seventh Ward Republican Club. He was for many years president of the Belmont Cricket Club of Philadelphia, and president of the associated Cricket Clubs of Philadelphia; and is treasurer of the Philadelphia Fencing and Sparring Club and secretary of the Hamilton Club. Mr. Colahan married April 14, 1873, Mary Ophelia Cowton. Address: 4004 Pine Street, Philadelphia.

COLBY, Frank Moore:

Editor, educator; born at Washington, D. C., Feb. 10, 1865; son of Stoddard Benham and Ellen Cornelia (Hunt) Colby. He was educated at Columbian (now George Washington) University, Washington, D. C., and Columbia College, being graduated

A.B., 1888, A.M., 1889. He was acting professor of history at Amherst College, 1890-1891; lecturer in history, Columbia College, 1891-1895; instructor of history and economics, New York University, 1895-1900. He was editorial writer on the Commercial Advertiser, 1900-1902, on the editorial staff of Johnson's Universal Cyclopedia (history and political science), 1893-1895; editor of The International Cyclopedia, 1898, International Year Book, 1902, and on its resumption in 1907, editor of the New International Encyclopedia since 1900, one of the editors of The Bookman from 1904; editor of Nelson's Encyclopedia (Americanized from Harmsworth's Cyclopedia), 1905-1907. He is author of: Outlines of General History, 1900; Imaginary Obligations, 1904, and several subsequent editions; contributor to magazines on literary and dramatic topics. He married at Amherst, Mass., Dec. 30, 1896, Harriet Wood Fowler. Address: 372 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

COLBY, J. Rose:

Educator and author; born in Cherry Valley, Ohio, June 4, 1856; daughter of Lewis and Celestia (Rice) Colby. She was educated in Ann Arbor High School and in the University of Michigan, receiving the degree of A.B., 1878, A.M., 1885, and Ph.D., 1886, and also studied one year, 1883-1884 in Radcliff College. Miss Colby taught algebra in Ann Arbor (Mich.) High School, 1878-1879; preceptress and teacher of Latin and Greek, Flint (Mich.) High School, 1879-1883; then after three years more of study with English as major and Greek, French, German, ethics and education as minors, she became teacher of literature in the Peoria (Ill.) High School, from 1886 until her appointment in January, 1890 to her present position as preceptress and professor of literature in the Illinois State Normal University. Dr. Colby is author of Some Ethical Aspects of Later Elizabethan Tragedy, 1886, which was her doctoral thesis; is editor of an edition of Silas Marner, with introduction and notes (D. Appleton & Co.), 1900; Literature and Life in School (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.), 1906; also various literary and professional articles in the Herbartian Year Book, Illinois State Normal University Bulletin, and The Viddette. She is a member of the Illinois State and Central Teachers Association, the Illinois Schoolmistresses' Club, Association of Collegiate Alumnae, The Q. C. (University of Michigan). Address: Normal, Ill.

COLCORD, Roswell Keyes:

Superintendent of the United States Mint; born in Searsport, Me., April 25, 1839; son of James and Eliza Colcord. He was educated in public schools, went to Nevada in the early sixties and was interested in mining and other enterprises. He was elected governor of Nevada for the term 1890-1894, and appointed Nov. 1, 1898 to his present position as superintendent of the United States Mint at Carson City. Address: Carson City, Nev.

COLE, Frank Nelson:

Professor of mathematics; born in Ashland, Mass. Sept. 20, 1861; son of Otis Cole and Frances M. (Pond) Cole. He was graduated from Harvard, A.B., 1882, Ph. D., 1886. He was lecturer in mathematics at Harvard, 1885-1887, tutor and assistant professor in the University of Michigan, 1888-1895, and has been professor of mathematics in Columbia University since 1895. Professor Cole has been secretary of the American Mathematical Society since 1895, and editor of the Bulletin of the American Mathematical Society since 1897. He married, July 26, 1888, Martha M. Streiff. Address: Columbia University, New York City.

COLE, George C.:

Consular official; appointed consul-general at Buenos Aires, April 13, 1905; appointed consul at Dawson, June 22, 1906. Address: Dawson, Yukon Territory, Canada.

COLE, George Watson:

Bibliographer; born at Warren, Conn., Sept. 6, 1850; son of Munson and Antoinette Fidelia (Taylor) Cole. He was educated in public schools and at Phillips

Academy, Andover, Mass. After teaching school and reading law, he was admitted to the bar in 1876, and practised his profession in his native county until 1885, when he abandoned law to engage in library work. During 1885-1886 he compiled the printed catalogue of the Fitchburg (Massachusetts) Public Library, a work still regarded as a model classified catalogue of a public library. From Fitchburg he went to New York, becoming the librarian of the Pratt Institute of Brooklyn and at the same time attending the Library School at Columbia University, from which he was graduated in 1888. For the next three years he was connected with the Newberry Library at Chicago, which he left in January, 1891, to become librarian of the Free Public Library of Jersey City, then being organized. The distribution of books through delivery stations was one of the most successful features of his librarianship. In December, 1895, Mr. Cole resigned his position and devoted the next two years to travel, spending the winter of 1895-1896 in Bermuda and the greater part of 1897 in Europe, principally at Paris. He attended the International Conference of Librarians at London in July, 1897. On his return to this country, he became interested in bibliography, and has since almost entirely devoted himself to that pursuit. In December, 1901, he began compiling a catalogue of the very rare collection of Americana belonging to Mr. E. Dwight Church of New York City. The result of his labors is contained in the five volumes, Imperial octavo (2635 pages), published in 1908. Early in 1909 the catalogue of a second section of Mr. Church's library, containing works in English literature and miscellanea, was published in two volumes of over 1100 pages, uniform in character with that of his catalogue of Americana. The chief value of this latter work will no doubt be found in its detailed descriptions of the numerous early editions of Shakespeare's works, this portion of Mr. Church's library ranking as the most important in this country, and being excelled by only four other collections abroad: those in the Bodleian, British Museum, and Trinity College, Cambridge. Libraries, and that of the Duke of Devonshire. Besides these works, Mr. Cole is the Author of: American Libraries; their Past, Present, and Future (1895), printed in the "Occasional Papers" of the Pennsylvania Library Club; Bermuda and the Challenger Expedition (1901); Compiling a Bibliography (1902); Libraries of the City of New York (1902), in the New York Library Club's Handbook; and Bermuda in Periodical Literature (1908). His ingenious size-card for determining the sizes of books, based upon the size notation of the American Library Association, is in general use in American libraries. Mr. Cole is a life-member of the American Library Association (treasurer, 1893-1896), of the American Historical Association, and of the Bibliographical Society of America. He is also a member of the Bibliographical Society (London), of the Institute International de Bibliographie (Brussels), of the American Geographical Society, New York Library Club (President, 1893-1894), New Jersey Library Association (president, 1894-1895), and of several other library and bibliographical associations. Address: River-side, Conn.

COLE, Ralph D.:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Biglick Township, Hancock County, Ohio, Nov. 30, 1873; son of John W. and Sarah Cole. He attended the common schools in the country until eighteen years of age; entered Findley College, and was graduated with the degree of Ph.B. in 1896, and in 1898 was graduated from the classical course in the Northwestern Ohio Normal University, at Ada. He is engaged in the practice of law; served for two years as deputy clerk of Hancock County, and in 1899 was elected to represent Hancock County in the State Legislature, and was reelected in 1901. He was elected in 1904 from the Eighth Ohio District to the Fifty-ninth Congress, and reelected in 1906 and 1908 to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses. He is a Republican in politics. Address: Findlay, Ohio.

COLER, Bird S.:

President borough of Brooklyn; born in Champaign, Ill., Oct. 9, 1867; son of William N. Coler. He was educated at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and Phillips Andover Academy. He became clerk and later partner of the firm of W. N. Coler & Company, brokers. He was Democratic candidate for alderman-at-large in Brooklyn, 1892, but was defeated; and was elected comptroller of the City of New York in 1897. He was also Democratic candidate for governor of New York in 1902, but was defeated and was elected in November, 1905, as president of the Borough of Brooklyn. Residence: 224 Hancock Street, Brooklyn. Office: 34 Nassau Street, New York City.

COLES, Jonathan Ackerman:

Physician, surgeon and art patron; born in Newark, N. J., May 6, 1843; son of Abraham Coles, A.M., M.D., Ph.D., LL.D., and Caroline E. (Ackerman) Coles. He was graduated from Columbia, A.B., 1864, A.M., 1867, College of Physicians and Surgeons, M.D., 1868, receiving the Harsen prize for the best report of medical and surgical cases in the New York Hospital; and he received from Hope College the degree of LL.D. in 1898. He studied in the hospitals and universities of Great Britain and the European Continent, 1877-1878, and is engaged in practice in Newark, N. J., and in New York City. Dr. Coles is a contributor to medical and scientific publications, is a member of the American Medical Association and of the Union County (New Jersey) Medical Society, of which he was elected president and made permanent delegate to the New Jersey State Medical Society. Dr. Coles is patron of the Newark Orphan Asylum and Home for Little Cripples, for which he has built beautiful country homes at Mountain-side, Westfield, N. J. For himself and his father's estate, he gave to Washington Park, Newark, N. J., a colossal bronze bust of his father (by J. Q. A. Ward), with a pedestal made from stones from the Mount of Olives, Jerusalem, Bethlehem and Nazareth, with a seven-ton base from Plymouth, Mass.; gave to Lincoln Park, Newark, the historical Indian group in bronze, life-size (by C. B. Ives); sent a Barye allegorical bronze of an eagle and a dead heron to Admiral Dewey as a memento of the victory of Manila Bay; gave reproductions in bronze of Jean Antoine Houdon's busts of George Washington and Benjamin Franklin to the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge, England, and to the American Embassy in London; gave the painting, The Good Samaritan (by Daniel Huntington and Paul Delaroche) to the State House at Trenton, N. J.; and has given valuable works of art to Columbia, Yale, Harvard, Princeton and other Universities, and to the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York City. Dr. Coles owns a classical library of beautiful bindings and a fine collection of pictures, including one by J. M. W. Turner, Benjamin West's portrait, painted by himself, and Bridgeman's famous Salon painting of Pharaoh's Host Pursuing the Israelites Across the Bed of the Red Sea. Residence: Deerpark, Scotch Plains, N. J. Office: 17 West 39th Street, New York City, and 222 Market Street, Newark, N. J.

COLLIER, Peter Fenelon:

Publisher; born in Marshall, County Carlow, Ireland, Dec. 12, 1849; son of Robert and Katherine (Fenelon) Collier. He was educated partly in Ireland, and finished at Mount Saint Mary's Seminary, Cincinnati, Ohio; and in 1908 he received the degree of LL.D. from Seton Hall College. For many years past he has been at the head of the publishing firm of P. F. Collier and Son, and is founder and owner of Collier's Weekly. Mr. Collier is a member of the Society of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Board of Trade, the New York Tax Reform Association, the Ohio Society of New York. He is a Republican and a Roman Catholic. His favorite recreations are hunting and polo. He is also a member of the Meadow Brook, Hunting, Riding, Country of Lakewood, Democratic, Turf and Field, Remsen Polo, Catholic and Westchester Polo Clubs, the Automobile Club of America, and the Rockaway Hunting, Morris Park Motor Racing and The Brook Clubs. Mr. Collier married, at St. Peter's Rectory, Barclay Street, New York City, July, 1873. Katharine, daughter of Richard Dunne of Park, Ireland. They have one son, born June 17, 1876. Address: 29 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

COLLIER, Robert Joseph:

Publisher and editor; born in New York City, June 17, 1876; son of Peter Fenelon and Katharine Louise (Dunne) Collier. He was educated in St. Francis College, New York, Georgetown University, Washington, D. C., A.B. 1894, followed by a year each at Oxford University, England, and at Harvard. He is junior member of the firm of P. F. Collier & Son, publishers of standard books, and has been editor and publisher of Collier's Weekly since 1898. He is director and treasurer of the Educational Theater for Children and Young People, and director and vice-president of the Lincoln Farm Association. Mr. Collier is a member of the Racquet and Tennis, Brook, Harvard, City, Catholic, Players, New York Yacht, Meadowbrook Hunt, Westchester County, Riding, and Turf and Field clubs. He married at Newport, R. I., Sarah Steward Van Alen, July, 1902. Residence: 752 Park Avenue. Office: 416 West 13th Street, New York City.

COLLIER, William:

Actor; born in 1868. His first appearance on the stage was as Dick Deadeye, in Pinafore. He appeared afterwards in minor parts in various plays, until finally he became leading man in Hoyt's company. In 1901 he became a star, afterwards joining the force of Weber and Fields, in the New York Music Hall. Since the dissolution of that firm he has appeared in many productions with marked success. Address: The Lambs' Club, New York City.

COLLIER, William Miller:

Diplomat, lawyer; born at Lodi, N. Y., Nov. 11, 1867; son of Rev. Isaac H. Collier and Francis (Miller) Collier. After a careful preparatory education, he entered Hamilton College, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1889, and A.M. in 1892. He studied for a year in Columbia Law School and also in offices in New York City and Brooklyn. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1892, and practised at Auburn, N. Y. He was appointed referee in bankruptcy for the Northern District of New York in 1898, and was appointed by Governor Roosevelt, Jan., 1899, and reappointed by Governor Odell, a member of the State Civil Service Commission, of which he was elected president in Feb., 1901. He resigned in 1903; and he was offered, in March, 1903, by President Roosevelt, appointment as solicitor of internal revenue, but declined. Later in the same month, he was appointed to the position of special assistant to the attorney-general of United States, was assigned to act as solicitor of the newly created Department of Commerce and Labor, and was appointed solicitor of that department when the office was permanently created in 1904. On March 6, 1905, he was appointed to his present post as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Spain. He is author of: Collier on Bankruptcy, 1898; The Trusts—What Can We Do With Them and What Can They Do For Us?, 1900; Collier on Civil Service Law, 1901; and he edited the first twelve volumes of American Bankruptcy Reports. He was appointed in Jan., 1903, special lecturer on the law of bankruptcy at the New York Law School. Mr. Collier is a member of the New York State Bar Association, the New York Civil Service Reform Association, the Phi Beta Kappa Society, and the Chi Psi fraternity, and is also a member of the City Club and the Owasco Country Club of Auburn, N. Y., Metropolitan, and Chevy Chase Clubs of Washington, D. C., and the University and Republican Clubs of New York City. Mr. Collier married, at Auburn, N. Y., Sept. 13, 1893, Frances Beardsley Ross. Address: American Legation, Madrid, Spain.

COLLINS, Robert Moore:

Journalist; born in Washington, D. C., Dec. 25, 1866; son of Dr. William T. and Anne Askew (Moore) Collins. After graduation with the degree of B.S. from Middlebury College in 1889, he began newspaper work as a reporter on the Boston Advertiser, and a year later on the Akron (Ohio) Beacon, and from 1890 to 1893 was Congressional reporter for the Washington Post. In 1893 he began his connection with the Associated Press, first as Washington correspondent and afterward as New York editor until 1897, when he went to Europe as its London and Paris correspondent, and represented the Associated Press during the Peace Commission in Paris in 1898, after which he was Eastern correspondent for the Associated Press in China and the Philippines until 1900, and was the first to send news of General Lawton's Lake Cruz Expedition and later of his death, and the first news of the battle of Tien-Tsin. From 1900 to 1907 he was Eastern correspondent of the Reuter Telegram Company and during that service represented that company and the Associated Press with the First Japanese Army during the entire period of the Japanese-Russian War. Since 1907 Mr. Collins has been chief of the London Bureau of the Associated Press. He is a fellow of the Royal Geographic Society and a member of the Savage Club. Address: King's House, St. James Court, London, England.

COLLYER, Robert:

Clergyman; born in Keighly, Yorkshire, England, Dec. 8, 1823; son of Samuel and Harriet (Norman) Collyer. He was educated at the common schools at Fewston, Yorkshire, England, until eight years old, and afterward spent two winters at a night school. He was a factory boy from 1832-1838; a blacksmith, boy and man, 1838-1859; and a Methodist local preacher at nothing a year from 1849 to 1859. He was minister of the Unity Church of Chicago, 1859-1879; sole minister of the Church of the Messiah of New York City, 1879-1896; and associate minister with Rev. M. J. Savage, 1896-1906; and since 1903 he has been pastor emeritus. Mr. Collyer was also in the lecture field for many years, lecturing from Maine to California, and has made seven visits to his old home. He is author of: Nature and Life: The Life that Now Is; The Simple Truth; A Home Book; Talks to Young Men: History of Ilkley in Yorkshire (with Horsefall Turner); Things Old and New; Father Taylor, the Seaman's Chaplain; Augustus Conant, Illinois Preacher and Pioneer; Some Memories. Mr. Collyer married, first, in 1845, and from that union he has one son. He married a second time at Bradford, Yorkshire, April 11, 1850, Ann Armitage, and they have two children. Address: 201 West Fifty-fifth Street, New York City.

COLMAN, Norman Jay:

Agriculturist; born on a farm near Richfield Springs, N. Y., May 16, 1827; son of Hamilton and Nancy (Sprague) Colman. He moved to Kentucky in 1847, taught school, and in 1851 was graduated from the Louisville Law School, taking the degree of LL.B. He practised first in New Albany, Ind., where he was district attorney in 1852. He removed to St. Louis, Mo., where he established Colman's Rural World, which became the most influential agricultural paper of the West. He served as lieutenant-colonel of the 85th Regiment of Missouri Enrolled Militia during the Civil War; was elected to the Missouri Legislature, serving in the session of 1865; was an unsuccessful candidate for lieutenant-governor in 1868, but was elected to that office in 1875 and served two years. Mr. Colman has for many years been a leader in agricultural movements and organizations in the West; was president of the Missouri State Horticultural Society, and of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture; was for fifteen years a trustee of the State University of Missouri, and two years president of the Missouri State Press Association. He was appointed by President Cleveland, in 1885, United States Commissioner of Agriculture, and when the Bureau was expanded into an executive department he was appointed, Feb. 11, 1889, the first secretary of agriculture of the United States, serving until the close of the first Cleveland Administration, March 4, 1889. Mr. Colman received, in 1905, the degree of LL.D. from the University of Missouri, and the degree of D.Agr. from the University of Illinois; and he has received the cross, medal and decoration of Officier du Merite Agricole from the French Government. He married, in 1867, Kate Wright. Residence: 5499 Delmar Boulevard. Office: 821 Holland Building, St. Louis, Mo.

COLMAN, Samuel:

Artist; born in Portland, Me., March, 1832; son of Samuel and Pamela (Chandler) Colman. He studied art for many years in various European cities—Madrid, Paris, Dresden and London. He is a landscape painter and works both in oil and in water colors. His principal pictures are: Ships of the Western Plains, now in the possession of the Union League Club; Moonrise, Venice; and Spanish Peaks, in the collection of the Metropolitan Museum of Art; and Mosque of Side Bou Hac, Tlencin, Algeria, in the Astor Library. He has traveled extensively through Europe, Africa, Mexico and California. Mr. Colman was made an associate member of the National Academy of Design in 1860, and received to full membership in 1864. He was one of the founders and the first president of the American Water Color Society. He is at present engaged in an investigation of the principles of angular magnitude, resulting from polar force in its relation to Beauty and proportional form, disclosing the application of these principles to the study of art, as well as to architecture. He was married first, at Irvington, N. Y., in 1862, to Anne L. Dunham; second at Newport, R. I., in 1903 to Lillie M. Gaffney. Address: 267 Central Park West, New York City.

COLT, LeBaron Bradford:

United States circuit judge; born at Dedham, Mass., June 25, 1846; son of Christopher and Theodora G. (DeWolf)

Colt. After his graduation from Yale as B.A. in 1868 and from Columbia University as LL.B. in 1870, he was admitted to the bar. He practised law in Chicago for two years, but after 1875 he was engaged in the practice of law at Bristol, R. I., until 1881. He was elected to the Legislature of Rhode Island as a Republican, serving from 1879 to 1881, and in the latter year was appointed to the office of United States judge for the District of Rhode Island, and so remained until promoted July 6, 1884, to his present office as United States circuit judge for the First Judicial Circuit. Address: Providence, R. I.

COLTON, Arthur Willis:

Author; born in Washington, Conn., May 22, 1868; son of Willis S. and Lucy P. (Gibson) Colton. He was educated in the Gurney School, Washington, Conn., 1862-1866; was graduated from Yale, A.B. 1890, Ph.D. in 1893. He was instructor in English at Yale University, 1893-1895, and has been librarian of the University Club of New York City from 1906. He is author of: Bennie Ben Cree, 1900 (Doubleday); Delectable Mountains, 1901 (Scribner); Debatable Land, 1901 (Harper); Tioba, 1903 (Holt); Belted Seas, 1905 (Holt); Cruise of the Violetta, 1906 (Holt); and Harps Hung Up in Babylon, poems, 1907 (Holt). He is a member of the Graduate Club of New Haven, and of the Yale and Authors Clubs of New York City. Residence: Washington, Conn. Address: University Club, New York City.

COLTON, Charles Henry:

Catholic bishop of Buffalo; born in New York City, Oct. 15, 1848; son of Patrick S. and Theresa (Mullin) Colton. He was graduated from St. Francis Xavier College, New York City, 1872; and in theology from St. Joseph Seminary, Troy, N. Y., 1876. He was ordained priest, June 10, 1876, and became assistant, 1876-1886, and rector, 1886-1903, of St. Stephen's Church, New York City. He was chancellor of the archdiocese of New York, 1896-1903, and was consecrated bishop of the diocese of Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 25, 1903. Bishop Colton is author of: Seedlings; My Trip to Rome; The Holy Land. Address: 1025 Delaware Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

COLVIN, Verplanck:

Geodist, topographical engineer; born in Albany, N. Y., Jan. 4, 1847; son of Andrew James and Margaret Crane (Alling) Colvin. He was educated in private schools and at Albany Academy, then studied law in the office of Colvin & Bingham in Albany. He began making surveys and explorations in the Adirondacks in 1865; ascended Mount Marey in 1869, and was the first to ascend and measure the height of Mount Seward. He originated the plan for the Adirondack Park in a report to the regents of the University of New York in 1870, and made the first report recommending the preservation of the State forests of New York. He carried on the Adirondack Survey as a private work for many years; discovered Lake Tear-of-the-Clouds, source of the Hudson River; ascended and determined the heights, latitudes and longitudes of all prominent mountains in the Adirondacks, making many corrections of errors in previous maps of the region, and from 1883 to 1895 was superintendent, with special authority over State land surveys. He was appointed by Governor Cornell, in 1882, a delegate to the first American Forestry Congress, and in 1893 he was Republican nominee for State engineer and surveyor. He secured the United States gun foundry for Watervliet, N. Y., and in recognition of that service was presented with a sword by the Albany Burgesses Corps in 1894. Mr. Colvin is author of numerous papers and reports concerning the Adirondacks and other matters; and in 1902 published a plan, which attracted much attention, proposing to settle the Negro question in this country by the purchase of Congo Free State by the United States, and its colonization with American negroes under white officers. He is a life member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, member of the American Geographical Society, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Society of American Authors, Sons of the Revolution, the Association for the Preservation of the Adirondacks, the Appalachian Club of Boston, and the Adirondack Club of New York City; and he is an honorary member of the Rocky Mountain Club of Denver, Colo., and of the Club Alpine Francais. Address: The Elms, 175 Western Avenue, Albany, N. Y.

COMAN, Henry B.

Lawyer; born in Morrisville, N. Y., Dec. 8, 1858; son of Benjamin F. and Harriet E. (White) Coman. He was educated in Morrisville Union School and Cazenovia Seminary, studied law and was admitted to the bar, engaging in general practice. He served as deputy attorney-general of New York State, 1889-1902, in charge of the trial of "special franchise" cases before Judge Robert Earl; and as counsel to the Judiciary Committee of the General Assembly of the State of New York, in 1905, in the investigation of the charges against Warren B. Hooker, justice of the Supreme Court, and the same year counsel to the Legislature on the trial of that case. In 1906 he was elected a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. Justice Coman is a director of the First National Bank of Morrisville, N. Y., a member of the New York State Bar Association and a trustee of the Morrisville Public Library. He is a member of the Oneida Business Men's Club, Oneida Country Club, the Citizens' Club of Syracuse and the Republican Club of New York City. He married in Rochester, N. Y., in 1888, Lucy Sanford Dana, and they have two daughters. Address: Morrisville, N. Y.

COMBS, Leslie:

Diplomatist; born in Little Compton, R. I., July 31, 1852; son of General Leslie and Mary Elizabeth (Brownell) Combs. He was educated in the public schools and in Transylvania University through the sophomore year. He has been engaged since manhood in fine stock raising and tobacco planting, and was also a rancher in Texas and Indian Territory for several years. He was pension agent for Kentucky, 1898-1900, resigning in 1900 to become chairman of the Republican Executive Committee of Kentucky. He was reappointed pension agent for Kentucky, 1900-1902, and in Nov., 1902, was appointed United States minister to Guatemala and Honduras. Mr. Combs married in Woodford County, Kentucky, Oct. 18, 1878, Mary C., daughter of Daniel Swigert, of Spring Station, Ky. Residence: Lexington, Ky. Official address: United States Legation, Guatemala City, Guatemala.

COMER, Braxton Bragg:

Governor of Alabama; born on a plantation in Barbour County, Ala., Nov. 7, 1843. He was educated in the Alabama State University, served as State cadet in the Confederate Army in the Civil War, and afterward went to Emory and Henry College at Birmingham, Ala., graduating in 1869. Became one of the largest farmers in Alabama, and is interested in large milling and other enterprises; in partnership with S. B. Trapp engaged as a wholesale merchant since 1886. He became interested as merchant and miller in railroad rebates, rates and discriminations, and was elected, in 1904, president of the Alabama Railroad Commission. The railroad rate issue became the most prominent in State politics, and he received the Democratic nomination, and was in November, 1906, elected Governor of Alabama for the term expiring in Jan., 1911. Residence: Birmingham, Ala. Official address: Montgomery, Ala.

COMLY, Samuel Pancoast:

Captain U. S. Navy; born in New Jersey; appointed from New Jersey as midshipman in the United States Naval Academy, from which he was graduated and promoted to ensign in July, 1871. His subsequent promotions were to master, Aug., 1873; lieutenant, April, 1878; lieutenant-commander, July 3, 1898; commander, March 3, 1901; captain, July 1, 1905. He served on the various duties and stations of a naval officer, and from Nov., 1895, until the end of the war with Spain was on the battleship Indiana, after that on the receiving ship Richmond until 1900; commanded the training ship Alliance, and commanded the battleship Alabama, in the North Atlantic Squadron until Oct. 1, 1907. Address: Care Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

COMMANDER, Lydia Kingsmill (Mrs. Casson):

Lecturer, author, editor, minister and sociologist; born in Clinton, Ont.; daughter of Charles Richard and Lydia (Kingsmill) Commander. She was graduated from the Collegiate Institute, Stratford, Ont., and under tutors at Meadville Theological Seminary. She married at Ruskin, Tenn., 1899, Herbert N. Casson. She was ordained and installed pastor of Free Congregational Church, at Baraboo, Wis., 1897; went to Ruskin, Tenn., in 1898, becoming a member of the cooperative colony there, and associate editor, with Herbert N. Casson, of the Coming Nation; member of the editorial staff of the New York Journal, 1899-1902; edited The Bellamy Review and Fair Play (social reform magazines), 1902; since then lecturer and writer; lecturer of the New York Humane Society, and for the New York City Board of Education. She is author of: Marred in the Making, 1903; The American Idea, 1907. She was speaker at the International Congress of Women, Berlin, 1904, and at Toronto, 1909; delegate to the National Peace Congress, New York 1907, and Chicago 1909. In 1907, she organized a committee and secured employment for over 2,000 women, thrown out of work by the panic and hard times. In 1909, she gave a course of lectures at the University of Wisconsin on the Social Opportunities and Responsibilities of Women. She is a member of the League for Political Education, League of Self-Supporting Women, Equal Suffrage League of New York, American Sociological Society, also the Women's Club of London. She is one of the ablest advocates of equal suffrage. Summer address: Pine Hill, N. J. Residence: 17 East 11th Street, New York City.

COMSTOCK, Ada Louise:

Educator; born in Moorhead, Minn., 1876; daughter of S. G. and Sarah (Ball) Comstock. She was educated in the University of Minnesota, 1892-1894, Smith College, 1894-1897, receiving the B.L. degree, 1897, Moorhead State Normal School, 1897-1898, Columbia University, 1898-1899, A.M., 1899; and was a graduate student at the Collège de France and Sorbonne, 1904. Miss Comstock began to teach in the University of Minnesota in the fall of 1899; became professor of rhetoric in 1904, and in 1907 became the first dean of women in the University of Minnesota, which position she still holds. She is a member of the Delta Gamma Sorority, Phi Kappa Psi Society of Smith College, Minneapolis Society of Fine Arts, the Association of Collegiate Alumnae and the Woman's Club of Minneapolis. Address: University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, Minn.

COMSTOCK, Anthony:

Secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice; born in Canaan, Conn., March 7, 1844; son of Thomas Anthony and Polly Ann (Lockwood) Comstock. He was educated at Wyckoff's Academy at New Canaan, and for one year in the New Britain (Conn.) high school. He volunteered, Dec., 1863, in the 17th Connecticut Volunteers, and served under General Gilmore in the Third Separate Brigade, Department of the South. He was honorably discharged in 1865, and went in 1867 to New York City, where he worked consecutively as porter, stock clerk, and salesman in wholesale dry goods houses, 1867-1873. Mr. Comstock made his first seven arrests of vendors of obscene books March 2, 1872, and has been secretary and chief special agent of the New York Society for Suppression of Vice since its incorporation by act of the Legislature of New York in 1873. He was appointed special agent, now called inspector, of the Postoffice Department, March 5, 1873, and served the Government of the United States in that capacity without salary until Jan. 1, 1907. He has made more than three thousand and three hundred arrests and seized more than one hundred and twenty-eight tons of obscene literature and other contraband matter. Mr. Comstock is a Republican in politics and a member of the Central Presbyterian Church of Summit, N. J., and has been prominent in Young Men's Christian Association work. He is author of: Frauds Exposed; Gambling Outrages; Morals Versus Arts; and Traps for the Young. Mr. Comstock married in Brooklyn, Jan. 25, 1871, Margaret Hamilton, and they have a daughter. Residence: 35 Beekman Road, Summit, N. J. Address: 140-142 Nassau Street, New York City.

COMSTOCK, George Cary:

Astronomer; born in Madison, Wis., Feb. 12, 1855; son of Charles Henry and Mercy (Bronson) Comstock. He was graduated from the University of Michigan as Ph.B. in 1877 and received the honorary degree of Sc.D. in 1907, and from the University of Wisconsin was graduated as LL.B. in 1883, and the University of Illinois conferred upon him the degree of LL.D. in 1907. He was recorder of the United States Lake Survey, assistant engineer of the Improvement of Mississippi River, and assistant astronomer of the Washburn Observatory. He was admitted to the bar of Wisconsin and to the United States Courts; was professor of mathematics and astronomy of the Ohio State University in 1885; professor of astronomy at the University of Wisconsin; associate director and director in 1890 of the Washburn Observatory, and has been director of the Graduate School of the University of Wisconsin since 1906. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, Astronomische Gesellschaft, of Leipzig, Société Astronomique de France, Sociedad Astronomica de Mexico, and has been a member of the National Academy of Science since 1899, and secretary of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America from its first organization. Mr. Comstock married in Madison, Wis., June 12, 1894, E. Cecile Everett, and they have one daughter. Address: Observatory Hill, Madison, Wis.

COMSTOCK, Harriet Theresa:

Author; born in Nichols, N. Y.; daughter of S. Alpheus and Jean (Downey) Smith. She was educated at Plainfield, N. J., was married in Brooklyn, N. Y., to Philip Comstock, and has two sons. Mrs. Comstock has traveled extensively over the United States and Canada, and is a constant contributor to the press, having written for the New York Post, New York Sun, Brooklyn Eagle, Boston Transcript, Burlington Press and many other papers, and is a regular correspondent of the Boston Christian Register. Her published volumes include a series of historical books published by Altemus, Philadelphia; A Boy of a Thousand Years Ago (Lee & Shepard); Tower or Throne, The Queen's Hostage and Janet of the Dunes (Little, Brown & Co.); A Little Dusky Hero and Meg and the Others (Crowell). Mrs. Comstock is a member of the New York League of Unitarian Women, a life member of the American Unitarian Association and the Brooklyn Woman's Club. Address: 31 Lincoln Road, Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y.

COMSTOCK, Theodore Bryant:

Mining engineer; born in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio, July 27, 1849; son of Calvin J. and Amelia (Hanford) Comstock. He was graduated from Pennsylvania State College, B.Agr., 1868; from Cornell University, B.S., 1870, and received the Sc.D. degree there in 1886. He was the first assistant and photographer of the Morgan Expedition to Brazil in 1870; geologist of Captain W. A. Jones' Northwest Wyoming and Yellowstone Park Expedition in 1873, and led the expedition to the Northwest Territory of Canada in 1877. Mr. Comstock was acting professor of geology and paleontology at Cornell, 1875-1879, having founded the department of economic geology there; and founded and directed the Kirtland Summer School of Natural History, Cleveland, Ohio, in 1875; was assistant at the Harvard Summer School of Geology in 1876; professor of mining engineering and physics at the University of Illinois, 1885-1889; assistant State geologist of Arkansas, 1887; assistant State geologist of Texas, 1889-1891; was founder and director of the Arizona School of Mines, 1891-1895; and part of that time president of the University of Arizona; and has been manager and engineer of Colorado, Arizona and Mexican mining companies and consulting engineer to many leading mining corporations of America and Europe. He holds a number of important offices in the commercial world; is a member of many associations, institutions and societies, and was a member of the executive committee of the Trans-Mississippi Congress from 1892-1894; director National Educational Association, 1894-1896; vice-president National Irrigation Congress, 1892; vice-president Association American Agricultural College and Experiment Station, 1894. A founder of the Geological Society of America; a founder of the Mining and Metallurgical Society. Author of works on geology and mining engineering; correspondent of leading technical journals. Mr. Comstock married in Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 9, 1880, Blanche Huggins. Residence: 827 Beacon Street. Office: 534 Stimson Building, Los Angeles, Calif.

CONANT, Charles Arthur:

Financial expert; born at Winchester, Mass., July 2, 1861. He was graduated from the Winchester (Mass.) High School in 1879. He was engaged in newspaper work for about twenty years, beginning at Boston in 1880, and was for ten years Washington correspondent of the New York Journal of Commerce. He was Democratic candidate for Congress in the Harvard University District in 1894, and delegate to the Gold Democratic Convention in 1896. He became associated with the Executive Committee of the Indianapolis Monetary Convention in 1897, and suggested several of the provisions of the Gold Standard Law of March 14, 1900. He was appointed by Secretary Root, special commissioner to the Philippine Islands in the summer of 1901, for the purpose of investigating coinage and banking conditions there, his report being the basis for the Philippine Coinage Act of 1903. In Feb., 1902, he was elected treasurer of the Morton Trust Company of New York, resigning at the close of 1906. He visited Mexico in 1903 on the invitation of the Mexican Government to confer with a committee regarding the reform of the Mexican currency. Mr. Conant was appointed by President Roosevelt a member of the Committee on International Exchange of the United States, which, in the summer of 1903, conferred with European Governments in regard to a reform of the currency systems in China and other Oriental countries. In 1904 he aided the War Department in suggesting a currency measure for Panama, similar to that of the Philippines. In 1906 he was appointed a member of the special committee of the New York Chamber of Commerce on Reform of the Currency, whose report was adopted by the Chamber, Nov. 1, 1906. In 1909 Mr. Conant was appointed by the Secretary of State, Mr. Knox, the sole delegate of the United States to the International Conference at The Hague on International Bills of Exchange. In the same year he prepared a monograph for the National Monetary Commission on the National Bank of Belgium, giving a thorough history and analysis of the development of that institution. Mr. Conant is author of: A History of Modern Banks of Issue, with an account of the economic crises of the nineteenth century and the crisis of 1907, fourth edition, 1909; The United States in the Orient; The Nature of the Economic Problem, 1900; Wall Street and the Country, 1904; and The Principles of Money and Banking (two volumes) 1905. The latter was translated into French by Raphaël Georges-Lévy and published in Paris in 1907. Mr. Conant is a director of the Manila Railway and the Credit Clearing House. He is a member of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, the American Economic Association, the Washington Economic, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Asiatic Association, New York Economic Club, National Civil Service Reform League, and the Société d'Économie Politique de France. Residence: 58 West 47th Street. Office: 26 Liberty Street, New York City.

CONANT, Ernest Lee:

Lawyer; born at Dudley, Mass., Sept. 11, 1859; son of Charles R. and Ann F. (Ross) Conant. He was graduated from Harvard College as A.B. in 1884, attended Johns Hopkins University and Maryland Law School from 1884 to 1886, and was graduated from the Harvard Law School as A.M. and LL.B. in 1889. He was instructor in English in Harvard College for two years; instructor in law and lecturer on international law at Harvard University, two years and since then has been engaged in practising law in New York City and Havana, Cuba. He resided in Havana from 1898 to 1906. He was counsel to the military governor of Havana, in 1899, and president of the Havana Finance Commission for Examining the Financial Condition of Havana in 1899-1900. He was a member of the Havana Charter Commission in 1900 and special prosecuting attorney (fiscal) in Cuban Post Office fraud cases in 1901. In 1906 he resumed his residence in New York City. Director American Type Founders Co., and other companies. Member of Association of Bar, City of New York, Lawyers, University, City and Harvard Clubs. Mr. Conant married in 1903, Blanche M. Allison. Residence: 135 East 66th Street, N. Y., and New Canaan, Conn.

CONATY, Thomas James:

Catholic bishop of Monterey and Los Angeles; born at Kilmaleck, County Cavan, Ireland, Aug. 1, 1847; son of Patrick and Alice (Lynch) Conaty. He removed with his parents to the United States in 1850, and received his early education at Taunton, Mass. He attended Montreal College, 1863-1867, and was graduated from the College of the Holy Cross at Worcester, Mass., 1869, and from Montreal Theological School in 1872, and was ordained priest Dec. 21, 1872. He was assistant at St. John's Church, Worcester, from 1873 to 1880, and pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart at Worcester, Mass., for seventeen years, and was selected by the American Catholic bishops who were trustees of the Catholic University at Washington, D. C., as rector of that University, Oct. 22, 1896, and appointed to that position Nov. 20, 1896, by Pope Leo XIII, who conferred upon him June 19, 1897, the title of Domestic Prelate. He was nominated by Pope Leo, July 16, 1901, titular bishop of Samos, and he was consecrated bishop by Cardinal Gibbons, at Baltimore, Nov. 24, 1901. He was appointed to the see of Monterey and Los Angeles, March 27, 1903, and took up his Episcopal residence at Los Angeles, Calif. He received the degree of D.D. from Georgetown University in 1899, and the degrees of J.U.D. and D.D. from Laval University, Quebec, in 1896. Bishop Conaty has been active in the promotion of temperance and education among the Catholics of America, was president of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America, 1887-1888. He was one of the originators and organizers of the Catholic Summer School at Plattsburg, N. Y., and its president from 1893 to 1897, was founder and for four years editor of the Catholic School and Home Magazine and is author of Bible Studies, for college and school use, published in 1898. Address: Los Angeles, Calif.

CONGER, Emily Bronson:

Osteopath physician; born at Peninsula, Ohio, May 7, 1843; daughter of Hiram V. and Ruth Lenora (Ranney) Bronson. She was educated in Professor Emerson's College at Peninsula, Ohio, class of 1859, and the American College of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., class of 1899-1902. She married in Peninsula, Ohio, Nov. 1, 1864, Col. Arthur Latham Conger, and has had four sons of whom one is now deceased. She was deputy to Col. Conger as county treasurer for four years, and assisted her husband in his various business affairs and in politics. Mrs. Conger has traveled extensively, knew personally all the generals of the Army, attending Grand Army of the Republic annual meetings and serving on the staff of the Woman's Relief Corps (auxililiary to the G. A. R.) She has given several addresses before societies on the Philippines, where she spent two years from July 1899 to 1901. She entered the American School of Osteopathy at Kirksville, Mo., in 1897, and in 1898 went to Des Moines, Iowa, where she became one of the charter trustees of the Still College of Osteopathy, 1898-1899, and was licensed to practise in New York. Mrs. Conger is author of An Ohio Woman in the Philippines. She was president of the National Axis Club, 1905-1906, and vice-president of the American Osteopath Association, 1906-1907. Address: Irving Lawn, Akron, Ohio.

CONKLIN, Roland Ray:

Banker; born at Urbana, Ill., Feb. 1, 1858; son of Joseph Okell and Julia Louise (Hunt) Conklin. He was graduated from the University of Illinois, in 1880; and received from that institution the degree of Master of Literature in 1890. Mr. Conklin was engaged in the banking business at Kansas City, Mo., from 1880 to 1892, and was one of the founders of the Jarvis-Conklin Mortgage Trust Company; and he has been a resident of New York City from 1892. In 1894, with S. M. Jarvis, he organized the North American Trust Company, of which he was vice-president. He was very active in the management of the company which was, in 1898, appointed fiscal agent of the United States Government in Cuba, and was the first American institution engaged in banking in that island. Later, by consolidation, with other trust companies the corporation became known as the Trust Company of America. He resigned the vice-presidency in 1900, to devote more time to personal investments and other financial undertakings. He is one of the founders and a director of the National Bank of Cuba; president of the Havana Telephone Company, and also connected with many street railways and public utility corporations in the United States and the Cuban Republic. Mr. Conklin is an extensive traveler and reader, and member of the Bibliophile Society, and is also a member of the Municipal Art Society and of the Civic, City Lunch, St. Nicholas and Nassau Country Clubs and Automobile Club of America; also the American Club of Havana. Mr. Conklin married, at Paris, France, May 4, 1898, Miss Mary Macfadden, and by that marriage has two daughters and a son. His home at Rosemary Farm, Huntington, L. I., has been a residence of the family from 1603, and he also resides at The Wyoming, 53th and 7th Ave. Address: 1 Wall Street, New York City.

CONKLING, Howard:

Lawyer and author and real estate operator; born in New York City in 1856; son of Frederick A. and Eleanora (Ronalds) Conklin. He was educated in private academies and was graduated LL.B. from New York University Law School, 1900. After a few years in commercial pursuits, he secured admission to the bar in the States of New York and Indiana; practised a short time in Indianapolis and then returned to New York City where he has practised ever since. Mr. Conklin has been active in politics as a Republican, was a member of the General Assembly of New York in 1892, 1893 and 1903, and was a candidate for Congress in 1898 but was defeated by George B. McClellan. Mr. Conkling has taken a great interest in the propagation of the French language, is vice-president of the Alliance Francaise, and official presenter of medals for the Alliance. He is author of: Biography of the Chevalier de la Luzerne; The Game Laws; Travelers in Mexico. He was formerly president of the Madison Square Republican Club and of the Hamilton Republican Club, and is now a member of the Union, Metropolitan and Republican Clubs of New York. He has a summer residence at Luzerne, N. Y. Residence: 157 East 70th Street. Office: 76 William Street, New York City.

CONN, Herbert William:

Professor of biology; born at Fitchburg, Mass., Jan. 10, 1859; son of Rueben R. and Harriet E. (Harding) Conn. He received the degree of A.B. from Boston University in 1881, and Ph. D. from Johns Hopkins University in 1884. He was acting director of Johns Hopkins Summer School in 1884; instructor in biology in Wesleyan University from 1884 to 1888; and has been professor of biology, Wesleyan University, since 1888. He was also lecturer in biology in Trinity College, 1886-1887; director of the Cold Spring Harbor Biological Laboratory, Long Island, 1889-1897; bacteriologist of Storrs Experiment Station, Connecticut, 1892-1906; lecturer on bacteriology at Storrs Agricultural College, 1901-1906; and has been director of the Connecticut State Bacteriological Laboratory since 1905. Dr. Conn was president of the American Society of Bacteriology in 1902, and is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He has published nearly one hundred and fifty articles and books mostly scientific. In politics, he is a Republican and in religion a Methodist. He married at Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 5, 1885, Julia M. Joel, and they have two children. Address: Middletown, Conn.

CONNERS, William James:

Publisher, contractor; born in Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 3, 1857. He attended the common schools until he was thirteen years old, then started to work as a boy on a steamboat on Lake Erie. He worked hard at various kinds of labor until 1885 when he established in his present business as a freight contractor. He added the business of paving, in stone and asphalt, in 1888, and has been a brewer since 1890 and since 1893 president of the Magnus Beck Brewing Company. Mr. Conners has been proprietor of the Buffalo Enquirer since December, 1895, and of the Buffalo Courier since May, 1897. He is a large employer of labor, now having over six thousand men on his payroll. He has for many years been a prominent figure in the Democratic State politics in New York; has been chairman of the Democratic State Committee since 1906, and was one of the leaders of the Democratic National campaign of 1908. Address: 599 South Park Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

CONNOLLY, James Brendan:

Writer of sea stories; born in Boston, Mass.; son of John and Anne (O'Donnell) Connolly. He was educated at Harvard University. Mr. Connolly was a member of the United States Engineer Corps; was a winner in the first modern Olympic games at Athens in 1896; was a member of the 9th Massachusetts Regiment of U. S. Volunteers during the Spanish-American War, and has been in the Navy. He collected material for narratives of salt water adventure, especially of fisherman life, which attracted much attention and which were developed into several books, which include: Out of Gloucester, 1902; The Seiners, 1904; The Deep Sea's Toll, 1905; The Crested Seas, 1907; An Olympic Victor, 1908. He married in Boston, Sept. 28, 1904, Elizabeth Frances Hurley. Address: Dorchester, Mass.

CONNOLLY, Louise:

Superintendent of Schools; born in Washington, D. C., July 22, 1862; daughter of Thomas C. and Margaret (Williams) Connolly. She was educated in the Washington Normal School and was graduated from Columbian (now George Washington) University with the degrees of B.S. and M.S. Miss Connolly was a teacher in the public schools of Washington, D. C.; editor for the University Publishing Co., three years; supervisor of the schools in Newark, N. J., four years, and superintendent of schools in Summit, N. J., since March 15, 1906. Miss Connolly is an institute lecturer, and was joint author, with W. B. Powell, of Rational Grammar, and has edited several special State geographies. She is a member of the Board of Directors of the Town Improvement Association of Summit, N. J., member of the Educational Association of Newark, N. J., and first vice-president of the Fortnightly Club of Summit. Address: Summit, N. J.

CONNOR, George L.:

Railway official; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Aug. 23, 1846. In August, 1868, he became a clerk in the treasurer's office of the Narragansett Steamship Company; became auditor of passenger and freight receipts, 1873-1874, and general passenger agent of same company in 1874. He became general passenger agent of the Old Colony Steamboat Company (Fall River Line), June 1874, to June, 1894; also general passenger and ticket agent of the Old Colony Railroad, 1877-1893. He has been passenger traffic manager of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Railroad since July, 1893; was also passenger traffic manager of the Providence and Stonington Steamship Company, 1893-1898; and in June, 1898, also became passenger traffic manager of the Old Colony Steamboat Company, and since Jan. 1, 1905, has been passenger traffic manager of the New England Navigation Company. Address: New Haven, Conn.

CONVERSE, Florence:

Author; born in New Orleans, April 30, 1871; daughter of George T. and Caroline (Edwards) Converse. Miss Converse was graduated from Wellesley College, B.S., 1893, A.M. 1903; lived several years in San Francisco and for several years past in Boston. She was a member of the editorial staff of The Churchman, in New York City, from January, 1900, to January, 1908. Miss Converse is author of: Diana Victrix; The Burden of Christopher; Long Will; The House of Prayer; and she is also a contributor to various magazines. Address: The Charlesgate, Boston.

CONWELL, Russell Herrman:

President of Temple University; born in Worthington, Mass., Feb. 15, 1843; son of Martin and Miranda (Wickham) Conwell. He was educated in Yale University and Albany University. He has been engaged in law since 1865. Mr. Conwell was foreign correspondent of New York Tribune, 1870; commissioner of emigration of Minnesota, 1868; editor of Boston Traveler, 1872; founder of the Minneapolis Chronicle, now the Tribune, 1867. He was ordained Baptist minister of Lexington, Mass., 1879; founder of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia, 1889; founder of the Temple University, Philadelphia, 1884; founder of Samaritan Hospital, Philadelphia, 1892; founder of the Philadelphia Law School, 1898; founder of the Philadelphia Medical College, 1900; founder of the Philadelphia Theological School in 1896, president of Garretson Hospital, Philadelphia, 1907, and president of the Philadelphia Dental College, 1907. He was captain in the Massachusetts Volunteers, in 1863-1864, and staff officer in 1864-1865, and reached the grade of lieutenant-colonel. He is a Republican in politics, and has traveled extensively for the New York Tribune. Dr. Conwell is one of the most successful and popular of lecturers in lyceum and chautauqua courses, his lecture, "Aeres of Diamonds" being especially famous. He married in Chicopee Falls, Mass., 1866, Jennie P. Hayden, and they have two children. Residence: 2020 North Broad Street. Business address: Broad and Berks Streets, Philadelphia.

COOK, Frederick Albert:

Physician, explorer, lecturer; born at Callicoon Depot, Sullivan County, N. Y.; son of Theodore A. and Magdalen (Long) Cook. He was graduated from the Medical Department of the New York University, M.D., 1890, and, after a year of post-graduate work in the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University, he became surgeon of the Peary Arctic Expedition, 1891-1892. He was surgeon of the Belgian Antarctic Expedition, 1897-1899, and was leader of the several expeditions to climb and explore Mount McKinley, 1903-1906. He went to the Arctic, 1907, and returned, reaching Copenhagen Sept. 4, 1909, with report that he reached North Pole April 21, 1908. Received decoration from King of Denmark and degree Sc.D. from University of Copenhagen. He is author of: Through the First Antarctic Night; To the Top of the Continent; and magazine articles; and is a lecturer on Antarctic Exploration. He has received the decoration of the Order of Leopold, a gold medal from the municipality of Brussels; gold medal of the Royal Society of Belgium, and silver medal of the Royal Geographic Society. He is an honorary member of the Geographic Society of Brussels; member of the American Geographical Society, the National Geographic Society, Brooklyn Medical Society, Kings County Medical Society; is secretary of the Arctic Club and vice-president of the Explorers Club. Address: 670 Bushwick Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

COOK, Joel:

Congressman, editor; born in Philadelphia, March 20, 1842. He was graduated from the Central High School, Philadelphia, as A.B. in 1859; studied law, and in 1863 was admitted to the Philadelphia bar; but afterward adopted journalism as a profession. From 1862 to 1863 was war correspondent with the Army of the Potomac. Mr. Cook was on the editorial staff of the Public Ledger, 1865-1907; and became its financial editor in 1883. Since June, 1865, on staff of foreign correspondents of London Times. Mr. Cook is president of the Philadelphia Board of Trade, and vice-president of the United Security Life Insurance and Trust Company, and served, from 1897 until 1907, as a member of the Board of Public Education and chairman of its Committee on the Central High Schools; president of the Board of Port Wardens from 1893 until 1907. He is a Republican in politics, and after John E. Reyburn resigned his seat in Congress, March 30, 1907, Mr. Cook was elected to fill the vacancy. He was reelected in 1908, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress from the Second District of Pennsylvania. He is author of: A Holiday Tour in Europe; An Eastern Tour at Home; England, Picturesque and Descriptive; America, Picturesque and Descriptive; A Visit to the States, and other works of travel. Mr. Cook married in Philadelphia, Sept. 19, 1865, Mary J. Edmunds, and has a son and a daughter. Address: 849 North Broad Street, Philadelphia.

COOK, Walter:

Architect; born in New York City, July 23, 1846; son of Edward and Catherine (Ireland) Cook. He was graduated from Harvard College as A.B. in 1869 and A.M. in 1872; and later attended the Royal Polytechnic School at Munich and the École des Beaux Arts at Paris (Pupil of E. Vaudremer). Mr. Cook has practised architecture in New York City since 1877; and is now a member of the firm of Babb, Cook & Willard, architects. This firm were architects of the DeVine Press building, the residence of Andrew Carnegie and of many of the branch Public Libraries, etc., in New York City; the residence of F. B. Pratt, Brooklyn; the New York Life Insurance Buildings in Montreal, Canada, St. Paul, and Minneapolis, and many other structures of importance. He is past president of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects; and has been the architect member of the Municipal Art Commission since 1905. He was American member of the International Jury which judged the Phoebe Hearst competition for the University of California; also a member of the jury for competitions for the New York Public Library, for Washington University, St. Louis, and for the remodeling of West Point. Mr. Cook is a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, and member of the Century and Harvard Clubs of New York City, and associate of the National Academy of Design. Residence: 135 East 37th Street. Address: 3 West 29th Street, New York City.

COOKE, Joseph Brown:

Surgeon and author; born in Saratoga Springs, N. Y., March 24, 1868; son of Joseph Gardner and Phebe Dana (Brown) Cooke. He obtained his early education in Saratoga, N. Y., at the Franklin School, Washington, D. C., from 1880 to 1882; Trinity School, Tivoli-on-Hudson, 1882-1885; the Phillips Exeter Academy, 1885-1887, and the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University, M.D., 1890. He has practised medicine and surgery in New York City since 1890. Dr. Cooke was visiting physician at the Northwestern Dispensary from 1892 to 1894, and at St. Mary's Free Hospital for Children, 1892-1896. He has been a lecturer on obstetrics in the New York City Training School for Nurses since 1900. Dr. Cooke is adjunct professor of obstetrics at the New York Polyclinic Medical School; obstetrician to the New York Polyclinic Hospital; surgeon to the New York Maternity Hospital, and visiting obstetric surgeon to the Misericordia Hospital. He is a fellow of the New York Obstetrical Society, and the Medical Society of Greater New York; a member of the American, New York State, and New York County Medical Associations, the Harlem Medical Association, the Medico-Surgical Society, the Manhattan Clinical Society, and the Valentine Mott Society. He is author of: Manual of Obstetrical Technique (seventh edition), 1901; Nurses' Handbook of Obstetrics (fourth edition), 1903; Text Book of Obstetrics, 1909; The Mystery of Carney-Croft (fiction), 1906; The Clarendon Case, etc.; also many contributions to various popular and technical magazines. Dr. Cooke married in London, England, May 31, 1898, Constance Rachel Cottin, and they have two daughters and two sons. Address: 616 Madison Avenue, New York City. Summer residence: Cooperstown, N. Y.

COOKE, Lorenzo Wesley:

Brigadier-general U. S. Army, retired; born near Round Top, N. J., June 8, 1847; son of Amos Bishop and Lucy A. (Smith) Cooke. He was educated in public schools. He began his military career as private and corporal of Company H, 27th Wisconsin Infantry, July 26, to Dec. 11, 1862; then private in Company E, 1st Battalion, 13th Infantry, U. S. A., Dec. 11, 1862 to Dec. 11, 1865; private in general service, Dec. 13, 1865, to Oct. 1, 1866. He was commissioned second lieutenant 3d Infantry, Sept. 21, 1866, and first lieutenant, Sept. 17, 1868, and honorably mustered out Jan. 1, 1871. He was commissioned second lieutenant, 13th Infantry, Oct. 13, 1871; first lieutenant, May 31, 1883; captain, Nov. 29, 1892; major 26th Infantry, Feb. 2, 1901; lieutenant-colonel, Jan. 24, 1904; appointed brigadier-general, March 9, 1906, and retired March 24, 1906, on his own application after more than forty years service. During the Civil War he participated in the arrest of Clement L. Vallandigham, at his home in Dayton, Ohio, in May, 1863; the sieges of Vicksburg and Jackson, Miss., June-July, 1863; battles of Collinsville, Tenn., Oct. 11, 1863; Missionary Ridge, Nov., 1863; Nashville, Dec., 1864; also numerous skirmishes and "affairs." He participated after the war in affairs with Indians at and near Fort Zarah, Kan., Oct., 1868, and with the Crows on Little Big Horn River, Mont., Nov. 7, 1887. He also served most efficiently in the Philippines, participated in the Battle of Malabon, P. I., March 25 and 26, 1899, and was specially commended by Gen. Loyd Wheaton for the assistance he gave in carrying all the enemy's entrenched positions from Caloccan to Malinte against a force superior in numbers. He was recommended by Gen. Lawton for brevet as major, U. S. Army, for gallantry and ability in repulsing a determined attack at San Yldelfonso, and his good soldiership in the Philippines was also officially commended by Gen. Arthur McArthur and Generals Constant Williams and J. C. Bates; and Gen. J. M. Lee recommended his advancement to the grade of brigadier-general. General Cooke is a companion of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, and is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic. He married in Chicago, Nov. 4, 1869, S. Emma Beatty, and they have a son. Address: Lemon Grove, Calif.

COOKE, Richard Joseph:

Book editor of the Methodist Episcopal Church; born in New York City, Jan. 31, 1853. He was graduated from the East Tennessee Wesleyan University, 1880, was afterward a student in the University of Berlin, and the degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by the University of Tennessee. He was ordained in the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1876, and served in important charges. He became professor of New Testament exegesis and theology, 1889, vice-chancellor, 1893, acting president 1897, of Grant University. He was editor of the Methodist Advocate Journal twelve years. In 1904 he was appointed by the General Conference at Los Angeles, book editor of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In addition to writings in reviews and the church press, Dr. Cooke is author of: The Doctrine of the Resurrection; Reasons for Church Creed; Christianity and Childhood; The Historic Episcopate; History of the Ritual of the Methodist Epis- copal Church; Christ and the Critics; Digest of Judicial Decisions of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church; The Incarnation and recent criticism. He was a member of the General Conferences of 1896, 1900, 1904 and 1908, delegate to excommunical Conference, England, 1901. Fraternal delegate to the British and Irish Conferences, Belfast and Nottingham, 1906, and served the church as a commissioner on the Federation of Episcopal Methodism; commissioner on The Common Hymnal, on the Constitution, on Revision of the Ritual of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and on Commission on Judicial Procedure. Is a member of Ocean Grove Association, New Jersey. Dr. Cooke married, April 20, 1881, Eliza Gettys Fisher. Office address: 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

COOKE, Walter Platt:

Lawyer; born in Buffalo, N. Y., April 28, 1869; son of Josiah P. and Alice A. (Baker) Cooke. He was educated in the Buffalo public and high schools, and Cornell University, whence he was graduated LL.B., 1891. He engaged in the practice of law in Buffalo, was a member of the law firm of Brown & Cooke, 1895-1897, of Bissell, Carey and Cooke, 1897-1906; since then of Keniffick, Cooke and Mitchell. He is also a director of the People's Bank of Buffalo, the Buffalo and Susquehanna Railway, Buffalo General Electric Company, Western New York Water Company, Great Southern Lumber Company, Goodyear Lumber Company, Buffalo Abstract and Title Company, and the Frontier Telephone Company. Mr. Cooke was formerly president of the Erie County Bar Association, and a member of the Board of Managers of the Buffalo State Hospital for Insane; and is now vice-president and trustee of the Buffalo Library, a trustee of the Buffalo Homeopathic Hospital, and a director of the Buffalo Philharmonic Society. He is a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, the Buffalo, Saturn, Buffalo Country, Park and Lawyers Clubs of Buffalo, and the Wakanah Golf Club. He married in Buffalo, June 28, 1894, May Louise Perry, and they have a daughter and a son. Residence: 69 Ashland Ave. Office: 558 Elliott Square, Buffalo, N. Y.

COOKINHAM, Henry J.:

Lawyer; born at Prospect, N. Y., Oct. 1, 1843; son of John D. and Diantha L. Cookinham. He was graduated in the classical course from Whitestown Seminary, 1865; studied Latin, Greek and French under private tutors and was graduated from Hamilton College, LL.B., 1867. He was admitted to the bar in 1867 and has since practised law in Utica, N. Y. Mr. Cookinham has been retained in many important cases in the United States Courts; represented the Tobacco combination in arguing the case of the United States vs. Rothschilds (involving duties on leaf tobacco), and also the case of the National Harrow Company vs. E. Bement & Sons, which was one of the first cases involving the question of contracts in restraint of trade before the United States Supreme Court. He was a director of the United Glass Company. Is a director of Troy Public Works Company, and a director of the New Hartford Canning Company. He was special surrogate of Oneida County, 1873; member of the New York Assembly, 1880; candidate for Congress, 1884; delegate to the New York Constitutional Convention, 1894 and a member of its committees on Judiciary, Suffrage and Privileges, and Elections, and chairman of the committee to draft the Address to the People Explanatory of the New Constitution. He is chairman of the commissioners for the erection, in Utica, of a new courthouse for Oneida County; was for many years, a trustee of Whitestown Seminary, and a director of the Young Men's Christian Association. He is a member of the New York State Bar Association, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, Oneida County Law Library Association (of which he was several years president), and Sons of the Revolution, and is a statutory charter member of the American Scenic and Historic Preservation Society. He is author of: Truly Rescued, 1881; Memorial of President James A. Garfield, 1881; Recollections of the Bar of Oneida County, 1895. He married at New Hartford, N. Y., Sept. 18, 1872, Mary Louise, daughter of General R. U. Sherman. Address: Utica, N. Y.

COOLEY, Alford Warriner:

Lawyer; born at Westchester, N. Y., April 9, 1873; son of James Calvin and Agnes (Medlicott) Cooley. He went to private schools until he was fourteen years of age, when he was sent to St. Paul's School, at Concord, N. H. After completing a four-year course at this institution, he entered the freshman class at Harvard, in 1891, and was graduated in 1895 with the degree of A. B. He then took up the study of law at Columbia University and was admitted to the New York bar in January, 1898. Mr. Cooley was a member of the New York Assembly during the sessions of 1900 and 1901, and subsequently became clerk in the Surrogate's Court of Westchester County, New York. From 1903 to 1906 he was United States civil service commissioner, and from November, 1906 to August, 1908 he was assistant attorney-general of the United States. He resigned as assistant attorney general in August, 1908 on account of ill health and was reappointed to the same position in January, 1909. He married at Longwood, Mass., Dec. 1, 1904, Susan Dexter Dalton. Residence: Westchester, N. Y. Official address: Department of Justice, Washington, D. C.

COOLEY, Le Roy Clark:

Professor of physics; born at Point Peninsula, N. Y., Oct., 1833; son of James and Sally (Clark) Cooley, and a direct descendant of Benjamin Cooley and Sarah Cooley, who settled in Springfield, Mass., about the year 1636. He was graduated from the New York State Normal College in 1855, and from Union College, A.B., 1858, A.M., 1861 and Ph.D. in 1870. Professor Cooley was teacher of natural science at the Lockport Union School, 1855-1856; professor of mathematics at Fairfield Seminary, 1858-1860; professor of natural science at the New York State Normal College, 1861-1874; professor of physics and chemistry at Vassar College, 1874-1895; professor of physics, 1895-1907, and became professor emeritus in 1907. Among his contributions to science are the following investigations: The application of electricity to registering vibrations; the mechanical action of radiation; the motions of light bodies in air and vacuum; convection applied to the detection of heat. To educational conventions and journals also he has contributed many addresses and papers. He has been especially devoted to the improvement of science teaching in secondary schools; was chairman of the Committee of Nine of the New York State Science Teachers' Association, to investigate the condition of science teaching in the schools and to suggest improved methods from 1897 to 1899; member and was president in 1899 of the New York State Science Teachers' Association. He is author of a series of elementary and high school textbooks of physics and chemistry. He is a member of the Presbyterian church. Dr. Cooley is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; a member of the American Physical Society; the National Educational Association, the National Geographic Association, the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. He is also a member of the University Club and the Club of Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He married at Argyle, N. Y., March 30, 1859, M. Rossabella Flack, and they have five daughters and four sons. Address: 2 Reservoir Square, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

COOLEY, Winifred Harper:

Writer and lecturer; born in Terre Haute, Ind., 1876; daughter of T. W. and Ida Husted-Harper. She was graduated from the Girl's Classical School, Indianapolis, 1893, and Leland Stanford University, California, as A. B., 1896. She was winner of the prize in the first contest for story, was editor of all three college publications—weekly, monthly, and annual, no other girl student, before or since, having filled all these offices. She took all the four years' studies in three, and has specialized in English literature and ethics. She married in Washington, D. C., June 13, 1899, Rev. George Elliot Cooley, Unitarian minister.

Mrs. Cooley is author of "The New Womanhood," and a writer of numerous magazine, newspaper and syndicate articles; and she has done much lecture work in New England and the Middle West, has conducted classes in Literature and Travel, and since 1907 has been on the Public Lecture Course of Greater New York. Mrs. Cooley's lectures cover the subjects of the social and political evolution of woman, also she has many stereopticon lectures on travel, and also lectures on miscellaneous topics, such as "Prison Reform." Mrs. Cooley was appointed in 1895, by the governor of Michigan, the only woman delegate from that State to the National Prison Reform Convention. She is a member of the National Woman Suffrage Association and of the Pi Beta Phi Sorority, and honorary life member of the Ladies of the Maccabees and member of various local clubs and societies. She is connected with The National Food Magazine, and is State Secretary of the Associated Clubs of Domestic Science, and President of the New York City division. Address: 149 East 34th Street, New York City.

COOLIDGE, Louis Arthur:

Assistant secretary of the Treasury; born in Natick, Mass., Oct. 8, 1861; son of William L. and Sarah E. Coolidge. He was graduated from Harvard in 1883, and did newspaper work on the Springfield Republican until 1888, when he became the private secretary to Hon. Cabot Lodge. He has been the Washington correspondent for the Boston Journal and the New York Commercial Advertiser; editor of the Congressional Directory; indexer of the Congressional Record; clerk of the committee on the election of President, vice-president and representatives in Congress during the 51st Congress, and in 1904 was director of the Literary Bureau of the Republican National Committee. In 1908 he was appointed assistant secretary of the Treasury, a position he now holds, having been continued in it by the Taft administration. Mr. Coolidge has been prominent in national Republican politics both in active and advisory capacities for years, and has proven an active and efficient executive in his work in the Treasury Department. Mr. Coolidge is a member of the University, and Republican Clubs of New York, the Gridiron Club (of which he was president in 1904), Cosmos, and University Clubs of Washington, and the Cumberland Club of Portland, Me. He is author of: The Show at Washington; Klondike and the Yukon Country; and is a contributor to magazines. He married in 1890, Helen I. Pickerell. Residence: 2419 Massachusetts Avenue. Office: Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

COOLIDGE, Mary Elizabeth Burroughs Roberts:

Teacher of sociology and author; born in Kingsburg, Ind., Oct. 28, 1860; daughter of Professor Isaac Phillips Roberts, M. Agr., and Margaret J. (Marr) Roberts. She was graduated from Cornell University, Ph.B., 1880, M.S., 1882, received the degree of Ph.D. from Stanford University, 1896, and was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa Society. She married, first, Aug. 28, 1890, Albert W. Smith, and second, at Berkeley, Calif., July 30, 1906, Dane Coolidge, author and naturalist. She served on the staff of the Rural New Yorker, 1880-1881, was teacher of history in the high school of Washington, D. C., 1882-1884; was principal and teacher of history in Miss Nourse and Miss Roberts' private school at Cincinnati, two years; then for four years, until 1890, was instructor of history and economics, and for the last two years of that period also secretary of the Board of Examiners of Wellesley College. In 1896 she became assistant professor, and later associate professor of sociology in Stanford University, retaining that chair until 1903, and she was, from 1904 until 1907, research assistant to the Carnegie Institute of Washington, D. C.; and she was head worker in the South Park Settlement, San Francisco, 1905-1906, and is still a member of the Council of that settlement. Mrs. Coolidge is author of the book: Chinese Immigration, 1909; revised the second edition of Amos G. Warner's American Charities, 1908, and is author of monographs in the Publications of the American Statistical Association on Alms-house Women, 1896, and Statistics of College and Non-College Women, 1900. She is a member of the American Economic Association, the Association of Collegiate Alumnae, the Associated Charities of San Francisco, and the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. Address: Dwight Way, End, East, Berkeley, Calif.

COOLIDGE, Sherman:

Clergyman; born near Sheridan, Wyo., in 1863; son of Banas-da (Big Heart) and Ba-ah-noce (Turtle Woman), Arapahoe Indians. He was captured in battle by the Bannocks and Shoshones, the traditional enemies of his tribe, a mile below Camp Brown, the present site of the City of Lander, Wyo. He was among the captives surrendered to the army officers of Camp Brown and he and his two little brothers were obtained from their mother and were subsequently adopted by the army officers. He saw, in this fight, a man killed and scalped in the presence of his shrieking family and his scalp torn off in several pieces. Under cover of the night his mother fled back to her tribe. She never saw her sons again except the oldest, who returned again as a Christian missionary fourteen years after. Dr. Shapleigh gave him afterward to the large-hearted wife of Brigadier-General Charles A. Coolidge, who brought him up and educated him. He attended Shattuck Military School, at Faribault, Minn., 1877-1880 and Seabury Divinity School at the same place, 1880-1884, and was graduated B.D., and he took a post-graduate course at Hobart College, 1887-1890. He has written articles in Church periodicals, in the general newspapers and magazines. He has traveled in the eastern and western parts of the United States making addresses and delivering lectures on the Indian Problem from the native standpoint, and he has made several Memorial Day addresses. He was ordained to the diaconate of the Episcopal Church by Bishop Whipple in 1884, and advanced to the priesthood by Bishop Spalding of Colorado, May 25, 1885. He was appointed one of the six speakers of the Missionary Council which met in Washington, D. C., in 1903, and was also delegate to the same council from Wyoming and Idaho; and recently lectured for the Department of Economics and Sociology of the Ohio State University. He is rector of the Church of the Redeemer at Shoshone Agency, Wyoming, assistant missionary at Lander, Fort Washakie, and North Fork, and minister in charge in two chapels among the Arapahoës, and St. Luke's Mission, Shosoni, Fremont County, Wyoming, also Government teacher at the Wind River Boarding School, Shoshone Agency, Wyoming, and issue clerk at the Shoshone Agency, Wyoming. He is a Republican in politics, is a member of the Delta Sigma fraternity at Geneva, N. Y., and of the Saint Andrew's Brotherhood. He married at Shoshone Agency, Wyoming, Oct. 8, 1902, Grace D. Wetherbee of New York, and they have a daughter. Address: Fort Washakie, Wyo.

COOLIDGE, Thomas Jefferson:

Manufacturer, diplomat; born in Boston, Mass., Aug. 26, 1831; son of Joseph and Ellen (Wayles) Coolidge. After preparatory education in Switzerland and Germany, he entered Harvard College, from which he was graduated A.B. in 1850, and which conferred upon him, 1902, the degree of LL. D. After leaving college he engaged in business as a member of the firm of Gardner & Coolidge, East India merchants, and afterward became largely interested in cotton mills. He is now president of the Amoskeag Manufacturing Company, and is connected as officer or director with many other large New England mills, banks, railroads and financial corporations. He was formerly president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroad Company, the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company, and the Boston and Lowell Railroad Company. Mr. Coolidge is a Republican in politics, and was envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of the United States to France in 1892-1893. He also served as a member of the High Joint Commission of Arbitration appointed to adjust disputes between the United States and Canada in 1899. He was an overseer of Harvard College, 1886-1897, and was formerly vice-president of the Massachusetts Historical Society. Mr. Coolidge married in Boston, in 1852, Hetty Sullivan Appleton, and of that union were born three daughters all now married and, one son. Address: 64 Ames Building, Boston.

COOLIDGE, Thomas Jefferson, Jr.:

Banker; born in Boston, March 16, 1863; son of Thomas Jefferson and Hetty Sullivan (Appleton) Coolidge. He was graduated from Harvard College with the degree of A.B. in the class of 1884, and has ever since been actively identified with financial enterprises. He established the Old Colony Trust Company in 1890, and was its president for some years, and is now chairman of its Board of Directors. He is also vice-president and director of the National Bank of Commerce; director and voting trustee of the Seaboard Air Line Railway. He is a director of the Georgia Railway and Electric Company, American Telegraph and Telephone Company, Edison Electric Illuminating Company, General Electric Company, and Boston Elevated Railroad Company. Mr. Coolidge is a member of the Somerset Club of Boston and of the Metropolitan and Knickerbocker Clubs of New York. He married in Brookline, Mass., Sept. 30, 1891, Clara Amory. Residence: Magnolia, Mass. Office address: The Old Colony Trust Company, Boston.

COOLIDGE, William Henry:

Lawyer; born at Natick, Mass., Feb. 23, 1859; son of William L. and Sarah Isabella (Washburn) Coolidge. He was graduated from Harvard, A.B., 1881, subsequently studied for a time in the Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar in 1885. He has since practised in Boston, where he is one of the leading corporation attorneys, having been connected with many large companies, among which are the United States Coal and Oil Company, the United States Smelting Refining and Mining Company, the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Company, the Boston and Maine Railroad, etc. He is identified with the Republican party, but has not entered actively into politics. He married, at Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 3, 1887, May Humphreys.

Residence: Newton Center, Mass. Office: COOPER, Allen Foster:
50 Congress Street, Boston.

COOMBS, William Jerome:

Merchant, banker; born at Jordan, Onondago County, N. Y., Dec. 24, 1833; son of Charles Coombs, soldier of the war of 1812, and Mary (Wooleaver) Coombs. He was educated at Jordan Academy, and upon his graduation, when thirteen and a half years old, was denied admission to Union College, on account of insufficient age. He was engaged in exporting American manufactured products for forty years, as member of the firm of Joseph H. Adams and Coombs, 1856-1870, and of Coombs, Crosby and Eddy, 1870-1895, these firms being pioneers in introducing American manufactured goods abroad. He was president of the Manufacturers' Trust Company, 1896-1903, and has been chairman of the Advisory Board of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company (Manufacturers' Branch), since 1903, president of the South Brooklyn Savings Bank since 1904. Mr. Coombs is a Democrat in politics and was a member of the Fifty-second and Fifty-third Congresses, 1891-1895. He was appointed by President Cleveland, Government director of the Union Pacific Railroad, with special commission to devise a plan for collecting the debt of $124,000,000 due the Government from the various Pacific railroads, continued the work under President McKinley by his special request, and supervised the collection of the entire amount. He has been a trustee of the Brooklyn Institute, since 1888; is a trustee of the Brooklyn Art Association, and is also treasurer of the Brooklyn Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. Mr. Coombs finds his most favored recreation in fishing. He is president of the Commonwealth Club, and a member of the Reform and Municipal Art Clubs of New York City, and the Hamilton Club of Brooklyn. Mr. Coombs married, in 1856, Josephine Adams, of Brooklyn, and they have three children surviving, William H. Coombs, Jerome W. Coombs and Mary C. Fox. Residence: 63 South Portland Avenue. Address: 160 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Lawyer and congressman; born on a farm in Franklin Township, Fayette County, Pa., June 16, 1862. He was educated in the public school of his native township, in the State Normal School at California and Lockhaven, Pa., and at Mount Union College, Ohio. He was graduated from the State Normal School at California, Pa., in the class of 1882, and then taught school for six years. Deciding upon the profession of law, he entered the Law Department of the University of Michigan, and was graduated from that institution in the class of 1888. He was admitted to the Circuit Court of Washtenaw County, Michigan, and to the Supreme Court of the State of Michigan before his graduation from the law school. After completing his law course in the University of Michigan he returned to Fayette County, Pa., and was admitted to the bar of that county, Dec. 4, 1888. On Jan. 1, 1889, he formed a law partnership at Uniontown, Pa., with his classmate, J. Q. Van Swearingen, which still exists. Mr. Cooper is a member of the Bar of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania; of the District Circuit Courts of the United States for the western district of Pennsylvania, and of the Supreme Court of the United States. He was elected as a Republican in 1902 from the Twenty-third Pennsylvania District to the Fifty-eighth Congress and reelected in 1904 to the Fifty-ninth Congress, and in 1906 to the Sixtieth Congress. Address: Uniontown, Pa.

COOPER, Drury W.:

Lawyer; born in New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 7, 1872; son of Rev. Jacob Cooper, D. D., LL.D., and Mary (Linn) Cooper. He was graduated from Rutgers College A.B., (Phi Beta Kappa), 1892, and from New York Law School, LL.B., 1894, and since then has practised law in New York City, giving special attention to litigations over patents trade marks and copyrights. He is a director of the International Time Recording Company, the Bundy Manufacturing Company, Pike Adding Machine Company and the General Pump Appliance Company. He is a Republican in politics and was mayor of New Brunswick, N. J., 1906-1907. He is a member of the American Bar Association, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and the Phi Beta Kappa Alumni of New York; a trustee of Rutgers College, and of the Francis E. Parker Memorial Home; member of the Delta Phi fraternity and of the University and Lawyers Clubs of New York City. He married in New Brunswick, N. J., June 15, 1898, Esther Stevenson Nicholas, and they have three daughters and two sons. Residence: New Brunswick, N. J. Office: 149 Broadway, New York City.

COOPER, Henry Allen:

Lawyer and congressman; born at Spring Prairie, Walworth County, Wis., Sept. 8, 1850. He was graduated from Northwestern University in 1873, and from the Union College of Law in Chicago, in 1875. He is by profession a lawyer and in 1880 was elected district attorney of Racine County, and was reelected without opposition in 1882-1884. Mr. Cooper was a member of the Board of Education of the City of Racine from 1886 to 1887; and was a member of the State Senate from 1887 to 1889. He was elected in 1892 from the First Wisconsin District to the Fifty-third Congress, has since been biennially reelected, and is now serving in the Sixtieth Congress. Address: Racine, Wis.

COOPER, Henry Ernest:

President Board of Regents, College of Hawaii, first Secretary of the Territory of Hawaii; born in New Albany, Ind., Aug. 28, 1857. He was graduated from the Boston University Law School, LL.B., 1878, and was admitted to the bar of Suffolk County, Mass. In 1890, he located in Honolulu and was chosen Chairman of the Committee of Safety of the Hawaiian Revolution on Jan. 14, 1893, and on Jan. 17, read the proclamation abrogating monarchial government in the Hawaiian Islands and establishing a provisional government. He was a member of the Advisory Council of the Provisional Government and was Judge of the Circuit Court of the first circuit of the Hawaiian Islands, 1893-1895. Under the Republic of Hawaii he was Premier of the Cabinet holding the Portfolio of Minister of Foreign Affairs, 1895-1899. He was acting President of the Republic for two periods. He was appointed Secretary of the Territory, June 14, 1900. He is now retired from public service and is practising law. Mr. Cooper married in San Diego, Calif., 1883, Mary E. Porter.

COOPER, Sam Bronson:

Congressman and lawyer; born in Caldwell County, Ky., May 30, 1850; son of Archibald Hunter and Elizabeth (Frazer) Cooper. He removed with his parents to Texas in 1850, and located at Woodville, the county seat of Tyler County, where his father died in 1853. He was educated in the local school of Woodville, and at the age of sixteen he became a clerk in the country store of his grandfather at that place. While so occupied he began the study of law, and later studied in the office of Hon. Perry Nicks, a prominent lawyer of that place, and was admitted to the bar in the District Court of Tyler County in 1872 and became a member of the law firm of Nicks, Hobby and Cooper. He was elected County Attorney of Tyler County in 1876, serving until 1880, in which year he was elected to the State Senate of Texas, serving from 1881 to 1885, and being for one term president pro tem of that body. He was appointed in 1885, by President Cleveland, collector of internal revenue for the First District of Texas, serving until 1889. He was elected in 1892, and reelected biennially until 1902, as a member of Congress from the Second District of Texas, and served in the Fifty-third, Fifty-fourth, Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh and Fifty-eighth Congresses, and in 1906 was elected to the Sixtieth Congress, from the same district, serving until March 3, 1909. Mr. Cooper is prominent in the councils of the Democratic Party of Texas, was chairman of the State Democratic Convention of Texas in 1904, and was chairman of the Texas delegation to the National Democratic Convention at Kansas City in 1900. He resides at Beaumont, where he is a leader at the bar and prominently identified with many important enterprises of that city and of Southeast Texas generally. He is a Mason, Odd Fellow, Knight of Pythias and Elk. Mr. Cooper married at Woodville, Texas, Oct. 15, 1873, Phebe Young, and they have four children. Address: Beaumont, Texas.

COOPER, William Albert:

Photographer of paintings and interiors; born in London, Ontario, Aug. 27, 1843. He was educated in the Union School of that city, studied photography and practised it in various parts of Ontario, including Toronto, and finished his Canadian career at St. Thomas, Ont. Mr. Cooper studied the carbon process in London, England, and assisted Lambert to introduce it into America in 1876; studied photo-mechanical printing with Obernetter in Munich, and introduced the Artotype process into the United States; studied with Guillaume, in Paris, and in 1889 brought the half-tone process to America, and established it in Chicago. In 1892 he took up research work in the reproduction of paintings with color values, and in 1894 opened a studio in New York City, which he has since maintained, and where he has since reproduced many of the most important private galleries in this country, including those of P. A. B. Widener and the late W. L. Elkins, of Philadelphia, Mrs. Jack Gardner, of Boston, Sir William Van Horne of Montreal and the Vanderbilt collection of New York City, besides many others. Mr. Cooper has also taken up the work of interior photography, and has photographed many of the finest homes. He is a member of the Canadian Club of New York, and honorary president of the London Old Boys' Association of Greater New York. Address: 106 East 23d Street, New York City.

COQUILLETT, Daniel William:

Entomologist; born near Woodstock, Ill., Jan. 23, 1856; son of F. M. L. and Sarah A. (Cokelet) Coquillet. He was educated in public schools and studied special subjects at home. He inaugurated and perfected the hydrocyanic acid gas treatment for the extermination of destructive insects on trees, etc. He had charge of the lady-birds which were introduced into California from Australia by the United States Division of Entomology; later these lady-birds and their progeny freed the trees and shrubs of the destructive white or cottony cushion scale. He was assistant State entomologist of Illinois; field agent of the United States Division of Entomology; assistant entomologist of the United States Division of Entomology and is custodian of the Diptera of the United States National Museum. He is author of about one hundred and forty pamphlets and articles, chiefly technical, the greater number treating of the classification and description of the Diptera, and has described over 1,100 new species in this order. He is charter member of the Washington Academy of Sciences, and Entomological Society of America; fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and was president of the Entomological Society of Washington in 1903 and 1904. He married in Washington, D. C., Feb. 18, 1896. Address: United States National Museum, Washington, D. C.

CORBIN, Austin:

Banker; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., April 12, 1873; son of Austin and Hannah M. (Wheeler) Corbin. He was educated at the Cutler and Westminster Schools, and was graduated from Harvard in 1896, as A.B. eum laude. He entered business on the death of his father in 1896, as partner in the Corbin Banking Company house; and he is executor of the estate of Austin Corbin. Mr. Corbin is president of the Rockaway Park Improvement; president of the Manhattan Beach Estates, and treasurer of the New England Mortgage Security Company. He is a member of the University, Lambs', Harvard, New York Athletic, of New York City; and the Somerset Club of Boston. Residence: 76 Park Avenue, New York City; Blue Mountain Farm, Newport, N. H., and Northport, L. I. Address: 192 Broadway, New York City.

CORBIN, Henry Clarke:

Lieutenant-general of the United States Army; born in Clermont County, Ohio. He passed his boyhood on the home farm, attended the common schools and an academy and pursued legal studies in 1860 and 1861. In 1862, at the age of nineteen, he was commissioned as second lieutenant in the Seventy-ninth Regiment of Ohio Volunteers, and he served with the Army of the Cumberland until the close of the war, and passed through all intermediate ranks in the volunteer service until he became colonel and brevet brigadier-general of volunteers. After he was mustered out of the volunteer service, he entered the regular army as second lieutenant of the Seventeenth United States Infantry in May, 1866. He was promoted to captain in 1867 and for ten years he served on the plains and the frontier. In March, 1877, he was detailed for duty at the Executive Mansion in Washington, and he served as secretary of the Sitting Bull Commission. He was with President Garfield at the time he was shot and at his bedside at Elberon, where he died. He was appointed, in 1880, major and assistant adjutant-general, and was made adjutant-general Feb. 25, 1898. In recognition of his services, and the part he took in the war with Spain, Congress conferred upon him the rank of major-general, and in 1906 he was promoted lieutenant-general, and retired April 15, 1908, by the operation of law. He served as adjutant-general, with the rank of major-general, during the latter part of his service. He married in Washington, Nov. 6, 1901, Edythe Agnes Patten. Residence: Highland, Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C.

CORBIN, John:

Writer; born in Chicago, May 2, 1870; son of Calvin Rich and Caroline Elizabeth (Fairfield) Corbin. Education, Ogden Grammar and North Division High School of Chicago; Harvard, A.B., 1892, A.M., 1893, with honors in English; Balliol College Oxford, 1894-1895. Editor of Outing, 1893-1894. Instructor in English at Harvard, 1895-1896; assistant editor of Harper's Magazine, 1897-1900; on the editorial staff of the Encyclopædia Britannica, London, 1900-1902; dramatic critic of Harper's Weekly, 1898-1900, of the New York Times, 1902-1905, and of the New York Sun, 1905-1908; and is now literary manager of The New Theatre, New York City. Besides magazine stories and articles on education and the drama, Mr. Corbin is author of the books: The Elizabethan Hamlet, 1895; Schoolboy Life in England, 1898; An American at Oxford, 1902; A New Portrait of Shakespeare, 1903; The First Loves of Perilla (novelette), 1904; The Cave Man (novel), 1907; Which College for the boy?, 1908. He is a member of the Harvard University and Players' Clubs of New York. He married in New York City, in 1899, Amy Foster. Residence: 131 East 15th Street, New York City.

CORBUSIER, William Henry:

Surgeon, ethnologist; born in New York City, April 10, 1844; son of William Morrison and Mahala (Myers) Corbusier. After completing his general education in the public and private schools, he entered Bellevue Hospital Medical College, from which he was graduated as M.D. in 1867. he served in the field as acting assistant surgeon, U. S. A., during the Civil War, May 30, 1864, to June 14, 1865; was acting assistant surgeon, U. S. A., Aug. 19, 1867, to Dec. 16, 1868, and July 17, 1869, to May 30, 1875; and was surgeon to the Rio Verde Indian Agency, Arizona, serving from 1873 to 1875. He was commissioned first lieutenant and assistant surgeon, U. S. A., Aug. 5, 1876; captain, Aug. 5, 1881; major and surgeon, Oct. 17, 1895; lieutenant-colonel and deputy surgeon-general, April 26, 1904. He has served at many frontier posts; was inspector of annuities, Rio Verde Indian Agency, Ariz., Feb., 1874; Pine-Ridge Indian Agency, Dakota, 1878 to 1880; Fort Washakie, Wyo., Oct., 1880. He served in the field against hostile Apache tribes at various times in 1874, 1875 and 1885; was acting medical purveyor of the expedition to the Philippine Islands, May 17, 1898, to April 30, 1900; chief surgeon, Department of Mindanao, Philippine Islands, 1903-1905; chief surgeon Department of The Columbia from 1906 to 1908; retired from active service April 10, 1908, having reached the age limit. He has made a study of the sign language of the North American Indians, of the dialects of the Mojave, the Apache-Yuma and Apache-Mojave Indians, and discovered several Winter-Counts — or Calendars — among the Dakota Indians. He contributed the results of his labors to the Annual Reports of the Bureau of Ethnology, 1879-1880, 1882-1883 and 1888-1889; the Zeitschrift für Ethnologie, Berlin, 1883 and 1892, and the American Antiquarian, Sept. and Nov., 1886. Dr. Corbusier is a member of the Empire State Society of Sons of the American Revolution, the Society of the War of 1812 of Pennsylvania, Society of Colonial Wars of New York, National Society of the Army of the Philippines, Military Order of Moro Campaigns, American Flag Association and the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States. He married at Amite City, La., March 22, 1869, Fanny Dunbar, and they have five children. Address: 612 Park Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

COREY, Fred Brainard:

Mechanical and electrical engineer; born in Homer, N. Y., Sept. 28, 1869; son of David Brainard and Francis M. (Benedict) Corey. He was educated in Homer Academy and Cornell University, being graduated with the degree of M. E., 1892. He has held various positions in mechanical and electrical engineering and is now Engineer of Railway Signals to the General Electric Company. Mr. Corey has been granted about seventy United States patents on inventions, mostly relating to railway safety appliances, and is author of many technical papers. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Association for the Advancement of Science, and the Railway Signal Association. He is a member of the Schenectady Board of Trade, the Empire

State Society of Sons of the American Revolution, the Cornell Alumni Association, Mohawk and Hudson River Humane Society, State Charities Aid Association, Schenectady Charities Association, Young Men's Christian Association and the Mohawk and Mohawk Golf Clubs of Schenectady, N. Y. Mr. Corey married, in Homer, N. Y., May 23, 1894, Caroline Louise Heberd, and they have two sons. Residence: Glenwood Boulevard. Office: General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

COREY, William Ellis:

President of the United States Steel Corporation; born in Pennsylvania in 1866. At sixteen years of age he was in the chemical laboratory of the Edgar Thomson Steel Works at Pittsburg, and studied at home. He was superintendent of the plate mill at the Edgar Thomson works of Carnegie Brothers & Company, Pittsburg, 1887. He invented the Carnegie reformed armor plate. Mr. Corey succeeded Charles M. Schwab as president of the Carnegie Steel Company, and in 1903 as president and director of the United States Steel Corporation, in which position he still continues. He is also director of the Carnegie Steel Company, the Elgin, Joliet and Eastern Railway Company, the Federal Steel Company, the National Tube Company, and Shelby Steel Trust Company, and the United States Steel Products Export Company. He is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. Residence: 2 East Forty-fifth Street. Office: 71 Broadway, New York City.

CORLETT, William Thomas:

Physician; born in Orange, Ohio, April 15, 1854; son of William and Ann (Avery) Corlett. He was educated at Oberlin College, the Medical Department of Wooster University, M.D., 1877, and various hospitals and medical schools of London. He also studied in Paris, and in 1881 received the diploma of the Royal College of Physicians of London. Since 1884 he has been professor of diseases of the skin in Western Reserve University, of Ohio. He is a fellow of the Royal Society of Medicine, of London, and was a member of the 11th International Medical Congress, Rome, 1894; American Public Health Association, Mexico City, 1893; International Congress of Dermatology, London, 1896, and New York, 1907; is a member of the American Dermatological Association, its president in 1906, American Medical Association; and the Cleveland Academy of Medicine. He is one of the leading specialists in the United States in diseases of the skin and kindred subjects, and is author of Treatise on The Acute Infectious Exanthemata, 1901; also of chapters in various systems and text-books. He has also contributed extensively to medical journals and society proceedings, American and foreign. He has traveled widely and is the author of The American Tropics, 1908. Prof. Corlett married at Rheinpfalz, Germany, June 26, 1895, Amanda Marie Leisy, and has three daughters and two sons. Address: 1935 Euclid Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

CORLISS, Guy Carleton Haynes:

Jurist; born at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., July 4, 1858; son of Cyrus K. and Clarinda M. C. Corliss. He was educated in common and high schools, and was graduated from the latter in 1873. He afterward studied law, went West and engaged in practice at Grand Forks, N. Dak., until elected, in 1889, chief justice of the Supreme Court of North Dakota, in which office he served until 1898, when he returned to the practice of law. When the North Dakota Law School was established as the law department of the University of North Dakota, in 1899, Judge Corliss was elected its first dean. He is a contributor to various legal publications. Address: Grand Forks, N. Dak.

CORLISS, John Blaisdell:

Lawyer; born at Richfort, Vt., June 7, 1851; son of Hezekiah Corliss and Lydia (Rounds) Corliss. He was graduated from the Vermont Methodist University in 1871, and subsequently registered as a law student in Columbia University, Washington, D. C., where he took the degree of LL.B.

in 1875. He was admitted to the bar the same year and commenced to practice in Detroit, Mich. In 1881 he was elected city attorney, which office he held for four years. He has several times been chosen by the Republican party to act as a member of important committees, and the distinction of having framed the first complete charter of the City of Detroit, still in use, is his. In 1895 he was elected to the United States House of Representatives, and served during the Fifty-fourth, Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, and Fifty-seventh Congresses. Address: Detroit, Mich.

CORN, Samuel Thompson:

Jurist; born at Nicholasville, Jessamine County, Ky., Oct. 8, 1840; son of Ellis Corn. After a thorough preparatory education he entered Princeton University, from which he was graduated as A.B. in the class of 1860. After leaving college he studied law, was admitted to the bar of Illinois and practised law at Carlinville, Macoupin County, Ill., until 1886, when he was appointed by President Cleveland as one of the justices of the Supreme Court of the Territory of Wyoming, which office he retained until Wyoming assumed Statehood in 1890. He engaged in the practice of law from 1890 until 1896, at Evanston, Uinta County, Wyo., and in the latter year was elected one of the justices of the Supreme Court of the State of Wyoming, in which office he served until 1904, and during the last year of his term he was chief justice of that court. Since the expiration of his term he has been engaged in practice at Cheyenne, Wyo. He married at Carlinville, Ill., in 1876, Emma Blackburn. Address: Cheyenne, Wyo.

CORNELIUS, Mary Ann:

Author and philanthropist; born in Pontiac, Mich., Sept. 25, 1827; daughter of Lewis Whiting and Elirra (Bagley) Mann. She was educated in the schools of her native State, where she married in 1850, Samuel Cornelius, D.D. (now deceased). Her birth, training and associations brought her into acquaintance with many distinguished personages, and one of her most treasured memories is that of having recited an original poem at one of Wendell Phillips' lectures in Cooper Institute. Her life and writings have been devoted to philanthropy and social uplift, and she has established in her home in Tacoma, Wash., a free reading room and free circulating library for the young. She is author of: Little Wolf (for the promotion of temperance), 1880; Uncle Nathan's Farm (for the promotion of tolerance), 1887; The White Flame (to emphasize God's Love), 1900; Why? or A Kansas Girl's Query (dedicated to the patrons of her free reading room), 1905. She has held the positions of State president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Arkansas, director in the Topeka Humane Society and in the Tacoma Humane Society. She was appointed a member of the Advisory Council of the Woman's Branch of the World's Congress Auxiliary on the Baptist Church and the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at World's Columbian Exposition, Chicago, 1893. Address: 2915 South Twelfth Street, Tacoma, Wash.

CORNING, Charles Robert:

Jurist; born at Concord, N. H., Dec. 20, 1855; son of Robert Nesmith Corning. He received his preparatory education at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and studied law at Harvard Law School and in offices at Concord, N. H., then being admitted to the New Hampshire bar; and he later received the degree of A.M. from Dartmouth College in 1885. Mr. Corning is a Republican in politics, and has filled various important elective and appointive offices, becoming a representative to the General Court of New Hampshire from 1878 to 1883, and State senator from the Concord District in 1889. During the Benjamin Harrison administration, from 1889 to 1893, he was an assistant attorney in the Department of Justice at Washington, D. C., and after that engaged in the general law practice at Concord, N. H. He was appointed by the governor and council of New Hampshire, June 19, 1899, judge of probate for the County of Merrimack, in which office he is now serving. He was also elected in 1903 mayor of Concord for the term expiring 1907. Judge Corning has written many articles and various monographs on historical and biographical subjects, and was one of the editors of, and a contributor to, The History of Concord, New Hampshire, and he is corresponding secretary of the New Hampshire Historical Society. He is also author of a volume, Aalesund to Tetuan, published in 1888. Judge Corning is a bachelor, and is a member of the University Club of Concord. Address: Concord, N. H.

CORNING, James Leonard:

Physician, neurologist; born in Stamford, Conn., Aug. 28, 1855; son of Rev. James Leonard Corning. He was educated in the Riverview Military Academy at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and at the Universities of Heidelberg and Würzburg, Germany, receiving from the latter his M.D. degree, and afterward received from Williams College the honorary degrees of A.M. and LL.D. Dr. Corning, who has been engaged in practice in New York City from graduation, has attained special distinction in the domain of neuro-pathology and neuro-therapeutics, in which he has made many important investigations and discoveries, including the original discovery of spinal anæsthesia in 1885; and he has held many hospital appointments as consulting neurologist. Dr. Corning is author of: Carotid Compression, 1882; Brain Rest, 1883; Brain Exhaustion, 1884; Local Anæsthesia, 1886; Hysteria and Epilepsy, 1888; Headache and Neuralgia, 1888; Pain in its Neuro-Pathological and Neuro-Therapeutic Relations, 1894; and many other contributions to medical literature in his specialties; and is author of a romance, The Princess Ahmedee, 1900, published under the pen-name of Roland Champion. Dr. Corning is a member of the New York State Medical Society, New York Academy of Medicine, New York Neurological Society, Medical Society of the County of New York, and Medical Society of the Greater City of New York. He married in Morristown, N. J., May 1, 1883, Julia Crane. Address: 53 West 38th Street, New York City.

CORNMAN, Daniel:

Colonel Seventh U. S. Infantry; born in Carlisle, Pa., Feb. 8, 1852; son of Ephraim and Barbara (Shram) Cornman. He was graduated from the high school of Carlisle, Pa., and from the United States Military Academy, class of 1873, served in the Twenty-first Infantry until 1899, the First Infantry, 1899-1907, and was commissioned lieutenant-colonel Oct. 4, 1901, and commissioned colonel commanding the Seventh Infantry, Aug. 8, 1903. He served on the frontier in Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Oregon and Utah for fifteen years, engaged in the Nez Percés, Shoshone and Sioux Wars, commanded a battalion of the Twenty-first Infantry in the battle of San Juan, Cuba, and the fights around Santiago, in the campaign against the insurgent Filipinos, 1900-1902. He is a member of the Society of Indian Wars, Society of the Spanish War, and Society of the Filipino War. He married in Boise, Idaho, Oct. 5, 1877, Julia Leighton, of Lowell, Mass., and they have two sons. Address: Care of Adjutant-General, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C.

CORSON, Dighton:

Jurist. He was educated at the Waterville Academy, Waterville, Me., and afterward read law in offices at Bangor, Me., where he was admitted to the bar. He went West to Wisconsin, and was engaged in practice for some years at Milwaukee, and was district attorney for Milwaukee County for two years and also served in the Legislature of Wisconsin. Thence he went to Virginia City, Nev., and practised law, and he was district attorney of Storey County, Nev., for five years during the bonanza period. Since 1877 he has been a citizen of Deadwood, S. Dak., where he was engaged in the practice of law until 1889. He was a member of the two Constitutional Conventions held in 1885 and 1889, and in the latter year was elected one of the judges of the Supreme Court of South Dakota, in which office he has ever since continued, and he was for a time chief justice of that Court. Judge Corson is a Republican. He still has his legal residence at Deadwood. Official address: Pierre, S. Dak.

CORSON, Eugene Rollin:

Physician; born at Washington, D. C., July 20, 1855; son of Dr. Hiram and Caroline (Rollin) Corson. He was educated at St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., 1866-1871, at Cornell University, 1871-1875, and at the Southern Medical College, Atlanta, where he was graduated M.D., 1894. He has practised medicine in Savannah, Ga., since 1879. He has written many scientific papers, on the Negro, and on anatomical, surgical, and X-ray subjects. Dr. Corson has made three trips to Europe, Great Britain, Belgium, Germany, Austria, and Italy. He is a member of the Association of American Anatomists, American Electro-Therapeutic Association, Medical Association of Georgia, Georgia Medical Society, and the Chatham County Medical Society. He married at New Orleans, La., Sept. 4, 1894, Cora Wirt Baker, and they have three children. Address: 11 Jones Street, East Savannah, Ga.

CORSON, Hiram:

Educator; born in Philadelphia, Nov. 6, 1828; son of Joseph Dickinson and Ann Eliza (Hagey) Corson. His early education was private, and at the classical and mathematical school (Treemount Seminary) of the Rev. Dr. Aaron, Norristown, Pa., and the classical school of Rev. Dr. Anspach, Barren Hill, Pa. He was connected with the library of the Smithsonian Institution, at Washington, D. C., 1850-1856, there receiving a training in bibliography and in library management under Professor Charles C. Jewett. He taught Latin and English literature, in Washington, D. C., 1856-1859; was lecturer on English literature in Philadelphia, 1859-1865; professor of history and moral science, and vice-president, at Girard College, 1865-1866; professor of Anglo-Saxon, English literature and rhetoric, St. John's College, Annapolis, 1866-1870; professor of English literature, 1870-1903, and professor emeritus since 1903, at Cornell University; appointed lecturer on English literature at the Johns Hopkins University, for the winter terms of 1883, 1884 and 1885; pensioned by the Carnegie Foundation, June, 1906. He received from Princeton the honorary degree of A.M., 1864, and Litt.D., 1903, and LL.D. from St. John's College, 1878. He is author of a large number of works on English literature, and other subjects. He has taken the lead, in this country, in Browning study. Professor Corson married, Sept. 13, 1854, Caroline Rollin (born Paris, France, Dec. 29, 1828, died May 21, 1901), and has one son, Dr. Eugene Rollin Corson. Address: Cascadilla Cottage, Ithaca, N. Y.

CORTEYOU, George Bruce:

President, Consolidated Gas Co., of New York, former secretary of the Treasury of the United States; born in New York City, July 26, 1862. He was graduated from the Hempstead Institute, Hempstead, L. I., 1879, from the State Normal School at Westfield, Mass., in 1882; from the Law Department of Georgetown University as LL.B. in 1895 and from the Columbia (now George Washington) University, as LL.M. in 1896; and received the degree of LL.D. from Georgetown University in 1903, and from the University of Illinois and the Kentucky Wesleyan University. Mr. Cortelyou engaged as a general law and verbatim reporter in New York City, in 1883; was principal of preparatory schools in New York, from 1885 to 1889. He entered public service in 1889, and has been private secretary to various public officials, among them postoffice inspector in charge at New York City, surveyor of the Port of New York and fourth assistant postmaster-general. He was appointed in Nov., 1895, stenographer to President Cleveland, became executive clerk, Feb., 1896; assistant secretary to President McKinley, July 1, 1898; secretary to the President, April 13, 1900. He was reappointed March 15, 1901, by President McKinley, and on Sept. 16, 1901, was reappointed by President Roosevelt. Mr. Cortelyou was appointed secretary of the newly established Department of Commerce and Labor, Feb. 16, 1903, and confirmed the same day. He was elected, June 23, 1904, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and conducted the campaign which resulted in the election of President Roosevelt. He entered the new Cabinet, March 7, 1905, as postmaster-general, and on the retirement of Hon. Leslie M. Shaw in March, 1907, became secretary of the Treasury, serving until the close of the Roosevelt administration, March 4, 1909. Mr. Cortelyou married in 1888, Lily Morris Hinds, daughter of Dr. Ephraim Hinds, president of the Hempstead Institute. Address: 4 Irving Place, New York City.

CORTHELL, Elmer Lawrence:

Civil engineer; born at South Abington (now Whitman), Mass., Sept. 30, 1840; son of James Lawrence and Mary (Gurney) Corthell. He was educated at South Abington High School, and Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., from which he was graduated in 1858. He entered Brown University in 1859, but was absent from 1861 to 1865, in the Civil War. He returned to Brown in 1865 and was graduated A.B., with Phi Beta Kappa honor, in 1867, also receiving his A.M. 1868, and the honorary degree of Sc.D., 1894. Mr. Corthell served in the Union Army in the Civil War in the First Regiment of Rhode Island Artillery as private to captain of Battery D, serving in Virginia and North Carolina, and was mustered out at the end of the war in 1865. On graduation in 1867, he engaged as a civil engineer at Providence, R. I. He became assistant engineer of the Hannibal and Naples Railroad in Illinois in 1868; division engineer in the location and construction of the Hannibal and Central Missouri Railroad, 1869; chief assistant engineer in construction of the bridge over the Mississippi at Hannibal, Mo., 1870-1871; chief engineer of Sny Island Levee, on the east bank of the Mississippi River, in Illinois, 1871-1874. He was chief engineer of construction of the bridge over the Mississippi at Louisiana, Mo., for the Chicago and Alton Railway, 1873-1874; was in charge for Captain James B. Eads of the engineering and construction of jetties at the mouth of the Mississippi, 1875-1879; associated with Captain Eads in surveys for the ship railway of the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, 1880-1881. Mr. Corthell was chief engineer in the construction of the New York, West Shore and Buffalo Railway, and the New York, Ontario and Western Railway, and their terminals at New York City, 1881-1884; as engineer in building steel railway bridges over the Mississippi, Missouri, Ohio and other rivers, 1887-1889; chief engineer of the jetties at the mouth of the Brazos River in Texas, and in the building of the Merchants' Bridge over the Mississippi River at St. Louis; and consulting engineer of waterways, railways, etc., until 1894. He spent some years in Europe, and from 1900 to 1902 was consulting engineer for national public works for the Argentine Government. He was appointed in Feb., 1904, by the governor of New York State, and was a member of the Advisory Board of Consulting Engineers to build the barge canals of the State, to cost over $100,000,000; and is also consulting engineer of the Cape Cod Ship Canal to shorten the distance between New York and Boston. He is a member of the Advisory Board of the Trans-Alaska Siberian Railway; and consulting engineer in charge of the construction of a modern port at Para, Brazil, at the mouth of the Amazon, and chief engineer of the Port of Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil. Mr. Corthell is a Republican in politics and a Baptist in his religious affiliation. Mr. Corthell was chairman of a committee of the International Engineering Congress at Chicago, in 1893; United States delegate to and vice-president of the International Navigation Congress at Brussels, 1898; delegate of the Argentine Government to the International Navigation Congress at Dusseldorf in 1902; United States Government member of the Permanent Commission of the International Navigation Congress. He is a member and ex-vice-president of the American Society of Civil Engineers; member and ex-president of the Western Society of Engineers, Chicago; member of the Institution of Civil Engineers of Great Britain, the French Society of Civil Engineers (of which he is also a corresponding member), the Mexican Association of Civil Engineers, the Boston Society of Civil Engineers. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; member of the American Geographical Society, National Geographic Society; fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, London; a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, Society of the Sigma Xi, Grand Army of the Republic, the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, the Sons of the American Revolution, New England Society in New York, Society of the Army of the Potomac. Mr. Corthell is author of: The History of the Mississippi Jetties, 1880; Report of the Brussels Navigation Congress, 1898; Maritime Commerce, Past, Present and Future, 1898; Some Ports of the World (Paris Navigation Congress), 1901; Increase in Dimensions of Vessels (Milan Navigation Congress), 1905; also articles in Johnson's Cyclopedia and the Encyclopedia Americana on engineering subjects, as well as many papers contributed to technical magazines and the proceedings of learned societies. Mr. Corthell married at Providence, R. I., in 1870, Emily Theodate Davis, who died in 1884, leaving two children: Alice (now Mrs. Edward S. Dewey, of Guadalajara, Mexico), and Howard Lawrence Corthell, civil engineer (born in 1876). Mr. Corthell again married, in 1900, Marie Kuehler, of Berne, Switzerland. Address: 1 Nassau Street, New York City.

CORWIN, Edward Tanjore:

Clergyman; born in New York City, July 12, 1834; son of Edward Caldwell and Mary Ann (Shuart) Corwin. He was graduated from the College of the City of New York, A.B., 1853 and A.M. in 1856, and from New Brunswick Theological Seminary in 1856; and he received the degree of D.D. from Rutgers College, 1872. He was settled over the Reformed Church of Paramus, N. J., 1857-1863; over the Reformed Church of Millstone, N. J., 1863-1888; and was rector of Hertzog Theological Hall, New Brunswick, N. J., 1888-1895; over Reformed Church of Greenport (Columbia County), N. Y., 1895-1897; agent of General Synod of the Reformed Church in America to collect historical data in Holland, relating to the colonial churches, 1897-1898; was editor of Ecclesiastical Records of the State of New York, six volumes, published by the Legislature, 1900-1907. He was president of the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America in 1891; temporary instructor in Hebrew and Greek exegesis, in New Brunswick Theological Seminary, 1883-1884 and occasionally from 1889 to 1892. He is author of: Manual of Reformed Church in America, first edition in 1859; and fourth edition in 1902; History of Reformed Church in America, in American Church History Series, volume VIII; Digest of Constitutional and Synodical Legislation of Reformed Church in America in 1906; Corwin Genealogy, 1872, and numerous articles in encyclopedias, etc. He visited Great Britain, France, Switzerland, Germany, and Holland in 1887; and was collecting historical documents in Holland, in 1897 and 1898. He is a Republican in politics. He is a charter member of the American Church History Society and of the American Historical Association. Dr. Corwin married in Geneva, N. Y., July 25, 1861, Mary Esther Kipp, and they have two children. Address: North Branch, N. J.

COSGRAVE, John O'Hara:

Editor of Everybody's Magazine; born in Melbourne, Australia, July 11, 1866. He was educated in the Church of England Grammar School of Auckland, New Zealand, and in the Auckland College and Grammar School. He went to California in San Francisco; was a reporter on the San Francisco Call, 1887-1890; and editor and publisher of The Wave, San Francisco, 1890-1900. He was managing editor of Everybody's Magazine under the Doubleday, Page & Co. regime, 1901-1903, and has been editor of the same magazine through its remarkable career of success since its purchase by The Ridgway Company in 1903. Mr. Cosgrave is a member of the Atlantic Yacht and The Players Clubs of New York City and the St. Botolph's Club of Boston.

He married in Boston in 1906, Marguerite Rielle Scott. Residence: 51 East 30th Street. Office: 31 East 17th Street, New York City.

COSGROVE, Henry:

Catholic bishop of Davenport; born at Williamsport, Lycoming County, Pa., in 1834; son of John and Bridget Cosgrove. He removed with his parents to Dubuque, Iowa, in 1845 and was educated in parochial schools, afterward making his literary and divinity studies, and being ordained to the priesthood in 1857. He was appointed, the same year, assistant pastor of Saint Marguerite's Church at Davenport, Iowa, and became pastor of that Church in 1862. He was appointed vicar-general of the diocese of Davenport in 1882, and upon the death of Bishop McMullen he was appointed and consecrated his successor in 1884, and has since administered both the spiritual and financial affairs of the diocese having prospered exceedingly under Bishop Cosgrove's pastoral care. Address: Davenport, Iowa.

COSGROVE, Samuel G.:

Governor of Washington. He has long been active in the political affairs of the State of Washington as a Republican, and in 1908 was nominated and elected to the office of governor for the four-year term expiring in 1912. Address: Olympia, Wash.

COTTERAL, John H.:

Jurist. He was engaged in the practice of law in Oklahoma until appointed by President Roosevelt in 1907 to the office of judge of the United States District Court for the Western District of Oklahoma. Address: Guthrie, Okla.

COUDEN, Henry Noble:

Chaplain of the United States House of Representatives; born in Marshall County, Ind., Nov. 21, 1842. He served in the Union Army, from April, 1861 to July, 1863, and was honorably discharged by reason of a wound in a battle which destroyed the sight of both eyes. He was graduated from the State School for the Blind, Columbus, Ohio, after the war and the Divinity School, at St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., from which he received the degree of D.D. and was ordained a Universalist clergyman, November, 1878. Since 1895 he has been chaplain of the House of Representatives. He married, Jan. 26, 1886, Harriet Dunbar. Address: 1310 Columbia Road, Washington, D. C.

COUDERT, Frederic René:

Lawyer; born in New York City; son of the late Frederic René and Elizabeth (McCredy) Coudert. He was graduated from Columbia College in 1898. He is a member of the law firm of Coudert Brothers and a trustee of the Equitable Trust Company, the Chesebrough Manufacturing Company, a director of the Chesebrough Building Company, the McKiver Realty Trust Company and the Pacific Fire Insurance Company. Mr. Coudert is a member of the American Bar Association, the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and other professional associations. He is also a member of the Manhattan, University, Lawyers', Fencers' and New York Athletic Clubs, and the Century Association of New York City. Mr. Coudert married Alice T. Wilmerding. Residence: 124 East 56th Street. Office: 71 Broadway, New York City.

COUNCILMAN, William Thomas.

Physician; born in Pikesville, Md., Jan. 1, 1854. He was educated in St. John's College, Annapolis, Md., and was graduated from the medical department of the University of Maryland, later receiving the honorary degree of A.M. from Harvard and Johns Hopkins. Since 1892, he has been professor of pathology at the Harvard University Medical School, and is a member of the National Academy of Sciences; the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, etc., and is a fellow of the Philadelphia Academy of Medicine. He is also a member of the St. Botolph (Boston), and the Country (Brookline) Clubs. He has written monographs on dysentery, cerebro-spinal meningitis, diphtheria, smallpox, and other medical subjects. He married in Boston, 1894, Isabella Coolidge. Residence: 78 Bay State Road, Boston.

COUNSELMAN, Charles:

Banker and grain dealer; born in Chicago, Jan. 6, 1881; son of Charles and Jennie Elizabeth (Otis) Counselman. He received his education in the public schools of Chicago, at the Harvard School, Chicago, and the Hill School of Pottstown, Pa. He began business as a clerk in the employ of Counselman & Company, of Chicago, brokers in 1900, remaining with that concern four years. Since 1904 he has been vice-president of the Chicago Grain and Elevator Company, and since 1906 he has represented the New York banking firm of Risk & Robinson in the West, with headquarters at Chicago. Mr. Counselman is a member of the Chicago Athletic, Midlothian Country, Onwentsia and Mid-Day Clubs. Residence: 32 Bank Street. Office: Commercial National Bank Building, Chicago.

COURTNEY, Frederick:

Bishop; born in Plymouth, England, Jan. 5, 1837; son of Rev. Septimus Courtney, M.A., and Elizabeth (Wilshin) Courtney. He was educated at Christ's Hospital ("Blue Coat School") London; and King's College, A.K.C., and has received the honorary degrees of S.T.D., Racine College, Wis.; D.D., Kings College, Windsor, N. S.; LL.D. Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Que.; and D. C.L. Trinity College, Toronto. He was ordained to the ministry of the Church of England by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and became curate of Hadlow, Kent, 1864-1865; incumbent of Charles' Chapel, Plymouth, 1865-1870, St. Jude's Church, Glasgow, 1870-1876; assistant of St. Thomas' Church, New York City, 1876-1880; rector of St. James' Church, Chicago, 1880-1882, St. Paul's Church, Boston, 1882-1888; bishop of Nova Scotia, 1888-1904; rector of St. James Church, New York City since 1904. He was a representative of the Church of England in Canada, and of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the United States, at the Jubilee Meeting of the Australian

Board of Missions, Sydney, New South Wales, in 1900, and a member of the Lethbridge Conference. Sessions of 1888, 1897 and 1908. Bishop Courtney is a Director of the British Schools and Universities Club, and chaplain of the St. George's Society of New York; member of the National Geographic Society, and of the United Empire Club of London. Residence: 119 East 79th Street. Office: St. James' Church, 31 East 71st Street, New York City.

COUSE, Eanger Irving:

Artist; born in Saginaw, Mich., Sept. 3, 1866; son of M. S. and Mary J. (Price) Couse. He was educated in the schools of the National Academy of Design, New York, receiving two medals, and the Académie Julian, Paris, receiving prizes for drawing and composition and a medal for painting. He received the Shaw prize for black and white, and the Proctor prize for painting, from the Salmagundi Club; the First and Second Hallgarten prizes from the National Academy of Design; honorable mention from the Paris Exposition, 1900, and Pan American Exposition, 1901, and two medals from the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, 1904. He is an Associate National Academician of the National Academy of Design; member of the American Water Color Society, New York Water Color Club and Artists Fund Society. He has pictures in the permanent collections of the Omaha National Gallery, Museum of Smith College, Northampton, Mass., Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, and decorations in Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Harrisburg, Pa. Mr. Couse is a member of the Lotos Club, New York City. He married in Paris, France, Sept. 5, 1889, Virginia J. Walker, and they have one son. Address: 58 West 57th Street, New York City.

COUSINS, Robert J.:

Lawyer and ex-congressman; born in Cedar County, Iowa, in 1859. He was graduated at Cornell College, Iowa, in 1881, admitted to the bar in 1882, and has been engaged in the practice of law since that time. In 1886 he was elected to the Iowa Legislature, and was elected by the House of Representatives as one of the prosecutors for the Brown impeachment tried before the Senate during 1887. In 1888 he was elected prosecuting attorney and also presidential elector for the Fifth Congressional District. He was elected in 1892 from the Fifth Iowa District to the Fifty-third Congress, and was biennially reelected, terminating his service in the Sixtieth Congress, expiring in March, 1909. Address: Tipton, Iowa.

COVERT, John Cutler:

Consul, journalist; born at Norwich, Chesham, County, N. Y., Feb. 11, 1839; son of Jacob and Phebe (Cutler) Covert. He attended public schools but procured most of his education in a printing office and by private study; and he has specialized in the study of modern languages, so that, besides English, he speaks French, German, Italian and Spanish. He became an expert printer, but left the case for the editorial office, becoming editor of the Cleveland Leader. He also took an active part in Ohio politics as a Republican, and was twice elected a member of the Ohio Legislature. In July, 1897, he was appointed by President McKinley to his present post as consul of the United States at Lyons, France. Mr. Covert is a bibliophile and is a member and former president of the Rowfant Club of Cleveland, the membership of which includes the most prominent book-lovers of Cleveland and many other cities; and he was also president of the Cleveland Art Association. He is also a member of the principal literary clubs and associations of Lyons. Mr. Covert has written various contributions to magazine literature, and also wrote in 1896, a treatise on the silver question, which was widely distributed by the Republican National Committee. His earlier acquaintance with France was made in a pedestrian tour which he took during the Second Empire, an account of which he prepared in the form of a lecture which he delivered in all the principal American cities. He has also lectured in France, and has been decorated by the French government as Officier de l'Académie Française.

Mr. Covert married in Cleveland, in 1870, Amelia Agnes Dutcher. Residence: 72 Rue Vendome, Lyons, France. Consular office: 18 Place Tolozon, Lyons, France.

COVILLE, Frederick Vernon:

Botanist; born in Preston, N. Y., March 23, 1867; son of Joseph Addison and Lydia (More) Coville. He was graduated from Cornell University as A.B. in 1887, and was elected to the honorary societies of Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi. Mr. Coville was instructor in botany at Cornell, 1887-1888; assistant botanist to the Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., 1888-1893; was detailed as botanist of the Death Valley Expedition to California in 1890 and 1891; and has been botanist of the Department of Agriculture since 1893. Mr. Coville has also been curator of botany of the United States National Museum since 1893. He has traveled extensively on botanical investigations of the deserts and other remote portions of the Western United States, and in Alaska; and has made a special study of the economics of grazing on public lands. Mr. Coville is a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity, the Washington Academy of Sciences, Botanical Society of America, and many other societies, and of the Cosmos Club of Washington. He secured the foundation by the Carnegie Institution of the Desert Botanical Laboratory at Tucson, Ariz. He has published: Botany of the Death Valley Expedition; Our Public Grazing Lands; and many botanical papers. Mr. Coville married at Lockport, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1890, Elizabeth Harwood Boynton, and they have four children. Residence: 1836 California Street. Office: Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

COWHERD, William Strother:

Lawyer; born in Jackson County, Mo., Sept. 1, 1860; son of Charles J. and Emily S. Cowherd. He went to the public schools of Lee's Summit, Mo., whither his parents had moved, after which he entered the University of Missouri. He was graduated in 1881, with the degree of A.B., and the next year entered the law department, completing his course in 1882. He was admitted to the Missouri bar, and commenced to practice in Kansas City, where he has become prominent in his profession, and an influential member of the Democratic party. He has been assistant prosecuting attorney in Jackson County, first assistant city counselor of Kansas City, and in 1892 was elected mayor of Kansas City for a two-year term. In 1897 he was elected congressman from his district, and served by successive re-elections until 1905. Address: Kansas City, Mo.

COWIE, Thomas Jefferson:

Pay inspector U. S. Navy; appointed from Iowa as assistant paymaster June 16, 1880; passed assistant paymaster, Nov. 19, 1891; paymaster Sept. 11, 1895; pay inspector Jan. 5, 1903. He served on various duties in the Pay Department of the Navy and since Jan. 31, 1905, has been pay officer and general storekeeper at the Naval Academy. Pay Inspector Cowie is well known and highly esteemed in the service as the father and most efficient advocate of the new bill now pending in Congress, asking for a twenty per cent. increase in pay of the officers of the Navy, the present pay bill unrevised since the Civil War, being unquestionably inadequate under present-day conditions. Address: U. S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

COWLES, Alfred:

Lawyer; born in Chicago, Jan. 5, 1865; son of Aldred and Sarah Frances (Hutchinson) Cowles. He was prepared for his collegiate course at Harvard School, Chicago, and was graduated from Yale University in 1886 with the degree of A.B. He took the post-graduate course at Yale, 1886-1887, and attended the Yale Law School, 1887-1888, and then took a two years' course at the Northwestern College of Law at Chicago. He was admitted to the bar of the Supreme Court of Illinois in 1889, and has been in continuous practice except for the period from the fall of 1898 until the early part of 1901, during which period he was employed in the management of the Chicago Tribune; for most of the time as secretary and treasurer of the company. He is president of the Rialto Company, and a director of the Tribune Company, the Commercial National Bank, the Electric Smelting and Aluminum Company, the American Radiator Company, and several other corporations. He is a member of the Chicago, Calumet, University, Saddle and Cycle and Onwentsia Clubs. He married at South Manchester, Conn., Nov. 28, 1890, Elizabeth Cheney, now deceased, and has four sons. Residence: 1805 Michigan Avenue. Office: Postal Telegraph Building, Chicago.

COWLES, Eugene:

Operatic basso; born at Stanstead, Quebec, Canada; son of C. W. Cowles, M.D., and Hortense B. (Chase) Cowles. He was graduated from Stanstead College and from Canada went to Chicago, where he was employed for a number of years in the First National Bank of Chicago, singing at the same time in churches and concerts. He left the bank to join The Bostonians Opera Company, and was with them ten years, playing in many roles, the best known of which is Will Scarlett in Robin Hood. He has since sung with different stars and his own company in this country and abroad. He has composed several well known songs: Forgotten; The First Kiss, etc. Mr. Cowles is a Free Mason of the 32d-degree, and a Knight Templar, and is a member of the Lambs' Club of New York City. He married in New Jersey, May 23, 1898, Louise Therese Cleary. Address: Derby Line, Vt.

COWLES, James Lewis:

Economist and author; born in Farmington, Conn., Sept. 14, 1843; son of James and Jane (Lewis) Cowles. He was educated in Russel's Military School, New Haven, Conn., and at Yale, from which he was graduated, B.A., in 1866. He was a student at the Yale Law School, 1886-1888, and in the latter year was admitted to the Connecticut Bar, but he has never practised law. He has devoted his attention to study and writing on economic subjects, upon which he has contributed to reviews, magazines, railway journals and newspapers. He is particularly interested in the subject of postal reform and in railroad problems. He was secretary of the Connecticut Reform Club in 1888, is a member of the Cobden Club of England, and associated with various reform clubs in this country, and is secretary and treasurer of the Postal Progress League. Mr. Cowles is author of: A General Freight and Passenger Post, of which three editions have been published by Putnams, New York City. He is a member of the Reform Club, London. He married at Allington Plantation, Burke County, Ga., June 2, 1870, Martha L. Gwaltney, who died June 10, 1893. Address: 361 Broadway, New York City.

COWLES, William Sheffield:

Rear-Admiral of the United States Navy; born at Farmington, Conn., Aug. 1, 1846; son of Thomas and Elizabeth (Sheffield) Cowles. He was appointed to the United States Naval Academy in July 21, 1863 and was graduated in 1867. He was flag lieutenant of the North Atlantic Squadron, 1882-1884. He was then appointed secretary of the Board of Inspection of merchant ships at New York City and during this detail served three weeks on the Isthmus of Panama, guarding the transit across the Isthmus, the property of the Panama Railroad Company and property of the American citizen on the isthmus. He was naval aid to the secretary of the Navy and in charge of the Naval Militia from 1891 to 1892; was naval attaché of the United States Embassy in London from 1893 to 1897; commanding the Fern in the North Atlantic Squadron in 1897-1898; commanding the Topeka in 1898-1899; assistant to the Bureau of Navigation from 1899 to 1903; commanding the battleship Missouri from 1903 to 1904; and since Jan. 23, 1906, chief of the Bureau of Equipment at Washington, D. C., with the rank of rear admiral. He went on the retired list by operation of law, but remained chief of the Bureau of Equipment, and a member of the Board on Constructions. Rear-Admiral Cowles is a brother-in-law of ex-President Roosevelt, having married the ex-President's sister. Address: Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

COWPERTHWHAITE, Allen Corson:

Physician; born at Cape May, N. J., May 3, 1848; son of Joseph C. and Deborah Cowperthwaite. He was educated in the public schools and at the Toulon (Ill.) Seminary, and was graduated from the Hahnemann Medical Collège, Philadelphia, as M. D. in 1869. In 1876 he received the degree of Ph.D. from the Central University of Iowa, and from Shurtleff College the degree of LL.D., in 1888. He practised his profession at Galva, Ill., 1869-1873, and at Nebraska City, Neb., 1873-1877. He was dean and professor of materia medica in the Homeopathic Department of the State University of Iowa, 1877-1892, and dean of the Homeopathic Medical College, University of Michigan, 1884-1885. Since 1892 he has been in practice in Chicago. He was professor of materia medica and therapeutics, 1892-1901; and was president from 1901 to 1905 when the Chicago Homeopathic Medical College merged with the Hahnemann Medical College of Chicago, since which time Dr. Cowperthwaite has held the position of professor of Materia Medica and Therapeutics in the latter institution. Dr. Cowperthwaite is consulting physician to the Cook County, Chicago Union, Chicago Homeopathic and Hahnemann Hospitals; ex-president of the State Homeopathic Medical Societies of Iowa, Illinois and Nebraska; ex-president of the American Institute of Homeopathy, and a fellow of the Society of Science, Letters and Arts, London, England. He has written extensively on medical subjects, and among his published works are: Insanity and Its Medico-Legal Relations, 1876; Materia Medica and Therapeutics, 1881; Text-book of Gynecology, 1888; text-book of the Practice of Medicine, 1901. Dr. Cowperthwaite married at Oska-loosa, Iowa, June 2, 1870, Ida E. Irving, and has two children. Residence: 176 Ashland Boulevard. Office: 31 Washington Street, Chicago.

COX, Charles Finney:

Railway officer; born on Staten Island, N. Y., Jan. 16, 1846; son of Jacob Dolson and Thedia Redelia (Kenyon) Cox, and brother of the late Gen. Jacob D. Cox, formerly governor of Ohio. He is an alumnus of Oberlin College, Ohio, class of 1869, and received from that college the degree of M.A. in 1889. He is now one of its trustees. Mr. Cox was engaged in business in Wall Street, 1867-1875, and from 1882 to 1885. He has been officially connected with the Vanderbilt railroads since 1875; is a director of several of those companies, and is now treasurer of all New York Central lines west of Buffalo, including the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway, the Michigan Central Railroad, the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis (Big Four) Railway, the New York Chicago and St. Louis (Nickel Plate) Railroad, the Lake Erie and Western Railroad, the Chicago, Indiana and Southern Railroad, the Cincinnati Northern Railroad, the Peoria and Eastern Railroad, the Canada Southern Railway, and the Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Railway. He is also president and trustee of the American Safe Deposit Company of New York. Mr. Cox finds his chief recreation in the study of science and the collection of books. He has made researches in microscopical botany and zoölogy. He is president of the New York Academy of Sciences; has been treasurer of the New York Botanical Garden since 1898, and is one of its board of scientific directors. He is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and a fellow of the Royal Microscopical Society of London. He is ex-president of the New York Microscopical Society, and a member of the Torrey Botanical Club, the Linnean Society of New York, the American Fine Arts Society, the Executive Committee and Council of the Charity Organization Society, and was until recently, chairman of its Committee on the Prevention of Tuberculosis. He was one of the founders and is one of the Trustees of the Provident Loan Society. He has been prominent in Young Men's Christian Association matters since 1867, being a member of its International Committee and of its committee on work for railroad men. Mr. Cox is author of a book entitled: Protoplasm and Life, published in 1889. He married at Fort Richmond, Staten Island, N. Y., April 30, 1878, Helen Middlebrook Fake, and they have one daughter, wife of Dr. Edwin B. Jenks, of Yonkers, N. Y. Residence: Buckingham Hotel. Address: Grand Central Station, New York City.

COX, Charles N:

Physician; born in Wertsville, N. J., May 27, 1859; son of Rev. Samuel L. and Sarah D. (Rowland) Cox. He was educated in Bucknell University and the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, M.D., 1883. Dr. Cox was engaged in general practice seven years after graduation, but since 1890 his practice has been devoted exclusively to diseases of the throat, nose and ear. He is laryngological surgeon to the Bushwick Hospital, Brooklyn; aural surgeon to the Brooklyn Eye and Ear Hospital, and consulting (aural) surgeon to St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, L. I. He served as captain and assistant surgeon, 1889-1891, major and surgeon, 1891-1895, in the 47th Regiment of the National Guard of New York. Dr. Cox is a member of the American Otological Society, American Rhinological and Otological Society, American Medical Association, New York State Medical Society, New York Academy of Medicine, King's County Medical Society (treasurer 1890-1900, vice-president, 1902-1903, president, 1903-1904), Brooklyn Medical Society, Brooklyn Pathological Society, Associated Physicians of Long Island; member and formerly director and vice-president of the Physicians Mutual Aid Association, and is councillor of the Long Island Hospital Medical College. He is a member of the Lake Hopatcong Yacht Club. Address: 257 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

COX, Henry Joseph:

Meteorologist; born at Newton, Mass., April 5, 1863; son of Thomas and Hannah (Perkins) Cox. He was graduated from Harvard University as A.B. in 1884, receiving the honorary degree of A.M. in 1887 from Norwich University. He entered the service of the United States Weather Bureau, Aug. 1, 1884; was promoted through various grades steadily, and was appointed professor of meteorology in 1899, and he has been in charge of the North Central Forecast District since 1898, with headquarters in Chicago. He is a director of the Cabrestante Mining and Milling Company, Guanajuato, Mexico. He visited Europe in the winter of 1906 and 1907, inspecting meteorological observatories. In politics he is an Independent Republican, and in religion a Roman Catholic. He is a member of the National Geographic Society, the Geographic Society of Chicago, and Chicago Academy of Science, and was elected president of the Geographic Society of Chicago for 1906-1907 and reelected for 1907-1908. His favorite recreations are baseball and yachting. He is a member of the University, Union League, Chicago Athletic and Chicago Yacht Clubs. Mr. Cox married in Somerville, Mass., Sept. 8, 1887, Mary Cavanagh, and they have three children. Residence: University Club. Address: United States Weather Bureau, Federal Building, Chicago.

COX, Kenyon:

Painter; born in Warren, Ohio, Oct. 27, 1856; son of General Jacob Dolson Cox and Helen (Finney) Cox, daughter of President C. G. Finney, of Oberlin College, one of the most distinguished of American divines and educators. He was a student at McMicken School of Art, in Cincinnati, the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia, and then in Paris from 1877 to 1882, first with Carolus Duran and afterward at the École des Beaux Arts under J. L. Gérôme. He was elected member of the Society of American Artists in 1882, and was its vice-president at the time of its consolidation with the National Academy of Design in 1906. He received the second Hallgarten Prize of the National Academy of Design in 1889, and two bronze medals from the Paris Exposition Universelle in 1889, the Temple silver medal of the Pennsylvania Academy in 1891, a medal at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893, and a gold medal at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition at St. Louis in 1904. He has executed mural paintings in the Walker Art Building at Bowdoin College, the Library of Congress, the Appellate Court Building in New York City, the Minnesota State Capitol, Iowa State Capitol, the Essex County Court House at Newark, N. J., the Luzerne County Court House at Wilkes-Barré, Pa., the Citizens Building at Cleveland, Ohio, and the Manhattan Hotel in New York City. He has pictures in the collections of The Metropolitan Museum, New York, the Art Museum of Cincinnati, the National Academy of Design, the Lotos and Players' Clubs, and drawings in Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh, and elsewhere. Mr. Cox has done much illustrative work, including The Blessed Damozel (Dodd, Mead and Company), 1886. He has painted landscapes, figure pieces and portraits, and modelled one of the statues for the building of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. In 1892 he painted one of the domes in the Liberal Arts Building, at the World's Columbian Exposition. He was an instructor in the Art Students' League of New York from 1884 to 1909, and is an honorary member of the League. Mr. Cox has written on Art subjects in leading periodicals, and is part author of Modern French Masters, edited by J. C. Van Dyke, 1896; The Nineteenth Century, 1901; and of Noteworthy Paintings in American Private Collections, 1907, edited by John La Farge and August F. Jaccaci. He is author of: Old Masters and New, 1905; Painters and Sculptors, 1907; and Mixed Beasts, rhymes and pictures for children, 1904. Mr. Cox is an academician and a member of the Council of the National Academy of Design, member of the National Society of Mural Painters, National Institute and American Academy of Arts and Letters, Architectural League of New York, and a fellow of the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. He married at Belmont, Mass., in 1892, Louise Howland King, who is herself an artist of much distinction and an associate of the National Academy of Design. They have three children.

Residence and studio: 134 East 67th Street, New York City.

COX, Palmer:

Artist and author; born in Granby, Province of Quebec, Canada, April 28, 1840; son of Michael Cox and Sarah (Miller) Cox. He was graduated from the Granby Academy. He removed to Springfield, Mass., in 1860 and entered the car shops of T. W. Wason; then went to California in 1863 remaining until 1875. Mr. Cox was a contributor to the Golden Era, Alta-California, and other Californian publications. Since 1875 he has been in New York City, and has written and illustrated many humorous books. He is author of: Squibs of California, or Every Day Life, illustrated, 1875; subsequently rewritten and published as Comic Yarns, in 1889; Hans Von Peter's Trip to Gotham, 1876; How Columbus Found America, 1877; That Stanley, 1878; The Brownies, Their Book, 1887; Queer People, 1888; Queer People With Wings and Strings, 1888; Queer People with Paws and Claws, 1888; Another Brownie Book, 1890; The Brownies at Home, 1893; The Brownies Around the World, 1894; The Brownies Through the Union, 1895; The Brownies Abroad, 1899; The Brownies in Fairyland, cantata in three acts for children, 1895; Palmer Cox's Brownies, spectacular play in three acts, 1895; The Brownies in the Philippines, 1903; The Brownie Clown in Brownie Town, and also designer of toys and games, the Brownie Blocks, Brownie Scroll Puzzle, the Brownie Calendar or Year Book, the Brownie Nine Pins, the Brownie Portrait Gallery, and others. Mr. Cox is a member of the Masonic order, the National Geographic Society of Washington, D. C., and the League of American Wheelmen. He States and Europe; is a Republican and a member of the Episcopal Church. Address: 134 West 23d Street, New York City.

COX, William Van Zandt:

Banker; born in Muskingum County, Ohio, near Zanesville, June 12, 1852; son of Colonel Thomas J. Cox, U. S. A., and

PALMER COX
Artist

of Lucy Ann (Van Zandt) Cox; nephew of the Samuel Sullivan Cox, for many years member of Congress from New York City and sometime speaker. He was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University, A.B., 1874, and later A.M., receiving election to Phi Beta Kappa. He studied law and was admitted to bar in 1877, but became, from 1879 to 1902, a member of the administrative staff of the United States National Museum. He was secretary and disbursing officer of the International Fisheries Exposition in London, 1883; represented the Smithsonian Institution at the Minneapolis Exposition, 1887, Northwest Territory Centennial, Marietta, Ohio, 1888; financial officer for the Smithsonian Institution and U. S. National Museum at the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893, Atlanta Exposition, 1896; secretary of U. S. Government Board of the Nashville Exposition, 1897, Trans-Mississippi Exposition, Omaha, 1898, Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, 1901, and Louisiana Purchase Exposition, St. Louis, 1904. Mr. Cox is now president of the Second National Bank of Washington, D. C.; vice-president of the Washington Market Company, and a director in various financial institutions in the District of Columbia. He served as vice-chairman of the Citizens' Committee for the reception of Admiral Dewey in 1899, and was secretary of the Congressional, Gubernatorial and Citizens' committees for the celebration of the Centennial of the National Capital in the District of Columbia in 1900. Mr. Cox has served as president of the Board of Trade of Washington, vice-chairman of the Shepherd Memorial Committee, member of the Committees on Presidential Inaugural in 1901, 1905 and 1909. He is a member of the Currency Commission and Executive Council of the American Bankers' Association, vice-president of the Board of Education of the District of Columbia, governor of the Society of Colonial Wars, and a member of various patriotic and historical societies and clubs. Mr. Cox collaborated with H. M. Northrup on The Life of Samuel S. Cox (published in 1899); is author of A Memorial of Matthew Gault

Emery (published in 1904), also of reports in regard to the various expositions and celebrations to which he has been accredited, and numerous monographs and magazine contributions. He married in Washington, D. C., Oct. 27, 1886, Juliet H. Emery. Address: Second National Bank, Washington, D. C.

COXE, Alfred Conkling:

Jurist; born at Auburn, N. Y.; son of Rev. S. Hanson and Eliza Cockburn (Conkling) Cox; grandson of Hon. Alfred Conkling, judge of United States Court, and a nephew of the late United States Senator Roscoe Conkling and of Right Rev. Arthur Cleveland Cox, late bishop of Western New York. He was educated at Oxford Academy, Utica Academy and Hamilton College. He was admitted to the bar in 1868, and practised law at Utica, N. Y. He was appointed a manager of the State Hospital at Utica, 1880; judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District New York, 1882, serving as such until 1903, when he was appointed to his present position as judge of the United States Circuit Court for the Second Circuit. Judge Cox has always been a Republican. He is lecturer on the law of shipping and admiralty at Cornell University. Columbia University conferred upon him, in 1904, the degree of LL.D. Judge Cox is a member of the University Club of New York City and the Fort Schuyler Club and Yalmundasis Golf Club of Utica, N. Y. He married, at Utica, Mariette A. Doolittle. Address: Utica, N. Y.

COXE, Hanson Cleveland:

American deputy-consul-general at Paris, France; born in Baltimore, Md.; son of A. Cleveland and Katharine (Hyde) Cox. He was graduated from Trinity University, Toronto, Can., and took special studies at Oxford University, England. He was a lawyer and journalist for many years, was on the staff of the Paris edition of the New York Herald, was secretary of the naval and military attachés of the American Embassy, Paris, and then entered the consular service. Mr. Coxe is a member of the New York State Bar Association, the American Bar Association, a member of the Grand Army of the Republic and was decorated by the French Government as officier d'Académie for publications on the French law. He is author of: Manual of the French law (Bentano's); Automobile Regulations, and is a contributor to Sharp and Alleman's Lawyers' and Bankers' Directory and various law magazines. Address: American Consulate-General, Paris, France.

COYLE, Henry:

Editor and journalist; born in Boston in 1865; son of Thomas and Annie (Farrell) Coyle. He was educated in a grammar school in Boston, and afterward engaged in journalism. He has for fourteen years been editor of The Orphan's Friend, a Catholic paper, published in Boston; was editor of Our Church, Her Children, and Institutions (three volumes), and author of The Promise of Morning, verses. Mr. Coyle is a contributor to The Independent, The Youth's Companion, The Chautauquan and other publications, also to the syndicates. He has traveled extensively over Europe and America. Mr. Coyle has done much charitable work in connection with Catholic institutions, orphanages, etc., for the past twenty years. Address: 85 Vernon Street, Boston.

COYNE, Frederick E.:

Merchant; born in East Orange, N. J., in 1860. He was educated in the public schools of New Jersey. At the age of twenty-three he removed to Chicago, Ill., where he has been in active business since. After a short period spent as a clerk, he started a bakery, which through his energetic efforts grew to large proportions. He subsequently bought several restaurants and added to his bakery a wholesale department, which he still conducts. He is a Republican, and has been active in local, State and National politics. He was collector of internal revenue at Chicago, 1897-1901 and was postmaster of that city from 1901 to 1906. He is a member of the Union League, Chicago Athletic, Hamilton, Forty, Lincoln, Menoken, Marquette and Press Clubs. He married at Sycamore, Ill., Oct. 3, 1888, Zada B. Dustin, and has two children. Residence: 5206 Hibbard Avenue, Office: Marquette Building, Chicago, Ill.

COYNER, Charles Luther:

Lawyer; born at Long Glade, Va., Feb. 8, 1853; son of Addison Hyde Coyner and Elizabeth (Brown) Coyner. He was graduated from Forest Academy and Wesleyan College, Va. Subsequently he studied law in Washington and Lee University, and was admitted to the Virginia bar in 1877, and he has since been admitted to the bars of additional States. He is a member of the Tennessee State Bar Association. In Texas he was appointed District Judge to fill out unexpired term, by Governor O. M. Roberts, in 1881; he became prosecuting attorney of Duval County in 1884, was appointed district attorney by Governor Ireland in 1886; was also elected probate judge in 1888, and elected county judge in 1896. He became a member of the Texas Press Association in 1879, owned and edited the Henderson County Journal (Texas) in 1879, and became owner of Narrow Gauge newspaper in 1881. He was the chairman of the Democratic Executive Committee of his county in 1889, and was a delegate from his county to the Deep Water Convention at Denver, Colo., in 1891. In 1891 he was appointed chairman of the Texas delegation to the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago, and in 1884 he was secretary of the Democratic State Executive Committee of Texas. In 1902 he moved to Memphis, Tenn., where he has since practised. He has done a considerable amount of writing for magazines, and in addition to his Twenty Years in Texas, is the author of several other books. He is a member of the Memphis Bar Association, the Tennessee State Bar Association, the Texas Bar Association, and the Texas Historical Association. He is a Mason, an Odd Fellow, a Knight of Pythias, and a member of the Woodmen of the World and the Order of Redmen.

He married at Moscow, Va., Jan. 4, 1884, Margaret Blair. Residence: 509 Mosby Street. Office: 206 Rogers Building, Memphis, Tenn.

CRAFTS, Wilbur Fisk:

Clergyman, author, editor, lecturer, traveler and reformer; born at Fryeburg, Me., Jan. 12, 1850; son of Rev. Frederick A. Crafts, a Methodist preacher; of Puritan stock; was graduated at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn., in 1869, with degree of A.B., and received from same in 1871 degree of A.M.; in same year graduated from the Boston University School of Theology and received degree of B.D.; and in 1896 received Ph.D. from Marietta College. He served as a Methodist minister from 1867 to 1879, a Congregationalist minister from 1880 to 1883, since which date he has been a Presbyterian clergyman. Since 1871 he has been active in Sunday school work, and has participated in many Sunday school conventions, assemblies and Chautauquas. Since 1883 he has been active in Sabbath observance movements and other moral reforms. In 1888-1889 he founded the American Sabbath Union; and from that year to 1900 he lectured in all parts of the United States as its field secretary. He was chief editor of the Christian Statesman from 1901 to 1903; and has been editor of the Twentieth Century Quarterly since 1896. Dr. Crafts is author of: "Practical Christian Sociology," "The Sabbath for Man," "Intoxicating Drinks and Drugs in All Times and Lands," and other books on Bible teaching, Sunday school work and moral reforms. Since 1895 he has been superintendent of a bureau of lectures, literature and law, The International Reform Bureau, which he founded in that year. Its headquarters are at Washington, where it undertakes agitation in favor of Congressional legislation against various forms of vice, and may be said to be the first to have put the "reform lobby" idea into practical and continuous operation. Dr. Crafts married, in 1874, Sara T. Timanus, a Sunday school author and speaker. Address: 206 Pennsylvania Avenue, S. E., Washington, D. C.

CRAIG, Oscar John:

President of the University of Montana; born in Madison, Ind.; son of Miles W. and Mary (Feather) Craig. He received the degree of A.B. from Ashbury University, A.M. from De Pauw University, and Ph.D. from the University of Wooster. After serving as superintendent of the city schools of Sullivan, Ind., he was elected to the chair of history and political economy in Purdue University, Lafayette, Ind., from which position he was called to the presidency of the University of Montana at Missoula in 1893. Among President Craig's prominent literary productions are: Oniatanon, a study in Indiana History; The Bible in the Nineteenth Century; Studies in Civil Government. Mr. Craig married Narrie E. Grassaway, of Madison, Ind., and they have three children. Address: Missoula, Mont.

CRAIGIE, Mary E. Whitbeck:

Author, philanthropist; born in Newark, N. Y.; daughter of Rev. John and Margaret Strong (Cook) Whitbeck. She was educated in the Detroit (Mich.) High School and the Academy in Ithaca, N. Y., and married in Ithaca, N. Y., in 1879, Charles O'Hara Craigie. In 1897, there being no public library in the city of Brooklyn, Mrs. Craigie formed the Brooklyn Public Library Association, of which she has been the president ever since. The association agitated for a public library and got a resolution through the common council to establish branch libraries in the Borough of Brooklyn. Mayor Wurster made an appropriation of $10,000, which was the next year increased to $40,000, appointed a Library Board, and within two years, under Mrs. Craigie's management as director of the libraries, ten branches were in operation, including three reading-rooms and libraries in public parks, which was Mrs. Craigie's idea. She has also taken a great interest in the welfare of city boys, and has recognized the need of providing places of recreation to keep them off the streets and out of the saloons. She formed a committee and drafted a bill, which she succeeded in having passed at Albany, providing that the city should establish municipal club houses for boys, but the bill was vetoed by Mayor McClellan on the ground that the city could not afford it. Mrs. Craigie is interested in and helps to support several boys' clubs. She was one of five women representing women's organizations who went to Albany and secured the passage of a bill to compel the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to provide vestibules for the motor men, and was afterward one of the guests of honor of 2,000 motor men and conductors, who gave a dinner to celebrate the passage of the bill. Mrs. Craigie has lectured in many states on literary subjects and on woman suffrage, and she is author of: John Anderson and I; and of Once Upon a Time (stories for children), both published by Putnam's Sons. She was appointed by Mayor Wurster of Brooklyn, to represent that city at the Tennessee Centennial in Nashville, and by Governor Black to represent the State at the Omaha Exposition; and she was named by Borough President Coler on his Advisory Committee of One Hundred. Mrs. Craigie formed the King Manor Association of L. I. and was its president for two years. This is a patriotic association of women and their work was to save the historic Governor King Homestead at Jamaica, L. I., which, located in a park now a part of the city park system, is like Mt. Vernon and the Van Cortlandt Manor House filled with old historic furniture and relics of Colonial days on Long Island. She has for years been a member of the Brooklyn Woman's Club, the Fort Green Chapter of Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association. Address: Craigie Manor, Baldwin, L. I.

CRAIGHEAD, Erwin:

Editor of the Mobile Register; born in Nashville, Tenn., April 4, 1852; son of James B. and Ellen Kirkman (Erwin)

Craighead. He was educated at Racine College, Racine, Wis., and the University of Nashville, Tenn., from which he was graduated A.B., in 1872. He pursued post-graduate studies at the University of Leipzig, and was admitted to the bar of Tennessee in 1876, but never practised law. In 1877 he made his first entry into journalism, was music critic and editorial writer on the New Orleans Times, 1878-1880, and managing editor of the New Orleans Daily States, 1880-1882. In the latter year he began his connection with the Mobile Register, which has ever since continued, beginning as city editor, 1882-1884, managing editor since 1884, and since 1903 also editor and vice-president of the Mobile Register Company. Mr. Craighead is a Democrat in politics and since 1904 has been chairman of the Alabama State Educational Board. He married, at Nashville, Tenn., 1876, Lura Harris. Residence: 400 Congress Street. Office: Register Building, Mobile, Ala.

CRAM, Ralph Adams:

Architect and author; born at Hampton William Augustine and Sarah Elizabeth (Blake) Cram. He was educated in schools in New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and afterward studied architecture; and since 1889 has practised that profession, now being senior member of the firm of Cram, Goodhue & Ferguson, architects having offices in Boston and New York City. Mr. Cram is a fellow of the American Institute of Architects, the Royal Geographical Society of London and the Boston Society of Architects, and a member of the Architectural Association of London and the Architectural League of New York City. He is a writer on architectural subjects in technical and popular magazines, and also of verse and prose in The Century, Atlantic Monthly, New England Magazine, Catholic World, etc., and is author of the books: Black Spirits and White; The Decadent; Church Building; Impressions of Japanese Architecture and The Allied Arts; The Ruined Abbeys of Great Britain; The Gothic Quest; "Excalibur." He was first vice-president of the American Institute of Architects, 1909; president of the Boston Society of Architects, 1909; is lecturer on architectural design in Harvard University, and supervising architect to Princeton University. He is also, a member of the Century Club of New York and the Puritan Club of Boston. Mr. Cram married in New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 20, 1900, Elizabeth Carrington Read, of Virginia. Residence: 52 Chestnut Street, Boston. Offices: 15 Beacon Street, Boston, and 170 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

CRAMP, Charles Henry:

Ship builder; born in Philadelphia, May 9, 1828; son of William Cramp, founder of the great ship and engine-building enterprise. He was educated in the schools of Philadelphia, graduating from the Central High School of that city. After leaving school he entered his father's shipyards, learning the business thoroughly, and in 1857 he was admitted as a partner in the firm of William Cramp & Sons, out of which has grown the present organization. For many years Mr. Charles H. Cramp was at the head of this business. Residence: 507 South Broad Street, Philadelphia. Office: Beach, corner of Ball Streets, Philadelphia.

CRAMPTON, Henry Edward:

Professor of zoölogy, Columbia University; born in New York City, Jan. 5, 1875; son of Dr. Henry Edward and Doreas M. (Miller) Crampton. He was educated in the College of the City of New York and Columbia College, graduating A.B., 1893, and he received from Columbia the degree of Ph.D. in 1899. He was assistant in biology in Columbia University, 1893-1895; instructor in biology at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1895-1896; fellow in zoölogy, 1896-1897, lecturer, tutor and instructor from 1897 to 1901 at Columbia University; was adjunct professor of the faculty of Pure Science and of Barnard College, from 1901 to 1904; professor of zoölogy in the same, since 1904; was instructor of embryology at the Woods Hole (Massachusetts) Biological Laboratory, 1895-1902; and has been instructor (in charge) of the work in embryology at the Cold Spring Harbor Biological Laboratory, 1903-1905. Since Jan. 1, 1909, Professor Crampton has been curator in charge of the Department of Invertebrate Zoölogy of the American Museum of Natural History. Dr. Crampton's investigations have been in the fields of experimental embryology and experimental evolution, his contributions appearing in technical journals of the United States, England and Germany. Dr. Crampton is an associate member of the staff of the Carnegie Institution for the Station for Experimental Evolution at Cold Spring Harbor. He traveled in the Society Islands in the South Pacific in the years 1906, 1907 and 1908, and in New Zealand, Tonga, Samoa, Fiji and Hawaii in 1909. Dr. Crampton is a fellow of the New York Academy of Sciences (of which he was formerly recording secretary and later vice-president); fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Ethnological Society; is a member of the American Society of Naturalists, the American Society of Zoölogists, the Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine; and he is also a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity, the Society of the Sigma Xi, the Alumni Association of Columbia University. Dr. Crampton married at New York, Oct. 27, 1896, Marion Maud Tulley, Falls, N. H., Dec. 16, 1863; son of Rev. and they have two children. Address: Columbia University, or the American Museum of Natural History, New York City.

CRANDALL, Francis Asbury:

Journalist, librarian, specialist in United States public documents; born at Carbondale, Pa., Nov. 28, 1837; son of Rev. Andrew Jackson and Amelia (Fink) Crandall. He learned the printer's trade in Cazenovia and Syracuse, and was educated at the Cazenovia Methodist Seminary. He began editorial writing in 1861 on the Utica Morning Herald, under the tutelage of Ellis H. Roberts, who was later for many years treasurer of the United States representative in Congress, and otherwise distinguished. Mr. Crandall was for about 35 years an editor, managing editor, or publisher, and frequently all three at once, in Cazenovia, Utica, Scranton, St. Louis, Oswego, Erie, Buffalo and Providence. In company with Joseph A. Scranton, and under the firm name of Crandall & Co., he founded, in 1867, the Scranton Morning Republican, the first modern daily paper having telegraph service in that city. In 1873 he bought the Erie Gazette, which had been founded in 1820 by Joseph Sterrett, and in 1875 bought out the Sunday Gazette, the first Sunday issue in Erie. Was managing editor of the Buffalo Express for nine years and of the Buffalo Courier for five years. March 26, 1895, was appointed first United States superintendent of documents and organized that new office. Was demoted on a change of administration in Nov., 1897, and has since been librarian of public documents, chief of index, and compilation division, and acting chief editor in the Government Printing Office at Washington. Mr. Crandall is a member of the American Historical Association, the American Library Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the National Geographic Society, the American Forestry Association, the District of Columbia Library Association (of which he was president in 1891), and a corresponding member of the Buffalo Historical Society. He married at Trenton (now Barneveld), N. Y., Sept. 17, 1861, Annie A. Jones, who died Jan. 5, 1907, and has four children, all living. Address: 1636 Sixteenth Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

CRANDALL, Floyd Milford:

Physician, editor; born at Belfast, N. Y., May 2, 1858; son of Charles Milford (M.D.) and Deborah J. (Wood) Crandall. He was graduated from Genesee Normal College, in 1880, and from the University Medical College of New York as M.D. in 1884. He was interne at Bellevue Hospital, 1884-1885, attending physician in Bellevue Dispensary, 1886-1889, and in Northwestern Dispensary, 1889-1890, was surgeon to the New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, 1890-1895; visiting physician at the Children's Hospital, 1895-1898, at the Infants' Hospital, 1895-1898, Minturn Hospital, 1897-1899, and has been consulting physician to the Infants' and Children's Hospitals since 1898. He was lecturer on diseases of children, 1889-1893, and has been adjunct professor since 1893 at the New York Polyclinic. Dr. Crandall was appointed, in 1907, by the Regents of the University, a member of the State Medical Board of New York. He was on the editorial staff of the New York Medical Journal, 1889-1893, managing editor of Galliard's Medical Journal, 1893-1895, and editor of the Archives of Pediatrics, 1895-1901. He is a member of the American Pediatric Society, American Medical Association, the New York State Medical Society, New York County Medical Society, of which he was president in 1906, the New York Academy of Medicine, in which he was president of the Section on Pediatrics in 1895, the Harvey Medical Society, and the West End Society, of which latter he was president in 1895. Dr. Crandall is author of: How to Keep Well, 1903, and of about sixty medical monographs and papers. Address: 113 West 95th Street, New York City.

CRANDON, Thomas Philip Franklin:

Railway official. He was educated at Madison, Wis., and he served in the Union Army from Dec., 1861, to July, 1866. He settled in Batavia, Kane County, Ill., after the war, and he was elected clerk of the County Court of Kane County, and was also a member of the Village Council of Batavia, Ill. Jan., 1874, he entered the service of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway, of which he has for years been the tax commissioner. Mr. Crandon has long resided at Evanston, Ill., and has served as a member of the city Council there and also as a member of the School Board of School District Number 75 at Evanston. He received the degree of A.M. from Northwestern University in 1894, and he is a member of the Board of Trustees of that university. Residence: 1414 Forest Avenue, Evanston, Ill. Office: Chicago and Northwestern Railway, Chicago, Ill.

CRANE, Albert:

Lawyer; born in New York City, Dec. 30, 1842; son of Thomas and Clarissa Lawrence (Starkey) Crane. His father was of Quincy, Mass., and his mother of Troy, N. H. Mr. Crane was educated at Mount Washington Collegiate Institute in New York City, at Tufts College, Medford, Mass., whence he was graduated A.B., 1863, and from Columbia College, LL.B., 1866. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1866, and has been engaged in practice ever since. The Thomas Crane Public Library was erected at Quincy, Mass., in 1882, as a memorial of Thomas Crane by his widow and two surviving sons, Benjamin F. and Albert Crane, and the latter has given to The Crane Theological School of Tufts College, as a further memorial of his father, the sum of one hundred thousand dollars, and also has given more land and built a large addition to The Thomas Crane Public Library at Quincy, costing over eight-eight thousand dollars. Mr. Crane served seven years, 1863-1870, in the 22d Regiment of the National Guard of the State of New York. He was formerly a director of the Second Avenue (surface) Railroad, the Pacific Fire Insurance Company and the Rutgers Fire Insurance Company. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the New York State Bar Association, New York Historical Society, New England Historic-Genealogical Society, New York Genealogical Society, American Geographical Society, the New England Society, the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of Connecticut, and the Union Club of New York City. Mr. Crane married first, in New York City, 1884, Ellen M. Davies, of Fishkill, N. Y., and second, in Boston, 1902, Fanny Starkey. He has his residence at Villa Rock-Acre, Stamford, Conn. Address: 35 Wall Street, New York City.

CRANE, Bruce:

Artist; born in New York City in 1857; son of Solomon Crane and Leah Gillespie

Bruce. He was educated in New York City and in Paris, France. He is a landscape painter and his first exhibition of pictures was at the National Academy of Design in 1879. He has been a National Academician since 1902. Mr. Crane is a member of the Society of American Artists and the American Water Color Society. He was awarded the Webb prize, the bronze medal of the Paris Exposition in 1900, the silver medal of the Pan American Exposition in 1901, the silver medal of the Carolina Exposition, the gold medal of the National Academy and the gold medal of the Louisiana Exposition in 1904. Mr. Crane's favorite recreations are farming and fishing. He is a member of the Artist Fund Society and of the Lotos and Salmagundi Clubs of New York City. Address: 14 West Twelfth Street, New York City.

CRANE, Frank:

Congregational clergyman; born in Urbana, Ill., May 12, 1861; son of Rev. James L. Crane (Methodist clergyman) and Elizabeth (Mayo) Crane. He was educated in the public schools of Springfield, Ill., and in Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington, Ill., but did not continue to graduation, though that University afterward conferred upon him the degree of Ph.B., and Nebraska Wesleyan University gave him the degree of D.D. He entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Rock River Conference, and filled leading Methodist pulpits in Chicago until 1904, when he resigned from the Conference and entered the ministry of the Congregational Church, and for seven years was pastor of the Union Congregational Church at Worcester, Mass. Dr. Crane is widely known for his ability as a pulpit orator and lyceum lecturer, and for a period of four years, while a minister in Chicago, he contributed a weekly column of Pulpit Editorials to the Chicago Record and the American Press Association. He is author of The Religion of Tomorrow, and has contributed essays and short stories to magazines. He has just entered upon a lectureship for the Sunday Afternoon Club of Chicago, supported by all denominations. He married at Hillsboro, Ill., in 1883, Ella C. Stickel. Address: 8 Ashland Street, Worcester, Mass.

CRANE, Frederick Evan:

Jurist; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., March 2, 1869; son of Frederick H. and Mary E. (Jones) Crane. He was educated in the Adelphi College, Brooklyn, and Columbia College Law School, LL.B., 1889. He was admitted to the bar of the State of New York in 1889; was assistant district attorney of Kings County, 1896, but resigned in order to return to the general practice of law in the firm of Dailey, Bell & Crane. He was elected county judge of Kings County and served in that office until elected, in Nov., 1906, a justice of the Supreme Court of the Second District of New York, for the term to expire Dec. 31, 1920. Justice Crane is a member of the Brooklyn, Crescent Athletic and Union League Clubs of Brooklyn. He married in Montreal, Canada, in 1893, Gertrude Craven, and they have a daughter and a son. Address: 854 Prospect Place, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CRANE, William H.:

Actor; born in Leicester, Mass., April 30, 1845; son of Amaziah Brito and Mary Sophia Crane. From infancy he lived in Boston, and he was educated in the public schools of that city. He began his stage career in the Holman Opera Company, of which Mrs. Harriet Holman was the head, and made his debut in Mechanics' Hall, Utica, N. Y., July 13, 1863, as "The Notary," in The Daughter of the Regiment. He remained with that company for eight years, then was low comedian of the Alice Oates Opera Company four years, then with Hooley's Stock Company, Chicago. In 1877 he took part in the production of the comedy, Our Boarding House, at the Park Theater, New York City, and in that company met Stuart Robson, and the two decided to star together. During their joint operations they produced many important plays, and also revived Shakespearean and other classical dramas, notably The Comedy of Errors, in which they played the two Dromios, and The Merry Wives of Windsor. The last play in which they were joint stars was The Henrietta, which enjoyed a most successful run up to the time of their separation in 1889. Since then Mr. Crane has confined his attention almost exclusively to plays by American authors, and has produced and played leading rôles in: Newport; The Senator; On Probation; For Money; The American Minister; Brother John; The Pacific Mail; His Wife's Father; A Fool of Fortune; A Virginia Courtship; Worth a Million; The Head of the Family; Peter Stuyvesant; A Rich Man's Son; David Harum; Business is Business; The American Lord; The Price of Money; etc. Residence: Cohasset, Mass. Address: The Players Club, New York City.

CRANE, Winthrop Murray:

United States Senator; born at Dalton, Mass., April 23, 1853; son of Zenas Marshall and Louise (Laplin) Crane. He was educated in the public schools of Dalton and at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass. He is a paper manufacturer, having, with his brother succeeded to the historic Crane Paper manufacturing interests at Dalton, which also manufactures the paper for the currency of the United States. Senator Crane was a delegate-at-large to the Republican National Conventions of 1892, 1896, 1904 and 1908, and was selected as the Massachusetts member of the Republican national committee in the same year. He was lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts from 1897 to 1899, and governor from 1900 to 1902. On Oct. 12, 1904, he was appointed to the United States Senate and took his seat Dec. 6. He was elected by the Legislature, in January, 1905, to fill out the term expiring 1907, and reelected for the term expiring in 1913. Senator Crane is one of the National leaders of the Republican party and has been a potent force in State and National campaigns and was supposed to be the spokesman for the anti-Taft forces in the Chicago Convention of 1908, and had a large share in the forming of the platform adopted by that convention. He was a member of the advisory committee of the National Republican Committee in the campaign which followed and largely responsible for its successful outcome. Address: Dalton, Mass.

CRANSTON, Earl:

Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church; born at Athens, Ohio, June 27, 1840; son of Earl and Jane (Montgomery) Cranston. He was graduated from Ohio University, Athens, Ohio, as A.B. in 1861, later receiving from that institution the degree of A.M. in 1866, and of LL.D. in 1897, also receiving the degree of D.D. from Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., in 1882. He served as a soldier in the Civil War, first in the Third and Sixtieth Ohio Infantry Regiments and the Second West Virginia Cavalry Regiment, being promoted to be captain. After the war he entered the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church as a member of the Ohio Conference in 1867, serving in that and other conferences as pastor and presiding elder until 1884, when he was elected one of the publishing agents of the Methodist Episcopal Church, having charge of the Western Methodist Book Concern. He was senior publishing agent (Cranston and Stowe, and Cranston & Curts) from 1884 to 1896. In 1896 he was elected by the General Conference as one of the bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Bishop Cranston spent two years in Episcopal visitation of the Methodist Episcopal churches in China, Japan and Korea from 1898 to 1900, and in 1907 revisited Japan as one of the commissioners of his church, for the union of several Methodist bodies in that country and the organizing of the Methodist Church of Japan, the Nippon Methodist Kyokwai, after which service he made an Episcopal visit to Korea, and later to Italy, Bulgaria, Germany, and Northern Europe. He is one of the bishops appointed by his colleagues to the Commission on Federation with the Methodist Church, South. He married at Middleport, Ohio, Oct. 1861, Martha Behan. One son, Earl M., United States district attorney for Colorado, 1901-1908 is the only one of their children surviving. Three daughters, living, are the children from a second marriage. Address: Washington, D. C.

CRAPO, William Wallace:

Lawyer; born at Dartmouth, Mass., May 16, 1830; son of Henry H. and Mary A. (Slocum) Crapo. He was graduated from Yale University in 1852 with the degree of A. B., and subsequently studied law at Harvard University, completing his course in 1854; and he received the degree of LL.D. from Yale in 1882. He has practised in New Bedford since 1855, where for twelve years he was city solicitor. He is prominent in the Republican party, by which he was elected to the Massachusetts Legislature in 1857, and to the United States House of Representatives in 1875, occupying his seat during the Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh Congress. Mr. Crapo has for many years been at the head of the law firm of Crapo, Clifford & Prescott, and is connected with a number of banks. He is president of the Wamsutta, Potomska and Acushnet Cotton Mills; and he was president, 1882-1900, and chairman of the Board of Directors, 1900-1902, of the Pere Marquette Railroad of Michigan. He married at New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 22, 1857, Sarah A. D. Tappan, who died in 1893. Address: New Bedford, Mass.

CRAVATH, Paul Drennan:

Lawyer; born at Berlin Heights, Ohio, July 14, 1861; son of Erastus M. and Ruthanna (Jackson) Cravath. He received his preparatory education at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute and then studied in Europe two years, after which he entered Oberlin College, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1882, following with the course at the Columbia Law School and graduating as LL.B. in 1886. He was admitted to the bar in 1886, and is now senior partner of the law firm of Cravath, Henderson & de Gersdorff. He is also a director of the Standard Safe Deposit Company, and the Morton Trust Company; Trustee Equitable Trust Co., Director Mercantile Trust Co., and director of the National Bank of Commerce. He is a Republican in politics, and a member of the Congregational Church. Mr. Cravath is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the New England Society, the Ohio Society, and the Lawyers', Metropolitan, Down Town, Union League, University, City Midway, and Congressional Clubs of New York. He married at New York City, Nov. 15, 1893, Agnes Huntington, by whom he has a daughter. Residence: 107 East 39th Street. Address: 52 William Street, New York City.

CRAVER, Harrison W.:

Librarian; born in Owanece, Ill., Aug. 10, 1875; son of Harrison E. and Caroline E. (Weirauch) Craver. He was educated in the public schools of Carmi, Ill., and Terre Haute, Ind., and he studied chemistry at Rose Polytechnic Institute, graduating with the degree of B.S. in 1895. Mr. Craver was chemist to Kirkpatrick and Company, Limited, Pittsburgh, 1896-1898; to the Shoenberger Steel Company, Pittsburgh, 1898-1899; metallurgist to the Duquesne Reduction Company, Pittsburgh, in 1899-1900; technology librarian to the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh in 1900 and 1901, and 1903 to 1908. He was assistant superintendent of the Allegheny Steel and Iron Company, Pittsburgh, in 1902. Since 1908 he has been librarian of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh. Mr. Craver is a member of the American Chemical Society, the American Library Association, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania of which he is a director. His special work has been in establishing work in technology and useful arts as a branch of public library service. He organized the work in his library, the first free public library to devote special attention to the needs of the industrial community. Mr. Craver is a member of the University and German Clubs of Pittsburgh. He married in Pittsburgh, June 17, 1902, Adelaide Nevins Martin. Residence: 1344 Denniston Avenue, East End. Office address: Carnegie Library, Schenley Park, Pittsburgh.

CRAWFORD, Coe Isaac:

United States senator; born at Volney, Iowa, Jan. 14, 1858; son of Robert and Sarah (Shannon) Crawford. After receiving his preliminary instruction in public schools, and under tutors, he registered as a law student in the University of Iowa, and was graduated 1882. He was admitted to the bar and practised for one year at Independence, Iowa. In 1884 he moved to Pierre, Dakota Territory, where he grew into prominence both politically and professionally. In 1886 he became States attorney of Hughes County, which office he held for two years, and in 1889 was elected a member of the Territorial Legislative Council. The following year he was elected to the South Dakota Senate, and upon the expiration of the term he became attorney-general of South Dakota, occupying the office until 1896. In 1897 he became a resident of Huron, S. D., where for eight years he was attorney for the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company. Since 1901 he has been in partnership, under the firm name of Crawford & Taylor. In November, 1906, he was elected governor of South Dakota. He was nominated at the election held under the new South Dakota primary law, June 9, 1908, as the Republican candidate for U. S. senator, was elected by the Legislature and is now serving for the term which will expire March 3, 1915. He is a prominent member of the American Bar Association and the South Dakota Bar Association, and in 1904 was chosen a delegate to attend the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists, held at St. Louis. He married first, Oct. 4, 1884, May Robinson, who died July 20, 1894, and second, at Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 26, 1896, Lavina Robinson. Address: Huron, S. Dak.

CRAWFORD, John Jones:

Miner and engineer; born at Newcastle, Pa., Feb. 2, 1846; son of J. M. and Elizabeth J. Crawford. After careful preparatory training he entered the Polytechnic College of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, from which he was graduated in 1867, and then attended the Royal School of Mines at Freiburg, Saxony, from which he was graduated in 1870. He became superintendent of the Great Basin Mining Company at White Pine, Nev., in 1871, and after that was superintendent of other Nevada and California mines. In 1890 and 1891 he served as member and secretary of the Examining Commission of Rivers and Harbors for California, and since 1891 he has been owner of a canal and mines in Calaveras, Amador, Placer and Eldorado Counties in California, and he is also secretary of the Gwin Development Company. He was State mineralogist of California from 1893 to 1897, and edited various reports and bulletins relating to mines and minerals in that State. He is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers. Address: 1209 Spreckles' Building, San Francisco, Calif.

CRAWFORD, Mary Caroline:

Author and social worker; born in Boston; daughter of James G. and Mary (Coburn) Crawford. She was educated in the Girls Latin School, Boston, in Radcliff College, and in the School for Social Workers maintained by Simmons College and Harvard University. Miss Crawford is author of: The Romance of Old New England Roof-Trees; The Romance of Old New England Churches; The College Girl of America; Among Old New England Inns; St. Botolph's Town in Colonial Days; Old Boston Days and Ways. She was secretary in 1907 of the Women's Trade Union League and in 1908-1909 of the Ford Hall Meetings, Boston. She is a member of the Boston Authors Club and of the Monday Evening Club for Social Workers. Address: 30 High Street, Charlestown, Mass.

CRAWFORD, William Henry:

President of Allegheny College; born at Wilton Center, Ill., Oct. 6, 1855; son of John and Lucy Jane Crawford. He was educated in the high school at Joliet, Ill., and the academy and college of Northwestern University, at Evanston, Ill., from which he was graduated as A.B., 1884, A.M., 1887; was graduated from Garrett Biblical Institute, Evanston, Ill., 1884, and the degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by Northwestern University in 1893. He was ordained in the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was a member of Rock River Annual Conference for nine years, including two years Dr. Crawford was pastor of the Ravenswood M. E. Church and three years at Fulton Street M. E. Church, both in Chicago. He was professor of historical theology in Gammon Theological Seminary, 1889-1893; and since 1893, has been resident of Allegheny College. He married at Batavia, Ill., in 1884, Jennie M. Foote. Address: Meadville, Pa.

CRAWSHAW, William Henry:

Educator; born in Newburg, N. Y., Nov. 6, 1861; son of Charles and Mary (Lodge) Crawshaw. He was educated in the public schools of Newburg and Yonkers, N. Y., at Colgate Academy, Hamilton, N. Y., 1880-1883, and was graduated from Colgate University as A.B., with Phi Beta Kappa honors, in 1887; and he received the A.M. degree in 1889. He has been instructor and professor of English literature at Colgate University since 1887, and dean of the College Faculty since 1897; and he was acting president, 1897-1899 and in 1907, and was a student at Oxford University, England, in 1900 and 1901. Prof. Crawshaw is a member of the Modern Language Association, and the American Social Science Association, is an associate of the National Institute of Art and Letters, and a member of the Beta Theta Pi. He is author of: The Interpretation of Literature; the Literary Interpretation of Life; Dryden's Palamon and Arcite, and The Making of English Literature. Mr. Crawshaw married at Poultney, Vt., Dec. 26, 1888, Jennie Louise Broughton. Address: Hamilton, N. Y.

CREEL, Heber M.:

Soldier; born in La Fayette County, Mo., Nov. 30, 1853; son of Alexander M. and Salina (Poole) Creek. He was educated at Cooper Institute and Kenner's Academy at Booneville, Mo., at Virginia Military Institute, Lexington, Va., and was appointed from Missouri to the United States Military Academy at West Point, from which he was graduated in 1877, and commissioned lieutenant in the Seventh United States Cavalry. He resigned in 1882 and has since been engaged in real estate stock and farming interests at Devils Lake, N. Dak. He was chairman of the Board of County Commissioners of Ramsey County, N. Dak., from 1884 to 1886; register of deeds from 1889 to 1896; and State senator from 1897 to 1901. He was inspector and judge advocate-general of the North Dakota National Guard, 1891-1905, adjutant-general, 1905-1907, and major-general, retired, Jan. 7, 1907. General Creel has been special agent for the Seventh District of the United States, for the United States Department of Agriculture, since 1903. He is a Republican in politics; was chairman of the Republican County Central Committee of Ramsey County, North Dakota; member of the Republican State Central and Executive Committee of North Dakota, and was for eight years National committeeman of North Dakota of the Silver Republican Party. He was nominated in 1898 as an Independent Republican for Congressman-at-large for North Dakota, and was endorsed by the Democratic and Populist parties, and he ran ahead of his ticket by five thousand votes. General Creel has traveled all over the United States and Canada. He is an Episcopalian in his church affiliation. He received the badge of the United States Indian Wars, and the badge for twenty-five years service in the National Guard of North Dakota; is a member of the Odd Fellows, Elks, and the Modern Woodmen of America; and is a director of the Chautauqua at Devils Lake. He married in Indian Territory, May 10, 1879, Alice H. La Rue, niece of Hon. William Holman who was for thirty years a member of Congress from Indiana. Address: Devils Lake, N. Dak.

CREELMAN, James:

Journalist; born in Montreal, Canada, Nov. 12, 1859. He was educated in the public schools and in Talnage's Lay Theological College. He began his newspaper career with the New York Herald, in 1887, with which he was consecutively a reporter, correspondent and editorial writer until 1889, editor of the London edition, 1890, and of the Paris edition 1891-1892; and was editor of the New York Evening Telegram 1892-1893. He represented the New York World in the Chino-Japanese War in 1894; correspondent of the New York Journal, 1897-1899, including the Græco-Turkish War of 1897, Spanish-American War, 1898, and the War in the Philippines, 1899. Mr. Creelman received the surrender of the Spanish commandant after the battle of El Caney, Cuba, 1898, captured the Spanish flag and was dangerously wounded. Later he had charge of the editorial page and was Washington correspondent of the New York Journal, and is now editorial correspondent of the New York World. Mr. Creelman has gained much distinction as an interviewer, and has interviewed many famous personages, including the late Pope Leo XIII, Prince Bismark, President Faure of France, the Emperor of Korea, Henry M. Stanley, Louis Kossuth, Count Tolstoy, and others. He is author of: On the Great Highway; Eagle's Blood; etc. He is member of the Lotos, Authors, and National Democratic Clubs of New York, and of the National Liberal and New Vagabonds Clubs of London. He married in 1891, Alice L. Buell. Residence: 67 West 94th Street. Office: Care of The New York World, New York City.

CRIMMINS, John Daniel:

Real estate and banking; born in New York City, May 18, 1844. He was educated in the public schools of the city and the College of St. Francis Xavier, and in 1864 he became a partner in his father's contracting business. In 1873 he became head of the firm which was the first to make use of mechanical appliances and steam drills in New York City. The firm erected more than four hundred buildings in New York City, built the Broadway, Columbus and Lexington Avenue Cable roads and later supervised the installation of electricity on these roads and most of the other lines of the Metropolitan Street Railway System. From the beginning of his career, Mr. Crimmins has been extensively interested in city real estate, of which he has large holdings. He is a director of the Fifth Avenue Bank, the Title Insurance Company of New York, New York Mortgage and Security Company, the Chelsea Realty Company, a member of the Chamber of Commerce and fellow for life of the American Fine Arts Society. Mr. Crimmins is one of the most distinguished Catholic laymen in this country, is treasurer of the Board of Trustees of St. Patrick's Cathedral; and the late Pope Leo XIII conferred on him the order of knighthood, creating him a Knight of the Order of St. Gregory the Great. He devotes his leisure to literature and has published two volumes dealing with the history of the Irish in America. Politically he is a Democrat, and was a nominee of that party for presidential elector in 1908. Mr. Crimmins is a trustee of the Catholic University of America, a manager of St. Vincent's Hospital, trustee of the Seton Sanatorium and St. John's Day Nursery; treasurer of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, member of Board of Managers of the Society for the Reformation of Juvenile Delinquents, president of St. John's Guild, trustee of the Provident Loan Society, member of Board of Managers of American Society for Prevention Cruelty to Animals, patron of the Museum of Natural History, member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art and of the American Geographical Society. Mr. Crimmins married Lily Louise Lalor, who died in 1888, and has five sons and five daughters. Address: Emmett Arcade, 624 Madison Avenue, New York City.

CROCKER, Francis Bacon:

Electrical engineer; born in New York City, July 4, 1861; son of Henry H. and Mary (Eldridge) Crocker. He was graduated from Columbia University, as E.M., 1882, and Ph.D., 1895. He was one of the pioneers in the invention and development of electric motors and lighting, being engaged as inventor and practising electrical engineer, 1882-1889. He founded the C. & C. (Curtis & Crocker) Electric Company in 1886, and the Crocker-Wheeler Company in 1888, having been vice-president of both companies. In 1889 he was appointed head of the Electrical Engineering Department of Columbia University, and now retains that position. He was president of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, 1897-1898; president of the New York Electrical Society, 1892-1895; and is a member of the British Institution of Electrical Engineers; American Physical Society; American Electrochemical Society; fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; and was permanent secretary of the International Electrical Congress, Chicago, 1893. He was chairman of the committees which formulated the Standardization Rules of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the National Electrical Code according to which electrical apparatus is manufactured and installed throughout the United States. He is the author of: Management of Electrical Machinery, 7th edition, 1907; Electric Lighting, 2 volumes, 6th edition, 1904; Direct and Alternating Current Machine Design, 1908, and Dynamo Electric Machinery, 1908. Residence: 14 West 45th Street. Address: Columbia University, New York City.

CROCKER, George:

Capitalist and banker; born in California; son of Charles Crocker, one of the founders of the first railroad across the Sierras. He has for some years made his residence in New York City. He is a director in various corporations; member of the Metropolitan, City, Middy, New York Yacht, New York Athletic, Union League, Tuxedo, The Brook Clubs of New York City and the Automobile Club of America, and Army and Navy Club. Residence: 1 East 64th Street. Address: 60 Wall Street, New York City.

CROCKER, George Glover:

Lawyer and chairman of the Boston Transit Commission; born in Boston, Dec. 15, 1843; son of Uriel and Sarah Kidder (Haskell) Crocker. He was educated at the Boston Public Latin School, and at Harvard College, from which he was graduated as A.B. in 1864, and afterward was graduated from Harvard Law School, receiving the degrees of A.M. and LL.B. He was a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1873, 1874 and of the Massachusetts Senate from 1880 to 1883 inclusive, being its president in 1883. He was chairman of the Massachusetts Board of Railroad Commissioners from 1887 to 1892, and has been chairman of the Boston Transit Commission since 1894. He was appointed a member of the Massachusetts State Commission on Commerce and Industry in 1907. He is a Republican in politics. He is author of a manual entitled, Principles of Procedure in Deliberative Assemblies; of a Digest of Rulings of the Presiding Officers of the Massachusetts Senate and House from 1833; and of an historical pamphlet, entitled, From the State Coach to the Railroad Train and the Street Car. He is a member of the American Bar Association, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the American Statistical Association, the National and the Massachusetts Civil Service Reform Associations, the American Institute of Civics, the American Economic Association, and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. Mr. Croker married in Boston, June 19, 1875, Annie Bliss Keep, and they have five children. Residence: 343 Commonwealth Avenue. Address: Old South Building, Boston.

CROKER, Richard:

Ex-leader of Tammany Hall; born at Black Rock, Ireland, Nov. 24, 1843. He came to the United States at the age of three years, and attended the public schools of New York City. He was alderman in New York City, 1868-1870, and in 1885; coroner from 1873 to 1876; fire commissioner in 1883, and city chamberlain, 1889-1890. He attracted the attention of John Kelly; was prominent in opposing the Tweed Ring, and rose to be leader in Tammany Hall; and in 1897 he caused the election of Robert A. Van Wyck, first mayor of Greater New York. Mr. Croker is founder of the Democratic Club, now the National Democratic Club of New York City, of which he is a member. His favorite recreation is horse racing, and he has a stud of horses in England, and won the English Derby with his horse Corby in 1907. For several years Mr. Croker has been a resident of England, but in 1909 made an extended visit to the United States. Address: National Democratic Club, New York City.

CROMWELL, William Nelson:

Lawyer, financier. He was graduated from the Columbia Law School in 1876, and became a clerk and in 1877 a partner in the law firm of Sullivan, Kobbé & Fowler, which was succeeded by the firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, of which he is now the senior member. Mr. Cromwell has been retained in the largest financial organizations and reorganizations, was counsel for the Reorganization Committee of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company; organized the American Cotton Oil Company and the $80,000,000 National Tube Company; reorganized and set on its feet, under another title the Produce Exchange Trust Company; settled up the affairs of the Seventh National Bank, the Metropolitan Fire Engine Company and the tangle of the Penfield Companies. The affairs of the French Panama Canal Company were placed unreservedly in his hands, and the sale of the canal to the United States Government was negotiated under his direction. Mr. Cromwell is a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and of the Lawyers, Union League, New York and Metropolitan Clubs. He married Miss Jennie Osgood. Residence: 12 West 49th Street. Office: 49 Wall Street, New York City.

CROOK, Alja Robinson:

Curator, Illinois State Museum of Natural History; born in Circleville, Ohio, June 17, 1864; son of Isaac Crook, LL.D. and Emma (Wilson) LL.D. He was graduated at the Ohio Wesleyan University, A.B., 1887, and the University of Munich, Ph.D., 1892. After a thorough course of study in German Universities and terms at the British Museum, the Jardin des Plantes, etc., he became professor of natural history at Wheaton (Illinois) College, 1892-1893, then went to Northwestern University as professor of mineralogy and economic geology, and in 1906 became curator of the Illinois State Museum of Natural History. He organized the State Academy of Sciences in 1907, and is its secretary. He is a member of the Deutschen Geologischen Gesellschaft; the Sigma Xi Society, of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity; the State Academy of Science; and a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Geological Society of America. He is the author of a large number of papers and encyclopedia articles on mineralogy and general geology, and is a frequent contributor on similar topics. Dr. Crook has been an extensive traveler in the United States, Mexico, Europe and Asia Minor, and has mountaineered in the Urals, Caucasus, Alps and Rocky Mountains with partial ascents of Mount Elbruz (18,800), and ascent of Orizaba (18,300), Mt. Blanc (15,780), etc. He was married in Chillicothe, Ohio, Dec. 28, 1904, to Florence Wayne Purdum, and has one daughter. Residence: 826 South Glenwood Street. Office: State Museum of Natural History, Springfield, Ill.

CROSBY, John Schuyler:

Colonel, U. S. Army, retired; born in Albany County, N. Y., Sept. 19, 1839; son of Clarkson Floyd Crosby and Angelica (Schuyler) Crosby. He is a great-grandson of General William Floyd, signer of the Declaration of Independence, and also of Surgeon Ebenezer Crosby, of General Washington's Life Guard. He was graduated from the University of the City of New York, and after leaving college, made a voyage to China and crossed the continent of South America from Valparaiso to Montevideo. He served in the Civil War, entering as second lieutenant in the regular Artillery; served in the Army of the Potomac and later in the Department of the Gulf, as assistant adjutant-general and aide-de-camp on the staff of Major-General Banks, and from 1864 to 1871 served on the staff of Lieutenant-General Sheridan with the rank of lieutenant-colonel of the United States Army. In 1863 he was appointed by Governor Seymour colonel of the Seventh New York Heavy Artillery, United States Volunteers, but continued to serve on staff duty. He was brevetted four times for gallantry during the Civil War, and received an autograph letter from Abraham Lincoln, thanking him for carrying dispatches through the enemy's country to Admiral Farragut aboard the Hartford, in the Mississippi River. After the War, he served in several Indian campaigns with Generals Sheridan and Custer, as adjutant-general of those expeditions. He resigned from the army in 1871. He was consul to Florence, Italy, in 1876, and received a decoration from the King of Italy for discovering and helping to capture a band of criminals in Tuscany. He was governor of Montana, 1882-1884; first assistant postmaster-general of the United States, 1883-1886, school commissioner of New York City, 1889-1892. He is a Republican in politics. Colonel Crosby was awarded a medal of the first-class for saving life at sea. He is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, the Grand Army of the Republic, the Society of the Army of the Potomac, Sons of the Revolution, and St. Nicholas Society; and the Union, Army and Navy, and New York Yacht Clubs of New York City, and the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C. Colonel Crosby married at the Van Rensselaer manor, June 28, 1863, Harriet Van Rensselaer, daughter of the last patroon of Albany, N. Y., and he has a son, and a daughter. Address: Union Club, New York City.

CROSS, Charles Robert:

Professor of physics; born in Troy, N. Y., March 29, 1848; son of George and Lucy Ann (Brown) Cross. He was graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, as S.B. in 1870. He has remained at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology since graduation, and is Thayer professor of physics in charge of the Department and director of the Rogers Laboratory. In 1882, at his instigation, a course in electrical engineering, leading to a degree, was instituted at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, the first to be established in this country and one of the first in the world, and he was in charge of it for twenty years. He has published many scientific papers on acoustics and electricity, chiefly in the proceedings of the American Academy. He is an Independent in politics. Mr. Cross is a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Science, and for some years has been chairman of the Rumford Committee. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the British Association for the Advancement of Science, the French Physical Society, American Physical Society, American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and was president of the Appalachian Mountain Club in 1880, and he is a member of the St. Botolph, Oakley Country and Technology Clubs. Mr. Cross married in Salisbury, Mass., July 15, 1873, Mariana Pike, who died June 10, 1890, and they had two sons of whom one is now deceased. Residence: 100 Upland Road, Brookline, Mass. Address: Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Boston, Mass.

CROSS, Joseph:

Jurist; born in Morristown, N. J., Dec. 29, 1843; son of William and Sarah M. Cross. He was graduated from Princeton, A.B., 1865, A.M., 1868, studied law in office and at Columbia Law School and practised at Elizabeth, N. J., until 1905. He was a member, 1894-1895, and speaker 1895 in the New Jersey Assembly, member, 1889-1905 and president 1905 of the New Jersey Senate, and since April, 1905, was appointed to his present office as judge of the U. S. District Court for the District of New Jersey. Address: Elizabeth, N. J.

CROTHERS, Austin L.:

Governor of Maryland. He has long been active in the political affairs of Maryland as a Democrat, and in 1907 was nominated and elected to the office of governor for the four-year term expiring in 1912. Address: Annapolis, Md.

CROTHERS, George Edward:

Lawyer; born at Wapello, Iowa, May 27, 1870; son of John and Margaret (Fair) Crothers. He was graduated from the Leland Stanford, Junior, University, as A.B., in 1895, and as A.M. in Law in 1896. Since 1896 he has been engaged in law practice at San Francisco, Calif., where he is a member of the firm of Crothers and Crothers, his brother, T. G. Crothers, being the senior member of the firm. He was one of the attorneys for the executors and trustees of the Estate of James G. Fair, during the protracted litigation over that estate; represented Mrs. Stanford in the revision of the Stanford University Trustee and in reconveyance of the Stanford University endowment. He wrote and directed the movement which secured the adoption of a Constitutional Amendment and several laws relative to the security of the endowment of the University and the construction of trusts. Mr. Crothers is a member of the American Historical Society, the Archaeological Institute of America, the American Political Science Society, the Schoolmasters' Club of California, the Seismological Society of America, The American Geographical Society and the American Municipal League. He is a trustee of the Stanford Kindergarten Trust, and a member of the Board of Trustees of Stanford University, being the only graduate of Stanford on the Board. Residence: 2908 Pacific Avenue. Office: 612, 615 Call Building, San Francisco, Calif.

CROTHERS, Samuel McChord:

Clergyman; born at Oswego, Ill., June 7, 1857; son of Hon. John M. and Nancy (Foster) Crothers. He was graduated from Princeton College A.B. in 1874; afterward studied theology at the Union Theological Seminary in New York, and he received the honorary degree of S.T.D. from Harvard University in 1899, and that of Litt.D. from Saint Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y., in 1904. He was ordained in the ministry of the Unitarian Church, and entered upon his first pastorate at Eureka, Nev.; and he was afterward minister at Santa Barbara, Calif., Brattleboro, Vt., and St. Paul, Minn., and since 1894 has been minister over the First Parish at Cambridge, Mass.; and he is also preacher to Harvard University. Dr. Crothers has also attained distinction in the literary field as author of: Members of One Body; Miss Muffet's Christmas Party; The Gentle Reader; The Un- derstanding Heart; and various contributions to magazines. He married at Santa Barbara, Calif., Sept. 9, 1882, Louise M. Bronson. Address: 20 Oxford Street, Cambridge, Mass.

CROWDER, Enoch H.:

Colonel, U. S. Army; born in Missouri, April 11, 1859. He was appointed a cadet at the United States Military Academy, Sept. 1, 1877; was commissioned second lieutenant of the Eighth Cavalry, June 11, 1886; first lieutenant, July 5, 1886; major (judge advocate), Jan. 24, 1895; lieutenant-colonel, May 21, 1901, and colonel, April 16, 1903. Address: War Department, Washington, D. C.

CROWNINSHIELD, Caspar S.:

Consular official; born at Nice, France, in 1871; son of Rear-Admiral Arent Schuyler Crowninshield, of the United States Navy, and Mary (Bradford) Crowninshield, distinguished novelist. He was appointed commercial agent of the United States at Castellamare di Stabia, Italy, April 27, 1901, promoted to consul at the same place, June 22, 1906, and about a year later was promoted to his present office as consul at Naples, Italy. Address: American Consulate, Naples, Italy.

CROZIER, William:

Brigadier-general United States Army; born at Carrollton, Ohio, Feb. 19, 1855; son of Judge Robert and Margaret Crozier. He was graduated from West Point in 1876, and was assigned to the Fourth Artillery. He served under Generals Crook and Howard in campaigns against the Sioux and Bannocks in 1876-1877 and 1878, and in 1879 became instructor of mathematics at the United States Military Academy, until 1884. After a competitive examination in 1881 he entered the Ordnance Department, and he has ever since served as an ordnance officer. He was promoted captain in 1890. In association with General Buffington he invented the Buffington-Crozier disappearing gun-carriage, now in general use in American coast-defense works, and he is also inventor of a wire-wrapped rifle. He served as major and inspector-general of United States volunteers in the Spanish-American War from May 17 to Nov. 30, 1898. He was one of the American delegates to the Peace Conference at The Hague in 1899; served on the staff of General Bates and of General Selwan in the campaign in Southern Luzon of the Philippine Insurrection; was chief ordnance officer of the Pekin Relief Expedition under General Chaffee in 1900; was appointed professor of natural and experimental philosophy at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, in 1901, but declined the appointment; was promoted brigadier-general and has been chief of ordnance of the United States Army since Nov. 22, 1901. Address: War Department, Washington, D. C.

CRUMPACKER, Edgar Dean:

Lawyer and congressman; born in LaPorte County, Ind. He was educated in the common schools and at the Valparaiso Academy. He was admitted to the bar in 1876, and has been in the practice of law at Valparaiso, Ind., ever since. He was prosecuting attorney for the Thirty-first Judicial District of Indiana, 1884-1888, and then served as appellate judge in the State of Indiana, by appointment, under Governor Hovey, from March, 1891, to Jan. 1, 1893. Mr. Crumpacker was elected in 1896 from the Tenth Indiana District to the Fifty-fifth Congress and re-elected in 1898, 1900, 1902, 1904, 1906 and 1908, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. He is especially known as an advocate of the reduction of the representation of Southern States in the Congress of the United States in the ratio in which such States have disfranchised citizens of the United States by laws establishing qualifications for voting. Address: Valparaiso, Ind.

CRUNDEN, Frederick Morgan:

Librarian; born at Gravesend, Kent, England, Sept. 1, 1847; son of Benjamin Robert and Mary (Morgan) Crunden. He has been a resident of St. Louis from infancy. He won a scholarship at Washington University and completed the course in three years, graduating with the degree of A.B. in 1868, and he received from that university the degree of A.M. in 1872 and that of LL.D. in 1905. After his graduation he engaged in teaching until 1872, when he became a professor in Washington University; was appointed, in 1877, librarian and secretary of the St. Louis Public Library, in which position he has ever since continued. He is a member of the executive committee of the American Library Institute, a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the St. Louis Artists' Guild, St. Louis Academy of Science, Missouri Historical Society, American Social Science Association, American Economic Association, and American Civic Federation. He has delivered numerous addresses on sociological and educational topics and is an occasional contributor to leading magazines. Mr. Crunden married in St. Louis, 1889, Kate Edmondson. Address: The Public Library, St. Louis, Mo.

CUDAHY, John:

Packer; born at Callan, in County Kilkenny, Ireland, Nov. 2, 1843; son of Patrick and Elizabeth (Shaw) Cudahy. The family removed to the United States in 1849, and settled at Milwaukee, Wis. There he attended the public schools until he was fourteen years old, when he went to work in the packing house of Edward Roddis at Milwaukee, remaining there three years and then in the employ of John Plankinton and his successor, the firm of Plankinton and Armour, until in 1865 he went into business for himself as a dealer in ornamental and fruit trees. In 1870 he again became connected with the packing business and was with several Milwaukee firms until 1875, when he became a partner in the firm of Chapin and Company of Chicago. In 1877 the firm became Chapin and Cudahy, and afterward changed to the Cudahy Packing Company. In 1881 with his brothers, Michael and Patrick, he established the firm of Cudahy Brothers, and for years, in these and other connections, has been one of the most prominent representatives of the packing, provision and grain interests of Chicago. Mr. Cudahy married, first, at Bridgeport, Conn., in 1873, Mary Nolan, and second at Chicago, Margaret F. O'Neil. Residence: 3254 Michigan Avenue. Office: 145 Van Buren Street, Chicago, Ill.

CUDAHY, Michael:

Packer; born at Callan, County Kilkenny, Ireland, Dec. 7, 1841; son of Patrick and Elizabeth (Shaw) Cudahy. The family emigrated in 1849 and settled in Milwaukee, Wis., and he was educated in the public schools there. He learned the butcher's trade with his father, and in 1856 entered the packing house of John Plankinton at Milwaukee, remaining there until 1866 when he became connected with the packing house of Edward Roddis at Milwaukee, and afterward for four years was manager of the packing house of Plankinton and Armour at Milwaukee. He was a partner with Philip D. Armour in the firm of Armour and Company from 1873 to 1890, removing to Chicago. In 1881 he joined his brothers, John and Patrick Cudahy, in establishing the firm of Cudahy Brothers, of which he is the senior member, and he is also president of the Cudahy Packing Company, conducting large packing and provision enterprises at Milwaukee, Omaha, Sioux City and Los Angeles. Mr. Cudahy is also president of the North American Transportation and Trading Company, and a director of the Bankers' National Bank of Chicago. He is a member of the Union League, Chicago Yacht, Sheridan, Glen View and Exmoor Clubs. Residence: 3138 Michigan Avenue. Office address: 763 The Rookery, Chicago, Ill.

CUDAHY, Patrick:

Packer; born at Callan, County of Kilkenny, Ireland, March 17, 1849; son of Patrick and Elizabeth (Shaw) Cudahy, and three months after his birth was brought to the United States by his parents, who settled in Milwaukee. He was educated in the public schools of Milwaukee until he was twelve years old, when he became a delivery boy for a Milwaukee grocery firm, and two years later he became an employee of the packing house of Edward Roddis and Company. He was afterward in the employ of two other Milwaukee packing firms and then of Plankinton and Armour, and of the latter he became superintendent in 1874 and a partner in 1876. In 1888, with his brother, John Cudahy, he bought out the interests of Mr. Plankinton in the latter firm, which became Cudahy Brothers, his brother, Michael, later becoming interested also; and the business was in 1893 removed to a new plant near Milwaukee at a place now named Cudahy, and the business incorporated as the Cudahy Brothers Company, of which Mr. Patrick Cudahy is president and general manager. He is also identified with other Milwaukee corporations. Mr. Cudahy is a member of the Milwaukee Club. He married in Milwaukee, 1877, Annie A. Madden. Address: Milwaukee, Wis.

CULBERSON, Charles A.:

United States senator; born in Dadeville, Tallapoosa County, Ala., June 10, 1855; the eldest son of the late David B. Culberson, for twenty-two years a member of the House of Representatives from Texas, and of Eugenia (Kimball) Culberson. In 1856 he removed with his parents from Alabama to Texas and resided at Gilmer and Jefferson until 1887, when he removed to Dallas. He was graduated from the Virginia Military Institute at Lexington in the class of 1874; and studied law under his father and at the University of Virginia in 1876 and 1877. Mr. Culberson was elected attorney-general of Texas in 1890 and 1892, governor of Texas in 1894 and 1896, was a delegate at large to the Democratic National Conventions at Chicago in 1896 and at St. Louis in 1904, and was chairman of the Texas delegation at both. He was chosen United States Senator Jan. 25, 1899, with only three opposing votes, to succeed Rogers Q. Mills, and was unanimously reelected in 1905. His term of office will expire March 3, 1911. Address: Dallas, Texas.

CULLEN, Edgar Montgomery:

Jurist; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Dec. 4, 1843; son of Dr. Henry J. and Eliza M. (McCuy) Cullen. He received his preparatory education in Kinderhook Academy and was graduated from Columbia College, A.B. 1860, receiving the LL.D. degree from that college, 1892, and from Union College, 1905. He was commissioned second lieutenant of the 1st U. S. Infantry, 1862, first lieutenant, 1863, and colonel of the 96th New York Volunteers, 1863-1865. He was admitted to the bar of the State of New York and practised until elected, in 1880, a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York. He was reelected in 1894 and was designated a judge of the Court of Appeals of New York in Jan., 1900; appointed chief judge of that court in Sept., 1904, and elected to that office in 1904. Judge Cullen is a Democrat in politics and an Episcopalian in religion. Address: 14 Willow Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CULLOM, Shelby Moore:

United States senator; born in Wayne County, Ky., Nov. 22, 1829; his father removed to Tazewell County, Ill., the following year. He received an academic and university education, and went to Springfield in the fall of 1853 to study law and has since resided there. Immediately upon receiving license to practise he was elected city attorney. He continued to practise law until he took his seat in the House of Representatives in 1865. He was a Presidential elector in 1866, on the Fillmore Ticket; was elected a member of the House of Representatives of the Illinois Legislature in 1856, 1860, 1872 and 1874, and was elected speaker in 1861 and 1873. Mr. Cullom was elected a representative from Illinois in the Thirty-ninth, Fortieth and Forty-first Congresses, serving from Dec. 4, 1865, to March 3, 1871. He was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Philadelphia in 1872, being chairman of the Illinois delegation, and placed General Grant in nomination. He was a delegate to the National Republican in 1884, and was chairman of the Illinois delegation. He was elected governor of Illinois in 1876 and reelected in 1880, serving from Jan. 8, 1877, until Feb. 6, 1883, when he resigned, having been elected to the United State Senate to succeed David Davis, Independent Democrat. He took his seat Dec. 4, 1883, and was reelected in 1888 and 1894. 1900 and again in 1906. He was a member of the commission appointed to prepare a system of laws for the Hawaiian Islands. His term of office will expire March 3, 1913. Residence: Springfield, Ill. Address: 1413 Massachusetts Avenue, Washington, D. C.

CUMMINGS, Edward:

Clergyman; born at Colebrook, Coos County, N. H., April 20, 1861; son of Edward Norris and Lueretia Frances (Merrill) Cummings. He was graduated from Harvard College as A.B. in 1883 and A.M. in 1885; and he was a student at the Harvard Divinity School from 1883 to 1885, and afterward in the Graduate School of Harvard University. He was the first incumbent of the Robert Paine Fellowship in Social Science, 1888-1891, and studied sociology in Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany, was a resident of Toynbee Hall in Whitechapel, London, in the winter of 1888-1889; studied at the École Libre des Sciences Politiques at Paris and at the University of Berlin. He was instructor 1891-1893, and assistant professor of sociology, 1893-1900, at Harvard, and since Oct., 1900, has been minister of the old South Congregational Church, Boston, being associated with Dr. Edward Everett Hale, minister emeritus. He is well known as a lecturer and writer on sociological subjects, and was one of the editors of the Quarterly Journal of Economics. He is a director of Hale House Social Settlement, vice-president of the Benevolent Fraternity of Churches, and president of the Massachusetts Civic League. Mr. Cummings is president of the Association for Promoting the Interests of the Adult Blind, and a director of the Industrial Aid Society, the Watch and Ward Society, and the Boston Associated Charities, and of the Massachusetts Prison Association. He married at Roxbury, Mass., June 25, 1891, Rebecca Haswell Clarke, and they have two children. Address: 104 Irving Street, Cambridge, Mass.

CUMMINS, Albert Baird:

United States senator; born at Carmichael, Pa., Feb. 15, 1850. He received his education at the Academy at Waynesburg, Pa., studied law, and was admitted to the bar of that State. He went to Iowa and located in practice at Des Moines. Mr. Cummins was a member of the Republican National Committee from 1896 to 1900, and in 1901 he was elected governor of Iowa for the term expiring in 1904. He was renominated in 1903 for the term ending in 1906, and again in 1906 for the term expiring 1908. He was elected by the Iowa Legislature, after the death of Senator Allison in Aug., 1908, to fill the United States senatorial term expiring March 4, 1909, and was reelected in Jan., 1909, for the full term as U. S. senator, expiring March 4, 1915. Governor Cummins has a great reputation as a campaigner, and, while he has antagonized a faction in his own party, he has built up an enthusiastic and victorious following among the progressive element of the party in his State. He was strongly urged for the vice-presidential nomination on the Republican ticket in 1908 and was believed to be the administration's choice for the honor. Address: Des Moines, Iowa.

CUNNINGHAM, Andrew Chase:

Civil engineer, U. S. Navy; born in Mohawk, Herkimer County, New York, Feb. 15, 1858; son of Thomas and Celeste (Chase) Cunningham. He was graduated from the United States Naval Academy in 1879, and the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1885. He served as an officer in the line of the Navy, until 1883, then resigned and took up the study of civil engineering. He followed this profession until the Spanish-American War, in which he served as volunteer ensign, and at the end of the war was appointed to the corps of civil engineers, U. S. Navy. Mr. Cunningham is distinguished as an expert in properties of iron and steel, and has made inventions, including floating dry docks, devices and methods for coaling ships at sea, and inventions for the burning of liquid fuel. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the United States Naval Institute, the American Society of Naval Engineers, and the University Club of Washington. He married at Middleville, N. Y., in 1879, Jessie E. Thomas. Address: Navy Department, Washington.

CUNNINGHAM, Edwin S.:

Lawyer and American consul; born in Sevier County, Tenn., July 6, 1868; son of Major Ben and Jane A. (Sheddan) Cunningham. He was graduated from Maryville College, Maryville, Tenn., as A.B., in 1889, and from the University of Michigan as LL.B. in 1893. He was junior member of the law firm of Cates & Cunningham, Maryville, Tenn., until Feb., 1898, when he was appointed consul to Aden, Arabia, by President McKinley. He was transferred to Bergen, Norway, in 1903, and to Durban, Natal, in 1906, by President Roosevelt; and is now American consul at Durban. Mr. Cunningham has traveled extensively in the United States, Mexico, and Canada, Southern and Northern Europe, the United Kingdom, and parts of Asia and Africa. He is a Republican in politics and a Presbyterian in religion, and he is a member of the Knights of Pythias. Home: Maryville, Tenn. Address: Durban, Natal, Africa.

CUNNINGHAM, John F.:

Catholic bishop of Concordia; born in the parish of Irremore, County Kerry, Ireland, in July, 1842; son of John and Catherine (Fitzgerald) Cunningham. He received his preparatory education in the classical school at Listowel, Ireland, then came to the United States and entered St. Benedict's College, at Atchison, Kan., from which he was graduated in 1860, and afterward took the theological course at St. Francis' Seminary, Milwaukee, Wis., from which he received the degree of D.D.

He was ordained priest in the cathedral at Leavenworth, Kan., Aug. 8, 1865, and was the first Catholic resident pastor at Fort Scott, Kan., 1865-1868, and transferred to Saint John's Church, Lawrence, Kan., in 1868. He remained pastor there until 1876, building a new church and pastor's residence. After the devastation from the drought and grasshoppers, he went all over the Eastern States securing donations for the relief of the Kansas sufferers and for the payment of the debt of Leavenworth Cathedral. He was pastor of the Church of the Assumption at Topeka, Kan., 1876-1882, building a new church and securing much church property for that parish, became vicar-general of the diocese of Leavenworth, Jan. 1, 1881, and rector of Leavenworth Cathedral from 1882 to 1898. Sept. 21, 1898, he was consecrated bishop of Concordia, Kan., since then administering the affairs of that diocese. Address: Concordia, Kan.

CUNNINGHAM, John L.:

Fire insurance president; born in Hudson, N. Y., April 5, 1840; son of Jeremiah and Bethia (White) Cunningham. He was educated in the common and private schools, and the Union University Law School at Albany, N. Y., graduating in 1861 with the degree of LL.B. Mr. Cunningham practised law at Essex, New York, until he enlisted in the 118th New York Regiment and went to the front and saw much active service. He was for some time provost marshal at Portsmouth, Va., and came out of the war as major and brevet lieutenant-colonel. On his return from the war he was appointed collector of internal revenue for the Sixteenth Congressional District of New York, but resigned to join the field force of the Glens Falls Insurance Company, as special agent. He was elected in 1872 secretary of the company and was virtually its manager. Since the death of President Little in 1892, Mr. Cunningham has been president and director of the company. He is a Republican and an elder of the Presbyterian Church. He married at Chester-town, N. Y., Elizabeth Fowler, now deceased.

He has one daughter, Beth, now the wife of William A. Brown of Glens Falls, N. Y. Address: Glens Falls, N. Y.

CUPPLES, Samuel:

Merchant and manufacturer; born in Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 13, 1831; son of James and Elizabeth (Bigham) Cupples. He received his education in the public schools and at the age of twelve years began his business career as a boy in a grocery store at Pittsburg. He removed in 1846 to Cincinnati, where he entered the employ of A. O. Tyler, the pioneer manufacturer of wooden-ware in the West, and there became thoroughly acquainted with the wooden-ware business. In 1851 he removed to St. Louis, and began as a manufacturer of wooden-ware on his own account, as Samuel Cupples & Company, which within a few years became the largest enterprise of its kind in the United State; and he is now president of the Samuel Cupples Wooden-Ware Company, operating the largest business of its kind in the world and controlling many subsidiary companies, president of the Samuel Cupples Real Estate Company of St. Louis, and of the Samuel Cupples Envelope Company, and he is also interested as director in other industrial and financial corporations. Mr. Cupples is a Methodist in his religious affiliation. He married in St. Louis, in 1854, Amelia Kells, now deceased, and has one daughter, Mrs. Amelia Cupples Seudder. Residence: 3673 Pine Boulevard. Office address: Seventh and Spruce Streets, St. Louis, Mo.

CURRAN, Charles Courtney:

Artist; born at Hartford, Ky., Feb. 13, 1861; son of Ulysses Thompson and Elizabeth (Thompson) Curran. He was educated in Ohio at the common schools and high school, being graduated from the latter. He has received second and third Halgarten prizes and the Clarke Prize for the best figure picture from the National Academy of Design, also honorable mention, at the Paris Salon, besides being the recipient of various medals from the Chicago Columbian Exposition in 1893, the Atlanta Cotton States Exposition in 1895, the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901, and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis, 1904. He received the Carnegie Prize of five hundred dollars from the Society of American Artists and the first Corcoran Prize in Washington. Mr. Curran has served as assistant to the director of Fine Arts at the Paris Exposition in 1900, and as assistant director of Fine Arts of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo. He is secretary and treasurer of the Colonial Studios (stock company) and has made three trips to Europe. In 1904 he was elected member of the National Academy of Design, being also a member of the American Water Color Society, of the New York Water Color Club and of the Salmagundi Club. He is a life member of the Lotos Club and Fencers' Club of New York City. His chief recreation is fencing. He married at Norwalk, Ohio, in 1888, Grace Winthrop Wickham, and has had three children. Address: 39 West Sixty-seventh Street, New York City.

CURRIER, Frank Dunklee:

Lawyer and congressman; born at Canaan, N. H., Oct. 30, 1853. He received his education in the common schools and in the Academy. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1874. Mr. Currier was a member of the New Hampshire House of Representatives in 1879, was secretary of the Republican State Committee, 1882-1890, and was clerk of the State Senate, 1883-1887. In 1884 he was a delegate to the Republican National Convention. He was president of the State Senate in 1887 and was naval officer of customs of the port of Boston, Mass., 1890-1894. He was speaker of the New Hampshire House of Representatives in 1899; was elected from the Second New Hampshire District in 1900 to the Fifty-seventh Congress and re-elected in 1902, 1904, 1906 and 1908, and is now serving in the Sixty-first Congress. Address: Canaan, N. H.

CURRY, George:

Governor of New Mexico. He was appointed by President Roosevelt, in 1907, to his present office of governor of the Territory of New Mexico. His term will expire Jan. 22, 1912. Address: Santa Fe, N. M.

CURRY, Samuel Silas:

President of the School of Expression; born at Chatata, Tenn., 1847; son of James Campbell Curry. He was graduated from Grant University in 1872, and afterward studied at Boston University, receiving the degrees of A.M. and B.D. in 1875 and of Ph.D. in 1879. He specialized in rhetorical and oratorical studies and studied elocution, expression, etc., under more than forty of the foremost teachers in Europe and America. He was professor of oratory at Boston University, 1879-1888, has been acting professor of elocution at Newton Theological Seminary since 1884, and was also instructor in elocution at Harvard College, 1891-1894, Harvard Divinity School, 1896-1902, the Divinity School at Yale, 1892-1902, and he founded and has from the first been president of the School of Expression. Dr. Curry is also author of several widely circulated volumes on the art of expression and related themes, including: The Province of Expression; Lessons in Vocal Expression; Imagination and Dramatic Instinct; Vocal and Literary Interpretation of the Bible; Foundations of Expression, etc., and is editor of: Classics for Vocal Expression. Residence: 5 Riedesel Avenue, Cambridge, Mass. Office: 301 Pierce Building, Boston.

CURTIN, Roland Gideon:

Physician; born at Bellefonte, Pa., Oct. 29, 1839; son of Dr. Constant Curtin and Mary Anne (Kinne) Curtin. He is a lineal descendant on the maternal side from Thomas Welles, the third governor of Connecticut, a descendant of John Humphries, the first lieutenant-governor of Massachusetts Bay Colony, under governor Winthrop and Colonial Governor Pyncheon, of Springfield, Mass. He was educated in the Bellefonte public schools and the Bellefonte Academy, at his birthplace, and graduated at Williston Seminary at Easthampton, Mass., in 1859, and at the University of Pennsylvania, in 1866 he received the degree of M.D., and Ph.D. in 1871, and he also received the honorary degree of A.M. from Lafayette College in 1883. He was engaged in the iron business in Philadelphia in 1859 and 1860, and after that served as United States naval storekeeper for over three years in the Civil War. After his graduation in medicine he was resident physician at the Philadelphia Hospital, 1866 and 1867, visited the hospitals in Great Britain and on the continent of Europe in 1868, and later in the same year became connected, as assistant United States geologist and surgeon, with the famous exploring expedition and geological survey of the Rocky Mountain region known as the Hayden Survey. He was professor of geology at the Wagner Free Institute of Philadelphia from 1871 to 1873, and later professor of mineralogy in George's Institute, Philadelphia. He was assistant physician to the Philadelphia Lying-in Charity from 1871 to 1882, was chief of the Medical Dispensary of the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania for ten years, was lecturer on physical diagnosis at the University of Pennsylvania for twenty years, assistant to the professor of clinical medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, 1879-1887, and also ex-president and historian of the Alumni Society of the Medical Department of the University of Pennsylvania, and physician to the Throat and Chest Department of Howard Hospital, 1876-1882. He was also visiting physician to the Maternity Hospital of Philadelphia for seven years, and has been visiting physician to the Presbyterian Hospital since 1887. He was a member of the medical staff of the Philadelphia General Hospital (Blockley) for twenty-five years, and president of its Medical Board from 1890 to 1906, and is now emeritus visiting physician to the same. He is also consulting physician to the Rush Hospital for Consumptives, St. Timothy's Hospital, Douglas Hospital, the Jewish Hospital. He is now a member and was formerly president of the American Climatological Society, president of the Philadelphia Medical Club, 1905-1906, member and was president, 1905-1906 of the Philadelphia County Medical Society, and physician to the University of Pennsylvania Hospital. He is an ex-member of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, and also of the American Anthropological Society, and the American Social Service Association. He is grand president of the Alpha Mu Pi Omega, medical fraternity, and a member of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity, and is president of the Phi Gamma Delta Graduate Club of Philadelphia. Dr. Curtin is a member of the American Medical Association, and was its delegate to the British Medical Association at London in 1895, a member of the Philadelphia County Medical Society, and is a member of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania. He was assistant medical director of the Centennial Exhibition in 1876, a member of the Committee of Arrangements of the International Medical Congress at Philadelphia in 1876, and was a member of the First, Second, Third and Fourth Pan-American Medical Congresses at Washington in 1893, Mexico in 1896, Cuba in 1902, and Panama in 1906. Dr. Curtin is a member of the Episcopal Church and is a manager of the Midnight Mission of Philadelphia. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Genealogical Society, the Pennsylvania Historical Society, Fairmount Park Association and the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia. He is a thirty-second degree Mason and a past master and a member of Post 2 of the Grand Army of the Republic; is past commander of the Philadelphia Association of Naval Veterans (from 1861 to 1865), and a member of the Sons of the American Revolution. He is a Republican in politics. Dr. Curtin married, at Hartford, Conn., March 21, 1882, Julia Taylor Robinson, who died March 18, 1905. Of this union there were two children: Roland G. Curtin, Jr., who died when one year old, and Mary Constance Curtin, born in 1886. Address: 22 South Eighteenth Street, Philadelphia.

CURTIS, Charles:

United States senator; born in what is now known as North Topeka, Shawnee County, Kansas, Jan. 25, 1880, and is of Indian descent. He received his education in the common schools of the city of Topeka, and studied law there with A. H. Case. He was admitted to the bar in 1881, and entered into partnership in 1881 with Mr. Case, remaining with him until 1884. Mr. Curtis was elected county attorney of Shawnee County in 1884 and reelected in 1886. He was elected to the Fifty-third Congress in 1892, and was reelected in 1894 and 1896 from the Fourth Kansas District. In 1897 Shawnee County was taken out of the Fourth District and placed in the First District. Mr. Curtis was nominated by the Republicans of the First District and elected in 1898 to the Fifty-sixth Congress, and he was reelected in 1900, 1902, 1904 and 1906. In January, 1907, he was elected to the United States Senate to fill out the term of J. R. Burton, resigned, and was elected for the full term beginning March 4, 1907 and ending in 1913. Senator Curtis is not only a fine example of the results of self-help, having secured his education and success in life through his own efforts, practically unaided but he is the most prominent man of the type which is becoming distinguished in the western states of men of Indian blood who are winning marked success in all lines of endeavor and on equal terms with the white men of their communities. Address: Topeka, Kan.

CURTIS, Cyrus H. K.:

Publisher; born at Portland, Me., June 18, 1850; son of Cyrus L. and Salome A. Curtis. After leaving school he went to Boston and engaged in the newspaper publishing business, and to Philadelphia in 1876, establishing the Tribune and Farmer, and later he founded the Ladies' Home Journal, which has met with the most remarkable success, attaining a monthly circulation of over one million copies. He organized the Curtis Publishing Co., of which he is president, to carry on that publication and added the Saturday Evening Post, an old paper which is the direct continuation of the Pennsylvania Gazette, founded by Benjamin Franklin in 1728. This weekly journal has also attained great popularity and a large circulation all over the United States. Mr. Curtis married at Boston, Mass., March 10, 1875, Louise Knapp, and they have a daughter, Mary Louise (wife of Edward W. Bok). Residence: Wynecote, Pa. Office: 425 Arch Street, Philadelphia.

CURTIS, Frank Charles:

Lawyer; born in Troy, N. Y. June 3, 1869; son of Charles H. and Gertrude L. (Mabee) Curtis. He was educated in public schools in Troy, and after studying law was admitted to the bar in that city. His practice is exclusively confined to patent law, and he is a member of the law firm of Mosher & Curtis; also a director of the Stockwell-Purser Realty Company. Mr. Curtis was formerly United States Commissioner. He served for six years in the 6th Separate Company of the National Guard of the State of New York. He is a member of the New York State Bar Association, Rensselaer County Bar Association, the Troy Chamber of Commerce, The Citizens' Corps of Troy, and the East Side, Pafraets Dael and Island Golf Clubs of Troy, N. Y. Mr. Curtis married in Schenectady, N. Y., June 27, 1908, Marie Josephine Ledue. Residence: 8 Terrace Place. Office: Cannon Place, Troy, N. Y.

CURTIS, William Edmond:

Lawyer; born in New York City, June 2, 1855; the eldest son of the late William Edmond Curtis, chief justice of the Superior Court of New York, and Mary A. (Scovill) Curtis. He was graduated from Trinity College, Hartford, 1875, received honorary degree of LL.D., 1902. He was admitted to the New York bar in 1877, and began practice as a member of the firm of Stearns & Curtis. From 1893 to 1897 he was assistant secretary of the Treasury of the United States, and during the term was for several months in England on a special mission for the Treasury Department. Since 1897 he has been senior member of the law firm of Curtis, Mallet-Prevost & Colt. Mr. Curtis is a Democrat and took an earnest part in the movement which resulted in the Syracuse Convention in 1892; and was treasurer of the Provisional State Committee. He was aqueduct commissioner of the City of New York under Mayor Low in 1902, and a delegate to the National Democratic Convention in 1904. Mr. Curtis is a member of the Episcopal Church. He is a life trustee of Trinity College; a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York; a fellow of the American Geographical Society; and a life member of the New York Historical Society and he is also a member of the Century Association, the Union, Tuxedo, Down Town, City, Midway, Manhattan, University, Church and City Clubs of New York City; the Garden City Golf Club, and the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C. Address: 27 West 47th Street, New York City.

CURTIS, William Eleroy:

Newspaper correspondent and author; born in Akron, Ohio, Nov. 5, 1850; son of Rev. Eleroy Curtis, D.D., and Harriet Eddy (Coe) Curtis. He was educated at the Western Reserve University, from which he received the degrees of A.B., A.M. and Litt. D. and he received the degree of LL.D. from Amherst College. He began his newspaper career by work on the Cleveland Leader, 1867-1871, during college vacations, then on the Erie Dispatch in 1871; the Toledo Commercial in 1872; the Inter-Ocean, Chicago, from May, 1872, to March, 1887; as managing editor from 1880 to 1884, and Washington correspondent and traveling correspondent the remainder of the time. Since 1887 he has been with the Chicago Record and its successor, The Chicago Record-Herald, in which his daily letters from Washington and from all over the world have been a leading feature for twenty years. Mr. Curtis has visited all parts of the world and a letter from his pen has appeared in the first columns of the first page every morning since Dec. 3, 1903. He was minister plenipotentiary of the United States to Mexico and the Republics of Central and South America in 1884; special envoy to His Holiness the Pope in 1892; special envoy to the King of Spain in 1892; commissioner to the Columbus Exposition, Madrid, in 1892; chief of the Latin-American Department, and Historical Section of the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago in 1893; executive officer of the First Pan-American Conference; founder and first director of the Bureau of American Republics in 1890, and commissioner of the Vatican for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1903. He is a Republican in politics, a Presbyterian in religious affiliation, and a trustee of the Church of the Covenant at Washington. Mr. Curtis is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Historical Association, the National Geographic Society of the United States; and many other learned societies of Europe and America; the Sons of the American Revolution and is grand commander of the (Spanish) Order of Isabella the Catholic. He is a member of the Union League, and Alpha Delta Phi Clubs, New York; the Cosmos and Press Clubs of Washington and the Press Club of Chicago, the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity and the Phi Beta Kappa Society. Mr. Curtis is author of a large number of volumes of travel, works on political economy, biography and novels. He married at Erie, Pa., Dec. 24, 1874, Cora Isabel Kepler, and they have two children. Residence: 1801 Connecticut Avenue, N. W. Office: Home Life Building, Washington, D. C.

CUTLER, Condict Walker:

Physician; born at Morristown, N. J., 1859; son of Augustus W. Cutler and Julia R. (Walker) Cutler. He was graduated from Rutgers College as B.S. in 1879, and as M.S. in 1882; and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons (Columbia) as M.D. in 1882, receiving the first honor and the Harsen prize. He was formerly professor of dermatology at the University of Vermont, and attending physician of the New York City Hospital. Dr. Cutler is an Independent Democrat, and a member of the Dutch Reformed Church. He is a fellow of the New York Academy of Medicine; member of the New York County Medical Society, New York Dermatological Society (ex-president), and Zeta Psi; trustee of the New York Dispensary; member of the Medical Board of Free Industrial School for Crippled Children, New York City. He is author of Differential Medical Diagnosis of Diseases of the Skin; Lectures on Dermatology; Treatment of Typhoid Fever; Essentials of Physics and Chemistry; etc. He married in New York City, 1884, Cora Carpenter, and they have one child, Condict Walker, Jr., born in 1889. Address: 616 Madison Avenue, New York City.

CUTLER, John C.:

Ex-governor and merchant; born in Sheffield, England, Feb. 5, 1846; son of John and Elizabeth Robinson Cutler. He was educated in private schools in England. Governor Cutler began business in Utah, in July, 1877, as agent of the Provo Woolen Mills and in 1896 incorporated the business under the firm name of Cutler Brothers and Company, of which he is president. He is a director of the Utah Sugar Company and the Idaho Sugar Company and a member of the executive committee of the Tremont Sugar Company of Idaho, and of the Desert National Bank, Desert Savings Bank, of Salt Lake City, the Utah Light and Power Company, the Provo Woolen Mills Company, of Sugar City, Idaho, the Townsite Company, the Home Fire Insurance Company of Utah, and the People's Co-operative Institution of Lehi, Utah. He was county clerk of Salt Lake County, 1884-1890, and was elected in 1904 governor of Utah for the term from 1905 to 1909. He is a Republican in politics and a member of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial Congress. He is also a member of the Alta and Commercial Clubs, of which he was vice-president in 1902. Governor Cutler is a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints (Mormon). Mr. Cutler married at Salt Lake City, April 3, 1871, Sarah Elizabeth Taylor. Residence: 935 West Temple Street. Office address: 36 Main Street, Salt Lake City, Utah.

CUTTING, Robert Fulton:

President of the Citizens' Union of New York City; born in New York City, in June, 1852; son of Fulton and Justine (Bayard) Cutting. He was graduated from Columbia College in 1871. Mr. Cutting is director of several large corporations; president of the New York Trade School, and of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor; also a director of the City and Suburban Home Company. He is an Episcopalian and a member of the Delta Phi, Columbia University Alumni Association, the American Museum of Natural History, and the American Economic Association. He has taken active part in politics as head of the Citizens' Union in campaigns from 1897. He is also a member of the Delta Phi fraternity, the Century Association, and the City, Church and Tuxedo Clubs. Mr. Cutting married first in 1875, Natalie C. P. Schenck, who died in 1876; and second, January, 1883, Helen Suydam. He has six children. Residence: 24 East 67th Street. Address: 32 Nassau Street, New York City.

CUTTING, William Bayard:

Lawyer; born in New York City, Jan. 12, 1850; son of Fulton and Elise Justine (Bayard) Cutting. He was graduated from Columbia College, A.B., 1869, A.M., 1869-1871, and LL.B., 1871. He was admitted to the bar in New York in 1871. He became president of the St. Louis, Alton and Terre Haute Railroad Company in 1878, and is now trustee of the United States Trust Company, a director of the American Exchange National Bank, the Commercial Union Assurance Company, the American Beet Sugar Company, the City and Suburban Homes Company and Southern Pacific Railroad. Mr. Cutting was a civil service commissioner of New York City under Mayor William L. Strong; and he is a Republican, and a member of the Episcopal Church. He is a director of the New York Botanical Gardens, the American Museum of Natural History, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Zoölogical Society; and is a trustee of Columbia College. Mr. Cutting is a member of the Century Association, and the Union, Metropolitan, Players', National Arts, South Side, Tuxedo, University, City, Delta Phi, Grolier, Church, and Jekyl Clubs. He married at the University Place Presbyterian Church, April 26, 1877, Olivia Peyton Murray. Their children are: William Bayard, Jr., born June 13, 1878; Justine Bayard, born Sept. 5, 1879; Bronson Murray, born June 23, 1888, and Olivia, born, 1892. Address: 24 East 77th Street, New York City.

CUYLER, Thomas De Witt:

Lawyer; born in Philadelphia, Sept. 28, 1854; son of Theodore Cuyler and Mary (deWitt) Cuyler. He was graduated from Yale, as B.A. in 1874. He was admitted to the bar in 1876, and has since been engaged in practice in Philadelphia. He is judge advocate-general to the National Guard of Pennsylvania, a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, Equitable Life Insurance Society, and other financial institutions. He is a member of the Society of the Cincinnati, and of the Philadelphia, and Rittenhouse Clubs of Philadelphia, and the Century, University, and Union of New York. He married in Philadelphia, May 3, 1881, Francis Lewis. Address: 1830 Spruce Street. Office address: 701 Arcade Building, Philadelphia.

D

DABNEY, Charles William:

President of the University of Cincinnati; born at Hampden-Sidney, Va., June 19, 1855; son of Major Robert L. Dabney, Gen. "Stonewall" Jackson's chief of staff and biographer. He was graduated from Hampden-Sidney College, A.B., 1873, from the University of Virginia, 1877; and received the degrees of Ph.D. from the University of Gottingen, 1880, LL.D., Yale, 1901, and Johns Hopkins, 1902. He was professor of chemistry in the Emory and Henry College of Virginia, 1877-1878, State chemist and director of the Agricultural Experiment Station of North Carolina at Raleigh, 1880-1887, president of the University of Tennessee from 1887-1904, and since 1904 president of the University of Cincinnati. He was director of the Tennessee Agricultural Experiment Station, 1887-1890, assistant secretary of agriculture of the United States, 1894-1897, chairman of United States Government exhibits at the Nashville Exposition, 1897, and the Atlanta Exposition, 1895. He was juror in the department of agronomy at the Paris Exposition of 1900, has been a member of the Southern Education Board since 1902, and was president of the Summer School of the South, 1902-1904. Dr. Dabney is author of: Reports of North Carolina Agricultural Experiment Station, 1880-1887 on Phosphates, Pyrites, Black Tin in North Carolina, etc.; Reports of Tennessee Station of the University of Tennessee, 1887-1890; The Old College and the New, 1894; The National University, 1897; A National Department of Science, 1897; History of Agricultural Education in America; Education and Agriculture, 1899; Condition of the Public Schools in the Southern States; Thomas Jefferson and Public Education; Educational Principles for the South; Man in the Democracy; Agriculture and Science at the International Congress, St. Louis, 1905, etc. He married at Lexington, Ky., Aug. 24, 1881, Mary Brent, and they have two daughters. Address: The University of Cincinnati, Cincinnati, Ohio.

DAGGETT, Mary Stewart:

Author; born in Morristown, Ohio; daughter of Rev. John B. and Nancy (MacGregor) Stewart. She was graduated from the Steubenville (Ohio) Seminary as valedictorian of the Class of 1873, married in Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 7, 1875, Charles Daniel Daggett, and has a son and three daughters. Since 1890 she has resided in Pasadena, where she has a delightful home at Columbia Hill, occupying a six-acre tract facing the mountains and surrounded by the garden homes of Pasadena. During her residence there in addition to her family and social interests, Mrs. Daggett has devoted certain intervals to literary work, and has published two novels: Mariposilla, 1895, and The Broad Aisle, 1899; also numerous short stories and articles for California publications; also Eastern magazines, the most notable series being Chinese stories in The Outlook, written with intent to alleviate the injustice of the present Chinese Exclusion Act; and has also contributed California stories to The Reader Magazine. At the Schiller Memorial, Chicago, 1905, Mrs. Daggett was included among the seventy-five writers comprising the memorial autograph volume. Mrs. Daggett is a member of the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris. Address: Columbia Hill, Pasadena, Calif.

DAHLMAN, James C.:

Stockman and mayor; born in Texas, in 1856. He was educated in the public schools of Texas, learned the details of driving and managing live stock on the Texas ranges, and in 1878 he went to Nebraska, of which State he has since been a citizen, engaging in the live stock business at Chadron, Neb., and residing there until about ten years ago, when he removed to Omaha. He is a Democrat in politics, was a member of the City Council, 1884-1887, and mayor, 1894-1895, at Chadron, Neb.; sheriff of Daws County, Neb., for three terms, 1888-1894. He was a delegate to the National Democratic Conventions of 1892 and 1896; was appointed secretary of the State Board of Transportation, 1897; was elected chairman of the Nebraska Democratic State Committee of Nebraska, 1896; and served four years; and since 1900 has been the Nebraska member of the Democratic National Committee, and a member of its Executive Committee. He was also chairman of the Democratic County Committee of Douglas County, Nebraska. At the city election in 1905 he was elected mayor of the city of Omaha for the term expiring May 21, 1909. Address: 2901 Hickory Street, Omaha, Neb.

DAINGERFIELD, Elliott:

Artist; born at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., March 26, 1859; son of John E. P. Daingerfield and Matilda (Brua) Daingerfield. He was educated in the public school and academies and by private tutors at Fayetteville, N. C. He studied drawing and painting in New York City, with a private teacher and at the Art Student's League. He first exhibited his works at the National Academy of Design in 1880 and he studied in Europe in 1897. He was commissioned to paint the Lady Chapel of the Church of Mary the Virgin, New York City in 1902, and is professor of painting and composition at the Philadelphia School of Design and at Blowing Rock, N. C. Mr. Daingerfield's principal paintings are the Madonna and Child, property of Haley Fiske; Child of Mary, for which he received a silver medal and The Story of the Madonna, which was awarded a prize in 1902. "Slumbering Fog" in Metropolitan Museum, "The Midnight Moon" in Brooklyn Institute, and important works in many private galleries. He received the silver medal at the Pan American Exposition in 1901, and the Clarke prize, of the National Academy of Design in 1902. He is a member of the Fine Arts Federation, the Municipal Art Association, the Society of American Artists, and is a National Academician. He is also a member of the New York Water Color, Lotos and Church Clubs. Mr. Daingerfield married at Louisville, Ky., Dec. 30, 1895, Anna E. Grainger, and they have two children: Marjorie Jay, and Gwendoline. Address: 222 Central Park South, New York City.

DALAND, William Clifton:

President of Milton College; born in New York City, Oct. 25, 1860. He was graduated from the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, A.B., in 1879, and from the Union Theological Seminary, New York, 1886; from Alfred University with the degree of A.M. for three years' work in Semitic languages, 1887, and received the degree of D.D. at Milton College in 1895, and from Alfred University in 1903. He was ordained to the ministry of the Seventh-day Baptist Church in 1885. From 1886 to 1891 and again, from 1900 to 1902, he was pastor at Leonardsville, N. Y.; at Westerly, R. I., 1891-1896; and in London, England, 1896-1900. Dr. Daland has been president of Milton College since September, 1902. He published in 1887 and 1888, a translation from the Hebrew of The Song of Solomon with annotations. He married at Elizabeth, N. J., 1884, Agnes B. Norton. Address: Milton, Wis.

DALE, Alan (Alfred J. Cohen):

Dramatic critic; born in Birmingham, England, May 14, 1861. He was educated in King Edward's school at Birmingham, came to the United States in 1886, and has ever since been engaged in journalism in New York City. He was dramatic critic of the New York Evening World, 1887-1895, and since then has been dramatic critic of the New York Journal. He is author of: Jonathan's Home; A Marriage Below Zero; My Footlight Husband; An Eerie He and She; Familiar Chats with Queens of the Stage; A Moral Busybody; Miss Innocence; Conscience on Ice; A Girl Who Wrote; His Own Image; Wanted, A Cook; The Great Wet Way, a book which tells of incidents and experiences in crossing the Atlantic. He married in 1886, Carrie Livingston Frost. Residence: 110 St. Nicholas Avenue. Office: New York Journal, New York City.

DALE, Thomas Nelson:

Geologist of the United States Geological Survey; born in New York City, Nov. 25, 1845; son of Thomas Nelson and Sarah Patten (Monson) Dale. He was educated at a private school at Frankfort in Germany, and under private tutors at Paris, and at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., and received his geological training under Zittel and Pumpelly. He was instructor in geology and botany at Williams College, 1893-1901. Mr. Dale is author of: A Study of the Rhaetic Strata of the Val de Ledro in the South Tyrol; The Outskirts of Physical Science (essays); The areal and structural geology of Mount Greylock; Taconic Physiography; Slate Deposits and Slate Industry of the United States; The Granites of Maine; The Chief Commercial Granites of Mass., N. H., and R. I.; The Granites of Vermont; also various minor papers on geological subjects. Mr. Dale is a corresponding member of the Austrian Geological Survey, and a member of the Société Géologique de France. He married in Dec. 22, 1874, Margaret Brown. Address: Pittsfield, Mass.

DALL, William Healey:

Naturalist; born in Boston, Aug. 21, 1845; son of Rev. C. H. A. Dall, and of Caroline (Healey) Dall, LL.D., author and publicist. After completing the courses of the public schools, and was a pupil in natural sciences under Louis Agassiz; took special courses in anatomy and medicine; and received the honorary degrees of A.M. from Wesleyan University, 1888, and D.Sc. from the University of Pennsylvania, 1904. He served as Director of the Scientific corps of the International Telegraph Expedition to Alaska, 1865-1868, during which he became interested in that region in all its scientific aspects, and particularly in geology, zoölogy, and ethnology. He was connected with the United States Coast Survey, on hydrographic survey work in Alaska, 1871-1884, and was paleontologist to the U. S. Geological Survey from 1884 until 1909. Since 1880, Dr. Dall has been a curator of the U. S. National Museum in Washington, and since February, 1893, has been professor of invertebrate paleontology in the Wagner Institute of Science in Philadelphia. Dr. Dall is author of: Tribes of the Extreme Northwest; Scientific Results of the Exploration of Alaska; Reports on the Mollusca of the Blake and Albatross Deepsea Expeditions; Alaska and Its Resources; a Monograph of the Miocene of Oregon; also various smaller publications and contributions to scientific journals. He is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, elected in 1897. He married March 3, 1880, Annette Whitney. Address: U. S. National Museum, Washington, D. C.

DALLAS, George Miffin:

United States circuit judge; born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 7, 1839; son of Trevanion B. Dallas. He removed to Philadelphia in his infancy and was educated in the schools of that city. He studied law and was admitted to the bar in August, 1851, and engaged in the practice of law at Philadelphia. He was a member of the Constitutional Convention which framed the present Constitution of the State of Pennsylvania. He was appointed May 17, 1892, judge of the United States Circuit Court for the Third Circuit, in which office he is still serving. Judge Dallas is also professor of the law of torts, evidence and practice of the Law Department of the University of Pennsylvania. He received the degree of LL.D. from Princeton University. He married in Philadelphia, Oct. 22, 1867, Ellen Markoe Wharton. Address: 1514 Pine Street, Philadelphia.

DALLINGER, Frederick William:

Lawyer; born at Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 2, 1871; son of William W. and Elizabeth F. Dallinger. He was graduated from Harvard University as A.B., 1893, and A.M., 1894, then took up the study of law, was graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1897, and passed his bar examinations the same year. He had already become prominent in public life, having been for two terms a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1894 and 1895. In 1896 he was elected to the Massachusetts Senate, in which he served, by successive reëlections until 1900. He is also well known for his political writings, notably a volume on Nominations for Elective Office in the United States. Residence: 4 Hancock Park, Cambridge, Mass. Office: 28 State Street, Boston, Mass.

DALY, Arnold:

Actor; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 4, 1875. His parents, Joseph J. and Mary Daly, were born in Ireland and were intimate friends of the parents of George Barnard Shaw, the Irish playwright, in whose plays Mr. Daly has made his first appearance on the stage in a play in which Fanny Rice was starring, but came into prominence first in his impersonation of Chambers in Frank Mayo's production of Pudd'n Head Wilson, dramatized from Mark Twain's book of that name. After that Mr. Daly achieved successes in various parts and finally, Dec. 9, 1903, he produced Shaw's Candida, which ran for more than 150 nights, and was followed up by the production of various other Shaw plays, all of which have been successful. Mr. Daly married in July 1, 1900, Mary Blythe, a niece of General La Grange, of Los Angeles, Calif., and they have one child. Address: 230 West 105th Street, New York City.

DALY, Joseph Francis:

Lawyer; born at Plymouth, N. C., Dec. 3, 1840; son of Dennis and Elizabeth T. Daly. He removed to New York City when nine years of age and was educated there. He received the LL.D. degree from St. John's College in 1883, and from Villanova College in 1902. He was admitted to the bar in 1862; was judge, 1870-1890, and chief justice, 1890-1896, in the Court of Common Pleas of New York City and from 1896 to 1898 justice of the Supreme Court, but since 1898 has practised privately. In 1900 he was appointed commissioner from the United States to revise the laws in Porto Rico. He is a member of the Board of Managers of the Roman Catholic Orphan Asylum, the Advisory Board of St. Vincent Hospital, and was president of the United Catholic Charities Association from 1896 to 1897. He is a member of the Board of Trinity College at Washington, member of the American Geographical Society, the North Carolina Society, Association of the Bar of the City of New York, New York Law Institute, National Convention of Charities and the Dunlap Society. He is a member of the Players', Lawyers', and Catholic Clubs, of which latter he was president, 1893-1890. Judge Daly married twice; first in 1873, Emma Robinson Barker, who died in 1886, leaving three children; and he married second, in 1890, Mary Louise Smith. Residence: Roanoke, Yonkers, N. Y. Office: 54 Wall Street, New York City.

DALZELL, John:

Lawyer and congressman; born in New York City, April 19, 1845; moved to Pittsburgh, in 1847. He received his early education in the common schools and afterward went to Yale College, from which he was graduated as B.A. in the class of 1865. He studied law, and was admitted to the bar in February, 1867, and has since practised his profession in Pittsburgh. In 1886 he was elected to the Fiftieth Congress, and he has been continued in the House of Representatives by biennial re-elections, and now represents the Thirtieth Pennsylvania Districts in the Sixty-first Congress. Mr. Dalzell is widely recognized as the foremost advocate of the protective tariff and one of the foremost parliamentarians of the House of Representatives of the United States. His study of both subjects has been incessant, both at home and abroad; he has sought every source of information, has collated and arranged a larger amount of information than has probably any man who has ever served in Congress, and stands easily foremost as an authority on either subject. For years he has been a member of both the Committee on Rules and the Committee on Ways and Means, the two chief committees in the House of Representatives. Address: Pittsburgh, Pa.

DALZELL, Samuel M.:

Coal operator; born in Hartstown, Pa., Dec. 3, 1850; son of Rev. William and Elizabeth C. (Martzell) Dalzell. He was educated in the common schools. Mr. Dalzell has long been engaged in business as a coal operator in the Illinois field, and is now general manager and director of the Spring Valley Coal Company, and president and director of the Illinois Third Vein Coal Company, director and for three years president of the Illinois Coal Operators Association. He is also a director of the Kenwood Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, and president, treasurer and director of the Ladd Mercantile Company, also president of the Universal Folding Machine Co. He was at one time a member of the Ohio National Guard and four years a member of the Illinois Labor Bureau. He is a Republican in politics, and in religion is a Presbyterian, though now connected with the Kenwood Evangelical Church (Congregational). He is past master of S.M. Dalzell Lodge of A.

F. and A. Masons; a member of Peoria Consistory of Scottish Rite Masons, of Peoria, Illinois, and of Medinah Temple, Mystic Shrine of Chicago. Mr. Dalzell is a member of the Union League, Chicago Yacht, and South Shore Country Clubs of Chicago. He married at Sharon, Pa., Dec. 29, 1875, Elnora King, and they have had three children: Lizzie Elnora, who died in infancy; Ada Dalzell, now Mrs. E. M. Sweet, born in 1878; Bessie Dalzell, now Mrs. L. W. Jared. Residence: 4030 Grand Boulevard, Chicago. Office address: Old Colony Building, 84 Van Buren Street, Chicago, Ill.

DAMON, Samuel Mills:

Banker; born in Honolulu, Hawaiian Islands, March 13, 1845; son of Rev. Samuel C. Damon and Julia (Mills) Damon. He was educated in Honolulu, and since 1871 has been engaged in the banking business in that city, now being senior member of the banking house of Bishop and Company. He was one of the leaders in establishing the Republic of Hawaii in place of the monarchy and was minister of finance under the Hawaiian Republic until the annexation of the islands to the United States. He has received various foreign decorations, including the Victorian Jubilee medal from Great Britain, the Order of the Golden Treasure of Japan, and the decoration of Knight of the Order of Christ from Portugal, and he is a member of the Société des Beaux Arts of Paris and the Society of Arts of London. Mr. Damon married at Honolulu, Sept. 5, 1872, H. M. Baldwin. Address: Honolulu, Territory of Hawaii.

DAMROSCH, Frank H.:

Musical director; born in Breslau, Germany, June 22, 1859; son of Dr. Leopold and Helene (von Heimburg) Damrosch. He was educated in the College of the City of New York and afterward studied music with Bruckner, Jean Vogt, and von Inten, and received the honorary degree of Mus. Doc. from Yale, 1904. He was conductor of the Denver Chorus Club, 1882-1884, and during 1884 was supervisor of music of the Denver public schools. After that he was chorus master of the Metropolitan Opera House in New York, until 1891; and he has served as conductor of the Harmonie Society of Newark, N. J., the Choral Club of New York, the Musical Art Society and the Masurgia (male chorus), of New York, and the Orpheus Club and the Eurydice Chorus (female), of Philadelphia, and was director of music in the New York public schools, 1897-1905. Since 1898 he has been conductor of the Oratorio Society, and of the Symphony Concerts for Young People, and, 1904-1909, of the Mendelssohn Glee Club. He organized in 1905, and has since been director of the Institute of Musical Art. Mr. Damrosch was a lieutenant in the Colorado National Guard in 1884. He is a member of the Armstrong Association, the National Geographic Society, the Society for Ethical Culture and the Century Association. He married in New York City, Jan. 10, 1888, Hettie Mosenthal, and they have a son and a daughter. Address: 53 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

DAMROSCH, Walter Johannes:

Musician; born at Breslau, Germany, Jan. 30, 1862; son of Leopold and Helene (Von Heimburg) Damrosch. He was educated in the New York City public schools, studied harmony and composition under his father Dr. Leopold Damrosch, and under Rischbieter and Draeseke in Dresden, in piano under Von Inten, Boeckelman, Pinner and Hans Von Bulow. He succeeded his father as conductor of the New York Symphony Society; the New York Oratorio Society and the German Opera at the Metropolitan Opera House in 1885. In 1894 he founded a Wagner Opera Company which produced the Nibelungen Trilogy in the United States. He was elected conductor of the New York Philharmonic Society in 1902, and conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra in 1903. Mr. Damrosch is a Republican in politics. He is composer of: The Scarlet Letter, an opera in three acts; Manila Te Deum; Cyrona, an opera in four acts; Danny Deever, etc. Mr. Damrosch married in Washington, D. C., May 17, 1890, Margaret Blaine, daughter of Hon. James G. Blaine, and they have four children. Address: 146 East Sixty-first Street, New York City.

DANA, Charles Loomis:

Physician; born in Woodstock, Vermont, March 25, 1852; son of Charles and Charity S. (Loomis) Dana. He was graduated from Dartmouth College as A.B. in 1872, and later as A.M.; and from Columbia University as M.D. in 1877. He was given the degree of LL.D. by Dartmouth in 1905. He is professor of diseases of the nervous system in the Medical Department of Cornell University and formerly at Dartmouth Medical College, and the Post-graduate Medical School of New York, and is physician to Bellevue Hospital. Dr. Dana is an ex-president of the American Neurological Association and of the New York Neurological Society; and of the New York Academy of Medicine; a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and a corresponding member of the Société de Neurologie, Paris; and of the Société de Psychiatrie de Paris. He is author of text books on Nervous Diseases and Psychiatry; also of monographs in Hamilton's Legal Medicine on Traumatic Neuroses, and of other monographs and contributions to journals on nervous and mental diseases. He is founder and ex-president of the Charaka Club; a member of Dartmouth Alumni Association, and Sons of the Revolution, and Society of Colonial Wars. He married Lilian Farlee, now deceased. Address: 53 West 53d Street, New York City.

DANA, Edward Salisbury:

Mineralogist and educator; born in New Haven, Conn., Nov. 16, 1849; son of James Dwight and Henry F. (Silliman) Dana. He was graduated from Yale B.A., 1870, M.A., 1874, and Ph.D., 1876, and also studied at Heidelberg and Vienna. He began his connection with Yale University as tutor, 1874-1879, became assistant professor of natural philosophy, 1879-1890, and since 1890 has been professor of physics in Yale University. His Text-book of Mineralogy, first published in 1877, has passed through several editions and holds a leading place as an educational text-book on the subject, and with his works on Minerals and How to Study Them, Dana's System of Mineralogy, Localities of Minerals; Catalogue of American Localities of Minerals, and various papers on minerals, form the most important contributions to mineralogy produced by any American; and he is also author of a text-book of Elementary Mechanics and papers on other scientific subjects. Dr. Dana has been curator of the Mineral Collection at Yale since 1874, editor of the American Journal of Science since 1875, member of the National Academy of Science since 1884, and of the American Philosophic Society since 1896. He married in New Haven, Conn., in 1883, Caroline Bristol. Address: New Haven, Conn.

DANA, John Cotton:

Librarian; born in Woodstock County, Vermont, Aug. 19, 1856; son of Charles and Charity (Loomis) Dana. He was graduated from Dartmouth College, A.B., 1878, then studied law, and was admitted to the New York bar in 1882. He entered upon his library career in 1889 as librarian of the Denver Public Library, in which position he continued until 1897, when he became city librarian of Springfield, Mass., remaining there until 1902, when he became librarian of the Free Public Library of Newark, N. J., in which position he continues. Mr. Dana has taken a prominent part in the plans and deliberations of the American Library Association of which he was president in 1896, and is still a member. Address: Free Public Library, N. J.

DANA, Paul:

Editor; born in New York City, Aug. 20, 1852; son of Charles Anderson and Eunice (Maedaniel) Dana. He was educated in private schools in New York City, Harvard College, A.B., 1874, Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1878. He became connected with the New York Sun, of which his father was editor, and succeeded as editor on the death of his father until 1903, when he retired. Mr. Dana was for several years park commissioner of New York City. He married in New York City, Nov. 11, 1884, Mary D. Butler Duncan, and has four children. Address: Glencove, Long Island, N. Y.

DANA, Richard Henry:

Lawyer; born in Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 3, 1851; son of Richard Henry Dana, Jr., and Sarah (Watson) Dana. He was graduated from Harvard, A.B., 1874 and LL.B., 1877, was class orator and three years stroke of the University crew. Following his graduation he was admitted to the bar and has since practised law in Boston. Mr. Dana has been actively identified with the advocacy of measures of political and social reform, and especially of civil service reform. He edited the Civil Service Record, from 1889 to 1892; organized the Associated Charities of Boston in 1878, drafted the Civil Service Reform Act, which passed the Legislature of Massachusetts in 1884, and the first Australian Ballot Act passed in the United States, adopted by the Legislature of Massachusetts in 1888. He was president of the New England Conservatory of Music, 1891-1898, of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association in 1890-1891; of the Cambridge Civil Service Reform Association, 1897-1901; of the Massachusetts Civil Service Reform Association, 1905-1906, of the Oakley Country Club, 1905-1907, and is chairman of the National Civil Service Reform Council, member Harvard Phi Beta Kappa. He is author of: Double Taxation in Massachusetts, 1895; also addresses on reform subjects. Residence: 113 Brattle Street, Cambridge, Mass. Office: 19 Congress Street, Boston, Mass.

DANA, William Henry:

Musician, author and lecturer; born in Warren, Ohio, June 10, 1846; son of Junius and Martha (Potter) Dana. After completing the course in the high school of his native city and attending Williston Seminary at Easthampton, Mass., served in the Union Army in the Civil War, then took musical courses in Kullak's Conservatory of Music in Berlin and the Royal Academy of Music, London. He has since been actively engaged in musical work as teacher and writer of musical text-books the excellence of which procured him the medal and diploma of the Exposition at Bologna, Italy. He is now president of Dana's Musical Institute at Warren, Ohio, is a lecturer on social, political and travel topics in lyceum courses, and at Chautauqua assemblies. His musical text-books, which have attained wide adoption and circulation, include: Dana's Practical Thorough Bass; Dana's Practical Harmony; Dana's Practical Counterpoint; Guide in Orchestration; Guide in Military Band Arranging; The National School for Cornet. Mr. Dana is an extensive traveler having made tours in Europe and especially in Scandinavia, Russia and the Arctic regions. He is a fellow of the American College of Musicians of the University of New York, a member of the Royal Academy of Music of London, Eng., the Society of the Order of Merit, N. Y.; the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.; life member of the Music Teachers National Ass'n and the Indiana Ass'n; and various political clubs both local and national. He married in Olcon, N. Y., in 1870, Emma Jane Tuttle. Address: Warren, Ohio.

DANFORTH, Loomis L.:

Physician, surgeon; born at Monticello, Otsego County, N. Y.; son of Hiram D. and Mary Jane (Tanner) Danforth. He was educated in an academy at Utica, N. Y., and was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University as M.D. in 1874. He has been engaged in practice as a homeopathic physician and surgeon since 1874. He has been professor of obstetrics, in the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Hospital since 1886 and is now senior professor and also head of the Maternity Department of Flower Hospital and chief of the Maternity Staff at Hahnemann Hospital. Dr.

Danforth is a member, and was president in 1902, of the Homeopathic Medical Society of the County of New York. He is a member of the Union League Club. Dr. Danforth married at Willimantic, Conn., in 1874, Emma Augusta Hamlin. Address: 49 West 52d Street, New York City.

DANIEL, John Warwick:

United States senator; born in Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 5, 1842. He was educated at Lynchburg College and at the celebrated University School maintained by Dr. Gessner Harrison in ante-bellum days. He joined the Army of Northern Virginia upon the breaking out of hostilities, and served in the Confederate Army during the entire war, becoming adjutant general on the staff of General Jubal Early. At the close of the war in 1865 he went to the University of Virginia to study law. He was admitted to the bar in 1866, and has practised ever since. He has long been a leader at the Virginia bar, and is author of an authoritative work upon attachments under the Code of that State; is a lawyer of national repute and author of a valuable text book on Negotiable Instruments. For nearly forty years he has been a leader in the Democratic party of his State; was a member of the House of Delegates of Virginia for two terms, 1869-1872, and of the State Senate, 1875-1881. He was elected presidential elector in 1876 and voted for Tilden and Hendricks; was defeated for governor of Virginia in 1881, and in 1884 he was elected to the House of Representatives of the Forty-ninth Congress. He was elected to the United States Senate in 1887, and has been continued in that body ever since by successive reëlections. His present term will expire in 1911. Senator Daniel was a member of the National Democratic Conventions of 1880, 1888, 1896, 1900 and 1904, and was permanent chairman of the Chicago Convention in 1896. Senator Daniel received the degree of LL.D. from Washington and Lee University, 1883, and from the University of Michigan, 1887. He married in 1869, Julia E. Munnell of Lynchburg. Address: Lynchburg, Va.

DANIELS, Frank:

Actor; born at Dayton, Ohio, in 1860, but removed, when very young, to Boston, where he was educated in the Lawrence School and Pierce's Business College. He was afterward employed as a wood engraver in Boston and while there took courses in vocal music at the New England Conservatory of Music. He became an amateur actor for a short time and made his professional debut as "The Sheriff" in The Chimes of Normandy at Chelsea, Mass., in 1879, afterward was second comedian in the stock company of the Gaiety Theatre in Boston, played with the McCaull Opera Company and afterward with Atkinson's Jollities. He created the part of "Old Sport" in Hoyt's A Rag Baby, with which he remained until 1887, when he started out as a star, at the head of his own company in Little Puck, since which time he has produced and played leading roles in The Attorney, Princess Bonnie, The Wizard of the Nile, The Idol's Eye, The Ameer, Miss Simplicity, The Office Boy, Sergeant Brue, and other comedies. Address: Rye, New York.

DANIELS, Josephus:

Editor; born at Washington, Beaufort County, N. C., May 18, 1862; son of Josephus and Mary Cleves Daniels. He was educated in the Collegiate Institute at Wilson, N. C., and afterward engaged in newspaper work. He became State Printer for North Carolina, 1887-1893, then was appointed chief clerk of the Department of the Interior of the United States, serving two years. He is now editor of the News and Observer, at Raleigh, the leading newspaper of North Carolina, and he is member of the Executive Committee of trustees of the University of North Carolina. Mr. Daniels is prominent in the councils of the Democratic Party in his State and the Nation, and is the North Carolina member of the Democratic National Executive Committee. He married, May 18, 1888, Miss Addie Worth Bagley, and they have four children. Address: Raleigh, N. C.

DARLING, Charles Hial:

Lawyer and collector of customs; born in Woodstock, Vt., May 9, 1859; son of Jason L. Darling and Ellen L. (Paul) Darling. He was educated in Perkins Academy, Woodstock, Vt., at the Montpelier Seminary at Montpelier, Vt., and at Tufts College as A.B. in 1884, and he received the degree of LL.D. in 1903. He was admitted to the bar in 1886, and he is now partner in the firm of Darling and Mower, attorneys at Burlington, Vt. He was judge of the Municipal Court of Bennington, 1887-1901, and he represented the Town of Bennington in the Legislature of Vermont, 1896-1898, and was a member of the Judiciary Committee of the body. He was assistant secretary of the Navy, 1901-1905; and was appointed in 1905 collector of customs for the District of Vermont, in which office he is now serving. He is a member and was president, 1899-1900, of the Vermont Bar Association; is a member of the Vermont Historical Society. Judge Darling is a prominent member of the college fraternity of Zeta Psi, and was president of the National Association, 1904-1905. He is also a member of the Masonic order and grand lecturer thereof and a member and president of the Vermont Society, Sons of the American Revolution. He is a trustee of Tufts College and president of the Board of Trustees of Goddard Seminary. He married in Bennington, Vt., Oct. 6, 1889, Agnes Christmas Norton, and they have three children. Address: Burlington, Vt.

DARLING, Flora Adams:

Founder of patriotic societies; born in Lancaster, N. H., July 25, 1840; daughter of Harvey and Nancy Dustin (Rowell) Adams. She was educated in Lancaster Academy, and the degree of A.M. was conferred on her by Western Maryland College, 1886. She married in New York City, 1859, General Edward Irving Darling, and removed to Louisiana, and in 1863 her husband was killed in the Confederate service, leaving her with a son, Edward Irving Darling, who after attaining prominence as a musical composer, died in 1894. Since the Civil War Mrs. Darling has lived in Washington, D. C., where she founded and organized the three great patriotic societies for women: Daughters of the American Revolution (headquarters at Washington), Daughters of the Revolution (headquarters New York City), and United States Daughters of 1812 (headquarters Washington); and she is also president of the Edward Irving Darling Musical Society, named in memory of the son, a branch of the International Sunshine Society. She is author of: Mrs. Darling's Letter, Memories of the Civil War; A Social Diplomat; A Wayward Winning Woman; Was It a Just Verdict; History of the Founding of the D. A. R. and D. R. Societies; Senator Atkins, C. S. A.; Memories of Virginia; Memories and Legends of The Granite State. Mrs. Darling presented "The Crucifixion," a masterpiece by George B. Matthews, to the Church of St. Peter (Catholic) at Mt. Clemens, Mich., in memory of her son who died there; presented a portrait of Jefferson Davis to the State of Mississippi, which is now at Beauvoir, the Davis home—now a Museum and Soldiers' Home; also presented to the College of William and Mary (Virginia) a collection of books, pictures, relics, and founding archives of the societies, letters, certificates, etc., to be known as the Darling Collection. Address: 1907 N. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

DARLINGTON, Charles Francis:

Lawyer; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Nov. 1, 1860; son of Thomas and Hannah A. (Goodlife) Darlington. He was graduated from Princeton A.M., 1881, A.B., 1882, and from Columbian Law School LL.B., 1884. He was admitted to the bar in 1884. Mr. Darlington is a member of the Sons of the Revolution, the Huguenot Society of America, the Society of Colonial Wars and the St. Nicholas Society. He married in New York City, Jan. 28, 1903, Letitia Craig O'Neill, and they have one son. Summer home: Mt. Kisco, Westchester County, N. Y. Residence: 143 West 57th

THOMAS DARLINGTON
Health Commissioner, New York City

Street. Office: 206 Broadway, New York City.

DARLINGTON, James Henry:

Bishop of Harrisburg; is of an old Colonial family, and was born at Brooklyn, N. Y., June 9, 1856; son of Thomas and Hannah A. (Goodliffe) Darlington, and grandson of Peter Darlington. He was graduated from the University of New York, B.A., 1877, from Princeton Seminary in 1880, receiving also, in 1884, the degree of Ph.D. from Princeton University, D.D. in 1895 from the University of New York, and LL.D. from St. John's College, Annapolis, 1905, and from Dickinson College in 1907. He took deacon's orders in the Episcopal Church in 1882 and was ordained priest by Bishop Littlejohn in the same year. During the year 1882-1883 he was assistant in Christ Church, Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., becoming rector the following year. He officiated there, until 1905, when he became Bishop of Harrisburg, Pa. He is author of: Verses for Children, and editor of the Hymnal of the Church, and has published numerous addresses and pamphlets. He was chaplain of the 47th Regiment of the National Guard of New York for eight years. Bishop Darlington is a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Sons of the Revolution, the Huguenot, St. Nicholas, National Geographic and other societies. He married at Garden City, N. Y., July 26, 1886. Ella Bearn. Address: Harrisburg, Pa.

DARLINGTON, Thomas:

Physician and commissioner of health; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Sept. 24, 1858; son of Thomas and Hannah A. (Goodliffe) Darlington. He was educated in the public schools of New York and Newark, N. J., and afterward was graduated in the scientific and engineering course from the University of the City of New York, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York, M.D., 1880. He practised medicine in Newark, N. J., 1880-1882, and after that practised at Kingsbridge, N. Y., 1882-1904, except for two years spent in Arizona, where he was surgeon of several mining companies, and he was appointed commissioner of health of New York City in 1901 and reappointed in 1906. Until his appointment as health commissioner, Dr. Darlington was visiting physician to several hospitals of the city; and he is now consulting physician to the French Hospital and to Fordham Hospital, and is professor of hygiene in Fordham University. He has been an extensive contributor to medical literature and is a member of the American Medical Association, the New York State and New York County Medical Societies, the Medico-Legal Society, Association of the Alumni of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Harlem Medical Association, New York Physicians' Mutual Aid Association, Medical Society of the Borough of the Bronx, Medical Association of Greater New York; ex-president of the American Climatological Association; member of the Yonkers Practitioners Society, Society of Medical Jurisprudence and Academy of Medicine; member of the Committee of One Hundred on National Health appointed by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and of the Commission on the prevention of Tuberculosis of the Charity Organization Society of the City of New York. Dr. Darlington is surgeon of the Society of Colonial Wars; member of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, the Society of Tropical Medicine; was appointed by President Roosevelt first lieutenant of the Medical Reserve Corps, U. S. A., member of the Chamber of Commerce, New York, and is a member of the Special Committee on Blindness. He is also a member of the Archdeaconry of New York, the Chemists' Club, Thomas Hunter Association of Grammar School No. 35, Sons of the Revolution, New York University Alumni Association, Kingsbridge Council, No. 1083 Royal Arcanum, Parish Club, Church Temperance Society, Huguenot Society of America, Fordham Club, North Side Board of Trade, New York Athletic Club, National Child Labor Committee, Lotos Club, American Geographical Society, National Geographic Society, and is president of the New York Chapter of the Alpha Mu Pi Omega Society. Address: 48 West 59th Street, New York City.

DARROW, Clarence S.:

Lawyer; born in Kinsman, Ohio, April 18, 1857. He was educated in the Ohio public schools; studied law, and was admitted to the bar in 1857. He was for some years attorney for the Northwestern Railway Company, but during recent years, has been active in cases against monopolies, including litigation against the Gas Trust in Chicago; and the cases of Chicago against the street railways of Chicago; was chief counsel for anthracite miners in the anthracite coal strike arbitration at Scranton and Philadelphia in 1902 and 1903, and active in political campaigns as an Independent Democrat; was counsel in the Debs strike case and a large number of labor injunction and labor conspiracy cases on the side of labor and secured acquittal of William D. Haywood at Boise City, Idaho, where he was charged with the murder of Former Governor Steiensen of that State. Mr. Darrow is a noted platform speaker, was for a term in the Illinois Legislature, and was associated with the reforms of the Altgeld administration in Illinois. He is author of Persian Pearl (essays); Resist Not Evil; Farmington (novel); An Eye for an Eye; and various pamphlets on social and economic questions. He married and has one son. Residence: 218 60th St. Office: 1202 Ashland Block, Chicago, Ill.

DARTT, Justus:

Farmer and educator; born in Weathersfield, Vt., Feb. 17, 1836; son of Erastus and Rebecca (Jackman) Dartt. He was educated in the common schools and Wesleyan Seminary at Springfield, Vt., and at Newbury (Vt.) Seminary. The larger part of his life has been devoted to work in the common schools, first as a teacher and afterward as superintendent of schools for eight years, in the districts of Charlemont, Conway, Gardner and Ashby, in Massachusetts, under the State Board of Education of Massachusetts, and from 1880 to 1888 he was State Superintendent of Education of the State of Vermont. His present occupation is farming. During the Civil War he served as second lieutenant in Company D of the 9th Regiment of Vermont Volunteers. He has been prominent in political affairs, as a Republican, in Vermont, was a member of the House of Representatives of that State in 1874, 1878, 1880, 1902, and 1904, and State senator from Windsor County in 1882, and was president pro tem of the Senate in that year. He was a trustee of the Vermont Agricultural College, 1880-1886, and was elected trustee of the Vermont Soldiers' Home in 1906. Mr. Dartt is past commander of Jarvis Post, G. A. R.; is a Mason and Knight Templar and past high priest of Skitehaw Chapter, Royal Arch Masons. Mr. Dartt married in Weathersfield, Vt., Oct. 13, 1859, Abbie Patten Knight, and has two sons and a daughter. Address: Springfield, Vt.

DARWIN, Charles Carlyle:

Librarian; born in Paris, Tennessee, Jan. 27, 1848; son of Charles Darwin, born in England, but brought up in this country, who was a lawyer and edited the first paper in Des Moines, Iowa, and Mary (Platt) Darwin, descendant of Richard Platt, an early settler in Connecticut. He graduated in Oberlin in 1868 with the degree of A.M., and at the Union Theological Seminary in 1870, after studying there for two years. He engaged in literary work in New York, and from 1870 to 1872 was a co-worker with Dr. Lyman Abbott on his Life of Christ and Bible Dictionary; professor of Hebrew at Harvard University in 1872; libraries in the Library of Congress and in charge of the Smithsonian Library from 1872-1882; librarian of the United States Geological Survey from 1882 to 1902, and also, from 1882 to 1894, librarian of the Bureau of Ethnology at the Smithsonian Institution. While with the Geological Survey, he was charged with building up of the library which, in his twenty years as its chief, he developed into the most extensive of its kind in the world. He is a member of the Cosmos Club. In 1880 he married Gertrude Bascom, and they have a son and three daughters. Residence: 1524 Twenty-eighth Street, Washington, D. C.

DARWIN, Gertrude Bascom:

Probation officer of the Juvenile Court of Washington; born in Middlebury, Vt., May 19, 1855; daughter of William Franklin and Anne Field (Strong) Bascom; and she is of Revolutionary ancestry. She was one of the ten honor girls of her class at Vassar College, where she was graduated A.B., 1878; and she married at Shenford, N. Dak., Nov. 25, 1880, Charles Carlyle Darwin, and has a son and three daughters. While at college she painted still life under Professor Henry Van Ingen, 1876-1878; exhibited at the National Academy of Design, New York, 1878; painted in oils under Henri and Jules Hébert, and water-color under M'le Amén, at Geneva, Switzerland, 1878-1879, also painted (china decoration) in Dresden under Franz Tiel, 1879, then taught painting and taught public school in North Platte, Neb., 1879-1880. Mrs. Darwin was librarian-general, 1897-1899, treasurer-general, 1899-1903, Daughters of the American Revolution; was National vice-president in charge of the organization of local societies of Children of the American Revolution, 1903-1907, and National vice-president of Children of the American Revolution since 1907. She was also president of the Anrora (W. Va.) Library Association since 1893. Since the organization of the Juvenile Court in Washington, D. C., she has been probation officer of that court, keeping in personal touch with about five hundred children annually. She has contributed to the reports of the Daughters of the American Revolution, published by the Smithsonian Institution. Mrs. Darwin is a member of the Vassar Alumnae Association, Vassar Students' Aid Society, Association of Collegiate Alumnae, and the Public Education Association of Washington, Chapter of New York, Phi Beta Kappa. Residence: 1524 Twenty-eighth Street. Office: Juvenile Court, 1816 F Street, Washington, D. C.

DAVENPORT, Bennett Franklin:

Medico-legal expert; born in Cambridge, Mass., May 28, 1845; son of Charles and Joan Fullerton (Hagar) Davenport. He prepared for college at the Cambridge High School. He graduated at Harvard College A.B., 1867, A.M., 1870, and M.D., 1871. He was of the Harvard Phi Beta Kappa. He also received the degree of M.D. from Columbia University. He afterward studied at German universities. From 1871 to 1886 he was in general practice in Boston. Since then has devoted himself to medico-legal specialties as an expert, having been appointed coroner for Suffolk Co., Boston in 1875. He was expert on the writings in the Roland B. Molineux, and the William M. Rice or Albert F. Patrick trials in New York City; the August Hartje trial in Pittsburgh, the Charles L. Tucker murder trial in Boston, and many others. He was for ten years chairman of the Health Board, five years chairman of the Water Board and chairman of the Park Board of Watertown, a suburb of Boston. He has been in continuous employment of the State of Massachusetts for more than twenty-five years as medico-legal expert, was for three years milk inspector for the City of Boston, for ten years analyst for the State Board of Health, and for over ten years past expert for the State upon its official Record Ink with which all the public records throughout the state must be written. Dr. Davenport is a member of the American Chemical Society and of the Chemical Societies of London, Paris and Berlin, of the British Society of Public Analysts, the Deutsche Gesellschaft für Angewandte Chemie and other leading medical and chemical societies, city, State and National, over twenty in all. He is president of the Historical Society of Watertown, Mass., and was of its chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution. He is a member of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society, the American Historical Association and the National Geographic Society. He married in Watertown, Mass., July 23, 1873. Annie E. Coolidge, and they have four children, the three older of whom have already graduated at Harvard, while the fourth is yet a student there. Residence: Watertown, Mass. Office: 161 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

DAVENPORT, Charles Benedict:

Biologist; born in Stamford, Conn., June 1, 1866; son of Amzi Benedict and Jane Joralemon (Dimon) Davenport. He was graduated from the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn, B.S., 1886, Harvard University, A.B., 1889, Ph.D., 1892. He was engineer on the survey of the Duluth, South Shore and Atlantic Railway; assistant in zoölogy, 1888-1892, instructor in zoölogy 1892-1899, Harvard University; assistant professor 1899-1901 and associate professor 1901-1904, of zoölogy in the University of Chicago; has been director of the Biological Laboratory at Cold Spring Harbor since 1898, and is now also director of the Station for Experimental Evolution, at the same place, for the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D.C. Dr. Davenport is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science of which he was, in 1900, vice-president of Section F; chairman of the Eastern Branch of the American Society of Naturalists, 1905-1906; member of the American Society of Zoologists, of which he was president in 1907; member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, American Philosophical Society, Boston Society of Natural History, New York Academy of Sciences, Washington Academy of Sciences, Society for Experimental Biology and Medicine, New York Zoological Society, Société Zoologique de France, Allgemeine Entomologische Gesellschaft, American Breeders' Association (Secretary of the Animal Section), and American Bison Society (member of the Board of Managers). Dr. Davenport is author of: A Handbook for Graduate Courses: Experimental Morphology; Statistical Methods in Biological Variation; Introduction to Zoology (with G. C. Davenport); and Inheritance in Poultry.

He is coeditor of the Journal of Experimental Zoölogy and of Psyche, and a contributor to scientific journals on biological subjects. He married in Burlington, Kan., June 23, 1894, Gertrude Crotty, and they have two daughters. Address: Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N. Y.

DAVENPORT, Frances Gardiner:

Historical research; born in Stamford, Conn., daughter of Amzi Benedict and Jane Joralemon (Dimon) Davenport. She was educated in Radcliffe College, A.B., 1894, A.M., 1896, and the University of Chicago, 1903-1904, Ph.D., 1904. Miss Davenport was instructor in history, Vassar College, 1904-1905; assistant in the Department of Historical Research of the Carnegie Institution of Washington since 1905. Among her publications are: A Classified List of Printed Original Materials for the Manorial and Agrarian History of England (Radcliffe College Monographs No. 6—Ginn), 1894; The Economic History of a Norfolk Manor (Cambridge University Press), 1906. Joint author with Professor C. M. Andrews of Guide to the Manuscript Materials for the History of the United States to 1837, in the British Museum, Minor London Archives and in the Libraries of Oxford and Cambridge (Carnegie Institution, 1908). Office: Department of Historical Research, Carnegie Institution, Washington, D.C.

DAVENPORT, Gertrude Crotty:

Scientific investigator; born near Denver, Colo.; daughter of William and Millia (Armstrong) Crotty. She was graduated from the Kansas State University, S.B., 1889, was a graduate student of Radcliffe College, 1892-1894; married in Burlington, Kan., June 23, 1894, Charles Benedict Davenport, and has two daughters. Mrs. Davenport was joint author, with C. B. Davenport, of Introduction to Biology (Macmillan); and has written monographs on: The Origin of the Primitive Streak in Chelonia; Variation in the Number of Stripes on the Sea Anemone, Sagartia Lucei; Heredity of Eye-color in Man; Heredity of Hair Form in Man; Heredity of Hair-color in Man. Mrs. Davenport is instructor in the Biological Laboratory of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences. She is a member of the Sigma Xi Society and of the American Society of Zoölogists. Address: Cold Spring Harbor, Long Island, N. Y.

DAVENPORT, Homer Calvin:

Caricaturist and writer; born at Silverton, Oregon, March 8, 1868; son of Timothy W. and Florinda (Geer) Davenport. He never attended an art school, but was successively a jockey, foreman and circus clown. His first newspaper employment was on the Portland Oregonian and in 1892 he was engaged on the San Francisco Examiner and Chronicle. He came to New York City in 1895, to do political cartoons for the New York Journal, his work causing an attempt to pass an anti-cartoon bill in the New York Legislature in 1897. Since 1904 he has been on the staff of the New York Evening Mail and Express, by which his cartoons are syndicated throughout the United States. Mr. Davenport has a farm at Morris Plains, N. J. In 1897 he took a European trip cartooning public and political characters, including Gladstone. He went to Paris during the Dreyfus trial to sketch and write, and in 1906 to the Arabian Desert to import pure Arabian mares and stallions, having obtained special permission of the Sultan, and being accompanied by a detachment of Turkish soldiers. His favorite recreations are horseback riding and farming. He has the finest and largest private collection of pheasants and wild water fowl in America and is a large importer and breeder of pure Arabian horses. Mr. Davenport married at Chicago, Sept. 7, 1893, Daisy B. Moore, of San Francisco, and they have three children. Residence: Morris Plains, N. J. Address: 203 Broadway, New York City.

DAVIDSON, Hannah Amelia:

Author and publisher; born in Campello, Mass.; daughter of Spencer Williams and Mary (Packard) Noyes, both descendants of the first colonists settling Massachusetts.

She was graduated from Iowa College, A.B., 1878, A.M., 1882; and she was married in Grinnell, Iowa, Aug. 21, 1878, Charles Davidson (now professor of education in the University of Maine), and they had a daughter, Enid Amelia, who is now deceased. Mrs. Davidson taught, with her husband, in Mitchell Seminary, Ia., 1878-1879; was assistant principal (Mr. Davidson being principal) and master in Latin, Greek and English history in Minneapolis (Minn.) Academy, 1879-1884; taught history and composition in Dalles City High School, The Dalles Ore. 1884-1885; and from 1885-1888 pursued graduate studies in, economics, finance, American Colonial institutions and comparative politics, first under Professor F. W. Taussig of Harvard University, and afterward in the Graduate departments of the Universities of Minnesota and California; was master in history in the Belmont (Calif.) School, 1888-1893; spent summer terms of 1894-1895 in the Graduate Department of the University of Chicago taking studies in politics, economics and history. From 1894 engaged in literary work and literary study; author editor and publisher of the Study-Guide Series of Books, (six books); author of Reference History of the United States (Ginn & Co.), also author of many critical papers, essays, etc., as: The Gift of Genius; Literary Study for Busy People; The Study Club as a Means of Culture, etc., writing under the pen-name of "H. A. Davidson," under which name also she conducts her publishing activities. Special lecturer in the Department of English, Wellesley College on The Art of Fiction, The Short Story, etc. She resided in Cleveland, Ohio, 1894-1896, Albany, N. Y., 1896-1904. Present residence: Orono, Me. Office address: H. A. Davidson, Cambridge, Mass.

DAVIDSON, James H.:

Congressman; was born in Colchester, Delaware County, N. Y., June 18, 1858. He was educated in the public schools and at Walton (N. Y.) Academy; taught school; studied law; was graduated from Albany Law School as president of the class in 1884 and was in the same year admitted to the bar of New York; subsequently moved to Wisconsin and commenced the practice of law at Princeton in 1887. In 1888 he was elected prosecuting attorney of Green Lake County; in 1892 removed to Oshkosh and continued the practice of law; in 1895 was appointed city attorney; was chairman of the Republican Congressional committee from 1890 to 1896; was elected to the Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh, Fifty-eighth, Fifty-ninth and Sixtieth Congresses and reelected in 1908 to the Sixty-first Congress from the 8th Wisconsin District. Address: Oshkosh, Wis.

DAVIDSON, James O.:

Governor of Wisconsin; born in Norway, Feb. 10, 1854; son of Ole and Ingabor (Jenson) Davidson. He was educated in Norway and in 1872 he came to the United States, settling in Wisconsin, and since 1877 he has been engaged in farming, milling and mercantile business at Soldiers' Grove, Wis. He has been prominent and active in political affairs in Wisconsin; served as a member of the Wisconsin Legislature, 1893-1899, and State treasurer, 1899-1903. He was elected to the office of lieutenant-governor in 1904, and became governor of Wisconsin in January, 1906, to fill the unexpired term of Governor La Follette, who resigned the governorship on his election to the United States Senate. Governor Davidson was reelected governor in November, 1906 and in 1908, and his present term will expire in 1911. He married in Reedstown, Wis., Feb. 21, 1883, Helen Bliss. Address: Madison, Wis.

DAVIDSON, James Wheeler:

Former consul-general and war correspondent; born in Austin, Minn., June 14, 1872. He was graduated from the Northwestern Military Academy of Highland Park, Ill., in 1891, and was a member of the Peary Arctic Expedition in 1894. This adventurous opening of his career was followed by service as a war correspondent with the Chinese Army, during the war between Japan and China in 1894; and with the Japanese Army in 1895 and 1896. He was American Consular Agent and Consul at Formosa, from 1897 to 1903 during which time he wrote several valuable monographs on Formosan affairs as well as a large volume entitled "Formosa, Past and Present" which is considered as the standard book of reference on this subject. In 1904 he was American consul at Dalny, Manchuria, and, when refused recognition on account of the closing of that port, was made special agent of the Department of State. He was acting Consul General of the United States at Shanghai in 1905, and is at present the president of Crown Lumber Co. Ltd., a lumber corporation with its head office at Calgary, Canada. Mr. Davidson is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London, the Royal Asiatic Society and the Arctic Club and has received the order of the Rising Sun from the Emperor of Japan given for services rendered the Japanese Army during the war with Japan and China. Mr. Davidson married at San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 9, 1906, Mabel Lillian Dow. Residence: Royal Avenue. Office: Care of Crown Lumber Co., Ltd., Calgary, Canada.

DAVIES, Arthur Ernest:

Professor of philosophy; born in London, England, March 18, 1867; son of James and Ellenor Davies. He was educated in King's College School, and at Owens College, Manchester, England, and University College, London, 1884-1888, Yale Divinity School, 1888-1891, B.D., 1891, Yale Graduate School, 1895-1898, Ph.D. He was pastor of Lake Preston and Erwin Congregational Churches in South Dakota, 1892-1893, and was ordained at Lake Preston, May 29, 1893. He was pastor of the Congregational Church in Mianus, Conn., 1896-1898, of Burwell (Neb.) Congregational Church, 1898-1899; and of Eustis (Neb.) Congregational Church, 1899-1900. He was instructor in philosophy at the Ohio State University, 1900-1906, and assistant professor of philosophy in the Ohio State University from 1906 to 1908, when he was advanced to the rank of full professor. Dr. Davies has been an extensive contributor to Self-Culture, the Anglo-American Magazine, Bibliotheca Sacra, the Philosophical Review, Psychological Review, the Journal of Ethics, chiefly on philosophical, religious, ethical and psychological subjects. His book The Moral Life: A study in Genetic Ethics (1909) is the first volume of the Library of Genetic Science and Philosophy, issued under the editorship of Prof. J. Mark Baldwin. He is an Independent in politics. He is a member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the Religious Education Association, the Western Philosophical Association, and the American Psychological Association. He married in London, England, December 28, 1892, Emily Adeline Hill, and they have two daughters. Address: 295 East Seventeenth Avenue, Columbus, Ohio.

DAVIES, J. Clarence:

Real estate; born at New York City, Nov. 27, 1867; son of David and Maria (Phillips) Davies. He was educated at school No. 69 and College of the City of New York. Mr. Davies began in the real estate business in 1889, making a specialty of Bronx property, and has charge of numerous large estates. He has consummated many large sales and is frequently employed as expert in many condemnation proceedings of property in the Bronx section, as well as for railroad and other corporations, and as appraiser for banks, trust companies, institutions and attorneys for Bronx properties. He is a member of the New York State Real Estate Association, President of the Association of Bronx Real Estate Brokers; was organizer, and member and chairman of the Real Estate Committee of the North Side Board of Trade; and he is a director of the Twenty-third Ward Bank, the Lawyers' Westchester Title and Mortgage Company, and several real estate corporations; is trustee of the North Side Savings Bank, was many years treasurer of the Real Estate Board Brokers. He is a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Horticultural Society, the Zoölogical Society, the Academy of Science, and of true Craftsmen (Masonic) Lodge, and the Knights of Pythias. Mr. Davies' chief recreations are golf, billiards, and yachting and automobiling. He is a member of the City, Reform, Atlantic Yacht, Automobile Club of America, Harmonie, Century Country, North Jersey Country, Amateur Billiard, Fordham, and other clubs of New York City and its vicinity. Mr. Davies married at New York in Oct. 1901, Rosalie Loewi, and they have a son, Valentine Loewi Davies, born in 1905. Residence: 14 East 81st Street. Address (business): 149th Street and Third Avenue, and 156 Broadway, New York City.

DAVIES, Julien Tappan:

Lawyer; born at New York City, Sept. 25, 1845; son of Henry E. and Rebecca Waldo (Tappan) Davies. He was educated at Mt. Washington Collegiate Institute in New York City, the Walnut Hill School, Geneva, N. Y., Charlier Institute, New York City, Columbia College, A.B., 1866, A.M. in 1869, Columbia College Law School, LL.B., 1868. He studied law with Hon. Alexander W. Bradford and was later associated with his father, Henry E. Davies, as counsel of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. Upon the death of his father he succeeded him as trustee and one of counsel of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, and was general solicitor for the same company, 1905-1906. He has been counsel for the Manhattan Railway Company since 1884, was receiver of Grant and Ward, 1884-1893, and closed up its affairs; assisted in 1882, in forming the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, and was its vice-president for several years. He assisted in 1871, in forming the Young Men's Municipal Association and was chairman of the Executive Committee of the campaign of Judge Scott for mayor of New York City. He is now senior member of the law firm of Davies, Stone and Auerbach. He was president of St. David's Society, 1900-1903, is now (and since 1904) president of the Columbia College Alumni Association, has been one of the vice-presidents of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York. He is trustee of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, the Title Guarantee and Trust Company, the Bond and Mortgage Guarantee Company, and the St. George School at Newport, R. I. He is a member of the American Bar Association, the New York State Bar Association, Association of the Bar of the City of New York, New York Historical Society, American Geographical Society, the Board of Managers of the Foreign and Domestic Missions Society of the Protestant Episcopal Church for whom he has acted as counsel for over twenty-five years. He is a veteran of the Civil War and a member of James Monroe Post, Grand Army of the Republic. Mr. Davies married at Albany, N. Y., April 22, 1869, Alice Martin, and they have four surviving children. Residences: 49 East 51st Street and Timber Point, Great River, L. I. Office: 32 Nassau Street, New York City. ,

DAVIS, Arthur Powell:

Civil engineer; born in Decatur, Ill., Feb. 9, 1861; son of John and Martha (Powell) Davis. He was educated in the State Normal School in Emporia, Kan., and in Columbian (now George Washington) University, from which he was graduated B.S. He entered the United States Geological Survey in 1884 as a topographer, in which capacity he had charge for ten years of surveys in the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona and the State of California; became hydrographer of the same Survey in 1895, and as such was in charge for two years of the Government stream measurements, and later in charge of the hydrographic examination of the Nicaragua and Panama canal routes; has also served as consulting engineer on Construction of Panama canal. He is now chief engineer in the United States Reclamation Service, in charge of the construction of the reservoirs and other work intended to impound flood waters for use in irrigation during the agricultural season. He is author of: Elevation and Stadia Tables; Progress of Stream Measurements; Hydrography of Nicaragua; Irrigation Investigation in Arizona; Irrigation near Phoenix Arizona; Hydrography of the American Isthmus; Water Storage on Salt River, Arizona, and articles in magazines on land reclamation, irrigation and other hydrographic subjects. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the Washington Society of Engineers, Washington Academy of Sciences, and the National Geographic Society. He married in Washington, D. C., June 20, 1888, Elizabeth Brown. Residence: 2212 First Street. Office: The Reclamation Service, Washington, D. C.

DAVIS, Benjamin Joseph:

Clergyman; born in Hamden, Conn., Oct. 28, 1864; son of Samuel and Emily (Mansfield) Davis. He was graduated from the Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., in 1882, then entered Yale University, graduating in the class of 1886, and received a High Oration appointment and also was named one of the commencement speakers at graduation. He studied theology at Berkeley Divinity School, Middletown, Conn., and was graduated in 1889, then was ordered deacon in the Episcopal Church. He was appointed to the charge of St. Luke's Church, Bridgeport, Conn., in 1889, was ordained to the priesthood, became curate in St. James' Church, Philadelphia, in 1890; rector of Trinity Church, Easton, Pa., 1892-1903, and rector of Trinity Church, Santa Barbara, Cal., since 1903. Mr. Davis is a member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, Yale Chapter. He married at Clifton, Staten Island, N. Y., June 18, 1895, Anna Townsend Ripley, and they have one daughter. Address: Trinity Rectory, Santa Barbara, Cal.

DAVIS, Boothe Colwell:

College president; born in Janelew, Lewis County, W. Va., July 12, 1863; son of Rev. Samuel D. and Elizabeth (Randolph) Davis. He studied one year in West Virginia State Normal School, taught four years in the public schools of West Virginia, and was graduated from Alfred University, A.B. 1890, from the Divinity School of Yale, B.D., 1893, and later received the degrees of Ph.D. and D.D. Dr. Davis was pastor of the First Seventh Day Baptist Church at Alfred, N. Y., 1893-1895. He is a member of the College Council, University of the State of New York, the National Education Association, the Religious Education Association, and has been president and professor of philosophy at Alfred University since Sept., 1895. He is President of the New York State School of Clay Working and Ceramics and the New York State School of agriculture at Alfred University. He is also a popular lecturer. Mr. Davis married at Shiloh, N. J., 1893, Estelle W. Hoffman, and they have three children. Address: Alfred, N. Y.

DAVIS, Charles Henry:

Rear-Admiral, U. S. N., retired; born in Cambridge, Mass., Aug. 28, 1845; son of the late Rear-Admiral C. H. Davis, the fourth in rank of the original six Rear-Admirals created in 1862 in accordance with the act establishing that grade. He was appointed from Massachusetts as acting midshipman in the Navy, Nov. 29, 1861; and midshipman, July 1862, and was graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1864. He was connected with the several expeditions for the determination of the differences of longitude by means of submarine telegraph cables from Europe to the Atlantic Islands and the east coast of South America; also in India, China, Japan and the Indian Archipelago; in Mexico and Central America, and on the west coast of South America. He commanded the Saratoga and afterward the Quinnchaug, 1886-1889; was chief intelligence officer of the Navy Department, 1889-1892, and afterward commanded the Montgomery; was a member of the Board of Inspection and Survey, 1896-1897, and was then superintendent of the Naval Observatory until April, 1898, when he was placed in command of the auxiliary cruiser Dixie, attached to the North Atlantic Squadron, through the Spanish-American War. In Nov., 1898, he returned to the superintendency of the Naval Observatory; and in 1902 was placed in command of the battleship Alabama, which became his flagship when he was promoted to rear admiral, and was placed in command of the Second Squadron of the Atlantic Fleet, on which duty he continued until his retirement by operation of law, Aug. 28, 1907. Rear Admiral Davis is an officer of marked accomplishments, with a fluent command of French and other foreign languages, and for that reason has several times been detached and sent on important missions abroad. He served as American Commissioner on the International Commission of Inquiry of the Dogger Bank incident, at Paris, 1904-1905. He has published technical works relating to the effect of temperature, and other causes, on chronometer rates, and the telegraphic determination of longitude; and he is also author of the Life of Rear-Admiral Davis (his father). Address: Care of Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

DAVIS, Charles Russell:

Lawyer and congressman; born at Pittsfield, Ill., Sept. 17, 1849. He removed to Lesueur County, Minn., in 1853, and was educated in the common schools of Lesueur County, being graduated from St. Peter High School in 1866. For two years thereafter he received private instruction in the higher branches and took a business college course in St. Paul during the winter of 1867-1868. He studied law with Alfred Wallin, the present chief justice of North Dakota, and was admitted to the bar, March 6, 1872; and he has practised his profession ever since in Minnesota. He was county attorney of Nicollet County for ten years, and city clerk and city attorney of St. Peter for eighteen years. Mr. Davis was elected to the House of Representatives of the State Legislature in 1888, and to the State Senate in 1890. He was captain of Company I, Second Regiment, Minnesota National Guard, for four years, was elected to the Fifty-eighth Congress in 1902 from the Third Minnesota District and re-elected in 1904 and 1906 and 1908 to the Fifty-ninth, Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congresses. He married in 1874, Emma Haven, of Chicago. Address: St. Peter, Minn.

DAVIS, George Breckenridge:

Judge-advocate general, U. S. A.; born in Ware, Mass., Feb. 13, 1847. He was graduated from West Point in 1871, and studied law at Columbian University. He is the chief authority on military law in the United States, as well as one of the leading students and expounders of International Law in the world. He has taken a prominent part in the International tribunals and discussions at the Hague and elsewhere. He is author of: Elements of International Law; Elements of Law; Military Law; and Military Law of the United States. He is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion and the Army and Navy Club of Washington, D.C. In 1871 he married Ella J. Prince, at West Springfield, Mass. Residence: 1734 Columbia Road, Washington, D. D.

DAVIS, George Whitefield:

Major-general U. S. A., retired; born in Thompson, Conn., July 26, 1839, son of George and Betsy (Grow) Davis. He was educated in the common and high schools of Connecticut and Massachusetts. He entered upon military service Nov. 27, 1861, as quartermaster-sergeant, 11th Connecticut Infantry, and served through the Civil War, becoming major of volunteers, until mustered out April 26, 1866. He was commissioned captain in the Regular Army, Jan. 22, 1867, with promotions in order, to major, lieutenant-colonel, colonel, brigadier-general and major general, until retired from active service by law in 1903. Among the notable features of his military service were his appointment as assistant engineer on the completion of the Washington Monument, 1878-1885; member of the Board of Army and Navy Officers to prepare a plan of relief of the Lady Franklin Bay Expedition, 1883; aide-de-camp to Lieutenant-General Sheridan, 1885; president of the Board of Publication of the Civil War Records, 1895-1898; commanded the Second Division of the Second Army Corps in Spanish-American War, 1898; commanded Department of Pinar del Rio, Cuba, 1898-1899; military governor of Porto Rico, 1899-1900; military governor of the City of Manila, 1901; commanded the Department of Mindanao, and the Department of Luzon, 1901-1902; commanded the Division of the Philippines, 1902-1903. In 1899 was a member of the Court of Enquiry to investigate the charges of General Miles respecting the rations issued to troops in the War with Spain. General Davis was vice-president and general manager of the Nicaragua Canal Company, 1890-1893; member of Isthmian Canal Commission, 1904-1905; governor of the Canal Zone, 1904-1905; special envoy of the United States Government to Guatemala, 1908; directing surveys for a railway for the government of Guatemala, 1909. He is a director of the San Cristobal Sugar Company; chairman of the Central Committee of the American National Red Cross; member of the International Law Association, the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, National Geographic Society, Metropolitan Club of Washington and the Chevy Chase Club of Maryland. He married in Washington, D. C., April 30, 1870, Carmen Atocha, (deceased 1904), and they had three daughters. Address: The Connecticut, Washington, D. C.

DAVIS, Hayne:

Lawyer; born in Statesville, N. C., Nov. 2, 1868; son of E. Hayne, and Mary Williams (Pearson) Davis. He was graduated from the University of North Carolina, A.B., 1888, completed his law course in 1890, and in 1891-1894 was a member of the law firm of Williams, Henderson & Davis at Knoxville, Tenn. In 1904 he established his office in New York City. Mr. Davis was secretary of the Democratic State Executive Committee of North Carolina in 1888; was secretary of the American delegations to the 12th, 13th and 14th sessions of the Interparliamentary Union, and in 1906 was elected American secretary of the Association for International Conciliation. In 1908 he organized The American Peace and Arbitration League, for the purpose of promoting "adequate armament and effective arbitration, as correlative agencies for national security and for International Peace and Justice," and was elected its First President, Theodore Roosevelt and Admiral George Dewey being the Honorary Presidents. Mr. Davis resigned this office in order that U. S. Senator James B. McCreary, father of the Union of American Republics, might become active president of this organization. Edited Among the Worlds Race Makers, and after attending the second Hague Conference, published a concise, popular work entitled The Second Peace Conference at The Hague. Mr. Davis is author of many articles on international questions. Residence: 35 West 96th St. Office: 1 West 96th Street, New York City.

DAVIS, Henry Gassaway:

Capitalist; born in Baltimore, Md., Nov. 16, 1823; son of Caleb and Louisa (Brown) Davis. He was educated in country schools. Mr. Davis was for a time an overseer on a farm, but was chiefly engaged in railroading in early life as brakeman, conductor and agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. He later embarked in merchandizing at Piedmont, W. Va., and afterward in coal mining in West Virginia and Maryland near Piedmont; also in banking in Piedmont and elsewhere in West Virginia, and the building of the West Virginia Central, Piedmont and Cumberland, and Coal and Coke Railways of West Virginia. He is now president of the Coal and Coke Railway, Davis Colliery Company, Davis Trust Company and Elkins National Bank, of Elkins, W. Va., Davis National Bank of Piedmont, W. Va., the Davis Land Company and the Pohahontas Timber Company. He was elected in 1866 a member of the West Virginia Legislature, served as State senator 1867-1871 and as United States Senator from West Virginia 1871-1883. He was a delegate to the First Pan-American Conference in 1890, and was chairman of the United States delegation to the second Pan-American Conference in 1901 and 1902; was a member of the West Virginia Tax Commission in 1901 and was the Democratic candidate for Vice-President of the United States in 1904. He has been a delegate-at-large from West Virginia to all the Democratic National Conventions since 1872. Senator Davis built and helps to support the Davis Memorial Hospital, and the Davis Memorial Presbyterian Church, at Elkins, W. Va., the Davis Memorial Church at Gassaway, W. Va., and the Davis-Childs Shelter, at Charleston, W. Va., and gave to Piedmont, Henry and Gassaway, West Virginia, their Davis Free School buildings, all handsome brick structures. Senator Davis has long been a prominent member of the Masonic and Oddfellow Orders. He is a member of the Manhattan Club, and the Maryland Society of New York City, and the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C. He married at Frederick, Md. Feb. 22, 1853, Kate Bantz, who died in 1902. Three children survive: Mrs. S. B. Elkins, Mrs. Arthur Lee and John T. Davis. Residence: Elkins, W. Va. Office: 1517 H Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

DAVIS, Herman Stearns:

Astronomer and engineer; born in Milford, Del., Aug. 6, 1868; educated at the Conference Academy, Dover, Del., Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and Princeton University, being graduated A.B. with distinction, 1892. His college course was interrupted by service as assistant astronomer of the U. S. Scientific Expedition to West Africa, 1889-1890. He was post-graduate student of astronomy at Princeton, 1893; became University fellow, 1893-1895, A.M., 1894, Ph.D., 1895, and tutor in astronomy and geodesy, 1895-1899, in Columbia University; in charge of the International Latitude Observatory, Gaithersburg, Md., 1900-1905. He was expert computer and assistant of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, 1900; first assistant on the Allegheny Observatory Eclipse Expedition, 1900; associate editor of Astronomische Jahresbericht, since 1900. Dr. Davis is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; charter member of the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America, the Washington Philosophical Society and life-member of the Astronomische Gesellschaft. His researches have been principally in relation to the variation of latitude, the constant of aberration, mean star positions and proper motions, and the history of astronomy, as an astronomer; and the designing of high tension transmission lines and large storage dams in hydro-electrical developments in various parts of the West, as an engineer. He is author of: A New Reduction of Piazzi's Observations; Biographical Cyclopedica of Astronomers; also numerous articles in his special branches of astronomy, geodesy, and engineering; and reviews of current astronomical literature. Address: Pittsburgh, Pa.

DAVIS, Jefferson:

United States senator; born near Richmond, in Little River County, Arkansas, May 6, 1862; son of Lewis W. and E. A. Davis. He received his preliminary education at Russellville, Ark., and then studied law in Vanderbilt University. He was admitted to the bar of Pope County, Ark., the same year, and rapidly rose to prominence. He was prosecuting attorney of the Fifth Judicial District of Arkansas for two terms, 1893-1897; was elected attorney-general of Arkansas in 1898, and in 1900 he became governor. He has the distinction of being the first governor of Arkansas to be three times elected to the office. He was elected U. S. Senator in January, 1907, to succeed Hon. J. H. Berry, for the term expiring in 1913. He was married at Russellville, Ark., Oct. 22, 1882, to Ina McKenzie. Address: Little Rock, Arkansas.

DAVIS, Katharine Bement:

Superintendent of New York State Reformatory for Women; born in Buffalo, N. Y.; daughter of Oscar B. and Frances (Bement) Davis. She was educated in the Rochester Free Academy, Vassar College, A.B., and University of Chicago, Ph.D. Miss Davis taught sciences in the High School of Dunkirk, N. Y.; was head-worker of the College Settlement in Philadelphia, 1893-1897; fellow in political economy and sociology in the University of Chicago, 1897-1898, and 1899-1900; European fellow of the New England Women's Educational Association, 1898-1899, studying in the Universities of Berlin and Vienna. She was appointed to her present position as superintendent of the State Reformatory for Women at Bedford, N. Y., Jan. 1, 1901, and organized the work of the Reformatory. Miss Davis is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and she is a writer, in addition to official reports, of magazine and newspaper articles on social and reform questions. Address: Bedford, N. Y.

DAVIS, Nathan Smith:

Physician; born in Chicago, Sept. 5, 1858; son of Dr. Nathan Smith and Anna M. (Parker) Davis. He was graduated from Northwestern University, A.B., 1880, A.M., 1883, Chicago Medical College, M.D., 1883, and took post-graduate medical study at Heidelberg and Vienna, 1885. Dr. Davis was appointed assistant professor of pathology in the Northwestern University Medical School, 1884, professor of the principles and practice of medicine, 1886, also taking the chair of clinical medicine in 1887, and was dean of the Medical Faculty of Northwestern University for many years. He is physician to Mercey, Wesley and St. Luke's Hospitals, and consulting physician to the Washington Home and the Marion Sim's Hospital, Chicago. Dr. Davis is author of: Consumption—How to Prevent It and How to Live With It; Treatise on Disease of the Heart, Lungs and Kidneys; Diet in Health and Disease; also many contributions to current medical literature. He was vice-president of the U. S. Pharmacopœia Convention; member of the Pan-American Medical Congress (councillor of the Section of Medicine), and the Ninth International Medical Congress (councillor of Section of Pathology); member of the American Medical Association (formerly secretary of Medical Section and chairman of Section of Materia Medica and Therapeutics), fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; member of the American Climatological Association, American Therapeutical Association, American Academy of Medicine, Illinois State Medical Society (formerly chairman of Medical Section), Chicago Medical Society, Chicago Pathological Society, Chicago Neurological Society, American Tuberculosis Society, Chicago Tuberculosis Institute, Chicago Academy of Science (formerly recording secretary and librarian), Phi Beta Kappa Society, Sigma Chi college fraternity, Nu Sigma Nu and Alpha Omega Alpha medical fraternities, the University Club of Chicago (trustee), Onwentsia Club, Lake Forest, Ill., is a trustee of Northwestern University and was formerly vice-president of the Young Men's Christian Association of Chicago. He married in Madison, Wis., in June, 1884, Jessie Hopkins, and they have two sons and a daughter. Residence: 291 East Huron Street. Office: 72 East Madison Street, Chicago.

DAVIS, Norah:

Novelist; born in Huntsville, Ala., 1873; daughter of Zebulon Pike and Williametta (Eason) Davis. She was educated in Huntsville, at home, by private tutors, learned stenography and became newspaper writer and afterward clerk of the U. S. Court for the Northern District of Alabama, 1898-1907. Miss Davis is author of The Northerner, published by the Century Co., 1905, creating a sensation, The World's Warrant, 1907 (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.), and Wallace Rhodes, 1909 (Harper's). Miss Davis has traveled all over the South as a newspaper correspondent. Address: Huntsville, Ala.

DAVIS, Oscar King:

Journalist; born in Baldwinsville, N. Y., Jan. 13, 1866. He was graduated from Colgate University, A.B. 1884, A.M., 1892, and since his graduation has been occupied with newspaper and literary work. He became distinguished as special correspondent at Manila for the New York Sun during the Spanish-American War and the Philippine Insurrection, and in China in the trouble following the Boxer Uprising in 1900; was with the First Japanese Army in 1904 as correspondent for the New York Herald. He is now and for several years past has been Washington correspondent for the New York Times and the Philadelphia Ledger. He is author of Our Conquests in the Pacific; At the Emperor's Wish; Dewey's Capture of Manila; Sherreaf's Exclusive; and numerous popular short stories. He married in Binghamton, N. Y., April 6, 1899, Jessie Bates Johnson. Address: Post Building, Washington, D. C.

DAVIS, Richard Harding:

Novelist, war correspondent, playwright; born at Philadelphia, 1864; son of the late L. Clarke Davis, editor of Philadelphia Public Ledger, and of Rebecca (Harding) Davis, the well known novelist. He was educated at the Lehigh and Johns Hopkins Universities, and on leaving college he became a reporter on the Philadelphia Record, 1887, and later on the Philadelphia Press, until 1889, part of the time in England as correspondent. He wrote special articles for the New York Evening Sun, 1889-1890, and also wrote for magazines. He became managing editor of Harper's Weekly, in 1890, but resigned in 1892 in order to travel. He was present at the coronation of the Czar Nicholas II, in 1896, reporting the spectacle for Harper's Magazine; was correspondent of the London Times, in the Graeco-Turkish War, of the New York Herald in the Spanish-American War and the South African War, and of Collier's Weekly with General Oku in Manchuria during the Russo-Japanese War, and also in the Cuban Rebellion, the Revolution of Matos in Venezuela and of Garcia against Diaz on the Rio Grande. He is a member of the Royal Geographical Society of London, and the American Explorers' Club. Mr. Davis has been one of the most industrious and successful contributors to American literature during the past two decades, and is author of: Van Bibber, and Others; Gallagher and Other Stories; Soldiers of Fortune; The King's Jackal; The Princess Aline; Our English Cousins; About Paris; Rulers of the Mediterranean; Three Gringos in Venezuela; Cuba in War Time; In the Fog; Captain Macklin; a Rear from a Correspondent's Note-Book; Stories for Boys; The Cuban and Porto Rican Campaigns; Cinderella and Other Stories; Dr. Jameson's Raiders; Exiles; The Lion and the Unicorn; West from a Car Window; Episodes in Van Bibber's Life; With Both Armies in South Africa; Ranson's Folly; The Bar Sinister; Real Soldiers of Fortune; The Congo and the Coasts of Africa; The Scarlet-Card; The White Mice; and he is also author of the plays: The Taming of Helen; Ranson's Folly; The Dictator; The Galloper, Vera, the Medium. He married at Marion, Mass., May 4, 1899, Cecil, daughter of John Marshall Clark of Chicago. Address: Cross Roads Farm, Mount Kisco, N. Y.

DAVIS, Thomas Edward:

Editor; born in Bedford, Va., Sept. 25, 1835. He was graduated from the University of Virginia, A.B., 1858, and later read law and medicine but never entered upon the practice of either. In May, 1861, he entered the Army of the Confederate States as a private in the Second Virginia Cavalry, and afterwards he became adjutant of the Twenty-first Virginia Cavalry Regiment, and afterward was major and assistant adjutant-general, C. S. A. He fought in numerous battles and served until the close of the war. After that he was for some years engaged in mining operations in Montana and afterward went to Texas and engaged in business pursuits. In 1876 he founded the Telegram newspaper at Houston, Texas, and in 1879 he became a member of the staff of the Picayune at New Orleans, of which he has been editor since 1884. Major Davis married at Houston, Texas, in 1874, Mary Evelyn Moore, well known as poet and author under the pen-name of "Mollie E. Moore Davis," who died Jan. 1, 1909. Address: 406 Royal Street, New Orleans, La.

DAVIS, Vernon Mansfield:

Jurist; born in New York City; son of Robert Vernon and Mary (Samler) Davis. He was educated in the public schools and was graduated from the College of the City of New York, A.B., in 1876, and from Columbia University Law School, LL.B., 1879. He was instructor in the College of the City of New York in Greek and mathematics, while taking his law course, and was admitted to the bar in 1879 and engaged in practice in New York City. He was appointed assistant district attorney of New York County and served from 1885 to 1897; district attorney of New York County in 1897, and was commissioner of education of New York City. He was elected in 1902 a justice of the Supreme Court of New York for the First District, for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1916. Judge Davis is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York; the Society of Medical Jurisprudence; the New York State Bar Association; the American Bar Association, and the Society of International Law. He was president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, from 1899 to 1902. He is a member of the Church, Metropolitan, Manhattan, and National Democratic Clubs. Judge Davis married in New York City, June 17, 1885, Harriet, daughter of Reverend Francis Lobdell, D.D. Address: 194 Lenox Avenue, New York City.

DAVIS, Webster:

Lawyer; born in Ebensburg, Cambria County, Pennsylvania, June 1, 1862, and went with his family to Missouri in 1868. His higher education was obtained with difficulty with long intervals of work in stores and at the shoemaker's bench. He attended Lake Forest University, Illinois, one year, and afterward the State University of Kansas; was admitted to the bar at Garden City, Kan., 1886; practised a short time and afterward attended the University of Michigan, from which he was graduated LL.B., and practised in Kansas City, Mo. He was special deputy for the Survey of Customs of the Western District of Missouri and Kansas, 1882-1892; was defeated in a race for Congress in 1892; mayor of Kansas City, 1894-1896; took active part as a campaign orator in the McKinley campaign of 1896; was appointed assistant Secretary of the Interior, June 1, 1897, serving until April 2, 1900, when he resigned to engage in practice. He is now practising law in Seattle, Wash., and Washington, D. C. Address: Pioneer Building, Seattle, Wash.

DAVIS, William Morris:

Professor of geology; born in Philadelphia, Feb. 12, 1850; son of Edward Morris and Maria (Mott) Davis, grandson of James and Lucretia Mott. He was graduated from the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University, S.B., 1869, M.E., 1870. He was assistant in the National Argentine Observatory, at Cordoba, Argentina, 1870-1873; began teaching geology at Harvard, in 1876, and geography in 1878. He traveled round the world in 1877 and 1878; became assistant professor in 1885, professor in 1890, and since 1899, has been Sturgis-Hooper professor of geology in Harvard University. He was, for a time, assistant geologist of the Northern Transcontinental Survey and of the United States Geological Survey, was physiographer to Pumpelly's Carnegie Institution Expedition to Turkestan in 1903, foreign guest of the British Association Excursion to South Africa in 1905, and Harvard Exchange professor at the University of Berlin for the winter of 1908-1909. He has been president of the Harvard Travelers' Club since its foundation in 1902, and president of the Association of American Geographers in 1905 and 1909; was corresponding secretary of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, Boston, 1901-1904, and vice-president of the Geological Society of America in 1906; is a member of the National Academy of Sciences, American Academy of Arts and Sciences, American Philosophical Society, Geological Society of America, and Boston Society of Natural History, National Geographic Society, honorary member of the American Geographical Society of New York, Gesellschaft für Erdkunde of Berlin, Geographische Gesellschaft at Vienna, Verein für Erdkunde of Leipzig, Geographische Gesellschaft of Greifswald, Sociedad Real de Geografía of Madrid, and Liverpool Geological Society; foreign member of the Royal Academy of Science, Stockholm, foreign correspondent of the Geological Society of London, corresponding member of the Christiania Academy of Sciences, German Meteorological Society, Club Alpin Français, Geologists' Association of London, Geological Society of Edinburgh, Sociedad Antonio Alzate of Mexico; New York Academy of Science, and the Geographical Societies of London, Paris, St. Petersburg, Munich, Geneva, and Philadelphia. Professor Davis is author of: Elementary Meteorology, 1894; The Triassic Formation of Connecticut (18th Ann. Rep., Geological Survey); Physical Geography, 1899; Elementary Physical Geography, 1902; A Journey across Turkestan, 1904 (Carnegie Inst'n of Washington); Geological Observations in South Africa, 1906; Practical Exercises in Physical Geography, 1908; also numerous articles in scientific journals. He married, in 1879, Ellen B. Warner, of Springfield, Mass., and they have three sons. Address: Cambridge, Mass.

DAVISON, Charles Stuart:

Lawyer; born in New York City, April 14, 1855; second son of Edward Francis Davison and Charlotte Sewall (White) Davison. He was educated in private schools and abroad with a tutor. He attended Harvard University (class of '75); Columbia University Law School (Class of '77); the University of Cambridge (England) and the Inner Temple, (London). He was chairman of the Good Government Clubs and chairman of the Parker Independent Clubs. Mr. Davison is a member of the New York Zoölogical Society; the American Museum of Natural History and the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and was chairman of the executive committee of the latter. He is a member of the Century Association and of the University, Harvard, Boone and Crockett, and Down Town Clubs of New York City. Address: 60 Wall Street, New York City.

DAWES, Charles Gates:

Banker; born at Marietta, Ohio, Aug. 27, 1865; son of General Rufus R. and Mary Beman (Gates) Dawes. He was graduated from Marietta College, A.B., 1884, and from the Cincinnati Law School, LL.B., 1886. During his summer vacations from college and law school he served with civil engineering parties, and after graduation became chief engineer of a railroad which is now a part of the Toledo and Ohio Central Railroad until 1887, when he went to Lincoln, Neb., and engaged in the practice of law there until 1894. Since then he has been interested in the gas business. Mr. Dawes has always been a Republican, and he became particularly active in the movement to secure the nomination of Governor William McKinley for President of the United States. He was given executive charge of the movement in Illinois, which was so successful that the State Republican Convention held at Springfield, Ill., in April, 1896, instructed the delegates chosen to the National Convention to cast their votes for the nomination of Mr. McKinley. Mr. Dawes was selected as a member of the Executive Committee of the Republican National Committee in the campaign of 1896, and in 1897 he was appointed by President McKinley comptroller of the currency of the United States. He served in that capacity until 1901, when he resigned. In 1902 he established the Central Trust Company of Illinois, of which he has ever since been president, and he is also director of the Manufacturers Bank of Chicago. Mr. Dawes is author of a volume on The Banking System of the United States. He is a member of the Union League, Chicago, Hamilton, Evanston, Evanston County, Glen View, and Evanston Golf Clubs. Mr. Dawes married at Cincinnati, Ohio, June 24, 1889, Cora D. Blymer, and they have two children. Residence: Evanston, Ill. Office: Central Trust Company, Chicago.

DAWLEY, F. E.:

Farmer; former director of New York State Farmers' Institute; born in Onondaga County, N. Y., Sept. 10, 1863; son of William Walker and Charlotte A. (Lamson) Dawley. He was educated in the common schools and at Munro Collegiate Institute at Elbridge, but an accident resulting in a broken skull prevented graduation and interrupted the study of medicine, which he had begun. He was born and reared on a farm, and after leaving off the study of medicine because of accident, took up the breeding of fancy poultry and stock, and built up the establishment known as Dotshome Farms, breeding and exhibiting fowls and Jersey cattle and ponies, and winning the highest honors in close competition. In 1889 he began lecturing at Farmers' Institutes, and was appointed State fertilizer inspector; and in 1896, on civil service examination, was appointed under Governor Levi P. Morton, as director of Farmers' Institutes. The attendance at that time was 45,700 in the year, but under Mr. Dawley's administration it had increased to 147,500 in 1908, when he resigned to devote his entire attention to farming. The Dotshome herd of pure bred cattle and flocks of wild turkeys and poultry are known from one end of the land to the other, and the large fields of alfalfa there have been visited by thousands. In 1905, Mr. Dawley built the first iron frame barn in America, and has done more to introduce alfalfa in the East than any other man. The reputation of the stock for quality and of Mr. Dawley personally, have built a large business in the products of the Dotshome Farms. Mr. Dawley has visited every State in the Union, Mexico, Canada, Nova Scotia and New Foundland in his work. He is a Republican in politics and attends the Baptist Church. Mr. Dawley was secretary of the New York State Farmers' League, 1889-1891; secretary of the State Poultry Society, 1889-1894; treasurer of the State Dairymen's Association, 1896-1902, and he reorganized it in 1896, and made it a success. He was a trustee of Cornell University since 1899; treasurer of the New York State Breeders' Association from 1904, and secretary of the Cheviot Sheep Society since 1899. He was secretary of Central New York Pomona Grange, 1894-1897; master of Syracuse Grange, 1891-1892, and of Fayetteville Grange, 1905-1906, and is again master since 1908. He married in Syracuse, N. Y., June 16, 1891, Carrie L. Barnes, and they have four daughters. Residence:

Dolshome Farm, Fayetteville, N. Y. Offices: Fayetteville, N. Y., and Albany, N. Y.

DAWSON, Albert Foster:

Journalist and congressman; born in Spragueville, Iowa, Jan. 26, 1872; son of Thomas and Alice (Foster) Dawson. He was educated in the common schools of Iowa, supplemented by one year at the University of Wisconsin; was engaged in newspaper work at Preston and Clinton; served several years in the organization of Congress, and for six years as confidential secretary to Senator William B. Allison. He was elected to the Fifty-ninth Congress and reelected to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congress from the Second Iowa District. He married in Clinton, Iowa, June 21, 1893, Phoebe R. De Groat. Address: Preston, Iowa.

DAWSON, Miles Menander:

Lawyer and actuary; born at Viroqua, Wis., May 13, 1863; son of John and Martha W. (Ady) Dawson. He was educated at Kentucky (now Transylvania) University and at New York University Law School. Mr. Dawson is engaged in general consulting practice as an insurance lawyer and actuary; was consulting actuary of New York Legislature Investigating Committee on Insurance, the Royal Commission on Insurance in Canada, and the Wisconsin Legislative Insurance Investigating Committee. He is author of: Practical Lessons in Actuarial Science; Elements of Life Insurance; Assessment Life Insurance; The Business of Life Insurance, and other books. He was chairman of the Social Reform Club Committee, and vice chairman of the Executive Committee of the Committee of Fifty, to secure the removal of the tracks of the New York Central Railway from the surface of Eleventh Avenue and other streets, which committees had charge of the agitation that brought about the enactment in 1905 of a law requiring removal. Mr. Dawson is professor of actuarial science in the School of Commerce of New York University; a fellow of the Actuarial Society of America, the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain, the Deutscher Verein für Versicherungs Wissenschaft of Berlin; is a member of the Permanent Committee of the International Congress of Actuaries. Mr. Dawson, in addition to his actuarial works, is also author of: Poems of the New Time, and translator of poems and stories from the Norwegian, including a novel: Elsie, A Christmas Story by Alexander Kjelland. He is a member of the Masonic order, having the consistory degrees. Mr. Dawson married Grace L. Burnett, and they have two sons. Residences: 135 West 95th Street, and Cornwall-on-Hudson. Address: 141 Broadway, New York City.

DAWSON, Thomas Cleland:

Diplomat and lawyer, born at Hudson, Wis., July 30, 1865; son of Allen and Anna (Cleland) Dawson. He studied at Hanover College, Indiana, and Harvard College, receiving from Hanover College the degree of A.B. in 1886 and A.M. the degree in 1898. He was also graduated from Cincinnati Law School as LL.B. in 1886. He published a newspaper at Enterprise, Fla., for two years, and was admitted to the Iowa bar in 1886; practised law at Des Moines three years; was legislative correspondent and later city editor of the Iowa Register at Des Moines, and then practised law at Council Bluffs, from 1891 to 1897, also being assistant attorney general of Iowa from 1891 to 1894. He was appointed in the diplomatic service as secretary of the Legation at Rio de Janeiro, June 28, 1897; was appointed minister resident and consul-general to Santo Domingo, April 29, 1904, retaining that mission until he was appointed Jan. 10, 1907, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Colombia. April 19, 1909, he was appointed E.E. and M.P. to Chile. Address: Care State Department, Washington, D. C.

DAWSON, William Mercer Owens:

Lawyer and ex-governor; born at Bloomington, Maryland, within a few hundred yards of the Virginia (West Virginia) line, May 21, 1853; son of Francis Ravenscraft and Leah (Knight) Dawson. In 1863 he began to learn the cooper's trade at Cranberry (now Terra Alta), W. Va., and subsequently attended school there, after which he worked as a clerk and taught school in the vicinity. In 1873 he settled at Kingwood, the county seat of Preston County, and became editor of The Preston County Journal, a Republican sheet, of which he later became owner. Later he engaged in the practice of law. In 1874 he was elected chairman of the county Republican committee and served by reelection for thirteen years. He was elected to the State Senate in 1880, was reelected in 1884, but declined a third nomination in 1888. He was the author of a bill to regulate railroad charges on lines that were subsequently adopted by the Federal Government in the creation of Interstate Commerce Commission. In 1891 Mr. Dawson became chairman of the Republican State Committee, and three years later West Virginia, which had been Democratic since 1871, was placed in the column of Republican States. Similar victories followed in 1896, 1898, 1900 and 1902, and since 1894 the Republicans have had a majority in both branches of the Legislature. He served as chairman until 1904, when he resigned. Mr. Dawson was secretary of State two terms, 1897-1905. In 1904 he was elected governor of West Virginia for the term of four years, which expired March 4, 1909. In 1901, after much contest, the Legislature of his State enacted the Dawson Corporation Law, a measure which greatly increased the revenues of the State from license taxes on corporations. He married in 1879, Luda Neff, by whom he had a son. She died in 1894; and in 1899 he married Maude Brown, by whom he has a daughter. Address: Charleston, W. Va.

DAY, Charles Orrin:

President of Andover Theological Seminary; born in Catskill, N. Y., Nov. 8, 1851. He was educated in Hopkins Grammar School, New Haven, Conn., was graduated from Yale, 1872, and from Andover Theological Seminary, 1877. He entered the Congregational ministry, and after a year as a city missionary in Montreal became pastor of the Congregational Church at Williamsburg, Mass., 1879-1884, studied as post-graduate student in Yale Divinity School, 1884-1885. He became pastor of the Congregational Church at Brattleboro, Vt.; chaplain of the First Vermont Volunteers, in camp at Chickamauga, during the Spanish-American War, 1898; secretary of the Congregational Educational Society, 1898-1901; since May, 1901, president of the Andover Theological Seminary, in which institution he also holds the Bartlet chair of homiletics and practical theology. He married at Catskill, N. Y., in 1879. Mary Hiland Hull. Address: Andover, Mass.

DAY, David Talbot:

Petroleum expert; born in East Rockport, Ohio, Sept. 10, 1859; son of W. G. and Caroline (Catheart) Day. He was graduated from Johns Hopkins University, A.B., 1881, Ph.D., 1883; and was a demonstrator of chemistry at the University of Maryland, in 1884-1885. Mr. Day was an exhibitor at the Centennial Exhibition in 1876; and special agent of the United States Geological Survey, 1883-1885. He was in charge of petroleum exhibits at the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893; director of mining at the Cotton States and International Exposition, Atlanta, Ga., 1896, secretary of the Jury of Awards at the Tennessee Centennial Exposition, 1897; director of mining, at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition, 1898; in charge of petroleum, etc., at the Philadelphia Exposition in 1899; in charge of petroleum, etc., at the Paris Exposition, 1900; in charge of mining at the Pan-American Exposition, 1901; honorary chief of the Department of Mines and Metallurgy in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904; honorary commissioner of mining at the Lewis Clark Exposition at Portland, Ore., in 1905, and honorary director of mines and metallurgy at Jamestown Exposition in 1907. Mr. Day was compiler of the volumes of Mineral Resources of the United States for twenty-one years, taking charge of the petroleum investigations of the United States Geological Survey, Aug. 1, 1907, in which position he is now engaged. He is the American member of the International Commission for unifying the methods of testing petroleum. He is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, National Geographic Society, Geological Society of America, American Chemical Society, National Statistical Association, Geographical Society of Switzerland; the Engineers' Club of New York City, the Round Table Club, St. Louis, and the University Club of Washington, D. C. Mr. Day married at Mayport, Fla., March 17, 1886, Elizabeth Eliot Keeler, and they have two children. Residence: 2511 Cliffbourne Pl. Address: United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

JOSEPH P. DAY
Capitalist

DAY, Holman Francis:

Author; born in Vassalboro, Maine, Nov. 6, 1865; son of Captain John R. and Mary (Carter) Day. He was graduated from Colby College, A.B., 1887, honorary degree Litt.D., 1907; became editor and proprietor of the Dexter (Maine) Gazette, 1888-1892; associate editor of the Lewiston (Maine) Journal, 1892-1900; political editor of the Boston Journal, 1904; author of many articles and short stories in leading magazines. Mr. Day was chief of the Publicity Bureau of the Republican State Committee in the campaign of 1906; was major and military secretary on the staff of Governor John F. Hill of Maine, 1901-1904. He is author of: Up in Maine (verse); Pine Tree Ballads; Kin o'Ktaadn; and of the novels: Squire Phin, produced at Chicago, Aug. 28, 1909, as a play by Klaw & Erlanger, under title, "The Circus Man;" Rainy Day Railroad War; The Eagle Badge; King Spruce; The Ramrodders. He is prominent in the Elks order, and is a Mason. He married in Boston, Sept. 28, 1903, Agnes M. Bearce, and they have a daughter. Address: Auburn, Maine.

DAY, James Roscoe:

Chancellor of Syracuse University; born in Whitneyville, Washington County, Maine; son of Thomas Day (prominent lumberman) and Mary P. (Hillman) Day, daughter of Rev. A. P. Hillman. He is a descendant of the Day family of Cape Ann, from which have come the Days of New England, New York and New Jersey. He was educated in the Maine Conference Seminary, at Kent's Hill, Maine, and at Bowdoin College and received the degree of D.D. from Wesleyan University and Dickinson College in 1904, S.T.D. from Bowdoin College, LL.D. from Northwestern University, and D.C.L. from Cornell College, Iowa. He entered the Maine Methodist Episcopal Conference in 1872, and filled pastorates successively at Bath, Biddeford and Portland, Maine; Nashua, N. H.; Boston, New York City and Newburgh, N. Y. While he was pastor at Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, New York City, he was elected, in 1893, Chancellor of Syracuse University which now has faculties numbering 225 and an enrollment of over 3,200 students, a library containing 90,000 volumes and property and endowment fund of $4,500,000. He was elected a Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church by the General Conference at Los Angeles in 1904, but resigned in order to continue his work at the University. He is author of: The Raid on Prosperity. Dr. Day married, July 14, 1873, Hannah E., daughter of Rev. R. R. Richards, of Auburn, Maine, and they have one daughter, Mary Emogene. Address: Syracuse, New York.

DAY, Joseph P.:

Real estate broker, auctioneer, agent and dealer; born in New York City, Sept. 22, 1873; son of John W. and Catherine A. (Hayes) Day. He was educated in the public schools of New York City and, after completing his school course, became interested in real estate. When twenty-one years of age, he started for himself, doing an insurance business in connection with real estate. In 1898, he negotiated the heaviest accident policy ever written, covering insurance against accidents resulting from the change of motive power of the Third Avenue Surface Railroad and of the 42nd Street, Manhattanville and St. Nicholas Avenue Railroad. During recent years he has been specially prominent in the department of sales of real estate by auction and in that department is the recognized leader in New York City, he having been the auctioneer in the now famous Ogden Estate sale, comprising 1,500 lots in the West Bronx, between High Bridge and Washington Bridge. This was a four-days' sale and is the largest absolute partition sale of city real estate of improved lots in the history of the country. He was also the auctioneer of the Doherty Estate holdings, which brought $1,913,600, in a single afternoon's sale; comprising property on Broadway and on Eighth Avenue, Manhattan. Besides conducting real estate auction sales, he also sells stocks and bonds at auction and has charge of many important executor's sales and appraisals and other matters relating to New York real estate, in which he is recognized as one of the foremost experts of values. The Corporation Council, representing the City of New York, has frequently called him to testify in reference to appraisals of value of real estate. Mr. Day is a member of the Real Estate Auctioneer's Association of New York City; president of the Real Estate Board of Brokers of New York City; member of the Chamber of Commerce, the Association of Bronx Real Estate Brokers, the Long Island Real Estate Exchange and the Real Estate Brokers Exchange of Newark and vicinity; and is a director in the New Jersey and New York Real Estate Exchange. He is the treasurer of the Taunman Society and is a member of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, and is also the vice-president of the Sydenham Hospital. Mr. Day is a member of the Manhattan, the New York Athletic, and National Democratic Clubs of New York City, and the Canoe Brook Country Club of Summit, N. J. He married in New York City on June 1, 1898, Pauline M. Pope (a granddaughter of the late J. Monroe Taylor) and they have four children: Joseph P., Jr., Bernard N., Charles, and Pauline Pope Day. Town residence: 31 Gramercy Park, New York City. Country home: "Pleasant Days," Millburn, N. J. Offices: 31 Nassau Street, New York City.

DAY, William A.:

Vice-president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States. He was formerly auditor of the United States Treasury; special assistant to the attorney-general of the United States in cases under the Inter-State Commerce Act and the Sherman Anti-trust Law; first assistant to the attorney-general of the United States, 1903-1905. He is a member of the Metropolitan and Chevy Chase Clubs of Washington, the Brook and New York Riding Clubs of New York City. Residence: 4 Gramercy Park. Office: 120 Broadway, New York City.

DAY, William Rufus:

Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States; born in Ravenna, Ohio, April 17, 1849; son of Judge Luther Day, of the Supreme Court of Ohio, and of Emily (Spalding) Day. In 1866 he entered the academic department of the University of Michigan, where he was graduated in 1870; he also spent one year in the law department of that institution. In 1872 he was admitted to the Ohio bar and began the practice of law in Canton, Stark County, Ohio, where he was elected judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1886. In 1889 he was appointed United States district judge for the Northern District of Ohio by President Harrison, which position he declined. In April, 1897, he was appointed assistant secretary of State by President McKinley, and in April, 1898, was made secretary of State, which position he resigned to accept the chairmanship of the commission which negotiated the treaty of peace with Spain at the close of the Spanish-American War. In February, 1899, he was appointed United States circuit judge for the Sixth Judicial by President McKinley. In February, 1903, he was made justice of the United States Supreme Court by President Roosevelt, taking the oath of office March 2, 1903. Address: 1301 Clifton Street, Washington, D. C.

DAYTON, Alston Gordon:

United States judge; born at Philippi, W. Va., Oct. 18, 1875. He was graduated from the University of West Virginia, in 1878. He engaged in the practice of law in 1878, was prosecuting attorney of Upshur County, W. Va., to fill an unexpired term, and was afterward prosecuting attorney of Barbour County, W. Va., for four years until December 31, 1887. In 1894 he was elected to Congress as a Republican from the Second Congressional District of West Virginia, and reelected biennially five times and he resigned from the Fifty-ninth Congress upon his appointment in 1905 to his present office as United States judge for the Northern District of West Virginia. Address: Philippi, W. Va.

DAYTON, Charles Willoughby:

Jurist; born in Brooklyn, Oct. 3, 1846; son of Abraham C. Dayton, author, and descendant of Colonel Andrew Adams of the Continental Army, who was also Speaker of the Continental Congress, 1779-1780, and chief justice of Connecticut. He was educated in the College of the City of New York, and Columbia Law School, from which he was graduated LL.B., 1868, and was in continuous practice of law in New York City until 1906, when he was elected a justice of the Supreme Court for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. Justice Dayton has always been a prominent Democrat; made speeches for General McClellan in 1864; was member of the State Assembly in 1881; presidential elector and secretary of the Electoral College of New York, 1884; made speeches in favor of Grover Cleveland for President in New York and other States in the campaigns of 1884, 1888 and 1892; was postmaster of New York City, 1893-1897; delegate to the New York State Constitutional Convention of 1894, and to the National Democratic Convention of 1904. He is a director of the Empire City Savings Bank and the United States Life Insurance Company, and is a trustee of the Church of the Puritans and of the Harlem Library. He has been a member of the Harlem Democratic Club from its foundation in 1892. Justice Dayton is a member of the New York State Bar Association, Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and the Society of International Law, and the Manhattan, Down Town and Players Clubs. He married, Jan. 29, 1874, Laura A. Newman. Residence: 13 Mount Morris Park. Official address: County Court House, New York City.

DAYTON, James H.:

Rear-admiral U. S. N., retired; born in Indiana, Oct. 25, 1846. He was appointed from Indiana to the United States Naval Academy, Sept. 27, 1862, and was graduated in 1866. He was promoted through subordinate grades and became lieutenant-commander in November, 1884, in which year he was in special service on the Dolphin, and then went to the Mohican, Pacific Station, 1884-1887. He was at the Naval Ordnance Proving Ground, 1888-1890, and was placed in command of the Petrel in February, 1893. He was promoted to commander, January, 1894; was lighthouse inspector, 1894-1897; commanded the Detroit, June, 1897 to August, 1899; appointed commandant of the Naval Station at San Juan, Oct. 11, 1899; promoted captain, March 29, 1900, and May 3, 1900 was placed in command of the Chicago; was captain of the Naval War College, 1903-1904; was president of the Board of Inspection and survey from Feb. 15, 1904, and was, on Feb. 27, 1906, ordered to command the Philippine Squadron of the Asiatic Fleet. He was promoted to rear-admiral of the United States Navy, Feb. 28, 1906, and in 1907 became commander-in-chief of the Asiatic Fleet; and he was retired by operation of law, Oct. 25, 1908. Address: Care of the Navy Department, Washington, D. C.

DEAN, Bashford:

Zoölogist, archaeologist; born in New York City, Oct. 28, 1867. He was graduated from the College of the City of New York, as A.B. in 1886, Columbia University, A.M., 1889, Ph.D., 1890. He has been professor of vertebrate zoölogy in Columbia University since 1903. Professor Dean was assistant to the New York Fish Commission, 1886-1888; United States Fish Commission, 1889-1892, and as biologist in 1900 and 1901; special investigator of oyster culture in England, France, Belgium, Spain, Portugal, Italy and Japan; director of the Biological Laboratory, Cold Spring Harbor, 1890; member of the Advisory Board, New York Aquarium, since 1902; curator of ichthyology and herpetology American Museum of Natural History, curator arms and armor, Metropolitan Museum of Art. He is a fellow of the New York Academy of Science; New York Zoölogical Society, Metropolitan Museum of Art, and American Museum of Natural History, correspondent of foreign societies, and of the Natural History Museum of Paris. Dr. Dean is author of numerous works on the anatomy, embryology and paleontology of fishes. Residence: Riversdale, N. Y. City. Office: Department of Zoölogy, Columbia University, New York City.

DE ANGELIS, Jefferson:

Comedian; born at San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 30, 1859. He was educated in the public schools of San Francisco and New York City. Mr. De Angelis entered the theatrical profession as a child; toured the world with his own company, from 1880 to 1884, visiting the Sandwich Islands, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania, Malay Archipelago, China, Japan, Manila, India, Africa, etc.; then became comedian of the McCaull Opera Company until 1890, then with the Casino Company, later becoming joint star with Della Fox and Lillian Russell in The Wedding Day. Since 1896 he has been at the head of the De Angelis Opera Company, playing The Royal Rogue, The Toreador, Fantana, The Girl and the Governor, and other plays, and in the season of 1909 in The Beauty Spot. Mr. De Angelis is a Mason of the thirty-second degree; a member of the Mystic Shrine, and of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks. Mr. De Angelis married, in India, in 1882, Florence Conliffe, and they have one son. Address: Sunnyside Drive, Yonkers, N. Y.

DE ANGELIS, P. C. J.:

Jurist; was engaged in the practice of law at Utica, N. Y., until elected on the Republican ticket in November, 1906, a justice of the Supreme Court of New York for the 5th District, for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. Address: Utica, N. Y.

DE ARMOND, David Albaugh:

Congressman; born in Blair County, Pennsylvania, March 18, 1844; was brought up on a farm; educated in the common schools and at Williamsport Dickinson Seminary; was State senator, circuit judge, and Missouri Supreme Court commissioner; was elected to the Fifty-second, Fifty-third, Fifty-fourth, Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh, Fifty-eighth, Fifty-ninth, and Sixtieth Congresses and reelected to the Sixty-first Congress from the Sixth Missouri District. Address: Butler, Mo.

DE BELLEVILLE, Frederic:

Actor; born in Liege, Belgium, his father was a colonel and his brother is a commander in the Belgium Army. His great-uncle, Charles Rogier, was prime minister of Belgium during the reign of King Leopold I. He made his first professional appearance in English in London, where he appeared for eight years; then twelve months in Australia. His first appearance in the United States was in San Francisco at Baldwin's Theatre. Here A. M. Palmer saw him play the Dwarf in Namon, and engaged him for his Union Square Theatre Company, in New York. He played at the Union Square for three seasons, creating, while there, many and various roles successfully, and then followed several years of starring under different managements. Since then he has supported Mr. Crane in The Senator, Rose Coghlan in Diplomacy, Mrs. Fiske in Divorçons, Tess of the D'Urbervilles, Little Italy, Frou Frou, and Leah Kleschma, and Viola Allen in The Eternal City; and originated parts in Mlle Marni, The Coward, Popularity, Tenement Tragedy, Marriage of Reason, Step Sister, Samson. Mr. De Belleville is a member of the Players, Greenroom and Brooklyn Yacht Clubs, the Actor's Order of Friendship, Actors' Fund, Actors' Society, etc. Address: 101 West 86th Street, New York City.

HENRY M. DECHERT
Chairman Board Directors Commonwealth Trust Company, Philadelphia

DEBEVOISE, George:

Manufacturer of colors and varnishes; born in New York City, June 30, 1865; son of George W. and Nettie (Harker) Debevoise. He was educated in the public schools of New York City and the College of the City of New York in the class of 1885. After leaving college he engaged in business, and he is treasurer, general manager and director of the Chilton Paint Company. He has been for many years interested in community work and civic reform in New York City. Mr. Debevoise is a Republican in politics and an Episcopalian in religious affiliation, and he is a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, the Chamber of Commerce of New York, New York Historical Society, and the Holland Society, and of the City, Alpha Delta Phi and Essex County Country Clubs, and his favorite recreations are hunting and fishing. Mr. Debevoise married at Orange, N. J., Oct. 4, 1902, Jessie Lord. Address: 162 East 38th Street, New York City.

DEBEVOISE, Thomas McElrath:

Lawyer; born at New York City; son of George W. and Katherine Price (McElrath) Debevoise. He was educated at Yale University and at the New York Law School, and was admitted to the bar and engaged in practice in New York City, now being a member of the law firm of Rounds, Hatch, Dillingham & Debevoise. Mr. Debevoise is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the New York State Bar Association, the American Bar Association, the Holland Society and the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity. He is also a member of the University, Down Town, Yale, Republican, Alpha Delta Phi, Quill, and Canoe Brook Country Clubs. He is a Republican in politics. Mr. Debevoise married at New Haven, Connecticut, Dec. 6, 1898, Anne Farnam Whitney, and has two children: Eli Whitney Debevoise and Katherine Price Debevoise. Address: 62 Cedar Street, New York City.

DEBS, Eugene Victor:

Presidential candidate, organizer, lecturer; born in Terre Haute, Ind., Nov. 5, 1855; son of Jean Daniel and Marguerite (Betterich) Debs. He was educated in the public schools of Terre Haute, and from 1871 to 1874 was a locomotive fireman on the Terre Haute and Indianapolis Railroad, then was clerk with a wholesale grocery house in Terre Haute until elected city clerk of Terre Haute, in which office he served, 1879-1883, and while in that office was elected grand secretary and treasurer of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, which office he held, 1880-1893, meanwhile being elected to a term in the Indiana Legislature. In 1893 he was elected president of the American Railway Union, which office he held for four years. He directed and won a great strike on the Great Northern Railway, and in 1894 was manager of the greater strike of the Western Roads, in connection with which he was indicted for conspiracy but acquitted; then was charged with violation of an injunction and sent to the jail of McHenry County, Ill., for six months for contempt of court. He was chairman of the National Council of the Social Democracy, 1897-1898, and since then has been a leader of the Socialist forces, becoming candidate for President in 1900 of the Social Democratic Party, and under its new name of the Socialist Party again nominee for President of the United States in 1904 and 1908. Mr. Debs is a vigorous campaigner, and also a popular lecturer. He married, June 9, 1885, Katherine Metzel. Address: Terre Haute, Ind.

DECHERT, Henry Martyn:

Lawyer; born in Reading, Pa., March 11, 1832; son of Elijah and Mary Williams (Porter) Dechert. He was graduated from Yale, A.B., 1850; taught school near Pottstown, Pa., studied law and was admitted to the bar in Philadelphia in 1854, and continued in the general practice of law until 1891. He was president of the Commonwealth Trust Company of Philadelphia, 1886-1906, and is now chairman of the Board and Executive Committee Stockholders, consisting of lawyers and conveyancers; and he is also a director of the Delaware Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia. Mr. Dechert has served as school director and assistant city solicitor of Philadelphia, was nominated for city solicitor in 1860 and for associate judge of the Court of Common Pleas in 1870. He served in 1862 and 1863 in the Civil War as first lieutenant of the 23d and 40th Pennsylvania regiments. Mr. Dechert is a member of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, the Law Association of Philadelphia, Naval Order of the United States; president of the Western Home for Poor Children, Young Men's Institute, and the West Philadelphia Institute; vice-president of the Pennsylvania Society to Protect Children; president of the State Asylum for Chronic Insane of Pennsylvania since 1894; director of the Pennsylvania Epileptic Hospital and Colony Farm, and the Western Temporary Hospital for Women and Children. He was the first president of the Trust Section of the American Bankers' Association, organized in 1896 at St. Louis, Mo. He is a member of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Sons of the Revolution and the University, Art and Lawyers Clubs. He married in Philadelphia, Sept. 15, 1857, Esther S. Taylor. Mrs. Dechert died Nov. 1, 1890. They have three children: Col. Harry T. and Edward P. Dechert of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Charles H. Gale, Cleveland, Ohio. Residence: 3930 Walnut Street. Office: 1201 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DECHERT, Henry T.:

Lawyer; born in Philadelphia, Feb. 2, 1859; son of Henry M. Dechert. He was educated at the University of Pennsylvania, receiving the degrees of A.B., 1879, LL.B., 1881, and A.M., 1882. He was admitted to the Philadelphia bar in 1881, and to the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States in 1889. He has been active in the National Guard of Pennsylvania. He enlisted in 1884 in the First Troop of Philadelphia City Cavalry, was commissioned a lieutenant in the Second Regiment of Infantry in 1890, major in 1891, lieutenant-colonel in 1893 and colonel in 1899. During the Spanish-American War in 1898 he served as lieutenant-colonel of the Second Pennsylvania Infantry during its entire term of duty, commanding five companies in the Department of the East. He is a member of the firm of Potter, Dechert, & Norris, and is a member of the Pennsylvania Commandery of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion by inheritance from his uncle, Brigadier-General Robert P. Dechert. Mr. Dechert married in 1895, Virginia Louise Howard. Address: 32 South Broad Street Philadelphia.

DeCORMIS, Louis:

Clergyman; born in Norfolk, Va., of aristocratic French lineage on his father's side, and, in the maternal line of the Whitelock family of Leeds, England, a branch of the celebrated Pusey family of which Canon Pusey was a distinguished member, and on the mother's side is also a descendant of Deputy Governor Freeman, associate of Governor Bradford of Plymouth Colony, and founder of Sandwich, Mass. After filling various positions in the Third National Bank of Baltimore, he was prepared by tutors and entered Kenyon College, Ohio, and was graduated A.B., with distinction, and afterward from the Episcopal Theological Seminary, at Cambridge, Mass., B.D., 1873. He was ordered deacon by Bishop Neely, 1873, and soon after ordained priest by Bishop Paddock. His first charge was St. John's Church, Taunton, Mass., 1873-1876, and was rector of St. Stephen's Church, Lynn, Mass., 1876-1885, during which rectorship St. Stephen's Memorial Church was built. Hon. E. R. Mudge, of Boston, donating the quarter of a million dollars required for the construction of the church, chapel and rectory. He was assistant minister of St. Anne's, Brooklyn, N. Y., 1885-1887, and from 1887 to 1895 was rector of All Saints Church, Great Neck, L. I., where a new and handsome church and rectory, with large endowment, were built during his rectorship; and from 1895 to 1901 was rector of St. Paul's Church, Columbia, Pa., where he raised a large sum of money to pay off the debt on the church property, and while there was a trustee of the Columbia City Hospital, member of the Diocesan Committee on Sunday School Lessons, representing the Diocese of Central Pennsylvania, and member of the special Diocesan Court appointed by the Standing Committee. He has resided in Cambridge, Mass., since 1901. He received the degrees of D.D., 1898, and LL.D., 1900. Dr. DeCormis has taught in the public schools, has prepared young men for Columbia University and has done other tutor work. He was for about two years a member of the Fifth Maryland Regiment (Militia), and while in Lynn was actively interested in hospital work and is still a member of the Lynn Hospital Corporation. He is a member of the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Wars; chaplain of the Elensis Lodge of Masons, Boston, a Knight Templar, and a member of the Brooklyn and Boston Clerical Clubs. Dr. DeCormis married, in 1882, Isabel, daughter of Nathan R. Gibbs of Boston, and they have a son and a daughter. Address: 54 Wendell Street, Cambridge, Mass.

DEERING, William:

Manufacturer, born at Paris, Oxford County, Maine, April 25, 1826; son of James and Eliza (Moore) Deering. He was educated at the Maine Wesleyan Seminary, Readfield, Kennebec County, Maine, and soon thereafter became connected with a small woolen mill at South Paris, Maine. He afterward became identified with the wholesale dry goods business, as the head of the firm of Deering, Milliken and Company, wholesale and commission dry goods merchants at Portland, Maine, and New York City. In 1870 he became connected with the grain harvester business, acquiring the business originally established at Plano, Ill., for the manufacture of the Marsh harvester, and greatly extended it by new patents and the use of improved manufacturing methods. The business was removed to Chicago in 1880, and conducted in the name of the Deering Harvester Company, manufacturers of Deering harvesting machinery, which was recently merged in the International Harvester Company. He retired from active business in 1902. Mr. Deering is a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, a trustee of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Evanston, Ill., and of Northwestern University, and has served several terms as a member of the General Conferences of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Residence: 408 Church Street. Office address: 518 Davis Street, Evanston, Ill.

DE FOREST, Lockwood:

Artist; born in New York City in 1850. He studied art with Herman Corrodi in Rome, 1869, with Frederick E. Church in Greece, 1869-1870, and with Mr. Church and James M. Hart in New York, 1870. He engaged professionally as a landscape painter with studio in New York City. He studied abroad again in Egypt, Syria, and Greece, 1875-1878, was associated with Louis C. Tiffany in interior decoration, 1879. He was in India, studying Oriental art and collecting examples of interest, 1881-1882, and exhibited specimens of India wood carving made under his direction at the Lahore Exhibition of 1882. He received medal for Indian carving in the Colonial Exhibition in London, and at the World's Columbian Exposition, 1893. Mr. De Forest spent the winter of 1892 and 1893 traveling again in India, making extensive collections. The most important one now forms the Indian jewelry collection in the Field Museum at Chicago, considered by many critics to be as fine as the one in the Indian Museum at South Kensington. He was elected associate of the National Academy of Design in 1891, and an academician in 1898. He is a member of the Century Club, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York Artist Fund Society, Artist Aid Society, Architectural League, and Arts and Crafts of Boston. Mr. De Forest married, in November, 1880, Meta Kemble, of New York. Address: 7 East 10th Street, New York City.

DE FOREST, Robert Weeks:

Lawyer; born at New York City, April 25, 1848; son of Henry G. and Julia M. (Weeks) de Forest. He was graduated from Yale University, A.B., 1870, and later A.M., and the degree of LL.D. was conferred upon him by Yale in 1904. Mr. de Forest was admitted to the bar in 1871 and engaged in the practice of law in New York City. In 1872 he became a member of the law firm of Weeks, Forster and de Forest, and later in that of de Forest Bros., in which he is associated with his brother, H. W. de Forest, and his son, Johnston de Forest. Mr. de Forest became general attorney of the Central Railroad of New Jersey in 1874, and has been at the head of its law department for many years. He is vice-president and general counsel, as well as director of the company; is president of the Hackensack Water Company, trustee of the New York Trust Company and the Hudson Trust Company, and director of other business corporations. In philanthropic matters, he has been president of the New York Charity Organization Society since 1883. He was one of the founders and first president of the Provident Loan Society, for philanthropic pawnbroking, organized in 1894. He was chairman of the New York State Tenement House Commission of 1900, and was appointed first Tenement House Commissioner of the State of New York, which office he held, 1902-1904. He was president of the National Conference of Charities and Correction, which met at Atlanta in 1903, and has been president of the New York City Municipal Art Commission since 1905. He was one of the original incorporators of the Russell Sage Foundation for the Improvement of Social and Living Conditions, of which he is vice-president. He has been a trustee of the Metropolitan Museum of Art continuously since 1889 and has been secretary of the institution since 1904. He was elected vice-president of the American National Red Cross in 1908, and he is a member of the University, Century, and other clubs. He is a Presbyterian in church relations. Mr. de Forest married at New York City, Nov. 12, 1872, Emily Johnston, and they have four children: two sons and two married daughters. Residences: 7 Washington Square, North N. Y., and Cold Spring Harbor, L. I. Office: 30 Broad Street, New York City.

DE GARMO, Charles:

Professor in Cornell University; born in Mukwanago, Wis., Jan. 7, 1849; son of Rufus and Laura M. (Wilbur) De Garmo. He was graduated from Illinois State Normal University in 1873, and from Halle University, Germany, Ph. D. in 1886. He was principal of public schools in Naples, Ill., 1873-1876; assistant training teacher of the Illinois State Normal University, 1876-1883; professor of modern languages in the same university, 1886-1890. Dr. De Garmo was professor of psychology of the University of Illinois, 1890-1891; president of Swarthmore College, Pennsylvania, 1891-1898, and has been professor of the science and art of education at Cornell University since 1898. He is author of: Essentials of Method; Herbart and Herbartians; Language Lessons; Interest and Education, 1902, and Principles of Secondary Education, 1907. He was a private in Company I of the 149th Illinois Volunteers, 1865-1866. Dr. De Garmo was president of the National Herbart Society, 1893-1898; and chairman of the National Council of Education in 1898. He married at Belvidere, Ill., 1875, Ida Witbeck, and they have had three children. Address: Ithaca, N. Y.

DE HAVEN, John Jefferson:

Jurist; born at St. Joseph, Mo., March 12, 1845; son of Jacob de Haven. He removed with his parents to California in 1849, and he was educated in the common schools of that State, afterward studying law and being admitted to the California bar in 1866. He established in the practice of law at Eureka, Calif., and was district attorney of Humboldt County, Calif., 1867-1869; member of the California Legislature in 1869 and of the State Senate, 1871-1875. He was the Republican candidate for Congress from his district in 1882, but was defeated; was elected judge of the Superior Court of Humboldt County, serving, 1884-1889, was elected in 1888 and served from 1889 to 1891 as a member of the fifty-first Congress, and was associate justice of the Supreme Court of California, 1891-1895. In 1895 he established in the practice of law at San Francisco, continuing until appointed by President McKinley, June 8, 1897, judge of the U. S. Court for the Northern District of California, in which office he is still serving. Judge De Haven married, June 24, 1872, Zernah Jane Ball. Address: U. S. Appraiser's Building, San Francisco, Calif.

DEKAY, Charles:

Author and critic; born in Washington, D. C., July 25, 1848; son of Commodore George C. and Janet (Drake) DeKay. He was graduated from Yale in 1868, and for twenty years was connected with the New York Times as literary and art editor, serving later as art editor of the New York Evening Post. Mr. DeKay was founder of the Fencers' Club (of which he is still a governor), 1880, Authors' Club, 1882, National Sculpture Society, 1892, Der Berliner Fecht Club in Berlin, 1896, and in 1899 founded the National Arts Club, of which he was formerly managing director and is still a governor; and he is a member of the Century Club. In 1909 he organized the Circle of Friends of the Medallion. Mr. DeKay is author of: The Bohemian, Hesperus and Other Poems; Visions of Nimrod; Vision of Esther; Bird Gods; Essays on Ancient Ireland (contributed to The Century Magazine); Wonders of the Alphabet (contributed to the St. Nicholas Magazine); Love Poems of Louis Barnaval (pen-name); Life and Works of Barye, The Sculptor; and numerous magazine articles; also translated from the German The Family Letters of Heinrich Heine, and made several translations from the French of Alphonse Daudet and others. Mr. DeKay was American consul at Berlin, 1894-1897. He married Edwalyne Coffey, daughter of Major Edward Lees Coffey, of the British East India Army. Residences: 413 West 23d Street, New York City, and East Hampden, L. I. Address: National Arts Club, Gramercy Park, New York City.

DE KOVEN, Reginald:

Composer; born in Middletown, Conn., April 3, 1861; son of Rev. Rev. Henry De Koven, D.D., and Charlotte (Le Roy) De Koven. He was graduated from St. John's College, Oxford, England, in 1881, with the degree of B.A. He studied music first at Stuttgart, Germany, under William Speidl and afterward studied professionally at the same place under Dr. Lebert and Professor Pruckner. Later he took up harmony and counterpoint with Dr. Hulf of Frankfurt, Germany, and singing under Signor Vannucinni, at Florence, Italy, and Heuschel in London; and finally studied under Richard Genée, the Viennese composer, and Delibes in Paris. Mr. De Koven is the composer of: The Begum; Don Quixote; Robin Hood; The Fencing Master; The Algerian; Rob Roy; The Knickerbockers; The Tzigane; The Mandarin; The Highwayman; Man in the Moon; The Three Dragoons; Papa's Wife; Foxy Quiller; Little Duchess; Maid Marian; Red Feather; Happy Land; The Student King; The Golden Butterfly; The Beauty Spot; The Snowman, and many songs including: O Promise Me, and a Recessional and music for piano and orchestra. He has served as musical critic on various New York publications, is now critic N. Y. World. He is a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters, the Manuscript Society, of which he was president, 1897-1898, and the Union, Knickerbocker, Brook and Lambs Clubs of New York City. He was the founder and conductor of the Washington Symphony Orchestra, 1902-1905. Mr. De Koven married, May 1, 1884, Anna, daughter of the late United States Senator Charles B. Farwell, of Illinois, and they have one daughter. Residence: 42 East 66th Street, New York City.

DELAFIELD, Francis:

Physician, pathologist; born in New York City, in 1841. He was educated in private schools, and at Yale College, being graduated as A.B., 1860, and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York City, M.D., in 1862. He also took post-graduate study at the London and Paris hospitals, and received the honorary degree of LL.D. from Yale in 1890 and from Columbia in 1904. Dr. Delafield was adjunct professor, 1875-1881, professor of medicine, 1882-1901, and emeritus professor since 1901 of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University. He has served as physician to the Bellevue Hospital, pathologist and physician to the Roosevelt Hospital, and surgeon to the New York Eye and Ear Infirmary. He is a member of the New York County Medical Society, New York Academy of Medicine, Pathological Society, Association of American Physicians, and the St. Nicholas Society. He has contributed much to original research in pathology and is author of: Studies in Pathological Anatomy; Hand-book of Post-Mortem Examination and Morbid Anatomy; also of a monograph on Renal Diseases. He is a member of the Century, Riding, City and Yale Clubs of New York. Dr. Delafield married Jan. 17, 1870, Katharine Van Rensselaer. Address: 5 West 50th Street, New York City.

DELAFIELD, John Ross:

Lawyer; born in New York City, May 8, 1874; son of Maturin Livingston and Mary Coleman (Livingston) Delafield. He was educated at Princeton University, graduating as A.B. and later received the degree of A.M. He was also graduated from Harvard Law School, as LL.B. He was admitted to the New York State bar, in 1899 and has since been engaged in general practice in New York City. He is an Independent Republican in politics and an Episcopalian in his religious affiliation. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, and the University and Riding Clubs of New York City. Mr. Delafield married at New York City, June 14, 1904, Violetta S. White, and they have two sons John W. R. Delafield, and Richard Montgomery Delafield. Address: 17 East Seventy-ninth Street, New York City, and Riverdale-on-Hudson, New York.

DELAFIELD, Richard:

Banker; born in New Brighton, Staten Island, N. Y., Sept. 6, 1853; son of Rufus King and Eliza (Bard) Delafield. Was educated in the Anthon Grammar School in New York, and at an early age engaged in mercantile pursuits. He became an active and successful merchant, being senior partner of the firm of Delafield & Company of New York, Chicago, and San Francisco, which house he founded. Mr. Delafield is President of the National Park Bank of New York; Director in the Mount Morris Bank, Plaza Bank, Mutual Bank, and Yorkville Bank. He was a Commissioner from the State of New York to the World's Columbia Exposition in 1893. Is largely interested in various charitable institutions. He is a vestryman of Trinity Church and a member of the Society of Sons of the Revolution. He belongs to the Union League, Tuxedo, Riding, Metropolitan, Racquet and Tennis, and other Clubs. He married Clara Foster Carey. City Residence: 40 West 46th Street. Country Residence: Tuxedo Park, N. Y. Office: 214 Broadway, New York City.

DELANO, Frederic Adrian:

President of the Wabash Railroad; born in Hong Kong, China, Sept. 10, 1863; son of Warren and Catherine Robbins (Lyman) Delano, both native of Massachusetts. His boyhood was passed at Newburg, N. Y., and he was educated in Adams Academy, Quincy, Mass., and Harvard University, A.B., 1885, and immediately after graduation he became a machinist apprentice in the erecting shops of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad at Aurora, Ill., 1885-1887. He was in charge of the Bureau of Steel Rail Inspection and Tests, 1887-1889, assistant to second vice-president, 1889-1890, superintendent of freight terminals at Chicago, 1890-1899, superintendent of motive power, 1899-1901, and general manager, 1901-1905 of the same road, leaving the service of the Burlington, Jan. 10, 1905. He became for a short time consulting engineer to the War Department and the Philippine Commission, and since May 1, 1905 has been president of the Wheeling and Lake Erie Railroad and of the Wabash Pittsburgh Terminal Railway; was first vice-president, May-Oct., 1905, and since Oct. 5, 1905 has been president of the Wabash Railroad.

Mr. Delano is also chairman of the Board of Directors of the Metropolitan West and South Side Elevated Railroad Company of Chicago; and is a director of the Union Mining Company of Maryland and of the Hamilton National Bank of Chicago. Mr. Delano was a vice-president of the American Unitarian Association, 1907-1908, is a member of the Board of Overseers of Harvard College, and president of the Board of Directors of the Chicago Lying-in Hospital. He is a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Institute of Mining Engineers, Western Society of Engineers, American Master Mechanics' Association, American Master Car-Builders' Association, International Railway Congress, the Franklin Institute, the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Western Railway Club of Chicago. He is a member of the Union League, University, Mid-day, Chicago Literary and Commercial Clubs of Chicago. He married in Chicago, Nov. 22, 1888, Matilda Peasley. Residence: 1844 Wellington Avenue. Office: Western Union Building, Chicago.

DELANAV, David Bryson:

Physician; born in New York City; son of Edward C. and Margaretta (Bryson) Delavan. He was graduated from Yale, A.B., 1872, College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York City, M.D., 1875, being while there under the preceptorship of the late Professor Willard Parker, M.D. Dr. Delavan has been engaged in the practice of medicine in New York City since graduation, and is consultant to St. Luke's Hospital, Mt. Sinai Hospital, the General Memorial Hospital, Hospital for Ruptured and Crippled, New York Skin and Cancer Hospital, Vassar Brothers Hospital, and the Stony Wold Sanitarium. He is professor of laryngology in New York Polyclinic, and is an alumnus of the City and Presbyterian Hospitals, and was formerly curator and assistant pathologist to the New York Hospital. Dr. Delavan is a frequent contributor to medical literature, especially in the department of laryngology. He is a trustee and vice-president of the Russell Sage Institute of Pathology, and of the Grenfell Association of America; trustee of the New York Polyclinic Hospital and Medical School, the Scenic and Historic Preservation Society of America, and the New York Dispensary; member of the American Medical Association; member and ex-president of the American-Laryngological Association; member of the New York Academy of Medicine, New York Clinical Society, Hospital Graduates Club, and the Yale, University and Century Club of New York City. Dr. Delavan married in St. Louis, Mo., June 14, 1899, Marion Rumsey, and they have a daughter. Address: 1 East 33rd Street, New York City.

DE LEON, Daniel:

Editor; born on the island of Curacao, Dec. 14, 1852; went to Europe in boyhood, coming to the United States in 1872. He was graduated from the University of Leyden, Ph.D., and from Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1878, and he was prize lecturer on Latin-American diplomacy, 1883-1889, in Columbia University. He was instrumental in founding the Socialist Trade and Labor Alliance in 1895, and was an officer of that organization until it was merged into The Industrial Workers of the World, 1905. He joined the Socialist Labor Party in Oct., 1890, and since 1892 has been editor of its English organ, The Weekly People, and in 1900 he founded, and has since edited The Daily People. He has long been recognized as the most influential member of the Socialist Labor Party. Address: 28 City Hall Place, New York City.

DE LIMA, Elias Abinun:

Merchant, banker; born at Curacao, Dutch West Indies, April 24, 1865; son of David A. and Sarah (Wolff) de Lima. He was educated at Dr. Sach's School, New York City, and was graduated from Cornell University, B.S., 1886; and from Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1889. Mr. de Lima was admitted to the New York bar in 1889 and he is a member of the mercantile firm of D. A. De Lima & Company; is president of the Battery Park National Bank and is a director and advisory counsel of the Corn Exchange Bank (Staten Island branch). He is a trustee of the S. R. Smith Infirmary of Staten Island; and is a member of the Municipal Art Society. Mr. de Lima is a member of the Cornell Theta Delta Chi, Graduates', National Arts and New York Athletic Clubs. He married in New York City, Oct. 27, 1886, Estela A. de Lima, and they have four children. Address: 58 West 87th Street, New York City.

DEL MAR, Alexander:

Engineer and author; born in New York City, Aug. 9, 1836; son of Jacques and Belvidera Del Mar. He was educated in and received a diploma from the New York Polytechnic, studied in London under Sir Arthur Helps and Manuel Del Mar (joint authors of "The Conquerors of America"), and attended New York University and the Madrid Mining School. He was financial editor of the Daily American Times, 1854; Hunt's Merchants' Magazine, 1860; Social Science Review, 1863; the Financial and Commercial Chronicle, 1865; and the National Intelligencer, Washington, D. C., 1870. He organized and was Director of the United States Bureau of Commerce, Navigation, Emigration, Mines and Statistics (now Department of Commerce and Labor), 1865-1869; was commissioner to Italy, Holland and Russia, 1866-1872; member of the United States Monetary Commission, 1876-1878. He engaged in the practice of civil and mining engineering from 1872, and was for twenty-six years engaged in mining and constructing mining works and machinery. He was editorial manager of the Cambridge Encyclopedia, 1900; editor-in-chief of the American Banker, 1905-1906, and resumed mining in 1908. Mr. Del Mar is now engaged in the project of excavating the buried city of Herculaneum for the Italian Government. He was connected with the movement of remonetize silver from 1874; and was a leader in the municipal reform movement in Brooklyn which resulted in the overthrow of the Ring, in 1871. Mr. Del Mar is author of a "History of the Precious Metals;" a "History of Money and many important works and numerous essays in relation to monetary science and the history of money and the precious metals in all ages and countries, upon which subjects he ranks with the first authorities; also upon economy, social conditions, antiquities and archaeology, his latest works being "Ancient Britain;" a "History of the Middle Ages;" "The Worship of Augustus Cæsar;" and "The Messiah, or the Discovery and Colonization of Asia Minor, Egypt and Europe by Thibetan, Indian and other Oriental Races," 1909. Besides books, Mr. Del Mar has contributed to leading English, French and American journals and to official publications, many notable articles and papers on monetary, economic and historical subjects. Address: 160 Madison Square, New York City.

DELMAS, Delphin Micheal:

Lawyer; born in France, April 14, 1844; son of Antoine Delmas and Coralie Delmas. While he was a small boy his parents became part of the colony of French settlers who went to Santa Clara County, California, and there he received his education. He was graduated as A.B. from the Santa Clara College in 1862, and from it received the degree of A.M. in 1863 and Ph.D. in 1903; and in 1865 he was graduated from the Law School of Yale with the degree of LL.B. In 1866 he began practice at San Jose, California, was elected district attorney of Santa Clara County in 1868, and was the recognized leader of the Santa Clara bar when, in 1883, he removed his practice to San Francisco. He has been leading counsel in many important cases, civil and criminal, on the Pacific Coast, and was leading counsel on the trial of Harry Thaw for the murder of Stanford White in New York City in 1906, resulting in a disagreement of the jury. In politics Mr. Delmas is a Democrat, and he was delegate-at-large from California to the National Democratic convention at St. Louis in 1904. In religion he is a Catholic. He was a regent of the University of California in 1885. Mr. Delmas is one of the famous orators of America, and has made many addresses on important public occasions, in addition to his forensic arguments. A volume of these, under the title: Speeches and Addresses, was published in San Francisco in 1901. Mr. Delmas married in San Francisco, April 7, 1869, Pauline Hoge. Residence: Casa Delmas, Santa Clara County, Cal. Office address: 901 Call Building, San Francisco, Cal.

DE LONGPRÉ, Paul:

Artist and painter; born at Lyons, France, April 18, 1855; son of Victor and Theresia (Pinchaud) De Longpré. He was educated in the public schools of Paris until he was twelve years of age. He has especially distinguished himself as a painter of flowers and had his first paintings accepted at the Paris Salon in 1876. By a failure of a large bank in Paris he was ruined and in 1890 came to New York. He made his first exhibition of only flower paintings at the American Art Galleries in 1896; and has held annual exhibitions ever since. In 1899 he moved to Los Angeles, Calif., and in 1901 built a residence at Hollywood, Los Angeles County, with three acres of flower gardens, which is one of the notable sights visited by tourists. He married at Paris, France, March, 1874, Josephine Estievenard. Address: Hollywood, Los Angeles County, Calif.

DE MILLE, William C.:

Dramatist; born in Washington, N. C. July 25, 1878; son of Henry C. and Matilda B. (Samuel) De Mille. He was educated at Freiburg, Germany, 1895-1896; and was graduated from Columbia University A.B., 1900. Mr. De Mille is author of: Strongheart; The Genius, and other plays. He is a member of the American Dramatists, Columbia University, and The Lambs Clubs of New York City. He married at Fort Hamilton, N. Y. Anna A. George, daughter of Henry George, and they have one daughter. Address: The Lambs, 130 West 44th Street, New York City.

DEMING, Edwin Willard:

Artist; born in Ashland, Ohio, Aug. 26, 1860; son of Howard A. and Celestia V.

(Willard) Deming. He was educated in public schools in Illinois and studied art in Paris under Boulanger and Le Febvre. He was awarded medals at Philadelphia, at the Pan-American Exposition, Buffalo, and the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, and received honorable mention in Berlin and Jurin. He won a first prize in competition of the Municipal Art Society for two decorations in the Morris High School Building, in New York City. He is represented in the Wisconsin Historical Society's Museum at Madison, Wis., by two large canvasses: "Braddock's Defeat" and "The Landfall of Jean Nicollet; in the Metropolitan Museum of Art by two bronzes, and he has executed many bronzes of Indians, wild animals, and much decoration in private homes and pictures. He is a member of the Society of Mural Decorators, the Architectural League and the Anthropological and Ethnological Societies and a member of the Sons of the Revolution." He married in Yonkers, N. Y., Oct. 22, 1892, Therese Osterheld, and they have one son and three daughters. Address: 5 Macdougall Alley, New York City.

DEMING, Horace Edward:

Lawyer; born in Palmyra, N. Y., March 31, 1850; son of Jeremiah P. H. and Mary (Colt) Deming. He was educated in Palmyra Union School, 1864, Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., 1865, Harvard College, A.B., 1871, followed by graduate work there and two years in the Harvard Law School. He was admitted to the bar in 1877, and has since been engaged in active law practice. Mr. Deming has been actively identified with political and reform movements, was one of the founders, 1880, and president and chairman of executive committee, 1880-1882, of the Brooklyn Young Republican Club; chairman of executive committee of the National Committee of Republicans and Independents, 1884; special counsel of the commissioners of accounts in investigating the corporation counsel's office in New York City, 1885. He was one of the founders and a member of the executive committee of the Commonwealth Club, which inaugurated the ballot-reform of 1886-1887; one of the founders and a trustee of the New York Reform Club, 1887; chairman of the General Committee of the New York Ballot Reform League, 1888-1890; chairman of the executive committee of the People's Municipal League, 1891; one of founders, 1894, chairman of committee on municipal programme, 1897-1899, and now chairman of the executive committee of the National Municipal League. Mr. Deming was a member of the special committee of municipal reform organizations to draft proposed changes in the constitution of the State of New York relating to the government of cities, and of the special committee that drafted the State Civil Service Reform clause of the New York Constitution of 1894; was counsel of the Senate Committee to investigate the administration of the Civil Service Law of the State, 1894; and drafted the bill which was made the basis of the present law on that subject. He was a member of the special committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York to report on the proposed new charter of Greater New York, and represented the Bar Association before the governor and mayor in opposition to the proposed charter in 1897; was on the executive committee of the Merchants' Association in the movement (1899-1900) which prevented the City of New York from being obliged to secure its water supply from private corporations; on the Citizens Committee of 250 to secure the adoption of revised charter for New York City, 1901, and was special counsel of the attorney-general's office in the investigation of the district attorneys' office in New York in 1901. Mr. Deming is joint author of A Municipal Program, 1900, and author of The Government of American Cities, 1909. He was president of the Phillips Andover Academy Alumni Association, 1905-1906; is a member of the council of the National Civil Service Reform Association; member of the Phi Beta Kappa Society, American Economic Association, National Civic Federation, Academy of Political Science, American Political Science Association, and of the City Club of New York. He married at Saugerties, N. Y., July 17, 1878, Caroline Springstead. Residence: 853 West End Avenue. Office: 15 William Street, New York City.

DEMORSET, William Curtis:

Lawyer; born at New York City, Aug. 2, 1859; son of W. Jennings and Ellen Louise (Curtis) Demorset. He was educated at the Cheshire School to 1875; the Columbia Grammar School to 1877, was graduated from Columbia College, A.B., 1881 and from the Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1883. He studied law in the office of Norwood and Coggeshall, being especially connected with the title and mortgage departments, and he abandoned law practice to assume the management of his father's large estate, and make a specialty of real estate. Since the organization of the Realty Trust in 1890, has been its president. He is also president of the Cleveland Baking Powder Company, and secretary and treasurer of the State Realty & Mortgage Company, is general manager and treasurer of Demorset & Little, real estate (incorporated); director of the Fidelity Trust Co., the Market and Fulton National Bank, the Royal Baking Powder Company, and the Tartar Chemical Company; trustee of the Irving Savings Bank, and Hospital Guild. Mr. Demorset is member of the New York Academy of Sciences, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the Genealogical and Biographical Society, the Metropolitan Museum of Arts, the American Museum of Natural History, New York Zoölogical Society, St. Nicholas Society, the Holland Society, Society of Colonial Wars, the Empire State Society of the Sons of the Revolution, the Committee of Allied Real Estate Interests, the Chamber of Commerce, Association of the Bar of the City of New York, New York County Law Association, New York State Bar Association, and Psi Upsilon fraternity. Mr. Demorset is a member of the Metropolitan, Union League, Columbia University, and Metropolitan Opera Clubs, Automobile Club of America, Automobile Association of America, Long Island Auto Club, Lawyers', Fulton, Knollwood, and Niantic Clubs, Camp Fire Club of America, Camp Fire Club of Quebec, Montagnais Club (Canada), the Acomaack Club of Chesapeake Bay, and the St. Bernard Hunting and Fishing of Canada. Mr. Demorset married at New York City, Feb. 6, 1884, Alice Estelle Gilbert; and they have three children. Residence: 68 East 66th Street, New York City, and Hukweem Lodge (Loon Lake, Adirondacks). Office: 60 Liberty Street, New York City.

DENBY, Charles:

Consular official; born in Evansville, Ind., Nov. 14, 1861; son of the late Charles Denby, former United States minister to China and Martha (Fitch) Denby. He was graduated from Princeton University, A.B., 1882, and he was appointed second secretary of the Legation at Peking, July 1, 1885; was appointed first secretary Oct. 20, 1893; and was charge d'Affaires from March 17 to Oct. 27, 1894, and from May 14 to Aug. 1, 1896. He resigned in Nov., 1897, and engaged in business at Tientsin China. Mr. Denby was appointed secretary-general of the Provisional Government established by the Allied Powers for the District of Tientsin, July 18, 1900, serving for two years. Mr. Denby was appointed chief clerk of the Department of State, Nov. 16, 1905; and April 15, 1907, was appointed American consul-general at Shanghai, which office he still holds. He married in 1895 Martha Dalzell Orr. Address: Shanghai, China.

DENBY, Edwin:

Lawyer and congressman; born in Evansville, Ind., Feb. 18, 1870; son of Hon. Charles Denby, diplomatist, and of Martha (Fitch) Denby. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, LL.B., 1896. He went to China while his father was American minister to that country, and was for ten years in the customs service of China under Sir Robert Hart. He served as gunner's mate, third class, in the U. S. Navy during the War with Spain, 1898; served in the Michigan Legislature as a Republican member from Detroit, was elected in 1904 to Congress from the First Michigan District, and was reelected in 1906 and 1908. Mr. Denby is a member of the law firm of May, Denby & O'Brien, in Detroit. Residence: 402 Jefferson Avenue. Office: 201 Molliat Block, Detroit, Mich.

DENBY, Edwin H.:

Architect; born in Philadelphia, Feb. 9, 1873; son of Dr. Edwin Robinson and Laura (Hooper) Denby. He was educated at the Polytechnic at Dresden, Germany, and is Dipolme of the École des Beaux Arts, in Paris, 1897. He traveled through Greece, Turkey, the Holy Land, Egypt, Spain, Italy, Belgium, Holland and Germany, 1897-1899. He was decorated by the Sultan of Turkey with order of Osmanieh, and received honorable mention in the Salon of Architecture, 1897-1898; and he returned to America in 1899. He is a member of the firm of Denby & Nute, architects. His summers are spent in Bar Harbor, Me., where he has a local office. Mr. Denby is a member of the American Institute of Architects, the Beaux Arts Society, Architects Diplômés par le Gouvernement, the Municipal Art Society, the Architectural League; and the Manhattan Club of New York City. Address: 333 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

DENEEN, Charles Samuel:

Governor of Illinois; born in Edwardsville, Ill., May 4, 1863; son of Samuel H. and Mary F. (Ashley) Deneen. He was graduated from McKendree College, Lebanon, Ill., in 1882. He taught school for three years, and then studied law, and was later admitted to the bar. Mr. Deneen was a member of several law firms and is now a member of the law firm of Deneen and Hamill. He was elected to the Illinois House of Representatives in 1892, serving one term as attorney for the sanitary district of Chicago from Dec., 1895 to 1896, and was State's attorney of Cook County, Ill. from Dec., 1896 until elected governor in 1904 of Illinois. He was reelected in 1908 for the term expiring in 1912. Governor Deneen has always been an active Republican. He married at Mt. Carmel, Ill., May 10, 1891, Bina Day Maloney. Residence: 532 West 61st Street, Chicago.

Official address: Springfield, Ill.

DENEGRE, Walter Denis:

Lawyer; born in New Orleans, La., June 17, 1858; son of James Denis and Sylvanie (Blanc) Denegre. He was educated in Jesuits College, New Orleans, and St. Johns College, Fordham, N. Y., was graduated from Harvard, A.B., 1879, and from the law department of the Tulane University of Louisiana, LL.B., 1881, and admitted to the Louisiana bar in 1881. Since 1896 he has been a member of the firm of Denegre, Blair and Denegre, and was special counsel for the United States before the French and American Claims Commission in 1881. He was King of the Mardi-Gras Carnival at New Orleans in 1899. Mr. Denegre has been active in Louisiana politics in the Independent Democracy, and was its candidate for United States Senator in 1896, and had the votes necessary for election, but S. D. McEnery was declared elected by a vote of 68 to 66. Mr. Denegre was a member of the board of administrators of the Tulane University Educational Fund; is a member of the University Calumet, Racquet, Harvard, and Brook Clubs of New York, the Myopia Hunt and Essex County Clubs of Mass., of the Boston Club of New Orleans and of the Metropolitan Club at Washington. He married in 1893, Mrs. Bertha Cobb-Armour, widow of William Armour, and daughter of S. B. Cobb of Chicago. Address: New Orleans, La.

DENISON, Edmund Decatur:

City superintendent of schools; born at Hanna, Indiana; son of George S. Denison and Aurilla (Blackman) Denison. He was graduated from Northwestern University as A.B. in 1899. He was high school assistant at Lake Geneva, Wis., from 1899 to Jan., 1902; principal of the Negaunee (Michigan) High School from Jan. to June, 1902; and principal of Ripon (Wisconsin) College Academy in 1902 and 1903. He engaged in mercantile business at Lake Geneva, Wis., in 1903; became high school assistant at Lake Geneva, Wis., from 1905 to 1907, and has been city superintendent of schools at Lake Geneva, Wis., from 1907. He is a member of the firm of Burton, Denison and Davidson. Mr. Denison is a Republican in politics and a Congregationalist in religion. He is a member of the Classical Association of the Middle West and South, and of the National Geographical Society; is a Royal Arch Mason; a member of the Delta Tau Delta fraternity, and of the Modern Woodmen of America. He married Lake Geneva, Wis., June 22, 1904, Bonnie Eloise Burton. Address: Lake Geneva, Wis.

DENNIS, Frederic Shepard:

Surgeon; born in Newark, N. J., April 17, 1850; son of Alfred L. and Eliza A. (Shepard) Dennis. He was graduated from Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., 1868, Yale College, B.A., 1872, Bellevue Hospital Medical College, M.D., 1874, attended the Royal College of Surgeons, London, 1877, (F.R.C.S., 1899). Dr. Dennis is attending surgeon of the Bellevue and St. Vincent Hospitals; professor of clinical surgery in Cornell University; and is a member of the staff of Bellevue and St. Vincent's Hospitals and the Montefiore Home in New York City, and St. Joseph's Hospital at Yonkers, N. Y. Dr. Dennis is a member of the American Surgical Association, the Clinical Society of London, New York Academy of Medicine, and the German Congress of Surgeons of Berlin. He is also a member of the Century and University Clubs. He married, Feb. 5, 1880, Fannie R. Carhart. Address: 62 East 55th Street, New York City.

DENNIS, James Shepard:

Clergyman and author; born in Newark, N. J., Dec. 15, 1842; son of Alfred L. and Eliza (Shepard) Dennis. He was graduated from Princeton University in 1863; student of law at Harvard Law School from 1863 to 1864; was graduated from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1867, and received the degree of D.D. from Princeton University in 1879, and from the University of Aberdeen in 1906. He was ordained to the Presbyterian ministry by the Presbytery of Newark in 1868. He went to Syria as missionary in the autumn of the same year; and was principal and professor of theology in the Seminary of the Syria Mission at Beirut from 1873 to 1891. He prepared several theological text-books in the Arabic language and returned to the United States in 1891. He resigned as missionary of the Presbyterian Board in 1892 and since that date was made honorary member of the Syria Mission. He was student lecturer on missions at the Princeton Theological Seminary in 1893 and in 1896, repeating the latter course by invitation at the Lane, Allegheny, and Auburn Seminaries the same year; and was special lecturer on missions at the McCormick Theological Seminary in Chicago, in 1907. He was chairman of the Committee on Statistics and member of the Executive Committee of Ecumenical Conference on Foreign Missions in New York in 1900. Since 1904 he has been a member of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions of New York City. Mr. Dennis is author of: Foreign Missions; After a Century; The Message of Christianity to Other Religions; Christian Missions and Social Progress (three volumes); Centennial Survey of Foreign Missions; and The New Horseshoe of Missions. He is a member of the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Society of Colonial Wars, Sons of the Revolution, the Presbyterian Union of New York, Chi Alpha, Sigma Chi, and the American Academy of Political and Social Science. He is a fellow of the American Geographical Society and a member of the Princeton and Quill Clubs. He married in 1872, Mary Elizabeth Pinneo, daughter of James B. Pinneo, of Newark, N. J. Their only son, Alfred L. P. Dennis, Ph.D., is professor of Modern European History in the University of Wisconsin. Address: Montclair, N. J.

DENNIS, Louis Munroe:

Professor of chemistry; born in Chicago, May 26, 1863; son of Joseph S. and Faustina (Munroe) Dennis. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, Ph.B., 1885, B.S., 1886; studied in the years, 1889-1891 at Fresenius' Laboratory, Wiesbaden, Technische Hochschulen of Aachen and Dresden, and the University of Munich. He was instructor in Cornell University, 1887-1889, and after graduate study in Europe returned to that University as assistant professor of analytical chemistry, 1891-1894; associate professor of inorganic and analytical chemistry, 1894-1897; professor of analytical chemistry, 1897-1903, and since 1903 has been professor of inorganic chemistry and head of the Department of Chemistry in Cornell University. Professor Dennis is a member of the Board of Health of the City of Ithaca, director of the American Chemical Society, member of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Electrochemical Society, Sigma Xi and Phi Beta Kappa Society, Psi Upsilon fraternity, and the Town and Gown and Country Clubs of Ithaca, N. Y. Residence: 722 University Avenue. Office: Department of Chemistry, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y.

DENNIS, William B.:

Mine operator; born in Cincinnati, Ohio. Dec. 8, 1865; son of Rev. M. J. Dennis (Presbyterian clergyman). He was prepared for college at the Madison County Academy at Richmond, Ky., and then entered the Central University at Richmond, Ky., from which he was graduated A.B., 1884. On leaving college he began newspaper work at Dayton, Ohio, on the Dayton Daily Journal, and in 1885, became publisher of the Farmers' Home at Dayton, continuing until 1890, when he removed to Port Townsend, Wash., where he became editor and manager of the daily and weekly Port Townsend Leader, until 1892. Since then he has devoted his attention to mining interests, was for some years president and general manager of the Eureka Pacific Consolidated Mining Company, of Idaho, and he is now president and manager of the Black Butte Quicksilver Mine at Black Butte. He is a member of the American Institute of Mining Engineers, American Geographic Society, and social clubs in New York, San Francisco, and Portland, Ore. In late years he has devoted much time and study to metallurgical work, and is the inventor of the Dennis Roasting Process for treating sulphide ores, for which patents have been granted in the United States and all important foreign countries. Mr. Dennis married in June, 1900, Queen H. Littlefield, of Port Townsend, Wash. Address: Black Butte, Lane County, Ore.

DENNISON, Charles Sumner:

Manufacturer; born in Newtonville, Mass., June 20, 1858: son of Eliphalet W. and Lydia A. (Beals) Dennison. He was educated in the Highland Military Academy, Worcester, Mass., and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He became a skilled machinist, but did not adopt the business as a profession as he was made an active member and treasurer of the Dennison Manufacturing Company with extensive manufactory at South Framingham, Mass., and offices in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis and San Francisco. He was one of the early promoters of the Newton Hospital in 1886, was made member of the board of trustees and is the founder of the Elizabeth Dennison ward for children. Mr. Dennison married Mary R., daughter of Abram French, and they have three daughters: Florence, Lydia, and Olivia Bell Dennison. Residence: Kirkstall Road, Newtonville, Mass. Address: Franklin Street, Boston.

DENNY, Frank Lee:

Colonel, United States Marine Corps; born at Indianapolis, Ind.; son of Hon. James Cook and Caroline (Davis) Benny. He was appointed second lieutenant, U. S. Marine Corps, in June, 1880; first lieutenant in Dec., 1881, captain and assistant quartermaster in Feb., 1892; colonel and chief quartermaster in March, 1899. He had six years sea service; shore service at Alexandria, Egypt in 1882 after the British bombardment; at the Isthmus of Panama in 1885; and in the Spanish-American War. As chief quartermaster of the Marine Corps he has direction of the matters relating to the supply, payment, etc. of the Corps and is recognized as one of the leading experts of the United States on the equipment and maintenance of infantry forces. He is a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, Naval Order of the United States, and Order of the Spanish War; and of the Alibi, Metropolitan, and Chery Chase Clubs of Washington and the New York Yacht Club. He married Julia Graham Palmer, daughter of Gen. I. N. Palmer U. S. A. Address: Headquarters Marine Corps, Washington, D. C.

DENSLOW, William Wallace:

Author, illustrator, and designer of stage productions; born in Philadelphia, May 5, 1856; son of William Wallace and Jane E. (Evans) Denslow. He was educated in the New York public schools, the Cooper Institute and the National Academy of Design at New York. He has worked on most of the principal newspapers and magazines. Among his best pictures are: What's the Use, and Victory. Since 1899 he has been devoted principally to the illustration of books for children, including: Father Goose—His Book; The Wonderful Wizard of Oz; Dot and Tot of Maryland; Denslow's Mother Goose; Denslow's Night Before Christmas; Denslow's One Ring Circus; Denslow's Humpty-Dumpty; Denslow's Scarecrow and Tin Man; Denslow's Picture Books for Children, in sixteen volumes; the last four mentioned being compiled or written by Mr. Denslow; also the Pearl and the Pumpkin, collaborating on the text with Paul West. He illustrated Billy Bounce, collaborating on text with Dudley A. Bragdon; The Jeweled Toad and Parlor Animals; wrote and illustrated When I Grow Up (published by The Century Company), and Dreams of Childhood. He designed the eccentric costumes for the play of The Wizard of Oz, and he made designs for the entire stage production of The Pearl and the Pumpkin. Much of Mr. Denslow's time is spent in Bermuda, where he has built a winter home upon an island named after him. He is a member of the Press Club of Chicago, Ad Club of Buffalo, Columbia Yacht Club of New York, and the Dingy Club of Hamilton, Bermuda. He married in New York City, Dec. 26, 1903, Frances G. Doolittle. Address: 2403 Broadway, New York City.

DENSMORE, Emmet:

Physician; born in Crawford County, Pa., May 19, 1837; son of Joel and Sophia Densmore. He received his early education in the public schools of Crawford County; was two years at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., and was graduated from the New York University Medical College, as M.D. in 1885. In 1862, with his brothers, he developed, on the Tarr farm, on Oil Creek, Pa., one of the first successful oil wells; and the brothers invented and introduced the first tank cars by which oil was shipped to the seaboard. He was connected with his brother James in the development of the Sholes typewriter, later known as Remington typewriter; owned the British patents for and introduced into London the Remington typewriter, 1871-1872; and in partnership with his brother Amos, beginning 1885, developed and introduced the Densmore typewriter. Dr. Densmore is principal proprietor of the Garfield Tea corporation. He is author of: Natural Food of Man (booklet), 1890; How Nature Cures, 1890; Consumption and Chronic Diseases, 1899; Sex Equality, 1907; and Introduction to Arcana of Nature, 1908. Dr. Densmore married first, at Bloomington Valley, Pa., in 1855, Elizabeth Heard; second, at Chicago, Ill., May 14, 1881 Helen Barnard, and third at New York City Oct. 6, 1905, Mabelle Hoff. Residence: 471 Park Avenue, New York City.

DEPEW, Chauncey Mitchell:

United States senator; born in Peekskill, N.Y., April 23, 1834; son of Isaac and Martha (Mitchell) Depew. He is of French Huguenot descent on the paternal side, and descended from Roger Sherman on his mother's side. He was graduated from Yale College, B.A., 1856, and received from it the degree of LL.D. in 1887. Mr. Depew read law at Peekskill with Hon. William Nelson, was admitted to the bar in 1858 and began practice in 1859. In 1866 he was appointed attorney for the New York and Harlem Railroad Company; was made general counsel of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company in 1875, and has since continuously been identified with that company and with various other railroads comprising and allied to the Vanderbilt System. He became president of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad in 1885, but resigned in 1899 to become chairman of the boards of directors of the New York Central, the Lake Shore, the Michigan Central, and the New York, Chicago and St. Louis Railroad Companies. He has also served on the board of directors of several large financial organizations, from which he has now retired. Mr. Depew has rendered service to the Republican Party in every National campaign since he became a voter, and is its most distinguished orator. He was delegate to the Republican State Convention of New York in 1858; was elected to the New York Legislature in 1861 and reelected in 1863, serving on the Committee of Ways and Means; was elected secretary of State of New York, 1863; was candidate for lieutenant-governor of New York on the Liberal Republican ticket, 1872; was appointed regent of the University of the State of New York in 1874, and was appointed a member of the Commission to superintend the erection of the State Capital; was a prominent candidate for United States senator in 1881; offered an election for United States senator in 1885—but declined. He received ninety-nine votes for President in the National Republican Convention of 1888, but withdrew in favor of General Benjamin Harrison, who after the election offered Mr. Depew any place in his cabinet except Secretary of State of the United States, which he had procured to Mr. Blaine, which he declined. Immediately after President Harrison's re-nomination in 1892 he offered Mr. Depew the Secretaryship of State in place of Mr. Blaine, which he declined. Mr. Depew was elected to the United States Senate from New York in 1899, and was reelected in 1905 for the term expiring in 1911. He has been delegate-at-large from New York to six National Republican Conventions and made nominating speeches for Benjamin Harrison in 1892, Levi P. Morton in 1896, and for Theodore Roosevelt in 1904. As an orator he has made addresses on many occasions of National importance, and as after dinner speaker he stands preëminent. Among his more notable orations were those delivered at the unveiling of the Statue of Liberty in New York Harbor; the Centennial celebration of the inauguration of George Washington as the first President of the United States; the opening in 1892 of the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago, celebrating the Tercenary of the discovery of America by Columbus; centennial celebration of the organization of the Legislature of the State of New York, and many other occasions of importance. He is a member of numerous patriotic and social organizations and clubs of New York City and Washington. Senator Depew married first, Nov. 9, 1871, Elise Hegeman, who died in 1893, and by whom he has a son; and second, in December, 1901, May Palmer. Address: 27 West 54th Street, New York City.

DE ROALDÈS, Arthur Washington:

Aural surgeon and laryngologist; born in Opeloussa, La., Jan. 25, 1849; son of A. de Roaldès and Coralie Testas de Flomont. He was educated in Jesuit schools in France, at Collège de France, being graduated Bachelier ès Lettres, 1865, Bachelier ès Sciences, 1866, and was graduated from the Medical Department of the University of Louisiana, M.D., 1869, and was interne in the Charity Hospital in New Orleans. He continued his studies in Paris and the Faculté de Médecine of Paris conferred upon him the M.D. degree, 1871, became assistant surgeon 6th International Ambulance Corps in the Franco-German War, in which he was mentioned in the Order of the Day for bravery on the battlefield of Beaumont-Mouzon, and he was afterward decorated with the Cross of the Légion d'Honneur, of which he was promoted to Officer in 1893. Dr. Roaldès was surgeon of the Red Cross Society during the outbreak of the French Commune. He returned to New Orleans in 1872 and has since practised in that city, was placed in charge of the New Orleans Charity Hospital, 1880, in connection with which he solved important problems in connection with sewage and sanitation, established efficient ambulance service, and established a training school for nurses. Dr. de Roaldès founded, in 1889, the New Orleans Eye, Ear, and Throat Hospital, of which he has since been surgeon-in-chief, and since 1890 he has been professor of diseases of the ear, nose, and throat in the New Orleans Polyclinic School of Medicine. Dr. de Roaldès was a member of the International Medical Congresses at Berlin, 1890, Rome, 1894, Paris, 1900; was president of the New Orleans Diphtheria Anti-toxin Commission, 1894. He was president of the Louisiana State Medical Society, 1892, and 1906-1907 of the American Laryngological Association, of which he is a fellow; was a member of the International Congresses of Otology, Florence, 1895, London, 1889, and Bordeaux, 1904, and was American member of the Committee on Organization of the latter. Residence: 1328 Jackson Avenue. Office: 624 Graves Street, New Orleans, La.

DE ROSSET, Frederick Ancrum:

Clergyman; born in Wilmington, N. C., April 13, 1856; son of Armand John De Rosset, M.D., and Eliza Jane (Lord) De Rosset. He was educated under private tuition and at private schools until 1864 in North Carolina, in London and Paris, 1864-1865, at the North Carolina Military Academy, at Hillsboro, 1867-1868, Cape Fear Military Academy, 1868-1872, and was graduated from the University of the South as M.A. in 1878; he was a tutor in Hebrew in the Theological School of that University, 1878-1881; was a student in the Theological Department of the University of the South, 1878-1879, and in the General Theological Seminary, New York City, 1879-1882, in which year he was graduated. He was ordered deacon, Jan. 6, 1880, and ordained priest, June 6, 1882, of the Protestant Episcopal Church; was curate of Holy Trinity Church Harlem, St. Thomas, New York, St. Andrews', Harlem, and St. George's, New York, 1880-1881, and of Zion Church, Wappingers Falls, N. Y., 1881-1883. He was curate at Larchmont, N. Y., and was tutor of Greek at St. John's School, Manlius, N. Y., in 1883, was curate of Calvary Church, New York, 1883-1884, St. Mark's Church, Grand Rapids, Mich., 1884-1887. He was rector of Trinity Church, Natchez, Miss.; was a trustee of the University of the South from 1887 to 1892; was rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Cairo, Ill., 1892-1901, and archdeacon of Cairo; was rector of St. Paul's pro cathedral, and has been archdeacon of Springfield, Ill., since 1901. He is secretary of the Standing Committee of the Diocese of Springfield, Ill., and has been deputy to six General Conventions of the Protestant Episcopal Church. He is organizing Secretary of the Jerusalem and the East Mission for the United States of America since 1900. He has been secretary of the commission on Ecclesiastical Relations since 1895, and chairman of the committee on Memorials of Deceased Members of the General Convention from 1898, and he has been secretary of the Trustees of Diocese of Springfield continuously since 1901. He is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, a Knight Templar and a thirty-second degree Mason. He has traveled in England, France, Canada, and in most of the States of the Union from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and over a great part of Mexico. Mr. De Rosset married in Sewanee, Tenn., Oct. 10, 1882, Mary Williams Green, granddaughter of Bishop William Mercer Green, and they have five children. Address: 312 East Adams Street, Springfield, Ill.

DEUEL, Joseph M.:

Jurist; born in Deerfield, Oneida County, N. Y., April 23, 1846; son of John C. and Elmira (Barnard) Deuel. He was educated in the public schools and the Whitestown, Utica Seminary. He was commonwealth attorney of Hampton, Va., 1869-1871; secretary to Roscoe Conkling, 1871-1874; assistant United States attorney of New York City, 1874-1876; deputy clerk of the United States Circuit Court and United States commissioner, 1876-1878; clerk of the United States Circuit Court of New York City, 1879-1882; police justice of New York

City, 1894; city magistrate of New York City, 1895-1903; and justice of the Court of Special Sessions in the City of New York, First Division, 1904. He is author of: Children's Court Law for New York City. Judge Deuel married at Utica, Nov. 5, 1874, Cornelia C. Downer, and they have two children. Address: 125 West 80th Street, New York City.

DEVENDORF, Irving R.:

Jurist; born in Danube, N. Y., Nov. 2, 1856; son of Levenus and Margaret (Walrath) Devendorf. He was graduated from Little Falls Academy, 1877; studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1880, at Herkimer, N. Y., where he engaged in practice. He held several offices in Herkimer County: District attorney, 1889-1894, county judge and surrogate, 1896-1906, and was elected on the Republican ticket, 1906, a justice of the Supreme Court of New York for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1920. He married in Herkimer, N. Y., in 1882, Margaret Bellinger. Address: Herkimer, N. Y.

DEVINE, Edward Thomas:

Author, educator, humanitarian; born at Union, Hardin County, Iowa, May 6, 1867; son of John Devine and Laura (Hall) Devine. He was graduated from Albion Seminary in 1883, from Cornell College, Iowa, as B.A., in 1887, and M.A. in 1900, and studied at the University of Halle, Germany, 1890-1891; fellow of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania, 1891-1895, receiving the degree of Ph.D., and in 1904 he received the degree of LL.D. from Cornell College. He taught in public and private schools in Iowa for five years; was staff lecturer in economics of the American Society for the Extension of University Teaching, 1891-1896, and its secretary, 1894-1896. He has been general secretary of the Charity Organization Society of the City of New York since 1896, taking an active part in many reform movements, especially in tenement house reform, the restriction of child labor, and the movement for the prevention of tuberculosis. He was president of the National Conference of Charities and Correction in 1906. He founded in 1898, and has since been editor of the journal now known as the Survey, formerly Charities and the Commons, a weekly periodical of local and general philanthropy, with which four other periodicals, Lend a Hand, The Charities Review, the Chicago Commons, and Jewish Charity, have been consolidated. Dr. Devine was until April, 1907, director of the New York School of Philanthropy, established by the Charity Organization Society in 1904; became Schiff professor of social economy at Columbia University, in 1905, and was special representative of the American National Red Cross in charge of relief in San Francisco in 1906. He is author of: Economics, 1889 (Macmillan); The Practice of Charity, 1901 (Dodd, Mead; second edition, 1904); The Principles of Relief, 1904 (Macmillan); Efficiency and Relief, 1906 (Columbia University Press, Macmillan); Report on the Desirability of Establishing an Employment Bureau in the City of New York, 1908; Charities Publication Committee, for the Russell Sage Foundation; Misery and its Causes, 1909 (Macmillan). Dr. Devine is a member of the Council of the American Academy of Political and Social Science, of the Council of the American Economic Association, of the Board of Directors of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, of the Board of Trustees of the National Child Labor Committee, of the Council of the American Association for Labor Legislation, of the Board of Directors of the New York Probation Association, of the Committee on International Congress of Hygiene and Demography to be held in Washington in 1910; the Aldine Club and the Century Association. He was president of the section on Hygiene, Social, Industrial and Economic Aspects of Tuberculosis, in the International Congress on Tuberculosis in Washington, 1908. Dr. Devine married Aug. 15, 1889, Hattie Evelyn Seovel, and they have a son and a daughter. Residence: 501 West 113th Street. Address: 105 East 22d Street, New York City.

DE VINNE, Theodore Low:

Printer; born in Stamford, Conn., Dec. 25, 1828; son of Daniel and Joanna Augusta (Low) De Vinne. He was educated in the public schools at Catskill, White Plains and Amenia, N. Y., and received the degree of A.M. from Columbia and Yale Universities for proficiency in printing. He entered the printing office of the Newburgh (New York) Gazette in 1844, removed to New York City in 1848 and became connected with the printing house of Francis Hart. In 1858 he became junior partner and seven years after the death of Mr. Hart, in 1877, the firm was changed to Theodore L. De Vinne and Company, with his son as junior partner. He is a leader in the improvement of typography; prints the St. Nicholas and Century magazines, and Century Dictionary, and has printed many editions de luxe for various publishers. Mr. De Vinne is a member of the New York Typothetae and the Aldine Association, Authors Club, Grolier Club and Century Association. He is author of: Printer's Price List, 1869; Invention of Printing, 1876; Historic Type, 1884; Christopher Plantin, 1888; Plain Printing Types, 1900; Correct Composition, 1901, and Title Pages, 1902; Book Composition, 1904. He is a member of the National Arts Club. Mr. De Vinne married in New York City, Grace Brockbank, who died May 7, 1905, and they have one son. Residence: 300 West 76th Street. Address: 395 Lafayette Street, New York City.

DEVORE, Frederick William:

Merchant and manufacturer; born in New York City, Jan. 26, 1828. He was educated by private instructors, worked in mercantile business as clerk until 1852, when he became a partner in the firm of Raymond & Devore, and in 1864 organized the firm of F. W. Devore & Co., incorporated, paint and varnish manufacturers of which he was president until by a consolidation the name was changed in 1890 to the F. W. Devore & C. T. Reynolds Co., of which he has since been president, that firm being the largest in its line in the United States.

He was formerly president of the Greater New York Commission, the Board of Education of New York, and the New York Juvenile Asylum; and is connected with several philanthropic organizations; is a member of the Chamber of Commerce of New York, the New York Botanical Gardens, American Museum of Natural History, New York Historical Society, the Scientific Alliance, St. Nicholas Society and the Fulton and Church Clubs. Residence: 59 Park Avenue. Address: 101 Fulton Street, New York.

DE VRIES, Marion:

United States general appraiser; born at Woodbridge, Calif., Aug. 15, 1865; son of William Henry De Vries and Cornelia (Crowe) De Vries. He was graduated from the San Joaquin Valley College, as Ph.B., in 1886. He afterward attended the Law Department of the University of Michigan, from which he was graduated as valedictorian of his class, with the degree of LL.B., in 1888. He was admitted to the Michigan bar in 1887, and to the Supreme Court of California, the same year. He commenced practice at Stockton, Calif., in 1889, and was admitted to the Supreme Court of the United States, in January, 1897. He served three years as lieutenant-colonel and assistant adjutant-general of the third Brigade of the National Guard of California; was assistant district attorney of San Joaquin County, California, from 1893 to 1897. He was elected and served as member of the Fifty-fifth and Fifty-sixth Congresses from the Second California District, from March, 1897, until he resigned, Aug. 22, 1900; and he has been a general appraiser since Aug. 22, 1900, and president of the Board of United States General Appraisers since Jan. 1, 1906. He is a Democrat, a member of the Masonic order, and Knights Templar; of the Odd Fellows, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, and Turners, and is also a member of the California Society and the Engineers' Club of New York and of the Yosemite Club, Stockton, Calif.; was married, Feb. 23, 1892, to Minerva L. Snead, of California. Address:

United States Appraisers' Building, New York City.

DEW, Louise E.:

Editor, writer, and lecturer; born at St. John's, Mich., daughter of Henry F. and Harriet T. (Longwood) Dew. She was educated in the public schools of St. John's and Lansing, Mich., and the Lucy Webb Hayes Training School in Washington, D. C. She was special contributor to the Michigan Christian Advocate, 1890-1895, afterward in regular newspaper work as a reporter on Detroit papers, associate editor of the Ladies' Illustrated Journal, Chicago, and special writer for the Chicago Tribune and Times-Herald until 1899. In 1899 she started on a tour of the world, and rode from Chicago to the Pacific Coast on an engine, at which time she wrote, "Across Country On an Engine," which was syndicated to leading papers all over the country; crossed the Pacific on a freight ship, visiting various oriental ports of Japan, China, India and the Philippines, and was the first woman to ride in an "aerial tramway." Editor of How to Grow Flowers (now Home and Flowers), and Pets and Animals, 1900; assistant editor The Woman's Home Companion, 1901; editor The Ladies' World, 1902-1906; connected with The McClure Syndicate, 1903-1906; editor of the Woman's Section of the Philadelphia North American, 1906-1907; since then doing free lance work on magazines and New York Sunday papers. Also author of "The Flower Lady and Her Children," and compiler of "Entertainment for All Seasons." Miss Dew finds her recreation working among the children of the East Side of New York, where she is known as The Flower Lady, taking especial interest in the Italian children of the Lower East Side. She began this work while editor of The Ladies' World on City Hall Place, inaugurating daily visits to the children of the neighborhood, where she has become acquainted with over one thousand children, all of whom she knows by name. Over two hundred of these children are sent to the country each summer, through the offerings of personal friends. Miss Dew is a member of the Japan Society of London, Japan Society of New York, and a member of the Authors' Committee of 101, and of other societies. Address: Hotel Martha Washington, 29 East 29th Street, New York City.

DEWEY, George:

Admiral of the United States Navy; born in Montpelier, Vt., Dec. 26, 1837; son of Dr. Julius Yennans and Mary (Perrin) Dewey. He was appointed to the Naval Academy from Vermont, Sept. 23, 1854, and was graduated in 1858, being then attached to the frigate Wabash, in the Mediterranean Squadron, and in 1861 transferred to the steam sloop Mississippi of the West Gulf Squadron. He was commissioned lieutenant April 19, 1861, and was in Farragut's Squadron which forced the passage of Forts Saint Philip and Jackson in April, 1862. He took part in the attack on Fort St. Philip, and the fights which followed and resulted in the capture of New Orleans. In the thick smoke of the battle of Port Hudson, the steam sloop Mississippi lost her bearings and ran ashore under the guns of the land batteries, and the officers and men took to the boats after setting the vessel on fire. He served on the steam gunboat Agawam, in the North Atlantic Blockading Squadron, in 1864-1865, and participated in the two attacks on Fort Fisher in December, 1864, and January, 1865. He was commissioned lieutenant-commander March 3, 1865; served successively on the steamer Kearsarge, the frigate Colorado, at the Naval Academy, 1868-1869, commanded the Narragansett on special service in 1870 and 1871, and was at the Torpedo Station in 1872. He was commissioned commander April 13, 1872, commanded the Narragansett on the Pacific Survey, 1872-1875, was light house inspector, 1876-1877, secretary of the Lighthouse Board, 1877-1882, commanded the Junata on the Asiatic Station, 1882-1883, and was promoted captain in September, 1884. He was given command of the Dolphin in 1884, the Pensacola, flagship of the European Station, 1885-1888, chief of the Bureau of Equipment and Recruiting, with rank of commodore, 1889-1893, member of the Lighthouse Board, 1893-1895; president of the Board of Inspection and Survey, 1895-1897; promoted to commodore, Feb. 28, 1896. He assumed command of the Asiatic Station in January, 1898, and the beginning of hostilities found him in command of the United States naval forces, consisting of six unarmored ships, at Hong Kong, China. Acting under orders from the Department to capture or destroy enemy's fleet, Dewey proceeded toward Manila, in the Philippine Islands, where the Spanish fleet of seven cruisers and several gunboats were assembled under the protection of the batteries at Corregidor, Cavite and Manila proper. Dewey entered Manila Bay early in the morning of May 1, attacked and annihilated the enemy's ships, captured the arsenal at Cavite, destroyed the fortifications at the mouth of the bay, and established a blockade of Manila. For this daring and brilliant action, in which he lost not a single man, Dewey received the thanks of Congress and was commissioned rear-admiral on May 10, 1898. He was a member of the Philippines Commission, 1899; detached from command of Asiatic Station, October, 1899; commissioned admiral, March 29, 1900. In 1901 he became senior member of the General Board, of which he is now president. Admiral Dewey married first, Oct. 24, 1867, Susie, daughter of Governor Ichabod Goodwin of New Hampshire. She died Dec. 28, 1872, and Admiral Dewey again married in Washington, D. C., Nov. 9, 1899, Mrs. Mildred (McLean) Hazen, N. W., Washington, D. C.

DEWEY, Henry Sweetser:

Lawyer; born in Hanover, N. H., Nov. 9, 1856; son of Major Israel Otis Dewey and of Susan Augusta (Sweetser) Dewey, who was daughter of General Henry and Susan (West) Sweetser. Mr. Dewey is a descendant of Thomas Dewey of Sandwich, Kent, England, who became a freeman of Dorchester, Mass., 1633, and of Seth Sweetser of Tring, Hertfordshire, England, who settled in Charleston, Mass. 1637. He was graduated from Dartmouth, A.B., 1878, A.M., 1881, and was a member of the Alpha Delta Phi Society while in college. He was appointed paymaster's clerk, U. S. Army, and served 1878-1879 at Boston, resigning in the latter year to enter the Boston University Law School, from which he was graduated LL.B., 1882, and having also read law in the office of Hon. Ambrose A. Ranney, he was admitted in 1882 to the bar in Boston, where he has since practised law. He served in the Massachusetts House of Representatives from the 21st Suffolk District in 1889, 1890, and 1891. Mr. Dewey served in the State Militia in the First Corps of Cadets, 1880-1809, then was judge advocate on the staff of the First Brigade, with the rank of captain, until January, 1900, when he was appointed judge advocate general on the staff of the commander-in-chief by Governor Crane, with the rank of colonel, and in May of the same year was promoted to brigadier-general, serving until he resigned in January, 1905. He was a member in 1891 and chairman in 1895 of the Board of Bar Examiners for Suffolk County, was chairman of the State Board of Bar Examiners from its establishment in 1897 until 1903. Since February, 1893, he has been a master in chancery for the County of Suffolk. He was appointed a special justice of the Municipal Court of the City of Boston in April, 1896, and an associate justice of that court in May, 1899, serving as such until December, 1902, when he resigned and resumed the practice of law. He was a candidate for Mayor of Boston in 1905. Judge Dewey is a member of the Bar Association of the City of Boston, American Bar Association, International Law Association, Military Order of the Loyal Legion, Sons of the Revolution, the Wissenschaftlichen Klub in Vienna (honorary), the University and Athletic Clubs of Boston, and the Alpha Delta Phi Club of New York City. Residence: 896 Beacon Street. Office: 23 Court Street, Boston.

DEWEY, Melvil:

Librarian; born in Adams Centre, N. Y., Dec. 10, 1851. Graduated from Amherst College, A.B., 1874, A.M., 1877; acting librarian, Amherst College, 1873-1876.

Moved to Boston in 1876, and established the Library Bureau to secure better library methods, appliances and supplies, and called library conference at Philadelphia, which resulted in establishing the American Library Association and the Library Journal. Similarly instrumental the same year (1876) in organizing American Metric Bureau, and the Spelling Reform Association, of both of which he was made secretary. In May, 1883, he was appointed chief librarian of Columbia College, professor of library economy in 1884, and director, in 1887, of the Columbia College School Library Economy, established as the outcome of his argument for the urgent need of a library training school. He was secretary and treasurer of the University of the State of New York, 1889-1900; director of the New York State Library and Library School, 1889-1906; secretary of the American Library Association, 1876-1890, and 1897-1898; its treasurer, 1879-1881, and president, 1890 and 1893. He edited the Library Journal, 1876-1881, Library Notes, Metric Bulletin, Metric Advocate, and the Spelling Reform Bulletin. He was director of the New York State educational exhibit at the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago in 1893. The value of his work has been recognized by universal expositions in Paris, in 1878, and 1889; in Chicago, 1893, and Paris, 1900, where of nine grand prizes awarded to the United States one was for an exhibit of methods of education by means of reading and traveling libraries, another for general library exhibit, both prepared by the New York State Library, and a third to him in honor of his distinguished services not only as a librarian but as an educator whose administration during the period of reorganization of the University of New York from 1889 to 1900 produced such marked advance in both secondary and higher education. A similar award of a gold medal was made by the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in 1904. He is author of: Library School Rules; Simplified Library School Rules and Decimal Classification and Relative Index. Address: Lake Placid Club, Essex Co., N. Y.

DE WITT, George G.:

Lawyer; born in the town of Callicoon, Sullivan County, N. Y., April 9, 1845; son of George and Julia (Foster) De Witt. He was graduated from Columbia College, A.B., 1867, A.M., 1870, and was graduated as LL.B. from Columbia Law School in 1869. He was admitted to the New York bar, 1869, and has ever since practised law in New York City. Mr. De Witt is a trustee of the Chemical National Bank, the New York Life Insurance Company, and the Real Estate Trust Company. De Witt is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, a trustee of Columbia University, and the Roosevelt Hospital; governor of New York Hospital, and vice-president of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children. He is also a member of the Union, Metropolitan, Union League, University, New York Yacht, and South Side Sportsmen's Clubs. Residence: 39 West 51st Street, New York City. Office address: 88 Nassau Street, New York City.

DE WOLF, John:

Landscape architect; born in Bristol, R. I., March 26, 1850; son of Algernon Sidney and Clara (Diman) De Wolf. His art education was secured largely through private teachers, owing to a defect in his hearing, caused by scarlet fever. His first employment was as an aid to the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, and he then entered upon a successful series of employments as a landscape architect, his work being among the notable examples of landscape architecture in all the Atlantic and Gulf States. He also designed the Villa Maria Cadenabbia, on Lake Como, Italy. In 1898, he was appointed landscape architect and general superintendent of the park system of Brooklyn and Queens County, and was made the first landscape architect of Greater New York, after the consolidation of the Boroughs. He resigned the position after four years' service. Mr. De Wolf has been a frequent writer on matters relating to landscape architecture, and is a member of the New York Horticultural Society, of New York, and the American Park and Outdoor Society. He is a member of the Players Club of New York. Address: Bristol, R. I.

DE WOLFE, Elsie:

Actress and artist; born in New York City in 1865; daughter of Stephen and Virginia (Copeland) de Wolfe. Made her debut in Sardou's Thermidor, 1890, and was for many years a member of the Empire Stock Company. Miss de Wolfe was specially successful in comedy rôles, becoming a leading New York favorite and afterward a star and manager of her own company. In 1905 she retired definitely from the stage and has taken up house decoration as a profession. She has decorated and furnished many public buildings, notably the Colony Club for Women, which is generally conceded to mark a new era in elegant simplicity and comfort, and is now established as a decorator. Address: 4 West 40th Street, New York City.

DEXTER, Henry:

Retired merchant; born in West Cambridge, Mass., March 14, 1813; son of Jonathan Marsh and Elizabeth (Baleh) Dexter. He was educated in public and private schools, and prepared for Harvard. At the age of fourteen, he entered a printing office in Boston, serving an apprenticeship for three years, and for similar time was second foreman in Harvard University printing office, where close application to the work in hand gave him a liberal education. Mr. Dexter removed to New York City, in 1836, and was employed by Grannis, White & Company, and later in a hardware store conducted by the Whittemores, inventors of the carding machine. He bought, in 1842, an interest in the firm of Dexter & Tuttle, books, periodicals and daily papers, which firm became Henry Dexter & Company, and later changed to the style of H. Dexter, Hamilton & Company. He formulated the idea and founded the consolidation of leading newsdealers, which developed into the present American News Company of which he was president for many years until 1896.

He also organized in London, on similar lines, the International News Company. He is now retired from active business. He was associated with George P. Putnam, the publisher (who first projected it), as one of the founders of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, of which he is a member in perpetuity. He built a new home for the New York Historical Society on Central Park West, opposite the Museum of Natural History, at the cost of $350,000, in memory of his son, Orrando Perry Dexter. Mr. Dexter is a life member of the American Geographical Society; patron of the New York Historical Society; vice-president of the Protestant Episcopal Church Missionary Society for Seamen; trustee of the Midnight Mission; life director of the American Bible Society, and American Tract Society; member of the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, St. Luke's Hospital Society, Young Men's Christian Association, Children's Aid Society, Home for Incurables, Charity Organization Society of New York, Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, Home for Aged Married Couples, etc. He spent eight years in traveling through Europe, Asia, and Africa, and two years across North America by way of the West Indies, Mexico, the United States and Canada. In his ninety-fourth year he issued a pamphlet entitled Letters from the Pen of Henry Dexter, being a collection of letters on public questions, for which he received letters of commendation from Prof. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton University, and James Stillman of the City Bank. Mr. Dexter married at Southport, Conn., Oct. 11, 1853, Lucretia Marquand Perry, and of this union there was born Oct. 31, 1854, a son Orrando Perry Dexter, who was assassinated at Dexter Lake, in the Adirondaeks, Sept. 19, 1903. Address: 42 West 56th Street, New York City.

DEYO, Robert Emmet:

Lawyer; born near Newburgh, N. Y., Aug. 19, 1843; son of Dr. Nathaniel and Cornelia Bruyn (Dubois) Deyo. He was graduated from Princeton in 1864, and from the Albany Law School in 1865. He was justice of the peace at Newburgh, in 1866; removed to New York City the same year and became a member of the law firm of Field & Deyo, with David Dudley Field and Dudley Field as partners. He was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in 1894, and was a member of the Committees on Rules, Education and Revision of that body. He was a member of the first Civil Service Commission appointed under the Greater New York Charter; and a member of the commission to inquire into delays and expenses in administrations of justice in the counties of New York and Kings. Mr. Deyo is at present the senior member of the firm of Deyo, Duer & Bauerdorf. He is a member of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York, the Huguenot Association, and the New York Historical Society; and he is chairman of the New York Law Institute. He is also a member of the Manhattan, Democratic, and Princeton Clubs. Mr. Deyo married, in 1876, Jane Crawford Denniston. Address: 64 West 74th Street, New York City.

DE YOUNG, Michael Harry:

Newspaper proprietor; born in St. Louis, Oct., 1, 1848. His mother, whose maiden name was Morange, was daughter of a French nobleman. When a boy five years old, he was taken to California and was educated in the schools of that State. He became associated with his brother, Charles De Young, in 1865, in establishing The Dramatic Chronicle, a theatrical paper from which they afterward developed The San Francisco Chronicle, which, in a few years, they made the leading daily paper of the Pacific Coast. Upon his brother's death in 1880, he became sole proprietor of the paper, and its editor-in-chief, and has so continued ever since. Mr. De Young was twice the California member of the National Republican Committee, and for one term its vice-chairman, and was a delegate at large to the National Republican Conventions, 1888-1892. He has also taken an especially prominent part in the creation and management of international expositions, beginning with the Paris Exposition of 1889, to which he was a commissioner from California. He was commissioner from California and vice-president of the World's Columbian National Commission in 1892 and 1893, and was the originator of its classification plan; was president of the International League of Press Clubs in 1893, was projector, organizer and director-general of the California Midwinter Exposition at San Francisco in 1893 and 1894; organizer of the Midwinter Fair Memorial Museum, 1894; commissioner-general for California at the Omaha Trans-Mississippi Exposition in 1898, and president of the United States Commission at the Paris Exposition in 1900. He is a member of the Légion d'Honneur of France, and has been a director of the Associated Press since 1882. Residence: Meadowlands, San Rafael, Calif. Address: 1919 California Street, San Francisco, Calif.

DICK, Charles:

United States Senator from Ohio; born in Akron, Ohio, Nov. 3, 1858. He was educated in the public schools, later becoming, successively, store clerk, bank bookkeeper and teller, and grain commission merchant, and he is now a lawyer, being admitted to the Ohio bar in 1894, and to practice before the United States Supreme Court in 1897. He served two terms as auditor of Summit County; was long major and lieutenant-colonel, Eighth Regiment, Ohio National Guard; served in Cuba in the war with Spain, being subsequently elected brigadier-general, and now serving as major-general, commanding Ohio National Guard. Senator Dick is president of the Interstate National Guard Association; was several years member and three times chairman of the Summit County Republican Committee; is chairman of the Ohio Republican State Committee, and has served in that capacity almost continuously since 1882; served as secretary at the Chicago Republican National Headquarters in 1896, and as secretary of the Republican National Committee, 1897-1900. He was closely associated with Chairman Hanna in the preliminary canvass for McKinley's nomination and subsequent general campaign in 1896; was delegate to the Republican National Conventions, 1892-1896, and delegate-at-large from Ohio, to the Republican National Conventions of 1900 and 1904. He represented the Nineteenth Ohio District in the Fifty-fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh and Fifty eighth Congresses, and as chairman of Committee on Militia and member of the Committee on Military Affairs, secured enactment of what is known as the Dick Militia Law, and he was elected senator, March 2, 1904, for short and long terms to succeed Marcus Alonzo Hanna, deceased, receiving the unanimous party vote. His present term of service will expire March 3, 1911. Address: Akron, Ohio.

DICKERSON, Denver S.

Governor of Nevada; elected in November, 1906, on the Democratic ticket to the office of lieutenant-governor of Nevada for the four year term expiring in January, 1911, but on the death of Governor John Sparks, May 22, 1908, succeeded to the office of governor to serve out the unexpired term. Address: Carson City, Nevada.

DICKEY, James Edward:

President of Emory College; born at Jeffersonville, Ga., May 11, 1864; son of the Rev. James Madison Dickey and Ann E. (Thomas) Dickey. Dr. Dickey is of old Southern Colonial stock, his paternal ancestor, John Dickey, being on the Council of Safety of Iredel County, N. C., in 1776, and his maternal ancestor, Benjamin Few, a colonel in the Revolutionary War. A maternal uncle, William Few, was a delegate from Georgia to the Constitutional Convention of 1787, and afterwards first senator from Georgia. As a youth James Dickey entered Emory College in 1887, and, taking the academic course, graduated with the degree of A.B. in 1891, receiving medals in declamation, composition and metaphysics, as well as second honor. The degree of D.D. was conferred upon him by the Kentucky Wesleyan College in 1903. After his graduation he became adjunct professor of mental and moral science at Emory College, becoming five years later professor of history and economics. In 1899 he resigned and was appointed to the pastorate of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Atlanta, Ga., officiating there until 1902. In July of that year he returned to Emory College, to become its president. He is also trustee of Emory College, and of Wesleyan Female College, at Macon, Ga. He is president of the Board of Missions of the North Georgia Conference, and is a member of Chi Phi fraternity. In politics Mr. Dickey is identified with the Democratic party. He was married at Quincy, Fla., Sept. 9, 1891, to Jessie Munroe, and has had six children: Julia, Annie, Jessie, Claire, Edna (deceased) and James Edward, Jr. Address: Oxford, Ga.

DICKEY, William Donaldson:

Jurist; born in Newburgh, N. Y., Jan. 11, 1845; son of William and Esther (James) Donaldson. He was educated in Newburgh Seminary and the Albany Law School; served in the Civil War from private to colonel, and was admitted to the bar in New York State, practising until elected in 1895 a justice of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, for the term expiring Dec. 31, 1909. He married in Newburgh, N. Y., June 25, 1868, Kate W. Richmond. Address: 8677 Twenty-second Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

DICKIE, George William:

Engineer, manufacturer; born at Arbrogath, Scotland, July 17, 1844; son of William Dickie, shipbuilder. He was educated at Tay Port, Fife, Scotland. In 1860 he entered the service of the North British Railroad Company to learn the engineering business, and completed his engineering education in his father's shipyard. In 1869 he went from Scotland direct to San Francisco, where he became identified with all the important steamship work at that port, and also the designing and construction of the machinery for the operation of the mines of the Comstock Lode at Virginia City, and Gold Hill, Nevada. Upon the establishing of the Union Iron Works at San Francisco in 1883 he became its manager, which position he held up to March, 1905, and had special charge of its naval work for the United States Government including the building of some of the finest battle-ships and others vessels in the new navy. Mr. Dickie is a member of the Council of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers; life member and president of the Technical Society of the Pacific Coast, and member and former counselor of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He has written numerous technical papers which have appeared in the proceedings of these societies, and is author of a work on: Pumping and Hoisting Works, published in 1876. Mr. Dickie married in San Francisco, Aug. 5, 1873, Anna Juck. Residence: San Mateo, Calif. Office: 24 California Street, San Francisco, Calif.

DICKINSON, Charles C.:

Banker, lawyer, author; born in Schoharie County, N. Y. July 12, 1870. He was graduated with highest honors as valedictorian from the Cobleskill (N. Y.) Union Free School and Academy, at the age of 15; won by competitive examination a scholarship in Cornell University, which he entered in 1887, and was graduated in 1891, as commencement orator, also winning the certificate for proficiency in military science, commission as captain in the military department, and first prize for the best work written by an undergraduate in any college of the United States on "Electoral Corruption." He was appointed an examiner of banks of the State of New York, and designated to make a complete examination of the trust departments of all the trust companies of New York State. He had studied law in private, and obtaining leave of absence from his post of examiner of banks he attended Cornell, finishing the law course in one year, and being graduated with the first honors of his class, LL.B., 1894; was admitted to the New York Bar at Albany, May 10, 1894, and engaged in successful practice. Also writing text-books, well known as: Dickinson on Eminent Domain; Groesbeck and Dickinson's Banking Laws; and Dickinson and Cummings General Municipal Laws. He raised a million and a half dollars in cash and organized the Colonial Trust Company, and also capitalized and organized the Colonial Safe Deposit Company, of each of which companies Ex-governor Roswell P. Flower, became president and Mr. Dickinson the active vice president. His chief achievement, however, was the organization of the Carnegie Trust Company, for which he raised a capital of two and a quarter million dollars, becoming first a director, then vice-president, then chairman of the Board of Directors and then president of the company, which office he still holds; and he is also president of the Board of Directors of the Carnegie Safe Deposit Company, which has constructed the largest and strongest safe deposit vaults in the world. He also, with others, planned and consummated the formation of a syndicate which acquired control of the Wisconsin Central Railway System and leased it to the Canadian Pacific Railroad interests, and is a director of the system; is also one of the "Ramsey" Protective Committee of bondholders of the Detroit, Toledo and Iron-ton Railway, which successfully consummated its undertaking in 1909. He is a member of the State Bar Association of the State of New York and of the New York County Lawyers Association. He was appointed by Mayor McClellan one of the committee in charge of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration of New York in 1909. He is one of the governors of the Cornell University Club, and was recently elected by the Board of Trustees of Cornell University a member of the new Cornellian Council, which was selected from the entire body of the Alumni to advance the financial welfare of the University. He is a member of the Delta Tau Delta and Delta Phi fraternities and Chanery of Cornell, was elected president of the Delta Tau Delta Chapter while in college, then president of the Eastern Division, and finally, president of the fraternity. Mr. Dickinson is a member of the Mayflower Society, Sons of the Revolution, Huguenot Society, Society of Colonial Wars, American Museum of Natural History, Metropolitan Museum of Art, American Geographical Society, New York Botanical Gardens, Municipal Art League, and the Manhattan, Lotus, New York, Cornell University, Democratic Lawyers and Railroad Clubs. Mr. Dickinson married in New York City, Jan. 19, 1905, Grace Georgette Kidd, and has one son, Charles Courter, Jr., born Oct. 30, 1905. Residence: 853 Fifth Avenue. Office: Carnegie Trust Company, New York City.

DICKINSON, Charles Monroe:

Editor; born at Lowville, Lewis County, N. Y., Nov. 15, 1842; son of Richard and Elizabeth (Rea) Dickinson. He was educated in Lowville Academy and at Fairfield (N. Y.) Seminary. Mr. Dickinson studied law and was admitted to the bar by the Supreme Court of New York in November, 1865. He practised law in Binghamton, N. Y., and New York City, until 1878, when he was compelled by broken health to abandon the profession. Since 1878 he has been editor and proprietor of the Binghamton Republican. Mr. Dickinson was a Republican presidential elector in 1896, and was appointed consul-general at Constantinople in September, 1897, serving there until 1906, and he was also diplomatic agent to Bulgaria, 1901-1903. He was appointed consul-general-at-large in May, 1906, and detailed to prepare rules and regulations under the Consular Reorganization Act of June, 1904, and he resigned from the Consular Service, Oct. 1, 1907. His connection with the consular and inspection service for ten years gave him opportunities for extensive travel in many parts of Europe, Asia and Africa. Mr. Dickinson is author of: The Dickinson Family, 1884; The Children and Other Verses, 1889. He is trustee for life of the Barlow Industrial School, Binghamton, and is a member of the Authors Club of New York City. Mr. Dickinson married at Binghamton, N. Y., March 24, 1867, Bessie Virginia Hotchkiss, and they have two sons. Address: Binghamton, N. Y.

DICKINSON, Don M.:

Lawyer; born in Port Ontario, N. Y., Jan. 17, 1846; son of Col. Asa C. and Minerva H. Dickinson; and he has been a resident of Michigan from 1848. He was graduated from the University of Michigan, LL.B., 1866, and in 1867 was admitted to the Michigan Bar. Since that time he has been in continuous practice securing international distinction for his legal and forensic ability, and a large practice in the West, New York and Washington. Politically he early became a leader in the Democracy of Michigan, was chairman of the Democratic State Committee in 1876, Michigan member of the National Democratic Committee, 1880-1885; postmaster-general of the United States in the first Cleveland Administration, 1887-1889, and he was tendered and declined a cabinet position in the Second Cleveland Administration, 1893. Mr. Dickinson was senior counsel of the United States before the International High Commission on Bering Sea claims in connection with the Fur Seal Arbitration of 1896-1897, and was the American member of the Court of Arbitration to adjust the controversy between the United States and the Republic of Salvador, 1902. He is a member of the American Bar Association, Michigan Bar Association and member and ex-president of the Detroit Bar Association, former president of the Detroit Museum of Art; president of the Senator MacMillan Memorial Association; vice-president of the Jefferson Memorial Association; member of the Detroit Chamber of Commerce, National Geographic Society; American Historical Association, Chi Psi fraternity; member and ex-president of the Detroit Club, member of the Bankers, University and Detroit Boat Clubs of Detroit, The Pilgrims Club of London and the Manhattan, National Democratic and Pilgrims Clubs of New York City. He married, June 15, 1869, Frances L. Platt. Residence: 720 Jefferson Avenue. Office: Union Trust Building, Detroit, Mich.

DICKINSON, Marquis Fayette:

Lawyer; born in Amherst, Mass., Jan. 16, 1840; son of Marquis F. and Hannah Shepard (William) Dickinson. He was graduated from Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., in 1858, with second honor from Amherst College as one of three of equal highest rank, with the degree of

A.B., in 1862, and A.M., in 1865, and attended Howard Law School, 1867-1868. He was assistant United States attorney 1868-1871. His practice is now chiefly in the trial of cases in court, especially for corporations. Mr. Dickinson has been president of the Nashawannack Manufacturing Company, the Whitcomb Envelope Company; director of the West End Street Railway Company, the Metropolitan Steamship Company, and the E. and A. H. Bateheler Company. He has been a member of the Boston School Committee, was a member of the Boston Common Council, 1871-1872, and president of that body in 1872. He is a member of the American Bar Association, the Boston Bar Association, and the International Law Association, is a trustee of the Massachusetts Homeopathic Hospital, overseer of Amherst College, trustee of the Massachusetts Agricultural College and president of the Board of Trustees of Williston Seminary. Mr. Dickinson is a member of the Phi Upsilon fraternity of Amherst College, of the University, New Algonquin and Art Clubs of Boston, and the Brookline Thursday Club. He married at Easthampton, Mass., Nov. 23, 1864, Cecelia Risk Williston, and they have one son living, Charles (A.B., Harvard, 1896), who is his partner in the firm of Dickinson and Dickinson. Residence: 79 Carlton Street, Brookline, Mass. Office: 53 State Street, Boston, Mass.

DICKINSON, Robert Latou:

Physician; born in Jersey City, N. J., Feb. 21, 1861; son of Horace and Jeanette (Latou) Dickinson. He was educated in Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, and in Switzerland and Germany, and was graduated from Long Island College Hospital, M.D., 1882. Dr. Dickinson is gynecologist to Brooklyn Hospital; onstetrician-in-chief to the Methodist-Episcopal Hospital, and consulting gynecologist to St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, L. I. He is a member of the American Gynecological Society, New York Academy of Medicine, Kings County Medical Society, New York Obstetric Society, Brooklyn Gynecological Society and British Gynecological Society. He was co-editor of the American Text-book of Obstetrics, has published many researches. He is a member of the Hamilton Club of Brooklyn. Dr. Dickinson married in Brooklyn, 1890, Sarah Truslow. Address: 168 Clinton Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

DIEDERICH, Henry W.:

Consul-general; born in Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 13, 1845; son of Nicholas H. and Clara M. (Wessler) Diederich. He was educated for the Lutheran ministry, and was graduated from Concordia College at Fort Wayne, Ind., in 1866, and afterward from the theological course in the Concordia Seminary at St. Louis, in 1869, took a post-graduate course in Columbian College (now George Washington University) at Washington, D. C. He became pastor of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church in New York, 1870-1873; then was professor of the English language and literature at Concordia College, 1873-1889. President Benjamin Harrison, who had for years been his personal friend, appointed him United States Consul to Leipzig in 1889, but he was recalled after the change of administration in 1893. In 1897 he was appointed by President McKinley United States consul to Magdeburg, Prussia, and promoted Jan. 1, 1900, as consul to Bremen, Germany, continuing there until 1906, when he was appointed to his present position as consul-general of the United States at Antwerp, Belgium. Mr. Diederich married at Washington, D. C., Aug. 23, 1870, Margaret Stutz. Address: American Consulate General, Antwerp, Belgium.

DIEFENDORF, Allen Ross:

Physician; born in Savannah, N. Y., Dec. 21, 1871; son of Fletcher Adelbert and Susan (Quackenbush) Diefendorf. He was graduated from Yale, A.B., 1894, and M.D. (Gaining the Keese Prize), 1896-1897. He was interne one year and assistant physician one year in the Insane Hospital at Worcester, Mass., and 1898-1908, assistant physician and pathologist of the Middletown Insane Hospital, and since 1908 practising the specialty of nervous and mental diseases.

He has also been, since 1898, lecturer in psychiatry and since 1904 also lecturer in the medical jurisprudence of insanity in Yale University Medical School. Dr. Diefendorf is a member of the American Neurological Association, New York Neurological Association, the New York Psychiatric Society, American Medico-Psychological Association, American Medical Society, Connecticut State Medical Society, the Sigma Xi fraternity and Graduate Club of New Haven. Is consulting neurologist at the Bridgeport General Hospital and St. Vincent's Hospital. He married in New Haven, Sept. 4, 1895, Jeanette Cooper, and they have a son and three daughters. Address: 108 Huntington Street, New Haven, Conn.

DIETRICH, Charles Henry:

Banker, former senator and governor; born in Aurora, Ill., Nov. 26, 1853; son of Leonard and Wilhelmina Dietrich. He was educated in the Aurora public schools until 1867, worked on a farm during vacations, in Kane County, Ill., and afterward as a clerk in stores in Chicago and in St. Joseph, Mo.; was engaged in cotton planting and cutting cypress timber in the south, 1873-1874, then black-smithing until fall of 1875, then in mining and merchandising in the Black Hills until 1878, since which year he has been engaged in mercantile and banking business at that place, where he is president of the German National Bank. He became a leader in the Republican politics of Nebraska, was elected governor of that State in 1900, but resigned upon his election March 28, 1901, to the United States Senate for the term which expired March 4, 1905. He married in Aurora, Ill., in 1878, Elizabeth Slaker, who is now deceased. Address: Hastings, Neb.

DIETRICH, Frank Sigel:

Jurist; born in Ottawa, Kan., Jan. 23, 1863; son of Jacob and Catherine (Jackel) Dietrich. He was educated in the preparatory department of Ottawa (Kan.) University and in Brown University, A.B., 1887, A.M., 1890. He was instructor in history and political economy in Ottawa University, 1887-1891; was admitted to the bar in Kansas in 1891; became attorney of the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company, 1899-1907, and was appointed by President Roosevelt in 1907 to his present office as judge of the United States District Court for the District of Idaho. Judge Dietrich married at Blackfoot, Idaho, Sept. 27, 1893, Martha Behle. Address: Pocatello, Idaho.

DIKE, Norman Staunton:

Lawyer; born in Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 22, 1862; son of Camden C. and Jeannie (Scott) Dike. He was educated in the Brooklyn Polytechnic School, was graduated from Brown University as Ph.B., 1885, and from Columbia Law School, LL.B., 1887. He has been engaged in the general practice of law since 1887. He has always taken a deep interest in politics as an active Republican. He was elected supervisor of Kings County in 1894; elected president pro tempore of the Board in 1895; and was active in expelling John Y. McKane from the Board and organizing it as Republican. In 1895 he was appointed assistant to the judge advocate general in the National Guard of the State of New York, with the rank of lieutenant-colonel, by Governor Morton. He was appointed by Governor Odell as sheriff of Kings County, for a year, to fill a vacancy, and was also appointed on the Board of Managers of the Long Island State Hospital for the Insane by Governor Higgins; and he was appointed by Governor Higgins, in 1906, to the office of county judge of Kings County, and elected for the full term of six years at the following election. He was president of Brooklyn Homœopathic Hospital; and president for two years of Brown University Alumni of New York City. Judge Dike is a member of the Sons of the Revolution, and of the University Club, Brown University Club (of which he is ex-president), Hamilton, Brooklyn, Riding and Driving, Dyker Meadow Golf and Casino Crescent Athletic Clubs. Residence: 194 Columbia Heights. Address: 164 Montague Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

DILL, James Brooks:

Lawyer; born at Spencerport, N. Y., July 25, 1854; son of Rev. James H. and Catharine D. Dill. He was graduated from Yale in 1876, and from the Law School of the University of New York in 1878. He began the practice of law in New York City in 1878, and since 1885 has given special attention to the subject of corporation law, in which he has made his reputation in New Jersey as well as in New York. Mr. Dill has been a member of several State commissions dealing with the codification of the statutes, and since 1892 he has been regarded as a leader in moulding and shaping the corporation laws of New Jersey. He has been connected with the organization of important corporations and the management, as director or counsel, of various corporate interests, industrial, financial and railroad. He was appointed in July, 1905, one of the judges of the Court of Errors and Appeals of the State of New Jersey. Judge Dill is author of: Dill on New Jersey Corporations, a work of recognized authority, and of a number of articles, mainly on economics and kindred topics, his address at Harvard University on National Corporations being widely commented upon. His attitude has been quite independent of so-called corporate influence, and his utterances have been frankly critical of certain corporate tendencies and practices. Residence: East Orange, N. J. Office: 27 Pine Street, New York City.

DILLINGHAM, William Paul:

United States Senator; born at Waterbury, Vt. Dec. 12, 1843; son of Paul and Julia (Carpenter) Dillingham. He received an academic education and was admitted to the bar in 1867. He was State's attorney for Washington County for two terms and commissioner of State taxes for several years. In 1876 and again in 1884 he was a member of the Vermont House of Representatives, and he was a State Senator from Washington County in 1878 and again in 1880. He was afterward elected governor of Vermont, serving from 1888 to 1890. On October 18, 1900, he was elected United States Senator from Vermont to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Justin S. Morrill and has been twice elected for full terms. His present term will expire March 3, 1915. Senator Dillingham was appointed chairman of the United States Immigration Commission in 1907. He has been president of the Waterbury (Vt.) National Bank since 1890. Address: Montpelier, Vermont.

DILLON, John Forrest:

Jurist; born in Northampton, N. Y., Dec. 25, 1831; son of Thomas and Rosannah Dillon. He was graduated from the medical department of the University of Iowa, but after six months medical practice he took up the study of law, and he was admitted to the bar in 1852. He was State prosecuting attorney from 1852 to 1858; judge of the Seventh Judicial District of Iowa from 1858 to 1863; judge of the Supreme Court of Iowa from 1863 to 1869; and judge of the United States Circuit Court of the Eighth Judicial Circuit from 1867 to 1879. He resigned and then became professor of real estate and equity jurisprudence in Columbia Law School from 1879 until 1882, when he resumed the practice of law. He is author of numerous law books and of many articles on legal subjects. Judge Dillon was a member of the Third Annual Convention of the Association for the Codification of the Law of Nations (L'Institut de droit International). He is general and consulting counsel to Interborough Railroad, Texas and Pacific Railway and the Western Union Telegraph Companies. Residence: Far Hills, N. J. Address: 195 Broadway, New York City.

DIMMOCK, George:

Zoölogist; born in Springfield, Mass., May 17, 1852; son of George Monroe and Elizabeth (Learned) Dimmock. He was graduated from Harvard University, A.B., 1877 from the University of Leipzig, as A.M. and Ph.D. in 1881, and was at the Sorbonne (University of Paris) as special student 1881-1882, and since then has been engaged in private research. For several years he has been working on investigations in the early stages of beetles. He was editor of Psyche (entomological journal), 1877-1890. Mr. Dimmock is a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of the American Society of Naturalists, the Boston Society of Natural History, Société Entomologique de France, and the Cambridge Entomological Club. He married at Cambridge, Mass., March 30, 1878, Anna Katharina Hofmann, and they have one daughter. Address: 531 Berkshire Avenue, Springfield, Mass.

DINGLEY, Frank Lambert:

Editor; born at Unity, Waldo County, Me., Feb. 7, 1840; son of Nelson and Jane (Lambert) Dingley. He was graduated from Bowdoin College, A.B., with Phi Beta Kappa honors, in 1861, and received the degree of A.M. in 1863. With his brother (the late Congressman Nelson Dingley, Jr.) he established the Lewiston Journal at Lewiston, Maine, in 1861, and he is still its editor, and treasurer of the Lewiston Journal Company. In addition to his editorial work Mr. Dingley has delivered from time to time, addresses on current topics, and a series of addresses on The Newspaper, made before the Greenacre School of Philosophy, have been published by the Lewiston Journal Company. During the administration of President Benjamin Harrison, he was appointed a special commissioner to investigate the subject of foreign immigration, and in that capacity he went to points of embarkation of emigrants on the continent of Europe and in the British Isles, and on the basis of his report, which was published by the Department of State, the first legislation in restraint of undesirable immigration was enacted by the American Congress. He married Lu Mary Greeley, at Canton, Lewis County, Mo., Oct. 21, 1863. Residence: Auburn, Me. Office: The Journal, Lewiston Maine.

DISSTON, William:

Manufacturer; born in Philadelphia, June 24, 1859. He is the fourth son of the late Henry Disston, of England, who came to America and in 1840 established the Diss-ton Saw Manufactory. On his father's side he is descended from John d'Isney who came from Normandy with William the Conqueror in the eleventh century, and on his mother's side from a Swedish family who came to Philadelphia in 1640. He was educated at the Episcopal Academy and afterward spent seven years in his father's manufactory. He is president of Henry Disston and Sons Saw Works and of the German American Title and Trust Company and is a director of the Union League of Philadelphia. Address: Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia.

DITHMAR, Edward Augustus:

Editor; born in New York City, May 22, 1854; son of Henry and Anna B. Dithmar. He was educated in the schools of New York City. Since 1871 he has been engaged in editorial work of the New York Evening Post and the New York Times. He was dramatic critic, 1884-1901; London correspondent, 1901-1902; editor of The Saturday Review of Books, 1902-1907, and since 1907 has been editorial writer on the New York Times. He is author of: John Drew, A Biographical Sketch, and other dramatic writings. He is a member of the Savage Club of London and the National Club of New York City. He married in 1882, Ella B. Knapp. Address: Hotel San Remo, New York City.

DITSON, Charles Healy:

Publisher of music; born in Boston, Mass., Aug. 11, 1845; son of Oliver and Catherine (Delano) Ditson. He was educated in the Boston High School. His career has been spent in the business established by his father; and he is now president of the Oliver Ditson Company, of Boston, and president of Charles H. Ditson & Company of New York City. Mr. Ditson is a member of the New England Society in New York, and the Society of Mayflower Descendants; treasurer of the Oliver Ditson Society for the Relief of Needy Musicians (Boston), and is a member of the Players' Club of New York City and the Algonquin Club of Boston. Mr. Ditson married in New York City, Oct. 7, 1890, Alice M. Tappin. Address: 19 East 37th Street, New York City.

DITTENHOEFER, Abram Jesse:

Lawyer; born in Charleston, S. C., March 17, 1836; son of Isaac and Babetta Dittenhoefer. When four years old, came to New York City with his parents. He was educated in Columbia College, and was at the head of his class in classics, and was admitted to the bar in 1857. Mr. Dittenhoefer was appointed by Governor Fenton of New York, a Justice of the City Court, to fill a vacancy, and was later nominated to the same office. He was presidential elector for the State of New York for Lincoln and Johnson in 1864, and was offered the appointment as a United States District Judge for South Carolina, by President Lincoln. He was a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1876, that nominated President Hayes, and has also been a delegate to many other Republican Conventions. Judge Dittenhoefer was Chairman of the German Republican Central Committee for twelve terms. He is counsel for the Lincoln National Bank and numerous other corporations; has been prominent in numerous important litigations; and was counsel for the brokers and newspaper men who were indicted and tried in Washington for refusing to answer the United States Senate Investigating Committee, as to who gave them the information published by them in the newspapers, relating to the sugar scandal. He has been successful in many prominent criminal cases that have attracted public attention. He was counsel for the directors and captain of the ill-fated General Slocum, and for Rosenthal and Company, who were prosecuted in the United States courts in connection with the Japanese silk-smuggling frauds. He is an authority on the law of the drama and stage, and, as counsel for the Metropolitan Opera House of New York City, he succeeded in defeating the application of the widow of Richard Wagner for an injunction restraining the production of the Opera Parsifal at that opera house. Mr. Dittenhoefer is an honorary member of the Actors' Fund, which he helped to organize. Office Address: 96 Broadway, New York City.

DIX, Beulah Marie:

Author, playwright: born in Kingston, Mass., Dec. 25, 1876; daughter of Henry S. and Maria L. (Morse) Dix. She was educated in the public schools of Plymouth and Chelsea, Mass., and Radcliffe College, being graduated A.B., summa cum laude, 1897, with highest honors in English and the Schier prize of $250 "for the best thesis presented by a student either of Radcliffe or Harvard, who was a candidate for English honors," and received the A.M. degree from Radcliffe College, 1898. Miss Dix is author of the juvenile books: Hugh Gwyeth; Soldier Rigdale; A Little Captive Lad; Merrylips; also of the novels: The Making of Christopher Ferringham; Blount of Breckenhow; The Fair Maid of Graystones; and (in collaboration with Miss C. A. Harper), The Beau's Comedy; and short stories in Harper's, Lippincott's, St. Nicholas, Delineator, Youth's Companion. Miss Dix is also author of the one act play "The Hundredth Trick" and (in collaboration with E. G. Sutherland) of the four-act plays: A Rose of Plymouth Town, produced in United States, 1902-1903; The Breed of the Trishams, 1903-1909; Boy O'Carroll, 1906-1907, and Matt of Merry mount, 1906-1907, all three produced in England; also Young Fernald, 1906. The Lilac Room, 1906-1907, The Road to Yesterday, 1906-1909, "The Substitute" 1908-1909 all produced in the United States. Miss Dix is a member of the Boston Authors and College Clubs of Boston; the Pen and Brush Club and Society of American Dramatists and Composers, New York City; and also a member of the Lyceum Club of London. Address: 15 Blagden Street, Boston, Mass.

DIX, Eulabee:

Miniature painter: born in Greenfield, Ill., 1879; daughter of Horace P. and Mamie (Bartholomew) Dix. She studied at the St. Louis School of Fine Arts (where she received two medals), the Art Students'

League, New York City, and the Colarossi School in Paris. Miss Dix has exhibited at the National Academy of Design, the American Water Color Society, and the New York Miniature Society in New York City; and in the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts and Miniature Society in Philadelphia. She had an exhibit at the Fine Arts Society, Bond Street, London, 1906, at the Bauer-Tolcom Galleries in New York City, 1907, and at the Forest Park Museum in St. Louis, and has gained wide recognition for the artistic coloring and composition of her work. Address: 57 West 57th Street, New York City.

DIX, William Frederick:

Secretary of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York; born in Newark, N. J., Nov. 18, 1867; son of John Edwin and Mary Fisher (Joy) Dix. He was graduated from Princeton University with honors in English literature in 1889. Mr. Dix was managing editor of the Nassau Literary Magazine at Princeton. After his graduation he traveled in Europe, North Africa, Asia Minor, India, Burma, China, and Japan, and on his return he engaged in literary work. He was literary editor of the Churchman in 1894. In 1900 he became the editor of the Home Journal, which soon after changed its name to Town and Country. He resigned that editorship, May 1, 1906, to become secretary of the Mutual Life Insurance Company. He is still, however, a director of the Stuyvesant Company, who are the publishers of Town and Country. Mr. Dix is author of: The Face in the Girandole, a Romance of Old Furniture; and of The Lost Princess, a novel. He is a member and registrar of the Society of Colonial Wars in the State of New Jersey; a member of the Essex County Country Club of New Jersey; Crystal Lake Skating Club, Orange, N. J., and a member of the Authors Club of New York. Mr. Dix married at East Orange, N. J., June 2, 1900, Mary Alice Tennille, and they have a son, Tennille, and a daughter, Allison Joy. Residence: 177 Harrison Street, East Orange, N. J. Office: 32 Nassau Street, New York City.

DIXEY, Henry E:

Actor; born in Boston, Mass., Jan. 6, 1859. He made his first appearance on the stage at the age of ten, at the Howard Athenæum, Boston, playing "Peanuts" in the melodrama "Under the Gaslight." He afterward became a member of Edward E. Rice's Company, in which he was one of the original cast of Evangeline, in which he and Richard Golden played the Humorous Heifer, afterward playing other parts in that play and becoming leading comedian of that company, afterward playing in the Gilbert and Sullivan and other comic operas of what period and afterward leading comedian under the management of John Stetson. He made his first great success in the extravaganza "Adonis," under the management of E. E. Rice. He was a member of Augustin Daly's Company, 1894-1895 and has since starred in numerous comedy parts in the United States and England, including The Adventures of François, The Man on the Box, etc. He is a member of The Lambs and The Players Clubs. Residence: Wassaic, N. Y. Address: Lambs Club, New York City.

DIXON, Joseph Moore:

United States Senator; born at Snow Camp, N. C., July 31, 1867. He attended Earlham College, Richmond, Indiana, and was graduated from Guilford College, N. C., May, 1889. He was admitted to the bar in Dec., 1892; and served as assistant prosecuting attorney for Missoula County, Mont., 1893-1895. He was elected prosecuting attorney in 1894 and served until 1897, and was elected a member of the Montana Legislature in 1900. Senator Dixon was a delegate-at-large from Montana to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1904. He was elected in 1902 to the House of Representatives of the Fifty-eighth Congress, was reelected in 1904 to the Fifty-ninth Congress, and was elected United States Senator from Montana for the term ending March 4, 1913, succeeding Hon. W. A. Clark, Democrat. Senator Dixon married in March, 1896, Carrie M. Worden. Address: Missoula, Mont.

DIXON, Lincoln:

Congressman; born in Vernon, Ind., Feb. 9, 1860; son of Samuel M. and Belinda (Foster) Dixon. He was graduated from the Indiana State University A. B., 1880, and began the practice of law at North Vernon in 1882. He was elected prosecuting attorney for the Sixth Judicial Circuit of Indiana in 1884; reelected in 1886, 1888 and 1890, and was a member of the Democratic State Committee from 1887 until he was nominated for Congress in 1904. He was elected to the Fifth-ninth Congress in 1904 from the Fourth Indiana District and reelected in 1906 and 1908 to the Sixtieth and Sixty-first Congress. Mr. Dixon married at North Vernon, Ind., Oct. 16, 1884, Kate Storey. Address: North Vernon, Ind.

DIXON, Thomas, Jr.:

Lecturer, author and playwright; born in Shelby, Cleveland County, N. C., Jan. 11, 1864; son of Rev. Thomas and Amanda (McAfee) Dixon. He was graduated from Wake Forest (N. C.) College, A.B., 1882, A.M., 1883, Greensboro (N. C.) Law School, LL.B., 1886; scholar in history and politics, Johns Hopkins University, 1883-1884. Mr. Dixon was admitted to the bar and practised law in North Carolina, and was afterward admitted to the Supreme Court of the United States, and he served a term as member of the North Carolina Legislature. He entered the Baptist ministry in 1887, was pastor at Raleigh, N. C., 1887-1888; pastor of Baptist Church in Boston, 1888-1889, and in New York City, 1889-1899. During the period of his pastorates Mr. Dixon became one of the most popular of American platform lecturers, and from 1899 to 1902 devoted his attention to engagements as a lyceum lecturer. Since 1902 he has been occupied chiefly as novelist and dramatist. He is especially well known for his works based upon the relations between the white and colored races in the South, and for plays based upon these books. He is author of: The Leopard's Spots, 1902; The One Woman, 1903; The Clausman, 1904; The Life Worth Living, 1905; The Traitor, 1907; Comrades, 1909. Mr. Dixon has dramatized: The Clansman, 1905; The One Woman, 1906; The Traitor, 1908. Mr. Dixon married, in Montgomery, Ala., March 3, 1886. Harriet Busscy. Residence: 867 Riverside Drive, New York City.

DIXSON, Zella Allen:

Author, lecturer, publisher, librarian; born in Zanesville, Ohio; youngest daughter of Josiah Buffett and Mary Caroline (Blandy) Allen. Her father, who was one of the pioneer merchants of Zanesville, was a descendant of Increase Allen, a native of Devonshire, England, who emigrated with his two brothers to Dartmouth County, R. I. (now Massachusetts) in 1661. Her paternal great-grandmother was Rachel Buffett, of Paris, France, a daughter of the famous French author. Her maternal ancestry is wholly English, her grandfather being Benjamin Blandy, of Bristol, England, and her maternal grandmother was Jane Addison, daughter of Leonard Addison of the family of the English essayist, Joseph Addison. Among her cousins she includes Lady Kelvin, who was Mary Blandy of the Madeira Islands. Her education was secured in the public schools of Zanesville, Putnam Seminary and Mt. Holyoke College, A.B., 1880, with additional four years of graduate Greek. Oct. 6, 1881, she married in Zanesville, Ohio, Joseph Ehrman Dixon, of Elyria, Ohio, who died in Dayton, Ohio, April 25, 1885. She pursued a special course in library science and served as assistant librarian in Columbia College, 1885-1886, followed by two periods of study in the British Museum Library as an accredited scholar; received the degree of A.M. from Shepardson College, 1892, and from Denison University, 1902, and the degree of Doctor of Letters (L.H.D.) from Shurtleff College. Dr. Dixon has held many important positions, was professionally engaged as library expert, 1887-1888; librarian of Denison University, 1888-1890; librarian of the Baptist Union Theological Seminary, 1890-1892; organizer and administrative head of the University of Chicago Library since 1892; also, since 1896, lecturer in bibliography and library science, in the University of

